PUBLISHERS' NOTE

---

IN issuing this annotated edition of Browning's works, the Publishers have first made sure of following with scrupulous care the author's latest revised text. As regards the order of the poems, they have adopted for the earlier works the arrangement made by the poet before the publication of The Ring and the Book, when he gathered all of his previous poems and dramas and issued them, rearranged and revised, in a series of six volumes. The other writings which followed that edition are reproduced in the order of their appearance.

So many changes appear in the latest form of Pauline that it has been substituted for the earlier, and so appears as the first poem in this edition. At the same time it has been deemed of interest to students to print the earlier text, that of 1833 revised in 1865, immediately after, with corresponding numbers of pages, distinguished by asterisks.

The earlier Riverside edition, which appeared first in 1887, contained the text only of Browning's poems and dramas. At the same time a valuable work by Mr. George Willis Cooke was issued, bearing the title, A Guide Book to the Poetic and Dramatic Works of Robert Browning. Mr. Cooke brought together a great body of interesting material illustrative and exegetical of the poetry, arranging it in a dictionary form. This commentary is so valuable that the Publishers have decided to make it immediately available to the readers of the present edition, and accordingly Mr. Cooke has drawn upon his Guide Book, as well as availed himself of later investigations, in the preparation of the Introductions and Notes to the several volumes.

In the final volume of the series will be found Indexes of contents and of first lines.

BROWNING wrote Pauline at the age of twenty-one, when under the influence of Shelley. It was read by his parents, who saw something in it to commend, though PAULINE. his father criticised it severely. It was their approval of it, on the whole, however, that led an aunt to put into his hand the money with which to print it, and it appeared from the press of Saunders & Utley, in 1833. It attracted almost no attention from the press, but was reviewed by the Rev. William Johnson Fox, editor of the Monthly Repository. Of this friendly and appreciative notice Browning wrote: "I shall never write a line without thinking of the source of my first praise, be assured." John Stuart Mill also proposed to write in commendation of the poem, but the only periodical to which he had free access had already printed a contemptuous disapproval of it. Years later Dante Gabriel Rossetti found the poem in the British Museum and copied it in full, with the conviction that Browning was the author.

This poem was intended by Browning for the introduction to an extended work, but nothing more of it was written. Five years after the publication of Pauline he wrote in a copy: "The only remaining crab of the Shapely Tree of Life in my Fool's Paradise, . . . written in pursuance of a foolish plan I forget or have no wish to remember." The poet permitted Pauline to pass into neglect until 1867, when the announcement of its republication by some one who wished to take advantage of his growing fame led him to publish it with his own name, and the following preface:—

"The first piece in the series (Pauline), I acknowledge and retain with extreme repugnance, indeed purely of necessity; for not long ago I inspected one, and am certified of the existence of other transcripts, intended sooner or later to be published abroad : by forestalling these, I can at least correct some misprints (no syllable is changed) and introduce a boyish work by an exculpatory word. The thing was my earliest attempt at 'poetry always dramatic in principle, and so many utterances of so many imaginary persons, not mine,' which I have since written according to a scheme less extravagant and scale less impracticable than were ventured upon in this crude preliminary sketch, — a sketch that, on reviewal, appears not altogether wide of some hint of the characteristic features of that particular dramatis persona it would fain have reproduced ; good draughtsmanship, however, and right handling were far beyond the artist at that time.

"LONDON, December 25, 1867."

On making his final collective edition of his works, Browning added the following statement : —

"I preserve, in order to supplement it, the foregoing preface. I had thought, when compelled to include in my collected works the poem to which it refers, that the honest course would be to reprint, and leave mere literary errors unaltered. Twenty years' endurance of an eyesore seems more than sufficient : my faults remain duly recorded against me, and I claim permission to somewhat diminish these, so far as style is concerned, in the present and final edition, where Pauline must needs, first of my performances, confront the reader. I have simply removed solecisms, mended the metre a little, and endeavored to strengthen the phraseology, — experiences helping in some degree the helplessness of juvenile haste and heat in their untried adventure long ago.

"LONDON, February 27, 1888."

When reprinting the poem for the last time, Browning made the additional comment : —

"This introduction would appear less absurdly pretentious did it apply, as was intended, to a completed structure of which the poem was meant for only a beginning and remains a fragment."

It may be said of Pauline that it has no historical foundation, as did so many of Browning's later poems. The speaker is addressing Pauline, and confessing to her his soul experiences, therefore it is wholly subjective and introspective.

Paracelsus was written in the winter of 1834–35, and was dedicated to the young count who had suggested the subject to him. The original preface was an attempt to explain and justify the method adopted by the poet.

PARACEL-
SUS.

“I am anxious that the reader should not, at the very outset, — mistaking my performance for one of a class with which it has nothing in common, — judge it by principles on which it was never moulded, and subject it to a standard to which it was never meant to conform. I therefore anticipate his discovery that it is an attempt, probably more novel than happy, to reverse the method usually adopted by writers whose aim it is to set forth any phenomenon of the mind or the passions, by the operation of persons and events; and that, instead of having recourse to an external machinery of incidents to create and evolve the crisis I desire to produce, I have ventured to display somewhat minutely the mood itself in its rise and progress, and have suffered the agency by which it is influenced and determined to be generally discernible in its effects alone, and subordinate throughout, if not altogether excluded: and this for a reason. I have endeavored to write a poem, not a drama: the canons of the drama are well known, and I cannot but think that, inasmuch as they have immediate regard to stage representation, the peculiar advantages they hold out are really such only so long as the purpose for which they were at first instituted is kept in view. I do not very well understand what is called a Dramatic Poem, wherein all those restrictions only submitted to on account of compensating good in the original scheme are scrupulously retained, as though for some special fitness in themselves, — and all new facilities placed at an author’s disposal by the vehicle he selects, as pertinaciously rejected. It is certain, however, that a work like mine depends on the intelligence and sympathy of the reader for its success, — indeed, were my scenes stars, it must be his coöperating fancy which, supplying all chasms, shall connect the scattered lights into one constellation, — a Lyre or a Crown. I trust for his indulgence towards a poem which had not been imagined six months ago; and that even should he think slightly of the present (an experiment I am in no case likely to repeat) he will not be prejudiced against other productions which may follow in a more popular, and perhaps less difficult form.

In carrying out this purpose, Browning selected the career of Theophrastus Bombast von Hohenheim, known as Paracelsus, who was born near the city of Zurich in 1493, or not far from that date. He was early taught by his father, entered the University of Basel or Basle, but did not long remain, then studied under Johann Trithemius, a bishop, but also a famous alchemist and astrologer of the day. He seems to have given attention to chemistry and medicine, and to have become somewhat proficient in both, according to the standards of the time.

About 1512 Paracelsus set out on his scientific travels, his purpose being his own education, and the gaining of whatever knowledge was to be found anywhere. He went through Germany, Italy, France, the Netherlands, Denmark, Sweden, Russia, and probably some parts of Asia. He is said to have gone through Prussia, Austria, Turkey, Egypt, Tartary, and back again to Constantinople, where he is said to have spent some time. He is even reported to have been a captive in Tartary, and to have learned valuable medical secrets there; and it is stated that he settled in Constantinople for some years as a physician. Waite says that in Muscovy he was brought before the great Cham. “His knowledge of medicine and chemistry made him a favorite at the court of this potentate, who sent him in company with his son on an embassy to Constantinople. It was here, according to Helmont, that he was taught the supreme secret of alchemy by a generous Arabian, who gave him the universal dissolvent, the Azoth of Western adepts, the alcohect or sophic fire.”

Very little is really known about the travels of Paracelsus, and it is by no means certain that he was ever in the East. The supposition of Hartmann, that he must have acquired some of his teachings by contact with Indian or other Asiatic believers in occultism, has little to support it; and Neo-Platonism could have given him everything of this kind which he expressed in his books. Hartmann's account of his method of acquiring knowledge is much more to the point: "Paracelsus travelled through the countries along the Danube, and came into Italy, where he served as an army surgeon in the imperial army, and participated in many of the warlike expeditions of these times. On these occasions he collected a great deal of useful information, not only from physicians, surgeons, and alchemists, but also by his personal intercourse with executioners, barbers, shepherds, Jews, gypsies, midwives, and fortune-tellers. He collected useful information from the high and low, from the learned and from the vulgar, and it was nothing unusual to see him in the company of teamsters and vagabonds, on the highways and at public inns,—a circumstance on account of which his narrow-minded enemies heaped upon him bitter reproach and vilifications."

Having spent something more than ten years on his travels, Paracelsus returned home, and began his career as a physician and teacher. In 1526 or 1527 Paracelsus returned to Basle, and was almost at once made the town physician. He performed some remarkable cures, which brought him into notice as possessed of great knowledge and remarkable skill. One of the cures he wrought was that of Froben, who was cured by him of gout by the means of laudanum. Froben was one of the earliest of the great printers, a man of learning and skill, the intimate friend of Erasmus, and the publisher of his many works, and of the editions of the classic and Christian writers which he edited. On the recommendation of Ecolampadius, and other leaders among the Protestant reformers, Paracelsus was soon appointed by the city council of Basle to the post of professor of physic, medicine, and surgery in the university, and with a considerable salary.

Learned as Paracelsus undoubtedly was, and skilful as he must have been, he seems not to have had the discretion and sound judgment which are a better part of all wisdom. That he was a man of much originality we may admit, and that he had the boldness of the true reformer; but he was wanting in tact, and in capacity for wisely guiding other men. Very soon after he was established in Basle he came into collision with the city authorities and with the people. He asked the town council to make the apothecaries subject to him as the city physician, and that they should not be allowed to sell any medicines except at his order. This was probably a just request from the point of view of a wise physician; but the apothecaries would not submit to the control of Paracelsus, and they excited the people against the reformer. This action was construed as a direct attack upon the business of all the druggists and apothecaries in the city; and it excited the jealousy of the other physicians, who likewise turned against the innovator.

As a professor and lecturer in the university Paracelsus carried his spirit of innovation still farther than he had done as the city physician. From the very first the method of Paracelsus was boldly original, not to say egotistical. He did what had not before been undertaken in connection with university teaching, — he discarded Latin in his lectures, and spoke in the vernacular, which was Swiss-German. Then he did not reproduce the teachings of the books, did not go to Galen, Celsus, or any of the masters of the past; but he drew from his own observations, and presented theories and methods of his own. This was doing in medicine what Erasmus had done as a scholar and what Luther had done as a religious teacher. In Paracelsus, however, there was not the gravity and solidity which marked the careers of Luther and Erasmus; and he laid himself open to the charge of being a charlatan. In his lectures he denounced the teachings of Galen and Avicenna, then the great masters of medical science, and he burned their works before his pupils in a dramatic manner. He said that the physicians educated in the old way were quacks and impostors, and that in his own shoe-strings was more knowledge than in the men whose writings had been the standards of medicine for centuries. He proposed to cut wholly loose from the old medical system, and to establish this science upon a basis of its own, which he was ready to supply.

Paracelsus seems to have had an egotism which was repellent to others, rather than an aid to his own success. He said in the preface to one of his books: "I know that the monarchy of mind will belong to me, that mine will be the honor. I do not praise myself, but Nature praises me, for I am born of Nature, and follow her. She knows me and I know her."

The immediate cause of the departure of Paracelsus from Basle was the failure of the city authorities to sustain him in his rights as a physician. Having attended a certain Canon Cornelius, of Lichtenfels, as a physician, and cured him of gout, this priest refused to pay him for his services; and the authorities refused to sustain Paracelsus in his attempts to collect the fee. Many causes, however, conspired together to secure the downfall of Paracelsus. His novelties in medicine, his rejection of the methods of the schools, his careless and coarse habits of living, his pretentious and bombastic ways of speaking of himself, and his use of alchemy and magic, were among the causes that his enemies made use of to defeat his efforts. So great was the opposition to him that he was obliged to leave Basle without taking with him his instruments and his chemicals, and his property was taken charge of by Oporinus, his pupil and amanuensis. He spent a short time at Esslingen, but was driven on, and he was for a dozen years a constant wanderer through the cities of Switzerland and southern Germany. In 1541 he was invited by Archbishop Ernst to settle in Salzburg under his protection. His privations, however, had worn him out, and he died, September 24, 1541, in the "White Horse" inn, and was buried in the graveyard of St. Sebastian.

Paracelsus was a quack without doubt, and yet he was one of the very first students to distinguish chemistry from alchemy. He was an investigator and discoverer, but his mind was under the dominion of astrological guesses and magical formulas. He was so pretentious that his name gave origin to the word "bombast" to describe an inflated and egotistical method of speech. He was a man of a fervid and erratic character, full of great purposes, which he had not the stability and persistence to realize. He had genius, but he was visionary, and wanting in sound judgment. Much doubt exists as to the real worth of his discoveries because he refused to make known his medical formulas, and kept his scientific acquisitions a secret with himself. He published many books, but they are now practically forgotten. His name is included among the great pretenders and charlatans, rather than among the originators of science.

The inconsistent elements in the character of Paracelsus are well described by Professor Ferguson: "It is not difficult to criticise Paracelsus, and to represent him as so far below the level of his time as to be utterly contemptible. It is difficult, but perhaps not impossible, to raise Paracelsus to a place among the great spirits of mankind. It is most difficult of all to ascertain what his true character really was, to appreciate aright this man of fervid imagination, of powerful and persistent convictions, of unabated honesty and love of truth, of keen insight into the errors (as he thought them) of his time, of a merciless will to lay bare these errors, and to reform the abuses to which they gave rise, who in an instant offends us by his boasting, his grossness, his want of self-respect. It is a problem how to reconcile his ignorance, his weakness, his superstition, his crude notions, his erroneous observations, his ridiculous inferences and theories, with his grasp of method, his lofty views of the true scope of medicine, his lucid statements, his incisive and epigrammatic criticisms of men and motives."

In spite of his egotism and his charlatanry in method, it is unquestionable that Paracelsus was the first of the new race of alchemists who sought not for gold, but to know how to prepare medicines. He was much of a Neo-Platonist, or a believer, perhaps, in the teachings of the Khabbalah; and he made use of these spiritualistic doctrines in his medical theories. He sought for remedies that would act upon the spiritual nature of disease, and accordingly made a large use of the doctrine of signatures, or the correspondence of the microcosm with the macrocosm. This led him to his theory of specifics, and to his arcana of medicines. He taught that nature-philosophy which had so remarkable an expression in the philosophy of Schelling. He was a theosophist, and taught much which has in recent years newly appeared under that name. He had not learned to separate these speculations from those of legitimate science; and in his writings they are almost inextricably mixed with each other, the true scientific method being employed to maintain the wildest theosophic or cabalistic speculations. This strange mixture of good and evil in his teachings is described by Erdmann, who is writing of his theory of the arcana, and says: "Here, as in general with Paracelsus, it is hard to tell where self-deception ceases and charlatanry begins. He cannot be acquitted of either; on the contrary, neither here nor in the case of the famous recipe for the production of the homunculus, is it possible to think of an ironical jest. Amid all the assertions which appear so fantastic, he is never tired of warning his readers against fantasies, and of demanding that Nature herself should be allowed to point out the way."

Charles Kingsley, Jules Andrieu, and other writers, have expressed the idea that Browning has given a better interpretation of the career of Paracelsus than have his philosophical exponents. Browning has interpreted Paracelsus as one who was a believer in intuition as a source of truth, and this he undoubtedly was. He expected to arrive at the secrets of Nature by direct apprehension or by intuition. He thought that the soul could see directly into Nature, and find truth by the special activity of the interior being. "Hidden things of the soul," he says in his De Natura Rerum, "which cannot be perceived by the physical senses, may be found through the sidereal body, through whose organism we may look into nature in the same way as the sun shines through a glass. The inner nature of everything may therefore be known through magic in general, and through the powers of the inner or second sight."

Browning subjected Paracelsus to thorough revision, and in the edition of 1888 at least one third of the lines have been in some way emended, by omission, addition, or rewriting. Among the few who read it with enthusiasm was William Macready, the actor, whom Browning first met at the house of the Rev. W. J. Fox, in November, 1835. "The actor was exceedingly charmed with the young and ardent writer, who, he said, looked more like a poet than any man he had ever met. He read Paracelsus with a sort of ecstasy, and cultivated Mr. Browning's acquaintance on every occasion. He asked him to spend New Year's Day with him at his country-house at Elstree, and on the last day of 1835 Mr. Browning found himself at 'The Blue Posts' waiting for the coach, in company with two or three other persons, who looked at him with curiosity. One of these, a tall, ardent, noticeable young fellow, constantly caught his eye, but no conversation passed as they drove northward. It turned out that they were all Macready's guests, while the noticeable youth was no other than John Forster. He, on being introduced to Mr. Browning, said: 'Did you see a little notice of you I wrote in the Examiner?' The friendship so begun lasted, with a certain interval, until the end of Forster's life."

On this occasion it probably was that Macready asked the poet to write him a play, and even named to him a subject; but Browning was not caught by the theme proposed. A year later the two met at a supper given by Macready after the successful presentation of Talfourd's Ion. When the guests were leaving, the actor said to the poet: "Write a play, Browning, and keep me from going to America." "Shall it be historical and English?" queried Browning. "What do you say to a drama on Strafford?" The subject was suggested by the fact that the poet had been giving his aid to John Forster in the writing of his biography of Strafford published in Lives of Eminent British Statesmen. It has been asserted by Dr. Furnivall that this biography was, in fact, written by Browning, though this is probably much too sweeping a statement; but the poet seems to have given considerable aid to his friend. However, whatever the service rendered, it sufficed to direct Browning's attention to this subject, which Macready accepted, and the play was written. It was produced at the Covent Garden Theatre, May 1, 1837, with a fair degree of success. It was soon after published, with the following preface:—

"I had for some time been engaged in a Poem of a very different nature, when induced to make the present attempt; and am not without apprehension that my eagerness to freshen a jaded mind, by diverting it to the healthy natures of a grand epoch, may have operated unfavorably on the represented play, which is one of Action in Character, rather than Character in Action. To remedy this, in some degree, considerable curtailment will be necessary, and, in a few instances, the supplying details not required, I suppose, by the mere reader. While a trifling success would much gratify, failure will not wholly discourage me from another effort: experience is to come; and earnest endeavor may yet remove many disadvantages.

"The portraits are, I think, faithful; and I am exceedingly fortunate in being able, in proof of this, to refer to the subtle and eloquent exposition of the characters of Eliot and Strafford, in the Lives of Eminent British Statesmen, now in the course of publication in Lardner's Cyclopedia, by a writer [John Forster] whom I am proud to call my friend; and whose biographies of Hampden, Pym, and Vane will, I am sure, fitly illustrate the present year — the Second Centenary of the Trial concerning Ship-Money. My Carlisle, however, is purely imaginary: I at first sketched her singular likeness roughly in, as suggested by Matthews and the memoir-writers — but it was too artificial, and the substituted outline is exclusively from Voiture and Waller.”

In the introduction to Miss Emily H. Hickey's edition of Strafford is given a careful survey of the historical truthfulness of the tragedy from the pen of Professor Samuel R. Gardiner, the able and learned historian. “We may be sure,” says Professor Gardiner, “that it was not by accident that Mr. Browning, in writing this play, decisively abandoned all attempt to be historically accurate. Only here and there does anything in the course of the drama take place as it could have taken place at the actual Court of Charles I. Not merely are there frequent minor inaccuracies, but the very roots of the situation are untrue to fact. The real Strafford was far from opposing the war with the Scots at the time when the Short Parliament was summoned. Pym never had such a friendship for Strafford as he is represented as having, and, to any one who knows anything of the habits of Charles, the idea of Pym or his friends entering into colloquies with Strafford, and even bursting in unannounced into Charles's presence, is, from the historical point of view, simply ludicrous.

“So completely does the drama proceed irrespectively of historical truth, that the critic may dispense with the thankless task of pointing out discrepancies. He will be better employed in asking what ends those discrepancies were intended to serve, and whether the neglect of truth of fact has resulted in the highest truth of character.

“There is not much difficulty in answering the first question. From the beginning to the end of the play the personal relations between the actors are exaggerated at the expense of the political. To make that dramatic which would otherwise not be dramatic, Mr. Browning has been utterly regardless even of historical probability. Whatever personal feeling may have entwined itself in the political attachment between Strafford and Charles is strengthened until it becomes the very basis of Strafford's life, and the keynote of his character. Having thus brought out the moral qualities of his hero, it remained for Mr.

Browning to impress his readers with Strafford's intellectual greatness. The historian who tries to do that will have much to say on his constitutional views and his Irish government, but a dramatist who tried to follow in such a path would only make himself ridiculous. Mr. Browning understood the force of the remark of the Greek philosopher, that Homer makes us realize Helen's beauty most by speaking of the impression which it made upon the old men who looked on her. Mr. Browning brings out Strafford's greatness by showing the impression which he made on Pym and Lady Carlisle.

“Mr. Browning took a hint from the old story, which is without any satisfactory evidence, and which is indirectly contradicted by all the evidence which has reached us, that Pym and Strafford were once intimate friends. In carrying on Pym's feeling of admiration for Charles's minister to the days of the Short and even of the Long Parliament, the dramatist has filled his play with scenes which are more hopelessly impossible than anything else in it; but they all conduce to his main object, the creation of the impression about Strafford which he wished to convey. He pursues the same object in dealing with Lady Carlisle. What he needs is her admiration of Strafford, not Strafford's admiration of her. He takes care to show that she was not, as vulgar rumor supposed, Strafford's mistress. The impression of Strafford's greatness is brought more completely home to the spectator or the reader, because of the effect which it produces upon one who has given her heart without return.

“Having thus noted the means employed in creating the impression desired, we have still to ask how far the impression is a correct one. On this point each reader must judge for himself. For myself, I can only say that, every time that I read the play, I feel more certain that Mr. Browning has seized the real Strafford, the man of critical brain, of rapid decision, and tender heart, who strove for the good of his nation without sympathy for the generation in which he lived. Charles, too, with his faults perhaps exaggerated, is nevertheless the real Charles. Of Lady Carlisle we know too little to speak with anything like certainty, but, in spite of Mr. Browning's statement that his character of her is purely imaginary, there is a wonderful paral-

lism between the Lady Carlisle of the play and the less noble Lady Carlisle which history conjectures rather than describes. There is the same tendency to fix the heart upon the truly great man, and to labor for him without the requital of human affection, though in the play no part is played by that vanity which seems to have been the main motive with the real personage.

“On the other hand, Pym is the most unsatisfactory, from an historical point of view, of the leading personages. It was perhaps necessary for dramatic purposes that he should appear to be larger-hearted than he was, but it imparts an unreality to his character. It must be remembered, however, that the aim of the dramatist was to place Strafford before the eyes of men, not to produce an exact representation of the statesmen of the Long Parliament.”

After the publication of Paracelsus, Browning began another extended poem, somewhat in the same style. This he put aside in order that he might write Sordello, and perhaps also in order to the preparation of the earlier numbers of his Bells and Pomegranates. Finally, in 1840, Sordello was published, but without preface. The obscurity of the poem was frequently commented upon, both seriously and in a humorous manner. This led the poet to revise it in 1863, to add a commentary in the form of headlines, and to make a brief defense of it in a dedicatory letter to J. Milstand, of Dijon. At first he thought of completely rewriting the poem, but he soon saw that this was impossible. His words of interpretation of his purpose in the poem have become memorable: “The historical decoration was purposely of no more importance than a background requires; and my stress lay on the incidents in the development of a soul; little else is worth study.”

Concerning the revised edition Browning wrote to a friend, protesting against the statement that he had rewritten the poem, or that he had made any essential change in it:—

“I do not understand what — can mean by saying that Sordello has been ‘rewritten.’ I did certainly at one time intend to rewrite much of it, but changed my mind,—and the edition which I reprinted was the same in all respects as its predecessors—only with an elucidatory heading to each page, and some few alterations, presumably for the better, in the text, such as occur in most of my works. I cannot remember a single instance of any importance that is rewritten, and I only suppose that — has taken project for performance, and set down as ‘done’ what was for a while intended to be done.”

In the sixth canto of Dante’s Purgatorio Sordello appears, and is made the guide of Virgil and his companion. The shade of Sordello is described as being silent and watchful: —

“Nothing whatever did it say to us,
 But let us go our way, eyeing us only
 After the manner of a couchant lion;
 Still near to it Virgilius drew, entreating
 That it would point us out the best ascent;
 And it replied not unto his demand,
 But of our native land and of our life
 It questioned us; and the sweet Guide began:
 ‘Mantua,’ — and the shade, all in itself recluse,
 Rose tow’rds him from the place where first it was,
 Saying: ‘O Mantuan, I am Sordello
 Of thine own land!’ and one embraced the other.

That noble soul was so impatient, only
 At the sweet sound of his own native land,
 To make its citizen glad welcome there.”

Dante thus honors Sordello because that poet had preceded him in the attempt to establish a vernacular Italian speech as a medium of literary expression. For the same cause he described Sordello in his De Vulgari Eloquentia as “a man so choice in his language, that not only in his poems, but in whatever way he spoke, he abandoned the dialect of his province.” Sordello lived during the first part of the thirteenth century, and he was a poet, a troubadour, a soldier by profession, and a politician of some ability. Little is now known about him, and that little is much obscured by tradition and legend. It is probable that two persons have in some way been mixed together in the accounts given of him. One of these persons was a poet, and the other was a man of action and political intrigue.

Browning evidently studied whatever was written about Sordello by the chroniclers; but he has not undertaken to unriddle the biographical difficulties which surround his name. Whatever would best serve his purpose in the traditions he has used; but he has not tried to be consistent with historical probability. He makes Sordello the supposed son of an archer, El Corte by name, and he has been brought up at the castle of Goïto, by Adelaide, the wife of Eccelin of Romano. In the first book the life of Sordello at Goïto is described; and his failure as a troubadour is set forth in the second. In the third book Sordello journeys to Verona, and Palma declares her love for him. He then becomes her minstrel and her devoted lover. In the fourth book the horrors of civil war are described, and their effect on Sordello in making him desert the Ghibelline cause, which had the devotion of his lady love. The fifth book discloses the true birth of Sordello, and he finds his father in Salinguerra, the great Ghibelline chief and politician. Through his connection with Palma it is now made possible for Sordello to become the head of all of Northern Italy. The last book shows him struggling between the ambition of leadership, which he can now gratify, and the conviction of his heart that the popular cause is the true one and the one he ought to support. At last he makes the sacrifice; but the attempt is too much for him, and he dies before it is fairly accomplished.

One account of Sordello is that presented by Quadrio in his Storia d' ogni Poesia, who says: "Sordello, native of Goïto (Sordel de Goi), a village in the Mantuan territory, was born in 1184, and was the son of a poor knight named Elcort. . . . Having afterwards returned to Italy, he governed Mantua with the title of regent and captain-general, and was opposed to the tyrant Ezzelino, being a great lover of justice, as Agnelli writes. Finally he died, very old and full of honor, about 1280. He wrote not only in Provençal, but also in our own common Italian tongue; and he was one of those poets who avoided the dialect of his own province, and used the good, choice language, as Dante affirms in his book of De Vulgari Eloquio."

Commenting on the accounts given of Sordello, Millot, in his History of the Literature of the Troubadours, says: "According to Agnelli and Platina, historians of Mantua, he was of the house of Visconti of that city; valiant in deeds of arms, famous in jousts and tournaments, he won the love of Beatrice, daughter of Ezzelin de Romano, Lord of the Marca Trevigiana, and married her; he governed Mantua as podestà and captain-general, and though son-in-law of the tyrant Ezzelin, he always opposed him, being a great lover of justice. We find these facts cited by Crescimbeni, who says that Sordello was the lord of Goïto; but as they are not applicable to our poet, we presume they refer to a warrior of the same name, and perhaps of a different family. Among the pieces of Sordello, thirty-four in number, there are some fifteen songs of gallantry, though Nostradamus says that all his pieces turn only upon philosophical subjects."

The French historians give a somewhat different account of Sordello, and they especially dwell upon his character as a troubadour. Nostradamus, in his Lives of the Provençal Poets, says: "Sordello was a Mantuan poet, who surpassed in Provençal song Calvo, Folchetto of Marseilles, Lanfranco Cicala, Percival Doria, and all the other Genoese and Tuscan poets, who took far greater delight in our Provençal tongue, on account of its sweetness, than in their own maternal language. This poet was very studious, and exceedingly eager to know all things, and as much as any one of his nation excellent in learning as well as in understanding and in prudence. He wrote several beautiful songs, not indeed of love, for not one of that kind is found among his works, but on philosophic subjects. Raymond Bellinghieri, the last Count of Provence of that name, in the last days of his life (the poet being then but fifteen years of age) on account of the excellence of his poetry and the rare invention shown in his productions, took him into his service, as Pietro di Castelnuovo, himself a Provençal poet, informs us. He also wrote various satires in the same language, and among others one in which he reproves all the Christian princes; and it is composed in the form of a funeral song on the death of Blancasso."

Raynouard, in his Poetry of the Troubadours, tells the story of Sordello's life in a way of his own: "Sordello was a Mantuan of Sirier, son of a poor knight whose name was Sir El Cort. And he delighted in learning songs and in making them, and wrote love-songs and satires. And he came to the court of the Count of Saint Boniface, and the Count honored him greatly, and by way of pastime he fell in love with the wife of the Count, and she with him. And it happened that the Count quarreled with her brothers, and became estranged from her; and her brothers, Sir Icellis and Sir Albries, persuaded Sir Sordello to run away with her, and he came to live with them in great content. And afterwards he went into Provence and received great honor from all good men, and from the Count and Countess, who gave him a good castle and a gentlewoman for his wife."

In his Literature of Southern Europe, Sismondi says that the poet has always been a hero to his biographer. "No one has experienced this good fortune in an equal degree with Sordello of Mantua, whose real merit consists in the harmony and sensibility of his verses. He was among the first to adopt the ballad-form of writing, and in one of those, which has been translated by Millot (into French) he beautifully contrasts, in the burden of his ballad, the gayeties of Nature and the ever-reviving grief of a heart devoted to love. Sordel, or Sordello, was born at Goïto, near Mantua, and was, for some time, attached to the house of Count St. Boniface, the chief of the Guelph party, in the March of Treviso. He afterwards passed into the service of Raymond Berenger, the last Count of Provence of the house of Barcelona. Although a Lombard, he had adopted, in his compositions, the Provençal language, and many of his countrymen imitated him. It was not, at that time, believed that the Italian was capable of becoming a polished language. The age of Sordello was that of the most brilliant chivalric virtues and the most atrocious crimes. He lived in the midst of heroes and monsters. The imagination of the people was still haunted by the recollection of the ferocious Ezzelino, tyrant of Verona, with whom Sordello is said to have had a contest, and who was probably often mentioned in his verses. The historical monuments of this reign of blood were, however, little known, and the people mingled the name of their favorite with every revolution which excited their terror. It was said that he had carried off the wife of the Count of St. Boniface, the sovereign of Mantua, that he had married the daughter or sister of Ezzelino, and that he had fought this monster with glory to himself. He united, according to popular report, the most brilliant military exploits to the most distinguished poetical genius. By the voice of St. Louis himself, he had been recognized, at a tourney, as the most valiant and gallant of knights; and at last the sovereignty of Mantua had been bestowed upon this noblest of the poets and warriors of his age. Histories of credit have collected, three centuries after Sordello's death, these brilliant fictions, which are, however, disproved by the testimony of contemporary writers. The reputation of Sordello is owing, very materially, to the admiration which has been expressed for him by Dante."

The period in which Sordello lived was a remarkable one. The Crusades were drawing to a close, in failure. They had given a new life to Europe, however, and out of them had grown feudalism and chivalry. In the South of France the spirit of chivalry was beginning to express itself, and it especially found utterance in Provençal poetry. Sordello was a troubadour, if we may believe some of those who have written of him; and he had some of the finer, as well as some of the coarser qualities which were associated with chivalry.

We see in the life of Sordello another remarkable movement of his time finding expression, that of the origin of the modern European languages and literatures. Until his time Latin had been the sole language of literature, science, and theology, for a period of several centuries. The new life that was springing up found utterance in the use of the common or vulgar language of the people as a medium of literary expression. The troubadours developed this movement in France, as the minnesingers did in Germany. A little later Dante wrote his great poem in Italian, and for the first time in modern history made the language in which the people spoke the medium of great and vital ideas. One of the predecessors of Dante in this work, by whose aid it became possible for him to accomplish what he did, was Sordello. This Mantuan poet wrote either in the speech of his own province or in Provençal, in either case discarding Latin, and singing of love, honor, and philosophy in a speech the people could understand.

In another direction Sordello was an actor in a great movement of his time. The struggle between the Church and the Empire — the struggle between religious and secular authority — had begun long before, and at one time appeared to have been settled in the victory of Hildebrand over Henry IV. It had been revived before the time of Sordello, and was in full activity in his day, as a fierce struggle between Guelf and Ghibelline. The Guelfs were on the side of the Church and the popes, and desired that the pope should exercise a spiritual authority extending over all countries, and superior to all secular rulers. Singularly enough to those who judge the Catholic Church from more recent standards, the Guelfs were the democrats of the time, and were on the side of the people as against the hard and oppressive rule of the secular authorities, from duke to emperor. It was this fact which made the cities of Northern Italy incline to the side of the Guelfs, for the cities were developing an independent life, and were as democratic as was then possible.

The Ghibellines took the side of the emperor of the German Empire, which had been known as the Holy Roman Empire. They desired that the Church should rule in all spiritual matters, and that the Empire or the state should rule through the emperor in all secular matters. On their side were the beginnings of the modern idea of the state, and of its entire separation from the church.

It appears that both Paracelsus and Sordello were published at the expense of Browning's father, but when they proved financially unsuccessful he was reluctant to continue this method of bringing his poems before the public. "One day," says Mr. Gosse, "as the poet was discussing the matter with Mr. Edward Moxon, the publisher, the latter remarked that at that time he was bringing out some editions of the old Elizabethan dramatists, in a comparatively cheap form, and that if Mr. Browning would consent to print his poems as pamphlets, using this cheap type, the expense would be very inconsiderable. The poet jumped at the idea, and it was agreed that each poem should form a separate brochure of just one sheet, — sixteen pages, in double columns, — the entire cost of which should not exceed twelve or fifteen pounds. In this fashion began the celebrated series of Bells and Pomegranates, eight numbers of which, a perfect treasury of fine poetry, came out successively between 1841 and 1846. Pippa Passes led the way, and was priced first at sixpence; then, the sale being inconsiderable, at a shilling, which greatly encouraged the sale; and so, slowly, up to half a crown, at which the price of each number finally rested."

With the first number appeared the preface to the whole series, in the following form : —

Two or three years ago I wrote a Play, about which the chief matter I much care to recollect at present is, that a Pitful of good-natured people applauded it : ever since I have been desirous of doing something in the same way that should better reward their attention. What follows, I mean for the first of a series of Dramatical Pieces, to come out at intervals; and I amuse myself by fancying that the cheap mode in which they appear, will for once help me to a sort of Pit-audience again. Of course such a work must go on no longer than it is liked ; and to provide against a too certain and but too possible contingency, let me hasten to say now — what, if I were sure of success, I would try to say circumstantially enough at the close — that I dedicate my best intentions most admiringly to the Author of Ion — most affectionately to Sergeant Talfourd.

ROBERT BROWNING.

As a preface to the last issue to the series appeared the following : —

“Here ends my first series of Bells and Pomegranates, and I take the opportunity of explaining, in reply to inquiries, that I only meant by that title to indicate an endeavor towards something like an alteration, or mixture, of music with discoursing, sound with sense, poetry with thought ; which looks too ambitious, thus expressed, so the symbol was preferred. It is little to the purpose, that such is actually one of the most familiar of the many Rabbinical (and Patristic) acceptations of the phrase ; because I confess that, letting authority alone, I supposed the bare words, in such juxtaposition, would sufficiently convey the desired meaning. ‘Faith and good works’ is another fancy, for instance, and perhaps no easier to arrive at ; yet Giotto placed a pomegranate fruit in the hand of Dante, and Raffaello crowned his Theology (in the Camera della Segnatura) with blossoms of the same ; as if the Bellari and Vasari would be sure to come after, and explain that it was merely ‘simbolo delle buone opere — il qual Pomogranato fu però usato nelle veste del Pontefice appresso gli Ebrei.’

The title Bells and Pomegranates was taken from the description of the priest’s robe in Exodus xxviii. 34, where it is required that the robe should have on the hem of it “pomegranates of blue, and of purple, and of scarlet, and bells of gold between them." Miss Elizabeth Barrett wrote to Browning asking him to inform her precisely what he meant by his Bells and Pomegranates title, and suggested that he give in the next number a solution of this Sphinx riddle. Under date of October 18, 1845, he replied: "I will make a note as you suggest — or, perhaps, keep it for the closing number (the next), when it will come fitly in with two or three parting words I shall have to say. The Rabbis make Bells and Pomegranates symbolical of Pleasure and Profit, the gay and the grave, the Poetry and the Prose, Singing and Sermonizing — such a mixture of effects as in the original hour (that is, a quarter of an hour) of confidence and creation, I meant the whole should prove at last." Pippa Passes has no historical foundation, the scene of it being the Venetian town of Asola, where Browning lived for some months, and where he died. The town was once held by Caterino Cornaro as a fief from the city of Venice, after it had deposed her as Queen of Cyprus. The poem was suggested to Browning one day as he was walking alone in a wood near Dulwich, in the neighborhood of London, when the thought flashed upon him of some one walking alone in that way through life, a person apparently too obscure to leave behind a trace of his or her character, yet unconsciously impressing all who came near with the stamp of a positive individuality of influence.

The second number of Bells and Pomegranates, which appeared in 1842, contained the tragedy of King Victor and King Charles. In the preface, which has been retained in all subsequent editions, Browning indicated the sources of his information, and also made a brief justification of his method of dealing with history. Victor Amadeus II., 1666–1732, was Duke of Savoy, but was ambitious and scheming, and succeeded, with the aid of Austria, in building up for himself an independent kingdom. The tragedy turns upon his abdication in behalf of his son, Charles Emanuel, who was of a very modest and vacillating character. This event was brought about by political complications, but was soon repented of by Victor, largely because of the schemings of his ambitious and unscrupulous wife. The poet has made good use of these materials, but without any attempt to follow the details of the historians or to keep strictly within the limits of fact. In this tragedy, as in his Paracelsus and Sordello, he does not make poetry the vehicle of history, but he uses history for the sake of plot and environment, giving to his characters such interpretation as justifies itself to his own poet's conception of truth.

I DEDICATE THESE VOLUMES TO MY OLD FRIEND JOHN FORSTER, GLAD AND GRATEFUL THAT HE WHO, FROM THE FIRST PUBLICATION OF THE VARIOUS POEMS THEY INCLUDE, HAS BEEN THEIR PROMPTTEST AND STAUCHEST HELPER, SHOULD SEEM EVEN NEARER TO ME NOW THAN ALMOST THIRTY YEARS AGO.

PAULINE :

A FRAGMENT OF A CONFESSION.

*Plus ne suis ce que j'ai été,
Et ne le sçaurois jamais être.*

MAROT.

NON dubito, quin titulus libri nostri raritate sua quamplurimos alliciat ad legendum : inter quos nonnulli obliquæ opinionis, mente languidi, multi etiam maligni, et in ingenium nostrum ingrati accedent, qui temeraria sua ignorantia, vix conspecto titulo clamabunt. Nos vetita docere, hæresium semina jacere : piis auribus offendiculo, præclaris ingenii scandalo esse : . . . adeo conscientiæ suæ consulentes, ut nec Apollo, nec Musæ omnes, neque Angelus de cælo me ab illorum execratione vindicare queant : quibus et ego nunc consulo, ne scripta nostra legant, nec intelligant, nec meminerint : nam noxia sunt, venenosa sunt : Acherontis ostium est in hoc libro, lapides loquitur, caveant, ne cerebrum illis excutiat. Vos autem, qui æqua mente ad legendum venitis, si tantam prudentiæ discretionem adhibueritis, quantam in melle legendo apes, jam securi legite. Puto namque vos et utilitatis haud parum et voluptatis plurimum accepturos. Quod si qua repereritis, quæ vobis non placeant, mittite illa, nec utimini. NAM ET EGO VOBIS ILLA NON PROBO, SED NARRO. Cætera tamen propterea non respuite . . . LONDON : January, 1833.
V. A. XX.

[This introduction would appear less absurdly pretentious did it apply, as was intended, to a completed structure of which the poem was meant for only a beginning and remains a fragment.]

PAULINE, mine own, bend o'er me — thy soft breast
Shall pant to mine — bend o'er me — thy sweet eyes,
And loosened hair and breathing lips, and arms
Drawing me to thee — these build up a screen
To shut me in with thee, and from all fear ;
So that I might unlock the sleepless brood
Of fancies from my soul, their lurking-place,
Nor doubt that each would pass, ne'er to return
To one so watched, so loved and so secured.
But what can guard thee but thy naked love ?
Ah dearest, whoso sucks a poisoned wound
Envenoms his own veins ! Thou art so good,
So calm — if thou shouldst wear a brow less light
For some wild thought which, but for me, were kept
From out thy soul as from a sacred star !
Yet till I have unlocked them it were vain

To hope to sing ; some woe would light on me ;
 Nature would point at one whose quivering lip
 Was bathed in her enchantments, whose brow burned
 Beneath the crown to which her secrets knelt,
 Who learned the spell which can call up the dead,
 And then departed smiling like a fiend
 Who has deceived God, — if such one should seek
 Again her altars and stand robed and crowned
 Amid the faithful ! Sad confession first,
 Remorse and pardon and old claims renewed,
 Ere I can be — as I shall be no more.

I had been spared this shame if I had sat
 By thee forever from the first, in place
 Of my wild dreams of beauty and of good,
 Or with them, as an earnest of their truth :
 No thought nor hope having been shut from thee,
 No vague wish unexplained, no wandering aim
 Sent back to bind on fancy's wings and seek
 Some strange fair world where it might be a law ;
 But, doubting nothing, had been led by thee,
 Through youth, and saved, as one at length awaked
 Who has slept through a peril. Ah vain, vain !

Thou lovest me ; the past is in its grave
 Though its ghost haunts us ; still this much is ours,
 To cast away restraint, lest a worse thing
 Wait for us in the dark. Thou lovest me ;
 And thou art to receive not love but faith,
 For which thou wilt be mine, and smile and take
 All shapes and shames, and veil without a fear
 That form which music follows like a slave :
 And I look to thee and I trust in thee,
 As in a Northern night one looks alway
 Unto the East for morn and spring and joy.
 Thou seest then my aimless, hopeless state,
 And, resting on some few old feelings won
 Back by thy beauty, wouldst that I essay
 The task which was to me what now thou art :
 And why should I conceal one weakness more ?

Thou wilt remember one warm morn when winter
 Crept aged from the earth, and spring's first breath
 Blew soft from the moist hills ; the black-thorn boughs,
 So dark in the bare wood, when glistening
 In the sunshine were white with coming buds,

Like the bright side of a sorrow, and the banks
Had violets opening from sleep like eyes.
I walked with thee who knew'st not a deep shame
Lurked beneath smiles and careless words which sought
To hide it till they wandered and were mute,
As we stood listening on a sunny mound
To the wind murmuring in the damp copse,
Like heavy breathings of some hidden thing
Betrayed by sleep; until the feeling rushed
That I was low indeed, yet not so low
As to endure the calmness of thine eyes.
And so I told thee all, while the cool breast
I leaned on altered not its quiet beating:
And long ere words like a hurt bird's complaint
Bade me look up and be what I had been,
I felt despair could never live by thee:
Thou wilt remember. Thou art not more dear
Than song was once to me; and I ne'er sung
But as one entering bright halls where all
Will rise and shout for him: sure I must own
That I am fallen, having chosen gifts
Distinct from theirs — that I am sad and fain
Would give up all to be but where I was,
Not high as I had been if faithful found,
But low and weak yet full of hope, and sure
Of goodness as of life — that I would lose
All this gay mastery of mind, to sit
Once more with them, trusting in truth and love
And with an aim — not being what I am.

O Pauline, I am ruined who believed
That though my soul had floated from its sphere
Of wild dominion into the dim orb
Of self — that it was strong and free as ever!
It has conformed itself to that dim orb,
Reflecting all its shades and shapes, and now
Must stay where it alone can be adored.
I have felt this in dreams — in dreams in which
I seemed the fate from which I fled; I felt
A strange delight in causing my decay.
I was a fiend in darkness chained forever
Within some ocean-cave; and ages rolled,
Till through the cleft rock, like a moonbeam, came
A white swan to remain with me; and ages
Rolled, yet I tired not of my first free joy
In gazing on the peace of its pure wings:

And then I said, "It is most fair to me,
 Yet its soft wings must sure have suffered change
 From the thick darkness, sure its eyes are dim,
 Its silver pinions must be cramped and numbed
 With sleeping ages here; it cannot leave me,
 For it would seem, in light beside its kind,
 Withered, though here to me most beautiful."
 And then I was a young witch whose blue eyes,
 As she stood naked by the river springs,
 Drew down a god: I watched his radiant form
 Growing less radiant, and it gladdened me;
 Till one morn, as he sat in the sunshine
 Upon my knees, singing to me of heaven,
 He turned to look at me, ere I could lose
 The grin with which I viewed his perishing:
 And he shrieked and departed and sat long
 By his deserted throne, but sunk at last
 Murmuring, as I kissed his lips and curled
 Around him, "I am still a god — to thee."

Still I can lay my soul bare in its fall,
 Since all the wandering and all the weakness
 Will be a saddest comment on the song:
 And if, that done, I can be young again,
 I will give up all gained, as willingly
 As one gives up a charm which shuts him out
 From hope or part or care in human kind.
 As life wanes, all its care and strife and toil
 Seem strangely valueless, while the old trees
 Which grew by our youth's home, the waving mass
 Of climbing plants heavy with bloom and dew,
 The morning swallows with their songs like words,
 All these seem clear and only worth our thoughts:
 So, aught connected with my early life,
 My rude songs or my wild imaginings,
 How I look on them — most distinct amid
 The fever and the stir of after years!

I ne'er had ventured e'en to hope for this,
 Had not the glow I felt at His award,
 Assured me all was not extinct within:
 His whom all honor, whose renown springs up
 Like sunlight which will visit all the world,
 So that e'en they who sneered at him at first,
 Come out to it, as some dark spider crawls
 From his foul nets which some lit torch invades,
 Yet spinning still new films for his retreat.

Thou didst smile, poet, but can we forgive?
Sun-treader, life and light be thine forever!
Thou art gone from us; years go by and spring
Gladdens and the young earth is beautiful,
Yet thy songs come not, other bards arise,
But none like thee: they stand, thy majesties,
Like mighty works which tell some spirit there
Hath sat regardless of neglect and scorn,
Till, its long task completed, it hath risen
And left us, never to return, and all
Rush in to peer and praise when all in vain.
The air seems bright with thy past presence yet,
But thou art still for me as thou hast been
When I have stood with thee as on a throne
With all thy dim creations gathered round
Like mountains, and I felt of mould like them,
And with them creatures of my own were mixed,
Like things half-lived, catching and giving life.
But thou art still for me who have adored
Though single, panting but to hear thy name
Which I believed a spell to me alone,
Scarce deeming thou wast as a star to men!
As one should worship long a sacred spring
Scarce worth a moth's flitting, which long grasses cross,
And one small tree embowers droopingly —
Joying to see some wandering insect won
To live in its few rushes, or some locust
To pasture on its boughs, or some wild bird
Stoop for its freshness from the trackless air:
And then should find it but the fountain-head,
Long lost, of some great river washing towns
And towers, and seeing old woods which will live
But by its banks untrod of human foot,
Which, when the great sun sinks, lie quivering
In light as some thing lieth half of life
Before God's foot, waiting a wondrous change;
Then girt with rocks which seek to turn or stay
Its course in vain, for it does ever spread
Like a sea's arm as it goes rolling on,
Being the pulse of some great country — so
Wast thou to me, and art thou to the world!
And I, perchance, half feel a strange regret
That I am not what I have been to thee:
Like a girl one has silently loved long
In her first loneliness in some retreat,
When, late emerged, all gaze and glow to view
Her fresh eyes and soft hair and lips which bloom

Like a mountain berry : doubtless it is sweet
 To see her thus adored, but there have been
 Moments when all the world was in our praise,
 Sweeter than any pride of after hours.
 Yet, sun-treader, all hail ! From my heart's heart
 I bid thee hail ! E'en in my wildest dreams,
 I proudly feel I would have thrown to dust
 The wreaths of fame which seemed o'erhanging me,
 To see thee for a moment as thou art.

And if thou livest, if thou lovest, spirit !
 Remember me who set this final seal
 To wandering thought — that one so pure as thou
 Could never die. Remember me who flung
 All honor from my soul, yet paused and said,
 "There is one spark of love remaining yet,
 For I have naught in common with him, shapes
 Which followed him avoid me, and foul forms
 Seek me, which ne'er could fasten on his mind ;
 And though I feel how low I am to him,
 Yet I aim not even to catch a tone
 Of harmonies he called profusely up ;
 So, one gleam still remains, although the last."'
 Remember me who praise thee e'en with tears,
 For never more shall I walk calm with thee ;
 Thy sweet imaginings are as an air,
 A melody some wondrous singer sings,
 Which, though it haunt men oft in the still eve,
 They dream not to essay ; yet it no less
 But more is honored. I was thine in shame,
 And now when all thy proud renown is out,
 I am a watcher whose eyes have grown dim
 With looking for some star which breaks on him
 Altered and worn and weak and full of tears.

Autumn has come like spring returned to us,
 Won from her girlishness ; like one returned
 A friend that was a lover, nor forgets
 The first warm love, but full of sober thoughts
 Of fading years ; whose soft mouth quivers yet
 With the old smile, but yet so changed and still !
 And here am I the scoffer, who have probed
 Life's vanity, won by a word again
 Into my own life — by one little word
 Of this sweet friend who lives in loving me,
 Lives strangely on my thoughts and looks and words,

As fathoms down some nameless ocean thing
 Its silent course of quietness and joy.
 O dearest, if indeed I tell the past,
 May'st thou forget it as a sad sick dream!
 Or if it linger — my lost soul too soon
 Sinks to itself and whispers we shall be
 But closer linked, two creatures whom the earth
 Bears singly, with strange feelings unrevealed
 Save to each other; or two lonely things
 Created by some power whose reign is done,
 Having no part in God or his bright world.
 I am to sing whilst ebbing day dies soft,
 As a lean scholar dies worn o'er his book,
 And in the heaven stars steal out one by one
 As hunted men steal to their mountain watch.
 I must not think, lest this new impulse die
 In which I trust; I have no confidence:
 So, I will sing on fast as fancies come;
 Rudely, the verse being as the mood it paints.

I strip my mind bare, whose first elements
 I shall unveil — not as they struggled forth
 In infancy, nor as they now exist,
 When I am grown above them and can rule —
 But in that middle stage when they were full
 Yet ere I had disposed them to my will;
 And then I shall show how these elements
 Produced my present state, and what it is.

I am made up of an intensesst life,
 Of a most clear idea of consciousness
 Of self, distinct from all its qualities,
 From all affections, passions, feelings, powers;
 And thus far it exists, if tracked, in all:
 But linked, in me, to self-supremacy,
 Existing as a centre to all things,
 Most potent to create and rule and call
 Upon all things to minister to it;
 And to a principle of restlessness
 Which would be all, have, see, know, taste, feel, all —
 This is myself; and I should thus have been
 Though gifted lower than the meanest soul.

And of my powers, one springs up to save
 From utter death a soul with such desire
 Confined to clay — of powers the only one

Which marks me — an imagination which
 Has been a very angel, coming not
 In fitful visions, but beside me ever
 And never failing me ; so, though my mind
 Forgets not, not a shred of life forgets,
 Yet I can take a secret pride in calling
 The dark past up to quell it regally.

A mind like this must dissipate itself,
 But I have always had one lode-star ; now,
 As I look back, I see that I have halted
 Or hastened as I looked towards that star —
 A need, a trust, a yearning after God :
 A feeling I have analyzed but late,
 But it existed, and was reconciled
 With a neglect of all I deemed his laws,
 Which yet, when seen in others, I abhorred.
 I felt as one beloved, and so shut in
 From fear : and thence I date my trust in signs
 And omens, for I saw God everywhere ;
 And I can only lay it to the fruit
 Of a sad after-time that I could doubt
 Even his being — e'en the while I felt
 His presence, never acted from myself,
 Still trusted in a hand to lead me through
 All danger ; and this feeling ever fought
 Against my weakest reason and resolve.

And I can love nothing — and this dull truth
 Has come the last : but sense supplies a love
 Encircling me and mingling with my life.

These make myself : I have long sought in vain
 To trace how they were formed by circumstance,
 Yet ever found them mould my wildest youth
 Where they alone displayed themselves, converted
 All objects to their use : now see their course !

They came to me in my first dawn of life
 Which passed alone with wisest ancient books
 All halo-girt with fancies of my own ;
 And I myself went with the tale — a god
 Wandering after beauty, or a giant
 Standing vast in the sunset — an old hunter
 Talking with gods, or a high-crested chief
 Sailing with troops of friends to Tenedos.

I tell you, naught has ever been so clear :
 As the place, the time, the fashion of those lives :
 I had not seen a work of lofty art,
 Nor woman's beauty nor sweet nature's face,
 Yet, I say, never morn broke clear as those
 On the dim clustered isles in the blue sea,
 The deep groves and white temples and wet caves,
 And nothing ever will surprise me now —
 Who stood beside the naked Swift-footed,
 Who bound my forehead with Proserpine's hair.

And strange it is that I who could so dream
 Should e'er have stooped to aim at aught beneath —
 Aught low or painful ; but I never doubted :
 So, as I grew, I rudely shaped my life
 To my immediate wants ; yet strong beneath
 Was a vague sense of power though folded up —
 A sense that, though those shades and times were past,
 Their spirit dwelt in me, with them should rule.

Then came a pause, and long restraint chained down
 My soul till it was changed. I lost myself,
 And were it not that I so loathe that loss,
 I could recall how first I learned to turn
 My mind against itself ; and the effects
 In deeds for which remorse were vain as for
 The wanderings of delirious dream ; yet thence
 Came cunning, envy, falsehood, all world's wrong
 That spotted me : at length I cleansed my soul.
 Yet long world's influence remained ; and naught
 But the still life I led, apart once more,
 Which left me free to seek soul's old delights,
 Could e'er have brought me thus far back to peace.

As peace returned, I sought out some pursuit ;
 And song rose, no new impulse but the one
 With which all others best could be combined.
 My life has not been that of those whose heaven
 Was lampless save where poesy shone out ;
 But as a clime where glittering mountain-tops
 And glancing sea and forests steeped in light
 Give back reflected the far-flashing sun ;
 For music (which is earnest of a heaven,
 Seeing we know emotions strange by it,
 Not else to be revealed,) is like a voice,
 A low voice calling fancy, as a friend,

To the green woods in the gay summer time :
 And she fills all the way with dancing shapes
 Which have made painters pale, and they go on
 'Till stars look at them and winds call to them
 As they leave life's path for the twilight world
 Where the dead gather. This was not at first,
 For I scarce knew what I would do. I had
 An impulse but no yearning — only sang.

And first I sang as I in dream have seen
 Music wait on a lyrist for some thought,
 Yet singing to herself until it came.
 I turned to those old times and scenes where all
 That's beautiful had birth for me, and made
 Rude verses on them all ; and then I paused —
 I had done nothing, so I sought to know
 What other minds achieved. No fear outbroke
 As on the works of mighty bards I gazed,
 In the first joy at finding my own thoughts
 Recorded, my own fancies justified,
 And their aspirings but my very own.
 With them I first explored passion and mind, —
 All to begin afresh ! I rather sought
 To rival what I wondered at than form
 Creations of my own ; if much was light
 Lent by the others, much was yet my own.

I paused again : a change was coming — came :
 I was no more a boy, the past was breaking
 Before the future and like fever worked.
 I thought on my new self, and all my powers
 Burst out. I dreamed not of restraint, but gazed
 On all things : schemes and systems went and came,
 And I was proud (being vainest of the weak)
 In wandering o'er thought's world to seek some one
 To be my prize, as if you wandered o'er
 The White Way for a star.

And my choice fell

Not so much on a system as a man —
 On one, whom praise of mine shall not offend,
 Who was as calm as beauty, being such
 Unto mankind as thou to me, Pauline, —
 Believing in them and devoting all
 His soul's strength to their winning back to peace ;

Who sent forth hopes and longings for their sake,
 Clothed in all passion's melodies : such first
 Caught me and set me, slave of a sweet task,
 To disentangle, gather sense from song :
 Since, song-inwoven, lurked there words which seemed
 A key to a new world, the muttering
 Of angels, something yet unguessed by man.
 How my heart leapt as still I sought and found
 Much there, I felt my own soul had conceived,
 But there living and burning ! Soon the orb
 Of his conceptions dawned on me ; its praise
 Lives in the tongues of men, men's brows are high
 When his name means a triumph and a pride,
 So, my weak voice may well forbear to shame
 What seemed decreed my fate : I threw myself
 To meet it, I was vowed to liberty,
 Men were to be as gods and earth as heaven,
 And I — ah, what a life was mine to prove !
 My whole soul rose to meet it. Now, Pauline,
 I shall go mad, if I recall that time !

Oh let me look back ere I leave forever
 The time which was an hour one fondly waits
 For a fair girl that comes a withered hag !
 And I was lonely, far from woods and fields,
 And amid dullest sights, who should be loose
 As a stag ; yet I was full of bliss, who lived
 With Plato and who had the key to life ;
 And I had dimly shaped my first attempt,
 And many a thought did I build up on thought,
 As the wild bee hangs cell to cell ; in vain,
 For I must still advance, no rest for mind.

'T was in my plan to look on real life,
 The life all new to me ; my theories
 Were firm, so them I left, to look and learn
 Mankind, its cares, hopes, fears, its woes and joys ;
 And, as I pondered on their ways, I sought
 How best life's end might be attained — an end
 Comprising every joy. I deeply mused.

And suddenly without heart-wreck I awoke
 As from a dream : I said, "'T was beautiful,
 Yet but a dream, and so adieu to it !"
 As some world-wanderer sees in a far meadow
 Strange towers and high-walled gardens thick with trees,

Where song takes shelter and delicious mirth
 From laughing fairy creatures peeping over,
 And on the morrow when he comes to lie
 Forever 'neath those garden-trees fruit-flushed
 Sung round by fairies, all his search is vain.
 First went my hopes of perfecting mankind,
 Next — faith in them, and then in freedom's self
 And virtue's self, then my own motives, ends
 And aims and loves, and human love went last.
 I felt this no decay, because new powers
 Rose as old feelings left — wit, mockery,
 Light-heartedness; for I had oft been sad,
 Mistrusting my resolves, but now I cast
 Hope joyously away: I laughed and said,
 "No more of this!" I must not think: at length
 I looked again to see if all went well.

My powers were greater: as some temple seemed
 My soul, where naught is changed and incense rolls
 Around the altar, only God is gone
 And some dark spirit sitteth in his seat.
 So, I passed through the temple and to me
 Knelt troops of shadows, and they cried, "Hail, king!
 We serve thee now and thou shalt serve no more!
 Call on us, prove us, let us worship thee!"
 And I said, "Are ye strong? Let fancy bear me
 Far from the past!" And I was borne away,
 As Arab birds float sleeping in the wind,
 O'er deserts, towers and forests, I being calm.
 And I said, "I have nursed up energies,
 They will prey on me." And a band knelt low
 And cried, "Lord, we are here and we will make
 Safe way for thee in thine appointed life!
 But look on us!" And I said, "Ye will worship
 Me; should my heart not worship too?" They shouted,
 "Thyself, thou art our king!" So, I stood there
 Smiling — oh, vanity of vanities!
 For buoyant and rejoicing was the spirit
 With which I looked out how to end my course;
 I felt once more myself, my powers — all mine;
 I knew while youth and health so lifted me
 That, spite of all life's nothingness, no grief
 Came nigh me, I must ever be light-hearted;
 And that this knowledge was the only veil
 Betwixt joy and despair: so, if age came,
 I should be left — a wreck linked to a soul

Yet fluttering, or mind-broken and aware
 Of my decay. So a long summer morn
 Found me; and ere noon came, I had resolved
 No age should come on me ere youth was spent,
 For I would wear myself out, like that morn
 Which wasted not a sunbeam; every hour
 I would make mine, and die.

And thus I sought

To chain my spirit down which erst I freed
 For flights to fame: I said, "The troubled life
 Of genius, seen so gay when working forth
 Some trusted end, grows sad when all proves vain —
 How sad when men have parted with truth's peace
 For falsest fancy's sake, which waited first
 As an obedient spirit when delight
 Came without fancy's call: but alters soon,
 Comes darkened, seldom, hastens to depart,
 Leaving a heavy darkness and warm tears.
 But I shall never lose her; she will live
 Dearer for such seclusion. I but catch
 A hue, a glance of what I sing: so, pain
 Is linked with pleasure, for I ne'er may tell
 Half the bright sights which dazzle me; but now
 Mine shall be all the radiance: let them fade
 Untold — others shall rise as fair, as fast!
 And when all's done, the few dim gleams transferred," —
 (For a new thought sprang up how well it were,
 Discarding shadowy hope, to weave such lays
 As straight encircle men with praise and love,
 So, I should not die utterly, — should bring
 One branch from the gold forest, like the knight
 Of old tales, witnessing I had been there) —

"And when all's done, how vain seems e'en success —
 The vaunted influence poets have o'er men!
 'T is a fine thing that one weak as myself
 Should sit in his lone room, knowing the words
 He utters in his solitude shall move
 Men like a swift wind — that though dead and gone,
 New eyes shall glisten when his beauteous dreams
 Of love come true in happier frames than his.
 Ay, the still night brings thoughts like these, but morn
 Comes and the mockery again laughs out
 At hollow praises, smiles allied to sneers;
 And my soul's idol ever whispers me
 To dwell with him and his unhonored song:

And I foreknow my spirit, that would press
 First in the struggle, fail again to make
 All bow enslaved, and I again should sink.

“And then know that this curse will come on us,
 To see our idols perish ; we may wither,
 No marvel, we are clay, but our low fate
 Should not extend to those whom trustingly
 We sent before into time’s yawning gulf
 To face what dread may lurk in darkness there.
 To find the painter’s glory pass and feel
 Music can move us not as once, or, worst,
 To weep decaying wit’s ere the frail body
 Decays ! Naught makes me trust some love is true,
 But the delight of the contented lowness
 With which I gaze on him I keep forever
 Above me ; I to rise and rival him ?
 Feed his fame rather from my heart’s best blood,
 Wither unseen that he may flourish still.”

Pauline, my soul’s friend, thou dost pity yet
 How this mood swayed me when that soul found thine,
 When I had set myself to live this life,
 Defying all past glory. Ere thou camest
 I seemed defiant, sweet, for old delights
 Had flocked like birds again ; music, my life,
 Nourished me more than ever ; then the lore
 Loved for itself and all it shows — that king
 Treading the purple calmly to his death,
 While round him, like the clouds of eve, all dusk,
 The giant shades of fate, silently flitting,
 Pile the dim outline of the coming doom ;
 And him sitting alone in blood while friends
 Are hunting far in the sunshine ; and the boy
 With his white breast and brow and clustering curls
 Streaked with his mother’s blood, but striving hard
 To tell his story ere his reason goes.
 And when I loved thee as love seemed so oft,
 Thou lovedst me indeed : I wondering searched
 My heart to find some feeling like such love,
 Believing I was still much I had been.
 Too soon I found all faith had gone from me,
 And the late glow of life, like change on clouds,
 Proved not the morn-blush widening into day,
 But eve faint-colored by the dying sun
 While darkness hastens quickly. I will tell

My state as though 'twere none of mine — despair
 Cannot come near us — this it is, my state.

Souls alter not, and mine must still advance ;
 Strange that I knew not, when I flung away
 My youth's chief aims, their loss might lead to loss
 Of what few I retained, and no resource
 Be left me : for behold how changed is all !
 I cannot chain my soul : it will not rest
 In its clay prison, this most narrow sphere :
 It has strange impulse, tendency, desire,
 Which nowise I account for nor explain,
 But cannot stifle, being bound to trust
 All feelings equally to hear all sides :
 How can my life indulge them ? yet they live,
 Referring to some state of life unknown.

My selfishness is satiated not,
 It wears me like a flame ; my hunger for
 All pleasure, howsoe'er minute, grows pain ;
 I envy — how I envy him whose soul
 Turns its whole energies to some one end,
 To elevate an aim, pursue success
 However mean ! So, my still baffled hope
 Seeks out abstractions ; I would have one joy,
 But one in life, so it were wholly mine,
 One rapture all my soul could fill : and this
 Wild feeling places me in dream afar
 In some vast country where the eye can see
 No end to the far hills and dales bestrewn
 With shining towers and towns, till I grow mad
 Well-nigh, to know not one abode but holds
 Some pleasure, while my soul could grasp the world,
 But must remain this vile form's slave. I look
 With hope to age at last, which quenching much,
 May let me concentrate what sparks it spares.

This restlessness of passion meets in me
 A craving after knowledge : the sole proof
 Of yet commanding will is in that power
 Repressed ; for I beheld it in its dawn,
 The sleepless harpy with just-budding wings,
 And I considered whether to forego
 All happy ignorant hopes and fears, to live,
 Finding a recompense in its wild eyes.
 And when I found that I should perish so,
 I bade its wild eyes close from me forever,

And I am left alone with old delights ;
 See ! it lies in me a chained thing, still prompt
 To serve me if I loose its slightest bond :
 I cannot but be proud of my bright slave.

How should this earth's life prove my only sphere ?
 Can I so narrow sense but that in life
 Soul still exceeds it ? In their elements
 My love outsoars my reason ; but since love
 Perforce receives its object from this earth
 While reason wanders chainless, the few truths
 Caught from its wanderings have sufficed to quell
 Love chained below ; then what were love, set free,
 Which, with the object it demands, would pass
 Reason companioning the seraphim ?

No, what I feel may pass all human love
 Yet fall far short of what my love should be.
 And yet I seem more warped in this than aught,
 Myself stands out more hideously : of old
 I could forget myself in friendship, fame,
 Liberty, nay, in love of mightier souls ;
 But I begin to know what thing hate is —
 To sicken and to quiver and grow white —
 And I myself have furnished its first prey.
 Hate of the weak and ever-wavering will,
 The selfishness, the still-decaying frame . . .
 But I must never grieve whom wing can waft
 Far from such thoughts — as now. Andromeda !
 And she is with me : years roll, I shall change,
 But change can touch her not — so beautiful
 With her fixed eyes, earnest and still, and hair
 Lifted and spread by the salt-sweeping breeze,
 And one red beam, all the storm leaves in heaven,
 Resting upon her eyes and hair, such hair,
 As she awaits the snake on the wet beach
 By the dark rock and the white wave just breaking
 At her feet ; quite naked and alone ; a thing
 I doubt not, nor fear for, secure some god
 To save will come in thunder from the stars.
 Let it pass ! Soul requires another change.
 I will be gifted with a wondrous mind,
 Yet sunk by error to men's sympathy,
 And in the wane of life, yet only so
 As to call up their fears ; and there shall come
 A time requiring youth's best energies ;
 And lo, I fling age, sorrow, sickness off,
 And rise triumphant, triumph through decay.

And thus it is that I supply the chasm
 'Twixt what I am and all I fain would be :
 But then to know nothing, to hope for nothing,
 To seize on life's dull joys from a strange fear
 Lest, losing them, all 's lost and naught remains !

There 's some vile juggle with my reason here ;
 I feel I but explain to my own loss
 These impulses : they live no less the same.
 Liberty ! what though I despair ? my blood
 Rose never at a slave's name proud as now.
 Oh sympathies, obscured by sophistries ! —
 Why else have I sought refuge in myself,
 But from the woes I saw and could not stay ?
 Love ! is not this to love thee, my Pauline ?
 I cherish prejudice, lest I be left
 Utterly loveless ? witness my belief
 In poets, though sad change has come there too ;
 No more I leave myself to follow them —
 Unconsciously I measure me by them —
 Let me forget it : and I cherish most
 My love of England — how her name, a word
 Of hers in a strange tongue makes my heart beat !

Pauline, could I but break the spell ! Not now —
 All 's fever — but when calm shall come again,
 I am prepared : I have made life my own.
 I would not be content with all the change
 One frame should feel, but I have gone in thought
 Through all conjuncture, I have lived all life
 When it is most alive, where strangest fate
 New-shapes it past surmise — the throes of men
 Bit by some curse or in the grasps of doom
 Half-visible and still-increasing round,
 Or crowning their wide being's general aim.

These are wild fancies, but I feel, sweet friend,
 As one breathing his weakness to the ear
 Of pitying angel — dear as a winter flower,
 A slight flower growing alone, and offering
 Its frail cup of three leaves to the cold sun,
 Yet joyous and confiding like the triumph
 Of a child : and why am I not worthy thee ?
 I can live all the life of plants, and gaze
 Drowsily on the bees that flit and play,
 Or bare my breast for sunbeams which will kill,

Or open in the night of sounds, to look
 For the dim stars ; I can mount with the bird
 Leaping airily his pyramid of leaves
 And twisted boughs of some tall mountain tree,
 Or rise cheerfully springing to the heavens ;
 Or like a fish breathe deep the morning air
 In the misty sun-warm water ; or with flower
 And tree can smile in light at the sinking sun
 Just as the storm comes, as a girl would look
 On a departing lover — most serene.

Pauline, come with me, see how I could build
 A home for us, out of the world, in thought !
 I am uplifted : fly with me, Pauline !

Night, and one single ridge of narrow path
 Between the sullen river and the woods
 Waving and muttering, for the moonless night
 Has shaped them into images of life,
 Like the uprising of the giant-ghosts,
 Looking on earth to know how their sons fare :
 Thou art so close by me, the roughest swell
 Of wind in the tree-tops hides not the panting
 Of thy soft breasts. No, we will pass to morning —
 Morning, the rocks and valleys and old woods.
 How the sun brightens in the mist, and here,
 Half in the air, like creatures of the place,
 Trusting the element, living on high boughs
 That swing in the wind — look at the silver spray
 Flung from the foam-sheet of the cataract
 Amid the broken rocks ! Shall we stay here
 With the wild hawks ? No, ere the hot noon come,
 Dive we down — safe ! See this our new retreat
 Walled in with a sloped mound of matted shrubs,
 Dark, tangled, old and green, still sloping down
 To a small pool whose waters lie asleep
 Amid the trailing boughs turned water-plants :
 And tall trees overarch to keep us in,
 Breaking the sunbeams into emerald shafts,
 And in the dreamy water one small group
 Of two or three strange trees are got together
 Wondering at all around, as strange beasts herd
 Together far from their own land : all wildness,
 No turf nor moss, for boughs and plants pave all,
 And tongues of bank go shelving in the lymph,
 Where the pale-throated snake reclines his head,
 And old gray stones lie making eddies there,

The wild-mice cross them dry-shod. Deeper in!
 Shut thy soft eyes — now look — still deeper in!
 This is the very heart of the woods all round
 Mountain-like heaped above us; yet even here
 One pond of water gleams; far off the river
 Sweeps like a sea, barred out from land; but one —
 One thin clear sheet has overleaped and wound
 Into this silent depth, which gained, it lies
 Still, as but let by sufferance; the trees bend
 O'er it as wild men watch a sleeping girl,
 And through their roots long creeping plants out-stretch
 Their twined hair, steeped and sparkling; farther on,
 Tall rushes and thick flag-knots have combined
 To narrow it; so, at length, a silver thread,
 It winds, all noiselessly through the deep wood
 Till through a cleft-way, through the moss and stone,
 It joins its parent-river with a shout.

Up for the glowing day, leave the old woods!
 See, they part, like a ruined arch: the sky!
 Nothing but sky appears, so close the roots
 And grass of the hill-top level with the air —
 Blue sunny air, where a great cloud floats laden
 With light, like a dead whale that white birds pick,
 Floating away in the sun in some north sea.
 Air, air, fresh life-blood, thin and searching air,
 The clear, dear breath of God that loveth us,
 Where small birds reel and winds take their delight!
 Water is beautiful, but not like air:
 See, where the solid azure waters lie
 Made as of thickened air, and down below,
 The fern-ranks like a forest spread themselves
 As though each pore could feel the element;
 Where the quick glancing serpent winds his way,
 Float with me there, Pauline! — but not like air.

Down the hill! Stop — a clump of trees, see, set
 On a heap of rock, which look o'er the far plain:
 So, envious climbing shrubs would mount to rest
 And peer from their spread boughs; wide they wave, looking
 At the muleteers who whistle on their way,
 To the merry chime of morning bells, past all
 The little smoking cots, mid fields and banks
 And copses bright in the sun. My spirit wanders:
 Hedgerows for me — those living hedgerows where
 The bushes close and clasp above and keep
 Thought in — I am concentrated — I feel;

But my soul saddens when it looks beyond :
I cannot be immortal, taste all joy.

O God, where do they tend — these struggling aims ?<sup>1</sup>
What would I have ? What is this "sleep" which seems
To bound all ? can there be a "waking" point
Of crowning life ? The soul would never rule ;
It would be first in all things, it would have
Its utmost pleasure filled, but, that complete,
Commanding, for commanding, sickens it.
The last point I can trace is — rest beneath
Some better essence than itself, in weakness ;
This is "myself," not what I think should be :
And what is that I hunger for but God ?

My God, my God, let me for once look on thee
As though naught else existed, we alone !
And as creation crumbles, my soul's spark
Expands till I can say, — Even from myself
I need thee and I feel thee and I love thee.
I do not plead my rapture in thy works
For love of thee, nor that I feel as one
Who cannot die : but there is that in me
Which turns to thee, which loves or which should love.

Je crois que dans ce qui suit il fait allusion à un certain examen qu'il fit autrefois de l'âme, ou plutôt de son âme, pour découvrir la suite des objets auxquels il lui serait possible d'atteindre, et dont chacun une fois obtenu devait former une espèce de plateau d'où l'on pouvait apercevoir d'autres buts, d'autres projets, d'autres jouissances qui à leur tour, devaient être surmontés. Il en résultait que l'oubli et le sommeil devaient tout terminer. Cette idée, que je ne saisis pas parfaitement, lui est peut-être aussi inintelligible qu'à moi.

PAULINE.

Why have I girt myself with this hell-dress?
 Why have I labored to put out my life?
 Is it not in my nature to adore,
 And e'en for all my reason do I not
 Feel him, and thank him, and pray to him — now?
 Can I forego the trust that he loves me?
 Do I not feel a love which only ONE . . .
 O thou pale form, so dimly seen, deep-eyed!
 I have denied thee calmly — do I not
 Pant when I read of thy consummate power,
 And burn to see thy calm pure truths out-flash
 The brightest gleams of earth's philosophy?
 Do I not shake to hear aught question thee?
 If I am erring save me, madden me,
 Take from me powers and pleasures, let me die
 Ages, so I see thee! I am knit round
 As with a charm by sin and lust and pride,
 Yet though my wandering dreams have seen all shapes
 Of strange delight, oft have I stood by thee —
 Have I been keeping lonely watch with thee
 In the damp night by weeping Olivet,
 Or leaning on thy bosom, proudly less,
 Or dying with thee on the lonely cross,
 Or witnessing thine outburst from the tomb.

A mortal, sin's familiar friend, doth here
 Avow that he will give all earth's reward,
 But to believe and humbly teach the faith,
 In suffering and poverty and shame,
 Only believing he is not unloved.

And now, my Pauline, I am thine forever!
 I feel the spirit which has buoyed me up
 Desert me, and old shades are gathering fast;
 Yet while the last light waits, I would say much,
 This chiefly, it is gain that I have said
 Somewhat of love I ever felt for thee
 But seldom told; our hearts so beat together
 That speech seemed mockery; but when dark hours come,
 And joy departs, and thou, sweet, deem'st it strange
 A sorrow moves me, thou canst not remove,
 Look on this lay I dedicate to thee,
 Which through thee I began, which thus I end,
 Collecting the last gleams to strive to tell
 How I am thine, and more than ever now
 That I sink fast: yet though I deeper sink,

No less song proves one word has brought me bliss,
 Another still may win bliss surely back.
 Thou knowest, dear, I could not think all calm,
 For fancies followed thought and bore me off,
 And left all indistinct; ere one was caught
 Another glanced; so, dazzled by my wealth,
 I knew not which to leave nor which to choose,
 For all so floated, naught was fixed and firm.
 And then thou said'st a perfect bard was one
 Who chronicled the stages of all life,
 And so thou bad'st me shadow this first stage.
 'Tis done, and even now I recognize
 The shift, the change from last to past — discern
 Faintly how life is truth and truth is good.
 And why thou must be mine is, that e'en now
 In the dim hush of night, that I have done,
 Despite the sad forebodings, love looks through —
 Whispers, — E'en at the last I have her still,
 With her delicious eyes as clear as heaven
 When rain in a quick shower has beat down mist,
 And clouds float white above like broods of swans.
 How the blood lies upon her cheek, outspread
 As thinned by kisses! only in her lips
 It wells and pulses like a living thing,
 And her neck looks like marble misted o'er
 With love-breath, — a Pauline from heights above,
 Stooping beneath me, looking up — one look
 As I might kill her and be loved the more.

So, love me — me, Pauline, and naught but me,
 Never leave loving! Words are wild and weak,
 Believe them not, Pauline! I stained myself
 But to behold thee purer by my side,
 To show thou art my breath, my life, a last
 Resource, an extreme want: never believe
 Aught better could so look on thee; nor seek
 Again the world of good thoughts left for mine!
 There were bright troops of undiscovered suns,
 Each equal in their radiant course; there were
 Clusters of far fair isles, which ocean kept
 For his own joy, and his waves broke on them
 Without a choice; and there was a dim crowd
 Of visions, each a part of some grand whole:
 And one star left his peers and came with peace
 Upon a storm, and all eyes pined for him;
 And one isle harbored a sea-beaten ship,

And the crew wandered in its bowers and plucked
 Its fruits and gave up all their hopes of home ;
 And one dream came to a pale poet's sleep,
 And he said, " I am singled out by God,
 No sin must touch me." Words are wild and weak,
 But what they would express is, — Leave me not,
 Still sit by me with beating breast and hair
 Loosened, be watching earnest by my side,
 Turning my books or kissing me when I
 Look up — like summer wind ! Be still to me
 A help to music's mystery which mind fails
 To fathom, its solution, no mere clue !
 O reason's pedantry, life's rule prescribed !
 I hopeless, I the loveless, hope and love.
 Wiser and better, know me now, not when
 You loved me as I was. Smile not ! I have
 Much yet to dawn on you, to gladden you.
 No more of the past ! I'll look within no more.
 I have too trusted my own lawless wants,
 Too trusted my vain self, vague intuition —
 Draining soul's wine alone in the still night,
 And seeing how, as gathering films arose,
 As by an inspiration life seemed bare
 And grinning in its vanity, while ends
 Foul to be dreamed of, smiled at me as fixed
 And fair, while others changed from fair to foul
 As a young witch turns an old hag at night.
 No more of this ! We will go hand in hand,
 I with thee, even as a child — love's slave,
 Looking no farther than his liege commands.

And thou hast chosen where this life shall be :
 The land which gave me thee shall be our home,
 Where nature lies all wild amid her lakes
 And snow-swathed mountains and vast pines begirt
 With ropes of snow — where nature lies all bare,
 Suffering none to view her but a race
 Or stunted or deformed, like the mute dwarfs
 Which wait upon a naked Indian queen.
 And there (the time being when the heavens are thick
 With storm) I'll sit with thee while thou dost sing
 Thy native songs, gay as a desert bird
 Which crieth as it flies for perfect joy,
 Or telling me old stories of dead knights ;
 Or I will read great lays to thee — how she,
 The fair pale sister, went to her chill grave

With power to love and to be loved and live :
 Or we will go together, like twin gods
 Of the infernal world, with scented lamp
 Over the dead, to call and to awake,
 Over the unshaped images which lie
 Within my mind's cave : only leaving all,
 That tells of the past doubt. So, when spring comes
 With sunshine back again like an old smile,
 And the fresh waters and awakened birds
 And budding woods await us, I shall be
 Prepared, and we will question life once more,
 Till its old sense shall come renewed by change,
 Like some clear thought which harsh words veiled before ;
 Feeling God loves us, and that all which errs
 Is but a dream which death will dissipate.
 And then what need of longer exile ? Seek
 My England, and, again there, calm approach
 All I once fled from, calmly look on those
 The works of my past weakness, as one views
 Some scene where danger met him long before.
 Ah that such pleasant life should be but dreamed !

But whate'er come of it, and though it fade,
 And though ere the cold morning all be gone,
 As it may be ; — though music wait to wile,
 And strange eyes and bright wine lure, laugh like sin
 Which steals back softly on a soul half saved,
 And I the first deny, decry, despise,
 With this avowal, these intents so fair, —
 Still be it all my own, this moment's pride !
 No less I make an end in perfect joy.
 E'en in my brightest time, a lurking fear
 Possessed me : I well knew my weak resolves,
 I felt the witchery that makes mind sleep
 Over its treasure, as one half afraid
 To make his riches definite : but now
 These feelings shall not utterly be lost,
 I shall not know again that nameless care
 Lest, leaving all undone in youth, some new
 And undreamed end reveal itself too late :
 For this song shall remain to tell forever
 That when I lost all hope of such a change,
 Suddenly beauty rose on me again.
 No less I make an end in perfect joy,
 For I, who thus again was visited,
 Shall doubt not many another bliss awaits,

And, though this weak soul sink and darkness whelm,
 Some little word shall light it, raise aloft,
 To where I clearer see and better love,
 As I again go o'er the tracts of thought
 Like one who has a right, and I shall live
 With poets, calmer, purer still each time,
 And beauteous shapes will come for me to seize,
 And unknown secrets will be trusted me
 Which were denied the waverer once ; but now
 I shall be priest and prophet as of old.

Sun-treader, I believe in God and truth
 And love ; and as one just escaped from death
 Would bind himself in bands of friends to feel
 He lives indeed, so, I would lean on thee !
 Thou must be ever with me, most in gloom
 If such must come, but chiefly when I die,
 For I seem, dying, as one going in the dark
 To fight a giant : but live thou forever,
 And be to all what thou hast been to me !
 All in whom this wakes pleasant thoughts of me
 Know my last state is happy, free from doubt
 Or touch of fear. Love me and wish me well.

A FRAGMENT OF A CONFESSION

*Plus ne suis ce que j'ai été,
Et ne le saurois jamais être.*

MAROT.

NON dubito, quin titulus libri nostri raritate sua quamplurimos alliciat ad legendum: inter quos nonnulli obliquæ opinionis, mente languidi, multi etiam maligni, et in ingenium nostrum ingrati accedent, qui temeraria sua ignorantia, vix conspecto titulo clamabunt: Nos vetita docere, hæresium semina jacere: piis auribus offendiculo, præclaris ingeniis scandalo esse: . . . adeo conscientiaæ suæ consulentes, ut nec Apollo, nec Musæ omnes, neque Angelus de cælo me ab illorum execratione vindicare queant: quibus et ego nunc consulo, ne scripta nostra legant, nec intelligant, nec meminerint: nam noxia sunt, venenosa sunt: Acherontis ostium est in hoc libro, lapides loquitur, caveant, ne cerebrum illis excutiat. Vos autem, qui æqua mente ad legendum venitis, si tantam prudentiæ discretionem adhibueritis, quantam in melle legendo apes, jam securi legite. Puto namque vos et utilitatis haud parum et voluptatis plurimum accepturos. Quod si qua repereritis, quæ vobis non placeant, mittite illa, nec utimini. NAM ET EGO VOBIS ILLA NON PROBO, SED NARRO. Cætera tamen propterea non respuite . . . Ideo, si quid liberius dictum sit, ignoscite adolescentiæ nostræ, qui minor quam adolescens hoc opus composui. — Hen. Corn. Agrippa, De Occult. Philosoph. in Prefat.

V. A. XX.

PAULINE, mine own, bend o'er me — thy soft breast
Shall pant to mine — bend o'er me — thy sweet eyes,
And loosened hair and breathing lips, and arms
Drawing me to thee — these build up a screen
To shut me in with thee, and from all fear;
So that I might unlock the sleepless brood
Of fancies from my soul, their lurking-place,
Nor doubt that each would pass, ne'er to return
To one so watched, so loved and so secured.
But what can guard thee but thy naked love?
Ah dearest, whoso sucks a poisoned wound
Envenoms his own veins! Thou art so good,
So calm — if thou shouldst wear a brow less light
For some wild thought which, but for me, were kept
From out thy soul as from a sacred star!
Yet till I have unlocked them it were vain

To hope to sing ; some woe would light on me,
 Nature would point at one whose quivering lip
 Was bathed in her enchantments, whose brow burned
 Beneath the crown to which her secrets knelt,
 Who learned the spell which can call up the dead,
 And then departed smiling like a fiend
 Who has deceived God, — if such one should seek
 Again her altars and stand robed and crowned
 Amid the faithful : sad confession first,
 Remorse and pardon and old claims renewed,
 Ere I can be — as I shall be no more.

I had been spared this shame if I had sat
 By thee forever from the first, in place
 Of my wild dreams of beauty and of good,
 Or with them, as an earnest of their truth :
 No thought nor hope having been shut from thee,
 No vague wish unexplained, no wandering aim
 Sent back to bind on fancy's wings and seek
 Some strange fair world where it might be a law ;
 But doubting nothing, had been led by thee,
 Through youth, and saved, as one at length awaked
 Who has slept through a peril. Ah vain, vain !

Thou lovest me ; the past is in its grave
 Though its ghost haunts us ; still this much is ours,
 To cast away restraint, lest a worse thing
 Wait for us in the darkness. Thou lovest me ;
 And thou art to receive not love but faith,
 For which thou wilt be mine, and smile and take
 All shapes and shames, and veil without a fear
 That form which music follows like a slave :
 And I look to thee and I trust in thee,
 As in a Northern night one looks away
 Unto the East for morn and spring and joy.
 Thou seest then my aimless, hopeless state,
 And, resting on some few old feelings won
 Back by thy beauty, wouldst that I essay
 The task which was to me what now thou art :
 And why should I conceal one weakness more ?

Thou wilt remember one warm morn when winter
 Crept aged from the earth, and spring's first breath
 Blew soft from the moist hills ; the black-thorn boughs,
 So dark in the bare wood, when glistening
 In the sunshine were white with coming buds,

Like the bright side of a sorrow, and the banks
Had violets opening from sleep like eyes.
I walked with thee who knew'st not a deep shame
Lurked beneath smiles and careless words which sought
To hide it till they wandered and were mute,
As we stood listening on a sunny mound
To the wind murmuring in the damp copse,
Like heavy breathings of some hidden thing
Betrayed by sleep ; until the feeling rushed
That I was low indeed, yet not so low
As to endure the calmness of thine eyes ;
And so I told thee all, while the cool breast
I leaned on altered not its quiet beating,
And long ere words like a hurt bird's complaint
Bade me look up and be what I had been,
I felt despair could never live by thee :
Thou wilt remember. Thou art not more dear
Than song was once to me ; and I ne'er sung
But as one entering bright halls where all
Will rise and shout for him : sure I must own
That I am fallen, having chosen gifts
Distinct from theirs — that I am sad and fain
Would give up all to be but where I was,
Not high as I had been if faithful found,
But low and weak yet full of hope, and sure
Of goodness as of life — that I would lose
All this gay mastery of mind, to sit
Once more with them, trusting in truth and love,
And with an aim — not being what I am.
O Pauline, I am ruined who believed
That though my soul had floated from its sphere
Of wild dominion into the dim orb
Of self — that it was strong and free as ever !
It has conformed itself to that dim orb,
Reflecting all its shades and shapes, and now
Must stay where it alone can be adored.
I have felt this in dreams — in dreams in which
I seemed the fate from which I fled ; I felt
A strange delight in causing my decay ;
I was a fiend in darkness chained forever
Within some ocean-cave ; and ages rolled,
Till through the cleft rock, like a moonbeam, came
A white swan to remain with me ; and ages
Rolled, yet I tired not of my first joy
In gazing on the peace of its pure wings :
And then I said, " It is most fair to me,

Yet its soft wings must sure have suffered change
 From the thick darkness, sure its eyes are dim,
 Its silver pinions must be cramped and numbed
 With sleeping ages here ; it cannot leave me,
 For it would seem, in light beside its kind,
 Withered, though here to me most beautiful.”
 And then I was a young witch whose blue eyes,
 As she stood naked by the river springs,
 Drew down a god ; I watched his radiant form
 Growing less radiant, and it gladdened me ;
 Till one morn, as he sat in the sunshine
 Upon my knees, singing to me of heaven,
 He turned to look at me, ere I could lose
 The grin with which I viewed his perishing :
 And he shrieked and departed and sat long
 By his deserted throne, but sunk at last
 Murmuring, as I kissed his lips and curled
 Around him, “ I am still a god — to thee.”
 Still I can lay my soul bare in its fall,
 For all the wandering and all the weakness
 Will be a saddest comment on the song :
 And if, that done, I can be young again,
 I will give up all gained, as willingly
 As one gives up a charm which shuts him out
 From hope or part of care in human kind.
 As life wanes, all its cares and strife and toil
 Seem strangely valueless, while the old trees
 Which grew by our youth’s home, the waving mass
 Of climbing plants heavy with bloom and dew,
 The morning swallows with their songs like words,
 All these seem clear and only worth our thoughts :
 So, aught connected with my early life,
 My rude songs or my wild imaginings,
 How I look on them — most distinct amid
 The fever and the stir of after years !

I ne’er had ventured e’er to hope for this ;
 Had not the glow I felt at His award,
 Assured me all was not extinct within :
 His whom all honor, whose renown springs up
 Like sunlight which will visit all the world,
 So that e’en they who sneered at him at first,
 Come out to it, as some dark spider crawls
 From his foul nets which some lit torch invades,
 Yet spinning still new films for his retreat.
 Thou didst smile, poet, but can we forgive ?

Sun-treader, life and light be thine forever !
Thou art gone from us ; years go by and spring
Gladdens and the young earth is beautiful,
Yet thy songs come not, other bards arise,
But none like thee : they stand, thy majesties,
Like mighty works which tell some spirit there
Hath sat regardless of neglect and scorn,
Till, its long task completed, it hath risen
And left us, never to return, and all
Rush in to peer and praise when all in vain.
The air seems bright with thy past presence yet,
But thou art still for me as thou hast been
When I have stood with thee as on a throne
With all thy dim creations gathered round
Like mountains, and I felt of mould like them,
And creatures of my own were mixed with them,
Like things half-lived, catching and giving life.
But thou art still for me, who have adored
Though single, panting but to hear thy name
Which I believed a spell to me alone,
Scarce deeming thou wast as a star to men !
As one should worship long a sacred spring
Scarce worth a moth's flitting, which long grasses cross,
And one small tree embowers droopingly,
Joying to see some wandering insect won
To live in its few rushes, or some locust,
To pasture on its boughs, or some wild bird
Stoop for its freshness from the trackless air :
And then should find it but the fountain-head,
Long lost, of some great river washing towns
And towers, and seeing old woods which will live
But by its banks untrod of human foot,
Which, when the great sun sinks, lie quivering
In light as some thing lieth half of life
Before God's foot, waiting a wondrous change ;
Then girt with rocks which seek to turn or stay
Its course in vain, for it does ever spread
Like a sea's arm as it goes rolling on,
Being the pulse of some great country — so
Wast thou to me, and art thou to the world !
And I, perchance, half feel a strange regret,
That I am not what I have been to thee :
Like a girl one has loved long silently
In her first loveliness in some retreat,
When, first emerged, all gaze and glow to view
Her fresh eyes and soft hair and lips which bleed

Like a mountain berry : doubtless it is sweet
 To see her thus adored, but there have been
 Moments when all the world was in his praise,
 Sweeter than all the pride of after hours.
 Yet, sun-treader, all hail ! From my heart's heart
 I bid thee hail ! E'en in my wildest dreams,
 I am proud to feel I would have thrown up all
 The wreaths of fame which seemed o'erhanging me,
 To have seen thee for a moment as thou art.
 And if thou livest, if thou lovest, spirit !
 Remember me who set this final seal
 To wandering thought — that one so pure as thou
 Could never die. Remember me who flung
 All honor from my soul yet paused and said,
 "There is one spark of love remaining yet,
 For I have nought in common with him, shapes
 Which followed him avoid me, and foul forms
 Seek me, which ne'er could fasten on his mind ;
 And though I feel how low I am to him,
 Yet I aim not even to catch a tone
 Of all the harmonies which he called up ;
 So, one gleam still remains, although the last."
 Remember me who praise thee e'en with tears,
 For never more shall I walk calm with thee ;
 Thy sweet imaginings are as an air,
 A melody some wondrous singer sings,
 Which, though it haunt men oft in the still eve,
 They dream not to essay ; yet it no less
 But more is honored. I was thine in shame,
 And now when all thy proud renown is out,
 I am a watcher whose eyes have grown dim
 With looking for some star which breaks on him
 Altered and worn and weak and full of tears.

Autumn has come like spring returned to us,
 Won from her girlishness ; like one returned
 A friend that was a lover nor forgets
 The first warm love, but full of sober thoughts
 Of fading years ; whose soft mouth quivers yet
 With the old smile but yet so changed and still !
 And here am I the scoffer, who have probed
 Life's vanity, won by a word again
 Into my own life — for one little word
 Of this sweet friend who lives in loving me,
 Lives strangely on my thoughts and looks and words,
 As fathoms down some nameless ocean thing

Its silent course of quietness and joy.
 O dearest, if indeed I tell the past,
 Mayst thou forget it as a sad sick dream !
 Or if it linger — my lost soul too soon
 Sinks to itself and whispers, we shall be
 But closer linked, two creatures whom the earth
 Bears singly, with strange feelings unrevealed
 But to each other ; or two lonely things
 Created by some power whose reign is done,
 Having no part in God or his bright world.
 I am to sing whilst ebbing day dies soft,
 As a lean scholar dies worn o'er his book,
 And in the heaven stars steal out one by one
 As hunted men steal to their mountain watch.
 I must not think, lest this new impulse die
 In which I trust ; I have no confidence :
 So, I will sing on fast as fancies come ;
 Rudely, the verse being as the mood it paints.

I strip my mind bare, whose first elements
 I shall unveil — not as they struggled forth
 In infancy, nor as they now exist,
 That I am grown above them and can rule —
 But in that middle stage when they were full
 Yet ere I had disposed them to my will ;
 And then I shall show how these elements
 Produced my present state, and what it is.

I am made up of an intensest life,
 Of a most clear idea of consciousness
 Of self, distinct from all its qualities,
 From all affections, passions, feelings, powers ;
 And thus far it exists, if tracked in all :
 But linked, in me, to self-supremacy,
 Existing as a centre to all things,
 Most potent to create and rule and call
 Upon all things to minister to it ;
 And to a principle of restlessness
 Which would be all, have, see, know, taste, feel, all —
 This is myself ; and I should thus have been
 Though gifted lower than the meanest soul.

And of my powers, one springs up to save
 From utter death a soul with such desire
 Confined to clay — which is the only one
 Which marks me — an imagination which

Has been an angel to me, coming not
 In fitful visions but beside me ever
 And never failing me ; so, though my mind
 Forgets not, not a shred of life forgets,
 Yet I can take a secret pride in calling
 The dark past up to quell it regally.

A mind like this must dissipate itself,
 But I have always had one lode-star ; now,
 As I look back, I see that I have wasted
 Or progressed as I looked towards that star —
 A need, a trust, a yearning after God :
 A feeling I have analyzed but late,
 But it existed, and was reconciled
 With a neglect of all I deemed his laws,
 Which yet, when seen in others, I abhorred.

I felt as one beloved, and so shut in
 From fear : and thence I date my trust in signs
 And omens, for I saw God everywhere ;
 And I can only lay it to the fruit
 Of a sad after-time that I could doubt
 Even his being — having always felt
 His presence, never acting from myself,
 Still trusting in a hand that leads me through
 All danger ; and this feeling still has fought
 Against my weakest reason and resolve.

And I can love nothing — and this dull truth
 Has come the last : but sense supplies a love
 Encircling me and mingling with my life.

These make myself : for I have sought in vain
 To trace how they were formed by circumstance,
 For I still find them turning my wild youth
 Where they alone displayed themselves, converting
 All objects to their use : now see their course.

They came to me in my first dawn of life
 Which passed alone with wisest ancient books
 All halo-girt with fancies of my own ;
 And I myself went with the tale — a god
 Wandering after beauty, or a giant
 Standing vast in the sunset — an old hunter
 Talking with gods, or a high-crested chief,
 Sailing with troops of friends to Tenedos.

I tell you, nought has ever been so clear
 As the place, the time, the fashion of those lives :
 I had not seen a work of lofty art,
 Nor woman's beauty nor sweet nature's face,
 Yet, I say, never morn broke clear as those
 On the dim clustered isles in the blue sea,
 The deep groves and white temples and wet caves :
 And nothing ever will surprise me now —
 Who stood beside the naked Swift-footed,
 Who bound my forehead with Proserpine's hair.

And strange it is that I who could so dream
 Should e'er have stooped to aim at aught beneath —
 Aught low, or painful ; but I never doubted,
 So, as I grew, I rudely shaped my life
 To my immediate wants ; yet strong beneath
 Was a vague sense of powers folded up —
 A sense that though those shadowy times were past
 Their spirit dwelt in me, and I should rule.

Then came a pause, and long restraint chained down
 My soul till it was changed. I lost myself,
 And were it not that I so loathe that time,
 I could recall how first I learned to turn
 My mind against itself ; and the effects
 In deeds for which remorse were vain as for
 The wanderings of delirious dream ; yet thence
 Came cunning, envy, falsehood, which so long
 Have spotted me : at length I was restored.

Yet long the influence remained ; and nought
 But the still life I led, apart from all,
 Which left my soul to seek its old delights,
 Could e'er have brought me thus far back to peace.
 As peace returned, I sought out some pursuit ;
 And song rose, no new impulse but the one
 With which all others best could be combined.
 My life has not been that of those whose heaven
 Was lampless save where poesy shone out ;
 But as a clime where glittering mountain-tops
 And glancing sea and forests steeped in light
 Give back reflected the far-flashing sun ;
 For music (which is earnest of a heaven,
 Seeing we know emotions strange by it,
 Not else to be revealed,) is as a voice,
 A low voice calling fancy, as a friend,

To the green woods in the gay summer time :
 And she fills all the way with dancing shapes
 Which have made painters pale, and they go on
 While stars look at them and winds call to them
 As they leave life's path for the twilight world
 Where the dead gather. This was not at first,
 For I scarce knew what I would do. I had
 No wish to paint, no yearning ; but I sang.

And first I sang as I in dream have seen
 Music wait on a lyrist for some thought,
 Yet singing to herself until it came.
 I turned to those old times and scenes where all
 That's beautiful had birth for me, and made
 Rude verses on them all ; and then I paused —
 I had done nothing, so I sought to know
 What mind had yet achieved. No fear was mine
 As I gazed on the works of mighty bards,
 In the first joy at finding my own thoughts
 Recorded and my powers exemplified,
 And feeling their aspirings were my own.
 And then I first explored passion and mind ;
 And I began afresh ; I rather sought
 To rival what I wondered at, than form
 Creations of my own ; so, much was light
 Lent back by others, yet much was my own.

I paused again, a change was coming on,
 I was no more a boy, the past was breaking
 Before the coming and like fever worked.
 I first thought on myself, and here my powers
 Burst out : I dreamed not of restraint but gazed
 On all things : schemes and systems went and came,
 And I was proud (being vainest of the weak)
 In wandering o'er them to seek out some one
 To be my own, as one should wander o'er
 The white way for a star.

And my choice fell

Not so much on a system as a man —
 On one, whom praise of mine would not offend,
 Who was as calm as beauty, being such
 Unto mankind as thou to me, Pauline, —
 Believing in them and devoting all
 His soul's strength to their winning back to peace ;
 Who sent forth hopes and longings for their sake,

Clothed in all passion's melodies, which first
Caught me and set me, as to a sweet task,
To gather every breathing of his songs :
And woven with them there were words which seemed
A key to a new world, the muttering
Of angels of some thing unguessed by man.
How my heart beat as I went on and found
Much there, I felt my own mind had conceived,
But there living and burning! Soon the whole
Of his conceptions dawned on me; their praise
Is in the tongues of men, men's brows are high
When his name means a triumph and a pride,
So, my weak hands may well forbear to dim
What then seemed my bright fate : I threw myself
To meet it, I was vowed to liberty,
Men were to be as gods and earth as heaven,
And I — ah, what a life was mine to be !
My whole soul rose to meet it. Now, Pauline,
I shall go mad, if I recall that time !

Oh let me look back ere I leave forever
The time which was an hour that one waits
For a fair girl that comes a withered hag !
And I was lonely, far from woods and fields,
And amid dullest sights, who should be loose
As a stag ; yet I was full of joy, who lived
With Plato and who had the key to life ;
And I had dimly shaped my first attempt,
And many a thought did I build up on thought,
As the wild bee hangs cell to cell ; in vain,
For I must still go on, my mind rests not.

'T was in my plan to look on real life
Which was all new to me ; my theories
Were firm, so I left them, to look upon
Men and their cares and hopes and fears and joy ;
And as I pondered on them all I sought
How best life's end might be attained — an end
Comprising every joy. I deeply mused.

And suddenly without heart-wreck I awoke
As from a dream : I said, "'T was beautiful
Yet but a dream, and so adieu to it !"
As some world-wanderer sees in a far meadow
Strange towers and walled gardens thick with trees,
Where singing goes on and delicious mirth,

And laughing fairy creatures peeping over,
 And on the morrow when he comes to live
 Forever by those springs and trees fruit-flushed
 And fairy bowers, all his search is vain.
 First went my hopes of perfecting mankind,
 And faith in them, then freedom in itself
 And virtue in itself, and then my motives, ends
 And powers and loves, and human love went last.
 I felt this no decay, because new powers
 Rose as old feelings left — wit, mockery
 And happiness; for I had oft been sad,
 Mistrusting my resolves, but now I cast
 Hope joyously away: I laughed and said,
 “No more of this!” I must not think: at length
 I looked again to see how all went on.

My powers were greater: as some temple seemed
 My soul, where nought is changed and incense rolls
 Around the altar, only God is gone
 And some dark spirit sitteth in his seat.
 So, I passed through the temple and to me
 Knelt troops of shadows, and they cried, “Hail, king!
 We serve thee now and thou shalt serve no more!
 Call on us, prove us, let us worship thee!”
 And I said, “Are ye strong? Let fancy bear me
 Far from the past!” And I was borne away,
 As Arab birds float sleeping in the wind,
 O'er deserts, towers and forests, I being calm;
 And I said, “I have nursed up energies,
 They will prey on me.” And a band knelt low
 And cried, “Lord, we are here and we will make
 A way for thee in thine appointed life!
 Oh look on us!” And I said, “Ye will worship
 Me; but my heart must worship too.” They shouted,
 “Thyself, thou art our king!” So, I stood there
 Smiling . . . .
 And buoyant and rejoicing was the spirit
 With which I looked out how to end my days;
 I felt once more myself, my powers were mine;
 I found that youth or health so lifted me
 That, spite of all life's vanity, no grief
 Came nigh me, I must ever be light-hearted;
 And that this feeling was the only veil
 Betwixt me and despair: so, if age came,
 I should be as a wreck linked to a soul
 Yet fluttering, or mind-broken and aware

Of my decay. So a long summer morn
Found me ; and ere noon came, I had resolved
No age should come on me ere youth's hope went,
For I would wear myself out, like that morn
Which wasted not a sunbeam ; every joy
I would make mine, and die. And thus I sought
To chain my spirit down which I had fed
With thoughts of fame. I said, "The troubled life
Of genius, seen so bright when working forth
Some trusted end, seems sad when all in vain —
Most sad when men have parted with all joy
For their wild fancy's sake, which waited first
As an obedient spirit when delight
Came not with her alone ; but alters soon,
Comes darkened, seldom, hastening to depart,
Leaving a heavy darkness and warm tears.
But I shall never lose her ; she will live
Brighter for such seclusion. I but catch
A hue, a glance of what I sing, so, pain
Is linked with pleasure, for I ne'er may tell
The radiant sights which dazzle me ; but now
They shall be all my own ; and let them fade
Untold — others shall rise as fair, as fast !
And when all 's done, the few dim gleams transferred,"— (For a new thought sprung up that it were well
To leave all shadowy hope, and weave such lays
As would encircle me with praise and love,
So, I should not die utterly, I should bring
One branch from the gold forest, like the knight
Of old tales, witnessing I had been there) —
"And when all 's done, how vain seems e'en success
And all the influence poets have o'er men !
'T is a fine thing that one weak as myself
Should sit in his lone room, knowing the words
He utters in his solitude shall move
Men like a swift wind — that though he be forgotten,
Fair eyes shall glisten when his beauteous dreams
Of love come true in happier frames than his.
Ay, the still night brought thoughts like these, but morn
Came and the mockery again laughed out
At hollow praises, and smiles almost sneers ;
And my soul's idol seemed to whisper me
To dwell with him and his unhonored name :
And I well knew my spirit, that would be
First in the struggle, and again would make
All bow to it, and I should sink again.

"And then know that this curse will come on us,
 To see our idols perish ; we may wither,
 Nor marvel, we are clay, but our low fate
 Should not extend to them, whom trustingly
 We sent before into time's yawning gulf
 To face whate'er might lurk in darkness there.
 To see the painter's glory pass, and feel
 Sweet music move us not as once, or, worst,
 To see decaying wits ere the frail body
 Decays ! Nought makes me trust in love so really
 As the delight of the contented lowness
 With which I gaze on souls I'd keep forever
 In beauty ; I'd be sad to equal them ;
 I'd feed their fame e'en from my heart's best blood,
 Withering unseen that they might flourish still."

Pauline, my sweet friend, thou dost not forget
 How this mood swayed me when thou first wast mine,
 When I had set myself to live this life,
 Defying all opinion. Ere thou camest
 I was most happy, sweet, for old delights
 Had come like birds again ; music, my life,
 I nourished more than ever, and old lore
 Loved for itself and all it shows — the king
 Treading the purple calmly to his death,
 While round him, like the clouds of eve, all dusk,
 The giant shades of fate, silently flitting,
 Pile the dim outline of the coming doom ;
 And him sitting alone in blood while friends
 Are hunting far in the sunshine ; and the boy
 With his white breast and brow and clustering curls
 Streaked with his mother's blood, and striving hard
 To tell his story ere his reason goes.
 And when I loved thee as I've loved so oft,
 Thou lovedst me, and I wondered and looked in
 My heart to find some feeling like such love,
 Believing I was still what I had been ;
 And soon I found all faith had gone from me,
 And the late glow of life, changing like clouds,
 'Twas not the morn-blush widening into day,
 But evening colored by the dying sun
 While darkness is quick hastening. I will tell
 My state as though 'twere none of mine — despair
 Cannot come near me — thus it is with me.
 Souls alter not, and mine must progress still ;
 And this I knew not when I flung away

My youth's chief aims. I ne'er supposed the loss
 Of what few I retained, for no resource
 Awaits me : now behold the change of all.
 I cannot chain my soul, it will not rest
 In its clay prison, this most narrow sphere :
 It has strange powers and feelings and desires,
 Which I cannot account for nor explain,
 But which I stifle not, being bound to trust
 All feelings equally, to hear all sides :
 Yet I cannot indulge them, and they live,
 Referring to some state or life unknown.

My selfishness is satiated not,
 It wears me like a flame ; my hunger for
 All pleasure, howsoe'er minute, is pain ;
 I envy — how I envy him whose mind
 Turns with its energies to some one end,
 To elevate a sect or a pursuit
 However mean ! So, my still baffled hopes
 Seek out abstractions ; I would have but one
 Delight on earth, so it were wholly mine,
 One rapture all my soul could fill : and this
 Wild feeling places me in dream afar
 In some wild country where the eye can see
 No end to the far hills and dales bestrewn
 With shining towers and dwellings : I grow mad
 Well-nigh, to know not one abode but holds
 Some pleasure, for my soul could grasp them all
 But must remain with this vile form. I look
 With hope to age at last, which quenching much,
 May let me concentrate the sparks it spares.

This restlessness of passion meets in me
 A craving after knowledge : the sole proof
 Of a commanding will is in that power
 Repressed ; for I beheld it in its dawn,
 That sleepless harpy with its budding wings,
 And I considered whether I should yield
 All hopes and fears, to live alone with it,
 Finding a recompense in its wild eyes ;
 And when I found that I should perish so,
 I bade its wild eyes close from me forever,
 And I am left alone with my delights ;
 So, it lies in me a chained thing, still ready
 To serve me if I loose its slightest bond :
 I cannot but be proud of my bright slave.

And thus I know this earth is not my sphere,
 For I cannot so narrow me but that
 I still exceed it: in their elements
 My love would pass my reason; but since here
 Love must receive its objects from this earth
 While reason will be chainless, the few truths
 Caught from its wanderings have sufficed to quell
 All love below; then what must be that love
 Which, with the object it demands, would quell
 Reason though it soared with the seraphim?
 No, what I feel may pass all human love
 Yet fall far short of what my love should be.
 And yet I seem more warped in this than aught,
 For here myself stands out more hideously:
 I can forget myself in friendship, fame,
 Or liberty, or love of mighty souls;
 But I begin to know what thing hate is —
 To sicken and to quiver and grow white —
 And I myself have furnished its first prey.
 All my sad weaknesses, this wavering will,
 This selfishness, this still decaying frame . . .
 But I must never grieve while I can pass
 Far from such thoughts — as now, Andromeda!
 And she is with me: years roll, I shall change,
 But change can touch her not — so beautiful
 With her dark eyes, earnest and still, and hair
 Lifted and spread by the salt-sweeping breeze,
 And one red beam, all the storm leaves in heaven,
 Resting upon her eyes and face and hair
 As she awaits the snake on the wet beach
 By the dark rock and the white wave just breaking
 At her feet; quite naked and alone; a thing
 You doubt not, nor fear for, secure that God
 Will come in thunder from the stars to save her.
 Let it pass! I will call another change.
 I will be gifted with a wondrous soul,
 Yet sunk by error to men's sympathy,
 And in the wane of life, yet only so
 As to call up their fears; and there shall come
 A time requiring youth's best energies;
 And straight I fling age, sorrow, sickness off,
 And I rise triumphing over my decay.

And thus it is that I supply the chasm
 'Twixt what I am and all that I would be.
 But then to know nothing, to hope for nothing,

To seize on life's dull joys from a strange fear
Lest, losing them, all's lost and nought remains!

There's some vile juggle with my reason here;
I feel I but explain to my own loss
These impulses; they live no less the same.
Liberty! what though I despair? my blood
Rose not at a slave's name prouder than now,
And sympathy, obscured by sophistries!
Why have not I sought refuge in myself,
But for the woes I saw and could not stay?
And love! do I not love thee, my Pauline?
I cherish prejudice, lest I be left
Utterly loveless — witness this belief
In poets, though sad change has come there too;
No more I leave myself to follow them —
Unconsciously I measure me by them —
Let me forget it: and I cherish most
My love of England — how her name, a word
Of hers in a strange tongue makes my heart beat!

Pauline, I could do anything — not now —
All's fever — but when calm shall come again,
I am prepared: I have made life my own.
I would not be content with all the change
One frame should feel, but I have gone in thought
Through all conjuncture, I have lived all life
When it is most alive, where strangest fate
New shapes it past surmise — the tales of men
Bit by some curse or in the grasps of doom
Half-visible and still increasing round,
Or crowning their wide being's general aim.

These are wild fancies, but I feel, sweet friend,
As one breathing his weakness to the ear
Of pitying angel — dear as a winter flower,
A slight flower growing alone, and offering
Its frail cup of three leaves to the cold sun,
Yet joyous and confiding like the triumph
Of a child: and why am I not worthy thee?
I can live all the life of plants, and gaze
Drowsily on the bees that flit and play,
Or bare my breast for sunbeams which will kill,
Or open in the night of sounds, to look
For the dim stars; I can mount with the bird
Leaping airily his pyramid of leaves

And twisted boughs of some tall mountain tree,
 Or rise cheerfully springing to the heavens ;
 Or like a fish breathe-in the morning air
 In the misty sun-warm water ; or with flowers
 And trees can smile in light at the sinking sun
 Just as the storm comes, as a girl would look
 On a departing lover — most serene.

Pauline, come with me, see how I could build
 A home for us, out of the world, in thought !
 I am inspired : come with me, Pauline !

Night, and one single ridge of narrow path
 Between the sullen river and the woods
 Waving and muttering, for the moonless night
 Has shaped them into images of life,
 Like the upraising of the giant-ghosts,
 Looking on earth to know how their sons fare :
 Thou art so close by me, the roughest swell
 Of wind in the tree-tops hides not the panting
 Of thy soft breasts. No, we will pass to morning —
 Morning, the rocks and valleys and old woods.
 How the sun brightens in the mist, and here,
 Half in the air, like creatures of the place,
 Trusting the element, living on high boughs
 That swing in the wind — look at the golden spray
 Flung from the foam-sheet of the cataract
 Amid the broken rocks ! Shall we stay here
 With the wild hawks ? No ; ere the hot noon come,
 Dive we down — safe ! See this our new retreat
 Walled in with a sloped mound of matted shrubs,
 Dark, tangled, old and green, still sloping down
 To a small pool whose waters lie asleep
 Amid the trailing boughs turned water-plants :
 And tall trees over-arch to keep us in,
 Breaking the sunbeams into emerald shafts,
 And in the dreamy water one small group
 Of two or three strange trees are got together
 Wondering at all around, as strange beasts herd
 Together far from their own land : all wildness,
 No turf nor moss, for boughs and plants pave all,
 And tongues of bank go shelving in the waters,
 Where the pale-throated snake reclines his head,
 And old gray stones lie making eddies there,
 The wild-mice cross them dry-shod : deeper in !
 Shut thy soft eyes — now look — still deeper in !

This is the very heart of the woods all round
 Mountain-like heaped above us ; yet even here
 One pond of water gleams ; far off the river
 Sweeps like a sea, barred out from land ; but one —
 One thin clear sheet has overleaped and wound
 Into this silent depth, which gained, it lies
 Still, as but let by sufferance ; the trees bend
 O'er it as wild men watch a sleeping girl,
 And through their roots long creeping plants stretch out
 Their twined hair, steeped and sparkling ; farther on,
 Tall rushes and thick flag-knots have combined
 To narrow it ; so, at length, a silver thread,
 It winds, all noiselessly through the deep wood
 Till through a cleft-way, through the moss and stone,
 It joins its parent-river with a shout.
 Up for the glowing day, leave the old woods !
 See, they part, like a ruined arch : the sky !
 Nothing but sky appears, so close the roots
 And grass of the hill-top level with the air —
 Blue sunny air, where a great cloud floats laden
 With light, like a dead whale that white birds pick,
 Floating away in the sun in some north sea.
 Air, air, fresh life-blood, thin and searching air,
 The clear, dear breath of God that loveth us,
 Where small birds reel and winds take their delight !
 Water is beautiful, but not like air :
 See, where the solid azure waters lie
 Made as of thickened air, and down below,
 The fern-ranks like a forest spread themselves
 As though each pore could feel the element ;
 Where the quick glancing serpent winds his way,
 Float with me there, Pauline ! — but not like air.
 Down the hill ! Stop — a clump of trees, see, set
 On a heap of rocks, which look o'er the far plains,
 And envious climbing shrubs would mount to rest
 And peer from their spread boughs ; there they wave, looking
 At the muleteers who whistle as they go
 To the merry chime of their morning bells, and all
 The little smoking cots and fields and banks
 And copses bright in the sun. My spirit wanders :
 Hedge-rows for me — still, living hedge-rows where
 The bushes close and clasp above and keep
 Thought in — I am concentrated — I feel ;
 But my soul saddens when it looks beyond :
 I cannot be immortal nor taste all.

O God, where does this tend — these struggling aims? *
 What would I have? What is this "sleep" which seems
 To bound all? can there be a "waking" point
 Of crowning life? The soul would never rule;
 It would be first in all things, it would have
 Its utmost pleasure filled, but, that complete,
 Commanding, for commanding, sickens it.
 The last point I can trace is, rest, beneath
 Some better essence than itself, in weakness;
 'This is "myself," not what I think should be:
 And what is that I hunger for but God?
 My God, my God, let me for once look on thee
 As though nought else existed, we alone!
 And as creation crumbles, my soul's spark
 Expands till I can say, — Even from myself
 I need thee and I feel thee and I love thee:
 I do not plead my rapture in thy works
 For love of thee, nor that I feel as one
 Who cannot die: but there is that in me
 Which turns to thee, which loves or which should love.
 Why have I girt myself with this hell-dress?
 Why have I labored to put out my life?
 Is it not in my nature to adore,

* Je crains bien que mon pauvre ami ne soit pas toujours parfaitement compris dans ce qui reste à lire de cet étrange fragment, mais il est moins propre que tout autre à éclaircir ce qui de sa nature ne peut jamais être que songe et confusion. D'ailleurs je ne sais trop si en cherchant à mieux co-ordonner certaines parties l'on ne courrait pas le risque de nuire au seul mérite auquel une production si singulière peut prétendre, celui de donner une idée assez précise du genre qu'elle n'a fait qu'ébaucher. Ce début sans prétention, ce remuement des passions qui va d'abord en accroissant et puis s'appaise par degrés, ces élans de l'âme, ce retour soudain sur soi-même, et par-dessus tout, la tournure d'esprit tout particulière de mon ami, rendent les changements presque impossibles. Les raisons qu'il fait valoir ailleurs, et d'autres encore plus puissantes, ont fait trouver grâce à mes yeux pour cet écrit qu'autrement je lui eusse conseillé de jeter au feu. Je n'en crois pas moins au grand principe de toute composition — à ce principe de Shakespeare, de Raphaëlle, de Beethoven, d'où il suit que la concentration des idées est d'ûte bien plus à leur conception qu'à leur mise en execution: j'ai tout lieu de craindre que la première de ces qualités ne soit encore étrangère à mon ami, et je doute fort qu'un redoublement de travail lui fasse acquérir la seconde. Le mieux serait de brûler ceci; mais que faire?

Je crois que dans ce qui suit il fait allusion à un certain examen qu'il fit autrefois de l'âme ou plutôt de son âme, pour découvrir la suite des objets auxquels il lui serait possible d'attendre, et dont chacun une fois obtenu devait former une espèce de plateau d'où l'on pouvait apercevoir d'autres buts, d'autres projets, d'autres jouissances qui, à leur tour, devaient être surmontés. Il en résultait que l'oubli et le sommeil devaient tout terminer. Cette idée, que je ne saisis pas parfaitement, lui est peut-être aussi inintelligible qu'à moi.

PAULINE.

And e'en for all my reason do I not
 Feel him, and thank him, and pray to him — now ?
 Can I forego the trust that he loves me ?
 Do I not feel a love which only ONE . . .
 O thou pale form, so dimly seen, deep-eyed !
 I have denied thee calmly — do I not
 Pant when I read of thy consummate deeds,
 And burn to see thy calm pure truths out-flash
 The brightest gleams of earth's philosophy ?
 Do I not shake to hear aught question thee ?
 If I am erring save me, madden me,
 Take from me powers and pleasures, let me die
 Ages, so I see thee ! I am knit round
 As with a charm by sin and lust and pride,
 Yet though my wandering dreams have seen all shapes
 Of strange delight, oft have I stood by thee —
 Have I been keeping lonely watch with thee
 In the damp night by weeping Olivet,
 Or leaning on thy bosom, proudly less,
 Or dying with thee on the lonely cross,
 Or witnessing thy bursting from the tomb.

A mortal, sin's familiar friend, doth here
 Avow that he will give all earth's reward,
 But to believe and humbly teach the faith,
 In suffering and poverty and shame,
 Only believing he is not unloved.

And now, my Pauline, I am thine forever !
 I feel the spirit which has buoyed me up
 Deserting me, and old shades gathering on ;
 Yet while its last light waits, I would say much,
 And chiefly, I am glad that I have said
 That love which I have ever felt for thee
 But seldom told ; our hearts so beat together
 That speech is mockery ; but when dark hours come,
 And I feel sad, and thou, sweet, deem'st it strange
 A sorrow moves me, thou canst not remove,
 Look on this lay I dedicate to thee,
 Which through thee I began, and which I end,
 Collecting the last gleams to strive to tell
 That I am thine, and more than ever now
 That I am sinking fast : yet though I sink,
 No less I feel that thou hast brought me bliss
 And that I still may hope to win it back.
 Thou knowest, dear friend, I could not think all calm,

For wild dreams followed me and bore me off,
 And all was indistinct ; ere one was caught
 Another glanced ; so, dazzled by my wealth,
 Knowing not which to leave nor which to choose,
 For all my thoughts so floated, nought was fixed.
 And then thou saidst a perfect bard was one
 Who shadowed out the stages of all life,
 And so thou bad'st me tell this my first stage.
 'T is done, and even now I feel all dim the shift
 Of thought ; these are my last thoughts ; I discern
 Faintly immortal life and truth and good.
 And why thou must be mine is, that e'en now
 In the dim hush of night, that I have done,
 With fears and sad forebodings, I look through
 And say, — E'en at the last I have her still,
 With her delicious eyes as clear as heaven
 When rain in a quick shower has beat down mist,
 And clouds float white in the sun like broods of swans.
 How the blood lies upon her cheek, all spread
 As thinned by kisses ! only in her lips
 It wells and pulses like a living thing,
 And her neck looks like marble misted o'er
 With love-breath, — a dear thing to kiss and love,
 Standing beneath me, looking out to me,
 As I might kill her and be loved for it.

Love me — love me, Pauline, love nought but me,
 Leave me not ! All these words are wild and weak,
 Believe them not, Pauline ! I stooped so low
 But to behold thee purer by my side,
 To show thou art my breath, my life, a last
 Resource, an extreme want : never believe
 Aught better could so look to thee ; nor seek
 Again the world of good thoughts left for me !
 There were bright troops of undiscovered suns,
 Each equal in their radiant course ; there were
 Clusters of far fair isles which ocean kept
 For his own joy, and his waves broke on them,
 Without a choice ; and there was a dim crowd
 Of visions, each a part of the dim whole :
 And one star left his peers and came with peace
 Upon a storm, and all eyes pined for him ;
 And one isle harbored a sea-beaten ship,
 And the crew wandered in its bowers and plucked
 Its fruits and gave up all their hopes for home ;
 And one dream came to a pale poet's sleep,

And he said, "I am singled out by God,
No sin must touch me." I am very weak,
But what I would express is, — Leave me not,
Still sit by me with beating breast and hair
Loosened, be watching earnest by my side,
Turning my books or kissing me when I
Look up — like summer wind! Be still to me
A key to music's mystery when mind fails,
A reason, a solution and a clue!
You see I have thrown off my prescribed rules:
I hope in myself — and hope and pant and love.
You'll find me better, know me more than when
You loved me as I was. Smile not! I have
Much yet to gladden you, to dawn on you;
No more of the past! I'll look within no more:
I have too trusted to my own wild wants,
Too trusted to myself, to intuition —
Draining the wine alone in the still night,
And seeing how, as gathering films arose,
As by an inspiration life seemed bare
And grinning in its vanity, and ends
Hard to be dreamed of, stared at me as fixed,
And others suddenly became all foul
As a fair witch turned an old hag at night.
No more of this! We will go hand in hand;
I will go with thee, even as a child,
Looking no farther than thy sweet commands,
And thou hast chosen where this life shall be:
The land which gave me thee shall be our home,
Where nature lies all wild amid her lakes
And snow-swathed mountains and vast pines all girt
With ropes of snow — where nature lies all bare,
Suffering none to view her but a race
Most stunted and deformed, like the mute dwarfs
Which wait upon a naked Indian queen.
And there (the time being when the heavens are thick
With storms) I'll sit with thee while thou dost sing
Thy native songs, gay as a desert bird
Who crieth as he flies for perfect joy,
Or telling me old stories of dead knights;
Or I will read old lays to thee — how she,
The fair pale sister, went to her chill grave
With power to love and to be loved and live:
Or we will go together, like twin gods
Of the infernal world, with scented lamp,
Over the dead, to call and to awake,

Over the unshaped images which lie
 Within my mind's cave : only leaving all
 That tells of the past doubts. So, when spring comes,
 And sunshine comes again like an old smile,
 And the fresh waters and awakened birds
 And budding woods await us, I shall be
 Prepared, and we will go and think again,
 And all old loves shall come to us, but changed
 As some sweet thought which harsh words veiled before :
 Feeling God loves us, and that all that errs
 Is a strange dream which death will dissipate.
 And then when I am firm, we 'll seek again
 My own land, and again I will approach
 My old designs, and calmly look on all
 The works of my past weakness, as one views
 Some scene where danger met him long before.
 Ah that such pleasant life should be but dreamed !

But whate'er come of it, and though it fade,
 And though ere the cold morning all be gone,
 As it will be ; — though music wait for me,
 And fair eyes and bright wine laughing like sin
 Which steals back softly on a soul half saved,
 And I be first to deny all, and despise
 This verse, and these intents which seem so fair, —
 Still this is all my own, this moment's pride,
 No less I make an end in perfect joy.
 E'en in my brightest time, a lurking fear
 Possessed me : I well knew my weak resolves,
 I felt the witchery that makes mind sleep
 Over its treasure, as one half afraid
 To make his riches definite : but now
 These feelings shall not utterly be lost,
 I shall not know again that nameless care
 Lest, leaving all undone in youth, some new
 And undreamed end reveal itself too late :
 For this song shall remain to tell forever
 That when I lost all hope of such a change,
 Suddenly beauty rose on me again.
 No less I make an end in perfect joy,
 For I, having thus again been visited,
 Shall doubt not many another bliss awaits,
 And, though this weak soul sink and darkness come,
 Some little word shall light it up again,
 And I shall see all clearer and love better,
 I shall again go o'er the tracts of thought

As one who has a right, and I shall live
 With poets, calmer, purer still each time,
 And beauteous shapes will come to me again,
 And unknown secrets will be trusted me
 Which were not mine when wavering ; but now
 I shall be priest and lover as of old.

Sun-treader, I believe in God and truth
 And love ; and as one just escaped from death
 Would bind himself in bands of friends to feel
 He lives indeed, so, I would lean on thee !
 Thou must be ever with me, most in gloom
 When such shall come, but chiefly when I die,
 For I seem, dying, as one going in the dark
 To fight a giant : and live thou forever,
 And be to all what thou hast been to me !
 All in whom this wakes pleasant thoughts of me,
 Know my last state is happy, free from doubt
 Or touch of fear. Love me and wish me well !

I. PARACELSUS ASPIRES.

SCENE, Würzburg; a garden in the environs. 1512.

FESTUS, PARACELSUS, MICHAL.

Par. Come close to me, dear friends ; still closer ; thus !
Close to the heart which, though long time roll by
Ere it again beat quicker, pressed to yours,
As now it beats — perchance a long, long time —
At least henceforth your memories shall make
Quiet and fragrant as befits their home.
Nor shall my memory want a home in yours —
Alas, that it requires too well such free
Forgiving love as shall embalm it there !
For if you would remember me aright,
As I was born to be, you must forget
All fitful, strange and moody waywardness
Which e'er confused my better spirit, to dwell
Only on moments such as these, dear friends !
— My heart no truer, but my words and ways
More true to it: as Michal, some months hence,
Will say, “ this autumn was a pleasant time,”
For some few sunny days ; and overlook
Its bleak wind, hankering after pining leaves.
Autumn would fain be sunny ; I would look

Liker my nature's truth : and both are frail,
And both beloved, for all our frailty.

Mich. Aureole !

Par. Drop by drop ! she is weeping like a child !
Not so ! I am content — more than content ;
Nay, autumn wins you best by this its mute
Appeal to sympathy for its decay :
Look up, sweet Michal, nor esteem the less
Your stained and drooping vines their grapes bow down,
Nor blame those creaking trees bent with their fruit,
That apple-tree with a rare after-birth
Of peeping blooms sprinkled its wealth among !
Then for the winds — what wind that ever raved
Shall vex that ash which overlooks you both,
So proud it wears its berries ? Ah, at length,
The old smile meet for her, the lady of this
Sequestered nest ! — this kingdom, limited
Alone by one old populous green wall
Tenanted by the ever-busy flies,
Gray crickets and shy lizards and quick spiders,
Each family of the silver-threaded moss —
Which, look through near, this way, and it appears
A stubble-field or a cane-brake, a marsh
Of bulrush whitening in the sun : laugh now !
Fancy the crickets, each one in his house,
Looking out, wondering at the world — or best,
Yon painted snail with his gay shell of dew,
Travelling to see the glossy balls high up
Hung by the caterpillar, like gold lamps.

Mich. In truth we have lived carelessly and well.

Par. And shall, my perfect pair ! — each, trust me, born
For the other ; nay, your very hair, when mixed,
Is of one hue. For where save in this nook
Shall you two walk, when I am far away,
And wish me prosperous fortune ? Stay : that plant
Shall never wave its tangles lightly and softly,
As a queen's languid and imperial arm
Which scatters crowns among her lovers, but you
Shall be reminded to predict to me
Some great success ! Ah see, the sun sinks broad Behind Saint Saviour's : wholly gone, at last !

Fest. Now, Aureole, stay those wandering eyes awhile !
You are ours to-night, at least ; and while you spoke
Of Michal and her tears, I thought that none
Could willing leave what he so seemed to love :
But that last look destroys my dream — that look

As if, where'er you gazed, there stood a star!
 How far was Würzburg with its church and spire
 And garden-walls and all things they contain,
 From that look's far alighting?

Par. I but spoke
 And looked alike from simple joy to see
 The beings I love best, shut in so well
 From all rude chances like to be my lot,
 That, when afar, my weary spirit, — disposed
 To lose awhile its care in soothing thoughts
 Of them, their pleasant features, looks and words, —
 Needs never hesitate, nor apprehend
 Encroaching trouble may have reached them too,
 Nor have recourse to fancy's busy aid
 And fashion even a wish in their behalf
 Beyond what they possess already here ;
 But, unobstructed, may at once forget
 Itself in them, assured how well they fare.
 Beside, this Festus knows he holds me one
 Whom quiet and its charms arrest in vain,
 One scarce aware of all the joys I quit,
 Too filled with airy hopes to make account
 Of soft delights his own heart garners up :
 Whereas behold how much our sense of all
 That's beauteous proves alike ! When Festus learns
 That every common pleasure of the world
 Affects me as himself ; that I have just
 As varied appetite for joy derived
 From common things ; a stake in life, in short,
 Like his ; a stake which rash pursuit of aims
 That life affords not, would as soon destroy ; —
 He may convince himself that, this in view,
 I shall act well advised. And last, because,
 Though heaven and earth and all things were at stake,
 Sweet Michal must not weep, our parting eve.

Fest. True : and the eve is deepening, and we sit
 As little anxious to begin our talk
 As though to-morrow I could hint of it
 As we paced arm-in-arm the cheerful town
 At sun-dawn ; or could whisper it by fits (Trithemius busied with his class the while)
 In that dim chamber where the noon-streaks peer
 Half-frightened by the awful tomes around ;
 Or in some grassy lane unbosom all
 From even-blush to midnight : but, to-morrow !
 Have I full leave to tell my inmost mind ?

We have been brothers, and henceforth the world
Will rise between us : — all my freest mind ?
'T is the last night, dear Aureole !

Par. Oh, say on !

Devise some test of love, some arduous feat
To be performed for you : say on ! If night
Be spent the while, the better ! Recall how oft
My wondrous plans and dreams and hopes and fears
Have — never wearied you, oh no ! — as I
Recall, and never vividly as now,
Your true affection, born when Einsiedeln
And its green hills were all the world to us ;
And still increasing to this night which ends
My further stay at Würzburg. Oh, one day
You shall be very proud ! Say on, dear friends !

Fest. In truth ? 'T is for my proper peace, indeed,
Rather than yours ; for vain all projects seem
To stay your course : I said my latest hope
Is fading even now. A story tells
Of some far embassy dispatched to win
The favor of an eastern king, and how
The gifts they offered proved but dazzling dust
Shed from the ore-beds native to his clime.
Just so, the value of repose and love,
I meant should tempt you, better far than I
You seem to comprehend ; and yet desist
No whit from projects where repose nor love
Has part.

Par. Once more ? Alas ! As I foretold.

Fest. A solitary brier the bank puts forth
To save our swan's nest floating out to sea.

Par. Dear Festus, hear me. What is it you wish ?
That I should lay aside my heart's pursuit,
Abandon the sole ends for which I live,
Reject God's great commission, and so die !
You bid me listen for your true love's sake :
Yet how has grown that love ? Even in a long
And patient cherishing of the self-same spirit
It now would quell ; as though a mother hoped
To stay the lusty manhood of the child
Once weak upon her knees. I was not born
Informed and fearless from the first, but shrank
From aught which marked me out apart from men :
I would have lived their life, and died their death,
Lost in their ranks, eluding destiny :
But you first guided me through doubt and fear,

Taught me to know mankind and know myself ;
 And now that I am strong and full of hope,
 That, from my soul, I can reject all aims
 Save those your earnest words made plain to me,
 Now that I touch the brink of my design,
 When I would have a triumph in their eyes,
 A glad cheer in their voices — Michal weeps,
 And Festus ponders gravely !

Fest. When you deign

To hear my purpose . . .

Par. Hear it ? I can say

Beforehand all this evening's conference !
 'Tis this way, Michal, that he uses : first,
 Or he declares, or I, the leading points
 Of our best scheme of life, what is man's end
 And what God's will ; no two faiths e'er agreed
 As his with mine. Next, each of us allows
 Faith should be acted on as best we may ;
 Accordingly, I venture to submit
 My plan, in lack of better, for pursuing
 The path which God's will seems to authorize.
 Well, he discerns much good in it, avows
 This motive worthy, that hope plausible,
 A danger here to be avoided, there
 An oversight to be repaired : in fine,
 Our two minds go together — all the good
 Approved by him, I gladly recognize,
 All he counts bad, I thankfully discard,
 And nought forbids my looking up at last
 For some stray comfort in his cautious brow,
 When, lo ! I learn that, spite of all, there lurks
 Some innate and inexplicable germ
 Of failure in my scheme ; so that at last
 It all amounts to this — the sovereign proof
 That we devote ourselves to God, is seen
 In living just as though no God there were ;
 A life which, prompted by the sad and blind
 Folly of man, Festus abhors the most ;
 But which these tenets sanctify at once,
 Though to less subtle wits it seems the same,
 Consider it how they may.

Mich. Is it so, Festus ?

He speaks so calmly and kindly : is it so ?

Par. Reject those glorious visions of God's love
 And man's design ; laugh loud that God should send Vast longings to direct us ; say how soon

Power satiates these, or lust, or gold ; I know
The world's cry well, and how to answer it.
But this ambiguous warfare . . .

Fest. . . . Wearies so
That you will grant no last leave to your friend
To urge it ? — for his sake, not yours ? I wish
To send my soul in good hopes after you ;
Never to sorrow that uncertain words
Erringly apprehended, a new creed
Ill understood, begot rash trust in you,
Had share in your undoing.

Par. Choose your side,
Hold or renounce : but meanwhile blame me not
Because I dare to act on your own views,
Nor shrink when they point onward, nor espy
A peril where they most ensure success.

Fest. Prove that to me — but that ! Prove you abide Within their warrant, nor presumptuous boast
God's labor laid on you ; prove, all you covet,
A mortal may expect ; and, most of all,
Prove the strange course you now affect, will lead
To its attainment — and I bid you speed,
Nay, count the minutes till you venture forth !
You smile ; but I had gathered from slow thought —
Much musing on the fortunes of my friend —
Matter I deemed could not be urged in vain ;
But it all leaves me at my need : in shreds
And fragments I must venture what remains.

Mich. Ask at once, Festus, wherefore he should scorn.

Fest. Stay, Michal : Aureole, I speak guardedly
And gravely, knowing well, whate'er your error,
This is no ill-considered choice of yours,
No sudden fancy of an ardent boy.
Not from your own confiding words alone
Am I aware your passionate heart long since
Gave birth to, nourished and at length matures
This scheme. I will not speak of Einsiedeln,
Where I was born your elder by some years
Only to watch you fully from the first :
In all beside, our mutual tasks were fixed
Even then — 't was mine to have you in my view
As you had your own soul and those intents
Which filled it when, to crown your dearest wish,
With a tumultuous heart, you left with me
Our childhood's home to join the favored few
Whom, here, Trithemius condescends to teach

A portion of his lore : and not one youth
Of those so favored, whom you now despise,
Came earnest as you came, resolved, like you,
To grasp all, and retain all, and deserve
By patient toil a wide renown like his.
Now, this new ardor which supplants the old
I watched, too ; 't was significant and strange,
In one matched to his soul's content at length
With rivals in the search for wisdom's prize,
To see the sudden pause, the total change ;
From contest, the transition to repose —
From pressing onward as his fellows pressed,
To a blank idleness, yet most unlike
The dull stagnation of a soul, content,
Once foiled, to leave betimes a thriveless quest.
That careless bearing, free from all pretence
Even of contempt for what it ceased to seek —
Smiling humility, praising much, yet waiving
What it professed to praise — though not so well
Maintained but that rare outbreaks, fierce and brief,
Revealed the hidden scorn, as quickly curbed.
That ostentatious show of past defeat,
That ready acquiescence in contempt,
I deemed no other than the letting go
His shivered sword, of one about to spring
Upon his foe's throat ; but it was not thus :
Not that way looked your brooding purpose then.
For after-signs disclosed, what you confirmed,
That you prepared to task to the uttermost
Your strength, in furtherance of a certain aim
Which — while it bore the name your rivals gave
Their own most puny efforts — was so vast
In scope that it included their best flights,
Combined them, and desired to gain one prize
In place of many, — the secret of the world,
Of man, and man's true purpose, path and fate.
— That you, not nursing as a mere vague dream
This purpose, with the sages of the past,
Have struck upon a way to this, if all
You trust be true, which following, heart and soul,
You, if a man may, dare aspire to KNOW :
And that this aim shall differ from a host
Of aims alike in character and kind,
Mostly in this, — that in itself alone
Shall its reward be, not an alien end
Blending therewith ; no hope nor fear nor joy

Nor woe, to elsewhere move you, but this pure
Devotion to sustain you or betray :
Thus you aspire.

Par. You shall not state it thus :
I should not differ from the dreamy crew
You speak of. I profess no other share
In the selection of my lot, than this
My ready answer to the will of God
Who summons me to be his organ. All
Whose innate strength supports them shall succeed
No better than the sages.

Fest. Such the aim, then,
God sets before you ; and 't is doubtless need
That he appoint no less the way of praise
Than the desire to praise ; for, though I hold,
With you, the setting forth such praise to be
The natural end and service of a man,
And hold such praise is best attained when man
Attains the general welfare of his kind —
Yet this, the end, is not the instrument.
Presume not to serve God apart from such
Appointed channel as he wills shall gather
Imperfect tributes, for that sole obedience
Valued perchance. He seeks not that his altars
Blaze, careless how, so that they do but blaze.
Suppose this, then ; that God selected you
To KNOW (heed well your answers, for my faith
Shall meet implicitly what they affirm),
I cannot think you dare annex to such
Selection aught beyond a steadfast will,
An intense hope ; nor let your gifts create
Scorn or neglect of ordinary means
Conducive to success, make destiny
Dispense with man's endeavor. Now, dare you search
Your inmost heart, and candidly avow
Whether you have not rather wild desire
For this distinction than security
Of its existence ? whether you discern
The path to the fulfilment of your purpose
Clear as that purpose — and again, that purpose
Clear as your yearning to be singled out
For its pursuer. Dare you answer this ?

Par. (after a pause). No, I have nought to fear ! Who will may know
The secret'st workings of my soul. What though
It be so ? — if indeed the strong desire

Eclipse the aim in me? — if splendor break
 Upon the outset of my path alone,
 And duskest shade succeed? What fairer seal
 Shall I require to my authentic mission
 Than this fierce energy? — this instinct striving Because its nature is to strive? — enticed
 By the security of no broad course,
 Without success forever in its eyes!
 How know I else such glorious fate my own,
 But in the restless irresistible force
 That works within me? Is it for human will
 To institute such impulses? — still less,
 To disregard their promptings! What should I
 Do, kept among you all; your loves, your cares,
 Your life — all to be mine? Be sure that God
 Ne'er dooms to waste the strength he deigns impart!
 Ask the gier-eagle why she stoops at once
 Into the vast and unexplored abyss,
 What full-grown power informs her from the first,
 Why she not marvels, strenuously beating
 The silent boundless regions of the sky!
 Be sure they sleep not whom God needs! Nor fear
 Their holding light his charge, when every hour
 That finds that charge delayed, is a new death.
 This for the faith in which I trust; and hence
 I can abjure so well the idle arts
 These pedants strive to learn and teach; Black Arts,
 Great Works, the Secret and Sublime, forsooth —
 Let others prize: too intimate a tie
 Connects me with our God! A sullen fiend
 To do my bidding, fallen and hateful sprites
 To help me — what are these, at best, beside
 God helping, God directing everywhere,
 So that the earth shall yield her secrets up,
 And every object there be charged to strike,
 Teach, gratify her master God appoints?
 And I am young, my Festus, happy and free!
 I can devote myself; I have a life
 To give; I, singled out for this, the One!
 Think, think; the wide East, where all Wisdom sprung;
 The bright South, where she dwelt; the hopeful North,
 All are passed o'er — it lights on me! 'T is time
 New hopes should animate the world, new light
 Should dawn from new revealings to a race
 Weighed down so long, forgotten so long; thus shall
 The heaven reserved for us at last receive

Creatures whom no unwonted splendors blind,
 But ardent to confront the unclouded blaze,
 Whose beams not seldom blessed their pilgrimage,
 Not seldom glorified their life below.

Fest. My words have their old fate and make faint stand
 Against your glowing periods. Call this, truth —
 Why not pursue it in a fast retreat,
 Some one of Learning's many palaces,
 After approved example? — seeking there
 Calm converse with the great dead, soul to soul,
 Who laid up treasure with the like intent
 — So lift yourself into their airy place,
 And fill out full their unfulfilled careers,
 Unravelling the knots their baffled skill
 Pronounced inextricable, true! — but left
 Far less confused. A fresh eye, a fresh hand,
 Might do much at their vigor's waning-point;
 Succeeding with new-breathed new-hearted force,
 As at old games the runner snatched the torch
 From runner still: this way success might be.
 But you have coupled with your enterprise
 An arbitrary self-repugnant scheme
 Of seeking it in strange and untried paths.
 What books are in the desert? Writes the sea
 The secret of her yearning in vast caves
 Where yours will fall the first of human feet?
 Has wisdom sat there and recorded aught
 You press to read? Why turn aside from her
 To visit, where her vesture never glanced,
 Now — solitudes consigned to barrenness
 By God's decree, which who shall dare impugn?
 Now — ruins where she paused but would not stay,
 Old ravaged cities that, renouncing her,
 She called an endless curse on, so it came:
 Or worst of all, now — men you visit, men,
 Ignoblest troops who never heard her voice
 Or hate it, men without one gift from Rome
 Or Athens, — these shall Aureole's teachers be!
 Rejecting past example, practice, precept,
 Aidless 'mid these he thinks to stand alone:
 Thick like a glory round the Stagirite
 Your rivals throng, the sages: here stand you!
 Whatever you may protest, knowledge is not
 Paramount in your love; or for her sake
 You would collect all help from every source —
 Rival, assistant, friend, foe, all would merge

In the broad class of those who showed her haunts,
And those who showed them not.

Par.

What shall I say?

Festus, from childhood I have been possessed
By a fire — by a true fire, or faint or fierce,
As from without some master, so it seemed,
Repressed or urged its current: this but ill
Expresses what I would convey: but rather
I will believe an angel ruled me thus,
Than that my soul's own workings, own high nature,
So became manifest. I knew not then
What whispered in the evening, and spoke out
At midnight. If some mortal, born too soon,
Were laid away in some great trance — the ages
Coming and going all the while — till dawned
His true time's advent; and could then record
The words they spoke who kept watch by his bed, —
Then I might tell more of the breath so light
Upon my eyelids, and the fingers light
Among my hair. Youth is confused; yet never
So dull was I but, when that spirit passed,
I turned to him, scarce consciously, as turns
A water-snake when fairies cross his sleep.
And having this within me and about me
While Einsiedeln, its mountains, lakes and woods
Confined me — what oppressive joy was mine
When life grew plain, and I first viewed the thronged,
The everlasting concourse of mankind!
Believe that ere I joined them, ere I knew
The purpose of the pageant, or the place
Consigned me in its ranks — while, just awake,
Wonder was freshest and delight most pure —
'T was then that least supportable appeared
A station with the brightest of the crowd,
A portion with the proudest of them all.
And from the tumult in my breast, this only
Could I collect, that I must thenceforth die
Or elevate myself far, far above
The gorgeous spectacle. I seemed to long
At once to trample on yet save mankind,
To make some unexampled sacrifice
In their behalf, to wring some wondrous good
From heaven or earth for them, to perish, winning
Eternal weal in the act: as who should dare
Pluck out the angry thunder from its cloud,
That, all its gathered flame discharged on him,

No storm might threaten summer's azure sleep :
 Yet never to be mixed with men so much
 As to have part even in my own work, share
 In my own largess. Once the feat achieved,
 I would withdraw from their officious praise,
 Would gently put aside their profuse thanks.
 Like some knight traversing a wilderness,
 Who, on his way, may chance to free a tribe
 Of desert-people from their dragon-foe ;
 When all the swarthy race press round to kiss
 His feet, and choose him for their king, and yield
 Their poor tents, pitched among the sand-hills, for
 His realm : and he points, smiling, to his scarf
 Heavy with riveled gold, his burgonet
 Gay set with twinkling stones — and to the East,
 Where these must be displayed !

Fest.

Good : let us hear

No more about your nature, " which first shrank
 From all that marked you out apart from men ! "

Par. I touch on that ; these words but analyze
 The first mad impulse : 't was as brief as fond,
 For as I gazed again upon the show,
 I soon distinguished here and there a shape
 Palm-wreathed and radiant, forehead and full eye.
 Well pleased was I their state should thus at once
 Interpret my own thoughts : — " Behold the clue
 To all," I rashly said, " and what I pine
 To do, these have accomplished : we are peers.
 They know and therefore rule : I, too, will know ! "

You were beside me, Festus, as you say ;
 You saw me plunge in their pursuits whom fame
 Is lavish to attest the lords of mind,
 Not pausing to make sure the prize in view
 Would satiate my cravings when obtained,
 But since they strove I strove. Then came a slow
 And strangling failure. We aspired alike,
 Yet not the meanest plodder, Tritheim counts
 A marvel, but was all-sufficient, strong,
 Or staggered only at his own vast wits ;
 While I was restless, nothing satisfied,
 Distrustful, most perplexed. I would slur over
 That struggle ; suffice it, that I loathed myself
 As weak compared with them, yet felt somehow
 A mighty power was brooding, taking shape
 Within me ; and this lasted till one night
 When, as I sat revolving it and more,

A still voice from without said — “ Seest thou not,
 Desponding child, whence spring defeat and loss?
 Even from thy strength. Consider: hast thou gazed
 Presumptuously on wisdom’s countenance,
 No veil between; and can thy faltering hands,
 Unguided by the brain the sight absorbs,
 Pursue their task as earnest blinkers do
 Whom radiance ne’er distracted? Live their life
 If thou wouldst share their fortune, choose their eyes
 Unfed by splendor. Let each task present
 Its petty good to thee. Waste not thy gifts
 In profitless waiting for the gods’ descent,
 But have some idol of thine own to dress
 With their array. Know, not for knowing’s sake,
 But to become a star to men forever;
 Know, for the gain it gets, the praise it brings,
 The wonder it inspires, the love it breeds:
 Look one step onward, and secure that step!”
 And I smiled as one never smiles but once,
 Then first discovering my own aim’s extent,
 Which sought to comprehend the works of God,
 And God himself, and all God’s intercourse
 With the human mind; I understood, no less,
 My fellows’ studies, whose true worth I saw,
 But smiled not, well aware who stood by me.
 And softer came the voice — “ There is a way:
 ’T is hard for flesh to tread therein, imbued
 With frailty — hopeless, if indulgence first
 Have ripened inborn germs of sin to strength:
 Wilt thou adventure for my sake and man’s,
 Apart from all reward?” And last it breathed —
 “ Be happy, my good soldier; I am by thee,
 Be sure, even to the end!” — I answered not,
 Knowing him. As he spoke, I was endued
 With comprehension and a steadfast will;
 And when he ceased, my brow was sealed his own.
 If there took place no special change in me,
 How comes it all things wore a different hue
 Thenceforward? — pregnant with vast consequence,
 Teeming with grand result, loaded with fate?
 So that when, quailing at the mighty range
 Of secret truths which yearn for birth, I haste
 To contemplate undazzled some one truth,
 Its bearings and effects alone — at once
 What was a speck expands into a star,
 Asking a life to pass exploring thus,

Till I near craze. I go to prove my soul!
 I see my way as birds their trackless way.
 I shall arrive! what time, what circuit first,
 I ask not: but unless God send his hail
 Or blinding fireballs, sleet or stifling snow,
 In some time, his good time, I shall arrive:
 He guides me and the bird. In his good time!

Mich. Vex him no further, Festus; it is so!

Fest. Just thus you help me ever. This would hold
 Were it the trackless air, and not a path
 Inviting you, distinct with footprints yet
 Of many a mighty marcher gone that way.
 You may have purer views than theirs, perhaps,
 But they were famous in their day — the proofs
 Remain. At least accept the light they lend.

Par. Their light! the sum of all is briefly this:
 They labored and grew famous, and the fruits
 Are best seen in a dark and groaning earth
 Given over to a blind and endless strife
 With evils, what of all their lore abates?
 No; I reject and spurn them utterly
 And all they teach. Shall I still sit beside
 Their dry wells, with a white lip and filmed eye,
 While in the distance heaven is blue above
 Mountains where sleep the unsunned tarns?

Fest.

And yet

As strong delusions have prevailed ere now.
 Men have set out as gallantly to seek
 Their ruin. I have heard of such: yourself
 Avow all hitherto have failed and fallen.

Mich. Nay, Festus, when but as the pilgrims faint
 Through the drear way, do you expect to see
 Their city dawn amid the clouds afar?

Par. Ay, sounds it not like some old well-known tale?
 For me, I estimate their works and them
 So rightly, that at times I almost dream
 I too have spent a life the sages' way,
 And tread once more familiar paths. Perchance
 I perished in an arrogant self-reliance
 Ages ago; and in that act, a prayer
 For one more chance went up so earnest, so
 Instinct with better light let in by death,
 That life was blotted out — not so completely
 But scattered wrecks enough of it remain,
 Dim memories, as now, when once more seems
 The goal in sight again. All which, indeed,

Is foolish, and only means — the flesh I wear,
The earth I tread, are not more clear to me
Than my belief, explained to you or no.

Fest. And who am I, to challenge and dispute
That clear belief? I will divest all fear.

Mich. Then Aureole is God's commissary! he shall Be great and grand — and all for us!

Par. No, sweet!

Not great and grand. If I can serve mankind
'T is well; but there our intercourse must end:
I never will be served by those I serve.

Fest. Look well to this; here is a plague-spot, here,
Disguise it how you may! 'T is true, you utter
This scorn while by our side and loving us;
'T is but a spot as yet: but it will break
Into a hideous blotch if overlooked;
How can that course be safe which from the first
Produces carelessness to human love?
It seems you have abjured the helps which men
Who overpass their kind, as you would do,
Have humbly sought; I dare not thoroughly probe
This matter, lest I learn too much. Let be
That popular praise would little instigate
Your efforts, nor particular approval
Reward you; put reward aside; alone
You shall go forth upon your arduous task,
None shall assist you, none partake your toil,
None share your triumph: still you must retain
Some one to cast your glory on, to share
Your rapture with. Were I elect like you,
I would encircle me with love, and raise
A rampart of my fellows; it should seem Impossible for me to fail, so watched
By gentle friends who made my cause their own.
They should ward off fate's envy — the great gift,
Extravagant when claimed by me alone,
Being so a gift to them as well as me.
If danger daunted me or ease seduced,
How calmly their sad eyes should gaze reproach!

Mich. O Aureole, can I sing when all alone,
Without first calling, in my fancy, both
To listen by my side — even I! And you?
Do you not feel this? Say that you feel this!

Par. I feel 't is pleasant that my aims, at length
Allowed their weight, should be supposed to need
A further strengthening in these goodly helps!

My course allures for its own sake, its sole
 Intrinsic worth ; and ne'er shall boat of mine
 Adventure forth for gold and apes at once.
 Your sages say, " if human, therefore weak : "
 If weak, more need to give myself entire
 To my pursuit ; and by its side, all else . . .
 No matter ! I deny myself but little
 In waiving all assistance save its own.
 Would there were some real sacrifice to make !
 Your friends the sages threw their joys away,
 While I must be content with keeping mine.

Fest. But do not cut yourself from human weal !
 You cannot thrive — a man that dares affect
 To spend his life in service to his kind
 For no reward of theirs, unbound to them
 By any tie ; nor do so, Aureole ! No —
 There are strange punishments for such. Give up
 (Although no visible good flow thence) some part
 Of the glory to another ; hiding thus,
 Even from yourself, that all is for yourself.
 Say, say almost to God — " I have done all
 For her, not for myself ! "

Par. And who but lately
 Was to rejoice in my success like you ?
 Whom should I love but both of you ?

Fest. I know not :
 But know this, you, that 't is no will of mine
 You should abjure the lofty claims you make ;
 And this the cause — I can no longer seek
 To overlook the truth, that there would be
 A monstrous spectacle upon the earth,
 Beneath the pleasant sun, among the trees :
 — A being knowing not what love is. Hear me !
 You are endowed with faculties which bear
 Annexed to them as 't were a dispensation
 To summon meaner spirits to do their will
 And gather round them at their need ; inspiring
 Such with a love themselves can never feel,
 Passionless 'mid their passionate votaries.
 I know not if you joy in this or no,
 Or ever dream that common men can live
 On objects you prize lightly, but which make
 Their heart's sole treasure : the affections seem
 Beauteous at most to you, which we must taste
 Or die : and this strange quality accords,
 I know not how, with you ; sits well upon

That luminous brow, though in another it scowls
 An eating brand, a shame. I dare not judge you.
 The rules of right and wrong thus set aside,
 There 's no alternative — I own you one
 Of higher order, under other laws
 Than bind us ; therefore, curb not one bold glance !
 'Tis best aspire. Once mingled with us all . . .

Mich. Stay with us, Aureole ! cast those hopes away,
 And stay with us ! An angel warns me, too,
 Man should be humble ; you are very proud :
 And God, dethroned, has doleful plagues for such !
 — Warns me to have in dread no quick repulse,
 No slow defeat, but a complete success :
 You will find all you seek, and perish so !

Par. (after a pause). Are these the barren first-fruits of my quest ?

Is love like this the natural lot of all ?
 How many years of pain might one such hour
 O'erbalance ? Dearest Michal, dearest Festus,
 What shall I say, if not that I desire
 To justify your love ; and will, dear friends,
 In swerving nothing from my first resolves.
 See, the great moon ! and ere the mottled owls
 Were wide awake, I was to go. It seems
 You acquiesce at last in all save this —
 If I am like to compass what I seek
 By the untried career I choose ; and then,
 If that career, making but small account
 Of much of life's delight, will yet retain Sufficient to sustain my soul : for thus
 I understand these fond fears just expressed.
 And first ; the lore you praise and I neglect,
 The labors and the precepts of old time,
 I have not lightly disesteemed. But, friends,
 Truth is within ourselves ; it takes no rise
 From outward things, whate'er you may believe.
 There is an inmost centre in us all,
 Where truth abides in fulness ; and around,
 Wall upon wall, the gross flesh hems it in,
 This perfect, clear perception — which is truth,
 A baffling and perverting carnal mesh
 Binds it, and makes all error : and, to KNOW,
 Rather consists in opening out a way
 Whence the imprisoned splendor may escape,
 Than in effecting entry for a light
 Supposed to be without. Watch narrowly

The demonstration of a truth, its birth,
 And you trace back the effluence to its spring
 And source within us; where broods radiance vast,
 To be elicited ray by ray, as chance
 Shall favor: chance — for hitherto, your sage
 Even as he knows not how those beams are born,
 As little knows he what unlocks their fount.
 And men have oft grown old among their books
 To die case-hardened in their ignorance,
 Whose careless youth had promised what long years
 Of unremitted labor ne'er performed:
 While, contrary, it has chanced some idle day,
 To autumn loiterers just as fancy-free
 As the midges in the sun, gives birth at last
 To truth — produced mysteriously as cape
 Of cloud grown out of the invisible air.
 Hence, may not truth be lodged alike in all,
 The lowest as the highest? some slight film
 The interposing bar which binds a soul
 And makes the idiot, just as makes the sage
 Some film removed, the happy outlet whence
 Truth issues proudly? See this soul of ours!
 How it strives weakly in the child, is loosed
 In manhood, clogged by sickness, back compelled
 By age and waste, set free at last by death:
 Why is it, flesh enthralles it or enthrones?
 What is this flesh we have to penetrate?
 Oh, not alone when life flows still, do truth
 And power emerge, but also when strange chance
 Ruffles its current; in unused conjuncture,
 When sickness breaks the body — hunger, watching,
 Excess or languor — oftenest death's approach,
 Peril, deep joy or woe. One man shall crawl
 Through life surrounded with all stirring things,
 Unmoved; and he goes mad: and from the wreck
 Of what he was, by his wild talk alone,
 You first collect how great a spirit he hid.
 Therefore, set free the soul alike in all,
 Discovering the true laws by which the flesh
 Accloys the spirit! We may not be doomed
 To cope with seraphs, but at least the rest
 Shall cope with us. Make no more giants, God,
 But elevate the race at once! We ask
 To put forth just our strength, our human strength,
 All starting fairly, all equipped alike,
 Gifted alike, all eagle-eyed, true-hearted —

See if we cannot beat thine angels yet!
 Such is my task. I go to gather this
 The sacred knowledge, here and there dispersed
 About the world, long lost or never found.
 And why should I be sad or lorn of hope?
 Why ever make man's good distinct from God's,
 Or, finding they are one, why dare mistrust?
 Who shall succeed if not one pledged like me?
 Mine is no mad attempt to build a world
 Apart from his, like those who set themselves
 To find the nature of the spirit they bore,
 And, taught betimes that all their gorgeous dreams
 Were only born to vanish in this life,
 Refused to fit them to its narrow sphere,
 But chose to figure forth another world
 And other frames meet for their vast desires, —
 And all a dream! Thus was life scorned; but life
 Shall yet be crowned: twine amaranth! I am priest!
 And all for yielding with a lively spirit
 A poor existence, parting with a youth
 Like those who squander every energy
 Convertible to good, on painted toys,
 Breath-bubbles, gilded dust! And though I spurn
 All adventitious aims, from empty praise
 To love's award, yet whoso deems such helps
 Important, and concerns himself for me,
 May know even these will follow with the rest —
 As in the steady rolling Mayne, asleep
 Yonder, is mixed its mass of schistous ore.
 My own affections, laid to rest awhile,
 Will waken purified, subdued alone
 By all I have achieved. Till then — till then . . .
 Ah, the time-wiling loitering of a page
 Through bower and over lawn, till eve shall bring
 The stately lady's presence whom he loves —
 The broken sleep of the fisher whose rough coat
 Enwraps the queenly pearl — these are faint types!
 See, see they look on me: I triumph now!
 But one thing, Festus, Michal! I have told
 All I shall e'er disclose to mortal: say —
 Do you believe I shall accomplish this?

Fest. I do believe!

Mich. I ever did believe!

Par. Those words shall never fade from out my brain!
 This earnest of the end shall never fade!
 Are there not, Festus, are there not, dear Michal,

Two points in the adventure of the diver,
 One — when, a beggar, he prepares to plunge,
 One — when, a prince, he rises with his pearl?
 Festus, I plunge!

Fest.

We wait you when you rise!

II. PARACELSUS ATTAINS.

SCENE, Constantinople; the house of a Greek conjurer. 1521.

PARACELSUS.

Over the waters in the vaporous West
 The sun goes down as in a sphere of gold
 Behind the arm of the city, which between,
 With all that length of domes and minarets,
 Athwart the splendor, black and crooked runs
 Like a Turk verse along a scimitar.
 There lie, sullen memorial, and no more
 Possess my aching sight! 'T is done at last.
 Strange — and the juggles of a sallow cheat
 Have won me to this act! 'T is as yon cloud
 Should voyage unwrecked o'er many a mountain-top
 And break upon a molehill. I have dared
 Come to a pause with knowledge; scan for once
 The heights already reached, without regard
 To the extent above; fairly compute
 All I have clearly gained; for once excluding
 A brilliant future to supply and perfect
 All half-gains and conjectures and crude hopes:
 And all because a fortune-teller wills
 His credulous seekers should inscribe thus much
 Their previous life's attainment, in his roll,
 Before his promised secret, as he vaunts,
 Make up the sum: and here, amid the scrawled
 Uncouth recordings of the dupes of this
 Old arch-genethliac, lie my life's results!

A few blurred characters suffice to note
 A stranger wandered long through many lands
 And reaped the fruit he coveted in a few
 Discoveries, as appended here and there,
 The fragmentary produce of much toil,
 In a dim heap, fact and surmise together
 Confusedly massed as when acquired; he was

Intent on gain to come too much to stay
 And scrutinize the little gained : the whole
 Slipt in the blank space 'twixt an idiot's gibber
 And a mad lover's ditty — there it lies.

And yet those blottings chronicle a life —
 A whole life, and my life! Nothing to do,
 No problem for the fancy, but a life
 Spent and decided, wasted past retrieve
 Or worthy beyond peer. Stay, what does this Remembrancer set down concerning "life" ?
 " 'Time fleets, youth fades, life is an empty dream,'
 It is the echo of time ; and he whose heart
 Beat first beneath a human heart, whose speech
 Was copied from a human tongue, can never Recall when he was living yet knew not this.
 Nevertheless long seasons pass o'er him
 Till some one hour's experience shows what nothing,
 It seemed, could clearer show ; and ever after,
 An altered brow and eye and gait and speech
 Attest that now he knows the adage true,
 'Time fleets, youth fades, life is an empty dream.' "

Ay, my brave chronicler, and this same hour
 As well as any : now, let my time be !

Now ! I can go no farther ; well or ill,
 'Tis done. I must desist and take my chance.
 I cannot keep on the stretch : 't is no back-shrinking —
 For let but some assurance beam, some close
 To my toil grow visible, and I proceed
 At any price, though closing it, I die.
 Else, here I pause. The old Greek's prophecy
 Is like to turn out true : " I shall not quit
 His chamber till I know what I desire ! "
 Was it the light wind sang it o'er the sea ?

An end, a rest ! strange how the notion, once
 Encountered, gathers strength by moments ! Rest !
 Where has it kept so long ? this throbbing brow
 To cease, this beating heart to cease, all cruel
 And gnawing thoughts to cease ! To dare let down
 My strung, so high-strung brain, to dare unnerve
 My harassed o'ertasked frame, to know my place,
 My portion, my reward, even my failure,
 Assigned, made sure forever ! To lose myself

Among the common creatures of the world,
 To draw some gain from having been a man,
 Neither to hope nor fear, to live at length!
 Even in failure, rest! But rest in truth
 And power and recompense . . . I hoped that once!

What, sunk insensibly so deep? Has all
 Been undergone for this? This the request
 My labor qualified me to present
 With no fear of refusal? Had I gone
 Slightingly through my task, and so judged fit
 To moderate my hopes; nay, were it now
 My sole concern to exculpate myself,
 End things or mend them, — why, I could not choose
 A humbler mood to wait for the event!
 No, no, there needs not this; no, after all,
 At worst I have performed my share of the task;
 The rest is God's concern; mine, merely this,
 To know that I have obstinately held
 By my own work. The mortal whose brave foot
 Has trod, unscathed, the temple-court so far
 That he descries at length the shrine of shrines,
 Must let no sneering of the demons' eyes,
 Whom he could pass unquailing, fasten now
 Upon him, fairly past their power; no, no —
 He must not stagger, faint, fall down at last,
 Having a charm to baffle them; behold,
 He bares his front: a mortal ventures thus
 Serene amid the echoes, beams and glooms!
 If he be priest henceforth, if he wake up
 The god of the place to ban and blast him there,
 Both well! What's failure or success to me?
 I have subdued my life to the one purpose
 Whereto I ordained it; there alone I spy,
 No doubt, that way I may be satisfied.
 Yes, well have I subdued my life! beyond
 The obligation of my strictest vow,
 The contemplation of my wildest bond,
 Which gave my nature freely up, in truth,
 But in its actual state, consenting fully
 All passionate impulses its soil was formed
 To rear, should wither; but foreseeing not
 The tract, doomed to perpetual barrenness,
 Would seem one day, remembered as it was,
 Beside the parched sand-waste which now it is,
 Already strewn with faint blooms, viewless then.

I ne'er engaged to root up loves so frail
I felt them not ; yet now, 't is very plain
Some soft spots had their birth in me at first,
If not love, say, like love : there was a time
When yet this wolfish hunger after knowledge
Set not remorselessly love's claims aside.
This heart was human once, or why recall
Einsiedeln, now, and Würzburg which the Mayne
Forsakes her course to fold as with an arm ?

And Festus — my poor Festus, with his praise
And counsel and grave fears — where is he now
With the sweet maiden, long ago his bride ?
I surely loved them — that last night, at least,
When we . . . gone ! gone ! the better. I am saved
The sad review of an ambitious youth
Choked by vile lusts, unnoticed in their birth,
But let grow up and wind around a will
Till action was destroyed. No, I have gone
Purging my path successively of aught
Wearing the distant likeness of such lusts.
I have made life consist of one idea :
Ere that was master, up till that was born,
I bear a memory of a pleasant life
Whose small events I treasure ; till one morn
I ran o'er the seven little grassy fields,
Startling the flocks of nameless birds, to tell
Poor Festus, leaping all the while for joy,
To leave all trouble for my future plans,
Since I had just determined to become
The greatest and most glorious man on earth.
And since that morn all life has been forgotten ;
All is one day, one only step between
The outset and the end : one tyrant all-
Absorbing aim fills up the interspace,
One vast unbroken chain of thought, kept up
Through a career apparently adverse
To its existence : life, death, light and shadow,
The shows of the world, were bare receptacles
Or indices of truth to be wrung thence,
Not ministers of sorrow or delight :
A wondrous natural robe in which she went.
For some one truth would dimly beacon me
From mountains rough with pines, and flit and wink
O'er dazzling wastes of frozen snow, and tremble
Into assured light in some branching mine

Where ripens, swathed in fire, the liquid gold —
 And all the beauty, all the wonder fell
 On either side the truth, as its mere robe ;
 I see the robe now — then I saw the form.
 So far, then, I have voyaged with success,
 So much is good, then, in this working sea
 Which parts me from that happy strip of land :
 But o'er that happy strip a sun shone, too !
 And fainter gleams it as the waves grow rough,
 And still more faint as the sea widens ; last
 I sicken on a dead gulf streaked with light
 From its own putrefying depths alone.
 Then, God was pledged to take me by the hand ;
 Now, any miserable juggle can bid
 My pride depart. All is alike at length :
 God may take pleasure in confounding pride
 By hiding secrets with the scorned and base —
 I am here, in short : so little have I paused
 Throughout ! I never glanced behind to know
 If I had kept my primal light from wane,
 And thus insensibly am — what I am !

Oh, bitter ; very bitter !

And more bitter,

To fear a deeper curse, an inner ruin,
 Plague beneath plague, the last turning the first
 To light beside its darkness. Let me weep
 My youth and its brave hopes, all dead and gone,
 In tears which burn ! Would I were sure to win
 Some startling secret in their stead, a tincture
 Of force to flush old age with youth, or breed
 Gold, or imprison moonbeams till they change
 To opal shafts ! — only that, hurling it
 Indignant back, I might convince myself
 My aims remained supreme and pure as ever !
 Even now, why not desire, for mankind's sake,
 That if I fail, some fault may be the cause,
 That, though I sink, another may succeed ?
 O God, the despicable heart of us !
 Shut out this hideous mockery from my heart !

'T was politic in you, Aureole, to reject
 Single rewards, and ask them in the lump ;
 At all events, once launched, to hold straight on :
 For now 't is all or nothing. Mighty profit
 Your gains will bring if they stop short of such Full consummation ! As a man, you had

 A certain share of strength ; and that is gone
 Already in the getting these you boast.
 Do not they seem to laugh, as who should say —
 “ Great master, we are here indeed, dragged forth
 To light ; this hast thou done : be glad ! Now, seek
 The strength to use which thou hast spent in getting ! ”

And yet 't is much, surely 't is very much,
 Thus to have emptied youth of all its gifts,
 To feed a fire meant to hold out till morn
 Arrived with inexhaustible light ; and lo,
 I have heaped up my last, and day dawns not !
 And I am left with gray hair, faded hands,
 And furrowed brow. Ha, have I, after all,
 Mistaken the wild nursling of my breast ?
 Knowledge it seemed, and power, and recompense !
 Was she who glided through my room of nights,
 Who laid my head on her soft knees and smoothed
 The damp locks, — whose sly soothing just began
 When my sick spirit craved repose awhile —
 God ! was I fighting sleep off for death's sake ?

God ! Thou art mind ! Unto the master-mind
 Mind should be precious. Spare my mind alone !
 All else I will endure ; if, as I stand
 Here, with my gains, thy thunder smite me down,
 I bow me ; 't is thy will, thy righteous will ;
 I o'erpass life's restrictions, and I die ;
 And if no trace of my career remain
 Save a thin corpse at pleasure of the wind
 In these bright chambers level with the air,
 See thou to it ! But if my spirit fail,
 My once proud spirit forsake me at the last,
 Hast thou done well by me ? So do not thou !
 Crush not my mind, dear God, though I be crushed !
 Hold me before the frequency of thy seraphs
 And say — “ I crushed him, lest he should disturb
 My law. Men must not know their strength : behold,
 Weak and alone, how he had raised himself ! ”

But if delusions trouble me, and thou,
 Not seldom felt with rapture in thy help
 Throughout my toils and wanderings, dost intend
 To work man's welfare through my weak endeavor,
 To crown my mortal forehead with a beam

From thine own blinding crown, to smile, and guide
 This puny hand and let the work so wrought
 Be styled my work, — hear me! I covet not
 An influx of new power, an angel's soul:
 It were no marvel then — but I have reached
 Thus far, a man; let me conclude, a man!
 Give but one hour of my first energy,
 Of that invincible faith, but only one!
 That I may cover with an eagle-glance
 The truths I have, and spy some certain way
 To mould them, and completing them, possess!

Yet God is good: I started sure of that,
 And why dispute it now? I'll not believe
 But some undoubted warning long ere this
 Had reached me: a fire-labarum was not deemed
 Too much for the old founder of these walls.
 Then, if my life has not been natural,
 It has been monstrous: yet, till late, my course
 So ardently engrossed me, that delight,
 A pausing and reflecting joy, 't is plain,
 Could find no place in it. True, I am worn;
 But who clothes summer, who is life itself?
 God, that created all things, can renew!
 And then, though after-life to please me now
 Must have no likeness to the past, what hinders
 Reward from springing out of toil, as changed
 As bursts the flower from earth and root and stalk?
 What use were punishment, unless some sin
 Be first detected? let me know that first!
 No man could ever offend as I have done . . .

(A voice from within.)

I hear a voice, perchance I heard
 Long ago, but all too low,
 So that scarce a care it stirred
 If the voice were real or no:
 I heard it in my youth when first
 The waters of my life outburst:
 But, now their stream ebbs faint, I hear
 That voice, still low, but fatal-clear —
 As if all poets, God ever meant
 Should save the world, and therefore lent
 Great gifts to, but who, proud, refused
 To do his work, or lightly used
 Those gifts, or failed through weak endeavor.

So, mourn cast off by him forever, —
As if these leaned in airy ring
To take me; this the song they sing.

“Lost, lost! yet come,
With our wan troop make thy home.
Come, come! for we
Will not breathe, so much as breathe
Reproach to thee,
Knowing what thou sink'st beneath.
So sank we in those old years,
We who bid thee, come! thou last
Who, living yet, hast life o'erpast.
And altogether we, thy peers,
Will pardon crave for thee, the last
Whose trial is done, whose lot is cast
With those who watch but work no more,
Who gaze on life but live no more.
Yet we trusted thou shouldst speak
The message which our lips, too weak,
Refused to utter, — shouldst redeem
Our fault: such trust, and all a dream!
Yet we chose thee a birthplace
Where the richness ran to flowers:
Couldst not sing one song for grace?
Not make one blossom man's and ours?
Must one more recreant to his race
Die with unexerted powers,
And join us, leaving as he found
The world, he was to loosen, bound?
Anguish! ever and forever;
Still beginning, ending never!
Yet, lost and last one, come!
How couldst understand, alas,
What our pale ghosts strove to say,
As their shades did glance and pass
Before thee night and day?
Thou wast blind as we were dumb:
Once more, therefore, come, O come!
How should we clothe, how arm the spirit
Shall next thy post of life inherit —
How guard him from thy speedy ruin?
Tell us of thy sad undoing
Here, where we sit, ever pursuing
Our weary task, ever renewing
Sharp sorrow, far from God who gave
Our powers, and man they could not save!”

(APRILE enters.)

Ha, ha! our king that wouldst be, here at last?
 Art thou the poet who shall save the world?
 Thy hand to mine! Stay, fix thine eyes on mine!
 Thou wouldst be king? Still fix thine eyes on mine!

Par. Ha, ha! why crouchest not? Am I not king?
 So torture is not wholly unavailing!
 Have my fierce spasms compelled thee from thy lair?
 Art thou the sage I only seemed to be,
 Myself of after-time, my very self
 With sight a little clearer, strength more firm,
 Who robes him in my robe and grasps my crown
 For just a fault, a weakness, a neglect?
 I scarcely trusted God with the surmise
 That such might come, and thou didst hear the while!

Apr. Thine eyes are lustreless to mine; my hair
 Is soft, nay silken soft: to talk with thee
 Flushes my cheek, and thou art ashy-pale.
 Truly, thou hast labored, hast withstood her lips,
 The siren's! Yes, 't is like thou hast attained!
 Tell me, dear master, wherefore now thou comest?
 I thought thy solemn songs would have their meed
 In after-time; that I should hear the earth
 Exult in thee and echo with thy praise,
 While I was laid forgotten in my grave.

Par. Ah fiend, I know thee, I am not thy dupe!
 Thou art ordained to follow in my track,
 Reaping my sowing, as I scorned to reap
 The harvest sown by sages passed away.
 Thou art the sober searcher, cautious striver,
 As if, except through me, thou hast searched or striven!
 Ay, tell the world! Degrade me after all,
 To an aspirant after fame, not truth —
 To all but envy of thy fate, be sure!

Apr. Nay, sing them to me; I shall envy not:
 Thou shalt be king! Sing thou, and I will sit
 Beside, and call deep silence for thy songs,
 And worship thee, as I had ne'er been meant
 To fill thy throne: but none shall ever know!
 Sing to me; for already thy wild eyes
 Unlock my heart-strings, as some crystal-shaft
 Reveals by some chance blaze its parent fount
 After long time: so thou reveal'st my soul.
 All will flash forth at last, with thee to hear!

Par. (His secret! I shall get his secret — fool!)
 I am he that aspired to KNOW: and thou?

Apr. I would LOVE infinitely, and be loved!

Par. Poor slave! I am thy king indeed.

Apr. Thou deem'st

That — born a spirit, dowered even as thou,
 Born for thy fate — because I could not curb
 My yearnings to possess at once the full
 Enjoyment, but neglected all the means
 Of realizing even the frailest joy,
 Gathering no fragments to appease my want,
 Yet nursing up that want till thus I die —
 Thou deem'st I cannot trace thy safe sure march
 O'er perils that o'erwhelm me, triumphing,
 Neglecting nought below for aught above,
 Despising nothing and ensuring all —
 Nor that I could (my time to come again)
 Lead thus my spirit securely as thine own.
 Listen, and thou shalt see I know thee well.
 I would love infinitely . . . Ah, lost! lost!

Oh ye who armed me at such cost,

How shall I look on all of ye

With your gifts even yet on me?

Par. (Ah, 't is some moonstruck creature after all!

Such fond fools as are like to haunt this den:
 They spread contagion, doubtless: yet he seemed
 To echo one foreboding of my heart
 So truly, that . . . no matter! How he stands
 With eve's last sunbeam staying on his hair
 Which turns to it as if they were akin:
 And those clear smiling eyes of saddest blue
 Nearly set free, so far they rise above
 The painful fruitless striving of the brow
 And enforced knowledge of the lips, firm-set
 In slow despondency's eternal sigh!
 Has he, too, missed life's end, and learned the cause?)
 I charge thee, by thy fealty, be calm!
 Tell me what thou wouldst be, and what I am.

Apr. I would love infinitely, and be loved.

First: I would carve in stone, or cast in brass,
 The forms of earth. No ancient hunter lifted
 Up to the gods by his renown, no nymph
 Supposed the sweet soul of a woodland tree
 Or sapphirine spirit of a twilight star,
 Should be too hard for me; no shepherd-king
 Regal for his white locks; no youth who stands
 Silent and very calm amid the throng,
 His right hand ever hid beneath his robe

Until the tyrant pass ; no lawgiver,
No swan-soft woman rubbed with lucid oils
Given by a god for love of her — too hard !
Every passion sprung from man, conceived by man,
Would I express and clothe it in its right form,
Or blend with others struggling in one form,
Or show repressed by an ungainly form.
Oh, if you marvelled at some mighty spirit
With a fit frame to execute its will —
Even unconsciously to work its will —
You should be moved no less beside some strong
Rare spirit, fettered to a stubborn body,
Endeavoring to subdue it and inform it
With its own splendor ! All this I would do :
And I would say, this done, “ His sprites created,
God grants to each a sphere to be its world,
Appointed with the various objects needed
To satisfy its own peculiar want ;
So, I create a world for these my shapes
Fit to sustain their beauty and their strength ! ”
And, at the word, I would contrive and paint
Woods, valleys, rocks and plains, dells, sands and wastes,
Lakes which, when morn breaks on their quivering bed,
Blaze like a wyvern flying round the sun,
And ocean isles so small, the dog-fish tracking
A dead whale, who should find them, would swim thrice
Around them, and fare onward — all to hold
The offspring of my brain. Nor these alone :
Bronze labyrinth, palace, pyramid and crypt,
Baths, galleries, courts, temples and terraces,
Marts, theatres and wharfs — all filled with men,
Men everywhere ! And this performed in turn,
When those who looked on, pined to hear the hopes
And fears and hates and loves which moved the crowd,
I would throw down the pencil as the chisel,
And I would speak ; no thought which ever stirred
A human breast should be untold ; all passions,
All soft emotions, from the turbulent stir
Within a heart fed with desires like mine,
To the last comfort shutting the tired lids
Of him who sleeps the sultry noon away
Beneath the tent-tree by the wayside well :
And this in language as the need should be,
Now poured at once forth in a burning flow,
Now piled up in a grand array of words.
This done, to perfect and consummate all,

Even as a luminous haze links star to star,
 I would supply all chasms with music, breathing
 Mysterious motions of the soul, no way
 To be defined save in strange melodies.
 Last, having thus revealed all I could love,
 Having received all love bestowed on it,
 I would die : preserving so throughout my course
 God full on me, as I was full on men :
 He would approve my prayer, " I have gone through
 The loveliness of life ; create for me
 If not for men, or take me to thyself,
 Eternal, infinite love ! "

If thou hast ne'er
 Conceived this mighty aim, this full desire,
 Thou hast not passed my trial, and thou art
 No king of mine.

Par. Ah me !

Apr. But thou art here !
 Thou didst not gaze like me upon that end
 Till thine own powers for compassing the bliss
 Were blind with glory ; nor grow mad to grasp
 At once the prize long patient toil should claim,
 Nor spurn all granted short of that. And I
 Would do as thou, a second time : nay, listen !
 Knowing ourselves, our world, our task so great,
 Our time so brief, 't is clear if we refuse
 The means so limited, the tools so rude
 To execute our purpose, life will fleet,
 And we shall fade, and leave our task undone.
 We will be wise in time : what though our work
 Be fashioned in despite of their ill-service,
 Be crippled every way ? 'T were little praise
 Did full resources wait on our goodwill
 At every turn. Let all be as it is.
 Some say the earth is even so contrived
 That tree and flower, a vesture gay, conceal
 A bare and skeleton framework. Had we means
 Answering to our mind ! But now I seem
 Wrecked on a savage isle : how rear thereon
 My palace ? Branching palms the props shall be,
 Fruit glossy mingling ; gems are for the East ;
 Who heeds them ? I can pass them. Serpents' scales,
 And painted birds' down, furs and fishes' skins
 Must help me ; and a little here and there
 Is all I can aspire to : still my art
 Shall show its birth was in a gentler clime.

"Had I green jars of malachite, this way
 I'd range them : where those sea-shells glisten above,
 Cressets should hang, by right : this way we set
 The purple carpets, as these mats are laid,
 Woven of fern and rush and blossoming flag."
 Or if, by fortune, some completer grace
 Be spared to me, some fragment, some slight sample
 Of the prouder workmanship my own home boasts,
 Some trifle little heeded there, but here
 The place's one perfection — with what joy
 Would I enshrine the relic, cheerfully
 Foregoing all the marvels out of reach !
 Could I retain one strain of all the psalm
 Of the angels, one word of the fiat of God,
 To let my followers know what such things are !
 I would adventure nobly for their sakes :
 When nights were still, and still the moaning sea,
 And far away I could descry the land
 Whence I departed, whither I return,
 I would dispart the waves, and stand once more
 At home, and load my bark, and hasten back,
 And fling my gains to them, worthless or true.

"Friends," I would say, "I went far, far for them,
 Past the high rocks the haunt of doves, the mounds
 Of red earth from whose sides strange trees grow out,
 Past tracts of milk-white minute blinding sand,
 Till, by a mighty moon, I tremblingly
 Gathered these magic herbs, berry and bud,
 In haste, not pausing to reject the weeds,
 But happy plucking them at any price.
 To me, who have seen them bloom in their own soil,
 They are scarce lovely : plait and wear them, you !
 And guess, from what they are, the springs that fed them,
 The stars that sparkled o'er them, night by night,
 The snakes that travelled far to sip their dew !"
 Thus for my higher loves ; and thus even weakness
 Would win me honor. But not these alone
 Should claim my care ; for common life, its wants
 And ways, would I set forth in beauteous hues :
 The lowest hind should not possess a hope,
 A fear, but I'd be by him, saying better
 Than he his own heart's language. I would live
 Forever in the thoughts I thus explored,
 As a discoverer's memory is attached
 To all he finds ; they should be mine henceforth,
 Imbued with me, though free to all before :

For clay, once cast into my soul's rich mine,
 Should come up crusted o'er with gems. Nor this
 Would need a meaner spirit than the first ;
 Nay, 't would be but the selfsame spirit, clothed
 In humbler guise, but still the selfsame spirit :
 As one spring wind unbinds the mountain snow
 And comforts violets in their hermitage.

But, master, poet, who hast done all this,
 How didst thou 'scape the ruin whelming me ?
 Didst thou, when nerving thee to this attempt,
 Ne'er range thy mind's extent, as some wide hall,
 Dazzled by shapes that filled its length with light,
 Shapes clustered there to rule thee, not obey,
 That will not wait thy summons, will not rise
 Singly, nor when thy practised eye and hand
 Can well transfer their loveliness, but crowd
 By thee forever, bright to thy despair ?
 Didst thou ne'er gaze on each by turns, and ne'er
 Resolve to single out one, though the rest
 Should vanish, and to give that one, entire
 In beauty, to the world ; forgetting, so,
 Its peers, whose number baffles mortal power ?
 And, this determined, wast thou ne'er seduced
 By memories and regrets and passionate love,
 To glance once more farewell ? and did their eyes
 Fasten thee, brighter and more bright, until
 Thou couldst but stagger back unto their feet,
 And laugh that man's applause or welfare ever
 Could tempt thee to forsake them ? Or when years
 Had passed and still their love possessed thee wholly,
 When from without some murmur startled thee
 Of darkling mortals famished for one ray
 Of thy so-hoarded luxury of light,
 Didst thou ne'er strive even yet to break those spells
 And prove thou couldst recover and fulfil
 Thy early mission, long ago renounced,
 And to that end, select some shape once more ?
 And did not mist-like influences, thick films,
 Faint memories of the rest that charmed so long
 Thine eyes, float fast, confuse thee, bear thee off,
 As whirling snow-drifts blind a man who treads
 A mountain ridge, with guiding spear, through storm ?
 Say, though I fell, I had excuse to fall ;
 Say, I was tempted sorely : say but this,
 Dear lord, Aprile's lord !

Par.

Clasp me not thus,

Aprile! That the truth should reach me thus!
We are weak dust. Nay, clasp not or I faint!

Apr. My king! and envious thoughts could outrage thee?

Lo, I forget my ruin, and rejoice
In thy success, as thou! Let our God's praise
Go bravely through the world at last! What care
Through me or thee? I feel thy breath. Why, tears?
Tears in the darkness, and from thee to me?

Par. Love me henceforth, Aprile, while I learn
To love; and, merciful God, forgive us both!
We wake at length from weary dreams; but both
Have slept in fairy-land: though dark and drear
Appears the world before us, we no less
Wake with our wrists and ankles jewelled still.
I too have sought to KNOW as thou to LOVE —
Excluding love as thou refusedst knowledge.

Still thou hast beauty and I, power. We wake:
What penance canst devise for both of us?

Apr. I hear thee faintly. The thick darkness! Even Thine eyes are hid. 'T is as I knew: I speak,
And now I die. But I have seen thy face!
O poet, think of me, and sing of me!
But to have seen thee and to die so soon!

Par. Die not, Aprile! We must never part.
Are we not halves of one dissevered world,
Whom this strange chance unites once more? Part?
never!

Till thou the lover, know; and I, the knower,
Love — until both are saved. Aprile, hear!
We will accept our gains, and use them — now!
God, he will die upon my breast! Aprile!

Apr. To speak but once, and die! yet by his side.
Hush! hush!

Ha! go you ever girt about
With phantoms, powers? I have created such,
But these seem real as I.

Par. Whom can you see
Through the accursed darkness?

Apr. Stay; I know,
I know them: who should know them well as I?
White brows, lit up with glory; poets all!

Par. Let him but live, and I have my reward!

Apr. Yes; I see now. God is the perfect poet,
Who in his person acts his own creations.
Had you but told me this at first! Hush! hush!

Par. Live! for my sake, because of my great sin,
To help my brain, oppressed by these wild words
And their deep import. Live! 't is not too late.
I have a quiet home for us, and friends.
Michal shall smile on you. Hear you? Lean thus,
And breathe my breath. I shall not lose one word
Of all your speech, one little word, Aprile!

Apr. No, no. Crown me? I am not one of you!
'T is he, the king, you seek. I am not one.

Par. Thy spirit, at least, Aprile! Let me love.

I have attained, and now I may depart.

III. PARACELBUS.

SCENE, Basel; a chamber in the house of Paracelsus. 1526.

PARACELBUS, FESTUS.

Par. Heap logs and let the blaze laugh out!

Fest.

True, true!

'T is very fit all, time and chance and change
Have wrought since last we sat thus, face to face
And soul to soul — all cares, far-looking fears,
Vague apprehensions, all vain fancies bred
By your long absence, should be cast away,
Forgotten in this glad unhop'd renewal
Of our affections.

Par. Oh, omit not aught
Which witnesses your own and Michal's own
Affection: spare not that! Only forget
The honors and the glories and what not,
It pleases you to tell profusely out.

Fest. Nay, even your honors, in a sense, I waive:
The wondrous Paracelsus, life's dispenser,
Fate's commissary, idol of the schools
And courts, shall be no more than Aureole still,
Still Aureole and my friend as when we parted
Some twenty years ago, and I restrained
As best I could the promptings of my spirit
Which secretly advanced you, from the first,
To the pre-eminent rank which, since, your own
Adventurous ardor, nobly triumphing,
Has won for you.

Par. Yes, yes. And Michal's face
Still wears that quiet and peculiar light
Like the dim circlet floating round a pearl?

Fest. Just so.

Par. And yet her calm sweet countenance,
Though saintly, was not sad ; for she would sing
Alone. Does she still sing alone, bird-like,
Not dreaming you are near ? Her carols dropt
In flakes through that old leafy bower built under
The sunny wall at Würzburg, from her lattice
Among the trees above, while I, unseen,
Sat conning some rare scroll from Trithem's shelves,
Much wondering notes so simple could divert
My mind from study. Those were happy days.
Respect all such as sing when all alone !

Fest. Scarcely alone : her children, you may guess,
Are wild beside her.

Par. Ah, those children quite
Unsettle the pure picture in my mind :
A girl, she was so perfect, so distinct :
No change, no change ! Not but this added grace
May blend and harmonize with its compeers,
And Michal may become her motherhood ;
But 't is a change, and I detest all change,
And most a change in aught I loved long since.
So, Michal — you have said she thinks of me ?

Fest. O very proud will Michal be of you !
Imagine how we sat, long winter-nights,
Scheming and wondering, shaping your presumed
Adventure, or devising its reward ;
Shutting out fear with all the strength of hope.
For it was strange how, even when most secure
In our domestic peace, a certain dim
And flitting shade could sadden all ; it seemed
A restlessness of heart, a silent yearning,
A sense of something wanting, incomplete —
Not to be put in words, perhaps avoided
By mute consent — but, said or unsaid, felt
To point to one so loved and so long lost.
And then the hopes rose and shut out the fears —
How you would laugh should I recount them now !
I still predicted your return at last
With gifts beyond the greatest of them all,
All Trithem's wondrous troop ; did one of which
Attain renown by any chance, I smiled,
As well aware of who would prove his peer.
Michal was sure some woman, long ere this,
As beautiful as you were sage, had loved . . .

Par. Far-seeing, truly, to discern so much

In the fantastic projects and day-dreams
Of a raw restless boy!

Fest. Oh, no: the sunrise
Well warranted our faith in this full noon!
Can I forget the anxious voice which said,
“Festus, have thoughts like these e'er shaped themselves
In other brains than mine? have their possessors
Existed in like circumstance? were they weak
As I, or ever constant from the first,
Despising youth's allurements and rejecting
As spider-films the shackles I endure?
Is there hope for me?” — and I answered gravely
As an acknowledged elder, calmer, wiser,
More gifted mortal. O you must remember,
For all your glorious . . .

Par. Glorious? ay, this hair,
These hands — nay, touch them, they are mine! Recall
With all the said recallings, times when thus
To lay them by your own ne'er turned you pale
As now. Most glorious, are they not?

Fest. Why — why —
Something must be subtracted from success
So wide, no doubt. He would be scrupulous, truly,
Who should object such drawbacks. Still, still, Aureole,
You are changed, very changed! 'T were losing nothing
To look well to it: you must not be stolen
From the enjoyment of your well-won meed.

Par. My friend! you seek my pleasure, past a doubt:
You will best gain your point, by talking, not
Of me, but of yourself.

Fest. Have I not said
All touching Michal and my children? Sure
You know, by this, full well how Aennchen looks
Gravely, while one disparts her thick brown hair;
And Aureole's glee when some stray gannet builds
Amid the birch-trees by the lake. Small hope
Have I that he will honor (the wild imp)
His namesake. Sigh not! 't is too much to ask
That all we love should reach the same proud fate.
But you are very kind to humor me
By showing interest in my quiet life;
You, who of old could never tame yourself
To tranquil pleasures, must at heart despise . . .

Par. Festus, strange secrets are let out by death
Who blabs so oft the follies of this world:
And I am death's familiar, as you know.

I helped a man to die, some few weeks since,
 Warped even from his go-cart to one end —
 The living on princes' smiles, reflected from
 A mighty herd of favorites. No mean trick
 He left untried, and truly well-nigh wormed
 All traces of God's finger out of him :
 Then died, grown old. And just an hour before,
 Having lain long with blank and soulless eyes,
 He sat up suddenly, and with natural voice
 Said that in spite of thick air and closed doors
 God told him it was June ; and he knew well,
 Without such telling, harebells grew in June ;
 And all that kings could ever give or take
 Would not be precious as those blooms to him.
 Just so, allowing I am passing sage,
 It seems to me much worthier argument
 Why pansies,* eyes that laugh, bear beauty's prize
 From violets, eyes that dream — (your Michal's choice) —
 Than all fools find to wonder at in me
 Or in my fortunes. And be very sure
 I say this from no prurient restlessness,
 No self-complacency, itching to turn,
 Vary and view its pleasure from all points,
 And, in this instance, willing other men
 May be at pains, demonstrate to itself
 The realness of the very joy it tastes.
 What should delight me like the news of friends
 Whose memories were a solace to me oft,
 As mountain-baths to wild fowls in their flight ?
 Offer than you had wasted thought on me
 Had you been wise, and rightly valued bliss.
 But there 's no taming nor repressing hearts :
 God knows I need such ! — So, you heard me speak ?

Fest. Speak ? when ?

Par.

When but this morning at my class ?
 There was noise and crowd enough. I saw you not.
 Surely you know I am engaged to fill
 The chair here ? — that 't is part of my proud fate
 To lecture to as many thick-skulled youths
 As please, each day, to throng the theatre,
 To my great reputation, and no small
 Danger of Basel's benches long unused
 To crack beneath such honor ?

Fest.

I was there ;
 I mingled with the throng : shall I avow

* Citrinula (flammula) herba Paracelso multum familiaris. — DORN.

Small care was mine to listen? — too intent
 On gathering from the murmurs of the crowd
 A full corroboration of my hopes!
 What can I learn about your powers? but they Know, care for nought beyond your actual state,
 Your actual value; yet they worship you,
 Those various natures whom you sway as one!
 But ere I go, be sure I shall attend . . .

Par. Stop, o' God's name: the thing's by no means yet
 Past remedy! Shall I read this morning's labor
 — At least in substance? Nought so worth the gaining
 As an apt scholar! Thus then, with all due
 Precision and emphasis — you, beside, are clearly
 Guiltless of understanding more, a whit,
 The subject than your stool — allowed to be
 A notable advantage.

Fest. Surely, Aureole,
 You laugh at me!

Par. I laugh? Ha, ha! thank heaven,
 I charge you, if 't be so! for I forget
 Much, and what laughter should be like. No less,
 However, I forego that luxury
 Since it alarms the friend who brings it back.
 True, laughter like my own must echo strangely
 To thinking men; a smile were better far;
 So, make me smile! If the exulting look
 You wore but now be smiling, 't is so long
 Since I have smiled! Alas, such smiles are born
 Alone of hearts like yours, or herdsmen's souls
 Of ancient time, whose eyes, calm as their flocks,
 Saw in the stars mere garnishry of heaven,
 And in the earth a stage for altars only.
 Never change, Festus: I say, never change!

Fest. My God, if he be wretched after all!

Par. When last we parted, Festus, you declared,
 — Or Michal, yes, her soft lips whispered words
 I have preserved. She told me she believed
 I should succeed (meaning, that in the search
 I then engaged in, I should meet success)
 And yet be wretched: now, she augured false.

Fest. Thank heaven! but you spoke strangely: could I venture
 To think bare apprehension lest your friend,
 Dazzled by your resplendent course, might find
 Henceforth less sweetness in his own, could move
 Such earnest mood in you? Fear not, dear friend,

That I shall leave you, inwardly repining
Your lot was not my own !

Par. And this forever !
Forever ! gull who may, they will be gulled !
They will not look nor think ; 't is nothing new
In them : but surely he is not of them !
My Festus, do you know, I reckoned, you —
Though all beside were sand-blind — you, my friend,
Would look at me, once close, with piercing eye
Untroubled by the false glare that confounds
A weaker vision : would remain serene,
Though singular amid a gaping throng.
I feared you, or I had come, sure, long ere this,
To Einsiedeln. Well, error has no end,
And Rhasis is a sage, and Basel boasts
A tribe of wits, and I am wise and blest
Past all dispute ! 'T is vain to fret at it.
I have vowed long ago my worshippers
Shall owe to their own deep sagacity
All further information, good or bad.
Small risk indeed my reputation runs,
Unless perchance the glance now searching me
Be fixed much longer ; for it seems to spell
Dimly the characters a simpler man
Might read distinct enough. Old eastern books
Say, the fallen prince of morning some short space
Remained unchanged in semblance ; nay, his brow
Was hued with triumph : every spirit then
Praising, his heart on flame the while : — a tale !
Well, Festus, what discover you, I pray ?

Fest. Some foul deed sullies then a life which else
Were raised supreme ?

Par. Good : I do well, most well !
Why strive to make men hear, feel, fret themselves
With what is past their power to comprehend ?
I should not strive now : only, having nursed
The faint surmise that one yet walked the earth,
One, at least, not the utter fool of show,
Not absolutely formed to be the dupe
Of shallow plausibilities alone :
One who, in youth, found wise enough to choose
The happiness his riper years approve,
Was yet so anxious for another's sake,
That, ere his friend could rush upon a mad
And ruinous course, the converse of his own,
His gentle spirit essayed, prejudged for him

The perilous path, foresaw its destiny,
 And warned the weak one in such tender words,
 Such accents — his whole heart in every tone —
 That oft their memory comforted that friend
 When it by right should have increased despair :
 — Having believed, I say, that this one man
 Could never lose the light thus from the first
 His portion — how should I refuse to grieve
 At even my gain if it disturb our old
 Relation, if it make me out more wise ?
 Therefore, once more reminding him how well
 He prophesied, I note the single flaw
 That spoils his prophet's title. In plain words,
 You were deceived, and thus were you deceived —
 I have not been successful, and yet am
 Most miserable ; 't is said at last ; nor you
 Give credit, lest you force me to concede
 That common sense yet lives upon the world !

Fest. You surely do not mean to banter me ?

Par. You know, or — if you have been wise enough
 To cleanse your memory of such matters — knew,
 As far as words of mine could make it clear,
 That 't was my purpose to find joy or grief
 Solely in the fulfilment of my plan
 Or plot or whatso'er it was ; rejoicing
 Alone as it proceeded prosperously,
 Sorrowing then only when mischance retarded
 Its progress. That was in those Würzburg days !
 Not to prolong a theme I thoroughly hate,
 I have pursued this plan with all my strength :
 And having failed therein most signally,
 Cannot object to ruin utter and drear
 As all-excelling would have been the prize
 Had fortune favored me. I scarce have right
 To vex your frank good spirit late so glad
 In my supposed prosperity, I know,
 And, were I lucky in a glut of friends,
 Would well agree to let your error live,
 Nay, strengthen it with fables of success.
 But mine is no condition to refuse
 The transient solace of so rare a godsend,
 My solitary luxury, my one friend :
 Accordingly I venture to put off
 The wearisome vest of falsehood galling me,
 Secure when he is by. I lay me bare,
 Prone at his mercy — but he is my friend !

Not that he needs retain his aspect grave ;
 That answers not my purpose ; for 't is like,
 Some sunny morning — Basel being drained
 Of its wise population, every corner
 Of the amphitheatre crammed with learned clerks,
 Here Ecolampadius, looking worlds of wit,
 Here Castellanus, as profound as he,
 Munsterus here, Frobenius there, all squeezed
 And staring, — that the zany of the show,
 Even Paracelsus, shall put off before them
 His trappings with a grace but seldom judged
 Expedient in such cases : — the grim smile
 That will go round ! Is it not therefore best
 To venture a rehearsal like the present
 In a small way ? Where are the signs I seek,
 The first-fruits and fair sample of the scorn
 Due to all quacks ? Why, this will never do !

Fest. These are foul vapors, Aureole ; nought beside !
 The effect of watching, study, weariness.
 Were there a spark of truth in the confusion
 Of these wild words, you would not outrage thus
 Your youth's companion. I shall ne'er regard
 These wanderings, bred of faintness and much study.
 'T is not thus you would trust a trouble to me,
 To Michal's friend.

Par. I have said it, dearest Festus !
 For the manner, 't is ungracious probably ;
 You may have it told in broken sobs, one day,
 And scalding tears, ere long : but I thought best
 To keep that off as long as possible.
 Do you wonder still ?

Fest. No ; it must oft fall out
 That one whose labor perfects any work,
 Shall rise from it with eye so worn that he
 Of all men least can measure the extent
 Of what he has accomplished. He alone
 Who, nothing tasked, is nothing weary too,
 May clearly scan the little he effects :
 But we, the bystanders, untouched by toil,
 Estimate each aright.

Par. This worthy Festus
 Is one of them, at last ! 'T is so with all !
 First, they set down all progress as a dream ;
 And next, when he whose quick discomfiture
 Was counted on, accomplishes some few
 And doubtful steps in his career, — behold,

They look for every inch of ground to vanish
Beneath his tread, so sure they spy success!

Fest. Few doubtful steps? when death retires before
Your presence — when the noblest of mankind,
Broken in body or subdued in soul,
May through your skill renew their vigor, raise
The shattered frame to pristine stateliness?
When men in racking pain may purchase dreams
Of what delights them most, swooning at once
Into a sea of bliss or rapt along
As in a flying sphere of turbulent light?
When we may look to you as one ordained
To free the flesh from fell disease, as frees
Our Luther's burning tongue the fettered soul?
When . . .

Par. When and where, the devil, did you get
This notable news?

Fest. Even from the common voice;
From those whose envy, daring not dispute
The wonders it decries, attributes them
To magic and such folly.

Par. Folly? Why not
To magic, pray? You find a comfort doubtless
In holding, God ne'er troubles him about
Us or our doings: once we were judged worth
The devil's tempting . . . I offend: forgive me,
And rest content. Your prophecy on the whole
Was fair enough as prophesyings go;
At fault a little in detail, but quite
Precise enough in the main; and hereupon
I pay due homage: you guessed long ago
(The prophet!) I should fail — and I have failed.

Fest. You mean to tell me, then, the hopes which fed
Your youth have not been realized as yet?
Some obstacle has barred them hitherto?
Or that their innate . . .

Par. As I said but now,
You have a very decent prophet's fame,
So you but shun details here. Little matter
Whether those hopes were mad, — the aims they sought,
Safe and secure from all ambitious fools;
Or whether my weak wits are overcome
By what a better spirit would scorn: I fail.
And now methinks 'twere best to change a theme
I am a sad fool to have stumbled on.
I say confusedly what comes uppermost;

But there are times when patience proves at fault,
 As now: this morning's strange encounter — you
 Beside me once again! you, whom I guessed
 Alive, since hitherto (with Luther's leave)
 No friend have I among the saints at peace,
 To judge by any good their prayers effect.
 I knew you would have helped me — why not he,
 My strange competitor in enterprise,
 Bound for the same end by another path,
 Arrived, or ill or well, before the time,
 At our disastrous journey's doubtful close?
 How goes it with Aprile? Ah, they miss
 Your lone sad sunny idleness of heaven,
 Our martyrs for the world's sake; heaven shuts fast:
 The poor mad poet is howling by this time!
 Since you are my sole friend then, here or there,
 I could not quite repress the varied feelings
 This meeting wakens; they have had their vent,
 And now forget them. Do the rear-mice still Hang like a fretwork on the gate (or what
 In my time was a gate) fronting the road
 From Einsiedeln to Lachen?

Fest.

Trifle not:

Answer me, for my sake alone! You smiled
 Just now, when I supposed some deed, unworthy
 Yourself, might blot the else so bright result;
 Yet if your motives have continued pure,
 Your will unfaltering, and in spite of this,
 You have experienced a defeat, why then
 I say not you would cheerfully withdraw
 From contest — mortal hearts are not so fashioned —
 But surely you would ne'ertheless withdraw.
 You sought not fame nor gain nor even love,
 No end distinct from knowledge, — I repeat
 Your very words: once satisfied that knowledge
 Is a mere dream, you would announce as much,
 Yourself the first. But how is the event?
 You are defeated — and I find you here!

Par. As though "here" did not signify defeat!

I spoke not of my little labors here,
 But of the break-down of my general aims:
 For you, aware of their extent and scope,
 To look on these sage lecturings, approved
 By beardless boys, and bearded dotards worse,
 As a fit consummation of such aims,
 Is worthy notice. A professorship

At Basel! Since you see so much in it,
And think my life was reasonably drained
Of life's delights to render me a match
For duties arduous as such post demands, —
Be it far from me to deny my power
To fill the petty circle lotted out
Of infinite space, or justify the host
Of honors thence accruing. So, take notice,
This jewel dangling from my neck preserves
The features of a prince, my skill restored
To plague his people some few years to come:
And all through a pure whim. He had eased the earth
For me, but that the droll despair which seized
The vermin of his household, tickled me.
I came to see. Here, drivelled the physician,
Whose most infallible nostrum was at fault;
There quaked the astrologer, whose horoscope
Had promised him interminable years;
Here a monk fumbled at the sick man's mouth
With some undoubted relic — a sudary
Of the Virgin; while another piebald knave
Of the same brotherhood (he loved them ever)
Was actively preparing 'neath his nose
Such a suffumigation as, once fired,
Had stunk the patient dead ere he could groan.
I cursed the doctor and upset the brother,
Brushed past the conjurer, vowed that the first gust
Of stench from the ingredients just alight
Would raise a cross-grained devil in my sword,
Not easily laid: and ere an hour the prince
Slept as he never slept since prince he was.
A day — and I was posting for my life,
Placarded through the town as one whose spite
Had near availed to stop the blessed effects
Of the doctor's nostrum which, well seconded
By the sudary, and most by the costly smoke —
Not leaving out the strenuous prayers sent up
Hard by in the abbey — raised the prince to life:
To the great reputation of the seer
Who, confident, expected all along
The glad event — the doctor's recompense —
Much largess from his highness to the monks —
And the vast solace of his loving people,
Whose general satisfaction to increase,
The prince was pleased no longer to defer
The burning of some dozen heretics

Remanded till God's mercy should be shown
 Touching his sickness : last of all were joined Ample directions to all loyal folk
 To swell the complement by seizing me
 Who — doubtless some rank sorcerer — endeavored
 To thwart these pious offices, obstruct
 The prince's cure, and frustrate heaven by help
 Of certain devils dwelling in his sword.
 By luck, the prince in his first fit of thanks
 Had forced this bauble on me as an earnest
 Of further favors. This one case may serve
 To give sufficient taste of many such,
 So, let them pass. Those shelves support a pile
 Of patents, licenses, diplomas, titles
 From Germany, France, Spain, and Italy ;
 They authorize some honor ; ne'ertheless,
 I set more store by this Erasmus sent ;
 He trusts me ; our Frobenius is his friend,
 And him " I raised " (nay, read it) " from the dead."
 I weary you, I see. I merely sought
 To show, there 's no great wonder after all
 That, while I fill the class-room and attract
 A crowd to Basel, I get leave to stay,
 And therefore need not scruple to accept
 The utmost they can offer, if I please :
 For 't is but right the world should be prepared
 To treat with favor e'en fantastic wants
 Of one like me, used up in serving her.
 Just as the mortal, whom the gods in part
 Devoured, received in place of his lost limb
 Some virtue or other — cured disease, I think ;
 You mind the fables we have read together.

Fest. You do not think I comprehend a word.
 The time was, Aureole, you were apt enough
 To clothe the airiest thoughts in specious breath ;
 But surely you must feel how vague and strange
 These speeches sound.

Par. Well, then : you know my hopes
 I am assured, at length, those hopes were vain ;
 That truth is just as far from me as ever ;
 That I have thrown my life away ; that sorrow
 On that account is idle, and further effort
 To mend and patch what 's marred beyond repairing,
 As useless : and all this was taught your friend
 By the convincing good old-fashioned method
 Of force — by sheer compulsion. Is that plain ?

Fest. Dear Aureole, can it be my fears were just?
God wills not . . .

Par. Now, 't is this I most admire —
The constant talk men of your stamp keep up
Of God's will, as they style it; one would swear
Man had but merely to uplift his eye,
And see the will in question charactered
On the heaven's vault. 'T is hardly wise to moot
Such topics: doubts are many and faith is weak.
I know as much of any will of God
As knows some dumb and tortured brute what Man,
His stern lord, wills from the perplexing blows
That plague him every way; but there, of course,
Where least he suffers, longest he remains —
My case; and for such reasons I plod on,
Subdued but not convinced. I know as little
Why I deserve to fail, as why I hoped
Better things in my youth. I simply know
I am no master here, but trained and beaten
Into the path I tread; and here I stay,
Until some further intimation reach me,
Like an obedient drudge. Though I prefer
To view the whole thing as a task imposed
Which, whether dull or pleasant, must be done —
Yet, I deny not, there is made provision
Of joys which tastes less jaded might affect;
Nay, some which please me too, for all my pride —
Pleasures that once were pains: the iron ring
Festering about a slave's neck grows at length
Into the flesh it eats. I hate no longer
A host of petty vile delights, undreamed of
Or spurned before; such now supply the place
Of my dead aims: as in the autumn woods
Where tall trees used to flourish, from their roots
Springs up a fungous brood sickly and pale,
Chill mushrooms colored like a corpse's cheek.

Fest. If I interpret well your words, I own
It troubles me but little that your aims,
Vast in their dawning and most likely grown
Extravagantly since, have baffled you.
Perchance I am glad; you merit greater praise;
Because they are too glorious to be gained,
You do not blindly cling to them and die;
You fell, but have not sullenly refused
To rise, because an angel worsted you
In wrestling, though the world holds not your peer;

And though too harsh and sudden is the change
 To yield content as yet, still you pursue
 The ungracious path as though 't were rosy-strewn.
 'T is well: and your reward, or soon or late,
 Will come from him whom no man serves in vain.

Par. Ah, very fine! For my part, I conceive
 The very pausing from all further toil,
 Which you find heinous, would become a seal
 To the sincerity of all my deeds.
 To be consistent I should die at once;
 I calculated on no after-life;
 Yet (how crept in, how fostered, I know not)
 Here am I with as passionate regret
 For youth and health and love so vainly lavished,
 As if their preservation had been first
 And foremost in my thoughts; and this strange fact
 Humbled me wondrously, and had due force
 In rendering me the less averse to follow
 A certain counsel, a mysterious warning —
 You will not understand — but 't was a man
 With aims not mine and yet pursued like mine,
 With the same fervor and no more success,
 Perishing in my sight; who summoned me,
 As I would shun the ghastly fate I saw,
 To serve my race at once; to wait no longer
 That God should interfere in my behalf,
 But to distrust myself, put pride away,
 And give my gains, imperfect as they were,
 To men. I have not leisure to explain
 How, since, a singular series of events
 Has raised me to the station you behold,
 Wherein I seem to turn to most account
 The mere wreck of the past, — perhaps receive
 Some feeble glimmering token that God views
 And may approve my penance: therefore here
 You find me, doing most good or least harm.
 And if folks wonder much and profit little
 'T is not my fault; only, I shall rejoice
 When my part in the farce is shuffled through,
 And the curtain falls: I must hold out till then.

Fest. Till when, dear Aureole?

Par. Till I'm fairly thrust
 From my proud eminence. Fortune is fickle
 And even professors fall: should that arrive,
 I see no sin in ceding to my bent.
 You little fancy what rude shocks apprise us

We sin ; God's intimations rather fail
 In clearness than in energy : 't were well
 Did they but indicate the course to take
 Like that to be forsaken. I would fain
 Be spared a further sample. Here I stand,
 And here I stay, be sure, till forced to flit.

Fest. Be you but firm on that head ! long ere then
 All I expect will come to pass, I trust :
 The cloud that wraps you will have disappeared.
 Meantime, I see small chance of such event :
 They praise you here as one whose lore, already
 Divulged, eclipses all the past can show,
 But whose achievements, marvellous as they be,
 Are faint anticipations of a glory
 About to be revealed. When Basel's crowds
 Dismiss their teacher, I shall be content
 That he depart.

Par. This favor at their hands
 I look for earlier than your view of things
 Would warrant. Of the crowd you saw to-day,
 Remove the full half sheer amazement draws,
 Mere novelty, nought else ; and next, the tribe
 Whose innate blockish dulness just perceives
 That unless miracles (as seem my works)
 Be wrought in their behalf, their chance is slight
 To puzzle the devil ; next, the numerous set
 Who bitterly hate established schools, and help
 The teacher that oppugns them, till he once
 Have planted his own doctrine, when the teacher
 May reckon on their rancor in his turn ;
 Take, too, the sprinkling of sagacious knaves
 Whose cunning runs not counter to the vogue,
 But seeks, by flattery and crafty nursing,
 To force my system to a premature
 Short-lived development. Why swell the list ?
 Each has his end to serve, and his best way
 Of serving it : remove all these, remains
 A scantling, a poor dozen at the best,
 Worthy to look for sympathy and service,
 And likely to draw profit from my pains.

Fest. 'T is no encouraging picture : still these few Redeem their fellows. Once the germ implanted,
 Its growth, if slow, is sure.

Par. God grant it so !
 I would make some amends : but if I fail,
 The luckless rogues have this excuse to urge,

That much is in my method and my manner,
 My uncouth habits, my impatient spirit,
 Which hinders of reception and result
 My doctrine : much to say, small skill to speak !
 These old aims suffered not a looking-off
 Though for an instant ; therefore, only when
 I thus renounced them and resolved to reap
 Some present fruit — to teach mankind some truth
 So dearly purchased — only then I found
 Such teaching was an art requiring cares
 And qualities peculiar to itself :
 That to possess was one thing — to display
 Another. With renown first in my thoughts,
 Or popular praise, I had soon discovered it :
 One grows but little apt to learn these things.

Fest. If it be so, which nowise I believe,
 There needs no waiting fuller dispensation
 To leave a labor of so little use.

Why not throw up the irksome charge at once ?

Par. A task, a task !

But wherefore hide the whole
 Extent of degradation, once engaged
 In the confessing vein ? Despite of all
 My fine talk of obedience and repugnance,
 Docility and what not, 't is yet to learn
 If when the task shall really be performed,
 My inclination free to choose once more,
 I shall do aught but slightly modify
 The nature of the hated task I quit.
 In plain words, I am spoiled ; my life still tends
 As first it tended ; I am broken and trained
 To my old habits : they are part of me.
 I know, and none so well, my darling ends
 Are proved impossible : no less, no less,
 Even now what humors me, fond fool, as when
 Their faint ghosts sit with me and flatter me
 And send me back content to my dull round ?
 How can I change this soul ? — this apparatus
 Constructed solely for their purposes,
 So well adapted to their every want,
 To search out and discover, prove and perfect :
 This intricate machine whose most minute
 And meanest motions have their charm to me
 Though to none else — an aptitude I seize,
 An object I perceive, a use, a meaning,
 A property, a fitness, I explain

And I alone : — how can I change my soul ?
 And this wronged body, worthless save when tasked
 Under that soul's dominion — used to care
 For its bright master's cares and quite subdued
 Its proper cravings — not to ail nor pine
 So he but prosper — whither drag this poor
 Tried patient body ? God ! how I essayed
 To live like that mad poet, for a while,
 To love alone ; and how I felt too warped
 And twisted and deformed ! What should I do,
 Even though released from drudgery, but return
 Faint, as you see, and halting, blind and sore,
 To my old life and die as I began ?
 I cannot feed on beauty for the sake
 Of beauty only, nor can drink in balm
 From lovely objects for their loveliness ;
 My nature cannot lose her first imprint ;
 I still must hoard and heap and class all truths
 With one ulterior purpose : I must know !
 Would God translate me to his throne, believe
 That I should only listen to his word
 To further my own aim ! For other men,
 Beauty is prodigally strewn around,
 And I were happy could I quench as they
 This mad and thriveless longing, and content me
 With beauty for itself alone : alas,
 I have addressed a frock of heavy mail
 Yet may not join the troop of sacred knights ;
 And now the forest-creatures fly from me,
 The grass-banks cool, the sunbeams warm no more.
 Best follow, dreaming that ere night arrive,
 I shall o'ertake the company and ride
 Glittering as they !

Fest. I think I apprehend
 What you would say : if you, in truth, design
 To enter once more on the life thus left,
 Seek not to hide that all this consciousness
 Of failure is assumed !

Par. My friend, my friend,
 I toil, you listen ; I explain, perhaps
 You understand : there our communion ends.
 Have you learnt nothing from to-day's discourse ?
 When we would thoroughly know the sick man's state
 We feel awhile the fluttering pulse, press soft
 The hot brow, look upon the languid eye,
 And thence divine the rest. Must I lay bare

My heart, hideous and beating, or tear up
 My vitals for your gaze, ere you will deem Enough made known? You! who are you, forsooth?
 That is the crowning operation claimed
 By the arch-demonstrator — heaven the hall,
 And earth the audience. Let Aprile and you
 Secure good places: 't will be worth the while.

Fest. Are you mad, Aureole? What can I have said
 To call for this? I judged from your own words.

Par. Oh, doubtless! A sick wretch describes the ape
 That mocks him from the bed-foot, and all gravely
 You thither turn at once: or he recounts
 The perilous journey he has late performed,
 And you are puzzled much how that could be!
 You find me here, half stupid and half mad;
 It makes no part of my delight to search
 Into these matters, much less undergo
 Another's scrutiny; but so it chances
 That I am led to trust my state to you:
 And the event is, you combine, contrast
 And ponder on my foolish words as though
 They thoroughly conveyed all hidden here —
 Here, loathsome with despair and hate and rage!
 Is there no fear, no shrinking and no shame?
 Will you guess nothing? will you spare me nothing?
 Must I go deeper? Ay or no?

Fest. Dear friend . . .

Par. True: I am brutal — 't is a part of it;
 The plague's sign — you are not a lazar-haunter,
 How should you know? Well then, you think it strange
 I should profess to have failed utterly,
 And yet propose an ultimate return
 To courses void of hope: and this, because
 You know not what temptation is, nor how
 'T is like to ply men in the sickliest part.
 You are to understand that we who make
 Sport for the gods, are hunted to the end:
 There is not one sharp volley shot at us,
 Which 'scaped with life, though hurt, we slacken pace
 And gather by the wayside herbs and roots
 To stanch our wounds, secure from further harm:
 We are assailed to life's extremest verge.
 It will be well indeed if I return,
 A harmless busy fool, to my old ways!
 I would forget hints of another fate,
 Significant enough, which silent hours
 Have lately scared me with.

Fest. Another! and what?

Par. After all, Festus, you say well: I am
A man yet: I need never humble me.
I would have been — something, I know not what;
But though I cannot soar, I do not crawl.
There are worse portions than this one of mine.
You say well!

Fest. Ah!

Par. And deeper degradation!
If the mean stimulants of vulgar praise,
If vanity should become the chosen food
Of a sunk mind, should stifle even the wish
To find its early aspirations true,
Should teach it to breathe falsehood like life-breath —
An atmosphere of craft and trick and lies;
Should make it proud to emulate, surpass
Base natures in the practices which woke
Its most indignant loathing once . . . No, no!
Utter damnation is reserved for hell!
I had immortal feelings; such shall never
Be wholly quenched: no, no!

My friend, you wear
A melancholy face, and certain 't is
There's little cheer in all this dismal work.
But was it my desire to set abroad
Such memories and forebodings? I foresaw
Where they would drive. 'T were better we discuss
News from Lucerne or Zurich; ask and tell
Of Egypt's flaring sky or Spain's cork-groves.

Fest. I have thought: trust me, this mood will pass away!

I know you and the lofty spirit you bear,
And easily ravel out a clue to all.
These are the trials meet for such as you,
Nor must you hope exemption: to be mortal
Is to be plied with trials manifold.
Look round! The obstacles which kept the rest
From your ambition, have been spurned by you;
Their fears, their doubts, the chains that bind them all,
Were flax before your resolute soul, which nought
Avails to awe save these delusions bred
From its own strength, its selfsame strength disguised,
Mocking itself. Be brave, dear Aureole! Since
The rabbit has his shade to frighten him,
The fawn a rustling bough, mortals their cares,
And higher natures yet would slight and laugh

At these entangling fantasies, as you
 At trammels of a weaker intellect, —
 Measure your mind's height by the shade it casts !
 I know you.

Par. And I know you, dearest Festus !
 And how you love unworthily ; and how
 All admiration renders blind.

Fest. You hold
 That admiration blinds ?

Par. Ay and alas !

Fest. Nought blinds you less than admiration, friend !
 Whether it be that all love renders wise
 In its degree ; from love which blends with love —
 Heart answering heart — to love which spends itself
 In silent mad idolatry of some
 Pre-eminent mortal, some great soul of souls,
 Which ne'er will know how well it is adored.
 I say, such love is never blind ; but rather
 Alive to every the minutest spot
 Which mars its object, and which hate (supposed
 So vigilant and searching) dreams not of.
 Love broods on such : what then ? When first perceived
 Is there no sweet strife to forget, to change,
 To overflush those blemishes with all
 The glow of general goodness they disturb ?
 — To make those very defects an endless source
 Of new affection grown from hopes and fears ?
 And, when all fails, is there no gallant stand
 Made even for much proved weak ? no shrinking-back
 Lest, since all love assimilates the soul
 To what it loves, it should at length become Almost a rival of its idol ? Trust me,
 If there be fiends who seek to work our hurt,
 To ruin and drag down earth's mightiest spirits
 Even at God's foot, 't will be from such as love,
 Their zeal will gather most to serve their cause ;
 And least from those who hate, who most essay
 By contumely and scorn to blot the light
 Which forces entrance even to their hearts :
 For thence will our defender tear the veil
 And show within each heart, as in a shrine,
 The giant image of perfection, grown
 In hate's despite, whose calumnies were spawned
 In the untroubled presence of its eyes.
 True admiration blinds not ; nor am I
 So blind. I call your sin exceptional ;

It springs from one whose life has passed the bounds
 Prescribed to life. Compound that fault with God!
 I speak of men; to common men like me
 The weakness you reveal endears you more,
 Like the far traces of decay in suns.
 I bid you have good cheer!

Par. Præclare! Optime!

Think of a quiet mountain-cloistered priest
 Instructing Paracelsus! yet 't is so.
 Come, I will show you where my merit lies.
 'T is in the advance of individual minds
 That the slow crowd should ground their expectation
 Eventually to follow; as the sea
 Waits ages in its bed till some one wave
 Out of the multitudinous mass, extends
 The empire of the whole, some feet perhaps,
 Over the strip of sand which could confine
 Its fellows so long time: thenceforth the rest,
 Even to the meanest, hurry in at once,
 And so much is clear gained. I shall be glad
 If all my labors, failing of aught else,
 Suffice to make such inroad and procure
 A wider range for thought: nay, they do this;
 For, whatsoever my notions of true knowledge
 And a legitimate success, may be,
 I am not blind to my undoubted rank
 When classed with others: I precede my age:
 And whose wills is very free to mount
 These labors as a platform whence his own
 May have a prosperous outset. But, alas!
 My followers — they are noisy as you heard;
 But, for intelligence, the best of them
 So clumsily wield the weapons I supply
 And they extol, that I begin to doubt
 Whether their own rude clubs and pebble-stones
 Would not do better service than my arms
 Thus vilely swayed — if error will not fall
 Sooner before the old awkward batterings
 Than my more subtle warfare, not half learned.

Fest. I would supply that art, then, or withhold
 New arms until you teach their mystery.

Par. Content you, 't is my wish; I have recourse
 To the simplest training. Day by day I seek
 To wake the mood, the spirit which alone
 Can make those arms of any use to men.
 Of course they are for swaggering forth at once

Graced with Ulysses' bow, Achilles' shield —
Flash on us, all in armor, thou Achilles!
Make our hearts dance to thy resounding step!
A proper sight to scare the crows away!

Fest. Pity you choose not then some other method
Of coming at your point. The marvellous art
At length established in the world bids fair
To remedy all hindrances like these:
Trust to Frobenius' press the precious lore
Obscured by uncouth manner, or unfit
For raw beginners; let his types secure
A deathless monument to after-time;
Meanwhile wait confidently and enjoy
The ultimate effect: sooner or later
You shall be all-revealed.

Par. The old dull question
In a new form; no more. Thus: I possess
Two sorts of knowledge; one, — vast, shadowy,
Hints of the unbounded aim I once pursued:
The other consists of many secrets, caught
While bent on nobler prize, — perhaps a few
Prime principles which may conduct to much:
These last I offer to my followers here.
Now, bid me chronicle the first of these,
My ancient study, and in effect you bid
Revert to the wild courses just abjured:
I must go find them scattered through the world.
Then, for the principles, they are so simple
(Being chiefly of the overturning sort),
That one time is as proper to propound them
As any other — to-morrow at my class,
Or half a century hence embalmed in print.
For if mankind intend to learn at all,
They must begin by giving faith to them
And acting on them: and I do not see
But that my lectures serve indifferent well:
No doubt these dogmas fall not to the earth,
For all their novelty and rugged setting.
I think my class will not forget the day
I let them know the gods of Israel,
Aëtius, Oribasius, Galen, Rhasis,
Serapion, Avicenna, Averrões,
Were blocks!

Fest. And that reminds me, I heard something
About your waywardness: you burned their books,
It seems, instead of answering those sages.

Par. And who said that?

Fest. Some I met yesternight
With Ecolampadius. As you know, the purpose
Of this short stay at Basel was to learn
His pleasure touching certain missives sent
For our Zuinglius and himself. 'T was he
Apprised me that the famous teacher here
Was my old friend.

Par. Ah, I forgot: you went . . .

Fest. From Zurich with advices for the ear
Of Luther, now at Wittenberg — (you know,
I make no doubt, the differences of late
With Carolostadius) — and returning sought
Basel and . . .

Par. I remember. Here's a case, now,
Will teach you why I answer not, but burn
The books you mention. Pray, does Luther dream
His arguments convince by their own force
The crowds that own his doctrine? No, indeed!
His plain denial of established points
Ages had sanctified and men supposed
Could never be oppugned while earth was under
And heaven above them — points which chance or time
Affected not — did more than the array
Of argument which followed. Boldly deny!
There is much breath-stopping, hair-stiffening
Awhile; then, amazed glances, mute awaiting
The thunderbolt which does not come; and next,
Reproachful wonder and inquiry: those
Who else had never stirred, are able now
To find the rest out for themselves, perhaps
To outstrip him who set the whole at work,
— As never will my wise class its instructor.
And you saw Luther?

Fest. 'T is a wondrous soul!

Par. True: the so-heavy chain which galled mankind
Is shattered, and the noblest of us all
Must bow to the deliverer — nay, the worker
Of our own project — we who long before
Had burst our trammels, but forgot the crowd,
We should have taught, still groaned beneath the load:
This he has done and nobly. Speed that may!
Whatever be my chance or my mischance,
What benefits mankind must glad me too;
And men seem made, though not as I believed,
For something better than the times produce.

Witness these gangs of peasants your new lights
 From Suabia have possessed, whom Münzer leads,
 And whom the duke, the landgrave and the elector
 Will calm in blood! Well, well; 't is not my world!

Fest. Hark!

Par. 'T is the melancholy wind astir
 Within the trees; the embers too are gray:
 Morn must be near.

Fest. Best ope the casement: see,
 The night, late strewn with clouds and flying stars,
 Is blank and motionless: how peaceful sleep
 The tree-tops altogether! Like an asp,
 The wind slips whispering from bough to bough.

Par. Ay; you would gaze on a wind-shaken tree
 By the hour, nor count time lost.

Fest. So you shall gaze:
 Those happy times will come again.

Par. Gone, gone,
 Those pleasant times! Does not the moaning wind
 Seem to bewail that we have gained such gains
 And bartered sleep for them?

Fest. It is our trust
 That there is yet another world to mend
 All error and mischance.

Par. Another world!
 And why this world, this common world, to be
 A make-shift, a mere foil, how fair soever,
 To some fine life to come? Man must be fed
 With angels' food, forsooth; and some few traces
 Of a diviner nature which look out
 Through his corporeal baseness, warrant him
 In a supreme contempt of all provision
 For his inferior tastes — some straggling marks
 Which constitute his essence, just as truly
 As here and there a gem would constitute
 The rock, their barren bed, one diamond.
 But were it so — were man all mind — he gains
 A station little enviable. From God
 Down to the lowest spirit ministrant,
 Intelligence exists which casts our mind
 Into immeasurable shade. No, no:
 Love, hope, fear, faith — these make humanity;
 These are its sign and note and character,
 And these I have lost! — gone, shut from me forever,
 Like a dead friend safe from unkindness more!
 See, morn at length. The heavy darkness seems

Diluted, gray and clear without the stars ;
 The shrubs bestir and rouse themselves, as if
 Some snake, that weighed them down all night, let go
 His hold ; and from the East, fuller and fuller
 Day, like a mighty river, flowing in ;
 But clouded, wintry, desolate and cold.
 Yet see how that broad prickly star-shaped plant,
 Half-down in the crevice, spreads its woolly leaves
 All thick and glistening with diamond dew.
 And you depart for Einsiedeln this day,
 And we have spent all night in talk like this !
 If you would have me better for your love,
 Revert no more to these sad themes.

Fest.

One favor,

And I have done. I leave you, deeply moved ;
 Unwilling to have fared so well, the while
 My friend has changed so sorely. If this mood
 Shall pass away, if light once more arise
 Where all is darkness now, if you see fit
 To hope and trust again, and strive again,
 You will remember — not our love alone —
 But that my faith in God's desire that man
 Should trust on his support, (as I must think
 You trusted) is obscured and dim through you :
 For you are thus, and this is no reward.
 Will you not call me to your side, dear Aureole ?

IV. PARACELSUS ASPIRES.

SCENE, Colmar in Alsatia ; an Inn. 1528.

PARACELSUS, FESTUS.

Par. (to JOHANNES OPORINUS, his secretary). *Sic itur
 ad astra !* Dear Von Visenburg
 Is scandalized, and poor Torinus paralyzed,
 And every honest soul that Basel holds
 Aghast ; and yet we live, as one may say,
 Just as though Liechtenfels had never set
 So true a value on his sorry carcass,
 And learned Pütter had not frowned us dumb.
 We live ; and shall as surely start to-morrow
 For Nuremberg, as we drink speedy scathe
 To Basel in this mantling wine, suffused

A delicate blush, no fainter tinge is born
 I' the shut heart of a bud. Pledge me, good John —
 "Basel; a hot plague ravage it, and Pütter Oppose the plague!" Even so? Do you too share
 Their panic, the reptiles? Ha, ha; faint through these,
 Desist for these! They manage matters so
 At Basel, 't is like: but others may find means
 To bring the stoutest braggart of the tribe
 Once more to crouch in silence — means to breed
 A stupid wonder in each fool again,
 Now big with admiration at the skill
 Which stript a vain pretender of his plumes:
 And, that done, — means to brand each slavish brow
 So deeply, surely, ineffaceably,
 That henceforth flattery shall not pucker it
 Out of the furrow; there that stamp shall stay
 To show the next they fawn on, what they are,
 This Basel with its magnates, — fill my cup, —
 Whom I curse soul and limb. And now dispatch,
 Dispatch, my trusty John; and what remains
 To do, whate'er arrangements for our trip
 Are yet to be completed, see you hasten
 This night; we'll weather the storm at least: to-morrow
 For Nuremberg! Now leave us; this grave clerk
 Has divers weighty matters for my ear:

[OPORINUS goes out.

And spare my lungs. At last, my gallant Festus,
 I am rid of this arch-knave that dogs my heels
 As a gaunt crow a gasping sheep; at last
 May give a loose to my delight. How kind,
 How very kind, my first best only friend!
 Why, this looks like fidelity. Embrace me!
 Not a hair silvered yet? Right! you shall live
 Till I am worth your love; you shall be proud,
 And I — but let time show! Did you not wonder?
 I sent to you because our compact weighed
 Upon my conscience — (you recall the night
 At Basel, which the gods confound!) — because
 Once more I aspire. I call you to my side:
 You come. You thought my message strange?

Fest.

So strange

That I must hope, indeed, your messenger
 Has mingled his own fancies with the words
 Purporting to be yours.

Par.

He said no more,
 'T is probable, than the precious folk I leave

Said fiftyfold more roughly. Well-a-day,
 'Tis true! poor Paracelsus is exposed
 At last; a most egregious quack he proves:
 And those he overreached must spit their hate
 On one who, utterly beneath contempt,
 Could yet deceive their topping wits. You heard
 Bare truth; and at my bidding you come here
 To speed me on my enterprise, as once
 Your lavish wishes sped me, my own friend!

Fest. What is your purpose, Aureole?

Par.

Oh, for purpose,

There is no lack of precedents in a case
 Like mine; at least, if not precisely mine,
 The case of men cast off by those they sought
 To benefit.

Fest. They really cast you off?

I only heard a vague tale of some priest,
 Cured by your skill, who wrangled at your claim,
 Knowing his life's worth best; and how the judge
 The matter was referred to, saw no cause
 To interfere, nor you to hide your full
 Contempt of him; nor he, again, to smother
 His wrath thereat, which raised so fierce a flame
 That Basel soon was made no place for you.

Par. The affair of Liechtenfels? the shallowest fable,
 The last and silliest outrage — mere pretence!
 I knew it, I foretold it from the first,
 How soon the stupid wonder you mistook
 For genuine loyalty — a cheering promise
 Of better things to come — would pall and pass;
 And every word comes true. Saul is among
 The prophets! Just so long as I was pleased
 To play off the mere antics of my art,
 Fantastic gambols leading to no end,
 I got huge praise: but one can ne'er keep down
 Our foolish nature's weakness. There they flocked,
 Poor devils, jostling, swearing and perspiring,
 Till the walls rang again; and all for me!
 I had a kindness for them, which was right;
 But then I stopped not till I tacked to that
 A trust in them and a respect — a sort
 Of sympathy for them; I must needs begin
 To teach them, not amaze them, "to impart
 The spirit which should instigate the search
 Of truth," just what you bade me! I spoke out.
 Forthwith a mighty squadron, in disgust,

Filed off — “the sifted chaff of the sack,” I said,
 Redoubling my endeavors to secure
 The rest. When lo! one man had tarried so long
 Only to ascertain if I supported
 This tenet of his, or that; another loved
 To hear impartially before he judged,
 And having heard, now judged; this bland disciple
 Passed for my dupe, but all along, it seems,
 Spied error where his neighbors marvelled most;
 That fiery doctor who had hailed me friend,
 Did it because my by-paths, once proved wrong
 And beaconed properly, would commend again
 The good old ways our sires jogged safely o’er,
 Though not their squeamish sons; the other worthy
 Discovered divers verses of St. John,
 Which, read successively, refreshed the soul,
 But, muttered backwards, cured the gout, the stone,
 The colic and what not. Quid multa? The end
 Was a clear class-room, and a quiet leer
 From grave folk, and a sour reproachful glance
 From those in chief who, cap in hand, installed
 The new professor scarce a year before;
 And a vast flourish about patient merit
 Obscured awhile by flashy tricks, but sure
 Sooner or later to emerge in splendor —
 Of which the example was some luckless wight
 Whom my arrival had discomfited,
 But now, it seems, the general voice recalled
 To fill my chair and so efface the stain
 Basel had long incurred. I sought no better,
 Only a quiet dismissal from my post,
 And from my heart I wished them better suited
 And better served. Good night to Basel, then!
 But fast as I proposed to rid the tribe
 Of my obnoxious back, I could not spare them
 The pleasure of a parting kick.

Fest.

You smile:

Despise them as they merit!

Par.

If I smile,

’Tis with as very contempt as ever turned
 Flesh into stone. This courteous recompense,
 This grateful . . . Festus, were your nature fit
 To be defiled, your eyes the eyes to ache
 At gangrene-blotches, eating poison-blains,
 The ulcerous barky scurf of leprosy
 Which finds — a man, and leaves — a hideous thing

That cannot but be mended by hell-fire,
 — I would lay bare to you the human heart
 Which God cursed long ago, and devils make since
 Their pet nest and their never-tiring home.
 Oh, sages have discovered we are born
 For various ends — to love, to know: has ever
 One stumbled, in his search, on any signs
 Of a nature in us formed to hate? To hate?
 If that be our true object which evokes
 Our powers in fullest strength, be sure 't is hate!
 Yet men have doubted if the best and bravest
 Of spirits can nourish him with hate alone.
 I had not the monopoly of fools,
 It seems, at Basel.

Fest. But your plans, your plans!

I have yet to learn your purpose, Aureole!

Par. Whether to sink beneath such ponderous shame,
 To shrink up like a crushed snail, undergo
 In silence and desist from further toil,
 And so subside into a monument
 Of one their censure blasted? or to bow
 Cheerfully as submissively, to lower
 My old pretensions even as Basel dictates,
 To drop into the rank her wits assign me
 And live as they prescribe, and make that use
 Of my poor knowledge which their rules allow,
 Proud to be patted now and then, and careful
 To practise the true posture for receiving
 The amplest benefit from their hoofs' appliance
 When they shall condescend to tutor me?
 Then, one may feel resentment like a flame
 Within, and deck false systems in truth's garb,
 And tangle and entwine mankind with error,
 And give them darkness for a dower and falsehood
 For a possession, ages: or one may mope
 Into a shade through thinking, or else drowse
 Into a dreamless sleep and so die off.
 But I, — now Festus shall divine! — but I
 Am merely setting out once more, embracing
 My earliest aims again! What thinks he now?

Fest. Your aims? the aims? — to Know? and where is found

The early trust . . .

Par. Nay, not so fast; I say,

The aims — not the old means. You know they made me
 A laughing-stock; I was a fool; you know

The when and the how : hardly those means again !
 Not but they had their beauty ; who should know
 Their passing beauty, if not I ? Still, dreams
 They were, so let them vanish, yet in beauty
 If that may be. Stay : thus they pass in song !

[He sings.]

Heap cassia, sandal-buds and stripes
 Of labdanum, and aloe-balls,
 Smear'd with dull nard an Indian wipes
 From out her hair : such balsam falls
 Down sea-side mountain pedestals,
 From tree-tops where tired winds are fain,
 Spent with the vast and howling main,
 To treasure half their island-gain.

And strew faint sweetness from some old
 Egyptian's fine worm-eaten shroud
 Which breaks to dust when once unrolled ;
 Or shredded perfume, like a cloud
 From closet long to quiet vowed,
 With moth'd and dropping arras hung,
 Mouldering her lute and books among,
 As when a queen, long dead, was young.

Mine, every word ! And on such pile shall die
 My lovely fancies, with fair perished things,
 Themselves fair and forgotten ; yes, forgotten,
 Or why abjure them ? So, I made this rhyme
 That fitting dignity might be preserved ;
 No little proud was I ; though the list of drugs
 Smacks of my old vocation, and the verse
 Halts like the best of Luther's psalms.

Fest.

But, Aureole,

Talk not thus wildly and madly. I am here —
 Did you know all ! I have travelled far, indeed,
 To learn your wishes. Be yourself again !
 For in this mood I recognize you less
 Than in the horrible despondency
 I witnessed last. You may account this, joy ;
 But rather let me gaze on that despair
 Than hear these incoherent words and see
 This flushed cheek and intensely-sparkling eye.

Par. Why, man, I was light-hearted in my prime,
 I am light-hearted now ; what would you have ?
 Aprile was a poet, I make songs —

"T is the very augury of success I want !
Why should I not be joyous now as then ?

Fest. Joyous ! and how ? and what remains for joy ?
You have declared the ends (which I am sick
Of naming) are impracticable.

Par. Ay,
Pursued as I pursued them — the arch-fool !
Listen : my plan will please you not, 't is like,
But you are little versed in the world's ways.
This is my plan — (first drinking its good luck) —
I will accept all helps ; all I despised
So rashly at the outset, equally
With early impulses, late years have quenched :
I have tried each way singly : now for both !
All helps ! no one sort shall exclude the rest.
I seek to know and to enjoy at once,
Not one without the other as before.
Suppose my labor should seem God's own cause
Once more, as first I dreamed, — it shall not balk me
Of the meanest earthliest sensualest delight
That may be snatched ; for every joy is gain,
And gain is gain, however small. My soul
Can die then, nor be taunted — " what was gained ?"
Nor, on the other hand, should pleasure follow
As though I had not spurned her hitherto,
Shall she o'ereloud my spirit's rapt communion
With the tumultuous past, the teeming future,
Glorious with visions of a full success.

Fest. Success !

Par. And wherefore not ? Why not prefer
Results obtained in my best state of being,
To those derived alone from seasons dark
As the thoughts they bred ? When I was best, my youth
Unwasted, seemed success not surest too ?
It is the nature of darkness to obscure.
I am a wanderer : I remember well
One journey, how I feared the track was missed,
So long the city I desired to reach
Lay hid ; when suddenly its spires afar
Flashed through the circling clouds ; you may conceive
My transport. Soon the vapors closed again,
But I had seen the city, and one such glance
No darkness could obscure : nor shall the present —
A few dull hours, a passing shame or two,
Destroy the vivid memories of the past.
I will fight the battle out ; a little spent

Perhaps, but still an able combatant.
 You look at my gray hair and furrowed brow?
 But I can turn even weakness to account:
 Of many tricks I know, 't is not the least
 To push the ruins of my frame, whereon
 The fire of vigor trembles scarce alive,
 Into a heap, and send the flame aloft.
 What should I do with age? So, sickness lends
 An aid; it being, I fear, the source of all
 We boast of: mind is nothing but disease,
 And natural health is ignorance.

Fest.

I see

But one good symptom in this notable scheme.
 I feared your sudden journey had in view
 To wreak immediate vengeance on your foes.
 'T is not so: I am glad.

Par.

And if I please

To spit on them, to trample them, what then?
 'T is sorry warfare truly, but the fools
 Provoke it. I would spare their self-conceit
 But if they must provoke me, cannot suffer
 Forbearance on my part, if I may keep
 No quality in the shade, must needs put forth
 Power to match power, my strength against their strength,
 And teach them their own game with their own arms —
 Why, be it so and let them take their chance!
 I am above them like a god, there's no
 Hiding the fact: what idle scruples, then,
 Were those that ever bade me soften it,
 Communicate it gently to the world,
 Instead of proving my supremacy,
 Taking my natural station o'er their head,
 Then owning all the glory was a man's!
 — And in my elevation man's would be.
 But live and learn, though life's short, learning hard!
 And therefore, though the wreck of my past self,
 I fear, dear Pütter, that your lecture-room
 Must wait awhile for its best ornament,
 The penitent empiric, who set up
 For somebody, but soon was taught his place;
 Now, but too happy to be let confess
 His error, snuff the candles, and illustrate (Fiat experientia corpore vili)
 Your medicine's soundness in his person. Wait,
 Good Pütter!

Fest.

He who sneers thus, is a god!

Par. Ay, ay, laugh at me! I am very glad
 You are not gulled by all this swaggering; you
 Can see the root of the matter! — how I strive
 To put a good face on the overthrow
 I have experienced, and to bury and hide
 My degradation in its length and breadth;
 How the mean motives I would make you think
 Just mingle as is due with nobler aims,
 The appetites I modestly allow
 May influence me as being mortal still —
 Do goad me, drive me on, and fast supplant
 My youth's desires. You are no stupid dupe:
 You find me out! Yes, I had sent for you
 To palm these childish lies upon you, Festus!
 Laugh — you shall laugh at me!

Fest. The past, then, Aureole
 Proves nothing? Is our interchange of love
 Yet to begin? Have I to swear I mean
 No flattery in this speech or that? For you,
 Whate'er you say, there is no degradation;
 These low thoughts are no inmates of your mind,
 Or wherefore this disorder? You are vexed
 As much by the intrusion of base views,
 Familiar to your adversaries, as they
 Were troubled should your qualities alight
 Amid their murky souls; not otherwise,
 A stray wolf which the winter forces down
 From our bleak hills, suffices to affright
 A village in the vales — while foresters
 Sleep calm, though all night long the famished troop
 Snuff round and scratch against their crazy huts.
 These evil thoughts are monsters, and will flee.

Par. May you be happy, Festus, my own friend!

Fest. Nay, further; the delights you fain would think
 The superseders of your nobler aims,
 Though ordinary and harmless stimulants,
 Will ne'er content you. . . .

Par. Hush! I once despised them.
 But that soon passes. We are high at first
 In our demand, nor will abate a jot
 Of toil's strict value; but time passes o'er,
 And humbler spirits accept what we refuse:
 In short, when some such comfort is doled out
 As these delights, we cannot long retain
 Bitter contempt which urges us at first
 To hurl it back, but hug it to our breast.

And thankfully retire. This life of mine
 Must be lived out and a grave thoroughly earned :
 I am just fit for that and nought beside.
 I told you once, I cannot now enjoy,
 Unless I deem my knowledge gains through joy ;
 Nor can I know, but straight warm tears reveal
 My need of linking also joy to knowledge :
 So, on I drive, enjoying all I can,
 And knowing all I can. I speak, of course,
 Confusedly ; this will better explain — feel here !
 Quick beating, is it not ? — a fire of the heart
 To work off some way, this as well as any.
 So, Festus sees me fairly launched ; his calm
 Compassionate look might have disturbed me once,
 But now, far from rejecting, I invite
 What bids me press the closer, lay myself
 Open before him, and be soothed with pity ;
 I hope, if he command hope, and believe
 As he directs me — satiating myself
 With his enduring love. And Festus quits me
 To give place to some credulous disciple
 Who holds that God is wise, but Paracelsus
 Has his peculiar merits : I suck in
 That homage, chuckle o'er that admiration,
 And then dismiss the fool ; for night is come,
 And I betake myself to study again,
 Till patient searchings after hidden lore
 Half wring some bright truth from its prison ; my frame
 Trembles, my forehead's veins swell out, my hair
 Tingles for triumph. Slow and sure the morn
 Shall break on my pent room and dwindling lamp
 And furnace dead, and scattered earths and ores ;
 When, with a failing heart and throbbing brow,
 I must review my captured truth, sum up
 Its value, trace what ends to what begins,
 Its present power with its eventual bearings,
 Latent affinities, the views it opens,
 And its full length in perfecting my scheme.
 I view it sternly circumscribed, cast down
 From the high place my fond hopes yielded it,
 Proved worthless — which, in getting, yet had cost
 Another wrench to this fast-falling frame.
 Then, quick, the cup to quaff, that chases sorrow !
 I lapse back into youth, and take again
 My fluttering pulse for evidence that God
 Means good to me, will make my cause his own.

See! I have cast off this remorseless care
 Which clogged a spirit born to soar so free,
 And my dim chamber has become a tent,
 Festus is sitting by me, and his Michal . . .
 Why do you start? I say, she listening here,
 (For yonder — Würzburg through the orchard-bough!)
 Motions as though such ardent words should find
 No echo in a maiden's quiet soul,
 But her pure bosom heaves, her eyes fill fast
 With tears, her sweet lips tremble all the while!
 Ha, ha!

Fest. It seems, then, you expect to reap
 No unreal joy from this your present course,
 But rather . . .

Par. Death! To die! I owe that much
 To what, at least, I was. I should be sad
 To live contented after such a fall,
 To thrive and fatten after such reverse!
 The whole plan is a makeshift, but will last
 My time.

Fest. And you have never mused and said,
 "I had a noble purpose, and the strength
 To compass it; but I have stopped half-way.
 And wrongly given the first-fruits of my toil
 To objects little worthy of the gift.
 Why linger round them still? why clench my fault?
 Why seek for consolation in defeat,
 In vain endeavors to derive a beauty
 From ugliness? why seek to make the most
 Of what no power can change, nor strive instead
 With mighty effort to redeem the past
 And, gathering up the treasures thus cast down,
 To hold a steadfast course till I arrive
 At their fit destination and my own?"
 You have never pondered thus?

Par. Have I, you ask?
 Often at midnight, when most fancies come,
 Would some such airy project visit me:
 But ever at the end . . . or will you hear
 The same thing in a tale, a parable?
 You and I, wandering over the world wide,
 Chance to set foot upon a desert coast.
 Just as we cry, "No human voice before Broke the inveterate silence of these rocks!"
 — Their querulous echo startles us; we turn:
 What ravaged structure still looks o'er the sea?

Some characters remain, too! While we read,
 The sharp salt wind, impatient for the last
 Of even this record, wistfully comes and goes,
 Or sings what we recover, mocking it.
 This is the record; and my voice, the wind's.

[He sings.]

Over the sea our galleys went,
 With cleaving prows in order brave
 To a speeding wind and a bounding wave,
 A gallant armament :
 Each bark built out of a forest-tree
 Left leafy and rough as first it grew,
 And nailed all over the gaping sides,
 Within and without, with black bull-hides,
 Seethed in fat and suppled in flame,
 To bear the playful billows' game :
 So, each good ship was rude to see,
 Rude and bare to the outward view,
 But each upbore a stately tent
 Where cedar pales in scented row
 Kept out the flakes of the dancing brine,
 And an awning drooped the mast below,
 In fold on fold of the purple fine,
 That neither noontide nor starshine
 Nor moonlight cold which maketh mad,
 Might pierce the regal tenement.
 When the sun dawned, oh, gay and glad
 We set the sail and plied the oar ;
 But when the night-wind blew like breath,
 For joy of one day's voyage more,
 We sang together on the wide sea,
 Like men at peace on a peaceful shore ;
 Each sail was loosed to the wind so free,
 Each helm made sure by the twilight star,
 And in a sleep as calm as death,
 We, the voyagers from afar,
 Lay stretched along, each weary crew
 In a circle round its wondrous tent
 Whence gleamed soft light and curled rich scent,
 And with light and perfume, music too :
 So the stars wheeled round, and the darkness past,
 And at morn we started beside the mast,
 And still each ship was sailing fast.

Now, one morn, land appeared — a speck
 Dim trembling betwixt sea and sky :

“ Avoid it,” cried our pilot, “ check
 The shout, restrain the eager eye ! ”
 But the heaving sea was black behind
 For many a night and many a day,
 And land, though but a rock, drew nigh ;
 So, we broke the cedar pales away,
 Let the purple awning flap in the wind,
 And a statue bright was on every deck !
 We shouted, every man of us,
 And steered right into the harbor thus,
 With pomp and pæan glorious.

A hundred shapes of lucid stone !
 All day we built its shrine for each,
 A shrine of rock for every one,
 Nor paused till in the westering sun
 We sat together on the beach
 To sing because our task was done.
 When lo ! what shouts and merry songs !
 What laughter all the distance stirs !
 A loaded raft with happy throngs
 Of gentle islanders !

“ Our isles are just at hand,” they cried,
 “ Like cloudlets faint in even sleeping.
 Our temple-gates are opened wide,
 Our olive-groves thick shade are keeping
 For these majestic forms ” — they cried.
 Oh, then we awoke with sudden start
 From our deep dream, and knew, too late,
 How bare the rock, how desolate,
 Which had received our precious freight :
 Yet we called out — “ Depart !
 Our gifts, once given, must here abide.
 Our work is done ; we have no heart
 To mar our work,” — we cried.

Fest. In truth ?

Par. Nay, wait : all this in tracings faint

On rugged stones strewn here and there, but piled
 In order once : then follows — mark what follows !

“ The sad rhyme of the men who proudly clung
 To their first fault, and withered in their pride.”

Fest. Come back then, Aureole ; as you fear God, come !
 This is foul sin ; come back ! Renounce the past,
 Forswear the future ; look for joy no more,
 But wait death’s summons amid holy sights,

And trust me for the event — peace, if not joy.
Return with me to Einsiedeln, dear Aureole!

Par. No way, no way! 't would not turn to good.
A spotless child sleeps on the flowering moss —
'T is well for him; but when a sinful man,
Envyng such slumber, may desire to put
His guilt away, shall he return at once
To rest by lying there? Our sires knew well
(Spite of the grave discoveries of their sons)
The fitting course for such: dark cells, dim lamps,
A stone floor one may writhe on like a worm:
No mossy pillow blue with violets!

Fest. I see no symptom of these absolute
And tyrannous passions. You are calmer now.
This verse-making can purge you well enough
Without the terrible penance you describe.
You love me still: the lusts you fear will never Outrage your friend. To Einsiedeln, once more!
Say but the word!

Par. No, no; those lusts forbid:
They crouch, I know, cowering with half-shut eye
Beside you; 't is their nature. Thrust yourself
Between them and their prey; let some fool style me
Or king or quack, it matters not — then try
Your wisdom, urge them to forego their treat!
No, no; learn better and look deeper, Festus!
If you knew how a devil sneers within me
While you are talking now of this, now that,
As though we differed scarcely save in trifles!

Fest. Do we so differ? True, change must proceed,
Whether for good or ill; keep from me, which!
Do not confide all secrets: I was born
To hope, and you . . .

Par. To trust: you know the fruits!

Fest. Listen: I do believe, what you call trust
Was self-delusion at the best: for, see!
So long as God would kindly pioneer
A path for you, and screen you from the world,
Procure you full exemption from man's lot,
Man's common hopes and fears, on the mere pretext
Of your engagement in his service — yield you
A limitless license, make you God, in fact,
And turn your slave — you were content to say
Most courtly praises! What is it, at last,
But selfishness without example? None
Could trace God's will so plain as you, while yours

Remained implied in it ; but now you fail,
 And we, who prate about that will, are fools !
 In short, God's service is established here
 As he determines fit, and not your way,
 And this you cannot brook. Such discontent
 Is weak. Renounce all creatureship at once !
 Affirm an absolute right to have and use
 Your energies ; as though the rivers should say —
 " We rush to the ocean ; what have we to do
 With feeding streamlets, lingering in the vales,
 Sleeping in lazy pools ? " Set up that plea,
 That will be bold at least !

Par. 'Tis like enough.

The serviceable spirits are those, no doubt,
 The East produces : lo, the master bids,—
 They wake, raise terraces and garden-grounds
 In one night's space ; and, this done, straight begin
 Another century's sleep, to the great praise
 Of him that framed them wise and beautiful,
 Till a lamp's rubbing, or some chance akin,
 Wake them again. I am of different mould.
 I would have soothed my lord, and slaved for him
 And done him service past my narrow bond,
 And thus I get rewarded for my pains !
 Beside, 't is vain to talk of forwarding
 God's glory otherwise ; this is alone
 The sphere of its increase, as far as men
 Increase it ; why, then, look beyond this sphere ?
 We are his glory ; and if we be glorious,
 Is not the thing achieved ?

Fest. Shall one like me

Judge hearts like yours ? Though years have changed you
 much,

And you have left your first love, and retain
 Its empty shade to veil your crooked ways,
 Yet I still hold that you have honored God.
 And who shall call your course without reward ?
 For, wherefore this repining at defeat
 Had triumph ne'er inured you to high hopes ?
 I urge you to forsake the life you curse,
 And what success attends me ? — simply talk
 Of passion, weakness and remorse ; in short,
 Anything but the naked truth — you choose
 This so-despised career, and cheaply hold
 My happiness, or rather other men's.
 Once more, return !

Par. And quickly. John the thief
 Has pilfered half my secrets by this time :
 And we depart by daybreak. I am weary,
 I know not how ; not even the wine-cup soothes
 My brain to-night . . .
 Do you not thoroughly despise me, Festus ?
 No flattery ! One like you needs not be told
 We live and breathe deceiving and deceived.
 Do you not scorn me from your heart of hearts,
 Me and my cant, each petty subterfuge,
 My rhymes and all this frothy shower of words,
 My glozing self-deceit, my outward crust
 Of lies which wrap, as tetter, morphew, furfair
 Wrap the sound flesh ? — so, see you flatter not !
 Even God flatters : but my friend, at least,
 Is true. I would depart, secure henceforth
 Against all further insult, hate and wrong
 From puny foes ; my one friend's scorn shall brand me :
 No fear of sinking deeper !

Fest. No, dear Aureole !
 No, no ; I came to counsel faithfully.
 There are old rules, made long ere we were born,
 By which I judge you. I, so fallible,
 So infinitely low beside your mighty
 Majestic spirit ! — even I can see
 You own some higher law than ours which call
 Sin, what is no sin — weakness, what is strength.
 But I have only these, such as they are,
 To guide me ; and I blame you where they bid,
 Only so long as blaming promises
 To win peace for your soul : the more, that sorrow
 Has fallen on me of late, and they have helped me
 So that I faint not under my distress.
 But wherefore should I scruple to avow
 In spite of all, as brother judging brother,
 Your fate is most inexplicable to me ?
 And should you perish without recompense
 And satisfaction yet — too hastily
 I have relied on love : you may have sinned,
 But you have loved. As a mere human matter —
 As I would have God deal with fragile men
 In the end — I say that you will triumph yet !

Par. Have you felt sorrow, Festus ? — 't is because
 You love me. Sorrow, and sweet Michal yours !
 Well thought on : never let her know this last
 Dull winding-up of all : these miscreants dared
 Insult me — me she loved : — so, grieve her not !

Fest. Your ill success can little grieve her now.

Par. Michal is dead ! pray Christ we do not craze !

Fest. Aureole, dear Aureole, look not on me thus !

Fool, fool ! this is the heart grown sorrow-proof —
I cannot bear those eyes.

Par. Nay, really dead ?

Fest. 'T is scarce a month.

Par. Stone dead ! — then you have laid her
Among the flowers ere this. Now, do you know,
I can reveal a secret which shall comfort
Even you. I have no julep, as men think,
To cheat the grave ; but a far better secret.
Know, then, you did not ill to trust your love
To the cold earth : I have thought much of it :
For I believe we do not wholly die.

Fest. Aureole !

Par. Nay, do not laugh ; there is a reason
For what I say : I think the soul can never Taste death. I am, just now, as you may see,
Very unfit to put so strange a thought
In an intelligible dress of words ;
But take it as my trust, she is not dead.

Fest. But not on this account alone ? you surely,
— Aureole, you have believed this all along ?

Par. And Michal sleeps among the roots and dews,
While I am moved at Basel, and full of schemes
For Nuremberg, and hoping and despairing,
As though it mattered how the farce plays out,
So it be quickly played. Away, away !
Have your will, rabble ! while we fight the prize,
Troop you in safety to the snug back-seats
And leave a clear arena for the brave
About to perish for your sport ! — Behold !

V. PARACELSUS ATTAINS.

SCENE, Salzburg ; a cell in the Hospital of St. Sebastian. 1541.

FESTUS, PARACELSUS.

Fest. No change ! The weary night is well-nigh spent,
The lamp burns low, and through the casement-bars
Gray morning glimmers feebly : yet no change !
Another night, and still no sigh has stirred
That fallen discolored mouth, no pang relit
Those fixed eyes, quenched by the decaying body,
Like torch-flame choked in dust. While all beside

Was breaking, to the last they held out bright,
 As a stronghold where life intrenched itself ;
 But they are dead now — very blind and dead :
 He will drowse into death without a groan.

My Aureole — my forgotten, ruined Aureole !
 The days are gone, are gone ! How grand thou wast !
 And now not one of those who struck thee down —
 Poor glorious spirit — concerns him even to stay
 And satisfy himself his little hand
 Could turn God's image to a livid thing.

Another night, and yet no change ! 'T is much
 That I should sit by him, and bathe his brow,
 And chafe his hands ; 't is much : but he will sure
 Know me, and look on me, and speak to me
 Once more — but only once ! His hollow cheek
 Looked all night long as though a creeping laugh
 At his own state were just about to break
 From the dying man : my brain swam, my throat swelled,
 And yet I could not turn away. In truth,
 They told me how, when first brought here, he seemed
 Resolved to live, to lose no faculty ;
 Thus striving to keep up his shattered strength,
 Until they bore him to this stifling cell :
 When straight his features fell, an hour made white
 The flushed face, and relaxed the quivering limb,
 Only the eye remained intense awhile
 As though it recognized the tomb-like place,
 And then he lay as here he lies.

Ay, here !

Here is earth's noblest, nobly garlanded —
 Her bravest champion with his well-won prize —
 Her best achievement, her sublime amends
 For countless generations fleeting fast
 And followed by no trace ; — the creature-god
 She instances when angels would dispute
 The title of her brood to rank with them.
 Angels, this is our angel ! Those bright forms
 We clothe with purple, crown and call to thrones,
 Are human, but not his ; those are but men
 Whom other men press round and kneel before ;
 Those palaces are dwelt in by mankind ;
 Higher provision is for him you seek
 Amid our pomps and glories : see it here !
 Behold earth's paragon ! Now, raise thee, clay !

God! Thou art love! I build my faith on that
 Even as I watch beside thy tortured child
 Unconscious whose hot tears fall fast by him,
 So doth thy right hand guide us through the world
 Wherein we stumble. God! what shall we say?
 How has he sinned? How else should he have done?
 Surely he sought thy praise — thy praise, for all
 He might be busied by the task so much
 As half forget awhile its proper end.
 Dost thou well, Lord? Thou canst not but prefer
 That I should range myself upon his side —
 How could he stop at every step to set
 Thy glory forth? Hadst thou but granted him
 Success, thy honor would have crowned success,
 A halo round a star. Or, say he erred, —
 Save him, dear God; it will be like thee: bathe him
 In light and life! Thou art not made like us;
 We should be wroth in such a case; but thou
 Forgivest — so, forgive these passionate thoughts
 Which come unsought and will not pass away!
 I know thee, who hast kept my path, and made
 Light for me in the darkness, tempering sorrow
 So that it reached me like a solemn joy;
 It were too strange that I should doubt thy love.
 But what am I? Thou madest him and knowest
 How he was fashioned. I could never err
 That way: the quiet place beside thy feet,
 Reserved for me, was ever in my thoughts:
 But he — thou shouldst have favored him as well!

Ah! he wakens! Aureole, I am here! 't is Festus!
 I cast away all wishes save one wish —
 Let him but know me, only speak to me!
 He mutters; louder and louder; any other
 Than I, with brain less laden, could collect
 What he pours forth. Dear Aureole, do but look!
 Is it talking or singing, this he utters fast?
 Misery that he should fix me with his eye,
 Quick talking to some other all the while!
 If he would husband this wild vehemence
 Which frustrates its intent! — I heard, I know
 I heard my name amid those rapid words.
 Oh, he will know me yet! Could I divert
 This current, lead it somehow gently back
 Into the channels of the past! — His eye
 Brighter than ever! It must recognize me!

I am Erasmus : I am here to pray
 That Paracelsus use his skill for me.
 The schools of Paris and of Padua send
 These questions for your learning to resolve.
 We are your students, noble master : leave
 This wretched cell, what business have you here ?
 Our class awaits you ; come to us once more !
 (O agony ! the utmost I can do Touches him not ; how else arrest his ear ?)
 I am commissioned . . . I shall craze like him.
 Better be mute and see what God shall send.

Par. Stay, stay with me !

Fest. I will ; I am come here
 To stay with you — Festus, you loved of old ;
 Festus, you know, you must know !

Par. Festus ! Where's
 Aprile, then ? Has he not chanted softly
 The melodies I heard all night ? I could not Get to him for a cold hand on my breast,
 But I made out his music well enough,
 O well enough ! If they have filled him full
 With magical music, as they freight a star
 With light, and have remitted all his sin,
 They will forgive me too, I too shall know !

Fest. Festus, your Festus !

Par. Ask him if Aprile
 Knows as he Loves — if I shall Love and Know ?
 I try ; but that cold hand, like lead — so cold !

Fest. My hand, see !

Par. Ah, the curse, Aprile, Aprile !
 We get so near — so very, very near !
 'Tis an old tale : Jove strikes the Titans down,
 Not when they set about their mountain-piling
 But when another rock would crown the work.
 And Phaeton — doubtless his first radiant plunge
 Astonished mortals, though the gods were calm,
 And Jove prepared his thunder : all old tales !

Fest. And what are these to you ?

Par. Ay, fiends must laugh
 So cruelly, so well ! most like I never
 Could tread a single pleasure underfoot,
 But they were grinning by my side, were chuckling
 To see me toil and drop away by flakes !
 Hell-spawn ! I am glad, most glad, that thus I fail !
 Your cunning has o'ershot its aim. One year,
 One month, perhaps, and I had served your turn !

You should have curbed your spite awhile. But now,
 Who will believe 't was you that held me back?
 Listen: there's shame and hissing and contempt,
 And none but laughs who names me, none but spits
 Measureless scorn upon me, me alone,
 The quack, the cheat, the liar, — all on me!
 And thus your famous plan to sink mankind
 In silence and despair, by teaching them
 One of their race had probed the inmost truth,
 Had done all man could do, yet failed no less —
 Your wise plan proves abortive. Men despair?
 Ha, ha! why, they are hooting the empiric,
 The ignorant and incapable fool who rushed
 Madly upon a work beyond his wits;
 Nor doubt they but the simplest of themselves
 Could bring the matter to triumphant issue.
 So, pick and choose among them all, accursed!
 Try now, persuade some other to slave for you,
 To ruin body and soul to work your ends!
 No, no; I am the first and last, I think.

Fest. Dear friend, who are accursed? who has done . . .

Par. What have I done? Fiends dare ask that? or you,
 Brave men? Oh, you can chime in boldly, backed
 By the others! What had you to do, sage peers?
 Here stand my rivals; Latin, Arab, Jew,
 Greek, join dead hands against me: all I ask
 Is, that the world enroll my name with theirs,
 And even this poor privilege, it seems,
 They range themselves, prepared to disallow.
 Only observe! why, fiends may learn from them!
 How they talk calmly of my throes, my fierce
 Aspirings, terrible watchings, each one claiming
 Its price of blood and brain; how they dissect
 And sneeringly disparage the few truths
 Got at a life's cost; they too hanging the while
 About my neck, their lies misleading me
 And their dead names browbeating me! Gray crew,
 Yet steeped in fresh malevolence from hell,
 Is there a reason for your hate? My truths
 Have shaken a little the palm about each prince?
 Just think, Aprile, all these leering dotards
 Were bent on nothing less than to be crowned
 As we! That yellow blear-eyed wretch in chief
 To whom the rest cringe low with feigned respect,
 Galen of Pergamos and hell — nay speak
 The tale, old man! We met there face to face:

I said the crown should fall from thee. Once more
 We meet as in that ghastly vestibule :
 Look to my brow ! Have I redeemed my pledge ?

Fest. Peace, peace ; ah, see !

Par.

Oh, emptiness of fame !

O Persic Zoroaster, lord of stars !

— Who said these old renowns, dead long ago,
 Could make me overlook the living world
 To gaze through gloom at where they stood, indeed,
 But stand no longer ? What a warm light life
 After the shade ! In truth, my delicate witch,
 My serpent-queen, you did but well to hide
 The juggles I had else detected. Fire
 May well run harmless o'er a breast like yours !
 The cave was not so darkened by the smoke
 But that your white limbs dazzled me : oh, white,
 And panting as they twinkled, wildly dancing !
 I cared not for your passionate gestures then,
 But now I have forgotten the charm of charms,
 The foolish knowledge which I came to seek,
 While I remember that quaint dance ; and thus
 I am come back, not for those mummeries,
 But to love you, and to kiss your little feet
 Soft as an ermine's winter coat !

Fest.

A light

Will struggle through these thronging words at last,
 As in the angry and tumultuous West
 A soft star trembles through the drifting clouds.
 These are the strivings of a spirit which hates
 So sad a vault should coop it, and calls up
 The past to stand between it and its fate.
 Were he at Einsiedeln — or Michal here !

Par. Cruel ! I seek her now — I kneel — I shriek —

I clasp her vesture — but she fades, still fades ;
 And she is gone ; sweet human love is gone !
 'Tis only when they spring to heaven that angels
 Reveal themselves to you ; they sit all day
 Beside you, and lie down at night by you
 Who care not for their presence, muse or sleep,
 And all at once they leave you, and you know them !
 We are so fooled, so cheated ! Why, even now
 I am not too secure against foul play ;
 The shadows deepen and the walls contract :
 No doubt some treachery is going on.
 'Tis very dusk. Where are we put, Aprile ?
 Have they left us in the lurch ? This murky loathsome

Death-trap, this slaughter-house, is not the hall
 In the golden city! Keep by me, Aprile!
 There is a hand groping amid the blackness
 To catch us. Have the spider-fingers got you,
 Poet? Hold on me for your life! If once
 They pull you! — Hold!

'T is but a dream — no more!

I have you still; the sun comes out again;
 Let us be happy: all will yet go well!
 Let us confer: is it not like, Aprile,
 That spite of trouble, this ordeal passed,
 The value of my labors ascertained,
 Just as some stream foams long among the rocks
 But after glideth glassy to the sea,
 So, full content shall henceforth be my lot?
 What think you, poet? Louder! Your clear voice
 Vibrates too like a harp-string. Do you ask
 How could I still remain on earth, should God
 Grant me the great approval which I seek?
 I, you, and God can comprehend each other,
 But men would murmur, and with cause enough;
 For when they saw me, stainless of all sin,
 Preserved and sanctified by inward light,
 They would complain that comfort, shut from them,
 I drank thus unespied; that they live on,
 Nor taste the quiet of a constant joy,
 For ache and care and doubt and weariness,
 While I am calm; help being vouchsafed to me,
 And hid from them. — 'T were best consider that!
 You reason well, Aprile; but at least
 Let me know this, and die! Is this too much?
 I will learn this, if God so please, and die!

If thou shalt please, dear God, if thou shalt please!
 We are so weak, we know our motives least
 In their confused beginning. If at first
 I sought . . . but wherefore bare my heart to thee?
 I know thy mercy; and already thoughts
 Flock fast about my soul to comfort it,
 And intimate I cannot wholly fail,
 For love and praise would clasp me willingly
 Could I resolve to seek them. Thou art good,
 And I should be content. Yet — yet first show
 I have done wrong in daring! Rather give
 The supernatural consciousness of strength
 Which fed my youth! Only one hour of that,
 With thee to help — O what should bar me then!

Lost, lost! Thus things are ordered here! God's creatures,
 And yet he takes no pride in us! — none, none!
 Truly there needs another life to come!
 If this be all — (I must tell Festus that)
 And other life await us not — for one,
 I say 't is a poor cheat, a stupid bungle,
 A wretched failure. I, for one, protest
 Against it, and I hurl it back with scorn.

Well, onward though alone! Small time remains,
 And much to do: I must have fruit, must reap
 Some profit from my toils. I doubt my body
 Will hardly serve me through; while I have labored
 It has decayed; and now that I demand
 Its best assistance, it will crumble fast:
 A sad thought, a sad fate! How very full
 Of wormwood 't is, that just at altar-service,
 The rapt hymn rising with the rolling smoke,
 When glory dawns and all is at the best,
 The sacred fire may flicker and grow faint
 And die for want of a wood-piler's help!
 Thus fades the flagging body, and the soul
 Is pulled down in the overthrow. Well, well —
 Let men catch every word, let them lose nought
 Of what I say; something may yet be done.

They are ruins! Trust me who am one of you!
 All ruins, glorious once, but lonely now.
 It makes my heart sick to behold you crouch
 Beside your desolate fane: the arches dim,
 The crumbling columns grand against the moon,
 Could I but rear them up once more — but that
 May never be, so leave them! Trust me, friends,
 Why should you linger here when I have built
 A far resplendent temple, all your own?
 Trust me, they are but ruins! See, Aprile,
 Men will not heed! Yet were I not prepared
 With better refuge for them, tongue of mine
 Should ne'er reveal how blank their dwelling is:
 I would sit down in silence with the rest.

Ha, what? you spit at me, you grin and shriek
 Contempt into my ear — my ear which drank
 God's accents once? you curse me? Why men, men,
 I am not formed for it! Those hideous eyes

Will be before me sleeping, waking, praying,
 They will not let me even die. Spare, spare me,
 Sinning or no, forget that, only spare me
 The horrible scorn! You thought I could support it:
 But now you see what silly fragile creature
 Cowers thus. I am not good nor bad enough,
 Not Christ nor Cain, yet even Cain was saved
 From Hate like this. Let me but totter back!
 Perhaps I shall elude those jeers which creep
 Into my very brain, and shut these scorched
 Eyelids and keep those mocking faces out.

Listen, Aprile! I am very calm:
 Be not deceived, there is no passion here
 Where the blood leaps like an imprisoned thing:
 I am calm: I will exterminate the race!
 Enough of that: 't is said and it shall be.
 And now be merry; safe and sound am I
 Who broke through their best ranks to get at you.
 And such a havoc, such a rout, Aprile!

Fest. Have you no thought, no memory for me,
 Aureole? I am so wretched — my pure Michal
 Is gone, and you alone are left me now,
 And even you forget me. Take my hand —
 Lean on me thus. Do you not know me, Aureole?

Par. Festus, my own friend, you are come at last?
 As you say, 't is an awful enterprise;
 But you believe I shall go through with it:
 'T is like you, and I thank you. Thank him for me,
 Dear Michal! See how bright St. Saviour's spire
 Flames in the sunset; all its figures quaint
 Gay in the glancing light: you might conceive them,
 A troop of yellow-vested white-haired Jews
 Bound for their own land where redemption dawns.

Fest. Not that blest time — not our youth's time, dear
 God!

Par. Ha — stay! true, I forget — all is done since,
 And he is come to judge me. How he speaks,
 How calm, how well! yes, it is true, all true;
 All quackery; all deceit; myself can laugh
 The first at it, if you desire: but still
 You know the obstacles which taught me tricks
 So foreign to my nature — envy and hate,
 Blind opposition, brutal prejudice,
 Bald ignorance — what wonder if I sunk
 To humor men the way they most approved?
 My cheats were never palmed on such as you,

Dear Festus! I will kneel if you require me,
 Impart the meagre knowledge I possess,
 Explain its bounded nature, and avow
 My insufficiency — whate'er you will:
 I give the fight up: let there be an end,
 A privacy, an obscure nook for me.
 I want to be forgotten even by God.
 But if that cannot be, dear Festus, lay me,
 When I shall die, within some narrow grave,
 Not by itself — for that would be too proud —
 But where such graves are thickest; let it look
 Nowise distinguished from the hillocks round,
 So that the peasant at his brother's bed
 May tread upon my own and know it not;
 And we shall all be equal at the last,
 Or classed according to life's natural ranks,
 Fathers, sons, brothers, friends — not rich, nor wise,
 Nor gifted: lay me thus, then say, "He lived
 Too much advanced before his brother men;
 They kept him still in front: 't was for their good
 But yet a dangerous station. It were strange
 That he should tell God he had never ranked
 With men: so, here at least he is a man."

Fest. That God shall take thee to his breast, dear spirit,
 Unto his breast, be sure! and here on earth
 Shall splendor sit upon thy name forever.
 Sun! all the heaven is glad for thee: what care
 If lower mountains light their snowy phares
 At thine effulgence, yet acknowledge not
 The source of day? Their theft shall be their bale:
 For after-ages shall retrack thy beams,
 And put aside the crowd of busy ones
 And worship thee alone — the master-mind,
 The thinker, the explorer, the creator!
 Then, who should sneer at the convulsive throes
 With which thy deeds were born, would scorn as well
 The sheet of winding subterranean fire
 Which, pent and writhing, sends no less at last
 Huge islands up amid the simmering sea.
 Behold thy might in me! thou hast infused
 Thy soul in mine; and I am grand as thou,
 Seeing I comprehend thee — I so simple,
 Thou so august. I recognize thee first;
 I saw thee rise, I watched thee early and late,
 And though no glance reveal thou dost accept
 My homage — thus no less I proffer it,
 And bid thee enter gloriously thy rest.

Par. Festus!

Fest. I am for noble Aureole, God!

I am upon his side, come weal or woe.

His portion shall be mine. He has done well.

I would have sinned, had I been strong enough,

As he has sinned. Reward him or I waive

Reward! If thou canst find no place for him,

He shall be king elsewhere, and I will be

His slave forever. There are two of us.

Par. Dear Festus!

Fest. Here, dear Aureole! ever by you!

Par. Nay, speak on, or I dream again. Speak on!
Some story, anything — only your voice.

I shall dream else. Speak on! ay, leaning so!

Fest. Thus the Mayne glideth

Where my Love abideth.

Sleep's no softer: it proceeds

On through lawns, on through meads,

On and on, whate'er befall,

Meandering and musical,

Though the niggard pasturage

Bears not on its shaven ledge

Aught but weeds and waving grasses

To view the river as it passes,

Save here and there a scanty patch

Of primroses too faint to catch

A weary bee.

Par. More, more; say on!

Fest. And scarce it pushes

Its gentle way through strangling rushes

Where the glossy kingfisher

Flutters when noon-heats are near,

Glad the shelving banks to shun,

Red and steaming in the sun,

Where the shrew-mouse with pale throat

Burrows, and the speckled stoat;

Where the quick sandpipers flit

In and out the marl and grit

That seems to breed them, brown as they:

Nought disturbs its quiet way,

Save some lazy stork that springs,

Trailing it with legs and wings,

Whom the shy fox from the hill

Rouses, creep he ne'er so still.

Par. My heart! they loose my heart, those simple words;
Its darkness passes, which nought else could touch:

Like some dark snake that force may not expel,
Which glideth out to music sweet and low.
What were you doing when your voice broke through
A chaos of ugly images? You, indeed!
Are you alone here?

Fest. All alone: you know me?
This cell?

Par. An unexceptionable vault:
Good brick and stone: the bats kept out, the rats
Kept in: a snug nook: how should I mistake it?

Fest. But wherefore am I here?

Par. Ah, well remembered!
Why, for a purpose — for a purpose, Festus!
'Tis like me: here I trifle while time fleets,
And this occasion, lost, will ne'er return.
You are here to be instructed. I will tell
God's message; but I have so much to say,
I fear to leave half out. All is confused
No doubt; but doubtless you will learn in time.
He would not else have brought you here: no doubt
I shall see clearer soon.

Fest. Tell me but this —
You are not in despair?

Par. I? and for what?

Fest. Alas, alas! he knows not, as I feared!

Par. What is it you would ask me with that earnest
Dear searching face?

Fest. How feel you, Aureole?

Par. Well:

Well. 'Tis a strange thing: I am dying, Festus,
And now that fast the storm of life subsides,
I first perceive how great the whirl has been.
I was calm then, who am so dizzy now —
Calm in the thick of the tempest, but no less
A partner of its motion and mixed up
With its career. The hurricane is spent,
And the good boat speeds through the brightening weather
But is it earth or sea that heaves below?
The gulf rolls like a meadow-swell, o'erstrewn
With ravaged boughs and remnants of the shore;
And now some islet, loosened from the land,
Swims past with all its trees, sailing to ocean;
And now the air is full of uptorn canes,
Light strippings from the fan-trees, tamarisks
Unrooted, with their birds still clinging to them,
All high in the wind. Even so my varied life

Drifts by me ; I am young, old, happy, sad,
 Hoping, desponding, acting, taking rest,
 And all at once : that is, those past conditions
 Float back at once on me. If I select
 Some special epoch from the crowd, 't is but
 To will, and straight the rest dissolve away,
 And only that particular state is present
 With all its long-forgotten circumstance
 Distinct and vivid as at first — myself
 A careless looker-on and nothing more,
 Indifferent and amused, but nothing more.
 And this is death : I understand it all.
 New being waits me ; new perceptions must
 Be born in me before I plunge therein ;
 Which last is Death's affair ; and while I speak,
 Minute by minute he is filling me
 With power ; and while my foot is on the threshold
 Of boundless life — the doors unopened yet,
 All preparations not complete within —
 I turn new knowledge upon old events,
 And the effect is . . . but I must not tell ;
 It is not lawful. Your own turn will come
 One day. Wait, Festus ! You will die like me.

Fest. 'T is of that past life that I burn to hear.

Par. You wonder it engages me just now ?
 In truth, I wonder too. What's life to me ?
 Where'er I look is fire, where'er I listen
 Music, and where I tend bliss evermore.
 Yet how can I refrain ? 'T is a refined
 Delight to view those chances, — one last view.
 I am so near the perils I escape,
 That I must play with them and turn them over,
 To feel how fully they are past and gone.
 Still, it is like, some further cause exists
 For this peculiar mood — some hidder purpose ;
 Did I not tell you something of it, Festus ?
 I had it fast, but it has somehow slipt
 Away from me ; it will return anon.

Fest. (Indeed his cheek seems young again, his voice
 Complete with its old tones : that little laugh
 Concluding every phrase, with upturned eye,
 As though one stooped above his head to whom
 He looked for confirmation and approval,
 Where was it gone so long, so well preserved ?
 Then, the forefinger pointing as he speaks,
 Like one who traces in an open book

The matter he declares; 't is many a year
 Since I remarked it last: and this in him,
 But now a ghastly wreck!)

And can it be,
 Dear Aureole, you have then found out at last
 That worldly things are utter vanity?
 That man is made for weakness, and should wait
 In patient ignorance, till God appoint . . .

Par. Ha, the purpose: the true purpose: that is it!
 How could I fail to apprehend! You here,
 I thus! But no more trifling: I see all,
 I know all: my last mission shall be done
 If strength suffice. No trifling! Stay; this posture
 Hardly befits one thus about to speak:
 I will arise.

Fest. Nay, Aureole, are you wild?
 You cannot leave your couch.

Par. No help; no help;
 Not even your hand. So! there, I stand once more!
 Speak from a couch? I never lectured thus.
 My gown — the scarlet lined with fur; now put
 The chain about my neck; my signet-ring
 Is still upon my hand, I think — even so;
 Last, my good sword; ah, trusty Azoth, leapest
 Beneath thy master's grasp for the last time?
 This couch shall be my throne: I bid these walls
 Be consecrate, this wretched cell become
 A shrine, for here God speaks to men through me.
 Now, Festus, I am ready to begin.

Fest. I am dumb with wonder.

Par. Listen, therefore, Festus!
 There will be time enough, but none to spare.
 I must content myself with telling only
 The most important points. You doubtless feel
 That I am happy, Festus; very happy.

Fest. 'T is no delusion which uplifts him thus!
 Then you are pardoned, Aureole, all your sin?

Par. Ay, pardoned: yet why pardoned?

Fest. 'T is God's praise
 That man is bound to seek, and you . . .

Par. Have lived!
 We have to live alone to set forth well
 God's praise. 'T is true, I sinned much, as I thought,
 And in effect need mercy, for I strove
 To do that very thing; but, do your best
 Or worst, praise rises, and will rise forever.

Pardon from him, because of praise denied —
 Who calls me to himself to exalt himself?
 He might laugh as I laugh!

Fest. But all comes
 To the same thing. 'T is fruitless for mankind
 To fret themselves with what concerns them not;
 They are no use that way: they should lie down
 Content as God has made them, nor go mad
 In thriveless cares to better what is ill.

Par. No, no; mistake me not; let me not work
 More harm than I have worked! This is my case:
 If I go joyous back to God, yet bring
 No offering, if I render up my soul
 Without the fruits it was ordained to bear,
 If I appear the better to love God
 For sin, as one who has no claim on him, —
 Be not deceived! It may be surely thus
 With me, while higher prizes still await
 The mortal persevering to the end.
 Beside I am not all so valueless:
 I have been something, though too soon I left
 Following the instincts of that happy time.

Fest. What happy time? For God's sake, for man's sake,

What time was happy? — All I hope to know
 That answer will decide. What happy time?

Par. When but the time I vowed myself to man?

Fest. Great God, thy judgments are inscrutable!

Par. Yes, it was in me; I was born for it —

I, Paracelsus: it was mine by right.
 Doubtless a searching and impetuous soul
 Might learn from its own motions that some task
 Like this awaited it about the world;
 Might seek somewhere in this blank life of ours
 For fit delights to stay its longings vast;
 And, grappling Nature, so prevail on her
 To fill the creature full she dared thus frame
 Hungry for joy; and, bravely tyrannous,
 Grow in demand, still craving more and more,
 And make each joy conceded prove a pledge
 Of other joy to follow — bating nought
 Of its desires, still seizing fresh pretence
 To turn the knowledge and the rapture wrung
 As an extreme, last boon, from destiny,
 Into occasion for new covetings,
 New strifes, new triumphs: — doubtless a strong soul,

Alone, unaided might attain to this,
 So glorious is our nature, so august
 Man's inborn uninstructed impulses,
 His naked spirit so majestic!
 But this was born in me; I was made so;
 Thus much time saved: the feverish appetites,
 The tumult of unproved desire, the unaimed
 Uncertain yearnings, aspirations blind,
 Distrust, mistake, and all that ends in tears
 Were saved me; thus I entered on my course.
 You may be sure I was not all exempt
 From human trouble; just so much of doubt
 As bade me plant a surer foot upon
 The sun-road, kept my eye unruined 'mid
 The fierce and flashing splendor, set my heart
 Trembling so much as warned me I stood there
 On sufferance — not to idly gaze, but cast
 Light on a darkling race; save for that doubt,
 I stood at first where all aspire at last
 To stand: the secret of the world was mine.
 I knew, I felt, (perception unexpressed,
 Uncomprehended by our narrow thought,
 But somehow felt and known in every shift
 And change in the spirit, — nay, in every pore
 Of the body, even,) — what God is, what we are,
 What life is — how God tastes an infinite joy
 In infinite ways — one everlasting bliss,
 From whom all being emanates, all power
 Proceeds; in whom is life forevermore,
 Yet whom existence in its lowest form
 Includes; where dwells enjoyment there is he:
 With still a flying point of bliss remote,
 A happiness in store afar, a sphere
 Of distant glory in full view; thus climbs
 Pleasure its heights forever and forever.
 The centre-fire heaves underneath the earth,
 And the earth changes like a human face;
 The molten ore bursts up among the rocks,
 Winds into the stone's heart, outbranches bright
 In hidden mines, spots barren river-beds,
 Crumbles into fine sand where sunbeams bask —
 God joys therein. The wroth sea's waves are edged
 With foam, white as the bitten lip of hate,
 When, in the solitary waste, strange groups
 Of young volcanos come up, cyclops-like,
 Staring together with their eyes on flame —

God tastes a pleasure in their uncouth pride.
Then all is still ; earth is a wintry clod :
But spring-wind, like a dancing psaltress, passes
Over its breast to waken it, rare verdure
Buds tenderly upon rough banks, between
The witherèd tree-roots and the cracks of frost,
Like a smile striving with a wrinkled face ;
The grass grows bright, the boughs are swoln with blooms
Like chrysalids impatient for the air,
The shining dorrs are busy, beetles run
Along the furrows, ants make their ado ;
Above, birds fly in merry flocks, the lark
Soars up and up, shivering for very joy ;
Afar the ocean sleeps ; white fishing-gulls
Flit where the strand is purple with its tribe
Of nested limpets ; savage creatures seek
Their loves in wood and plain — and God renews
His ancient rapture. Thus he dwells in all,
From life's minute beginnings, up at last
To man — the consummation of this scheme
Of being, the completion of this sphere
Of life : whose attributes had here and there
Been scattered o'er the visible world before,
Asking to be combined, dim fragments meant
To be united in some wondrous whole,
Imperfect qualities throughout creation,
Suggesting some one creature yet to make,
Some point where all those scattered rays should meet
Convergent in the faculties of man.
Power — neither put forth blindly, nor controlled
Calmly by perfect knowledge ; to be used
At risk, inspired or checked by hope and fear :
Knowledge — not intuition, but the slow
Uncertain fruit of an enhancing toil,
Strengthened by love : love — not serenely pure,
But strong from weakness, like a chance-sown plant
Which, cast on stubborn soil, puts forth changed buds
And softer stains, unknown in happier climes ;
Love which endures and doubts and is oppressed
And cherished, suffering much and much sustained,
And blind, oft-failing, yet believing love,
A half-enlightened, often-checked trust : —
Hints and previsions of which faculties,
Are strewn confusedly everywhere about
The inferior natures, and all lead up higher.
All shape out dimly the superior race,

The heir of hopes too fair to turn out false,
 And man appears at last. So far the seal
 Is put on life; one stage of being complete,
 One scheme wound up: and from the grand result
 A supplementary reflux of light,
 Illustrates all the inferior grades, explains
 Each back step in the circle. Not alone
 For their possessor dawn those qualities,
 But the new glory mixes with the heaven
 And earth; man, once descried, imprints forever
 His presence on all lifeless things: the winds
 Are henceforth voices, wailing or a shout,
 A querulous mutter or a quick gay laugh,
 Never a senseless gust now man is born.
 The herded pines commune and have deep thoughts,
 A secret they assemble to discuss
 When the sun drops behind their trunks which glare
 Like grates of hell: the peerless cup afloat
 Of the lake-lily is an urn, some nymph
 Swims bearing high above her head: no bird
 Whistles unseen, but through the gaps above
 That let light in upon the gloomy woods,
 A shape peeps from the breezy forest-top,
 Arch with small puckered mouth and mocking eye.
 The morn has enterprise, deep quiet droops
 With evening, triumph takes the sunset hour,
 Voluptuous transport ripens with the corn
 Beneath a warm moon like a happy face:
 — And this to fill us with regard for man,
 With apprehension of his passing worth,
 Desire to work his proper nature out,
 And ascertain his rank and final place,
 For these things tend still upward, progress is
 The law of life, man is not Man as yet.
 Nor shall I deem his object served, his end
 Attained, his genuine strength put fairly forth,
 While only here and there a star dispels
 The darkness, here and there a towering mind
 O'erlooks its prostrate fellows: when the host
 Is out at once to the despair of night,
 When all mankind alike is perfected,
 Equal in full-blown powers — then, not till then,
 I say, begins man's general infancy.
 For wherefore make account of feverish starts
 Of restless members of a dormant whole,
 Impatient nerves which quiver while the body

Slumbers as in a grave? Oh, long ago
 The brow was twitched, the tremulous lids astir,
 The peaceful mouth disturbed; half-uttered speech
 Ruffled the lip, and then the teeth were set,
 The breath drawn sharp, the strong right-hand clenched stronger,
 As it would pluck a lion by the jaw;
 The glorious creature laughed out even in sleep!
 But when full roused, each giant-limb awake,
 Each sinew strung, the great heart pulsing fast,
 He shall start up and stand on his own earth,
 Then shall his long triumphant march begin,
 Thence shall his being date, — thus wholly roused,
 What he achieves shall be set down to him.
 When all the race is perfected alike
 As man, that is; all tended to mankind,
 And, man produced, all has its end thus far:
 But in completed man begins anew
 A tendency to God. Prognostics told
 Man's near approach; so in man's self arise
 August anticipations, symbols, types
 Of a dim splendor ever on before
 In that eternal circle life pursues.
 For men begin to pass their nature's bound,
 And find new hopes and cares which fast supplant
 Their proper joys and griefs; they grow too great
 For narrow creeds of right and wrong, which fade
 Before the unmeasured thirst for good: while peace
 Rises within them ever more and more.
 Such men are even now upon the earth,
 Serene amid the half-formed creatures round
 Who should be saved by them and joined with them.
 Such was my task, and I was born to it —
 Free, as I said but now, from much that chains
 Spirits, high-dowered but limited and vexed
 By a divided and delusive aim,
 A shadow mocking a reality
 Whose truth avails not wholly to disperse
 The flitting mimic called up by itself,
 And so remains perplexed and nigh put out
 By its fantastic fellow's wavering gleam.
 I, from the first, was never cheated thus;
 I never fashioned out a fancied good
 Distinct from man's; a service to be done,
 A glory to be ministered unto
 With powers put forth at man's expense, withdrawn

From laboring in his behalf ; a strength
 Denied that might avail him. I cared not
 Lest his success ran counter to success
 Elsewhere : for God is glorified in man,
 And to man's glory vowed I soul and limb.
 Yet, constituted thus, and thus endowed,
 I failed : I gazed on power till I grew blind.
 Power ; I could not take my eyes from that :
 That only, I thought, should be preserved, increased
 At any risk, displayed, struck out at once —
 The sign and note and character of man.
 I saw no use in the past : only a scene
 Of degradation, ugliness and tears,
 The record of disgraces best forgotten,
 A sullen page in human chronicles
 Fit to erase. I saw no cause why man
 Should not stand all-sufficient even now,
 Or why his annals should be forced to tell
 That once the tide of light, about to break
 Upon the world, was sealed within its spring :
 I would have had one day, one moment's space,
 Change man's condition, push each slumbering claim
 Of mastery o'er the elemental world
 At once to full maturity, then roll
 Oblivion o'er the work, and hide from man
 What night had ushered morn. Not so, dear child
 Of after-days, wilt thou reject the past
 Big with deep warnings of the proper tenure
 By which thou hast the earth : for thee the present
 Shall have distinct and trembling beauty, seen
 Beside that past's own shade when, in relief,
 Its brightness shall stand out : nor yet on thee
 Shall burst the future, as successive zones
 Of several wonder open on some spirit
 Flying secure and glad from heaven to heaven :
 But thou shalt painfully attain to joy,
 While hope and fear and love shall keep thee man !
 All this was hid from me : as one by one
 My dreams grew dim, my wide aims circumscribed,
 As actual good within my reach decreased,
 While obstacles sprung up this way and that
 To keep me from effecting half the sum,
 Small as it proved ; as objects, mean within
 The primal aggregate, seemed, even the least,
 Itself a match for my concentrated strength —
 What wonder if I saw no way to shun

Despair? The power I sought for man, seemed God's.
In this conjuncture, as I prayed to die,
A strange adventure made me know, one sin
Had spotted my career from its uprise ;
I saw Aprile — my Aprile there !
And as the poor melodious wretch disburdened
His heart, and moaned his weakness in my ear,
I learned my own deep error ; love's undoing
Taught me the worth of love in man's estate,
And what proportion love should hold with power
In his right constitution ; love preceding
Power, and with much power, always much more love ;
Love still too straitened in his present means,
And earnest for new power to set love free.
I learned this, and supposed the whole was learned :
And thus, when men received with stupid wonder
My first revealings, would have worshipped me,
And I despised and loathed their proffered praise —
When, with awakened eyes, they took revenge
For past credulity in casting shame
On my real knowledge, and I hated them —
It was not strange I saw no good in man,
To overbalance all the wear and waste
Of faculties, displayed in vain, but born
To prosper in some better sphere : and why ?
In my own heart love had not been made wise
To trace love's faint beginnings in mankind,
To know even hate is but a mask of love's,
To see a good in evil, and a hope
In ill-success ; to sympathize, be proud
Of their half-reasons, faint aspirings, dim
Struggles for truth, their poorest fallacies,
Their prejudice and fears and cares and doubts ;
All with a touch of nobleness, despite
Their error, upward tending all though weak,
Like plants in mines which never saw the sun,
But dream of him, and guess where he may be,
And do their best to climb and get to him.
All this I knew not, and I failed. Let men
Regard me, and the poet dead long ago
Who loved too rashly ; and shape forth a third
And better-tempered spirit, warned by both :
As from the over-radiant star too mad
To drink the life-springs, beamless thence itself —
And the dark orb which borders the abyss,
Ingulfed in icy night, — might have its course,

A temperate and equidistant world.
 Meanwhile, I have done well, though not all well.
 As yet men cannot do without contempt ;
 'Tis for their good, and therefore fit awhile
 That they reject the weak, and scorn the false,
 Rather than praise the strong and true, in me :
 But after, they will know me. If I stoop
 Into a dark tremendous sea of cloud,
 It is but for a time ; I press God's lamp
 Close to my breast ; its splendor, soon or late,
 Will pierce the gloom : I shall emerge one day.
 You understand me ? - I have said enough !

Fest. Now die, dear Aureole !

Par. Festus, let my hand --
 This hand, lie in your own, my own true friend !
 Aprile ! Hand in hand with you, Aprile !

Fest. And this was Paracelsus !

NOTE

THE liberties I have taken with my subject are very trifling; and the reader may slip the foregoing scenes between the leaves of any memoir of Paracelsus he pleases, by way of commentary. To prove this, I subjoin a popular account, translated from the Biographie Universelle, Paris, 1822, which I select, not as the best, certainly, but as being at hand, and sufficiently concise for my purpose. I also append a few notes, in order to correct those parts which do not bear out my own view of the character of Paracelsus; and have incorporated with them a notice or two, illustrative of the poem itself.

“PARACELUS (Philippus Aureolus Theophrastus Bombastus ab Hohenheim) was born in 1493 at Einsiedeln,<sup>1</sup> a little town in the canton of Schwyz, some leagues distant from Zurich. His father, who exercised the profession of medicine at Villach in Carinthia, was nearly related to George Bombast de Hohenheim, who became afterward Grand Prior of the Order of Malta: consequently Paracelsus could not spring from the dregs of the people, as Thomas Erastus, his sworn enemy, pretends.* It appears that his elementary education was much neglected, and that he spent part of his youth in pursuing the life common to the travelling literati of the age; that is to say, in wandering from country to country, predicting the future by astrology and cheiromancy, evoking apparitions, and practising the different operations of magic and alchemy, in which he had been initiated whether by his father or by various ecclesiastics, among the number of whom he particularizes the Abbot Tritheim,<sup>2</sup> and many German bishops.

“Paracelsus travelled among the mountains of Bohemia, in the East, and in Sweden, in order to inspect the labors of the miners, to be initiated in the mysteries of the oriental adepts, and to observe the secrets of nature and the famous mountain of loadstone.<sup>3</sup> He professes also to have visited Spain, Portugal, Prussia, Poland, and Transylvania; everywhere communicating freely, not merely with the physicians, but the old women, charlatans, and conjurers of these several lands. It is even believed that he extended his journeyings as far as Egypt and Tartary, and that he accompanied the son of the Khan of the Tartars to Constantinople, for the purpose of obtaining the secret of the tincture of Trismegistus from a Greek who inhabited that capital.

"The period of his return to Germany is unknown: it is only certain that, at about the age of thirty-three, many astonishing cures which he wrought on eminent personages procured him such a celebrity, that he was called in 1526, on the recommendation of Ecolampadius,<sup>4</sup> to fill a chair of physic and surgery at the University of Basil. There Paracelsus began by burning publicly in the amphitheatre the works of Avicenna and Galen, assuring his auditors that the latches of his shoes were more instructed than those two physicians; that all universities, all writers put together, were less gifted than the hairs of his beard and of the crown of his head; and that, in a word, he was to be regarded as the legitimate monarch of medicine. 'You shall follow me,' cried he, 'you, Avicenna, Galen, Rhasis, Montagnana, Mesues, you, gentlemen of Paris, Montpellier, Germany, Cologne, Vienna,* and whomsoever the Rhine and Danube nourish; you who inhabit the isles of the sea; you, likewise, Dalmatians, Athenians; thou, Arab; thou, Greek; thou, Jew: all shall follow me, and the monarchy shall be mine.' †

"But at Basil it was speedily perceived that the new Professor was no better than an egregious quack. Scarcely a year elapsed before his lectures had fairly driven away an audience incapable of comprehending their emphatic jargon. That which above all contributed to sully his reputation was the debauched life he led. According to the testimony of Oporinus, who lived two years in his intimacy, Paracelsus scarcely ever ascended the lecture-desk unless half drunk, and only dictated to his secretaries when in a state of intoxication: if summoned to attend the sick, he rarely proceeded thither without previously drenching himself with wine. He was accustomed to retire to bed without changing his clothes; sometimes he spent the night in pot-houses with peasants, and in the morning knew no longer what he was about; and, nevertheless, up to the age of twenty-five his only drink had been water.<sup>5</sup>

"At length, fearful of being punished for a serious outrage on a magistrate,<sup>6</sup> he fled from Basil towards the end of the year 1527, and took refuge in Alsatia, whither he caused Oporinus to follow with his chemical apparatus.

"He then entered once more upon the career of ambulatory theosophist. ‡ Accordingly we find him at Colmar in 1528; at Nuremberg in 1529; at St. Gall in 1531; at Pfeffers in 1535; and at Augsburg in 1536: he next made some stay in Moravia, where he still further compromised his reputation by the loss of many distinguished patients, which compelled him to betake himself to Vienna; from thence he passed into Hungary; and in 1538 was at Villach, where he dedicated his Chronicle to the States of Carinthia, in gratitude for the many kindnesses with which they had honored his

† See his works, passim. I must give one specimen: — Somebody had been styling him "Luther alter." "And why not?" (he asks, as he well might.) "Luther is abundantly learned, therefore you hate him and me; but we are at least a match for you. — Nam et contra vos et vestros universos principes Avicennam, Galenum, Aristotelem, etc. me satis superque munitum esse novi. Et vertex iste meus calvus ac depilis multo plura et sublimiora novit quam vester vel Avicenna vel universæ academix. Proditate, et signum date, qui viri sitis, quid roboris habeatis? quid autem sitis? Doctores et magistri, pediculos pectentes et fricantes podicem." (Frag. Med.)

‡ "So migratory a life could afford Paracelsus but little leisure for application to books, and accordingly he informs us that for the space of ten years he never opened a single volume, and that his whole medical library was not composed of six sheets: in effect, the inventory drawn up after his death states that the only books which he left were the Bible, the New Testament, the Commentaries of St. Jerome on the Gospels, a printed volume on Medicine, and seven manuscripts."

father. Finally, from Mindelheim, which he visited in 1540, Paracelsus proceeded to Salzburg, where he died in the Hospital of St. Stephen (Sebastian is meant), Sept. 24, 1541."—(Here follows a criticism on his writings, which I omit.)

giant; who, as his master had gone beyond the Church, went beyond his master (or else it had been impossible he could have been reputed the better scholar), who denied the real presence; him, this worthy champion (the Bishop) sets upon, and with five books (like so many smooth stones taken out of the river that doth always run with living water) slays the Philistine; which five books were written in the year of our Lord 1526, at which time he had governed the See of Rochester twenty years." (Life of Bishop Fisher, 1655.) Now, there is no doubt of the Protestantism of Paracelsus, Erasmus, Agrippa, etc., but the nonconformity of Paracelsus was always scandalous. L. Crasso (Elogj d' Huomini Letterati. Ven. 1666) informs us that his books were excommunicated by the Church. Quenstedt (de Patr. Doct.) affirms "nec tantum novæ medicinæ, verum etiam novæ theologiæ autor est." Delrio, in his Disquisit. Magicar., classes him among those "partim atheos, partim hæreticos" (lib. I. cap. 3). "Omnino tamen multa theologica in ejusdem scriptis plane atheismum olent, ac duriuscule sonant in auribus vere Christiani." (D. Gabrielis Clauderi Schediasma de Tinct. Univ. Norimb. 1736.) I shall only add one more authority:—"Oporinus dicit se (Paracelsum) aliquando Lutherum et Papam, non minus quam nunc Galenum et Hippocratem redacturum in ordinem minabatur, neque enim eorum qui hactenus in scripturam sacram scripsissent, sive veteres, sive recentiores, quenquam scripturæ nucleum recte eruisse, sed circa corticem et quasi membranam tantum hære." (Th. Erastus, Disputat. de Med. Nova.) These and similar notions had their due effect on Oporinus, who, says Zuingerus, in his Theatrum, "longum vale dixit ei (Paracelso), ne ob præceptoris, alioqui amiissimi, horrendas blasphemias ipse quoque aliquando pœnas Deo Opt. Max. lueret."

<sup>5</sup> His defenders allow the drunkenness. Take a sample of their excuses: "Gentis hoc, non viri vitium est, a Taciti seculo ad nostrum usque non interrupto filo devolutum, sinceritati forte Germanæ coævum, et nescio an aliquo consanguinitatis vinculo junctum." (Bitiskius.) The other charges were chiefly trumped up by Oporinus: "Domi, quod Oporinus amanuensis ejus sæpe narravit, nunquam nisi potus ad explicanda sua accessit, atque in medio conclavi ad columnam τετυφωμένος adsistens, apprehenso manibus capulo ensis, cujus κόλωμα hospitium præbuit, ut aiunt, spiritui familiari, imaginationes aut concepta sua protulit: — alii illud quod in capulo habuit, ab ipso Azoth appellatum, medicinam fuisse præstantissimam aut lapidem Philosophicum putant." (Melch. Adam.) This famous sword was no laughing-matter in those days, and it is now a material feature in the popular idea of Paracelsus. I recollect a couple of allusions to it in our own literature, at the moment.

Ne had been known the Danish Gonswart,
Or Paracelsus with his long sword.
Volpone, Act ii. Scene 2.

Bumbastus kept a devil's bird
Shut in the pummel of his sword,
That taught him all the cunning pranks
Of past and future mountebanks.
Hudibras, Part ii. Cant. 3.

This Azoth was simply "laudanum suum." But in his time he was commonly believed to possess the double tincture—the power of curing diseases and transmuting metals. Oporinus often witnessed, as he declares, both these effects, as did also Franciscus, the servant of Paracelsus, who describes, in a letter to Neander, a successful projection at which he was present, and the results of which, good golden ingots, were confided to his keeping. For the other quality, let the following notice vouch among many others: — “Degebat Theophrastus Norimbergæ procius a medentibus illius urbis, et vaniloquus deceptorque proclamatus, qui, ut laboranti famæ subveniat, viros quosdam autoritatis summæ in Republica illa adit, et infamiae amoliendæ, artique suæ asserendæ, specimen ejus pollicetur editurum, nullo stipendio vel accepto pretio, horum faciles præbentium aures jussu elephantiacos aliquot, a communione hominum cæterorum segregatos, et in valetudinarium detrusos, alieno arbitrio eliguntur, quos virtute singulari remediorum suorum Theophrastus a fœda Græcorum lepra mundat, pristinaque sanitati restituit; conservat illustre harum curatio-num urbs in archivis suis testimonium.” (Bitiskius.)* It is to be remarked that Oporinus afterwards repented of his treachery: “Sed respicit tandem, et quem vivum convitiis insectatus fuerat defunctum veneratione prosequutus, infames famæ præceptoris morsus in remorsus conscientiæ conversi pœnitentia, heu nimis tarda, vulnera clausere exanimi quæ spiranti infixierant.” For these “bites” of Oporinus, see Disputat. Erasti, and Andrea Jocisci Oratio de Vit. ob. Opori; for the “remorse,” Mic. Toxita in pref. Testamenti, and Conringius (otherwise an enemy of Paracelsus), who says it was contained in a letter from Oporinus to Doctor Vegeus. †

Whatever the moderns may think of these marvellous attributes, the title of Paracelsus to be considered the father of modern chemistry is indisputable. Gerardus Vossius, De Philos<sup>a</sup> et Philos<sup>um</sup> sectis, thus prefaces the ninth section of cap. 9, De Chymia — “Nobilem hanc medicinæ partem, diu sepultam avorum ætate, quasi ab orco revocavit Th. Paracelsus.” I suppose many hints lie scattered in his neglected books, which clever appropriators have since developed with applause. Thus, it appears from his treatise De Phlebotomia, and elsewhere, that he had discovered the circulation of the blood and the sanguification of the heart; as did after him Realdo Colombo, and still more perfectly Andrea Cesalpino of Arezzo, as Bayle and Bartoli observe. Even Lavater quotes a passage from his work De Natura Rerum, on practical Physiognomy, in which the definitions and axioms are precise enough: he adds, “though an astrological enthusiast, a man of prodigious genius.” See Holcroft’s Translation, vol. iii. p. 179 — “The Eyes.” While on the subject of the writings of Paracelsus, I may explain a passage in the third part of the Poem. He was, as I have said, unwilling to publish his works, but in effect did publish a vast number. Valentius (in Prefat. in Paramyr.) declares “quod ad librorum Paracelsi copiam attinet, audio, a Germanis prope trecentos recenseri.” “O fœcunditas ingenii!” adds he, appositely. Many of these were, however, spurious; and Fred. Bitiskius gives his good edition (3 vols. fol. Gen. 1658) “rejectis suppositis solo ipsius nomine superbientibus quorum ingens circumfertur numerus.” The rest were “charissimum et pretiosissimum authoris pignus, extorsum potius ab illo quam obtentum.” “Jam minime eo volente atque jubente hæc ipsius scripta in lucem prodisse videntur; quippe quæ muro inclusa ipso absente, servi cujusdam indicio, furto surrepta atque sublata sunt,” says Valentius. These have been the study of a host of commentators, amongst whose labors are most notable, Petri Severini, Idea Medicinæ Philosophicæ. Bas. 1571; Mic. Toxetis, Onomastica. Arg. 1574; Dornei, Dict. Parac. Franc.

* The premature death of Paracelsus casts no manner of doubt on the fact of his having possessed the Elixir Vitæ: the alchemists have abundant reasons to adduce, from which I select the following, as explanatory of a property of the Tincture not calculated on by its votaries: — “Objectionem illam, quod Paracelsus non fuerit longævus, non nulli quoque solvant per rationes physicas: vitæ nimirum abbreviationem fortasse talibus accidere posse, ob Tincturam frequentiore ac largiore dosi sumtam, dum a summe efficaci et penetrabili hujus virtute calor innatus quasi suffocatur.” (Gabrielis Claudi Schediasma.)

† For a good defence of Paracelsus I refer the reader to Olaus Borrichius’ treatise — Hermelis etc. Sipientia vindicata, 1674. Or, if he is no more learned than myself in such matters, I mention simply that Paracelsus introduced the use of Mercury and Laudanum.

<sup>6</sup> A disgraceful affair. One Liechtenfels, a canon, having been rescued in extremis by the "laudanum" of Paracelsus, refused the stipulated fee, and was supported in his meanness by the authorities, whose interference Paracelsus would not brook. His own liberality was allowed by his bitterest foes, who found a ready solution of his indifference to profit in the aforesaid sword-handle and its guest. His freedom from the besetting sin of a profession he abhorred — (as he curiously says somewhere, "Quis quæso deinceps honorem deferat professione tali, quæ a tam facinorosis nebulonibus obitur et administratur?") — is recorded in his epitaph, which affirms — "Bona sua in pauperes distribuenda collocandaque erogavit," honoravit, or ordinavit — for accounts differ.

A TRAGEDY

DEDICATED, IN ALL AFFECTIONATE ADMIRATION,

TO

WILLIAM C. MACREADY.

LONDON, April 23, 1837.

PERSONS.

CHARLES I.	DENZIL HOLLIS.
Earl of HOLLAND.	BENJAMIN RUDYARD.
Lord SAVILE.	NATHANIEL FIENNES.
Sir HENRY VANE.	Earl of LOUDON.
WENTWORTH, Viscount WENT-	MAXWELL, Usher of the Black Rod.
WORTH, Earl of STRAFFORD.	BALFOUR, Constable of the Tower.
JOHN PYM.	A Puritan.
JOHN HAMPDEN.	Queen HENRIETTA.
The younger VANE.	LUCY PERCY, Countess of Carlisle.
Presbyterians, Scots Commissioners,	Adherents of Strafford, Secretaries,
Officers of the Court, etc.	Two of Strafford's children.

ACT I.

SCENE I. A House near Whitehall. HAMPDEN, HOLLIS, the younger VANE, RUDYARD, FIENNES and many of the Presbyterian Party : LOUDON and other Scots Commissioners.

Vane. I say, if he be here —

Rud. (And he is here!) —

Hol. For England's sake let every man be still

Nor speak of him, so much as say his name,

Till Pym rejoin us! Rudyard! Henry Vane!

One rash conclusion may decide our course

And with it England's fate — think — England's fate!

Hampden, for England's sake they should be still!

Vane. You say so, Hollis? Well, I must be still.

It is indeed too bitter that one man,

Any one man's mere presence, should suspend
 England's combined endeavor : little need
 To name him !

Rud. For you are his brother, Hollis !

Hamp. Shame on you, Rudyard ! time to tell him that
 When he forgets the Mother of us all.

Rud. Do I forget her ?

Hamp. You talk idle hate
 Against her foe : is that so strange a thing ?
 Is hating Wentworth all the help she needs ?

A Puritan. The Philistine strode, cursing as he went :
 But David — five smooth pebbles from the brook
 Within his scrip . . .

Rud. Be you as still as David !

Fien. Here 's Rudyard not ashamed to wag a tongue
 Stiff with ten years' disuse of Parliaments ;
 Why, when the last sat, Wentworth sat with us !

Rud. Let 's hope for news of them now he returns —
 He that was safe in Ireland, as we thought !
 — But I 'll abide Pym's coming.

Vane. Now, by Heaven,
 Then may be cool who can, silent who will —
 Some have a gift that way ! Wentworth is here,
 Here, and the King 's safe closeted with him
 Ere this. And when I think on all that 's past
 Since that man left us, how his single arm
 Rolled the advancing good of England back
 And set the woful past up in its place,
 Exalting Dagon where the Ark should be, —
 How that man has made firm the fickle King
 (Hampden, I will speak out !) — in aught he feared
 To venture on before ; taught tyranny
 Her dismal trade, the use of all her tools,
 To ply the scourge yet screw the gag so close
 That strangled agony bleeds mute to death —
 How he turns Ireland to a private stage
 For training infant villanies, new ways
 Of wringing treasure out of tears and blood,
 Unheard oppressions nourished in the dark
 To try how much man's nature can endure
 — If he dies under it, what harm ? if not,
 Why, one more trick is added to the rest
 Worth a king's knowing, and what Ireland bears
 England may learn to bear : — how all this while
 That man has set himself to one dear task,
 The bringing Charles to relish more and more

Power, power without law, power and blood too
— Can I be still?

Hamp. For that you should be still.

Vane. Oh Hampden, then and now! The year he left us,
The People in full Parliament could wrest
The Bill of Rights from the reluctant King;
And now, he'll find in an obscure small room
A stealthy gathering of great-hearted men
That take up England's cause: England is here!

Hamp. And who despairs of England?

Rud. That do I,
If Wentworth comes to rule her. I am sick
To think her wretched masters, Hamilton,
The muckworm Cottington, the maniac Laud,
May yet be longed-for back again. I say,
I do despair.

Vane. — And, Rudyard, I'll say this —
Which all true men say after me, not loud
But solemnly and as you'd say a prayer!
This King, who treads our England underfoot,
Has just so much . . . it may be fear or craft,
As bids him pause at each fresh outrage; friends,
He needs some sterner hand to grasp his own,
Some voice to ask, "Why shrink? Am I not by?"
Now, one whom England loved for serving her,
Found in his heart to say, "I know where best
The iron heel shall bruise her, for she leans
Upon me when you trample." Witness, you!
So Wentworth heartened Charles, so England fell.
But inasmuch as life is hard to take
From England . . .

Many Voices. Go on, Vane! 'Tis well said, Vane!

Vane. — Who has not so forgotten Runnymede! —

Voices. 'Tis well and bravely spoken, Vane! Go on!

Vane. — There are some little signs of late she knows
The ground no place for her. She glances round,
Wentworth has dropped the hand, is gone his way
On other service: what if she arise?
No! the King beckons, and beside him stands
The same bad man once more, with the same smile
And the same gesture. Now shall England crouch.
Or catch at us and rise?

Voices. The Renegade!

Haman! Ahithophel!

Hamp. Gentlemen of the North,
It was not thus the night your claims were urged,

And we pronounced the League and Covenant,
The cause of Scotland, England's cause as well :
Vane there, sat motionless the whole night through.

Vane. Hampden !

Fien.

Stay, Vane !

Lou.

Be just and patient, Vane !

Vane. Mind how you counsel patience, Loudon ! you
Have still a Parliament, and this your League
To back it ; you are free in Scotland still :
While we are brothers, hope's for England yet.
But know you wherefore Wentworth comes ? to quench
This last of hopes ? that he brings war with him ?
Know you the man's self ? what he dares ?

Lou.

We know,

All know — 't is nothing new.

Vane.

And what's new, then,

In calling for his life ? Why, Pym himself —
You must have heard — ere Wentworth dropped our cause
He would see Pym first ; there were many more
Strong on the people's side and friends of his,
Eliot that's dead, Rudyard and Hampden here,
But for these Wentworth cared not ; only, Pym
He would see — Pym and he were sworn, 't is said,
To live and die together ; so, they met
At Greenwich. Wentworth, you are sure, was long,
Specious enough, the devil's argument
Lost nothing on his lips ; he'd have Pym own
A patriot could not play a purer part
Than follow in his track ; they two combined
Might put down England. Well, Pym heard him out ;
One glance — you know Pym's eye — one word was all :
“ You leave us, Wentworth ! while your head is on,
I'll not leave you.”

Hamp.

Has he left Wentworth, then ?

Has England lost him ? Will you let him speak,
Or put your crude surmises in his mouth ?

Away with this ! Will you have Pym or Vane ?

Voices. Wait Pym's arrival ! Pym shall speak.

Hamp.

Meanwhile

Let Loudon read the Parliament's report
From Edinburgh : our last hope, as Vane says,
Is in the stand it makes. Loudon !

Vane.

No, no !

Silent I can be : not indifferent !

Hamp. Then each keep silence, praying God to spare
His anger, cast not England quite away
In this her visitation !

A Puritan. Seven years long
The Midianite drove Israel into dens
And caves. Till God sent forth a mighty man,
(Pym enters.)

Even Gideon!

Pym. Wentworth's come: nor sickness, care,
The ravaged body nor the ruined soul,
More than the winds and waves that beat his ship,
Could keep him from the King. He has not reached
Whitehall: they've hurried up a Council there
To lose no time and find him work enough.
Where's Loudon? your Scots' Parliament . . .

Lou. Holds firm:
We were about to read reports.

Pym. The King
Has just dissolved your Parliament.

Lou. and other Scots. Great God!
An oath-breaker! Stand by us, England, then!

Pym. The King's too sanguine; doubtless Wentworth's
here;

But still some little form might be kept up.

Hamp. Now speak, Vane! Rudyard, you had much to say!

Hol. The rumor's false, then . . .

Pym. Ay, the Court gives out

His own concerns have brought him back: I know

'Tis the King calls him. Wentworth supersedes

The tribe of Cottingtons and Hamiltons

Whose part is played; there's talk enough, by this, —

Merciful talk, the King thinks; time is now

To turn the record's last and bloody leaf

Which, chronicling a nation's great despair,

Tells they were long rebellious, and their lord

Indulgent, till, all kind expedients tried,

He drew the sword on them and reigned in peace.

Laud's laying his religion on the Scots

Was the last gentle entry: the new page

Shall run, the King thinks, "Wentworth thrust it down

At the sword's point."

A Puritan. I'll do your bidding, Pym,

England's and God's — one blow!

Pym. A goodly thing —

We all say, friends, it is a goodly thing

To right that England. Heaven grows dark above:

Let's snatch one moment ere the thunder fall,

To say how well the English spirit comes out

Beneath it! All have done their best, indeed,

From lion Eliot, that grand Englishman,
 To the least here: and who, the least one here,
 When she is saved (for her redemption dawns
 Dimly, most dimly, but it dawns — it dawns)
 Who'd give at any price his hope away
 Of being named along with the Great Men?
 We would not — no, we would not give that up!

Hamp. And one name shall be dearer than all names,
 When children, yet unborn, are taught that name
 After their fathers', — taught what matchless man . . .

Pym. . . . Saved England? What if Wentworth's should be still
 That name?

Rud. and others. We have just said it, Pym! His death Saves her! We said it — there's no way beside!
 I'll do God's bidding, Pym! They struck down Joab
 And purged the land.

Vane. No villanous striking-down!

Rud. No, a calm vengeance: let the whole land rise
 And shout for it. No Feltons!

Pym. Rudyard, no!
 England rejects all Feltons; most of all
 Since Wentworth . . . Hampden, say the trust again
 Of England in her servants — but I'll think
 You know me, all of you. Then, I believe,
 Spite of the past, Wentworth rejoins you, friends!

Vane and others. Wentworth? Apostate! Judas! Doubledyed
 A traitor! Is it Pym, indeed . . .

Pym. . . . Who says
 Vane never knew that Wentworth, loved that man,
 Was used to stroll with him, arm locked in arm,
 Along the streets to see the people pass,
 And read in every island-countenance
 Fresh argument for God against the King, —
 Never sat down, say, in the very house
 Where Eliot's brow grew broad with noble thoughts,
 (You've joined us, Hampden — Hollis, you as well,
 And then left talking over Gracchus' death . . .

Vane. To frame, we know it well, the choicest clause
 In the Petition of Right: he framed such clause
 One month before he took at the King's hand
 His Northern Presidency, which that Bill Denounced.

Pym. Too true! Never more, never more
 Walked we together! Most alone I went.

I have had friends — all here are fast my friends —
 But I shall never quite forget that friend.
 And yet it could not but be real in him!
 You, Vane, — you, Rudyard, have no right to trust
 To Wentworth: but can no one hope with me?
 Hampden, will Wentworth dare shed English blood
 Like water?

Hamp. Ireland is Aceldama.

Pym. Will he turn Scotland to a hunting-ground
 To please the King, now that he knows the King?
 The People or the King? and that King, Charles!

Hamp. Pym, all here know you: you'll not set your heart
 On any baseless dream. But say one deed
 Of Wentworth's, since he left us . . .

[Shouting without

Vane. There! he comes,
 And they shout for him! Wentworth's at Whitehall,
 The King embracing him, now, as we speak,
 And he, to be his match in courtesies,
 Taking the whole war's risk upon himself,
 Now, while you tell us here how changed he is!
 Hear you?

Pym. And yet if 't is a dream, no more,
 That Wentworth chose their side, and brought the King
 To love it as though Laud had loved it first,
 And the Queen after; — that he led their cause
 Calm to success, and kept it spotless through,
 So that our very eyes could look upon
 The travail of our souls, and close content
 That violence, which something mars even right
 Which sanctions it, had taken off no grace
 From its serene regard. Only a dream!

Hamp. We meet here to accomplish certain good
 By obvious means, and keep tradition up
 Of free assemblages, else obsolete,
 In this poor chamber: nor without effect
 Has friend met friend to counsel and confirm,
 As, listening to the beats of England's heart,
 We spoke its wants to Scotland's prompt reply
 By these her delegates. Remains alone
 That word grow deed, as with God's help it shall —
 But with the devil's hindrance, who doubts too?
 Looked we or no that tyranny should turn
 Her engines of oppression to their use?
 Whereof, suppose the worst be Wentworth here —
 Shall we break off the tactics which succeed
 In drawing out our formidablest foe,

Let bickering and disunion take their place ?
 Or count his presence as our conquest's proof,
 And keep the old arms at their steady play ?
 Proceed to England's work ! Fiennes, read the list !

Fiennes. Ship-money is refused or fiercely paid

In every county, save the northern parts

Where Wentworth's influence . . .

[Shouting.

Vane.

I, in England's name,

Declare her work, this way, at end ! Till now,

Up to this moment, peaceful strife was best.

We English had free leave to think ; till now,

We had a shadow of a Parliament

In Scotland. But all's changed : they change the first,

They try brute-force for law, they, first of all . . .

Voices. Good ! Talk enough ! The old true hearts with Vane !

Vane. Till we crush Wentworth for her, there's no act
 Serves England !

Voices. Vane for England !

Pym.

Pym should be

Something to England. I seek Wentworth, friends.

SCENE II. Whitehall.

Lady CARLISLE and WENTWORTH.

Went. And the King ?

Lady Car.

Wentworth, lean on me ! Sit then !

I'll tell you all ; this horrible fatigue

Will kill you.

Went.

No ; — or, Lucy, just your arm ;

I'll not sit till I've cleared this up with him :

After that, rest. The King ?

Lady Car.

Confides in you.

Went. Why ? or, why now ? — They have kind throats, the knaves !

Shout for me — they !

Lady Car.

You come so strangely soon :

Yet we took measures to keep off the crowd —

Did they shout for you ?

Went.

Wherefore should they not ?

Does the King take such measures for himself ?

Beside, there's such a dearth of malcontents,

You say !

Lady Car. I said but few dared carp at you.

Went. At me ? at us, I hope ! The King and I !

He's surely not disposed to let me bear
The fame away from him of these late deeds
In Ireland? I am yet his instrument
Be it for well or ill? He trusts me, too!

Lady Car. The King, dear Wentworth, purposes, I said,
To grant you, in the face of all the Court . . .

Went. All the Court! Evermore the Court about us!
Savile and Holland, Hamilton and Vane
About us, — then the King will grant me — what?
That he for once put these aside and say —

“Tell me your whole mind, Wentworth!”

Lady Car. You professed
You would be calm.

Went. Lucy, and I am calm!
How else shall I do all I come to do,
Broken, as you may see, body and mind,
How shall I serve the King? Time wastes meanwhile,
You have not told me half. His footstep! No.
Quick, then, before I meet him, — I am calm —
Why does the King distrust me?

Lady Car. He does not Distrust you!

Went. Lucy, you can help me; you
Have even seemed to care for me: one word!
Is it the Queen?

Lady Car. No, not the Queen: the party
That poisons the Queen's ear, Savile and Holland.

Went. I know, I know: old Vane, too, he's one too?
Go on — and he's made Secretary. Well?
Or leave them out and go straight to the charge;
The charge!

Lady Car. Oh, there's no charge, no precise charge:
Only they sneer, make light of — one may say,
Nibble at what you do.

Went. I know! but, Lucy,
I reckoned on you from the first! — Go on!
— Was sure could I once see this gentle friend
When I arrived, she'd throw an hour away
To help her . . . what am I?

Lady Car. You thought of me,
Dear Wentworth?

Went. But go on! The party here!

Lady Car. They do not think your Irish government
Of that surpassing value . . .

Went. The one thing
Of value! The one service that the crown

May count on! All that keeps these very Vanes
In power, to vex me — not that they do vex,
Only it might vex some to hear that service
Decried, the sole support that's left the King!

Lady Car. So the Archbishop says.

Went.

Ah? well, perhaps

The only hand held up in my defence
May be old Laud's! These Hollands then, these Saviles
Nibble? They nibble? — that's the very word!

Lady Car. Your profit in the Customs, Bristol says,
Exceeds the due proportion: while the tax . . .

Went. Enough! 't is too unworthy, — I am not So patient as I thought! What's Pym about?

Lady Car. Pym?

Went.

Pym and the People.

Lady Car.

Oh, the Faction!

Extinct — of no account: there'll never be Another Parliament.

Went.

Tell Savile that!

You may know — (ay, you do — the creatures here
Never forget!) that in my earliest life
I was not . . . much that I am now! The King
May take my word on points concerning Pym
Before Lord Savile's, Lucy, or if not,
I bid them ruin their wise selves, not me,
These Vanes and Hollands! I'll not be their tool
Who might be Pym's friend yet.

But there's the King!

Where is he?

Lady Car. Just apprised that you arrive.

Went. And why not here to meet me? I was told
He sent for me, nay, longed for me.

Lady Car.

Because, —

He is now . . . I think a Council's sitting now
About this Scots affair.

Went.

A Council sits?

They have not taken a decided course
Without me in the matter?

Lady Car.

I should say . . .

Went. The war? They cannot have agreed to that?
Not the Scots' war? — without consulting me —
Me, that am here to show how rash it is,
How easy to dispense with? — Ah, you too
Against me! well, — the King may take his time.
— Forget it, Lucy! Cares make peevish: mine
Weigh me (but 't is a secret) to my grave.

Lady Car. For life or death I am your own, dear friend!
[Goes out.]

Went. Heartless! but all are heartless here. Go now, Forsake the People! I did not forsake
The People: they shall know it, when the King
Will trust me! — who trusts all beside at once,
While I have not spoke Vane and Savile fair,
And am not trusted: have but saved the throne:
Have not picked up the Queen's glove prettily,
And am not trusted. But he'll see me now.
Weston is dead: the Queen's half English now —
More English: one decisive word will brush
These insects from . . . the step I know so well!
The King! But now, to tell him . . . no — to ask
What's in me he distrusts: — or, best begin
By proving that this frightful Scots affair
Is just what I foretold. So much to say,
And the flesh fails, now, and the time is come,
And one false step no way to be repaired.
You were avenged, Pym, could you look on me.

(Pym enters.)

Went. I little thought of you just then.

Pym. No? I

Think always of you, Wentworth.

Went. The old voice!

I wait the King, sir.

Pym. True — you look so pale!

A Council sits within; when that breaks up

He'll see you.

Went. Sir, I thank you.

Pym. Oh, thank Laud!

You know when Laud once gets on Church affairs

The case is desperate: he'll not be long

To-day: he only means to prove, to-day,

We English all are mad to have a hand

In butchering the Scots for serving God

After their fathers' fashion: only that!

Went. Sir, keep your jests for those who relish them!

(Does he enjoy their confidence?) 'Tis kind

To tell me what the Council does.

Pym. You grudge

That I should know it had resolved on war

Before you came? no need: you shall have all

The credit, trust me!

Went. Have the Council dared —

They have not dared . . . that is — I know you not.
Farewell, sir : times are changed.

Pym. — Since we two met
At Greenwich? Yes: poor patriots though we be,
You cut a figure, makes some slight return
For your exploits in Ireland! Changed indeed,
Could our friend Eliot look from out his grave!
Ah, Wentworth, one thing for acquaintance' sake,
Just to decide a question; have you, now,
Felt your old self since you forsook us?

Went. Sir!

Pym. Spare me the gesture! you misapprehend.
Think not I mean the advantage is with me.
I was about to say that, for my part,
I never quite held up my head since then —
Was quite myself since then: for first, you see,
I lost all credit after that event
With those who recollect how sure I was
Wentworth would outdo Eliot on our side.
Forgive me: Savile, old Vane, Holland here,
Eschew plain-speaking: 't is a trick I keep.

Went. How, when, where, Savile, Vane, and Holland speak,
Plainly or otherwise, would have my scorn,
All of my scorn, sir . . .

Pym. . . . Did not my poor thoughts
Claim somewhat?

Went. Keep your thoughts! believe the King
Mistrusts me for their prattle, all these Vanes
And Saviles! make your mind up, o' God's love,
That I am discontented with the King!

Pym. Why, you may be: I should be, that I know,
Were I like you.

Went. Like me?

Pym. I care not much
For titles: our friend Eliot died no lord,
Hampden's no lord, and Savile is a lord;
But you care, since you sold your soul for one.
I can't think, therefore, your soul's purchaser
Did well to laugh you to such utter scorn
When you twice prayed so humbly for its price,
The thirty silver pieces . . . I should say,
The Earldom you expected, still expect,
And may. Your letters were the movingest!
Console yourself: I've borne him prayers just now
From Scotland not to be oppressed by Laud,

Words moving in their way : he'll pay, be sure,
As much attention as to those you sent.

Went. False, sir! Who showed them you? Suppose it so,
The King did very well . . . nay, I was glad
When it was shown me : I refused, the first!
John Pym, you were my friend — forbear me once!

Pym. Oh, Wentworth, ancient brother of my soul,
That all should come to this!

Went. Leave me!

Pym. My friend,
Why should I leave you?

Went. To tell Rudyard this,
And Hampden this!

Pym. — Whose faces once were bright
At my approach, now sad with doubt and fear,
Because I hope in you — yes, Wentworth, you
Who never mean to ruin England — you
Who shake off, with God's help, an obscene dream
In this Ezekiel chamber, where it crept
Upon you first, and wake, yourself, your true
And proper self, our Leader, England's Chief,
And Hampden's friend!

This is the proudest day!
Come, Wentworth! Do not even see the King!
The rough old room will seem itself again!
We'll both go in together : you've not seen
Hampden so long: come: and there's Fiennes: you'll have
To know young Vane. This is the proudest day!

[The KING enters. WENTWORTH lets fall PYM's hand

Cha. Arrived, my lord? — This gentleman, we know
Was your old friend.

The Scots shall be informed
What we determine for their happiness.

[PLYM goes out.

You have made haste, my lord.

Went. Sir, I am come . . .

Cha. To see an old familiar — nay, 't is well ;
Aid us with his experience : this Scots' League
And Covenant spreads too far, and we have proofs
That they intrigue with France : the Faction too,
Whereof your friend there is the head and front,
Abets them, — as he boasted, very like.

Went. Sir, trust me! but for this once, trust me, sir!

Cha. What can you mean?

Went. That you should trust me, sir!
Oh — not for my sake! but 't is sad, so sad

That for distrusting me, you suffer — you
Whom I would die to serve : sir, do you think
That I would die to serve you ?

Cha. But rise, Wentworth !

Went. What shall convince you ? What does Savile do
To prove him . . . Ah, one can't tear out one's heart
And show it, how sincere a thing it is !

Cha. Have I not trusted you ?

Went. Say aught but that !
There is my comfort, mark you : all will be
So different when you trust me — as you shall !
It has not been your fault, — I was away,
Mistook, maligned, how was the King to know ?
I am here, now — he means to trust me, now —
All will go on so well !

Cha. Be sure I do —
I've heard that I should trust you : as you came,
Your friend, the Countess, told me . . .

Went. No, — hear nothing —
Be told nothing about me ! — you're not told
Your right-hand serves you, or your children love you !

Cha. You love me, Wentworth : rise !

Went. I can speak now.
I have no right to hide the truth. 'Tis I
Can save you : only I. Sir, what must be ?

Cha. Since Laud's assured (the minutes are within)
— Loath as I am to spill my subjects' blood . . .

Went. That is, he'll have a war : what's done is done !

Cha. They have intrigued with France ; that's clear to Laud.

Went. Has Laud suggested any way to meet
The war's expense ?

Cha. He'd not decide so far
Until you joined us.

Went. Most considerate !
He's certain they intrigue with France, these Scots ?
The People would be with us.

Cha. Pym should know.

Went. The People for us — were the People for us !
Sir, a great thought comes to reward your trust :
Summon a Parliament ! in Ireland first,
Then, here.

Cha. In truth ?

Went. That saves us ! that puts off
The war, gives time to right their grievances —
(To talk with Pym. I know the Faction — Laud
So styles it — tutors Scotland : all their plans

Suppose no Parliament : in calling one
 You take them by surprise. Produce the proofs
 Of Scotland's treason ; then bid England help :
 Even Pym will not refuse.

Cha. You would begin

With Ireland ?

Went. Take no care for that . that's sure
 To prosper.

Cha. You shall rule me. You were best
 Return at once : but take this ere you go !
 Now, do I trust you ? You're an Earl : my Friend
 Of Friends : yes, while . . . You hear me not !

Went. Say it all o'er again — but once again :
 The first was for the music : once again !

Cha. Strafford, my friend, there may have been reports,
 Vain rumors. Henceforth touching Strafford is
 To touch the apple of my sight : why gaze
 So earnestly ?

Went. I am grown young again,
 And foolish. What was it we spoke of ?

Cha. Ireland,

The Parliament, —

Went. I may go when I will ?

— Now ?

Cha. Are you tired so soon of us ?

Went. My King !

But you will not so utterly abhor
 A Parliament ? I'd serve you any way.

Cha. You said just now this was the only way.

Went. Sir, I will serve you !

Cha. Strafford, spare yourself :

You are so sick, they tell me.

Went. 'Tis my soul

That's well and prospers now.

This Parliament —

We'll summon it, the English one — I'll care
 For everything. You shall not need them much.

Cha. If they prove restive . . .

Went. I shall be with you.

Cha. Ere they assemble ?

Went. I will come, or else

Deposit this infirm humanity

I' the dust. My whole heart stays with you, my King !

[As WENTWORTH goes out, the QUEEN enters

Cha. That man must love me.

Queen.

Is it over then ?

Why, he looks yellower than ever! Well,
At least we shall not hear eternally
Of service — services: he's paid at least.

Cha. Not done with: he engages to surpass
All yet performed in Ireland.

Queen. I had thought
Nothing beyond was ever to be done.
The war, Charles — will he raise supplies enough?

Cha. We've hit on an expedient; he . . . that is,
I have advised . . . we have decided on
The calling — in Ireland — of a Parliament.

Queen. O truly! You agree to that? Is that
The first-fruit of his counsel? But I guessed
As much.

Cha. This is too idle, Henriette!
I should know best. He will strain every nerve,
And once a precedent established . . .

Queen. Notice
How sure he is of a long term of favor!
He'll see the next, and the next after that;
No end to Parliaments!

Cha. Well, it is done.
He talks it smoothly, doubtless. If, indeed,
The Commons here . . .

Queen. Here! you will summon them
Here? Would I were in France again to see
A King!

Cha. But, Henriette . . .

Queen. Oh, the Scots see clear!
Why should they bear your rule?

Cha. But listen, sweet!

Queen. Let Wentworth listen — you confide in him!

Cha. I do not, love, — I do not so confide!
The Parliament shall never trouble us!
. . . Nay, hear me! I have schemes, such schemes: we'll buy
The leaders off: without that, Wentworth's counsel
Had ne'er prevailed on me. Perhaps I call it
To have excuse for breaking it forever,
And whose will then the blame be? See you not?
Come, dearest! — look, the little fairy, now,
That cannot reach my shoulder! Dearest, come!

ACT II.

SCENE I. (As in Act I. Scene I.)

The same Party enters.Rud. Twelve subsidies!Vane. O Rudyard, do not laugh
At least!Rud. True: Strafford called the Parliament —
'T is he should laugh!A Puritan. Out of the serpent's root
Comes forth a cockatrice.Fien. — A stinging one,
If that's the Parliament: twelve subsidies!A stinging one! but, brother, where's your word
For Strafford's other nest-egg, the Scots' war?The Puritan. His fruit shall be a fiery flying serpent.Fien. Shall be? It chips the shell, man; peeps abroad.
Twelve subsidies! — Why, how now, Vane?Rud. Peace, Fiennes!Fien. Ah? — But he was not more a dupe than I,
Or you, or any here, the day that Pym
Returned with the good news. Look up, friend Vane!
We all believed that Strafford meant us well
In summoning the Parliament.(HAMPDEN enters.)Vane. Now, Hampden, Clear me! I would have leave to sleep again:
I'd look the People in the face again:
Clear me from having, from the first, hoped, dreamed
Better of Strafford!Hamp. You may grow one day
A steadfast light to England, Henry Vane!Rud. Meantime, by flashes I make shift to see
Strafford revived our Parliaments; before,
War was but talked of; there's an army, now:
Still, we've a Parliament! Poor Ireland bears
Another wrench (she dies the hardest death!) —
Why, speak of it in Parliament! and lo,
'T is spoken, so console yourselves!Fien. The jest!
We clamored, I suppose, thus long, to win
The privilege of laying on our backs
A sorer burden than the King dares lay!

Rud. Mark now : we meet at length, complaints pour in
From every county, all the land cries out
On loans and levies, curses ship-money,
Calls vengeance on the Star Chamber ; we lend
An ear. “ Ay, lend them all the ears you have ! ”
Puts in the King ; “ my subjects, as you find,
Are fretful, and conceive great things of you.
Just listen to them, friends ; you ’ll sanction me
The measures they most wince at, make them yours,
Instead of mine, I know : and, to begin,
They say my levies pinch them, — raise me straight
Twelve subsidies ! ”

Fien. All England cannot furnish
Twelve subsidies !

Hol. But Strafford, just returned
From Ireland — what has he to do with that ?
How could he speak his mind ? He left before
The Parliament assembled. Pym, who knows
Strafford . . .

Rud. Would I were sure we know ourselves !
What is for good, what, bad — who friend, who foe !

Hol. Do you count Parliaments no gain ?

Rud. A gain ?
While the King’s creatures overbalance us ?
— There ’s going on, beside, among ourselves
A quiet, slow, but most effectual course
Of buying over, sapping, leavening
The lump till all is leaven. Glanville’s gone.
I ’ll put a case ; had not the Court declared
That no sum short of just twelve subsidies
Will be accepted by the King — our House,
I say, would have consented to that offer
To let us buy off ship-money !

Hol. Most like,
If, say, six subsidies will buy it off,
The House . . .

Rud. Will grant them ! Hampden, do you hear ?
Congratulate with me ! the King’s the king,
And gains his point at last — our own assent
To that detested tax ! All’s over, then !
There ’s no more taking refuge in this room,
Protesting, “ Let the King do what he will,
We, England, are no party to our shame :
Our day will come ! ” Congratulate with me !

(Pym enters.)

Vane. Pym, Strafford called this Parliament, you say,
But we'll not have our Parliaments like those
In Ireland, Pym!

Rud. Let him stand forth, your friend!
One doubtful act hides far too many sins;
It can be stretched no more, and, to my mind,
Begins to drop from those it covered.

Other Voices. Good!
Let him avow himself! No fitter time!
We wait thus long for you.

Rud. Perhaps, too long!
Since nothing but the madness of the Court,
In thus unmasking its designs at once,
Has saved us from betraying England. Stay —
This Parliament is Strafford's: let us vote
Our list of grievances too black by far
To suffer talk of subsidies: or best,
That ship-money's disposed of long ago
By England: any vote that's broad enough:
And then let Strafford, for the love of it,
Support his Parliament!

Vane. And vote as well
No war to be with Scotland! Hear you, Pym?
We'll vote, no war! No part nor lot in it
For England!

Many Voices. Vote, no war! Stop the new levies!
No Bishops' war! At once! When next we meet!

Pym. Much more when next we meet! Friends, which of you
Since first the course of Strafford was in doubt,
Has fallen the most away in soul from me?

Vane. I sat apart, even now under God's eye,
Pondering the words that should denounce you, Pym,
In presence of us all, as one at league
With England's enemy.

Pym. You are a good
And gallant spirit, Henry. Take my hand
And say you pardon me for all the pain
Till now! Strafford is wholly ours.

Many Voices. Sure? sure?

Pym. Most sure: for Charles dissolves the Parliament
While I speak here.

— And I must speak, friends, now!
Strafford is ours. The King detects the change,

At slaughter — one blow, only one, then, peace,
 Save for the dreams. I said, to please you both
 I'd lead an Irish army to the West,
 While in the South an English . . . but you look
 As though you had not told me fifty times
 'T was a brave plan! My army is all raised,
 I am prepared' to join it . . .

Cha. Hear me, Strafford!

Straf. . . . When, for some little thing, my whole design
 Is set aside — (where is the wretched paper?)
 I am to lead — (ay, here it is) — to lead
 The English army: why? Northumberland
 That I appointed, chooses to be sick —
 Is frightened: and, meanwhile, who answers for
 The Irish Parliament? or army, either?
 Is this my plan?

Cha. So disrespectful, sir?

Straf. My liege, do not believe it! I am yours,
 Yours ever: 't is too late to think about:
 To the death, yours. Elsewhere, this untoward step
 Shall pass for mine; the world shall think it mine.
 But here! But here! I am so seldom here,
 Seldom with you, my King! I, soon to rush
 Alone upon a giant in the dark!

Cha. My Strafford!

Straf. [examines papers awhile.] "Seize the passes of the Tyne!"

But, sir, you see — see all I say is true?
 My plan was sure to prosper, so, no cause
 To ask the Parliament for help; whereas
 We need them frightfully.

Cha. Need the Parliament?

Straf. Now, for God's sake, sir, not one error more!
 We can afford no error; we draw, now,
 Upon our last resource: the Parliament
 Must help us!

Cha. I've undone you, Strafford!

Straf. Nay —

Nay — why despond, sir, 't is not come to that!
 I have not hurt you? Sir, what have I said
 To hurt you? I unsay it! Don't despond!
 Sir, do you turn from me?

Cha. My friend of friends!

Straf. We'll make a shift. Leave me the Parliament!
 Help they us ne'er so little and I'll make Sufficient out of it. We'll speak them fair.

They're sitting, that's one great thing; that half gives
 Their sanction to us; that's much: don't despond!
 Why, let them keep their money, at the worst!
 The reputation of the People's help
 Is all we want: we'll make shift yet!

Cha.

Good Strafford!

Straf. But meantime, let the sum be ne'er so small
 They offer, we'll accept it: any sum —
 For the look of it: the least grant tells the Scots
 The Parliament is ours — their stanch ally
 Turned ours: that told, there's half the blow to strike!
 What will the grant be? What does Glanville think?

Cha. Alas!

Straf. My liege?

Cha.

Strafford!

Straf.

But answer me!

Have they . . . O surely not refused us half?
 Half the twelve subsidies? We never looked
 For all of them. How many do they give?

Cha. You have not heard . . .

Straf. (What has he done?) — Heard what?
 But speak at once, sir, this grows terrible!

[The King continuing silent.]

You have dissolved them! — I'll not leave this man.

Cha. 'T was old Vane's ill-judged vehemence.

Straf.

Old Vane?

Cha. He told them, just about to vote the half,
 That nothing short of all twelve subsidies
 Would serve our turn, or be accepted.

Straf.

Vane!

Vane! Who, sir, promised me, that very Vane . . .
 O God, to have it gone, quite gone from me,
 The one last hope — I that despair, my hope —
 That I should reach his heart one day, and cure
 All bitterness one day, be proud again
 And young again, care for the sunshine too,
 And never think of Eliot any more, —
 God, and to toil for this, go far for this,
 Get nearer, and still nearer, reach this heart
 And find Vane there!

[Suddenly taking up a paper, and continuing with a forced calmness

Northumberland is sick:

Well, then, I take the army: Wilmot leads
 The horse, and he, with Conway, must secure
 The passes of the Tyne: Ormond supplies
 My place in Ireland. Here, we'll try the City:

If they refuse a loan — debase the coin
 And seize the bullion! we've no other choice.
 Herbert . . .

And this while I am here! with you!
 And there are hosts such, hosts like Vane! I go,
 And, I once gone, they'll close around you, sir,
 When the least pique, pettiest mistrust, is sure
 To ruin me — and you along with me!
 Do you see that? And you along with me!
 — Sir, you'll not ever listen to these men,
 And I away, fighting your battle? Sir,
 If they — if She — charge me, no matter how —
 Say you, "At any time when he returns
 His head is mine!" Don't stop me there! You know
 My head is yours, but never stop me there!

Cha. Too shameful, Strafford! You advised the war,
 And . . .

Straf. I! I! that was never spoken with Till it was entered on! That loathe the war!
 That say it is the maddest, wickedest . . .
 Do you know, sir, I think within my heart,
 That you would say I did advise the war;
 And if, through your own weakness, or, what's worse,
 These Scots, with God to help them, drive me back,
 You will not step between the raging People
 And me, to say . . .

I knew it! from the first
 I knew it! Never was so cold a heart!
 Remember that I said it — that I never Believed you for a moment!

— And, you loved me?

You thought your perfidy profoundly hid
 Because I could not share the whisperings
 With Vane, with Savile? What, the face was masked?
 I had the heart to see, sir! Face of flesh,
 But heart of stone — of smooth cold frightful stone!
 Ay, call them! Shall I call for you? The Scots
 Goaded to madness? Or the English — Pym —
 Shall I call Pym, your subject? Oh, you think
 I'll leave them in the dark about it all?
 They shall not know you? Hampden, Pym shall not?

(PYM, HAMPDEN, VANE, etc., enter.)

[Dropping on his knee.] Thus favored with your gracious countenance
 What shall a rebel League avail against

Your servant, utterly and ever yours?
 So, gentlemen, the King's not even left
 The privilege of bidding me farewell
 Who haste to save the People — that you style
 Your People — from the mercies of the Scots
 And France their friend?

[To CHARLES.] Pym's grave gray eyes are fixed
 Upon you, sir!

Your pleasure, gentlemen.

Hamp. The King dissolved us — 't is the King we seek
 And not Lord Strafford.

Straf. — Strafford, guilty too
 Of counselling the measure. [To CHARLES.] (Hush . . . you know —

You have forgotten — sir, I counselled it)
 A heinous matter, truly! But the King
 Will yet see cause to thank me for a course
 Which now, perchance . . . (Sir, tell them so!) — he blames.
 Well, choose some fitter time to make your charge:
 I shall be with the Scots, you understand?
 Then yelp at me!

Meanwhile, your Majesty
 Binds me, by this fresh token of your trust . . .

[Under the pretence of an earnest farewell, STRAFFORD conducts CHARLES to the door, in such a manner as to hide his agitation from the rest: as the King disappears, they turn as by one impulse to PYM, who has not changed his original posture of surprise.]

Hamp. Leave we this arrogant strong wicked man!
Vane and others. Hence, Pym! Come out of this unworthy place
 To our old room again! He's gone.

[STRAFFORD, just about to follow the King, looks back.

Pym. Not gone!
 [To STRAFFORD.] Keep tryst! the old appointment's made anew:

Forget not we shall meet again!

Straf. So be it!
 And if an army follows me?

Vane. His friends
 Will entertain your army!

Pym. I'll not say
 You have misreckoned, Strafford: time shows.

Perish
 Body and spirit! Fool to feign a doubt,
 Pretend the scrupulous and nice reserve

Of one whose prowess shall achieve the feat!
 What share have I in it? Do I affect
 To see no dismal sign above your head
 When God suspends his ruinous thunder there?
 Strafford is doomed. Touch him no one of you!

[PYM, HAMPDEN, etc., go out.]

Straf. Pym, we shall meet again!

(Lady CARLISLE enters.)

You here, child?

Lady Car. Hush —

I know it all: hush, Strafford!

Straf. Ah! you know?

Well. I shall make a sorry soldier, Lucy!

All knights begin their enterprise, we read,

Under the best of auspices; 't is morn,

The Lady girds his sword upon the Youth

(He's always very young) — the trumpets sound,

Cups pledge him, and, why, the King blesses him —

You need not turn a page of the romance

To learn the Dreadful Giant's fate. Indeed,

We've the fair Lady here; but she apart, —

A poor man, rarely having handled lance,

And rather old, weary, and far from sure

His Squires are not the Giant's friends. All's one:

Let us go forth!

Lady Car. Go forth?

Straf. What matters it?

We shall die gloriously — as the book says.

Lady Car. To Scotland? not to Scotland?

Straf. Am I sick

Like your good brother, brave Northumberland?

Beside, these walls seem falling on me.

Lady Car. Strafford,

The wind that saps these walls can undermine

Your camp in Scotland, too. Whence creeps the wind?

Have you no eyes except for Pym? Look here!

A breed of silken creatures lurk and thrive

In your contempt. You'll vanquish Pym? Old Vane

Can vanquish you. And Vane you think to fly?

Rush on the Scots! Do nobly! Vane's slight sneer

Shall test success, adjust the praise, suggest

The faint result: Vane's sneer shall reach you there.

— You do not listen!

Straf. Oh, — I give that up!

There's fate in it: I give all here quite up.

Care not what old Vane does or Holland does
Against me! 'Tis so idle to withstand!
In no case tell me what they do!

Lady Car. But, Strafford . . .

Straf. I want a little strife, beside; real strife;
This petty palace-warfare does me harm:
I shall feel better, fairly out of it.

Lady Car. Why do you smile?

Straf. I got to fear them, child!
I could have torn his throat at first, old Vane's,
As he leered at me on his stealthy way
To the Queen's closet. Lord, one loses heart!
I often found it on my lips to say,
"Do not traduce me to her!"

Lady Car. But the King . . .

Straf. The King stood there, 'tis not so long ago,
— There; and the whisper, Lucy, "Be my friend
Of friends!" — My King! I would have . . .

Lady Car. . . . Died for him?

Straf. Sworn him true, Lucy: I can die for him.

Lady Car. But go not, Strafford! But you must renounce
This project on the Scots! Die, wherefore die?
Charles never loved you.

Straf. And he never will.
He's not of those who care the more for men
That they're unfortunate.

Lady Car. Then wherefore die
For such a master?

Straf. You that told me first
How good he was — when I must leave true friends
To find a truer friend! — that drew me here
From Ireland, — "I had but to show myself,
And Charles would spurn Vane, Savile, and the rest" —
You, child, to ask me this?

Lady Car. (If he have set
His heart abidingly on Charles!)

Then, friend,
I shall not see you any more.

Straf. Yes, Lucy.
There's one man here I have to meet.

Lady Car. (The King!
What way to save him from the King?)

My soul —
That lent from its own store the charmed disguise
Which clothes the King — he shall behold my soul!
Strafford, — I shall speak best if you'll not gaze

Upon me : I had never thought, indeed,
 To speak, but you would perish too, so sure !
 Could you but know what 't is to bear, my friend,
 One image stamped within you, turning blank
 The else imperial brilliance of your mind, —
 A weakness, but most precious, — like a flaw
 I' the diamond, which should shape forth some sweet face
 Yet to create, and meanwhile treasured there
 Lest nature lose her gracious thought forever !

Straf. When could it be? no! Yet . . . was it the day
 We waited in the anteroom, till Holland
 Should leave the presence-chamber ?

Lady Car.

What ?

Straf.

— That I

Described to you my love for Charles ?

Lady Car.

(Ah, no —

One must not lure him from a love like that !
 Oh, let him love the King and die! 'T is past.
 I shall not serve him worse for that one brief
 And passionate hope, silent forever now !)
 And you are really bound for Scotland then ?
 I wish you well : you must be very sure
 Of the King's faith, for Pym and all his crew
 Will not be idle — setting Vane aside !

Straf. If Pym is busy, — you may write of Pym.

Lady Car. What need, since there's your King to take your part ?

He may endure Vane's counsel ; but for Pym —
 Think you he'll suffer Pym to . . .

Straf.

Child, your hair

Is glossier than the Queen's !

Lady Car.

Is that to ask

A curl of me ?

Straf.

Scotland — the weary way !

Lady Car. Stay, let me fasten it.

— A rival's, Strafford ?

Straf. [showing the George.] He hung it there : twine yours around it, child !

Lady Car. No — no — another time — I trifle so !

And there's a masque on foot. Farewell. The Court
 Is dull ; do something to enliven us
 In Scotland : we expect it at your hands.

Straf. I shall not fail in Scotland.

Lady Car.

Prosper — if

You'll think of me sometimes !

Straf.

How think of him

And not of you? of you, the lingering streak
(A golden one) in my good fortune's 'eve.

Lady Car. Strafford . . . Well, when the eve has its last streak

The night has its first star.

[She goes out.

Straf.

That voice of hers —

You'd think she had a heart sometimes! His voice
Is soft too.

Only God can save him now.

Be Thou about his bed, about his path!

His path! Where's England's path? Diverging wide,

And not to join again the track my foot

Must follow — whither? All that forlorn way

Among the tombs! Far — far — till . . . What, they do

Then join again, these paths? For, huge in the dusk,

There's — Pym to face!

Why then, I have a foe

To close with, and a fight to fight at last

Worthy my soul! What, do they beard the King,

And shall the King want Strafford at his need?

Am I not here?

Not in the market-place,

Pressed on by the rough artisans, so proud

To catch a glance from Wentworth! They lie down

Hungry yet smile, "Why, it must end some day:

Is he not watching for our sake?" Not there!

But in Whitehall, the whited sepulchre,

The . . .

Curse nothing to-night! Only one name

They'll curse in all those streets to-night. Whose fault?

Did I make kings? set up, the first, a man

To represent the multitude, receive

All love in right of them — supplant them so,

Until you love the man and not the king —

The man with the mild voice and mournful eyes

Which send me forth.

— To breast the bloody sea

That sweeps before me: with one star for guide.

Night has its first, supreme, forsaken star.

ACT III.

SCENE I. Opposite Westminster Hall.

SIR HENRY VANE, LORD SAVILE, LORD HOLLAND and others of the Court.

Sir H. Vane. The Commons thrust you out?

Savile.

And what kept you

From sharing their civility?

Sir H. Vane.

Kept me?

Fresh news from Scotland, sir! worse than the last,

If that may be. All's up with Strafford there:

Nothing to bar the mad Scots marching hither

Next Lord's-day morning. That detained me, sir!

Well now, before they thrust you out, — go on, —

Their Speaker — did the fellow Lenthal say

All we set down for him?

Hol.

Not a word missed.

Ere he began, we entered, Savile, I

And Bristol and some more, with hope to breed

A wholesome awe in the new Parliament.

But such a gang of graceless ruffians, Vane,

As glared at us!

Vane.

So many?

Savile.

Not a bench

Without its complement of burly knaves;

Your hopeful son among them: Hampden leant

Upon his shoulder — think of that!

Vane.

I'd think

On Lenthal's speech, if I could get at it.

Urged he, I ask, how grateful they should prove

For this unlooked-for summons from the King?

Hol. Just as we drilled him.

Vane.

That the Scots will march

On London?

Hol.

All, and made so much of it,

A dozen subsidies at least seemed sure

To follow, when . . .

Vane.

Well?

Hol.

'Tis a strange thing now!

I've a vague memory of a sort of sound,

A voice, a kind of vast unnatural voice —

Pym, sir, was speaking! Savile, help me out:

What was it all?

Sav.

Something about "a matter" —

No, — "work for England."

Hol.

"England's great revenge"

He talked of.

*Sav.*How should I get used to Pym
More than yourselves?Hol.

However that may be,
'T was something with which we had nought to do,
For we were "strangers," and 't was "England's work" —
(All this while looking us straight in the face)
In other words, our presence might be spared.
So, in the twinkling of an eye, before
I settled to my mind what ugly brute
Was likest Pym just then, they yelled us out,
Locked the doors after us; and here are we.

Vane. Eliot's old method . . .Sav.

Prithee, Vane, a truce
To Eliot and his times, and the great Duke,
And how to manage Parliaments! 'T was you
Advised the Queen to summon this: why, Strafford
(To do him justice) would not hear of it.

Vane. Say rather, you have done the best of turns
To Strafford: he's at York, we all know why.
I would you had not set the Scots on Strafford
Till Strafford put down Pym for us, my lord!

Sav. Was it I altered Strafford's plans? did I . . .(A Messenger enters.)

Mes. The Queen, my lords — she sends me: follow me
At once; 't is very urgent! she requires
Your counsel: something perilous and strange
Occasions her command.

Sav.

We follow, friend!
Now, Vane; — your Parliament will plague us all!

Vane. No Strafford here beside!Sav.

If you dare hint
I had a hand in his betrayal, sir . . .

Hol. Nay, find a fitter time for quarrels — Pym
Will overmatch the best of you; and, think,
The Queen!

Vane. Come on, then: understand, I loathe
Strafford as much as any — but his use!
To keep off Pym, to screen a friend or two,
I would we had reserved him yet awhile.

SCENE II. Whitehall.The QUEEN and Lady CARLISLE.Queen. It cannot be.Lady Car. It is so.Queen. Why, the House

Have hardly met.

Lady Car. They met for that.Queen. No, no!

Meet to impeach Lord Strafford? 'T is a jest.

Lady Car. A bitter one.Queen. Consider! 'T is the House

We summoned so reluctantly, which nothing

But the disastrous issue of the war

Persuaded us to summon. They 'll wreak all

Their spite on us, no doubt; but the old way

Is to begin by talk of grievances:

They have their grievances to busy them.

Lady Car. Pym has begun his speech.Queen. Where's Vane? — That is,

Pym will impeach Lord Strafford if he leaves

His Presidency; he's at York, we know,

Since the Scots beat him: why should he leave York?

Lady Car. Because the King sent for him.Queen. Ah — but if

The King did send for him, he let him know

We had been forced to call a Parliament —

A step which Strafford, now I come to think,

Was vehement against.

Lady Car. The policy

Escaped him, of first striking Parliaments

To earth, then setting them upon their feet

And giving them a sword: but this is idle.

Did the King send for Strafford? He will come.

Queen. And what am I to do?Lady Car. What do? Fail, madam!

Be ruined for his sake! what matters how,

So it but stand on record that you made

An effort, only one?

Queen. The King away

At Theobald's!

Lady Car. Send for him at once: he must

Dissolve the House.

Queen. Wait till Vane finds the truth
Of the report: then . . .

Lady Car. — It will matter little
What the King does. Strafford that lends his arm
And breaks his heart for you!

(Sir H. VANE enters.)

Vane. The Commons, madam,
Are sitting with closed doors. A huge debate,
No lack of noise; but nothing, I should guess,
Concerning Strafford: Pym has certainly
Not spoken yet.

Queen. [To Lady CARLISLE.] You hear?

Lady Car. I do not hear
That the King's sent for!

Sir H. Vane. Savile will be able
To tell you more.

(HOLLAND enters.)

Queen. The last news, Holland?

Hol. Pym
Is raging like a fire. The whole House means
To follow him together to Whitehall
And force the King to give up Strafford.

Queen. Strafford?

Hol. If they content themselves with Strafford! Laud
Is talked of, Cottington and Windebank too.
Pym has not left out one of them — I would
You heard Pym raging!

Queen. Vane, go find the King!
Tell the King, Vane, the People follow Pym
To brave us at Whitehall!

(SAVILE enters.)

Savile. Not to Whitehall —
'Tis to the Lords they go: they seek redress
On Strafford from his peers — the legal way,
They call it.

Queen. (Wait, Vane!)

Sav. But the adage gives
Long life to threatened men. Strafford can save
Himself so readily: at York, remember,
In his own county: what has he to fear?
The Commons only mean to frighten him
From leaving York. Surely, he will not come.

Queen. Lucy, he will not come!

Lady Car. Once more, the King
Has sent for Strafford. He will come.

Vane. Oh doubtless!
 And bring destruction with him : that 's his way.
 What but his coming spoilt all Conway's plan ?
 The King must take his counsel, choose his friends,
 Be wholly ruled by him ! What 's the result ?
 The North that was to rise, Ireland to help, —
 What came of it ? In my poor mind, a fright
 Is no prodigious punishment.

Lady Car. A fright ?
 Pym will fail worse than Strafford if he thinks
 To frighten him. [To the QUEEN.] You will not save him
 then ?

Sav. When something like a charge is made, the King
 Will best know how to save him : and 't is clear,
 While Strafford suffers nothing by the matter,
 The King may reap advantage : this in question,
 No dinning you with ship-money complaints !

Queen. [To Lady CARLISLE.] If we dissolve them, who will pay the army ?
 Protect us from the insolent Scots ?

Lady Car. In truth,
 I know not, madam. Strafford's fate concerns
 Me little : you desired to learn what course
 Would save him : I obey you.

Vane. Notice, too,
 There can't be fairer ground for taking full
 Revenge — (Strafford's revengeful) — than he'll have Against his old friend Pym.

Queen. Why, he shall claim
 Vengeance on Pym !

Vane. And Strafford, who is he
 To 'scape unscathed amid the accidents
 That harass all beside ? I, for my part,
 Should look for something of discomfiture
 Had the King trusted me so thoroughly
 And been so paid for it.

Hol. He'll keep at York :
 All will blow over : he'll return no worse,
 Humbled a little, thankful for a place
 Under as good a man. Oh, we'll dispense
 With seeing Strafford for a month or two !

(STRAFFORD enters.)

Queen. You here !

Straf. The King sends for me, madam.

Queen. Sir,
 The King . . .

Straf. An urgent matter that imports the King!
 [To Lady CARLISLE.] Why, Lucy, what's in agitation now,
 That all this muttering and shrugging, see,
 Begins at me? They do not speak!

Lady Car. 'Tis welcome!
 For we are proud of you — happy and proud
 To have you with us, Strafford! You were stanch
 At Durham: you did well there! Had you not
 Been stayed, you might have . . . we said, even now,
 Our hope's in you!

Sir H. Vane. [To Lady CARLISLE.] The Queen would speak with you.

Straf. Will one of you, his servants here, vouchsafe
 To signify my presence to the King?

Sav. An urgent matter?

Straf. None that touches you,
 Lord Savile! Say, it were some treacherous
 Sly pitiful intriguing with the Scots —
 You would go free, at least! (They half divine
 My purpose!) Madam, shall I see the King?
 The service I would render, much concerns
 His welfare.

Queen. But his Majesty, my lord,
 May not be here, may . . .

Straf. Its importance, then,
 Must plead excuse for this withdrawal, madam,
 And for the grief it gives Lord Savile here.

Queen. [Who has been conversing with VANE and HOL-
 LAND.] The King will see you, sir!

[To Lady CARLISLE.] Mark me: Pym's worst
 Is done by now: he has impeached the Earl,
 Or found the Earl too strong for him, by now.
 Let us not seem instructed! We should work
 No good to Strafford, but deform ourselves
 With shame in the world's eye. [To STRAFFORD.] His Majesty

Has much to say with you.

Straf. Time fleeting, too!
 [To Lady CARLISLE.] No means of getting them away? And She —

What does she whisper? Does she know my purpose?
 What does she think of it? Get them away!

Queen. [To Lady CARLISLE.] He comes to baffle Pym —
 he thinks the danger

Far off: tell him no word of it! a time
 For help will come; we'll not be wanting then.

Keep him in play, Lucy — you, self-possessed
 And calm! [To STRAFFORD.] To spare your lordship some delay
 I will myself acquaint the King. [To Lady CARLISLE.] Beware!

[The QUEEN, VANE, HOLLAND, and SAVILE go out.]

Straf. She knows it?

Lady Car. Tell me, Strafford!

Straf. Afterward!

This moment's the great moment of all time.

She knows my purpose?

Lady Car. Thoroughly: just now

She bade me hide it from you.

Straf. Quick, dear child,

The whole o' the scheme?

Lady Car. (Ah, he would learn if they

Connive at Pym's procedure! Could they but
 Have once apprised the King! But there's no time
 For falsehood, now.) Strafford, the whole is known.

Straf. Known and approved?

Lady Car. Hardly discountenanced.

Straf. And the King — say, the King consents as well?

Lady Car. The King's not yet informed, but will not dare
 To interpose.

Straf. What need to wait him, then?

He'll sanction it! I stayed, child, tell him, long!

It vexed me to the soul — this waiting here.

You know him, there's no counting on the King.

Tell him I waited long!

Lady Car. (What can he mean?

Rejoice at the King's hollowness?)

Straf. I knew

They would be glad of it, — all over once,

I knew they would be glad: but he'd contrive,

The Queen and he, to mar, by helping it,

An angel's making.

Lady Car. (Is he mad?) Dear Strafford,

You were not wont to look so happy.

Straf. Sweet,

I tried obedience thoroughly. I took

The King's wild plan: of course, ere I could reach

My army, Conway ruined it. I drew

The wrecks together, raised all heaven and earth,

And would have fought the Scots: the King at once

Made truce with them. Then, Lucy, then, dear child,

God put it in my mind to love, serve, die

For Charles, but never to obey him more !
 While he endured their insolence at Ripon
 I fell on them at Durham. But you 'll tell
 The King I waited? All the anteroom
 Is filled with my adherents.

Lady Car. Strafford — Strafford,

What daring act is this you hint ?

Straf. No, no !

'T is here, not daring if you knew ! all here !

[Drawing papers from his breast.]

Full proof ; see, ample proof — does the Queen know
 I have such damning proof? Bedford and Essex,
 Brooke, Warwick, Savile (did you notice Savile ?
 The simper that I spoilt?) Saye, Mandeville —
 Sold to the Scots, body and soul, by Pym !

Lady Car. Great heaven !

Straf. From Savile and his lords, to Pym

And his losels, crushed ! — Pym shall not ward the blow

Nor Savile creep aside from it ! The Crew

And the Cabal — I crush them !

Lady Car.

And you go —

Strafford, — and now you go ? —

Straf.

— About no work

In the background, I promise you ! I go

Straight to the House of Lords to claim these knaves.

Mainwaring !

Lady Car. Stay — stay, Strafford !

Straf.

She 'll return,

The Queen — some little project of her own !

No time to lose : the King takes fright perhaps.

Lady Car. Pym 's strong, remember !

Straf.

Very strong, as fits

The Faction's head — with no offence to Hampden,

Vane, Rudyard, and my loving Hollis : one

And all they lodge within the Tower to-night

In just equality. Bryan ! Mainwaring !

[Many of his Adherents enter.]

The Peers debate just now (a lucky chance)

On the Scots' war ; my visit 's opportune.

When all is over, Bryan, you proceed

To Ireland : these despatches, mark me, Bryan,

Are for the Deputy, and these for Ormond :

We want the army here — my army, raised

At such a cost, that should have done such good,

And was inactive all the time ! no matter,

We 'll find a use for it. Willis . . . or, no — you !

You, friend, make haste to York : bear this, at once . . .
 Or, — better stay for form's sake, see yourself
 The news you carry. You remain with me
 To execute the Parliament's command,
 Mainwaring! Help to seize these lesser knaves,
 Take care there's no escaping at backdoors :
 I'll not have one escape, mind me — not one!
 I seem revengeful, Lucy? Did you know
 What these men dare!

Lady Car. It is so much they dare!

Straf. I proved that long ago; my turn is now.
 Keep sharp watch, Goring, on the citizens!
 Observe who harbors any of the brood
 That scramble off: be sure they smart for it!
 Our coffers are but lean.

And you, child, too,
 Shall have your task; deliver this to Laud.
 Laud will not be the slowest in my praise:
 "Thorough," he'll cry! — Foolish, to be so glad!
 This life is gay and glowing, after all:
 'Tis worth while, Lucy, having foes like mine
 Just for the bliss of crushing them. To-day
 Is worth the living for.

Lady Car. That reddening brow!
 You seem . . .

Straf. Well — do I not? I would be well —
 I could not but be well on such a day!
 And, this day ended, 'tis of slight import
 How long the ravaged frame subjects the soul
 In Strafford.

Lady Car. Noble Strafford!

Straf. No farewell!
 I'll see you anon, to-morrow — the first thing.
 — If She should come to stay me!

Lady Car. Go — 't is nothing —
 Only my heart that swells: it has been thus
 Ere now: go, Strafford!

Straf. To-night, then, let it be.
 I must see Him: you, the next after Him.
 I'll tell you how Pym looked. Follow me, friends!
 You, gentlemen, shall see a sight this hour
 To talk of all your lives. Close after me!
 "My friend of friends!"

[STRAFFORD and the rest go out.]

Lady Car. The King — ever the King!
 No thought of one beside, whose little word

Unveils the King to him — one word from me,
Which yet I do not breathe!

Ah, have I spared

Strafford a pang, and shall I seek reward
Beyond that memory? Surely too, some way
He is the better for my love. No, no —
He would not look so joyous — I'll believe
His very eye would never sparkle thus,
Had I not prayed for him this long, long while.

SCENE III. The Antechamber of the House of Lords.

Many of the Presbyterian Party. The Adherents of STRAFFORD, etc.

A Group of Presbyterians. — 1. I tell you he struck Maxwell: Maxwell sought

To stay the Earl: he struck him and passed on.

2. Fear as you may, keep a good countenance
Before these rufflers.

3. Strafford here the first,
With the great army at his back!

4. No doubt.
I would Pym had made haste: that's Bryan, hush —
The gallant pointing.

Strafford's Followers. — 1. Mark these worthies, now!

2. A goodly gathering! "Where the carcass is
There shall the eagles" — What's the rest?

3. For eagles
Say crows.

A Presbyterian. Stand back, sirs!

One of Strafford's Followers. Are we in Geneva?

A Presbyterian. No, nor in Ireland; we have leave to breathe.

One of Strafford's Followers. Truly? Behold how privileged we be

That serve "King Pym"! There's Some-one at Whitehall
Who skulks obscure; but Pym struts . . .

The Presbyterian. Nearer.

A Follower of Strafford.

Higher,

We look to see him. [To his Companions.] I'm to have St
John

In charge; was he among the knaves just now
That followed Pym within there?

Another. The gaunt man

Talking with Rudyard. Did the Earl expect

Pym at his heels so fast? I like it not.

(MAXWELL enters.)

Another. Why, man, they rush into the net! Here's Maxwell —

Ha, Maxwell? How the brethren flock around
The fellow! Do you feel the Earl's hand yet
Upon your shoulder, Maxwell?

Max. Gentlemen,
Stand back! a great thing passes here.

A Follower of Strafford. [To another.] The Earl
Is at his work! [To M.] Say, Maxwell, what great thing!
Speak out! [To a Presbyterian.] Friend, I've a kindness for you! Friend,
I've seen you with St. John: O stockishness!
Wear such a ruff, and never call to mind
St. John's head in a charger? How, the plague,
Not laugh?

Another. Say, Maxwell, what great thing!

Another. Nay, wait:
The jest will be to wait.

First. And who's to bear
These demure hypocrites? You'd swear they came . . .
Came . . . just as we come!

[A Puritan enters hastily and without observing STRAFFORD'S
Followers.]

The Puritan. How goes on the work?
Has Pym . . .

A Follower of Strafford. The secret's out at last. Aha,
The carrion's scented! Welcome, crow the first!
Gorge merrily, you with the blinking eye!
"King Pym has fallen!"

The Puritan. Pym?

A Strafford. Pym!

A Presbyterian. Only Pym?

Many of Strafford's Followers. No, brother, not Pym only;
Vane as well,

Rudyard as well, Hampden, St. John as well!

A Presbyterian. My mind misgives: can it be true?

Another. Lost! lost!

A Strafford. Say we true, Maxwell?

The Puritan. Pride before destruction,
A haughty spirit goeth before a fall.

Many of Strafford's Followers. Ah now! The very thing!
A word in season!

A golden apple in a silver picture
To greet Pym as he passes!

[The doors at the back begin to open, noise and light issuing]

Max. Stand back, all!

Many of the Presbyterians. I hold with Pym! And I!

Strafford's Followers.

Now for the text!

He comes! Quick!

The Puritan. How hath the oppressor ceased!

The Lord hath broken the staff of the wicked!

The sceptre of the rulers, he who smote

The people in wrath with a continual stroke,

That ruled the nations in his anger — he

Is persecuted and none hindereth!

[The doors open, and STRAFFORD issues in the greatest disorder, and amid cries from within of "Void the House!"]

Straf. Impeach me! Pym! I never struck, I think,

The felon on that calm insulting mouth

When it proclaimed — Pym's mouth proclaimed me . . . God!

Was it a word, only a word that held

The outrageous blood back on my heart — which beats!

Which beats! Some one word — "Traitor," did he say,

Bending that eye, brimful of bitter fire,

Upon me?

Max. In the Commons' name, their servant

Demands Lord Strafford's sword.

Straf. What did you say?

Max. The Commons bid me ask your lordship's sword.

Straf. Let us go forth: follow me, gentlemen!

Draw your swords too: cut any down that bar us.

On the King's service! Maxwell, clear the way!

[The Presbyterians prepare to dispute his passage]

Straf. I stay: the King himself shall see me here.

Your tablets, fellow!

[To MAINWARING.] Give that to the King!

Yes, Maxwell, for the next half-hour, let be!

Nay, you shall take my sword!

[MAXWELL advances to take it]

Or, no — not that!

Their blood, perhaps, may wipe out all thus far,

All up to that — not that! Why, friend, you see

When the King lays your head beneath my foot

It will not pay for that. Go, all of you!

Max. I dare, my lord, to disobey: none stir!

Straf. This gentle Maxwell! — Do not touch him, Bryan!

[To the Presbyterians.] Whichever cur of you will carry this

Escapes his fellow's fate. None saves his life?

None?

[Cries from within of "STRAFFORD!"]

Slingsby, I've loved you at least : make haste !
Stab me ! I have not time to tell you why.

You then, my Bryan ! Mainwaring, you then !

Is it because I spoke so hastily

At Allerton ? The King had vexed me.

[To the Presbyterians.] You !

— Not even you ? If I live over this,

The King is sure to have your heads, you know !

But what if I can't live this minute through ?

Pym, who is there with his pursuing smile !

[Louder cries of "STRAFFORD !"]

The King ! I troubled him, stood in the way

Of his negotiations, was the one

Great obstacle to peace, the Enemy

Of Scotland : and he sent for me, from York,

My safety guaranteed — having prepared

A Parliament — I see ! And at Whitehall

The Queen was whispering with Vane — I see

The trap !

[Tearing off the George.

I tread a gewgaw underfoot,

And cast a memory from me. One stroke, now !

[His own Adherents disarm him. Renewed cries of "STRAFFORD !"]

England ! I see thy arm in this, and yield.

Pray you now — Pym awaits me — pray you now !

[STRAFFORD reaches the doors : they open wide. HAMPDEN and a crowd discovered, and, at the bar, PYM standing apart. As STRAFFORD kneels, the scene shuts.

ACT IV.

SCENE I. Whitehall.

The KING, the QUEEN, HOLLIS, Lady CARLISLE. (VANE, HOLLAND, SAVILE, in the background.)

Lady Car. Answer them, Hollis, for his sake ! One word !

Cha. [To HOLLIS.] You stand, silent and cold, as though I were

Deceiving you — my friend, my playfellow

Of other times. What wonder after all ?

Just so, I dreamed my People loved me.

Hol.

Sir,

It is yourself that you deceive, not me.

You'll quit me comforted, your mind made up

That, since you've talked thus much and grieved thus much,
All you can do for Strafford has been done.

Queen. If you kill Strafford — (come, we grant you leave.
Suppose) —

Hol. I may withdraw, sir?

Lady Car. Hear them out!

'Tis the last chance for Strafford! Hear them out!

Hol. "If we kill Strafford" — on the eighteenth day
Of Strafford's trial — "We!"

Cha. Pym, my good Hollis —
Pym, I should say!

Hol. Ah, true — sir, pardon me!

You witness our proceedings every day;
But the screened gallery, I might have guessed,
Admits of such a partial glimpse at us,
Pym takes up all the room, shuts out the view.
Still, on my honor, sir, the rest of the place
Is not unoccupied. The Commons sit
— That's England; Ireland sends, and Scotland too,
Their representatives; the Peers that judge
Are easily distinguished; one remarks
The People here and there: but the close curtain
Must hide so much!

Queen. Acquaint your insolent crew,
This day the curtain shall be dashed aside!
It served a purpose.

Hol. Think! This very day?
Ere Strafford rises to defend himself?

Cha. I will defend him, sir! — sanction the past
This day: it ever was my purpose. Rage
At me, not Strafford!

Lady Car. Nobly! — will he not
Do nobly?

Hol. Sir, you will do honestly;
And, for that deed, I too would be a king.

Cha. Only, to do this now! — "deaf" (in your style)
"To subjects' prayers," — I must oppose them now.
It seems their will the trial should proceed, —
So palpably their will!

Hol. You peril much,
But it were no bright moment save for that.
Strafford, your prime support, the sole roof-tree
Which props this quaking House of Privilege,
(Floods come, winds beat, and see — the treacherous sand!)
Doubtless, if the mere putting forth an arm
Could save him, you'd save Strafford.

Cha. And they dare
Consummate calmly this great wrong! No hope?
This ineffaceable wrong! No pity then?

Hol. No plague in store for perfidy? — Farewell!
You called me, sir — [To Lady CARLISLE.] You, lady, bade me come

To save the Earl: I came, thank God for it,
To learn how far such perfidy can go!
You, sir, concert with me on saving him
Who have just ruined Strafford!

Cha. I? — and how?

Hol. Eighteen days long he throws, one after one,
Pym's charges back: a blind moth-eaten law!
— He'll break from it at last: and whom to thank?
The mouse that gnawed the lion's net for him
Got a good friend, — but he, the other mouse,
That looked on while the lion freed himself —
Fared he so well, does any fable say?

Cha. What can you mean?

Hol. Pym never could have proved
Strafford's design of bringing up the troops
To force this kingdom to obedience: Vane —
Your servant, not our friend, has proved it.

Cha. Vane?

Hol. This day. Did Vane deliver up or no
Those notes which, furnished by his son to Pym,
Seal Strafford's fate?

Cha. Sir, as I live, I know
Nothing that Vane has done! What treason next?
I wash my hands of it. Vane, speak the truth!
Ask Vane himself!

Hol. I will not speak to Vane,
Who speak to Pym and Hampden every day.

Queen. Speak to Vane's master then! What gain to him
Were Strafford's death?

Hol. Ha? Strafford cannot turn
As you, sir, sit there — bid you forth, demand
If every hateful act were not set down
In his commission? — whether you contrived
Or no, that all the violence should seem
His work, the gentle ways — your own, — his part,
To counteract the King's kind impulses —
While . . . but you know what he could say! And then
He might produce, — mark, sir! — a certain charge
To set the King's express command aside,
If need were, and be blameless. He might add . . .

Cha. Enough!

Hol. — Who bade him break the Parliament,
Find some pretence for setting up sword-law!

Queen. Retire!

Cha. Once more, whatever Vane dared do,
I know not: he is rash, a fool — I know
Nothing of Vane!

Hol. Well — I believe you. Sir,
Believe me, in return, that . . .
[Turning to Lady CARLISLE.] Gentle lady,
The few words I would say, the stones might hear
Sooner than these, — I rather speak to you,
You, with the heart! The question, trust me, takes
Another shape, to-day: not, if the King
Or England shall succumb, — but, who shall pay
The forfeit, Strafford or his master. Sir,
You loved me once: think on my warning now! [Goes out]

Cha. On you and on your warning both! — Carlisle!
That paper!

Queen. But consider!

Cha. Give it me!
There, signed — will that content you? Do not speak!
You have betrayed me, Vane! See! any day,
According to the tenor of that paper,
He bids your brother bring the army up,
Strafford shall head it and take full revenge.
Seek Strafford! Let him have the same, before
He rises to defend himself!

Queen. In truth?
That your shrewd Hollis should have worked a change
Like this! You, late reluctant . . .

Cha. Say, Carlisle,
Your brother Percy brings the army up,
Falls on the Parliament — (I'll think of you,
My Hollis!) say, we plotted long — 't is mine,
The scheme is mine, remember! Say, I cursed
Vane's folly in your hearing! If the Earl
Does rise to do us shame, the fault shall lie
With you, Carlisle!

Lady Car. Nay, fear not me! but still
That's a bright moment, sir, you throw away.
Tear down the veil and save him!

Queen.

Go, Carlisle!

Lady Car. (I shall see Strafford — speak to him: my heart
Must never beat so, then! And if I tell
The truth? What's gained by falsehood? There they stand

Whose trade it is, whose life it is! How vain
To gild such rottenness! Strafford shall know, Thoroughly know them!)

Queen. Trust to me! [To CARLISLE.] Carlisle,
You seem inclined, alone of all the Court,
To serve poor Strafford: this bold plan of yours
Merits much praise, and yet . . .

Lady Car. Time presses, madam.

Queen. Yet — may it not be something premature?
Strafford defends himself to-day — reserves
Some wondrous effort, one may well suppose!

Lady Car. Ay, Hollis hints as much.

Cha. Why linger then?
Haste with the scheme — my scheme: I shall be there
To watch his look. Tell him I watch his look!

Queen. Stay, we'll precede you!

Lady Car. At your pleasure.

Cha.

Say —

Say, Vane is hardly ever at Whitehall!
I shall be there, remember!

Lady Car. Doubt me not.

Cha. On our return, Carlisle, we wait you here!

Lady Car. I'll bring his answer. Sir, I follow you.
(Prove the King faithless, and I take away
All Strafford cares to live for: let it be —
'T is the King's scheme!)

My Strafford, I can save,
Nay, I have saved you, yet am scarce content,
Because my poor name will not cross your mind.
Strafford, how much I am unworthy you!)

SCENE II. A passage adjoining Westminster Hall.

Many groups of Spectators of the Trial. Officers of the Court, etc.

1st Spec. More crowd than ever! Not know Hampden, man?
That's he, by Pym, Pym that is speaking now.
No, truly, if you look so high you'll see
Little enough of either!

2d Spec. Stay: Pym's arm
Points like a prophet's rod.

3d Spec. Ay, ay, we've heard
Some pretty speaking: yet the Earl escapes.

4th Spec. I fear it: just a foolish word or two
About his children — and we see, forsooth,
Not England's foe in Strafford, but the man
Who, sick, half-blind . . .

2d Spec. What's that Pym's saying now
Which makes the curtains flutter? look! A hand
Clutches them. Ah! The King's hand!

5th Spec. I had thought
Pym was not near so tall. What said he, friend?

2d Spec. "Nor is this way a novel way of blood,"
And the Earl turns as if to . . . Look! look!

Many Spectators. There!
What ails him? No — he rallies, see — goes on,
And Strafford smiles. Strange!

An Officer. Haselrig!

Many Spectators. Friend? Friend?

The Officer. Lost, utterly lost: just when we looked for Pym

To make a stand against the ill effects
Of the Earl's speech! Is Haselrig without?
Pym's message is to him.

3d Spec. Now, said I true?
Will the Earl leave them yet at fault or no?

1st Spec. Never believe it, man! These notes of Vane's Ruin the Earl.

5th Spec. A brave end: not a whit
Less firm, less Pym all over. Then, the trial
Is closed. No — Strafford means to speak again?

An Officer. Stand back, there!

5th Spec. Why, the Earl is coming hither!
Before the court breaks up! His brother, look, —
You'd say he'd deprecated some fierce act
In Strafford's mind just now.

An Officer. Stand back, I say!

2d Spec. Who's the veiled woman that he talks with?

Many Spectators. Hush —
The Earl! the Earl!

[Enter STRAFFORD, SLINGSBY, and other Secretaries, HOLLIS, Lady
CARLISLE, MAXWELL, BALFOUR, etc. STRAFFORD converses with Lady CARLISLE.]

Hol. So near the end! Be patient —
Return!

Straf. [To his Secretaries.] Here — anywhere — or, 't is freshest here!

To spend one's April here, the blossom-month:
Set it down here!

[They arrange a table, papers, etc.]

So, Pym can quail, can cower
Because I glance at him, yet more's to do.
What's to be answered, Slingsby? Let us end!

[To Lady CARLISLE.] Child, I refuse his offer ; whatsoe'er
It be ! Too late ! Tell me no word of him !
'Tis something, Hollis, I assure you that —
To stand, sick as you are, some eighteen days
Fighting for life and fame against a pack
Of very curs, that lie through thick and thin,
Eat flesh and bread by wholesale, and can't say
"Strafford" if it would take my life !

Lady Car.

Be moved !

Glance at the paper !

Straf.

Already at my heels !

Pym's faulting bloodhounds scent the track again.
Peace, child ! Now, Slingsby !

[Messengers from LANE and other of STRAFFORD'S Counsel within the Hall are coming and going during the Scene.]

Straf. [setting himself to write and dictate.] I shall beat you, Hollis !

Do you know that ? In spite of St. John's tricks,
In spite of Pym — your Pym who shrank from me !
Eliot would have contrived it otherwise.

[To a Messenger.] In truth ? This slip, tell Lane, contains as much

As I can call to mind about the matter.
Eliot would have disdained . . .

[Calling after the Messenger.] And Radcliffe, say,
The only person who could answer Pym,
Is safe in prison, just for that.

Well, well !

It had not been recorded in that case,
I baffled you.

[To Lady CARLISLE.] Nay, child, why look so grieved ?
All's gained without the King ! You saw Pym quail ?
What shall I do when they acquit me, think you,
But tranquilly resume my task as though
Nothing had intervened since I proposed
'To call that traitor to account ! Such tricks,
Trust me, shall not be played a second time,
Not even against Laud, with his gray hair —
Your good work, Hollis ! Peace ! To make amends,
You, Lucy, shall be here when I impeach
Pym and his fellows.

Hol.

Wherefore not protest

Against our whole proceeding, long ago ?
Why feel indignant now ? Why stand this while Enduring patiently ?

Straf.

Child, I'll tell you —

You, and not Pym — you, the slight graceful girl
Tall for a flowering lily, and not Hollis —
Why I stood patient! I was fool enough
To see the will of England in Pym's will;
To fear, myself had wronged her, and to wait
Her judgment: when, behold, in place of it . . .

[To a Messenger who whispers.] Tell Lane to answer no such question! Law, —

I grapple with their law! I'm here to try
My actions by their standard, not my own!
Their law allowed that levy: what's the rest
To Pym, or Lane, any but God and me?

Lady Car. The King's so weak! Secure this chance!

'T was Vane,

Never forget, who furnished Pym the notes . . .

Straf. Fit, — very fit, those precious notes of Vane,
To close the Trial worthily! I feared
Some spice of nobleness might linger yet
And spoil the character of all the past.
Vane eased me . . . and I will go back and say
As much — to Pym, to England! Follow me,
I have a word to say! There, my defence
Is done!

Stay! why be proud? Why care to own
My gladness, my surprise? — Nay, not surprise!
Wherefore insist upon the little pride
Of doing all myself, and sparing him
The pain? Child, say the triumph is my King's!
When Pym grew pale, and trembled, and sank down,
One image was before me: could I fail?
Child, care not for the past, so indistinct,
Obscure — there's nothing to forgive in it,
'T is so forgotten! From this day begins
A new life, founded on a new belief
In Charles.

Hol. In Charles? Rather believe in Pym!
And here he comes in proof! Appeal to Pym!
Say how unfair . . .

Straf. To Pym? I would say nothing!
I would not look upon Pym's face again.

Lady Car. Stay, let me have to think I pressed your hand!

[STRAFFORD and his Friends go out

(Enter HAMPDEN and VANE.)

Vane. O Hampden, save the great misguided man!
Plead Strafford's cause with Pym! I have remarked
He moved no muscle when we all declaimed

Against him : you had but to breathe — he turned
Those kind calm eyes upon you.

[Enter PYM, the Solicitor-General ST. JOHN, the Managers of the Trial, FIENNES, RUDYARD, etc.

Rud. Horrible!
Till now all hearts were with you : I withdraw
For one. Too horrible ! But we mistake
Your purpose, Pym : you cannot snatch away
The last spar from the drowning man.

Fien. He talks
With St. John of it — see, how quietly !
[To other Presbyterians.] You 'll join us ? Strafford may deserve the worst :

But this new course is monstrous. Vane, take heart !
This Bill of his Attainder shall not have
One true man's hand to it.

Vane. Consider, Pym !
Confront your Bill, your own Bill : what is it ?
You cannot catch the Earl on any charge, —
No man will say the law has hold of him
On any charge ; and therefore you resolve
To take the general sense on his desert,
As though no law existed, and we met
To found one. You refer to Parliament
To speak its thought upon the abortive mass
Of half-borne-out assertions, dubious hints
Hereafter to be cleared, distortions — ay,
And wild inventions. Every man is saved
The task of fixing any single charge
On Strafford : he has but to see in him
The enemy of England.

Pym. A right scruple !
I have heard some called England's enemy
With less consideration.

Vane. Pity me !
Indeed you made me think I was your friend !
I who have murdered Strafford, how remove
That memory from me ?

Pym. I absolve you, Vane.
Take you no care for aught that you have done !

Vane. John Hampden, not this Bill ! Reject this Bill !
He staggers through the ordeal : let him go,
Strew no fresh fire before him ! Plead for us !
When Strafford spoke, your eyes were thick with tears !

Hamp. England speaks louder : who are we, to play
The generous pardoner at her expense,

Magnanimously waive advantages,
And, if he conquer us, applaud his skill?

Vane. He was your friend.

Pym. I have heard that before.

Fien. And England trusts you.

Hamp. Shame be his, who turns

The opportunity of serving her
She trusts him with, to his own mean account —
Who would look nobly frank at her expense!

Fien. I never thought it could have come to this.

Pym. But I have made myself familiar, Fiennes,
With this one thought — have walked, and sat, and slept,
This thought before me. I have done such things,
Being the chosen man that should destroy
The traitor. You have taken up this thought
To play with, for a gentle stimulant,
To give a dignity to idler life
By the dim prospect of emprise to come,
But ever with the softening, sure belief,
That all would end some strange way right at last.

Fien. Had we made out some weightier charge!

Pym.

You say

That these are petty charges: can we come
To the real charge at all? There he is safe
In tyranny's stronghold. Apostasy
Is not a crime, treachery not a crime:
The cheek burns, the blood tingles, when you speak
The words, but where's the power to take revenge
Upon them? We must make occasion serve, —
The oversight shall pay for the main sin
That mocks us.

Rud. But this unexampled course,
This Bill!

Pym. By this, we roll the clouds away
Of precedent and custom, and at once
Bid the great beacon-light God sets in all,
The conscience of each bosom, shine upon
The guilt of Strafford: each man lay his hand
Upon his breast, and judge!

Vane. I only see
Strafford, nor pass his corpse for all beyond!

Rud. and others. Forgive him! He would join us, now he finds

What the King counts reward! The pardon, too,
Should be your own. Yourself should bear to Strafford
The pardon of the Commons.

Pym. Meet him? Strafford?
 Have we to meet once more, then? Be it so!
 And yet — the prophecy seemed half fulfilled
 When, at the Trial, as he gazed, my youth,
 Our friendship, divers thoughts came back at once
 And left me, for a time . . . 'T is very sad!
 To-morrow we discuss the points of law
 With Lane — to-morrow?

Vane. Not before to-morrow —
 So, time enough! I knew you would relent!

Pym. The next day, Haselrig, you introduce
 The Bill of his Attainder. Pray for me!

SCENE III. Whitehall.The KING.

Cha. My loyal servant! To defend himself
 Thus irresistibly, — withholding aught
 That seemed to implicate us!

We have done
 Less gallantly by Strafford. Well, the future
 Must recompense the past.

She tarries long.
 I understand you, Strafford, now!

The scheme —
 Carlisle's mad scheme — he'll sanction it, I fear,
 For love of me. 'T was too precipitate:
 Before the army's fairly on its march,
 He'll be at large: no matter.

Well, Carlisle?

(Enter Pym.)

Pym. Fear me not, sir: — my mission is to save,
 This time.

Cha. To break thus on me! unannounced!

Pym. It is of Strafford I would speak.

Cha. No more
 Of Strafford! I have heard too much from you.

Pym. I spoke, sir, for the People; will you hear
 A word upon my own account?

Cha. Of Strafford?
 (So turns the tide already? Have we tamed
 The insolent brawler? — Strafford's eloquence
 Is swift in its effect.) Lord Strafford, sir,
 Has spoken for himself.

Pym. Sufficiently.

I would apprise you of the novel course
The People take : the Trial fails.

Cha.

Yes, yes :

We are aware, sir : for your part in it
Means shall be found to thank you.

Pym.

Pray you, read

This schedule ! I would learn from your own mouth
— (It is a matter much concerning me) —

Whether, if two Estates of us concede
The death of Strafford, on the grounds set forth
Within that parchment, you, sir, can resolve
To grant your own consent to it. This Bill
Is framed by me. If you determine, sir,
That England's manifested will should guide
Your judgment, ere another week such will Shall manifest itself. If not, — I cast
Aside the measure.

Cha.

You can hinder, then,

The introduction of this Bill ?

Pym.

I can.

Cha. He is my friend, sir : I have wronged him : mark you,
Had I not wronged him, this might be. You think
Because you hate the Earl . . . (turn not away,
We know you hate him) — no one else could love
Strafford : but he has saved me, some affirm.

Think of his pride ! And do you know one strange,
One frightful thing ? We all have used the man
As though a drudge of ours, with not a source
Of happy thoughts except in us ; and yet
Strafford has wife and children, household cares,
Just as if we had never been. Ah, sir,

You are moved, even you, a solitary man

Wed to your cause — to England if you will !

Pym. Yes — think, my soul — to England ! Draw not back :

Cha. Prevent that Bill, sir ! All your course seems fair

Till now. Why, in the end, 't is I should sign

The warrant for his death ! You have said much

I ponder on ; I never meant, indeed,

Strafford should serve me any more. I take

The Commons' counsel ; but this Bill is yours —

Nor worthy of its leader : care not, sir,

For that, however ! I will quite forget

You named it to me. You are satisfied ?

Pym. Listen to me, sir ! Eliot laid his hand,

Wasted and white, upon my forehead once ;

Wentworth — he's gone now! — has talked on, whole nights.
 And I beside him; Hampden loves me: sir,
 How can I breathe and not wish England well,
 And her King well?

Cha. I thank you, sir, who leave
 That King his servant. Thanks, sir!

Pym. Let me speak!

— Who may not speak again; whose spirit yearns
 For a cool night after this weary day:
 — Who would not have my soul turn sicker yet
 In a new task, more fatal, more august,
 More full of England's utter weal or woe.
 I thought, sir, could I find myself with you,
 After this trial, alone, as man to man —
 I might say something, warn you, pray you, save —
 Mark me, King Charles, save — you!
 But God must do it. Yet I warn you, sir —
 (With Strafford's faded eyes yet full on me)
 As you would have no deeper question moved
 — "How long the Many must endure the One,"
 Assure me, sir, if England give assent
 To Strafford's death, you will not interfere!
 Or —

Cha. God forsakes me. I am in a net
 And cannot move. Let all be as you say!

(Enter Lady CARLISLE.)

Lady Car. He loves you — looking beautiful with joy
 Because you sent me! he would spare you all
 The pain! he never dreamed you would forsake
 Your servant in the evil day — nay, see
 Your scheme returned! That generous heart of his!
 He needs it not — or, needing it, disdains
 A course that might endanger you — you, sir,
 Whom Strafford from his inmost soul . . .

[Seeing PYM.] Well met!

No fear for Strafford! All that's true and brave
 On your own side shall help us: we are now
 Stronger than ever.

Ha — what, sir, is this?
 All is not well! What parchment have you there?

Pym. Sir, much is saved us both.

Lady Car. This Bill! Your lip
 Whitens — you could not read one line to me
 Your voice would falter so!

Pym. No recreant yet!
The great word went from England to my soul,
And I arose. The end is very near.

Lady Car. I am to save him! All have shrunk beside;
'T is only I am left. Heaven will make strong
The hand now as the heart. Then let both die!

ACT V.

SCENE I. Whitehall.

HOLLIS, Lady CARLISLE.

Hol. Tell the King then! Come in with me!

Lady Car.

Not so!

He must not hear till it succeeds.

Hol.

Succeed?

No dream was half so vain — you'd rescue Strafford
And outwit Pym! I cannot tell you . . . lady,
The block pursues me, and the hideous show.
To-day . . . is it to-day? And all the while He's sure of the King's pardon. Think, I have
To tell this man he is to die. The King
May rend his hair, for me! I'll not see Strafford!

Lady Car. Only, if I succeed, remember — Charles
Has saved him. He would hardly value life
Unless his gift. My stanch friends wait. Go in —
You must go in to Charles!

Hol.

And all beside
Left Strafford long ago. The King has signed
The warrant for his death! the Queen was sick
Of the eternal subject. For the Court, —
The Trial was amusing in its way,
Only too much of it: the Earl withdrew
In time. But you, fragile, alone, so young,
Amid rude mercenaries — you devise
A plan to save him! Even though it fails,
What shall reward you?

Lady Car.

I may go, you think,
To France with him? And you reward me, friend,
Who lived with Strafford even from his youth
Before he set his heart on state-affairs
And they bent down that noble brow of his.
I have learned somewhat of his latter life,
And all the future I shall know: but, Hollis,

I ought to make his youth my own as well,
Tell me, — when he is saved!

Hol. My gentle friend,
He should know all and love you, but 't is vain!

Lady Car. Love? no — too late now! Let him love the King!

'T is the King's scheme! I have your word, remember!
We'll keep the old delusion up. But, quick!

Quick! Each of us has work to do, beside!
Go to the King! I hope — Hollis — I hope!

Say nothing of my scheme! Hush, while we speak
Think where he is! Now for my gallant friends!

Hol. Where he is? Calling wildly upon Charles,
Guessing his fate, pacing the prison-floor.
Let the King tell him! I'll not look on Strafford.

SCENE II. The Tower.

O bell' andare
Per barca in mare,
Verso la sera
Di Primavera!

William. The boat's in the broad moonlight all this while —

Verso la sera
Di Primavera!

And the boat shoots from underneath the moon
Into the shadowy distance; only still
You hear the dipping oar —

Verso la sera,

And faint, and fainter, and then all's quite gone,
Music and light and all, like a lost star.

Anne. But you should sleep, father: you were to sleep.

Straf. I do sleep, Anne; or if not — you must know
There's such a thing as . . .

Wil. You're too tired to sleep.

Straf. It will come by-and-by and all day long,
In that old quiet house I told you of:

We sleep safe there.

Anne. Why not in Ireland?

Straf. No!

Too many dreams! — That song's for Venice, William:
You know how Venice looks upon the map —
Isles that the mainland hardly can let go?

Wil. You've been to Venice, father?

Straf. I was young, then.

Wil. A city with no King; that's why I like
Even a song that comes from Venice.

Straf. William!

Wil. Oh, I know why! Anne, do you love the King?
But I'll see Venice for myself one day.

Straf. See many lands, boy — England last of all, —
That way you'll love her best.

Wil. Why do men say
You sought to ruin her, then?

Straf. Ah, — they say that.

Wil. Why?

Straf. I suppose they must have words to say,
As you to sing.

Anne. But they make songs beside:
Last night I heard one, in the street beneath,
That called you . . . Oh, the names!

Wil. Don't mind her, father!
They soon left off when I cried out to them.

Straf. We shall so soon be out of it, my boy!
'T is not worth while: who heeds a foolish song?

Wil. Why, not the King.

Straf. Well: it has been the fate
Of better; and yet, — wherefore not feel sure
That time, who in the twilight comes to mend
All the fantastic day's caprice, consign
To the low ground once more the ignoble Term,
And raise the Genius on his orb again, —
That time will do me right?

Anne. (Shall we sing, William?
He does not look thus when we sing.)

Straf. For Ireland,
Something is done: too little, but enough
To show what might have been.

Wil. (I have no heart
To sing now! Anne, how very sad he looks!
Oh, I so hate the King for all he says!)

Straf. Forsook them! What, the common songs will run
That I forsook the People? Nothing more?
Ay, fame, the busy scribe, will pause, no doubt,
Turning a deaf ear to her thousand slaves
Noisy to be enrolled, — will register
The curious glosses, subtle notices,
Ingenious clearings-up one fain would see

Beside that plain inscription of The Name —
The Patriot Pym, or the Apostate Strafford!

[The Children resume their song timidly, but break off.

(Enter HOLLIS and an Attendant.)

Straf. No, — Hollis? in good time! — Who is he?

Hol. One

That must be present.

Straf. Ah — I understand.

They will not let me see poor Laud alone.

How politic! They'd use me by degrees

To solitude: and, just as you came in,

I was solicitous what life to lead

When Strafford's "not so much as Constable

In the King's service." Is there any means

To keep one's self awake? What would you do

After this bustle, Hollis, in my place?

Hol. Strafford!

Straf. Observe, not but that Pym and you

Will find me news enough — news I shall hear

Under a quince-tree by a fish-pond side

At Wentworth. Garrard must be re-engaged

My newsman. Or, a better project now —

What if when all's consummated, and the Saints

Reign, and the Senate's work goes swimmingly, —

What if I venture up, some day, unseen,

To saunter through the Town, notice how Pym,

Your Tribune, likes Whitehall, drop quietly

Into a tavern, hear a point discussed,

As, whether Strafford's name were John or James —

And be myself appealed to — I, who shall

Myself have near forgotten!

Hol. . . . I would speak . . .

Straf. Then you shall speak, — not now. I want just now,

To hear the sound of my own tongue. This place

Is full of ghosts.

Hol. Nay, you must hear me, Strafford!

Straf. Oh, readily! Only, one rare thing more, —

The minister! Who will advise the King,

Turn his Sejanus, Richelieu and what not,

And yet have health — children, for aught I know —

My patient pair of traitors! Ah, — but, William —

Does not his cheek grow thin?

Wil. 'Tis you look thin,

Father!

Straf. A scamper o'er the breezy wolds

Sets all to-rights.

Hol. You cannot sure forget
A prison-roof is o'er you, Strafford ?

Straf. No,
Why, no. I would not touch on that, the first.
I left you that. Well, Hollis ? Say at once,
The King can find no time to set me free !
A mask at Theobald's ?

Hol. Hold : no such affair
Detains him.

Straf. True : what needs so great a matter ?
The Queen's lip may be sore. Well : when he pleases, —
Only, I want the air : it vexes flesh
To be pent up so long.

Hol. The King — I bear
His message, Strafford : pray you, let me speak !

Straf. Go, William ! Anne, try o'er your song again !
[The Children retire]

They shall be loyal, friend, at all events.
I know your message : you have nothing new
To tell me : from the first I guessed as much.
I know, instead of coming here himself,
Leading me forth in public by the hand,
The King prefers to leave the door ajar
As though I were escaping — bids me trudge
While the mob gapes upon some show prepared
On the other side of the river ! Give at once
His order of release ! I've heard, as well
Of certain poor manœuvres to avoid
The granting pardon at his proper risk ;
First, he must prattle somewhat to the Lords,
Must talk a trifle with the Commons first,
Be grieved I should abuse his confidence,
And far from blaming them, and . . . Where's the order ?

Hol. Spare me !

Straf. Why, he 'd not have me steal away ?
With an old doublet and a steeple hat
Like Prynne's ? Be smuggled into France, perhaps ?
Hollis, 't is for my children ! 'T was for them
I first consented to stand day by day
And give your Puritans the best of words,
Be patient, speak when called upon, observe
Their rules, and not return them prompt their lie !
What's in that boy of mine that he should prove
Son to a prison-breaker ? I shall stay
And he 'll stay with me. Charles should know as much,
He too has children !

[Turning to HOLLIS's companion.] Sir, you feel for me!
 No need to hide that face! Though it have looked Upon me from the judgment-seat . . . I know
 Strangely, that somewhere it has looked on me . . .
 Your coming has my pardon, nay, my thanks:
 For there is one who comes not.

Hol. Whom forgive,
 As one to die!

Straf. True, all die, and all need
 Forgiveness: I forgive him from my soul.

Hol. 'T is a world's wonder: Strafford, you must die!

Straf. Sir, if your errand is to set me free
 This heartless jest mars much. Ha! Tears in truth?
 We'll end this! See this paper, warm — feel — warm
 With lying next my heart! Whose hand is there?
 Whose promise? Read, and loud for God to hear!
 "Strafford shall take no hurt"—read it, I say!
 "In person, honor, nor estate"—

Hol. The King . . .

Straf. I could unking him by a breath! You sit
 Where Loudon sat, who came to prophesy
 The certain end, and offer me Pym's grace
 If I'd renounce the King: and I stood firm
 On the King's faith. The King who lives . . .

Hol. To sign

The warrant for your death.

Straf. "Put not your trust
 In princes, neither in the sons of men,
 In whom is no salvation!"

Hol. Trust in God!
 The scaffold is prepared: they wait for you:
 He has consented. Cast the earth behind!

Cha. You would not see me, Strafford, at your foot!
 It was wrung from me! Only, curse me not!

Hol. [To STRAFFORD.] As you hope grace and pardon in your need,
 Be merciful to this most wretched man.

[Voices from within.

Verso la sera
Di Primavera.

Straf. You'll be good to those children, sir? I know
 You'll not believe her, even should the Queen
 Think they take after one they rarely saw.
 I had intended that my son should live
 A stranger to these matters: but you are

So utterly deprived of friends! He too
 Must serve you — will you not be good to him?
 Or, stay, sir, do not promise — do not swear!
 You, Hollis — do the best you can for me!
 I've not a soul to trust to: Wandesford's dead,
 And you've got Radcliffe safe, Laud's turn comes next:
 I've found small time of late for my affairs,
 But I trust any of you, Pym himself —
 No one could hurt them: there's an infant, too —
 These tedious cares! Your Majesty could spare them.
 Nay — pardon me, my King! I had forgotten
 Your education, trials, much temptation,
 Some weakness: there escaped a peevish word —
 'T is gone: I bless you at the last. You know
 All's between you and me: what has the world
 To do with it? Farewell!

Cha. [at the door.] Balfour! Balfour!

(Enter BALFOUR.)

The Parliament! — go to them: I grant all
 Demands. Their sittings shall be permanent:
 Tell them to keep their money if they will:
 I'll come to them for every coat I wear
 And every crust I eat: only I choose
 To pardon Strafford. As the Queen shall choose!
 — You never heard the People howl for blood,
 Beside!

Bal. Your Majesty may hear them now:
 The walls can hardly keep their murmurs out:
 Please you retire!

Cha. Take all the troops, Balfour!

Bal. There are some hundred thousand of the crowd.

Cha. Come with me, Strafford! You'll not fear, at least!

Straf. Balfour, say nothing to the world of this!

I charge you, as a dying man, forget
 You gazed upon this agony of one . . .
 Of one . . . or if . . . why you may say, Balfour,
 The King was sorry: 't is no shame in him:
 Yes, you may say he even wept, Balfour,
 And that I walked the lighter to the block
 Because of it. I shall walk lightly, sir!
 Earth fades, heaven breaks on me: I shall stand next
 Before God's throne: the moment's close at hand
 When man the first, last time, has leave to lay
 His whole heart bare before its Maker, leave
 To clear up the long error of a life

And choose one happiness for evermore.
 With all mortality about me, Charles,
 The sudden wreck, the dregs of violent death —
 What if, despite the opening angel-song,
 There penetrate one prayer for you? Be saved
 Through me! Bear witness, no one could prevent
 My death! Lead on! ere he awake — best, now!
 All must be ready: did you say, Balfour,
 The crowd began to murmur? They'll be kept
 Too late for sermon at St. Antholin's!
 Now! But tread softly — children are at play
 In the next room. Precede! I follow —

(Enter Lady CARLISLE, with many Attendants.)

Lady Car.

Me!

Follow me, Strafford, and be saved! — The King?
 [To the KING.] Well — as you ordered, they are ranged without,

The convoy . . . [seeing the KING's state.]
 [To STRAFFORD.] You know all, then! Why, I thought
 It looked best that the King should save you, — Charles
 Alone; 't is a shame that you should owe me aught.
 Or no, not shame! Strafford, you'll not feel shame
 At being saved by me?

Hol.

All true! Oh Strafford,
 She saves you! all her deed! this lady's deed!
 And is the boat in readiness? You, friend,
 Are Billingsley, no doubt. Speak to her, Strafford!
 See how she trembles, waiting for your voice!
 The world's to learn its bravest story yet.

Lady Car. Talk afterward! Long nights in France enough,
 To sit beneath the vines and talk of home.

Straf. You love me, child? Ah, Strafford can be loved
 As well as Vane! I could escape, then?

Haste!

Advance the torches, Bryan!

Straf.

I will die.

They call me proud: but England had no right,
 When she encountered me — her strength to mine —
 To find the chosen foe a craven. Girl,
 I fought her to the utterance, I fell,
 I am hers now, and I will die. Beside,
 The lookers-on! Eliot is all about
 This place, with his most uncomplaining brow.

Lady Car. Strafford!

Straf.

I think if you could know how much
 I love you, you would be repaid, my friend!

Lady Car. Then, for my sake!

Straf.

Even for your sweet sake,

I stay.

Hol. For their sake!

Straf.

To bequeath a stain?

Leave me! Girl, humor me and let me die!

Lady Car. Bid him escape — wake, King! Bid him escape!

Straf. True, I will go! Die, and forsake the King?

I'll not draw back from the last service.

Lady Car. Strafford!

Straf.

And, after all, what is disgrace to me?

Let us come, child! That it should end this way,

Lead then! but I feel strangely: it was not

To end this way.

Lady Car. Lean — lean on me!

Straf.

My King!

Oh, had he trusted me — his friend of friends!

Lady Car. I can support him, Hollis!

Straf.

Not this way!

This gate — I dreamed of it, this very gate.

Lady Car. It opens on the river: our good boat

Is moored below, our friends are there.

Straf.

The same:

Only with something ominous and dark,

Fatal, inevitable.

Lady Car. Strafford! Strafford!

Straf. Not by this gate! I feel what will be there!

I dreamed of it, I tell you: touch it not!

Lady Car. To save the King, — Strafford, to save the King!

[As STRAFFORD opens the door, PYM is discovered with HAMPDEN, VANE, etc. STRAFFORD falls back; PYM follows slowly and confronts him.

Pym. Have I done well? Speak, England! Whose sole sake

I still have labored for, with disregard

To my own heart, — for whom my youth was made

Barren, my manhood waste, to offer up

Her sacrifice — this friend, this Wentworth here —

Who walked in youth with me, loved me, it may be,

And whom, for his forsaking England's cause,

I hunted by all means (trusting that she

Would sanctify all means) even to the block

Which waits for him. And saying this, I feel

No bitterer pang than first I felt, the hour

I swore that Wentworth might leave us, but I

Would never leave him: I do leave him now.

I render up my charge (be witness, God!)
 To England who imposed it. I have done
 Her bidding — poorly, wrongly, — it may be,
 With ill effects — for I am weak, a man:
 Still, I have done my best, my human best,
 Not faltering for a moment. It is done.
 And this said, if I say . . . yes, I will say
 I never loved but one man — David not
 More Jonathan! Even thus, I love him now:
 And look for my chief portion in that world
 Where great hearts led astray are turned again,
 (Soon it may be, and, certes, will be soon:
 My mission over, I shall not live long,) —
 Ay, here I know I talk — I dare and must,
 Of England, and her great reward, as all
 I look for there; but in my inmost heart,
 Believe, I think of stealing quite away
 To walk once more with Wentworth — my youth's friend
 Purged from all error, gloriously renewed,
 And Eliot shall not blame us. Then indeed . . .
 This is no meeting, Wentworth! Tears increase
 Too hot. A thin mist — is it blood? — enwraps
 The face I loved once. Then, the meeting be!

Straf. I have loved England too; we'll meet then, Pym;
 As well die now! Youth is the only time
 To think and to decide on a great course:
 Manhood with action follows; but 't is dreary
 To have to alter our whole life in age —
 The time past, the strength gone! As well die now.
 When we meet, Pym, I'd be set right — not now!
 Best die. Then if there's any fault, fault too
 Dies, smothered up. Poor gray old little Laud
 May dream his dream out, of a perfect Church,
 In some blind corner. And there's no one left.
 I trust the King now wholly to you, Pym!
 And yet, I know not: I shall not be there:
 Friends fail — if he have any. And he's weak,
 And loves the Queen, and . . . Oh, my fate is nothing —
 Nothing! But not that awful head — not that!

Pym. If England shall declare such will to me . . .

Straf. Pym, you help England! I, that am to die,
 What I must see! 't is here — all here! My God,
 Let me but gasp out, in one word of fire,
 How thou wilt plague him, satiating hell!
 What? England that you help, become through you
 A green and putrefying charnel, left

Our children . . . some of us have children, Pym —
 Some who, without that, still must ever wear
 A darkened brow, an over-serious look,
 And never properly be young! No word?
 What if I curse you? Send a strong curse forth
 Clothed from my heart, lapped round with horror till
 She's fit with her white face to walk the world
 Scaring kind natures from your cause and you —
 Then to sit down with you at the board-head,
 The gathering for prayer . . . O speak, but speak!
 . . . Creep up, and quietly follow each one home,
 You, you, you, be a nestling care for each
 To sleep with, — hardly moaning in his dreams,
 She gnaws so quietly, — till, lo he starts,
 Gets off with half a heart eaten away!
 Oh, shall you 'scape with less if she's my child?
 You will not say a word — to me — to Him?

Pym. If England shall declare such will to me . . .

Straf. No, not for England now, not for Heaven now, —
 See, Pym, for my sake, mine who kneel to you!
 There, I will thank you for the death, my friend!
 This is the meeting: let me love you well!

Pym. England, — I am thine own! Dost thou exact
 That service? I obey thee to the end.

Straf. O God, I shall die first — I shall die first!

SORDELLO

1840

TO J. MILSAND, OF DIJON.

DEAR FRIEND: Let the next poem be introduced by your name, therefore remembered along with one of the deepest of my affections, and so repay all trouble it ever cost me. I wrote it twenty-five years ago for only a few, counting even in these on somewhat more care about its subject than they really had. My own faults of expression were many; but with care for a man or book such would be surmounted, and without it what avails the faultlessness of either? I blame nobody, least of all myself, who did my best then and since; for I lately gave time and pains to turn my work into what the many might — instead of what the few must — like; but after all, I imagined another thing at first, and therefore leave as I find it. The historical decoration was purposely of no more importance than a background requires; and my stress lay on the incidents in the development of a soul: little else is worth study. I, at least, always thought so; you, with many known and unknown to me, think so; others may one day think so; and whether my attempt remain for them or not, I trust, though away and past it, to continue ever yours,

R. B.

LONDON, June 9, 1863.

BOOK THE FIRST.

WHO will, may hear Sordello's story told:
His story? Who believes me shall behold
The man, pursue his fortunes to the end,
Like me: for as the friendless-people's friend
Spied from his hill-top once, despite the din
And dust of multitudes, Pentapolin
Named o' the Naked Arm, I single out
Sordello, compassed murkily about
With ravage of six long sad hundred years.
Only believe me. Ye believe?

Appears

Verona . . . Never, I should warn you first,
Of my own choice had this, if not the worst
Yet not the best expedient, served to tell

A story I could body forth so well
 By making speak, myself kept out of view,
 The very man as he was wont to do,
 And leaving you to say the rest for him.
 Since, though I might be proud to see the dirt
 Abysmal past divide its hateful surge,
 Letting of all men this one man emerge
 Because it pleased me, yet, that moment past,
 I should delight in watching first to last
 His progress as you watch it, not a whit
 More in the secret than yourselves who sit
 Fresh-chapleted to listen. But it seems
 Your setters-forth of unexampled themes,
 Makers of quite new men, producing them,
 Would best chalk broadly on each vesture's hem
 The wearer's quality ; or take their stand,
 Motley on back and pointing-pole in hand,
 Beside him. So, for once I face ye, friends,
 Summoned together from the world's four ends,
 Dropped down from heaven or cast up from hell,
 To hear the story I propose to tell.
 Confess now, poets know the dragnet's trick,
 Catching the dead, if fate denies the quick,
 And shaming her ; 't is not for fate to choose
 Silence or song because she can refuse
 Real eyes to glisten more, real hearts to ache
 Less oft, real brows turn smoother for our sake :
 I have experienced something of her spite ;
 But there 's a realm wherein she has no right
 And I have many lovers. Say, but few Friends fate accords me ? Here they are : now view
 The host I muster ! Many a lighted face
 Foul with no vestige of the grave's disgrace ;
 What else should tempt them back to taste our air
 Except to see how their successors fare ?
 My audience ! and they sit, each ghostly man
 Striving to look as living as he can,
 Brother by breathing brother ; thou art set,
 Clear-witted critic, by . . . but I 'll not fret
 A wondrous soul of them, nor move death's spleen
 Who loves not to unlock them. Friends ! I mean
 The living in good earnest — ye elect
 Chiefly for love — suppose not I reject
 Judicious praise, who contrary shall peep,
 Some fit occasion, forth, for fear ye sleep,
 To glean your bland approvals. Then, appear,

Verona! stay — thou, spirit, come not near
 Now — not this time desert thy cloudy place
 To scare me, thus employed, with that pure face!
 I need not fear this audience, I make free
 With them, but then this is no place for thee!
 The thunder-phrase of the Athenian, grown
 Up out of memories of Marathon,
 Would echo like his own sword's griding screech
 Braying a Persian shield, — the silver speech
 Of Sidney's self, the starry paladin,
 Turn intense as a trumpet sounding in
 The knights to tilt, — wert thou to hear! What heart
 Have I to play my puppets, bear my part
 Before these worthies?

Lo, the past is hurled
 In twain: up-thrust, out-staggering on the world,
 Subsiding into shape, a darkness rears
 Its outline, kindles at the core, appears
 Verona. 'T is six hundred years and more
 Since an event. The Second Friedrich wore
 The purple, and the Third Honorius filled
 The holy chair. That autumn eve was stilled:
 A last remains of sunset dimly burned
 O'er the far forests, like a torch-flame turned
 By the wind back upon its bearer's hand
 In one long flare of crimson; as a brand,
 The woods beneath lay black. A single eye
 From all Verona cared for the soft sky.
 But, gathering in its ancient market-place,
 Talked group with restless group; and not a face
 But wrath made livid, for among them were Death's stanch purveyors, such as have in care
 To feast him. Fear had long since taken root
 In every breast, and now these crushed its fruit,
 The ripe hate, like a wine: to note the way
 It worked while each grew drunk! Men grave and gray
 Stood, with shut eyelids, rocking to and fro,
 Letting the silent luxury trickle slow
 About the hollows where a heart should be;
 But the young gulped with a delirious glee
 Some foretaste of their first debauch in blood
 At the fierce news: for, be it understood,
 Envoys apprised Verona that her prince
 Count Richard of Saint Boniface, joined since
 A year with Azzo, Este's Lord, to thrust
 Taurello Salinguerra, prime in trust

With Ecelin Romano, from his seat
 Ferrara, — over-zealous in the feat
 And stumbling on a peril unaware,
 Was captive, trammelled in his proper snare,
 They phrase it, taken by his own intrigue.
 Immediate succor from the Lombard League
 Of fifteen cities that affect the Pope,
 For Azzo, therefore, and his fellow-hope
 Of the Guelf cause, a glory overcast!
 Men's faces, late agape, are now aghast.
 "Prone is the purple pavis; Este makes
 Mirth for the devil when he undertakes
 To play the Ecelin; as if it cost
 Merely your pushing-by to gain a post
 Like his! The patron tells ye, once for all,
 There be sound reasons that preferment fall
 On our beloved" . . .

"Duke o' the Rood, why not?"
 Shouted an Estian, "grudge ye such a lot?
 The hill-cat boasts some cunning of her own,
 Some stealthy trick to better beasts unknown,
 That quick with prey enough her hunger blunts,
 And feeds her fat while gaunt the lion hunts."
 "Taurello," quoth an envoy, "as in wane
 Dwelt at Ferrara. Like an osprey fain
 To fly but forced the earth his couch to make
 Far inland, till his friend the tempest wake,
 Waits he the Kaiser's coming; and as yet
 That fast friend sleeps, and he too sleeps: but let
 Only the billow freshen, and he snuffs
 The aroused hurricane ere it enrougths
 The sea it means to cross because of him.
 Sinketh the breeze? His hope-sick eye grows dim;
 Creep closer on the creature! Every day
 Strengthens the Pontiff; Ecelin, they say,
 Dozes now at Oliero, with dry lips
 Telling upon his perished finger-tips
 How many ancestors are to depose
 Ere he be Satan's Viceroy when the doze
 Deposits him in hell. So, Guelfs rebuilt
 Their houses; not a drop of blood was spilt
 When Cino Bocchimpane chanced to meet
 Buccio Virtù — God's wafer, and the street
 Is narrow! Tutti Santi, think, a-swarm
 With Ghibellins, and yet he took no harm!
 This could not last. Off Salinguerra went

To Padua, Podestà, 'with pure intent,'
 Said he, 'my presence, judged the single bar
 To permanent tranquillity, may jar
 No longer' — so! his back is fairly turned?
 The pair of goodly palaces are burned,
 The gardens ravaged, and our Guelfs laugh, drunk
 A week with joy. The next, their laughter sunk
 In sobs of blood, for they found, some strange way,
 Old Salinguerra back again — I say,
 Old Salinguerra in the town once more
 Uprooting, overturning, flame before,
 Blood fetlock-high beneath him. Azzo fled;
 Who 'scaped the carnage followed; then the dead
 Were pushed aside from Salinguerra's throne,
 He ruled once more Ferrara, all alone.
 Till Azzo, stunned awhile, revived, would pounce
 Coupled with Boniface, like lynx and ounce,
 On the gorged bird. The burghers ground their teeth
 To see troop after troop encamp beneath
 I' the standing corn thick o'er the scanty patch
 It took so many patient months to snatch
 Out of the marsh; while just within their walls
 Men fed on men. At length Taurello calls
 A parley: 'let the Count wind up the war!'
 Richard, light-hearted as a plunging star,
 Agrees to enter for the kindest ends
 Ferrara, flanked with fifty chosen friends,
 No horse-boy more, for fear your timid sort
 Should fly Ferrara at the bare report.
 Quietly through the town they rode, jog-jog;
 'Ten, twenty, thirty, — curse the catalogue
 Of burnt Guelf houses! Strange, Taurello shows
 Not the least sign of life' — whereat arose
 A general growl: 'How? With his victors by?
 I and my Veronese? My troops and I?
 Receive us, was your word?' So jogged they on,
 Nor laughed their host too openly: once gone
 Into the trap!" —

Six hundred years ago!

Such the time's aspect and peculiar woe
 (Yourselves may spell it yet in chronicles,
 Albeit the worm, our busy brother, drills
 His sprawling path through letters anciently
 Made fine and large to suit some abbot's eye)
 When the new Hohenstauffen dropped the mask,
 Flung John of Brienne's favor from his casque,

Forswore crusading, had no mind to leave
 Saint Peter's proxy leisure to retrieve
 Losses to Otho and to Barbaross,
 Or make the Alps less easy to recross ;
 And, thus confirming Pope Honorius' fear,
 Was excommunicate that very year.
 "The triple-bearded Teuton come to life !"
 Groaned the Great League ; and, arming for the strife,
 Wide Lombardy, on tiptoe to begin,
 Took up, as it was Guelf or Ghibellin,
 Its cry ; what cry ?

"The Emperor to come !"

His crowd of feudatories, all and some,
 That leapt down with a crash of swords, spears, shields,
 One fighter on his fellow, to our fields,
 Scattered anon, took station here and there,
 And carried it, till now, with little care —
 Cannot but cry for him ; how else rebut
 Us longer ? Cliffs, an earthquake suffered jut
 In the mid-sea, each domineering crest
 Which naught save such another throe can wrest
 From out (conceive) a certain chokeweed grown
 Since o'er the waters, twine and tangle thrown
 Too thick, too fast accumulating round,
 Too sure to over-riot and confound
 Ere long each brilliant islet with itself
 Unless a second shock save shoal and shelf,
 Whirling the sea-drift wide : alas, the bruised
 And sullen wreck ! Sunlight to be diffused
 For that ! Sunlight, 'neath which, a scum at first,
 The million fibres of our chokeweed nurst
 Dispread themselves, mantling the troubled main,
 And, shattered by those rocks, took hold again,
 So kindly blazed it — that same blaze to brood
 O'er every cluster of the multitude
 Still hazarding new clasps, ties, filaments,
 An emulous exchange of pulses, vents
 Of nature into nature ; till some growth
 Unfancied yet, exuberantly clothe
 A surface solid now, continuous, one :
 "The Pope, for us the People, who begun
 The People, carries on the People thus,
 To keep that Kaiser off and dwell with us !"
 See you ?

Or say, Two Principles that live
 Each fitly by its Representative.

"Hill-cat" — who called him so? — the gracefullest
 Adventurer, the ambiguous stranger-guest
 Of Lombardy (sleek but that ruffling fur,
 Those talons to their sheath!) whose velvet purr
 Soothes jealous neighbors when a Saxon scout
 — Arpo or Yoland, is it? — one without
 A country or a name, presumes to couch
 Beside their noblest; until men avouch
 That, of all Houses in the Trevisan,
 Conrad descries no fitter, rear or van,
 Than Ecelo! They laughed as they enrolled
 That name at Milan on the page of gold,
 Godego's lord, — Ramon, Marostica,
 Cartiglian, Bassano, Loria,
 And every sheep-cote on the Suabian's fief!
 No laughter when his son, "the Lombard Chief"
 Forsooth, as Barbarossa's path was bent
 To Italy along the Vale of Trent,
 Welcomed him at Roncaglia! Sadness now —
 The hamlets nested on the Tyrol's brow,
 The Asolan and Euganean hills,
 The Rhetian and the Julian, sadness fills
 Them all, for Ecelin vouchsafes to stay
 Among and care about them; day by day
 Choosing this pinnacle, the other spot,
 A castle building to defend a cot,
 A cot built for a castle to defend,
 Nothing but castles, castles, nor an end
 To boasts how mountain ridge may join with ridge
 By sunken gallery and soaring bridge.
 He takes, in brief, a figure that beseems
 The grisliest nightmare of the Church's dreams,
 — A Signory firm-rooted, unestranged
 From its old interests, and nowise changed
 By its new neighborhood: perchance the vaunt
 Of Otho, "my own Este shall supplant
 Your Este," come to pass. The sire led in
 A son as cruel; and this Ecelin
 Had sons, in turn, and daughters sly and tall
 And curling and compliant; but for all
 Romano (so they styled him) throve, that neck
 Of his so pinched and white, that hungry cheek
 Proved 't was some fiend, not him, the man's-flesh went
 To feed: whereas Romano's instrument,
 Famous Taurello Salinguerra, sole
 I' the world, a tree whose boughs were slipt the bole

Successively, why should not he shed blood
 To further a design? Men understood
 Living was pleasant to him as he wore
 His careless surcoat, glanced some missive o'er,
 Propped on his truncheon in the public way,
 While his lord lifted writhen hands to pray,
 Lost at Oliero's convent.

Hill-cats, face

Our Azzo, our Guelf-Lion! Why disgrace
 A worthiness conspicuous near and far (Atii at Rome while free and consular,
 Este at Padua who repulsed the Hun)
 By trumpeting the Church's princely son?
 — Styled Patron of Rovigo's Polesine,
 Ancona's march, Ferrara's . . . ask, in fine,
 Our chronicles, commenced when some old monk
 Found it intolerable to be sunk
 (Vexed to the quick by his revolting cell)
 Quite out of summer while alive and well:
 Ended when by his mat the Prior stood,
 'Mid busy promptings of the brotherhood,
 Striving to coax from his decrepit brains
 The reason Father Porphyry took pains
 To blot those ten lines out which used to stand
 First on their charter drawn by Hildebrand.

The same night wears. Verona's rule of yore
 Was vested in a certain Twenty-four;
 And while within his palace these debate
 Concerning Richard and Ferrara's fate,
 Glide we by clapping doors, with sudden glare
 Of cressets vented on the dark, nor care
 For aught that's seen or heard until we shut
 The smother in, the lights, all noises but
 The carroch's booming: safe at last! Why strange
 Such a recess should lurk behind a range
 Of banquet-rooms? Your finger — thus — you push
 A spring, and the wall opens, would you rush
 Upon the banqueters, select your prey,
 Waiting (the slaughter-weapons in the way
 Strewing this very bench) with sharpened ear
 A preconcerted signal to appear;
 Or if you simply crouch with beating heart,
 Bearing in some voluptuous pageant part
 To startle them. Nor mutes nor masquers now;
 Nor any . . . does that one man sleep whose brow
 The dying lamp-flame sinks and rises o'er?

What woman stood beside him? not the more
 Is he unfastened from the earnest eyes
 Because that arras fell between! Her wise
 And lulling words are yet about the room,
 Her presence wholly poured upon the gloom
 Down even to her vesture's creeping stir.
 And so reclines he, saturate with her,
 Until an outcry from the square beneath
 Pierces the charm: he springs up, glad to breathe,
 Above the cunning element, and shakes
 The stupor off as (look you) morning breaks
 On the gay dress, and, near concealed by it,
 The lean frame like a half-burnt taper, lit
 Erst at some marriage-feast, then laid away
 Till the Armenian bridegroom's dying day,
 In his wool wedding-robe.

For he — for he,
 Gate-vein of this hearts' blood of Lombardy,
 (If I should falter now) — for he is thine!
 Sordello, thy forerunner, Florentine!
 A herald-star I know thou didst absorb
 Relentless into the consummate orb
 That scared it from its right to roll along
 A sempiternal path with dance and song
 Fulfilling its allotted period,
 Serenest of the progeny of God —
 Who yet resigns it not! His darling stoops
 With no quenched lights, desponds with no blank troops
 Of disenfranchised brilliances, for, blent
 Utterly with thee, its shy element
 Like thine upburneth prosperous and clear,
 Still, what if I approach the august sphere
 Named now with only one name, disentwine
 That under-current soft and argentine
 From its fierce mate in the majestic mass
 Leavened as the sea whose fire was mixt with glass
 In John's transcendent vision, — launch once more
 That lustre? Dante, pacer of the shore
 Where glutton hell disgorgeth filthiest gloom,
 Unbitten by its whirring sulphur-spume —
 Or whence the grieved and obscure waters slope
 Into a darkness quieted by hope;
 Plucker of amaranths grown beneath God's eye
 In gracious twilights where his chosen lie,
 I would do this! If I should falter now!
 In Mantua territory half is slough,

Half pine-tree forest ; maples, scarlet-oaks
 Breed o'er the river-beds ; even Mincio chokes
 With sand the summer through : but 't is morass
 In winter up to Mantua walls. There was,
 Some thirty years before this evening's coil,
 One spot reclaimed from the surrounding spoil,
 Goito ; just a castle built amid
 A few low mountains ; firs and larches hid
 Their main defiles, and rings of vineyard bound
 The rest. Some captured creature in a pound,
 Whose artless wonder quite precludes distress,
 Secure beside in its own loveliness,
 So peered with airy head, below, above,
 The castle at its toils, the lapwings love
 To glean among at grape-time. Pass within.
 A maze of corridors contrived for sin,
 Dusk winding-stairs, dim galleries got past,
 You gain the inmost chambers, gain at last
 A maple-panelled room : that haze which seems
 Floating about the panel, if there gleams
 A sunbeam over it, will turn to gold
 And in light-graven characters unfold
 The Arab's wisdom everywhere ; what shade
 Marred them a moment, those slim pillars made,
 Cut like a company of palms to prop
 The roof, each kissing top entwined with top,
 Leaning together ; in the carver's mind
 Some knot of bacchanals, flushed cheek combined
 With straining forehead, shoulders purpled, hair
 Diffused between, who in a goat-skin bear
 A vintage ; graceful sister-palms ! But quick
 To the main wonder, now. A vault, see ; thick
 Black shade about the ceiling, though fine slits
 Across the buttress suffer light by fits
 Upon a marvel in the midst. Nay, stoop —
 A dullish gray-streaked cumbrous font, a group
 Round it, — each side of it, where'er one sees, —
 Upholds it ; shrinking Caryatides
 Of just-tinged marble like Eve's liliated flesh
 Beneath her maker's finger when the fresh
 First pulse of life shot brightening the snow.
 The font's edge burthens every shoulder, so
 They muse upon the ground, eyelids half closed ;
 Some, with meek arms behind their backs disposed,
 Some, crossed above their bosoms, some, to veil
 Their eyes, some, propping chin and cheek so pale,

Some, hanging slack an utter helpless length
 Dead as a buried vestal whose whole strength
 Goes when the grate above shuts heavily.
 So dwell these noiseless girls, patient to see,
 Like priestesses because of sin impure
 Penanced forever, who resigned endure,
 Having that once drunk sweetness to the dregs.
 And every eve, Sordello's visit begs
 Pardon for them : constant as eve he came
 To sit beside each in her turn, the same
 As one of them, a certain space : and awe
 Made a great indistinctness till he saw
 Sunset slant cheerful through the buttress-chinks,
 Gold seven times globed ; surely our maiden shrinks
 And a smile stirs her as if one faint grain
 Her load were lightened, one shade less the stain
 Obscured her forehead, yet one more bead slipt
 From off the rosary whereby the crypt
 Keeps count of the contritions of its charge ?
 Then with a step more light, a heart more large,
 He may depart, leave her and every one
 To linger out the penance in mute stone.
 Ah, but Sordello ? 'T is the tale I mean
 To tell you.

In this castle may be seen,
 On the hill-tops, or underneath the vines,
 Or eastward by the mound of firs and pines
 That shuts out Mantua, still in loneliness,
 A slender boy in a loose page's dress,
 Sordello : do but look on him awhile
 Watching ('t is autumn) with an earnest smile
 The noisy flock of thievish birds at work
 Among the yellowing vineyards ; see him lurk
 ('T is winter with its sullenest of storms)
 Beside that arras-length of broidered forms,
 On tiptoe, lifting in both hands a light
 Which makes yon warrior's visage flutter bright
 — Ecelo, dismal father of the brood,
 And Ecelin, close to the girl he wooed,
 Auria, and their Child, with all his wives
 From Agnes to the Tuscan that survives,
 Lady of the castle, Adelaide. His face
 — Look, now he turns away ! Yourselves shall trace
 (The delicate nostril swerving wide and fine,
 A sharp and restless lip, so well combine
 With that calm brow) a soul fit to receive

Delight at every sense ; you can believe
 Sordello foremost in the regal class
 Nature has broadly severed from her mass
 Of men, and framed for pleasure, as she frames
 Some happy lands, that have luxurious names,
 For loose fertility ; a footfall there
 Suffices to upturn to the warm air
 Half-germinating spices ; mere decay
 Produces richer life ; and day by day
 New pollen on the lily-petal grows,
 And still more labyrinthine buds the rose.
 You recognize at once the finer dress
 Of flesh that amply lets in loveliness
 At eye and ear, while round the rest is furled
 (As though she would not trust them with her world)
 A veil that shows a sky not near so blue,
 And lets but half the sun look fervid through.
 How can such love ? — like souls on each full-fraught
 Discovery brooding, blind at first to aught
 Beyond its beauty, till exceeding love
 Becomes an aching weight ; and, to remove
 A curse that haunts such natures — to preclude
 Their finding out themselves can work no good
 To what they love nor make it very blest
 By their endeavor, — they are fain invest
 The lifeless thing with life from their own soul,
 Availing it to purpose, to control,
 To dwell distinct and have peculiar joy
 And separate interests that may employ
 That beauty fitly, for its proper sake.
 Nor rest they here ; fresh births of beauty wake
 Fresh homage, every grade of love is past,
 With every mode of loveliness : then cast
 Inferior idols off their borrowed crown
 Before a coming glory. Up and down
 Runs arrowy fire, while earthly forms combine
 To throb the secret forth ; a touch divine —
 And the scaled eyeball owns the mystic rod ;
 Visibly through his garden walketh God.

So fare they. Now revert. One character
 Denotes them through the progress and the stir, —
 A need to blend with each external charm,
 Bury themselves, the whole heart wide and warm, —
 In something not themselves ; they would belong
 To what they worship — stronger and more strong
 Thus prodigally fed — which gathers shape

And feature, soon imprisons past escape
 The votary framed to love and to submit
 Nor ask, as passionate he kneels to it,
 Whence grew the idol's empery. So runs
 A legend; light had birth ere moons and suns,
 Flowing through space a river and alone,
 Till chaos burst and blank the spheres were strown
 Hither and thither, foundering and blind:
 When into each of them rushed light — to find
 Itself no place, foiled of its radiant chance.
 Let such forego their just inheritance!
 For there's a class that eagerly looks, too,
 On beauty, but, unlike the gentler crew,
 Proclaims each new revelation born a twin
 With a distinctest consciousness within
 Referring still the quality, now first
 Revealed, to their own soul — its instinct nursed
 In silence, now remembered better, shown
 More thoroughly, but not the less their own;
 A dream come true; the special exercise
 Of any special function that implies
 The being fair, or good, or wise, or strong,
 Dormant within their nature all along —
 Whose fault? So homage, other souls direct
 Without, turns inward. "How should this deject
 Thee, soul?" they murmur; "wherefore strength be quelled
 Because, its trivial accidents withheld,
 Organs are missed that clog the world, inert,
 Wanting a will, to quicken and exert,
 Like thine — existence cannot satiate,
 Cannot surprise? Laugh thou at envious fate,
 Who, from earth's simplest combination stamp't
 With individuality — uncramp't
 By living its faint elemental life,
 Dost soar to heaven's complexest essence, rife
 With grandeurs, unaffronted to the last,
 Equal to being all!"

In truth? Thou hast
 Life, then — wilt challenge life for us: our race
 Is vindicated so, obtains its place
 In thy ascent, the first of us; whom we
 May follow, to the meanest, finally,
 With our more bounded wills?

Ah, but to find
 A certain mood enervate such a mind,
 Counsel it slumber in the solitude

Thus reached, nor, stooping, task for mankind's good
 Its nature just as life and time accord
 "— Too narrow an arena to reward
 Emprise — the world's occasion worthless since
 Not absolutely fitted to evince
 Its mastery!" Or if yet worse befall,
 And a desire possess it to put all
 That nature forth, forcing our straitened sphere
 Contain it, — to display completely here
 The mastery another life should learn,
 Thrusting in time eternity's concern, —
 So that Sordello . . .

Fool, who spied the mark

Of leprosy upon him, violet-dark
 Already as he loiters? Born just now,
 With the new century, beside the glow
 And efflorescence out of barbarism;
 Witness a Greek or two from the abysm
 That stray through Florence-town with studious air,
 Calming the chisel of that Pisan pair:
 If Nicolo should carve a Christus yet!
 While at Siena is Guidone set,
 Forehead on hand; a painful birth must be
 Matured ere Saint Eufemia's sacristy
 Or transept gather fruits of one great gaze
 At the moon: look you! The same orange haze, —
 The same blue stripe round that — and, in the midst,
 Thy spectral whiteness, Mother-maid, who didst
 Pursue the dizzy painter!

Woe, then, worth

Any officious babble letting forth
 The leprosy confirmed and ruinous
 To spirit lodged in a contracted house!
 Go back to the beginning, rather; blend
 It gently with Sordello's life; the end
 Is piteous, you may see, but much between Pleasant enough. Meantime, some pyx to screen
 The full-grown pest, some lid to shut upon
 The goblin! So they found at Babylon,
 (Colleagues, mad Lucius and sage Antonine)
 Sacking the city, by Apollo's shrine,
 In rummaging among the rarities,
 A certain coffer; he who made the prize
 Opened it greedily; and out there curled
 Just such another plague, for half the world
 Was stung. Crawl in then, hag, and couch asquat,

Keeping that blotchy bosom thick in spot
 Until your time is ripe ! The coffer-lid
 Is fastened, and the coffer safely hid
 Under the Loxian's choicest gifts of gold.

Who will may hear Sordello's story told,
 And how he never could remember when
 He dwelt not at Goito. Calmly, then,
 About this secret lodge of Adelaide's
 Glided his youth away ; beyond the glades
 On the fir-forest border, and the rim
 Of the low range of mountain, was for him
 No other world : but this appeared his own
 To wander through at pleasure and alone.
 The castle too seemed empty ; far and wide
 Might he disport ; only the northern side
 Lay under a mysterious interdict —
 Slight, just enough remembered to restrict
 His roaming to the corridors, the vault
 Where those font-bearers expiate their fault,
 The maple-chamber, and the little nooks
 And nests, and breezy parapet that looks
 Over the woods to Mantua : there he strolled.
 Some foreign women-servants, very old,
 Tended and crept about him — all his clue
 To the world's business and embroiled ado
 Distant a dozen hill-tops at the most.

And first a simple sense of life engrossed
 Sordello in his drowsy Paradise ;
 The day's adventures for the day suffice —
 Its constant tribute of perceptions strange,
 With sleep and stir in healthy interchange,
 Suffice, and leave him for the next at ease
 Like the great palmer-worm that strips the trees,
 Eats the life out of every luscious plant,
 And, when September finds them sere or scant,
 Puts forth two wondrous winglets, alters quite,
 And hies him after unforeseen delight.
 So fed Sordello, not a shard disheathed ;
 As ever, round each new discovery, wreathed
 Luxuriantly the fancies infantine
 His admiration, bent on making fine
 Its novel friend at any risk, would fling
 In gay profusion forth : a ficklest king,
 Confessed those minions ! — eager to dispense
 So much from his own stock of thought and sense
 As might enable each to stand alone

And serve him for a fellow ; with his own,
 Joining the qualities that just before
 Had graced some older favorite. Thus they wore
 A fluctuating halo, yesterday
 Set flicker and to-morrow filched away, —
 Those upland objects each of separate name,
 Each with an aspect never twice the same,
 Waxing and waning as the new-born host
 Of fancies, like a single night's hoar-frost,
 Gave to familiar things a face grotesque ;
 Only, preserving through the mad burlesque
 A grave regard. Conceive ! the orpine patch
 Blossoming earliest on the log-house-thatch
 The day those archers wound along the vines —
 Related to the Chief that left their lines
 To climb with clinking step the northern stair
 Up to the solitary chambers where
 Sordello never came. Thus thrall reached thrall ;
 He o'er-festooning every interval,
 As the adventurous spider, making light
 Of distance, shoots her threads from depth to height,
 From barbican to battlement : so flung
 Fantasies forth and in their centre swung
 Our architect, — the breezy morning fresh
 Above, and merry, — all his waving mesh
 Laughing with lucid dew-drops rainbow-edged.

This world of ours by tacit pact is pledged
 To laying such a spangled fabric low,
 Whether by gradual brush or gallant blow.
 But its abundant will was balked here : doubt
 Rose tardily in one so fenced about
 From most that nurtures judgment, care and pain :
 Judgment, that dull expedient we are fain,
 Less favored, to adopt betimes and force
 Stead us, diverted from our natural course
 Of joys — contrive some yet amid the dearth,
 Vary and render them, it may be, worth
 Most we forego. Suppose Sordello hence
 Selfish enough, without a moral sense
 However feeble ; what informed the boy
 Others desired a portion in his joy ?
 Or say a ruthless chance broke woof and warp —
 A heron's nest beat down by March winds sharp,
 A fawn breathless beneath the precipice,
 A bird with unsoiled breast and unfiled eyes
 Warm in the brake — could these undo the trance

Lapping Sordello? Not a circumstance
 That makes for you, friend Naddo! Eat fern-seed
 And peer beside us and report indeed
 If (your word) "genius" dawned with throes and stings
 And the whole fiery catalogue, while springs,
 Summers and winters quietly came and went.

Time put at length that period to content,
 By right the world should have imposed: bereft
 Of its good offices, Sordello, left
 To study his companions, managed rip
 Their fringe off, learn the true relationship,
 Core with its crust, their nature with his own:
 Amid his wild-wood sights he lived alone.
 As if the poppy felt with him! Though he
 Partook the poppy's red effrontery
 Till Autumn spoiled their fleeing quite with rain,
 And, turbanless, a coarse brown rattling crane
 Lay bare. That's gone: yet why renounce, for that,
 His disenchanted tributaries — flat
 Perhaps, but scarce so utterly forlorn,
 Their simple presence might not well be borne
 Whose parley was a transport once: recall
 The poppy's gifts, it flaunts you, after all,
 A poppy: — why distrust the evidence
 Of each soon satisfied and healthy sense?
 The new-born judgment answered, "little boots
 Beholding other creatures' attributes
 And having none!" or, say that it sufficed,
 "Yet, could one but possess, oneself," (enticed Judgment) "some special office!" Nought beside Serves you? "Well then, be somehow justified
 For this ignoble wish to circumscribe
 And concentrate, rather than swell, the tribe
 Of actual pleasures: what, now, from without
 Effects it? — proves, despite a lurking doubt,
 Mere sympathy sufficient, trouble spared?
 That, tasting joys by proxy thus, you fared
 The better for them?" Thus much craved his soul.
 Alas, from the beginning love is whole
 And true; if sure of naught beside, most sure
 Of its own truth at least; nor may endure
 A crowd to see its face, that cannot know
 How hot the pulses throb its heart below.
 While its own helplessness and utter want
 Of means to worthily be ministrant
 To what it worships, do but fan the more

Its flame, exalt the idol far before
 Itself as it would have it ever be.
 Souls like Sordello, on the contrary,
 Coerced and put to shame, retaining will,
 Care little, take mysterious comfort still,
 But look forth tremblingly to ascertain
 If others judge their claims not urged in vain,
 And say for them their stifled thoughts aloud.
 So, they must ever live before a crowd :
 — “Vanity,” Naddo tells you.

Whence contrive

A crowd, now? From these women just alive,
 That archer-troop? Forth glided — not alone
 Each painted warrior, every girl of stone,
 Nor Adelaide (bent double o'er a scroll,
 One maiden at her knees, that eve, his soul
 Shook as he stumbled through the arras'd glooms
 On them, for, 'mid quaint robes and weird perfumes,
 Started the meagre Tuscan up, — her eyes,
 The maiden's, also, bluer with surprise)
 — But the entire out-world : whatever, scraps
 And snatches, song and story, dreams perhaps,
 Conceited the world's offices, and he
 Had hitherto transferred to flower or tree,
 Not counted a befitting heritage
 Each, of its own right, singly to engage
 Some man, no other, — such now dared to stand
 Alone. Strength, wisdom, grace on every hand
 Soon disengaged themselves, and he discerned
 A sort of human life : at least, was turned
 A stream of lifelike figures through his brain.
 Lord, liegeman, valvassor and suzerain,
 Ere he could choose, surrounded him ; a stuff
 To work his pleasure on ; there, sure enough :
 But as for gazing, what shall fix that gaze ?
 Are they to simply testify the ways
 He who convoked them sends his soul along
 With the cloud's thunder or a dove's brood-song ?
 — While they live each his life, boast each his own
 Peculiar dower of bliss, stand each alone
 In some one point where something dearest loved
 Is easiest gained — far worthier to be proved
 Than aught he envies in the forest-wights !
 No simple and self-evident delights,
 But mixed desires of unimagined range,
 Contrasts or combinations, new and strange,

Irksome perhaps, yet plainly recognized
 By this, the sudden company — loves prized
 By those who are to prize his own amount
 Of loves. Once care because such make account,
 Allow that foreign recognitions stamp
 The current value, and his crowd shall vamp
 Him counterfeits enough ; and so their print
 Be on the piece, 't is gold, attests the mint,
 And "good," pronounce they whom his new appeal
 Is made to : if their casual print conceal —
 This arbitrary good of theirs o'ergloss
 What he has lived without, nor felt the loss —
 Qualities strange, ungainly, wearisome,
 — What matter ? So must speech expand the dumb
 Part-sigh, part-smile with which Sordello, late
 Whom no poor woodland-sights could satiate,
 Betakes himself to study hungrily
 Just what the puppets his crude fantasy
 Supposes notablest, popes, kings, priests, knights,
 May please to promulgate for appetites ;
 Accepting all their artificial joys
 Not as he views them, but as he employs
 Each shape to estimate the other's stock
 Of attributes, whereon — a marshalled flock
 Of authorized enjoyments — he may spend
 Himself, be men, now, as he used to blend
 With tree and flower — nay more entirely, else
 'T were mockery : for instance, " how excels
 My life that chieftain's ? " (who apprised the youth
 Ecelin, here, becomes this month, in truth,
 Imperial Vicar ?) " Turns he in his tent
 Remissly ? Be it so — my head is bent,
 Deliciously amid my girls to sleep.
 What if he stalks the Trentine-pass ? Yon steep
 I climbed an hour ago with little toil :
 We are alike there. But can I, too, foil
 The Guelf's paid stabber, carelessly afford
 Saint Mark's a spectacle, the sleight o' the sword
 Baffling the treason in a moment ? " Here
 No rescue ! Poppy he is none, but peer
 To Ecelin, assuredly : his hand,
 Fashioned no otherwise, should wield a brand
 With Ecelin's success — try, now ! He soon
 Was satisfied, returned as to the moon
 From earth ; left each abortive boy's-attempt
 For feats, from failure happily exempt,

In fancy at his beck. "One day I will Accomplish it! Are they not older still — Not grown up men and women? 'T is beside
 Only a dream; and though I must abide
 With dreams now, I may find a thorough vent
 For all myself, acquire an instrument
 For acting what these people act; my soul
 Hunting a body out may gain its whole
 Desire some day!" How else express chagrin
 And resignation, show the hope steal in
 With which he let sink from an aching wrist
 The rough-hewn ash-bow? Straight, a gold shaft hissed
 Into the Syrian air, struck Malek down
 Superbly! "Crosses to the breach! God's Town
 Is gained him back!" Why bend rough ash-bows more?

Thus lives he: if not careless as before,
 Comforted: for one may anticipate,
 Rehearse the future, be prepared when fate
 Shall have prepared in turn real men whose names
 Startle, real places of enormous fames,
 Este abroad and Ecelin at home
 To worship him, — Mantua, Verona, Rome
 To witness it. Who grudges time so spent?
 Rather test qualities to heart's content —
 Summon them, thrice selected, near and far —
 Compress the starriest into one star,
 And grasp the whole at once!

The pageant thinned
 Accordingly; from rank to rank, like wind
 His spirit passed to winnow and divide;
 Back fell the simpler phantasms; every side
 The strong clave to the wise; with either classed
 The beauteous; so, till two or three amassed
 Mankind's beseemingnesses, and reduced
 Themselves eventually, graces loosed,
 Strengths lavished, all to heighten up One Shape
 Whose potency no creature should escape.
 Can it be Friedrich of the bowmen's talk?
 Surely that grape-juice, bubbling at the stalk,
 Is some gray scorching Saracenic wine
 The Kaiser quaffs with the Miramoline —
 Those swarthy hazel-clusters, seamed and chapped,
 Or filberts russet-sheathed and velvet-capped,
 Are dates plucked from the bough John Brienne sent,
 To keep in mind his sluggish armament:
 Of Canaan: — Friedrich's, all the pomp and fierce

Demeanor! But harsh sounds and sights transpierce
 So rarely the serene cloud where he dwells,
 Whose looks enjoin, whose lightest words are spells
 On the obdurate! That right arm indeed
 Has thunder for its slave; but where's the need
 Of thunder if the stricken multitude
 Harkens, arrested in its angriest mood,
 While songs go up exulting, then dispread,
 Dispart, disperse, lingering overhead
 Like an escape of angels? 'Tis the tune,
 Nor much unlike the words his women croon
 Smilingly, colorless and faint-designed
 Each, as a worn-out queen's face some remind
 Of her extreme youth's love-tales. "Eglamor
 Made that!" Half minstrel and half emperor,
 What but ill objects vexed him? Such he slew.
 The kinder sort were easy to subdue
 By those ambrosial glances, dulcet tones;
 And these a gracious hand advanced to thrones
 Beneath him. Wherefore twist and torture this,
 Striving to name afresh the antique bliss,
 Instead of saying, neither less nor more,
 He had discovered, as our world before,
 Apollo? That shall be the name; nor bid
 Me rag by rag expose how patchwork hid
 The youth — what thefts of every clime and day
 Contributed to purple the array
 He climbed with (June at deep) some close ravine
 'Mid clatter of its million pebbles sheen,
 Over which, singing soft, the runnel slipped
 Elate with rains: into whose streamlet dipped
 He foot, yet trod, you thought, with unwet sock —
 Though really on the stubs of living rock
 Ages ago it crenelled; vines for roof,
 Lindens for wall; before him, aye aloof,
 Flittered in the cool some azure damsel-fly,
 Born of the simmering quiet, there to die.
 Emerging whence, Apollo still, he spied
 Mighty descents of forest; multiplied
 Tuft on tuft, here, the frolic myrtle-trees,
 There gendered the grave maple stocks at ease,
 And, proud of its observer, straight the wood
 Tried old surprises on him; black it stood
 A sudden barrier ('t was a cloud passed o'er)
 So dead and dense, the tiniest brute no more
 Must pass; yet presently (the cloud dispatched)

Each clump, behold, was glistening detached
 A shrub, oak-boles shrunk into ilex-stems!
 Yet could not he denounce the stratagems
 He saw thro', till, hours thence, aloft would hang
 White summer-lightnings; as it sank and sprang
 To measure, that whole palpitating breast
 Of heaven, 't was Apollo, nature prest
 At eve to worship.

Time stole: by degrees
 The Pythons perish off; his votaries
 Sink to respectful distance; songs redeem
 Their pains, but briefer; their dismissals seem
 Emphatic; only girls are very slow
 To disappear — his Delians! Some that glow
 O' the instant, more with earlier loves to wrench
 Away, reserves to quell, disdains to quench;
 Alike in one material circumstance —
 All soon or late adore Apollo! Glance
 The bevy through, divine Apollo's choice,
 His Daphne! "We secure Count Richard's voice
 In Este's counsels, good for Este's ends
 As our Taurello," say his faded friends,
 By granting him our Palma!" — the sole child,
 They mean, of Agnes Este who beguiled
 Ecelin, years before this Adelaide
 Wedded and turned him wicked: "but the maid
 Rejects his suit," those sleepy women boast.
 She, scorning all beside, deserves the most
 Sordello: so, conspicuous in his world
 Of dreams sat Palma. How the tresses curled
 Into a sumptuous swell of gold and wound
 About her like a glory! even the ground
 Was bright as with spilt sunbeams; breathe not, breathe
 Not! — poised, see, one leg doubled underneath,
 Its small foot buried in the dimpling snow,
 Rests, but the other, listlessly below,
 O'er the couch-side swings feeling for cool air,
 The vein-streaks swollen a richer violet where
 The languid blood lies heavily; yet calm
 On her slight prop, each flat and outspread palm,
 As but suspended in the act to rise
 By consciousness of beauty, whence her eyes
 Turn with so frank a triumph, for she meets
 Apollo's gaze in the pine glooms.

Time fleets:
 That's worst! Because the pre-appointed age

Approaches. Fate is tardy with the stage
 And crowd she promised. Lean he grows and pale,
 Though restlessly at rest. Hardly avail
 Fancies to soothe him. Time steals, yet alone
 He tarries here! The earnest smile is gone.
 How long this might continue matters not;
 — Forever, possibly; since to the spot
 None come: our lingering Taurello quits
 Mantua at last, and light our lady flits
 Back to her place disburdened of a care.
 Strange — to be constant here if he is there!
 Is it distrust? Oh, never! for they both
 Goad Ecelin alike, Romano's growth
 Is daily manifest, with Azzo dumb
 And Richard wavering: let but Friedrich come,
 Find matter for the minstrelsy's report!
 — Lured from the Isle and its young Kaiser's court
 To sing us a Messina morning up,
 And, double rillet of a drinking cup,
 Sparkle along to ease the land of drouth,
 Northward to Provence that, and thus far south
 The other. What a method to apprise
 Neighbors of births, espousals, obsequies!
 Which in their very tongue the Troubadour
 Records; and his performance makes a tour,
 For Trouveres bear the miracle about,
 Explain its cunning to the vulgar rout,
 Until the Formidable House is famed
 Over the country — as Taurello aimed,
 Who introduced, although the rest adopt,
 The novelty. Such games, her absence stopped,
 Begin afresh now Adelaide, recluse
 No longer, in the light of day pursues
 Her plans at Mantua: whence an accident
 Which, breaking on Sordello's mixed content,
 Opened, like any flash that cures the blind,
 The veritable business of mankind.

BOOK THE SECOND.

THE woods were long austere with snow : at last
Pink leaflets budded on the beech, and fast
Larches, scattered through pine-tree solitudes,
Brightened, "as in the slumbrous heart o' the woods
Our buried year, a witch, grew young again
To placid incantations, and that stain
About were from her caldron, green smoke blent
With those black pines" — so Eglamor gave vent
To a chance fancy. Whence a just rebuke
From his companion ; brother Naddo shook
The solemnest of brows ; " Beware," he said,
" Of setting up conceits in nature's stead ! "
Forth wandered our Sordello. Nought so sure
As that to-day's adventure will secure
Palma, the visioned lady — only pass
O'er yon damp mound and its exhausted grass,
Under that brake where sundawn feeds the stalks
Of withered fern with gold, into those walks
Of pine and take her ! Buoyantly he went.
Again his stooping forehead was besprent
With dew-drops from the skirting ferns. Then wide
Opened the great morass, shot every side
With flashing water through and through ; a-shine,
Thick-steaming, all alive. Whose shape divine,
Quivered i' the farthest rainbow-vapor, glanced
Athwart the flying herons ? He advanced,
But warily ; though Mincio leaped no more,
Each footfall burst up in the marish-floor
A diamond jet : and if he stopped to pick
Rose-lichen, or molest the leeches quick,
And circling blood-worms, minnow, newt or loach,
A sudden pond would silently encroach
This way and that. On Palma passed. The verge
Of a new wood was gained. She will emerge
Flushed, now, and panting, — crowds to see, — will own
She loves him — Boniface to hear, to groan,
To leave his suit ! One screen of pine-trees still Opposes : but — the startling spectacle —
Mantua, this time ! Under the walls — a crowd
Indeed, real men and women, gay and loud

Round a pavilion. How he stood!

In truth
 No prophecy had come to pass: his youth
 In its prime now — and where was homage poured
 Upon Sordello? — born to be adored,
 And suddenly discovered weak, scarce made
 To cope with any, cast into the shade
 By this and this. Yet something seemed to prick
 And tingle in his blood; a sleight — a trick —
 And much would be explained. It went for nought —
 The best of their endowments were ill bought
 With his identity: nay, the conceit,
 That this day's roving led to Palma's feet
 Was not so vain — list! The word, "Palma!" Steal
 Aside, and die, Sordello; this is real,
 And this — abjure!

What next? The curtains see
 Dividing! She is there; and presently
 He will be there — the proper You, at length —
 In your own cherished dress of grace and strength:
 Most like, the very Boniface!

Not so.

It was a showy man advanced; but though
 A glad cry welcomed him, then every sound
 Sank and the crowd disposed themselves around,
 — "This is not he," Sordello felt; while, "Place
 For the best Troubadour of Boniface!"
 Hollaed the Jongleurs, — "Eglamor, whose lay
 Concludes his patron's Court of Love to-day!"
 Obsequious Naddo strung the master's lute
 With the new lute-string, "Elys," named to suit
 The song: he stealthily at watch, the while,
 Biting his lip to keep down a great smile
 Of pride: then up he struck. Sordello's brain
 Swam; for he knew a sometime deed again;
 So, could supply each foolish gap and chasm
 The minstrel left in his enthusiasm,
 Mistaking its true version — was the tale
 Not of Apollo? Only, what avail
 Luring her down, that Elys an he pleased,
 If the man dared no further? Has he ceased?
 And, lo, the people's frank applause half done,
 Sordello was beside him, had begun
 (Spite of indignant twitchings from his friend
 The Trouvere) the true lay with the true end,
 Taking the other's names and time and place

For his. On flew the song, a giddy race,
 After the flying story; word made leap
 Out word, rhyme — rhyme; the lay could barely keep Pace with the action visibly rushing past:
 Both ended. Back fell Naddo more aghast
 Than some Egyptian from the harassed bull
 That wheeled abrupt and, bellowing, fronted full
 His plague, who spied a scarab 'neath the tongue,
 And found 't was Apis' flank his hasty prong
 Insulted. But the people — but the cries,
 The crowding' round, and proffering the prize!
 — For he had gained some prize. He seemed to shrink
 Into a sleepy cloud, just at whose brink
 One sight withheld him. There sat Adelaide,
 Silent; but at her knees the very maid
 Of the North Chamber, her red lips as rich,
 The same pure fleecy hair; one weft of which,
 Golden and great, quite touched his cheek as o'er
 She leant, speaking some six words and no more.
 He answered something, anything; and she
 Unbound a scarf and laid it heavily
 Upon him, her neck's warmth and all. Again
 Moved the arrested magic; in his brain
 Noises grew, and a light that turned to glare,
 And greater glare, until the intense flare
 Engulfed him, shut the whole scene from his sense.
 And when he woke 't was many a furlong thence,
 At home; the sun shining his ruddy wont;
 The customary birds'-chirp; but his front
 Was crowned — was crowned! Her scented scarf around
 His neck! Whose gorgeous vesture heaps the ground?
 A prize? He turned, and peeringly on him
 Brooded the women-faces, kind and dim,
 Ready to talk — "The Jongleurs in a troop
 Had brought him back, Naddo and Squarcialupe
 And Tagliafer; how strange! a childhood spent
 In taking, well for him, so brave a bent!
 Since Eglamor," they heard, "was dead with spite,
 And Palma chose him for her minstrel."

Light

Sordello rose — to think, now; hitherto
 He had perceived. Sure, a discovery grew
 Out of it all! Best live from first to last
 The transport o'er again. A week he passed,
 Sucking the sweet out of each circumstance,
 From the bard's outbreak to the luscious trance

Bounding his own achievement. Strange! A man
 Recounted an adventure, but began
 Imperfectly; his own task was to fill
 The frame-work up, sing well what he sung ill,
 Supply the necessary points, set loose
 As many incidents of little use
 — More imbecile the other, not to see
 Their relative importance clear as he!
 But, for a special pleasure in the act
 Of singing — had he ever turned, in fact,
 From Elys, to sing Elys? — from each fit
 Of rapture to contrive a song of it?
 True, this snatch or the other seemed to wind
 Into a treasure, helped himself to find
 A beauty in himself; for, see, he soared
 By means of that mere snatch, to many a hoard
 Of fancies; as some falling cone bears soft
 The eye along the fir-tree-spire, aloft
 To a dove's nest. Then, how divine the cause
 Why such performance should exact applause
 From men, if they had fancies too? Did fate
 Decree they found a beauty separate
 In the poor snatch itself? — "Take Elys, there,
 — 'Her head that's sharp and perfect like a pear,
 So close and smooth are laid the few fine locks
 Colored like honey oozed from topmost rocks
 Sun-blanced the livelong summer' — if they heard
 Just those two rhymes, assented at my word,
 And loved them as I love them who have run
 These fingers through those pale locks, let the sun
 Into the white cool skin — who first could clutch,
 Then praise — I needs must be a god to such.
 Or what if some, above themselves, and yet
 Beneath me, like their Eglamor, have set
 An impress on our gift? So, men believe
 And worship what they know not, nor receive
 Delight from. Have they fancies — slow, perchance,
 Not at their beck, which indistinctly glance
 Until, by song, each floating part be linked
 To each, and all grow palpable, distinct?"
 He pondered this.

Meanwhile, sounds low and drear
 Stole on him, and a noise of footsteps, near
 And nearer, while the underwood was pushed
 Aside, the larches grazed, the dead leaves crushed
 At the approach of men. The wind seemed laid;

Only, the trees shrunk slightly and a shade
 Came o'er the sky although 't was mid-day yet :
 You saw each half-shut downcast floweret
 Flutter — “ a Roman bride, when they 'd dispart
 Her unbound tresses with the Sabine dart,
 Holding that famous rape in memory still,
 Felt creep into her curls the iron chill,
 And looked thus,” Eglamor would say — indeed
 'T is Eglamor, no other, these precede
 Home hither in the woods. “'T were surely sweet
 Far from the scene of one's forlorn defeat
 To sleep!” judged Naddo, who in person led
 Jongleurs and Trouveres, chanting at their head,
 A scanty company ; for, sooth to say,
 Our beaten Troubadour had seen his day.
 Old worshippers were something shamed, old friends
 Nigh weary ; still the death proposed amends.
 “ Let us but get them safely through my song
 And home again ! ” quoth Naddo.

All along,

This man (they rest the bier upon the sand)
 — This calm corpse with the loose flowers in his hand,
 Eglamor, lived Sordello's opposite.
 For him indeed was Naddo's notion right,
 And verse a temple-worship vague and vast,
 A ceremony that withdrew the last
 Opposing bolt, looped back the lingering veil
 Which hid the holy place : should one so frail
 Stand there without such effort ? or repine
 If much was blank, uncertain at the shrine
 He knelt before, till, soothed by many a rite,
 The power responded, and some sound or sight
 Grew up, his own forever, to be fixed,
 In rhyme, the beautiful, forever ! — mixed
 With his own life, unloosed when he should please,
 Having it safe at hand, ready to ease
 All pain, remove all trouble ; every time
 He loosed that fancy from its bonds of rhyme,
 (Like Perseus when he loosed his naked love)
 Faltering ; so distinct and far above
 Himself, these fancies ! He, no genius rare,
 Transfiguring in fire or wave or air
 At will, but a poor gnome that, cloistered up
 In some rock-chamber with his agate cup,
 His topaz rod, his seed-pearl, in these few
 And their arrangement finds enough to do

For his best art. Then, how he loved that art!
 The calling marking him a man apart
 From men — one not to care, take counsel for Cold hearts, comfortless faces — (Eglamor
 Was neediest of his tribe) — since verse, the gift,
 Was his, and men, the whole of them, must shift
 Without it, e'en content themselves with wealth
 And pomp and power, snatching a life by stealth.
 So, Eglamor was not without his pride!
 The sorriest bat which cowers throughout noontide
 While other birds are jocund, has one time
 When moon and stars are blinded, and the prime
 Of earth is his to claim, nor find a peer;
 And Eglamor was noblest poet here —
 He well knew, 'mid those April woods, he cast
 Conceits upon in plenty as he passed,
 That Naddo might suppose him not to think
 Entirely on the coming triumph: wink
 At the one weakness! 'T was a fervid child,
 That song of his; no brother of the guild
 Had e'er conceived its like. The rest you know,
 The exaltation and the overthrow:
 Our poet lost his purpose, lost his rank,
 His life — to that it came. Yet envy sank
 Within him, as he heard Sordello out,
 And, for the first time, shouted — tried to shout
 Like others, not from any zeal to show
 Pleasure that way: the common sort did so.
 What else was Eglamor? who, bending down
 As they, placed his beneath Sordello's crown,
 Printed a kiss on his successor's hand,
 Left one great tear on it, then joined his band
 — In time; for some were watching at the door:
 Who knows what envy may effect? "Give o'er,
 Nor charm his lips, nor craze him!" (here one spied
 And disengaged the withered crown) — "Beside
 His crown? How prompt and clear those verses rang
 To answer yours! nay, sing them!" And he sang
 Them calmly. Home he went; friends used to wait
 His coming, zealous to congratulate;
 But, to a man, so quickly runs report,
 Could do no less than leave him, and escort
 His rival. That eve, then, bred many a thought:
 What must his future life be? was he brought
 So low, who stood so lofty this Spring morn?
 At length he said, "Best sleep now with my scorn,

And by to-morrow I devise some plain
 Expedient!" So, he slept, nor woke again.
 They found as much, those friends, when they returned
 O'erflowing with the marvels they had learned
 About Sordello's paradise, his roves
 Among the hills and vales and plains and groves,
 Wherein, no doubt, this lay was roughly cast,
 Polished by slow degrees, completed last
 To Eglamor's discomfiture and death.

Such form the chanters now, and, out of breath,
 They lay the beaten man in his abode,
 Naddo reciting that same luckless ode,
 Doleful to hear. Sordello could explore
 By means of it, however, one step more
 In joy; and, mastering the round at length,
 Learnt how to live in weakness as in strength,
 When from his covert forth he stood, addressed
 Eglamor, bade the tender ferns invest,
 Primæval pines o'er canopy his couch,
 And, most of all, his fame — (shall I avouch
 Eglamor heard it, dead though he might look,
 And laughed as from his brow Sordello took
 The crown, and laid on the bard's breast, and said
 It was a crown, now, fit for poet's head?)

— Continue. Nor the prayer quite fruitless fell.
 A plant they have, yielding a three-leaved bell
 Which whitens at the heart ere noon, and ails
 Till evening; evening gives it to her gales
 To clear away with such forgotten things
 As are an eyesore to the morn: this brings
 Him to their mind, and bears his very name.

So much for Eglamor. My own month came;
 'T was a sunrise of blossoming and May.
 Beneath a flowering laurel thicket lay
 Sordello; each new sprinkle of white stars
 That smell fainter of wine than Massic jars
 Dug up at Baiæ, when the south wind shed
 The ripest, made him happier; filleted
 And robed the same, only a lute beside
 Lay on the turf. Before him far and wide
 The country stretched: Goito slept behind
 — The castle and its covert, which confined
 Him with his hopes and fears; so fain of old
 To leave the story of his birth untold.
 At intervals, 'spite the fantastic glow
 Of his Apollo-life, a certain low

And wretched whisper, winding through the bliss,
Admonished, no such fortune could be his,
All was quite false and sure to fade one day :
The closelier drew he round him his array
Of brilliance to expel the truth. But when
A reason for his difference from men
Surprised him at the grave, he took no rest
While aught of that old life, superbly dressed
Down to its meanest incident, remained
A mystery : alas, they soon explained
Away Apollo ! and the tale amounts
To this : when at Vicenza both her counts
Banished the Vivaresi kith and kin,
Those Maltraversi hung on Ecelin,
Reviled him as he followed ; he for spite
Must fire their quarter, though that self-same night
Among the flames young Ecelin was born
Of Adelaide, there too, and barely torn
From the roused populace hard on the rear,
By a poor archer when his chieftain's fear
Grew high ; into the thick Elcorte leapt,
Saved her, and died ; no creature left except
His child to thank. And when the full escape
Was known — how men impaled from chine to nape
Unlucky Prata, all to pieces spurned
Bishop Pistore's concubines, and burned
Taurello's entire household, flesh and fell,
Missing the sweeter prey — such courage well
Might claim reward. The orphan, ever since,
Sordello, had been nurtured by his prince
Within a blind retreat where Adelaide —
(For, once this notable discovery made,
The past at every point was understood)
— Might harbor easily when times were rude,
When Azzo schemed for Palma, to retrieve
That pledge of Agnes Este — loth to leave
Mantua unguarded with a vigilant eye,
While there Taurello bode ambiguously —
He who could have no motive now to moil
For his own fortunes since their utter spoil —
As it were worth while yet (went the report)
To disengage himself from her. In short,
Apollo vanished ; a mean youth, just named
His lady's minstrel, was to be proclaimed
— How shall I phrase it ? — Monarch of the World !
For, on the day when that array was furled

Forever, and in place of one a slave
 To longings, wild indeed, but longings save
 In dreams as wild, suppressed — one daring not
 Assume the mastery such dreams allot,
 Until a magical equipment, strength,
 Grace, wisdom, decked him too, — he chose at length,
 Content with unproved wits and failing frame,
 In virtue of his simple will, to claim
 That mastery, no less — to do his best
 With means so limited, and let the rest
 Go by, — the seal was set : never again
 Sordello could in his own sight remain
 One of the many, one with hopes and cares.
 And interests nowise distinct from theirs,
 Only peculiar in a thriveless store
 Of fancies, which were fancies and no more ;
 Never again for him and for the crowd
 A common law was challenged and allowed
 If calmly reasoned of, howe'er denied
 By a mad impulse nothing justified
 Short of Apollo's presence. The divorce
 Is clear : why needs Sordello square his course
 By any known example ? Men no more
 Compete with him than tree and flower before.
 Himself, inactive, yet is greater far
 Than such as act, each stooping to his star,
 Acquiring thence his function ; he has gained
 The same result with meaner mortals trained
 To strength or beauty, moulded to express
 Each the idea that rules him ; since no less
 He comprehends that function, but can still
 Embrace the others, take of might his fill
 With Richard as of grace with Palma, mix
 Their qualities, or for a moment fix
 On one ; abiding free meantime, uncramped
 By any partial organ, never stamped
 Strong, and to strength turning all energies —
 Wise, and restricted to becoming wise —
 That is, he loves not, nor possesses One
 Idea that, star-like over, lures him on
 To its exclusive purpose. “ Fortunate !
 This flesh of mine ne'er strove to emulate
 A soul so various — took no casual mould
 Of the first fancy and, contracted, cold,
 Clogged her forever — soul averse to change
 As flesh : whereas flesh leaves soul free to range,

Remains itself a blank, cast into shade,
 Encumbers little, if it cannot aid.
 So, range, free soul! — who, by self-consciousness,
 The last drop of all beauty dost express —
 The grace of seeing grace, a quintessence
 For thee: while for the world, that can dispense
 Wonder on men who, themselves, wonder — make
 A shift to love at second-hand, and take
 For idols those who do but idolize,
 Themselves, — the world that counts men strong or wise,
 Who, themselves, court strength, wisdom, — it shall bow
 Surely in unexampled worship now,
 Discerning me!" —

(Dear monarch, I beseech,
 Notice how lamentably wide a breach
 Is here: discovering this, discover too
 What our poor world has possibly to do
 With it! As pigmy natures as you please —
 So much the better for you; take your ease,
 Look on, and laugh; style yourself God alone;
 Strangle some day with a cross olive-stone:
 All that is right enough: but why want us
 To know that you yourself know thus and thus?)
 "The world shall bow to me conceiving all
 Man's life, who see its blisses, great and small,
 Afar — not tasting any; no machine
 To exercise my utmost will is mine:
 Be mine mere consciousness! Let men perceive
 What I could do, a mastery believe,
 Asserted and established to the throng
 By their selected evidence of song
 Which now shall prove, whate'er they are, or seek
 To be, I am — whose words, not actions speak,
 Who change no standards of perfection, vex
 With no strange forms created to perplex,
 But just perform their bidding and no more,
 At their own satiating-point give o'er,
 While each shall love in me the love that leads
 His soul to power's perfection." Song, not deeds,
 (For we get tired) was chosen. Fate would brook
 Mankind no other organ; he would look
 For not another channel to dispense
 His own volition by, receive men's sense
 Of its supremacy; would live content,
 Obstructed else, with merely verse for vent.
 Nor should, for instance, strength an outlet seek

And, striving, be admired ; nor grace bespeak
 Wonder, displayed in gracious attitudes ;
 Nor wisdom, poured forth, change unseemly moods :
 But he would give and take on song's one point.
 Like some huge throbbing stone that, poised a-joint,
 Sounds, to affect on its basaltic bed,
 Must sue in just one accent ; tempests shed
 Thunder, and raves the windstorm : only let
 That key by any little noise be set —
 The far benighted hunter's halloo pitch
 On that, the hungry curlew chance to scritch
 Or serpent hiss it, rustling through the rift,
 However loud, however low — all lift
 The groaning monster, stricken to the heart.
 Lo ye, the world's concernment, for its part,
 And this, for his, will hardly interfere !
 Its businesses in blood and blaze this year
 But while the hour away — a pastime slight
 Till he shall step upon the platform : right !
 And, now thus much is settled, cast in rough,
 Proved feasible, be counselled ! thought enough, —
 Slumber, Sordello ! any day will serve :
 Were it a less digested plan ! how swerve
 To-morrow ? Meanwhile eat these sun-dried grapes,
 And watch the soaring hawk there ! Life escapes Merrily thus.

He thoroughly read o'er
 His truchman Naddo's missive six times more,
 Praying him visit Mantua and supply
 A famished world.

The evening star was high
 When he reached Mantua, but his fame arrived
 Before him : friends applauded, foes connived,
 And Naddo looked an angel, and the rest
 Angels, and all these angels would be blest
 Supremely by a song — the thrice-renowned
 Goito manufacture. Then he found
 (Casting about to satisfy the crowd)
 That happy vehicle, so late allowed,
 A sore annoyance ; 't was the song's effect
 He cared for, scarce the song itself : reflect !
 In the past life, what might be singing's use ?
 Just to delight his Delians, whose profuse
 Praise, not the toilsome process which procured
 That praise, enticed Apollo : dreams abjured,
 No overleaping means for ends — take both

For granted or take neither ! I am loth
 To say the rhymes at last were Eglamor's ;
 But Naddo, chuckling, bade competitors
 Go pine ; " the master certes meant to waste
 No effort, cautiously had probed the taste
 He'd please anon : true bard, in short, disturb
 His title if they could ; nor spur nor curb,
 Fancy nor reason, wanting in him ; whence
 The staple of his verses, common sense :
 He built on man's broad nature — gift of gifts,
 That power to build ! The world contented shifts
 With counterfeits enough, a dreary sort
 Of warriors, statesmen, ere it can extort
 Its poet-soul — that's, after all, a freak
 (The having eyes to see and tongue to speak)
 With our herd's stupid sterling happiness
 So plainly incompatible that — yes —
 Yes — should a son of his improve the breed
 And turn out poet, he were cursed indeed ! "

" Well, there's Goito and its woods anon,
 If the worst happen ; best go stoutly on
 Now ! " thought Sordello.

Ay, and goes on yet !

You pother with your glossaries to get
 A notion of the Troubadour's intent
 In rondel, tenzon, virlai or sirvent —
 — Much as you study arras how to twirl
 His angelot, plaything of page and girl
 Once ; but you surely reach, at last, — or, no !
 Never quite reach what struck the people so,
 As from the welter of their time he drew
 Its elements successively to view,
 Followed all actions backward on their course,
 And catching up, unmingled at the source,
 Such a strength, such a weakness, added then
 A touch or two, and turned them into men.
 Virtue took form, nor vice refused a shape ;
 Here heaven opened, there was hell agape,
 As Saint this simpered past in sanctity,
 Sinner the other flared portentous by
 A greedy people. Then why stop, surprised
 At his success ? The scheme was realized
 Too suddenly in one respect : a crowd
 Praising, eyes quick to see, and lips as loud
 To speak, delicious homage to receive,
 The woman's breath to feel upon his sleeve,

Who said, "But Anafest — why asks he less
 Than Lucio, in your verses? how confess,
 It seemed too much but yestereve!" — the youth,
 Who bade him earnestly, "Avow the truth!
 You love Bianca, surely, from your song;
 I knew I was unworthy!" — soft or strong,
 In poured such tributes ere he had arranged
 Ethereal ways to take them, sorted, changed,
 Digested. Courted thus at unawares,
 In spite of his pretensions and his cares,
 He caught himself shamefully hankering
 After the obvious petty joys that spring
 From true life, fain relinquish pedestal
 And condescend with pleasures — one and all
 To be renounced, no doubt; for, thus to chain
 Himself to single joys and so refrain
 From tasting their quintessence, frustrates, sure,
 His prime design; each joy must he abjure
 Even for love of it.

He laughed: what sage
 But perishes if from his magic page
 He look because, at the first line, a proof
 'T was heard salutes him from the cavern roof?
 "On! Give yourself, excluding aught beside,
 To the day's task; compel your slave provide
 Its utmost at the soonest; turn the leaf
 Thoroughly conned. These lays of yours, in brief —
 Cannot men bear, now, something better? — fly
 A pitch beyond this unreal pageantry
 Of essences? the period sure has ceased
 For such: present us with ourselves, at least,
 Not portions of ourselves, mere loves and hates
 Made flesh: wait not!"

Awhile the poet waits
 However. The first trial was enough:
 He left imagining, to try the stuff
 That held the imaged thing, and, let it writhe
 Never so fiercely, scarce allowed a tithe
 To reach the light — his Language. How he sought
 The cause, conceived a cure, and slow re-wrought
 That Language, — welding words into the crude
 Mass from the new speech round him, till a rude
 Armor was hammered out, in time to be Approved beyond the Roman panoply
 Melted to make it, — boots not. This obtained
 With some ado, no obstacle remained

To using it ; accordingly he took
 An action with its actors, quite forsook
 Himself to live in each, returned anon
 With the result — a creature, and, by one
 And one, proceeded leisurely to equip
 Its limbs in harness of his workmanship.

“ Accomplished ! Listen, Mantuans ! ” Fond essay !

Piece after piece that armor broke away,
 Because perceptions whole, like that he sought
 To clothe, reject so pure a work of thought
 As language : thought may take perception’s place
 But hardly co-exist in any case,
 Being its mere presentiment — of the whole
 By parts, the simultaneous and the sole
 By the successive and the many. Lacks
 The crowd perception ? painfully it tacks
 Thought to thought, which Sordello, needing such,
 Has rent perception into : it’s to clutch
 And reconstruct — his office to diffuse,
 Destroy : as hard, then, to obtain a Muse
 As to become Apollo. “ For the rest,
 E’en if some wondrous vehicle expressed
 The whole dream, what impertinence in me
 So to express it, who myself can be
 The dream ! nor, on the other hand, are those
 I sing to, over-likely to suppose
 A higher than the highest I present
 Now, which they praise already : be content
 Both parties, rather — they with the old verse,
 And I with the old praise — far go, fare worse ! ”
 A few adhering rivets loosed, upsprings
 The angel, sparkles off his mail, which rings.
 Whirled from each delicatest limb it warps,
 So might Apollo from the sudden corpse
 Of Hyacinth have cast his luckless quoits.
 He set to celebrating the exploits
 Of Montfort o’er the Mountaineers.

Then came

The world’s revenge : their pleasure, now his aim
 Merely, — what was it ? “ Not to play the fool
 So much as learn our lesson in your school ! ”
 Replied the world. He found that, every time
 He gained applause by any ballad-rhyme,
 His auditory recognized no jot
 As he intended, and, mistaking not
 Him for his meanest hero, ne’er was dunce

Sufficient to believe him — all, at once.
 His will . . . conceive it caring for his will!
 — Mantuans, the main of them, admiring still
 How a mere singer, ugly, stunted, weak,
 Had Montfort at completely (so to speak)
 His fingers' ends; while past the praise-tide swept
 To Montfort, either's share distinctly kept:
 The true meed for true merit! — his abates
 Into a sort he most repudiates,
 And on them angrily he turns. Who were
 The Mantuans, after all, that he should care
 About their recognition, ay or no?
 In spite of the convention months ago,
 (Why blink the truth?) was not he forced to help
 This same ungrateful audience, every whelp
 Of Naddo's litter, make them pass for peers
 With the bright band of old Goito years,
 As erst he toiled for flower or tree? Why, there
 Sat Palma! Adelaide's funereal hair
 Ennobled the next corner. Ay, he strewed
 A fairy dust upon that multitude,
 Although he feigned to take them by themselves;
 His giants dignified those puny elves,
 Sublimed their faint applause. In short, he found
 Himself still footing a delusive round,
 Remote as ever from the self-display
 He meant to compass, hampered every way
 By what he hoped assistance. Wherefore then Continue, make believe to find in men
 A use he found not?

Weeks, months, years went by,
 And lo, Sordello vanished utterly,
 Sundered in twain; each spectral part at strife
 With each; one jarred against another life;
 The Poet thwarting hopelessly the Man
 Who, fooled no longer, free in fancy ran
 Here, there; let slip no opportunities
 As pitiful, forsooth, beside the prize
 To drop on him some no-time and acquit
 His constant faith (the Poet-half's to wit —
 That waiving any compromise between
 No joy and all joy kept the hunger keen
 Beyond most methods) — of incurring scoff
 From the Man-portion — not to be put off
 With self-reflectings by the Poet's scheme,
 Though ne'er so bright; — who sauntered forth in dream,

Dressed anyhow, nor waited mystic frames,
 Immeasurable gifts, astounding claims,
 But just his sorry self — who yet might be
 Sorrier for aught he in reality
 Achieved, so pinioned Man's the Poet-part,
 Fondling, in turn of fancy, verse; the Art
 Developing his soul a thousand ways —
 Potent, by its assistance, to amaze
 The multitude with majesties, convince
 Each sort of nature, that the nature's prince
 Accosted it. Language, the makeshift, grew
 Into a bravest of expedients, too;
 Apollo, seemed it now, perverse had thrown
 Quiver and bow away, the lyre alone
 Sufficed. While, out of dream, his day's work went
 To tune a crazy tenzon or sirvent —
 So hampered him the Man-part, thrust to judge
 Between the bard and the bard's audience, grudge
 A minute's toil that missed its due reward!
 But the complete Sordello, Man and Bard,
 John's cloud-girt angel, this foot on the land,
 That on the sea, with, open in his hand,
 A bitter-sweetling of a book — was gone.

Then, if internal struggles to be one
 Which frittered him incessantly piecemeal,
 Referred, ne'er so obliquely, to the real
 Intruding Mantuans! ever with some call
 To action while he pondered, once for all,
 Which looked the easier effort — to pursue
 This course, still leap o'er paltry joys, yearn through
 The present ill-appreciated stage
 Of self-revelment, and compel the age
 Know him; or else, forswearing bard-craft, wake
 From out his lethargy and nobly shake
 Off timid habits of denial, mix
 With men, enjoy like men. Ere he could fix
 On aught, in rushed the Mantuans; much they cared
 For his perplexity! Thus unprepared,
 The obvious if not only shelter lay
 In deeds, the dull conventions of his day
 Prescribed the like of him: why not be glad
 'T is settled Palma's minstrel, good or bad,
 Submits to this and that established rule?
 Let Vidal change, or any other fool,
 His murrey-colored robe for filamot,
 And crop his hair; too skin-deep, is it not,

Such vigor? Then, a sorrow to the heart,
 His talk! Whatever topics they might start
 Had to be groped for in his consciousness
 Straight, and as straight delivered them by guess.
 Only obliged to ask himself, "What was,"
 A speedy answer followed; but, alas,
 One of God's large ones, tardy to condense
 Itself into a period; answers whence
 A tangle of conclusions must be stripped
 At any risk ere, trim to pattern clipped,
 They matched rare specimens the Mantuan flock
 Regaled him with, each talker from his stock
 Of sorted-o'er opinions, every stage,
 Juicy in youth or desiccate with age,
 Fruits like the fig-tree's, rathe-ripe, rotten-rich,
 Sweet-sour, all tastes to take: a practice which
 He too had not impossibly attained,
 Once either of those fancy-flights restrained;
 (For, at conjecture how might words appear
 To others, playing there what happened here,
 And occupied abroad by what he spurned
 At home, 't was slipped, the occasion he returned
 To seize:) he'd strike that lyre adroitly — speech,
 Would but a twenty-cubit plectre reach;
 A clever hand, consummate instrument,
 Were both brought close; each excellency went
 For nothing, else. The question Naddo asked,
 Had just a lifetime moderately tasked
 To answer, Naddo's fashion. More disgust
 And more: why move his soul, since move it must
 At minute's notice or as good it failed
 To move at all? The end was, he retailed
 Some ready-made opinion, put to use
 This quip, that maxim, ventured reproduce
 Gestures and tones — at any folly caught
 Serving to finish with, nor too much sought
 If false or true 't was spoken; praise and blame
 Of what he said grew pretty nigh the same
 — Meantime awards to meantime acts: his soul,
 Unequal to the compassing a whole,
 Saw, in a tenth part, less and less to strive
 About. And as for men in turn . . . contrive
 Who could to take eternal interest
 In them, so hate the worst, so love the best!
 Though, in pursuance of his passive plan,
 He hailed, decried, the proper way.

As Man

So figured he ; and how as Poet? Verse
 Came only not to a stand-still. The worse,
 That his poor piece of daily work to do
 Was, not sink under any rivals ; who
 Loudly and long enough, without these qualms,
 Tuned, from Bocafoli's stark-naked psalms,
 To Plara's sonnets spoilt by toying with,
 "As knobs that stud some almug to the pith
 Prickèd for gum, wry thence, and crinklèd worse
 Than pursèd eyelids of a river-horse
 Sunning himself o' the slime when whirrs the breeze" —
Gad-fly, that is. He might compete with these !
 But — but —

"Observe a pompion-twine afloat ;
 Pluck me one cup from off the castle-moat !
 Along with cup you raise leaf, stalk and root,
 The entire surface of the pool to boot.
 So could I pluck a cup, put in one song
 A single sight, did not my hand, too strong,
 Twitch in the least the root-strings of the whole.
 How should externals satisfy my soul?"
 "Why that's precise the error Squarcialupe"
 (Hazarded Naddo) "finds ; 'the man can't stoop
 To sing us out,' quoth he, 'a mere romance ;
 He'd fain do better than the best, enhance
 The subjects' rarity, work problems out
 Therewith : ' now, you're a bard, a bard past doubt,
 And no philosopher ; why introduce
 Crotchets like these? fine, surely, but no use
 In poetry — which still must be, to strike,
 Based upon common sense ; there's nothing like
 Appealing to our nature ! what beside
 Was your first poetry? No tricks were tried
 In that, no hollow thrills, affected throes !
 'The man,' said we, 'tells his own joys and woes :
 We'll trust him.' Would you have your songs endure?
 Build on the human heart! — why, to be sure
 Yours is one sort of heart — but I mean theirs, —
 Ours, every one's, the healthy heart one cares
 To build on ! Central peace, mother of strength,
 That's father of . . . nay, go yourself that length,
 Ask those calm-hearted doers what they do
 When they have got their calm ! And is it true,
 Fire rankles at the heart of every globe?
 Perhaps. But these are matters one may probe

Too deeply for poetic purposes :
 Rather select a theory that . . . yes,
 Laugh! what does that prove? — stations you midway
 And saves some little o'er-refining. Nay,
 That's rank injustice done me! I restrict
 The poet? Don't I hold the poet picked
 Out of a host of warriors, statesmen . . . did
 I tell you? Very like! As well you hid
 That sense of power, you have! True bards believe
 All able to achieve what they achieve —
 That is, just nothing — in one point abide Profounder simpletons than all beside.
 Oh, ay! The knowledge that you are a bard
 Must constitute your prime, nay sole, reward!"
 So prattled Naddo, busiest of the tribe
 Of genius-haunters — how shall I describe
 What grubs or nips or rubs or rips — your louse
 For love, your flea for hate, magnanimous,
 Malignant, Pappacoda, Tagliafer,
 Picking a sustenance from wear and tear
 By implements it sedulous employs
 To undertake, lay down, mete out, o'er-toise
 Sordello? Fifty creepers to elude
 At once! They settled stanchly; shame ensued:
 Behold the monarch of mankind succumb
 To the last fool who turned him round his thumb,
 As Naddo styled it! 'T was not worth oppose
 The matter of a moment, gainsay those
 He aimed at getting rid of; better think
 Their thoughts and speak their speech, secure to slink
 Back expeditiously to his safe place,
 And chew the cud — what he and what his race
 Were really, each of them. Yet even this Conformity was partial. He would miss
 Some point, brought into contact with them ere
 Assured in what small segment of the sphere
 Of his existence they attended him;
 Whence blunders, falsehoods rectified — a grim
 List — slur it over! How? If dreams were tried,
 His will swayed sicklily from side to side,
 Nor merely neutralized his waking act
 But tended e'en in fancy to distract
 The intermediate will, the choice of means.
 He lost the art of dreaming: Mantuan scenes
 Supplied a baron, say, he sang before,
 Handsomely reckless, full to running o'er

Of gallantries ; “ abjure the soul, content
 With body, therefore ! ” Scarcely had he bent
 Himself in dream thus low, when matter fast
 Cried out, he found, for spirit to contrast
 And task it duly ; by advances slight,
 The simple stuff becoming composite,
 Count Lori grew Apollo — best recall
 His fancy ! Then would some rough peasant-Paul,
 Like those old Ecelin confers with, glance
 His gay apparel o’er ; that countenance
 Gathered his shattered fancies into one,
 And, body clean abolished, soul alone
 Sufficed the gray Paulician : by and by,
 To balance the ethereality,
 Passions were needed ; foiled he sank again.

Meanwhile the world rejoiced (’t is time explain)
 Because a sudden sickness set it free
 From Adelaide. Missing the mother-bee,
 Her mountain-hive Romano swarmed ; at once
 A rustle-forth of daughters and of sons
 Blackened the valley. “ I am sick too, old,
 Half crazed I think ; what good’s the Kaiser’s gold
 To such an one ? God help me ! for I catch
 My children’s greedy sparkling eyes at watch —
 ‘ He bears that double breastplate on,’ they say,
 ‘ So many minutes less than yesterday ! ’
 Beside, Monk Hilary is on his knees
 Now, sworn to kneel and pray till God shall please
 Exact a punishment for many things
 You know, and some you never knew ; which brings
 To memory, Azzo’s sister Beatrix
 And Richard’s Giglia are my Alberic’s
 And Ecelin’s betrothed ; the Count himself
 Must get my Palma : Ghibellin and Guef
 Mean to embrace each other.” So began
 Romano’s missive to his fighting man
 Taurello — on the Tuscan’s death, away
 With Friedrich sworn to sail from Naples’ bay
 Next month for Syria. Never thunder-clap
 Out of Vesuvius’ throat, like this mishap
 Startled him. “ That accursed Vicenza ! I
 Absent, and she selects this time to die !
 Ho, fellows, for Vicenza ! ” Half a score
 Of horses ridden dead, he stood before
 Romano in his reeking spurs : too late —
 “ Boniface urged me, Este could not wait,”

The chieftain stammered ; “ let me die in peace —
 Forget me ! Was it I who craved increase
 Of rule ? Do you and Friedrich plot your worst
 Against the Father : as you found me first
 So leave me now. Forgive me ! Palma, sure,
 Is at Goito still. Retain that lure —
 Only be pacified ! ”

The country rung
 With such a piece of news : on every tongue,
 How Ecelin’s great servant, congeed off,
 Had done a long day’s service, so, might doff
 The green and yellow, and recover breath
 At Mantua, whither, — since Retrude’s death,
 (The girlish slip of a Sicilian bride
 From Otho’s house, he carried to reside
 At Mantua till the Ferrarese should pile
 A structure worthy her imperial style,
 The gardens raise, the statues there enshrine,
 She never lived to see) — although his line
 Was ancient in her archives and she took
 A pride in him, that city, nor forsook
 Her child when he forsook himself and spent
 A prowess on Romano surely meant
 For his own growth — whither he ne’er resorts
 If wholly satisfied (to trust reports) .
 With Ecelin. So, forward in a trice
 Were shows to greet him. “ Take a friend’s advice,”
 Quoth Naddo to Sordello, “ nor be rash
 Because your rivals (nothing can abash
 Some folks) demur that we pronounced you best
 To sound the great man’s welcome ; ’t is a test,
 Remember ! Strojavacca looks asquint,
 The rough fat sloven ; and there’s plenty hint
 Your pinions have received of late a shock —
 Outsoar them, cobswan of the silver flock !
 Sing well ! ” A signal wonder, song’s no whit Facilitated.

Fast the minutes flit ;
 Another day, Sordello finds, will bring
 The soldier, and he cannot choose but sing ;
 So, a last shift, quits Mantua — slow, alone :
 Out of that aching brain, a very stone,
 Song must be struck. What occupies that front ?
 Just how he was more awkward than his wont
 The night before, when Naddo, who had seen
 Taurello on his progress, praised the mien

For dignity no crosses could affect —
 Such was a joy, and might not he detect
 A satisfaction if established joys
 Were proved imposture? Poetry annoys
 Its utmost: wherefore fret? Verses may come
 Or keep away! And thus he wandered, dumb
 Till evening, when he paused, thoroughly spent,
 On a blind hill-top: down the gorge he went,
 Yielding himself up as to an embrace.
 The moon came out; like features of a face,
 A querulous fraternity of pines,
 Sad blackthorn clumps, leafless and grovelling vines
 Also came out, made gradually up
 The picture; 't was Goito's mountain-cup
 And castle. He had dropped through one defile
 He never dared explore, the Chief erewhile
 Had vanished by. Back rushed the dream, enwrapped
 Him wholly. 'T was Apollo now they lapped,
 Those mountains, not a pettish minstrel meant
 To wear his soul away in discontent,
 Brooding on fortune's malice. Heart and brain
 Swelled; he expanded to himself again,
 As some thin seedling spice-tree starved and frail,
 Pushing between cat's head and ibis' tail
 Crusted into the porphyry pavement smooth,
 —Suffered remain just as it sprung, to soothe
 The Soldan's pining daughter, never yet
 Well in her chilly green-glazed minaret, —
 When rooted up, the sunny day she died,
 And flung into the common court beside
 Its parent tree. Come home, Sordello! Soon
 Was he low muttering, beneath the moon,
 Of sorrow saved, of quiet evermore, —
 Since from the purpose, he maintained before,
 Only resulted wailing and hot tears.
 Ah, the slim castle! dwindled of late years,
 But more mysterious; gone to ruin — trails
 Of vine through every loop-hole. Nought avails
 The night as, torch in hand, he must explore
 The maple chamber: did I say, its floor
 Was made of intersecting cedar beams?
 Worn now with gaps so large, there blew cold streams
 Of air quite from the dungeon; lay your ear
 Close and 't is like, one after one, you hear
 In the blind darkness water drop. The nests
 And nooks retain their long ranged vesture-chests

Empty and smelling of the iris root
 The Tuscan grated o'er them to recruit
 Her wasted wits. Palma was gone that day,
 Said the remaining women. Last, he lay
 Beside the Carian group reserved and still.

The Body, the Machine for Acting Will,
 Had been at the commencement proved unfit ;
 That for Demonstrating, Reflecting it,
 Mankind — no fitter : was the Will Itself
 In fault ?

His forehead pressed the moonlit shelf
 Beside the youngest marble maid awhile ;
 Then, raising it, he thought, with a long smile,
 " I shall be king again ! " as he withdrew
 The envied scarf ; into the font he threw
 His crown.

Next day, no poet ! " Wherefore ? " asked
 Taurello, when the dance of Jongleurs, masked
 As devils, ended ; " don't a song come next ? "
 The master of the pageant looked perplexed
 Till Naddo's whisper came to his relief.
 " His Highness knew what poets were : in brief,
 Had not the tetchy race prescriptive right
 To peevishness, caprice ? or, call it spite,
 One must receive their nature in its length
 And breadth, expect the weakness with the strength ! "
 — So phrasing, till, his stock of phrases spent,
 The easy-natured soldier smiled assent,
 Settled his portly person, smoothed his chin,
 And nodded that the bull-bait might begin.

BOOK THE THIRD.

AND the font took them : let our laurels lie !
 Braid moonfern now with mystic trifoly
 Because once more Goito gets, once more,
 Sordello to itself ! A dream is o'er,
 And the suspended life begins anew ;
 Quiet those throbbing temples, then, subdue
 That cheek's distortion ! Nature's strict embrace,
 Putting aside the past, shall soon efface
 Its print as well — factitious humors grown

Over the true — loves, hatreds not his own —
 And turn him pure as some forgotten vest
 Woven of painted byssus, silkiest
 Tufting the Tyrrhene whelk's pearl-sheeted lip,
 Left welter where a trireme let it slip
 I' the sea, and vexed a satrap ; so the stain
 O' the world forsakes Sordello, with its pain,
 Its pleasure : how the tinct loosening escapes,
 Cloud after cloud ! Mantua's familiar shapes
 Die, fair and foul die, fading as they flit,
 Men, women, and the pathos and the wit,
 Wise speech and foolish, deeds to smile or sigh
 For, good, bad, seemly or ignoble, die.
 The last face glances through the eglantines,
 The last voice murmurs 'twixt the blossomed vines
 Of Men, of that machine supplied by thought
 To compass self-perception with, he sought
 By forcing half himself — an insane pulse
 Of a god's blood, on clay it could convulse,
 Never transmute — on human sights and sounds,
 To watch the other half with ; irksome bounds
 It ebbs from to its source, a fountain sealed
 Forever. Better sure be unrevealed
 Than part revealed : Sordello well or ill
 Is finished : then what further use of Will,
 Point in the prime idea not realized,
 An oversight ? inordinately prized,
 No less, and pampered with enough of each
 Delight to prove the whole above its reach.
 “ To need become all natures, yet retain
 The law of my own nature — to remain
 Myself, yet yearn . . . as if that chestnut, think,
 Should yearn for this first larch-bloom crisp and pink,
 Or those pale fragrant tears where zephyrs stanch
 March wounds along the fretted pine-tree branch !
 Will and the means to show will, great and small,
 Material, spiritual, — abjure them all
 Save any so distinct, they may be left
 To amuse, not tempt become ! and, thus bereft,
 Just as I first was fashioned would I be !
 Nor, moon, is it Apollo now, but me
 Thou visitest to comfort and befriend !
 Swim thou into my heart, and there an end,
 Since I possess thee ! — nay, thus shut mine eyes
 And know, quite know, by this heart's fall and rise,
 When thou dost bury thee in clouds, and when

Out-standest : wherefore practise upon men
To make that plainer to myself ? ”

Slide here

Over a sweet and solitary year
Wasted ; or simply notice change in him —
How eyes, once with exploring bright, grew dim
And satiate with receiving. Some distress
Was caused, too, by a sort of consciousness
Under the imbecility, — nought kept
That down ; he slept, but was aware he slept,
So, frustrated : as who brainsick made pact
Erst with the overhanging cataract
To deafen him, yet still distinguished plain
His own blood's measured clicking at his brain.

To finish. One declining Autumn day —
Few birds about the heaven chill and gray,
No wind that cared trouble the tacit woods —
He sauntered home complacently, their moods
According, his and nature's. Every spark
Of Mantua life was trodden out ; so dark
The embers, that the Troubadour, who sung
Hundreds of songs, forgot, its trick his tongue,
Its craft his brain, how either brought to pass
Singing at all ; that faculty might class
With any of Apollo's now. The year
Began to find its early promise sere
As well. Thus beauty vanishes ; thus stone
Outlingers flesh : nature's and his youth gone,
They left the world to you, and wished you joy,
When, stopping his benevolent employ,
A presage shuddered through the welkin ; harsh
The earth's remonstrance followed. 'T was the marsh
Gone of a sudden. Mincio, in its place,
Laughed, a broad water, in next morning's face,
And, where the mists broke up immense and white
I' the steady wind, burned like a spilth of light
Out of the crashing of a myriad stars.
And here was nature, bound by the same bars
Of fate with him !

“ No ! youth once gone is gone :

Deeds let escape are never to be done.
Leaf-fall and grass-spring for the year ; for us —
Oh forfeit I unalterably thus
My chance ? nor two lives wait me, this to spend
Learning save that ? Nature has time, may mend
Mistake, she knows occasion will recur ;

Landslip or seabreach, how affects it her
 With her magnificent resources? — I
 Must perish once and perish utterly.
 Not any strollings now at even-close
 Down the field-path, Sordello! by thorn-rows
 Alive with lamp-flies, swimming spots of fire
 And dew, outlining the black cypress' spire
 She waits you at, Elys, who heard you first
 Woo her, the snow-month through, but ere she durst
 Answer 't was April. Linden-flower-time-long
 Her eyes were on the ground; 't is July, strong
 Now; and because white dust-clouds overwhelm
 The woodside, here or by the village elm
 That holds the moon, she meets you, somewhat pale,
 But letting you lift up her coarse flax veil
 And whisper (the damp little hand in yours)
 Of love, heart's love, your heart's love that endures
 Till death. Tush! No mad mixing with the rout
 Of haggard ribalds wandering about
 The hot torchlit wine-scented island-house
 Where Friedrich holds his wickedest carouse,
 Parading, — to the gay Palermitans,
 Soft Messinese, dusk Saracenic clans
 Nuocera holds, — those tall grave dazzling Norse,
 High-cheeked, lank-haired, toothed whiter than the morse,
 Queens of the caves of jet stalactites,
 He sent his barks to fetch through icy seas,
 The blind night seas without a saving star,
 And here in snowy birdskin robes they are,
 Sordello! — here, mollitious alcoves gilt
 Superb as Byzant domes that devils built!
 — Ah, Byzant, there again! no chance to go
 Ever like august cheery Dandolo,
 Worshipping hearts about him for a wall,
 Conducted, blind eyes, hundred years and all,
 Through vanquished Byzant where friends note for him
 What pillar, marble massive, sardius slim,
 'T were fittest he transport to Venice' Square —
 Flattered and promised life to touch them there
 Soon, by those fervid sons of senators!
 No more lives, deaths, loves, hatreds, peaces, wars!
 Ah, fragments of a whole ordained to be,
 Points in the life I waited! what are ye
 But roundels of a ladder which appeared
 Awhile the very platform it was reared
 To lift me on? — that happiness I find

Proofs of my faith in, even in the blind
 Instinct which bade forego you all unless
 Ye led me past yourselves. Ay, happiness
 Awaited me ; the way life should be used
 Was to acquire, and deeds like you conduced
 To teach it by a self-revelment, deemed Life's very use, so long ! Whatever seemed Progress to that, was pleasure ; aught that stayed
 My reaching it — no pleasure. I have laid
 The ladder down ; I climb not ; still, aloft
 The platform stretches ! Bliss strong and soft,
 I dared not entertain, elude me ; yet
 Never of what they promised could I get
 A glimpse till now ! The common sort, the crowd,
 Exist, perceive ; with Being are endowed,
 However slight, distinct from what they See,
 However bounded ; Happiness must be,
 To feed the first by gleanings from the last,
 Attain its qualities, and slow or fast
 Become what they behold ; such peace-in-strife
 By transmutation, is the Use of Life,
 The Alien turning Native to the soul
 Or body — which instructs me ; I am whole
 There and demand a Palma ; had the world
 Been from my soul to a like distance hurled,
 'T were Happiness to make it one with me :
 Whereas I must, ere I begin to Be,
 Include a world, in flesh, I comprehend
 In spirit now ; and this done, what's to blend
 With ? Nought is Alien in the world — my Will Owns all already ; yet can turn it still
 Less Native, since my Means to correspond
 With Will are so unworthy, 't was my bond
 To tread the very joys that tantalize
 Most now, into a grave, never to rise.
 I die then ! Will the rest agree to die ?
 Next Age or no ? Shall its Sordello try
 Clue after clue, and catch at last the clue
 I miss ? — that's underneath my finger too,
 Twice, thrice a day, perhaps, — some yearning traced
 Deeper, some petty consequence embraced
 Closer ! Why fled I Mantua, then ? — complained
 So much my Will was fettered, yet remained
 Content within a tether half the range
 I could assign it ? — able to exchange
 My ignorance (I felt) for knowledge, and

Idle because I could thus understand —
 Could e'en have penetrated to its core
 Our mortal mystery, yet — fool — forbore,
 Preferred elaborating in the dark
 My casual stuff, by any wretched spark
 Born of my predecessors, though one stroke
 Of mine had brought the flame forth! Mantua's yoke,
 My minstrel's-trade, was to behold mankind, —
 My own concern was just to bring my mind
 Behold, just extricate, for my acquit,
 Each object suffered stifle in the mist
 Which hazard, custom, blindness interpose
 Betwixt things and myself."

Whereat he rose.

The level wind carried above the firs
 Clouds, the irrevocable travellers,
 Onward.

"Pushed thus into a drowsy copse,
 Arms twine about my neck, each eyelid drops
 Under a humid finger; while there fleets,
 Outside the screen, a pageant time repeats
 Never again! To be deposed, immured
 Clandestinely — still petted, still assured
 To govern were fatiguing work — the Sight
 Fleeting meanwhile! 'Tis noontide: wreak ere night
 Somehow my will upon it, rather! Slake
 This thirst somehow, the poorest impress take
 That serves! A blasted bud displays you, torn,
 Faint rudiments of the full flower unborn;
 But who divines what glory coats o'erelasp
 Of the bulb dormant in the mummy's grasp Taurello sent?" . . .

"Taurello? Palma sent
 Your Trouvere," (Naddo interposing leant
 Over the lost bard's shoulder) — "and, believe,
 You cannot more reluctantly receive
 Than I pronounce her message: we depart
 Together. What avail a poet's heart
 Verona's pomps and gauds? five blades of grass
 Suffice him. News? Why, where your marish was,
 On its mud-banks smoke rises after smoke
 I' the valley, like a spout of hell new-broke.
 Oh, the world's tidings! small your thanks, I guess,
 For them. The father of our Patroness
 Has played Taurello an astounding trick,
 Parts between Ecelin and Alberic

His wealth and goes into a convent : both
 Wed Guelfs : the Count and Palma plighted troth
 A week since at Verona : and they want
 You doubtless to contrive the marriage-chant
 Ere Richard storms Ferrara." Then was told
 The tale from the beginning — how, made bold
 By Salinguerra's absence, Guelfs had burned
 And pillaged till he unawares returned
 To take revenge : how Azzo and his friend
 Were doing their endeavor, how the end
 O' the siege was nigh, and how the Count, released
 From further care, would with his marriage-feast
 Inaugurate a new and better rule,
 Absorbing thus Romano.

" Shall I school
 My master," added Naddo, " and suggest
 How you may clothe in a poetic vest
 These doings, at Verona? Your response
 To Palma! Wherefore jest? ' Depart at once?'
 A good resolve! In truth, I hardly hoped
 So prompt an acquiescence. Have you groped
 Out wisdom in the wilds here? — Thoughts may be
 Over-poetical for poetry.
 Pearl-white, you poets liken Palma's neck ;
 And yet what spoils an orient like some speck
 Of genuine white, turning its own white gray?
 You take me? Curse the cicala!"

One more day,
 One eve — appears Verona! Many a group,
 (You mind) instructed of the osprey's swoop
 On lnyx and ounce, was gathering — Christendom
 Sure to receive, whate'er the end was, from
 The evening's purpose cheer or detriment,
 Since Friedrich only waited some event
 Like this, of Ghibellins establishing Themselves within Ferrara, ere, as King
 Of Lombardy, he'd glad descend there, wage
 Old warfare with the Pontiff, disengage
 His barons from the burghers, and restore
 The rule of Charlemagne, broken of yore
 By Hildebrand.

I' the palace, each by each,
 Sordello sat and Palma : little speech
 At first in that dim closet, face with face
 (Despite the tumult in the market-place)
 Exchanging quick low laughters : now would rush

Word upon word to meet a sudden flush,
 A look left off, a shifting lips' surmise —
 But for the most part their two histories
 Ran best through the locked fingers and linked arms.
 And so the night flew on with its alarms
 Till in burst one of Palma's retinue ;
 "Now, Lady!" gasped he. Then arose the two
 And leaned into Verona's air, dead-still.
 A balcony lay black beneath until
 Out, 'mid a gush of torchfire, gray-haired men
 Came on it and harangued the people : then
 Sea-like that people surging to and fro
 Shouted, "Hale forth the carroch — trumpets, ho,
 A flourish! Run it in the ancient grooves!
 Back from the bell! Hammer — that whom behooves
 May hear the League is up! Peal — learn who list,
 Verona means not first of towns break tryst
 To-morrow with the League!"

Enough. Now turn —
 Over the eastern cypresses : discern!
 Is any beacon set a-glimmer?

Rang

The air with shouts that overpowered the clang
 Of the incessant carroch, even : "Haste —
 The candle's at the gateway! ere it waste,
 Each soldier stand beside it, armed to march
 With Tiso Sampier through the eastern arch!"
 Ferrara's succored, Palma!

Once again

They sat together ; some strange thing in train
 To say, so difficult was Palma's place
 In taking, with a coy fastidious grace
 Like the bird's flutter ere it fix and feed.
 But when she felt she held her friend indeed
 Safe, she threw back her curls, began implant
 Her lessons ; telling of another want
 Goito's quiet nourished than his own ;
 Palma — to serve him — to be served, alone
 Importing ; Agnes' milk so neutralized
 The blood of Ecelin. Nor be surprised
 If, while Sordello fain had captive led Nature, in dream was Palma subjected
 To some out-soul, which dawned not though she pined
 Delaying till its advent, heart and mind,
 Their life. "How dared I let expand the force
 Within me, till some out-soul, whose resource

It grew for, should direct it? Every law
 Of life, its every fitness, every flaw,
 Must One determine whose corporeal shape
 Would be no other than the prime escape
 And revelation to me of a Will
 Orb-like o'ershrouded and inscrutable
 Above, save at the point which, I should know,
 Shone that myself, my powers, might overflow
 So far, so much; as now it signified
 Which earthly shape it henceforth chose my guide,
 Whose mortal lip selected to declare
 Its oracles, what fleshly garb would wear
 — The first of intimations, whom to love;
 The next, how love him. Seemed that orb, above
 The castle-covert and the mountain-close,
 Slow in appearing, — if beneath it rose
 Cravings, aversions, — did our green precinct
 Take pride in me, at unawares distinct
 With this or that endowment, — how, repressed
 At once, such jetting power shrank to the rest!
 Was I to have a chance touch spoil me, leave
 My spirit thence unfitted to receive
 The consummating spell? — that spell so near
 Moreover! 'Waits he not the waking year?
 His almond-blossoms must be honey-ripe
 By this; to welcome him, fresh runnels stripe
 The thawed ravines; because of him, the wind
 Walks like a herald. I shall surely find
 Him now!'

“And chief, that earnest April morn
 Of Richard's Love-court, was it time, so worn
 And white my cheek, so idly my blood beat,
 Sitting that morn beside the Lady's feet
 And saying as she prompted; till outburst
 One face from all the faces — not then first
 I knew it; where in maple chamber glooms,
 Crowned with what sanguine-heart pomegranate blooms
 Advanced it ever? Men's acknowledgment
 Sanctioned my own: 't was taken, Palma's bent, —
 Sordello, — recognized, accepted.

“Dumb
 She still sat scheming. Ecelin would come
 Gaunt, scared, 'Cesano baffles me,' he'd say:
 'Better I fought it out, my father's way!
 Strangle Ferrara in its drowning flats,
 And you and your Taurello yonder — what's

Romano's business there?' An hour's concern
 To cure the froward Chief! — induced return
 As heartened from those overmeaning eyes,
 Wound up to persevere, — his enterprise
 Marked out anew, its exigent of wit
 Apportioned, — she at liberty to sit
 And scheme against the next emergence, I —
 To covet her Taurello-sprite, made fly
 Or fold the wing — to con your horoscope
 For leave command those steely shafts shoot ope,
 Or straight assuage their blinding eagerness
 In blank smooth snow. What semblance of success
 To any of my plans for making you
 Mine and Romano's? Break the first wall through,
 Tread o'er the ruins of the Chief, supplant
 His sons beside, still, vainest were the vaunt:
 There, Salinguerra would obstruct me sheer,
 And the insuperable Tuscan, here,
 Stay me! But one wild eve that Lady died
 In her lone chamber: only I beside:
 Taurello far at Naples, and my sire
 At Padua, Ecelin away in ire
 With Alberic. She held me thus — a clutch
 To make our spirits as our bodies touch —
 And so began flinging the past up, heaps
 Of uncouth treasure from their sunless sleeps
 Within her soul; deeds rose along with dreams,
 Fragments of many miserable schemes,
 Secrets, more secrets, then — no, not the last —
 'Mongst others, like a casual trick o' the past,
 How . . . ay, she told me, gathering up her face,
 All left of it, into one arch-grimace
 To die with . . .

“Friend, 't is gone! but not the fear
 Of that fell laughing, heard as now I hear.
 Nor faltered voice, nor seemed her heart grow weak
 When i' the midst abrupt she ceased to speak
 — Dead, as to serve a purpose, mark! — for in Rushed o' the very instant Ecelin
 (How summoned, who divines?) — looking as if
 He understood why Adelaide lay stiff
 Already in my arms; for, ‘Girl, how must
 I manage Este in the matter thrust
 Upon me, how unravel your bad coil? —
 Since’ (he declared) ‘t is on your brow — a soil
 Like hers, there!’ then in the same breath, ‘he lacked

No counsel after all, had signed no pact
 With devils, nor was treason here or there,
 Goito or Vicenza, his affair :
 He buried it in Adelaide's deep grave,
 Would begin life afresh, now, — would not slave
 For any Friedrich's nor Taurello's sake !
 What bootied him to meddle or to make
 In Lombardy ?' And afterward I knew
 The meaning of his promise to undo
 All she had done — why marriages were made,
 New friendships entered on, old followers paid
 With curses for their pains, — new friends' amaze
 At height, when, passing out by Gate St. Blaise,
 He stopped short in Vicenza, bent his head
 Over a friar's neck, — ' had vowed,' he said,
 ' Long since, nigh thirty years, because his wife
 And child were saved there, to bestow his life
 On God, his gettings on the Church.'

“ Exiled

Within Goito, still one dream beguiled
 My days and nights ; 't was found, the orb I sought
 To serve, those glimpses came of Fomalkaut,
 No other : but how serve it ? — authorize
 You and Romano mingle destinies ?
 And straight Romano's angel stood beside
 Me who had else been Boniface's bride,
 For Salinguerra 't was, with neck low bent,
 And voice lightened to music, (as he meant
 To learn not teach me,) who withdrew the pall
 From the dead past and straight revived it all,
 Making me see how first Romano waxed,
 Wherefore he waned now, why, if I relaxed
 My grasp (even I !) would drop a thing effete,
 Frayed by itself, unequal to complete
 Its course, and counting every step astray
 A gain so much. Romano, every way
 Stable, a Lombard House now — why start back
 Into the very outset of its track ?
 This patching principle which late allied
 Our House with other Houses — what beside Concerned the apparition, the first Knight
 Who followed Conrad hither in such plight
 His utmost wealth was summed in his one steed ?
 For Ecelo, that prowler, was decreed
 A task, in the beginning hazardous
 To him as ever task can be to us ;

But did the weather-beaten thief despair
 When first our crystal cincture of warm air, —
 That binds the Trevisan, — as its spice-belt
 (Crusaders say) the tract where Jesus dwelt, —
 Furtive he pierced, and Este was to face —
 Despaired Saponian strength of Lombard grace?
 Tried he at making surer aught made sure,
 Maturing what already was mature?
 No; his heart prompted Ecelo, 'Confront
 Este, inspect yourself. What's nature? Wont.
 Discard three-parts your nature, and adopt
 The rest as an advantage!' Old strength propped
 The man who first grew Podestà among
 The Vicentines, no less than, while there sprung
 His palace up in Padua like a threat,
 Their noblest spied a grace, unnoticed yet
 In Conrad's crew. Thus far the object gained,
 Romano was established — has remained —
 For are you not Italian, truly peers
 With Este? 'Azzo' better soothes our ears
 Than 'Alberic'? or is this lion's-crine
 From over-mounts (this yellow hair of mine)
 'So weak a graft on Agnes Este's stock?'
 (Thus went he on with something of a mock)
 'Wherefore recoil, then, from the very fate
 Conceded you, refuse to imitate
 Your model farther? Este long since left
 Being mere Este: as a blade its heft,
 Este required the Pope to further him:
 And you, the Kaiser — whom your father's whim
 Foregoes or, better, never shall forego
 If Palma dare pursue what Ecelo
 Commenced, but Ecelin desists from: just
 As Adelaide of Susa could intrust
 Her donative, — her Piedmont given the Pope,
 Her Alpine-pass for him to shut or ope
 'Twixt France and Italy, — to the superb
 Matilda's perfecting, — so, lest aught curb
 Our Adelaide's great counter-project for Giving her Trentine to the Emperor
 With passage here from Germany, — shall you
 Take it, — my slender plodding talent, too!'
 — Urged me Taurello with his half-smile.

"Ho

As Patron of the scattered family
 Conveyed me to his Mantua, kept in bruit

Azzo's alliances and Richard's suit
 Until, the Kaiser excommunicate,
 'Nothing remains,' Taurello said, 'but wait
 Some rash procedure: Palma was the link,
 As Agnes' child, between us, and they shrink
 From losing Palma: judge if we advance,
 Your father's method, your inheritance!'
 The day I was betrothed to Boniface
 At Padua by Taurello's self, took place
 The outrage of the Ferrarese: again,
 The day I sought Verona with the train
 Agreed for, — by Taurello's policy
 Convicting Richard of the fault, since we
 Were present to annul or to confirm, —
 Richard, whose patience had outstayed its term,
 Quitted Verona for the siege.

"And now

What glory may engird Sordello's brow
 Through this? A month since at Oliero slunk
 All that was Ecelin into a monk;
 But how could Salinguerra so forget
 His liege of thirty years as grudge even yet
 One effort to recover him? He sent
 Forthwith the tidings of this last event
 To Ecelin — declared that he, despite
 The recent folly, recognized his right
 To order Salinguerra: 'Should he wring
 Its uttermost advantage out, or fling
 This chance away? Or were his sons now Head
 O' the House?' Through me Taurello's missive sped;
 My father's answer will by me return.
 Behold! 'For him,' he writes, 'no more concern
 With strife than, for his children, with fresh plots
 Of Friedrich. Old engagements out he blots
 For aye: Taurello shall no more subserve,
 Nor Ecelin impose.' Lest this unnerve
 Taurello at this juncture, slack his grip
 Of Richard, suffer the occasion slip, —
 I, in his sons' default (who, mating with
 Este, forsake Romano as the frith
 Its mainsea for that firmland, sea makes head
 Against) I stand, Romano, — in their stead
 Assume the station they desert, and give
 Still, as the Kaiser's representative,
 Taurello license he demands. Midnight —
 Morning — by noon to-morrow, making light

Of the League's issue, we, in some gay weed
 Like yours, disguised together, may precede
 The arbitrators to Ferrara : reach
 Him, let Taurello's noble accents teach
 The rest ! Then say if I have misconceived
 Your destiny, too readily believed
 The Kaiser's cause your own ! ”

And Palma's fled.

Though no affirmative disturbs the head,
 A dying lamp-flame sinks and rises o'er,
 Like the alighted planet Pollux wore,
 Until, morn breaking, he resolves to be
 Gate-vein of this heart's blood of Lombardy,
 Soul of this body — to wield this aggregate
 Of souls and bodies, and so conquer fate
 Though he should live — a centre of disgust
 Even — apart, core of the outward crust
 He vivifies, assimilates. For thus
 I bring Sordello to the rapturous
 Exclaim at the crowd's cry, because one round
 Of life was quite accomplished ; and he found
 Not only that a soul, whate'er its might,
 Is insufficient to its own delight,
 Both in corporeal organs and in skill
 By means of such to body forth its Will —
 And, after, insufficient to apprise
 Men of that Will, oblige them recognize
 The Hid by the Revealed — but that, the last
 Nor lightest of the struggles overpast,
 Will he bade abdicate, which would not void
 The throne, might sit there, suffer he enjoyed
 Mankind, a varied and divine array
 Incapable of homage, the first way,
 Nor fit to render incidentally
 Tribute connived at, taken by the by,
 In joys. If thus with warrant to rescind
 The ignominious exile of mankind —
 Whose proper service, ascertained intact
 As yet, (to be by him themselves made act,
 Not watch Sordello acting each of them)
 Was to secure — if the true diadem
 Seemed imminent while our Sordello drank
 The wisdom of that golden Palma, — thank
 Verona's Lady in her citadel
 Founded by Gaulish Brennus, legends tell :
 And truly when she left him, the sun reared

A head like the first clamberer's who peered
 A-top the Capitol, his face on flame
 With triumph, triumphing till Manlius came.
 Nor slight too much my rhymes — that spring, dispread,
 Dispart, disperse, lingering overhead
 Like an escape of angels! Rather say,
 My transcendental platan! mounting gay
 (An archimage so courts a novice-queen)
 With tremulous silvered trunk, whence branches sheen
 Laugh out, thick-foliaged next, a-shiver soon
 With colored buds, then glowing like the moon
 One mild flame, — last a pause, a burst, and all
 Her ivory limbs are smothered by a fall,
 Bloom-flinders and fruit-sparkles and leaf-dust,
 Ending the weird work prosecuted just
 For her amusement; he decrepit, stark,
 Dozes; her uncontrolled delight may mark
 Apart —

Yet not so, surely never so!

Only, as good my soul were suffered go
 O'er the lagune: forth fare thee, put aside —
 Entrance thy synod, as a god may glide
 Out of the world he fills, and leave it mute
 For myriad ages as we men compute,
 Returning into it without a break
 O' the consciousness! They sleep, and I awake
 O'er the lagune, being at Venice.

Note,

In just such songs as Eglamor (say) wrote
 With heart and soul and strength, for he believed
 Himself achieving all to be achieved
 By singer — in such songs you find alone
 Completeness, judge the song and-singer one,
 And either purpose answered, his in it
 Or its in him: while from true works (to wit
 Sordello's dream-performances that will Never be more than dreamed) escapes there still
 Some proof, the singer's proper life was 'neath
 The life his song exhibits, this a sheath
 To that; a passion and a knowledge far
 Transcending these, majestic as they are,
 Smouldered; his lay was but an episode
 In the bard's life: which evidence you owed
 To some slight weariness, some looking-off
 Or start-away. The childish skit or scoff
 In "Charlemagne," (his poem, dreamed divine

In every point except one silly line
 About the restiff daughters) — what may lurk
 In that? “My life commenced before this work,”
 (So I interpret the significance
 Of the bard’s start aside and look askance) —
 “My life continues after: on I fare
 With no more stopping, possibly, no care
 To note the undercurrent, the why and how,
 Where, when, o’ the deeper life, as thus just now.
 But, silent, shall I cease to live? Alas
 For you! who sigh, ‘When shall it come to pass
 We read that story? How will he compress
 The future gains, his life’s true business,
 Into the better lay which — that one flout,
 Howe’er inopportune it be, lets out —
 Engrosses him already, though professed
 To meditate with us eternal rest,
 And partnership in all his life has found?’ ”
 ‘T is but a sailor’s promise, weather-bound:
 “Strike sail, slip cable, here the bark be moored
 For once, the awning stretched, the poles assured!
 Noontide above; except the wave’s crisp dash,
 Or buzz of colibri, or tortoise’ splash,
 The margin’s silent: out with every spoil
 Made in our tracking, coil by mighty coil,
 This serpent of a river to his head
 I’ the midst! Admire each treasure, as we spread
 The bank, to help us tell our history
 Aright: give ear, endeavor to descry
 The groves of giant rushes, how they grew
 Like demons’ endlong tresses we sailed through,
 What mountains yawned, forests to give us vent
 Opened, each doleful side, yet on we went
 Till . . . may that beetle (shake your cap) attest
 The springing of a land-wind from the West!”
 — Wherefore? Ah yes, you frolic it to-day!
 To-morrow, and, the pageant moved away
 Down to the poorest tent-pole, we and you
 Part company: no other may pursue
 Eastward your voyage, be informed what fate
 Intends, if triumph or decline await
 The tempter of the everlasting steppe.
 I muse this on a ruined palace-step
 At Venice: why should I break off, nor sit
 Longer upon my step, exhaust the fit
 England gave birth to? Who’s adorable

Enough reclaim a —— no Sordello's Will
 Alack! — be queen to me? That Bassanese
 Busied among her smoking fruit-boats? These
 Perhaps from our delicious Asolo
 Who twinkle, pigeons o'er the portico
 Not prettier, bind June lilies into sheaves
 To deck the bridge-side chapel, dropping leaves
 Soiled by their own loose gold-meal? Ah, beneath
 The cool arch stoops she, brownest cheek! Her wreath
 Endures a month — a half month — if I make
 A queen of her, continue for her sake
 Sordello's story? Nay, that Paduan girl
 Splashes with barer legs where a live whirl
 In the dead black Giudecca proves sea-weed
 Drifting has sucked down three, four, all indeed
 Save one pale-red striped, pale-blue turbaned post
 For gondolas.

You sad dishevelled ghost
 That pluck at me and point, are you advised
 I breathe? Let stay those girls (e'en her disguised — Jewels i' the locks that love no crownet like
 Their native field-buds and the green wheat spike,
 So fair! — who left this end of June's turmoil,
 Shook off, as might a lily its gold soil,
 Pomp, save a foolish gem or two, and free
 In dream, came join the peasants o'er the sea.)
 Look they too happy, too tricked out? Confess
 There is such niggard stock of happiness
 To share, that, do one's uttermost, dear wretch,
 One labors ineffectually to stretch
 It o'er you so that mother and children, both
 May equitably flaunt the sumpter-cloth!
 Divide the robe yet farther: be content
 With seeing just a score pre-eminent
 Through shreds of it, acknowledged happy wights,
 Engrossing what should furnish all, by rights!
 For, these in evidence, you clearer claim
 A like garb for the rest, — grace all, the same
 As these my peasants. I ask youth and strength
 And health for each of you, not more — at length
 Grown wise, who asked at home that the whole race
 Might add the spirit's to the body's grace,
 And all be dizen'd out as chiefs and bards.
 But in this magic weather one discards
 Much old requirement. Venice seems a type
 Of Life — 'twixt blue and blue extends, a stripe,

As Life, the somewhat, hangs 'twixt nought and nought :
 'Tis Venice, and 't is Life — as good you sought
 To spare me the Piazza's slippery stone
 Or keep me to the unchoked canals alone,
 As hinder Life the evil with the good
 Which make up Living, rightly understood.
 Only, do finish something! Peasants, queens,
 Take them, made happy by whatever means,
 Parade them for the common credit, vouch
 That a luckless residue, we send to crouch
 In corners out of sight, was just as framed
 For happiness, its portion might have claimed
 As well, and so, obtaining joy, had stalked
 Fastuous as any! — such my project, balked
 Already; I hardly venture to adjust
 The first rags, when you find me. To mistrust
 Me! — nor unreasonably. You, no doubt,
 Have the true knack of tiring suitors out
 With those thin lips on tremble, lashless eyes
 Inveterately tear-shot — there, be wise,
 Mistress of mine, there, there, as if I meant
 You insult! — shall your friend (not slave) be shent
 For speaking home? Beside, care-bit erased
 Broken-up beauties ever took my taste
 Supremely; and I love you more, far more
 Than her I looked should foot Life's temple-floor.
 Years ago, leagues at distance, when and where
 A whisper came, "Let others seek! — thy care
 Is found, thy life's provision; if thy race
 Should be thy mistress, and into one face
 The many faces crowd?" Ah, had I, judge,
 Or no, your secret? Rough apparel — grudge
 All ornaments save tag or tassel worn
 To hint we are not thoroughly forlorn —
 Slouch bonnet, unloop mantle, careless go
 Alone (that's saddest, but it must be so)
 Through Venice, sing now and now glance aside,
 Aught desultory or undignified, —
 Then, ravishingest lady, will you pass
 Or not each formidable group, the mass
 Before the Basilic (that feast gone by,
 God's great day of the Corpus Domini)
 And, wistfully foregoing proper men,
 Come timid up to me for alms? And then
 The luxury to hesitate, feign do
 Some unexampled grace! — when, whom but you

Dare I bestow your own upon? And hear
 Further before you say, it is to sneer
 I call you ravishing; for I regret
 Little that she, whose early foot was set
 Forth as she 'd plant it on a pedestal,
 Now, i' the silent city, seems to fall
 Toward me — no wreath, only a lip's unrest
 To quiet, surcharged eyelids to be pressed
 Dry of their tears upon my bosom. Strange
 Such sad chance should produce in thee such change,
 My love! Warped souls and bodies! yet God spoke
 Of right-hand, foot and eye — selects our yoke,
 Sordello, as your poetship may find!
 So, sleep upon my shoulder, child, nor mind
 Their foolish talk; we 'll manage reinstate
 Your old worth; ask moreover, when they prate
 Of evil men past hope, "Don't each contrive,
 Despite the evil you abuse, to live? —
 Keeping, each losel, through a maze of lies,
 His own conceit of truth? to which he hies
 By obscure windings, tortuous, if you will,
 But to himself not inaccessible;
 He sees truth, and his lies are for the crowd
 Who cannot see; some fancied right allowed
 His vilest wrong, empowered the losel clutch
 One pleasure from a multitude of such
 Denied him." Then assert, "All men appear
 To think all better than themselves, by here
 Trusting a crowd they wrong; but really," say,
 "All men think all men stupider than they,
 Since, save themselves, no other comprehends
 The complicated scheme to make amends
 — Evil, the scheme by which, through Ignorance,
 Good labors to exist." A slight advance, —
 Merely to find the sickness you die through,
 And nought beside! but if one can't eschew
 One's portion in the common lot, at least
 One can avoid an ignorance increased
 Tenfold by dealing out hint after hint
 How nought were like dispensing without stint
 The water of life — so easy to dispense
 Beside, when one has probed the centre whence
 Commotion's born — could tell you of it all!
 "— Meantime, just meditate my madrigal
 O' the mugwort that conceals a dewdrop safe!"
 What, dullard? we and you in smothery chafe,

Babes, baldheads, stumbled thus far into Zin
 The Horrid, getting neither out nor in,
 A hungry sun above us, sands that bung
 Our throats, — each dromedary lolls a tongue,
 Each camel churns a sick and frothy chap,
 And you, 'twixt tales of Potiphar's mishap,
 And sonnets on the earliest ass that spoke,
 — Remark, you wonder any one needs choke
 With founts about! Potsherd him, Gibeonites!
 While awkwardly enough your Moses smites
 The rock, though he forego his Promised Land
 Thereby, have Satan claim his carcass, and
 Figure as Metaphysic Poet . . . ah,
 Mark ye the dim first oozings? Meribah!
 Then, quaffing at the fount my courage gained,
 Recall — not that I prompt ye — who explained . . .
 "Presumptuous!" interrupts one. You, not I
 'T is, brother, marvel at and magnify
 Such office: "office," quotha? can we get
 To the beginning of the office yet?
 What do we here? simply experiment
 Each on the other's power and its intent
 When elsewhere tasked, — if this of mine were trucked
 For yours to either's good, — we watch construct,
 In short, an engine: with a finished one,
 What it can do, is all, — nought, how 't is done.
 But this of ours yet in probation, dusk
 A kernel of strange wheelwork through its husk
 Grows into shape by quarters and by halves;
 Remark this tooth's spring, wonder what that valve's
 Fall bodes, presume each faculty's device,
 Make out each other more or less precise —
 The scope of the whole engine's to be proved;
 We die: which means to say, the whole's removed,
 Dismounted wheel by wheel, this complex gin, —
 To be set up anew elsewhere, begin
 A task indeed, but with a clearer clime
 Than the murk lodgment of our building-time.
 And then, I grant you, it behoves forget
 How 't is done — all that must amuse us yet
 So long: and, while you turn upon your heel,
 Pray that I be not busy slitting steel
 Or shredding brass, camped on some virgin shore
 Under a cluster of fresh stars, before
 I name a tithe o' the wheels I trust to do!
 So occupied, then, are we: hitherto,

At present, and a weary while to come,
 The office of ourselves, — nor blind nor dumb,
 And seeing somewhat of man's state, — has been,
 For the worst of us, to say they so have seen ;
 For the better, what it was they saw ; the best
 Impart the gift of seeing to the rest :
 "So that I glance," says such an one, "around,
 And there's no face but I can read profound
 Disclosures in ; this stands for hope, that — fear,
 And for a speech, a deed in proof, look here !
 'Stoop, else the strings of blossom, where the nuts
 O'erarch, will blind thee ! Said I not ? She shuts
 Both eyes this time, so close the hazels meet !
 Thus, prisoned in the Piombi, I repeat
 Events one rove occasioned, o'er and o'er,
 Putting 'twixt me and madness evermore
 Thy sweet shape, Zanze ! Therefore stoop !'

'That's truth !'

(Adjudge you) 'the incarcerated youth
 Would say that !'

Youth ? Plara the bard ? Set down
 That Plara spent his youth in a grim town
 Whose cramped ill-featured streets huddled about
 The minster for protection, never out
 Of its black belfry's shade and its bells' roar.
 The brighter shone the suburb, — all the more
 Ugly and absolute that shade's reproof
 Of any chance escape of joy, — some roof,
 Taller than they, allowed the rest detect, —
 Before the sole permitted laugh (suspect
 Who could, 't was meant for laughter, that ploughed cheek's
 Repulsive gleam !) when the sun stopped both peaks
 Of the cleft belfry like a fiery wedge,
 Then sank, a huge flame on its socket edge,
 With leavings on the gray glass oriel-pane
 Ghastly some minutes more. No fear of rain —
 The minster minded that ! in heaps the dust
 Lay everywhere. This town, the minster's trust,
 Held Plara ; who, its denizen, bade hail
 In twice twelve sonnets, Tempe's dewy vale."
 "Exact the town, the minster and the street !"
 "As all mirth triumphs, sadness means defeat :
 Lust triumphs and is gay, Love's triumphed o'er
 And sad : but Lucio's sad. I said before,
 Love's sad, not Lucio ; one who loves may be
 As gay his love has leave to hope, as he

Downcast that lusts' desire escapes the springe :
 'T is of the mood itself I speak, what tinge
 Determines it, else colorless, — or mirth,
 Or melancholy, as from heaven or earth."

"Ay, that's the variation's gist!' Indeed?
 Thus far advanced in safety then, proceed!
 And having seen too what I saw, be bold
 And next encounter what I do behold
 (That's sure) but bid you take on trust!"

Attack

The use and purpose of such sights? Alack,
 Not so unwisely does the crowd dispense
 On Salinguerras praise in preference
 To the Sordellos: men of action, these!
 Who, seeing just as little as you please,
 Yet turn that little to account, — engage
 With, do not gaze at, — carry on, a stage,
 The work o' the world, not merely make report
 The work existed ere their day! In short,
 When at some future no-time a brave band
 Sees, using what it sees, then shake my hand
 In heaven, my brother! Meanwhile where's the hurt
 Of keeping the Makers-see on the alert,
 At whose defection mortals stare aghast
 As though heaven's bounteous windows were slammed fast
 Incontinent? Whereas all you, beneath,
 Should scowl at, bruise their lips and break their teeth
 Who ply the pullies, for neglecting you:
 And therefore have I moulded, made anew
 A Man, and give him to be turned and tried,
 Be angry with or pleased at. On your side,
 Have ye times, places, actors of your own?
 Try them upon Sordello when full-grown,
 And then — ah then! If Hercules first parched
 His foot in Egypt only to be marched
 A sacrifice for Jove with pomp to suit,
 What chance have I? The demigod was mute
 Till, at the altar, where time out of mind
 Such guests became oblations, chaplets twined
 His forehead long enough, and he began
 Slaying the slayers, nor escaped a man.
 Take not affront, my gentle audience! whom
 No Hercules shall make his hecatomb,
 Believe, nor from his brows your chaplet rend —
 That's your kind suffrage, yours, my patron-friend,
 Whose great verse blares unintermittent on

Like your own trumpeter at Marathon, —
 You who, Plataea and Salamis being scant,
 Put up with Ætna for a stimulant —
 And did well, I acknowledged, as he loomed
 Over the midland sea last month, presumed
 Long, lay demolished in the blazing West
 At eve, while towards him tilting cloudlets pressed
 Like Persian ships at Salamis. Friend, wear
 A crest proud as desert while I declare
 Had I a flawless ruby fit to wring
 Tears of its color from that painted king
 Who lost it, I would, for that smile which went
 To my heart, fling it in the sea, content,
 Wearing your verse in place, an amulet
 Sovereign against all passion, wear and fret!
 My English Eyebright, if you are not glad
 That, as I stopped my task awhile, the sad
 Dishevelled form, wherein I put mankind
 To come at times and keep my pact in mind,
 Renewed me, — hear no crickets in the hedge,
 Nor let a glowworm spot the river's edge
 At home, and may the summer showers gush
 Without a warning from the missel thrush!
 So, to our business, now — the fate of such
 As find our common nature — overmuch
 Despised because restricted and unfit
 To bear the burden they impose on it —
 Cling when they would discard it; craving strength
 To leap from the allotted world, at length
 They do leap, — flounder on without a term,
 Each a god's germ, doomed to remain a germ
 In unexpanded infancy, unless . . .
 But that's the story — dull enough, confess!
 There might be fitter subjects to allure;
 Still, neither misconceive my portraiture
 Nor undervalue its adornments quaint:
 What seems a fiend perchance may prove a saint.
 Ponder a story ancient pens transmit,
 Then say if you condemn me or acquit.

John the Beloved, banished Antioch
 For Patmos, bade collectively his flock
 Farewell, but set apart the closing eve
 To comfort those his exile most would grieve,
 He knew: a touching spectacle, that house
 In motion to receive him! Xanthus' spouse

You missed, made panther's meat a month since ; but Xanthus himself (his nephew 't was, they shut
 'Twixt boards and sawed asunder), Polycarp,
 Soft Charicle, next year no wheel could warp
 To swear by Cæsar's fortune, with the rest
 Were ranged ; through whom the gray disciple pressed,
 Busily blessing right and left, just stopped
 To pat one infant's curls, the hangman cropped
 Soon after, reached the portal. On its hinge
 The door turns and he enters : what quick twinge
 Ruins the smiling mouth, those wide eyes fix
 Whereon, why like some spectral candlestick's
 Branch the disciple's arms ? Dead swooned he, woke Anon, heaved sigh, made shift to gasp, heart-broke,
 "Get thee behind me, Satan ! Have I toiled
 To no more purpose ? Is the gospel foiled
 Here too, and o'er my son's, my Xanthus' hearth,
 Portrayed with sooty garb and features swarth —
 Ah Xanthus, am I to thy roof beguiled
 To see the — the — the Devil domiciled ?"
 Whereto sobb'd Xanthus, "Father, 't is yourself
 Installed, a limning which our utmost pelf
 Went to procure against to-morrow's loss ;
 And that's no twy-prong, but a pastoral cross,
 You're painted with !"

His puckered brows unfold —
 And you shall hear Sordello's story told.

BOOK THE FOURTH.

MEANTIME Ferrara lay in rueful case ;
 The lady-city, for whose sole embrace
 Her pair of suitors struggled, felt their arms
 A brawny mischief to the fragile charms
 They tugged for — one discovering that to twist
 Her tresses twice or thrice about his wrist
 Secured a point of vantage — one, how best
 He'd parry that by planting in her breast
 His elbow spike — each party too intent
 For noticing, how'er the battle went,
 The conqueror would but have a corpse to kiss.
 "May Boniface be duly damned for this !"
 — Howled some old Ghibellin, as up he turned,

From the wet heap of rubbish where they burned
 His house, a little skull with dazzling teeth :
 " A boon, sweet Christ — let Salinguerra see the
 In hell forever, Christ, and let myself
 Be there to laugh at him ! " — moaned some young Guelf
 Stumbling upon a shrivelled hand nailed fast
 To the charred lintel of the doorway, last
 His father stood within to bid him speed.
 The thoroughfares were overrun with weed
 — Docks, quitchgrass, loathy mallows no man plants.

The stranger, none of its inhabitants
 Crept out of doors to taste fresh air again,
 And ask the purpose of a splendid train
 Admitted on a morning ; every town
 Of the East League was come by envoy down
 To treat for Richard's ransom : here you saw
 The Vicentine, here snowy oxen draw
 The Paduan carroch, its vermilion cross
 On its white field. A-tiptoe o'er the fosse
 Looked Legate Montelungo wistfully
 After the flock of steeples he might spy
 In Este's time, gone (doubts he) long ago
 To mend the ramparts : sure the laggards know
 The Pope's as good as here ! They paced the streets
 More soberly. At last, " Taurello greets
 The League," announced a pursuivant, — " will match
 Its courtesy, and labors to dispatch
 At earliest Tito, Friedrich's Pretor, sent
 On pressing matters from his post at Trent,
 With Mainard Count of Tyrol, — simply waits
 Their going to receive the delegates."

" Tito ! " Our delegates exchanged a glance,
 And, keeping the main way, admired askance
 The lazy engines of outlandish birth,
 Couched like a king each on its bank of earth —
 Arbalist, manganel and catapult ;
 While stationed by, as waiting a result,
 Lean silent gangs of mercenaries ceased
 Working to watch the strangers. " This, at least,
 Were better spared ; he scarce presumes gainsay
 The League's decision ! Get our friend away
 And profit for the future : how else teach
 Fools 't is not safe to stray within claw's reach
 Ere Salinguerra's final gasp be blown ?
 Those mere convulsive scratches find the bone.
 Who bade him bloody the spent osprey's nare ? "

The carrochs halted in the public square.
 Pennons of every blazon once a-flaunt,
 Men prattled, freelier that the crested gaunt
 White ostrich with a horse-shoe in her beak
 Was missing, and whoever chose might speak
 "Ecelin" boldly out: so, — "Ecelin
 Needed his wife to swallow half the sin
 And sickens by himself: the devil's whelp,
 He styles his son, dwindles away, no help
 From conserves, your fine triple-curved froth
 Of virgin's blood, your Venice viper-broth —
 Eh? Jubilate!" — "Peace! no little word
 You utter here that's not distinctly heard
 Up at Oliero: he was absent sick
 When we besieged Bassano — who, i' the thick
 O' the work, perceived the progress Azzo made,
 Like Ecelin, through his witch Adelaide?
 She managed it so well that, night by night,
 At their bed-foot stood up a soldier-sprite,
 First fresh, pale by-and-by without a wound,
 And, when it came with eyes filmed as in swound,
 They knew the place was taken." — "Ominous
 That Ghibellins should get what cautelous
 Old Redbeard sought from Azzo's sire to wrench
 Vainly; Saint George contrived his town a trench
 O' the marshes, an impermeable bar."
 — Young Ecelin is meant the tutelar
 Of Padua, rather; veins embrace upon
 His hand like Brenta and Bacchiglian."
 What now? — "The founts! God's bread, touch not a plank!
 A crawling hell of carrion — every tank
 Choke full! — found out just now to Cino's cost —
 The same who gave Taurello up for lost,
 And, making no account of fortune's freaks,
 Refused to budge from Padua then, but sneaks
 Back now with Concorezzi — 'faith! they drag
 Their carroch to San Vitale, plant the flag
 On his own palace, so adroitly razed
 He knew it not; a sort of Guelf folk gazed
 And laughed apart; Cino disliked their air —
 Must pluck up spirit, show he does not care —
 Seats himself on the tank's edge — will begin
 To hum, za, za, Cavaler Ecelin —
 A silence; he gets warmer, clinks to chime,
 Now both feet plough the ground, deeper each time,
 At last, za, za, and up with a fierce kick

Comes his own mother's face caught by the thick
Gray hair about his spur!"

Which means, they lift

The covering, Salinguerra made a shift
To stretch upon the truth; as well avoid
Further disclosures; leave them thus employed.
Our dropping Autumn morning clears apace,
And poor Ferrara puts a softened face
On her misfortunes. Let us scale this tall
Huge foursquare line of red brick garden-wall
Bastioned within by trees of every sort
On three sides, slender, spreading, long and short;
Each grew as it contrived, the poplar ramped,
The fig-tree reared itself, — but stark and cramped,
Made fools of, like tamed lions: whence, on the edge,
Running 'twixt trunk and trunk to smooth one ledge
Of shade, were shrubs inserted, warp and woof,
Which smothered up that variance. Scale the roof
Of solid tops, and o'er the slope you slide
Down to a grassy space level and wide,
Here and there dotted with a tree, but trees
Of rarer leaf, each foreigner at ease,
Set by itself: and in the centre spreads,
Borne upon three uneasy leopards' heads,
A laver, broad and shallow, one bright spirt
Of water bubbles in. The walls begirt
With trees leave off on either hand; pursue
Your path along a wondrous avenue
Those walls abut on, heaped of gleamy stone,
With aloes leering everywhere, gray-grown
From many a Moorish summer: how they wind
Out of the fissures! likelier to bind
The building than those rusted cramps which drop
Already in the eating sunshine. Stop,
You fleeting shapes above there! Ah, the pride
Or else despair of the whole country-side!
A range of statues, swarming o'er with wasps,
God, goddess, woman, man, the Greek rough-rasps
In crumbling Naples marble — meant to look Like those Messina marbles Constance took Delight in, or Taurello's self conveyed
To Mantua for his mistress, Adelaide,
A certain font with caryatides
Since cloistered at Goito; only, these
Are up and doing, not abashed, a troop
Able to right themselves — who see you, stoop

Their arms o' the instant after you! Unplucked
 By this or that, you pass; for they conduct
 To terrace raised on terrace, and, between,
 Creatures of brighter mould and braver mien
 Than any yet, the choicest of the Isle
 No doubt. Here, left a sullen breathing-while,
 Up-gathered on himself the Fighter stood
 For his last fight, and, wiping treacherous blood
 Out of the eyelids just held ope beneath
 Those shading fingers in their iron sheath,
 Steadied his strengths amid the buzz and stir
 Of the dusk hideous amphitheatre
 At the announcement of his over-match
 To wind the day's diversion up, dispatch
 The pertinacious Gaul: while, limbs one heap,
 The Slave, no breath in her round mouth, watched leap
 Dart after dart forth, as her hero's car
 Clove dizzily the solid of the war
 — Let coil about his knees for pride in him.
 We reach the farthest terrace, and the grim
 San Pietro Palace stops us.

Such the state

Of Salinguerra's plan to emulate
 Sicilian marvels, that his girlish wife
 Retrude still might lead her ancient life
 In her new home: whereat enlarged so much
 Neighbors upon the novel princely touch
 He took, — who here imprisons Boniface.
 Here must the Envoys come to sue for grace;
 And here, emerging from the labyrinth
 Below, Sordello paused beside the plinth
 Of the door-pillar.

He had really left

Verona for the cornfields (a poor theft
 From the morass) where Este's camp was made.
 The Envoys' march, the Legate's cavalcade —
 All had been seen by him, but scarce as when, —
 Eager for cause to stand aloof from men
 At every point save the fantastic tie
 Acknowledged in his boyish sophistry, —
 He made account of such. A crowd, — he meant
 To task the whole of it; each part's intent
 Concerned him therefore: and, the more he pried,
 The less became Sordello satisfied
 With his own figure at the moment. Sought
 He respite from his task? Descried he aught

Novel in the anticipated sight
 Of all these livers upon all delight ?
 This phalanx, as of myriad points combined,
 Whereby he still had imaged the mankind
 His youth was passed in dreams of rivalling,
 His age — in plans to prove at least such thing
 Had been so dreamed, — which now he must impress
 With his own will, effect a happiness
 By theirs, — supply a body to his soul
 Thence, and become eventually whole
 With them as he had hoped to be without —
 Made these the mankind he once raved about ?
 Because a few of them were notable,
 Should all be figured worthy note ? As well
 Expect to find Taurello's triple line
 Of trees a single and prodigious pine.
 Real pines rose here and there ; but, close among,
 Thrust into and mixed up with pines, a throng
 Of shrubs, he saw, — a nameless common sort
 O'erpast in dreams, left out of the report
 And hurried into corners, or at best
 Admitted to be fancied like the rest.
 Reekon that morning's proper chiefs — how few !
 And yet the people grew, the people grew,
 Grew ever, as if the many there indeed,
 More left behind and most who should succeed, —
 Simply in virtue of their mouths and eyes,
 Petty enjoyments and huge miseries, —
 Mingled with, and made veritably great
 Those chiefs: he overlooked not Mainard's state
 Nor Concorezzi's station, but instead
 Of stopping there, each dwindled to be head
 Of infinite and absent Tyrolese
 Or Paduans ; startling all the more, that these Seemed passive and disposed of, uncared for,
 Yet doubtless on the whole (like Eglamor)
 Smiling ; for if a wealthy man decays
 And out of store of robes must wear, all days,
 One tattered suit, alike in sun and shade,
 'T is commonly some tarnished gay brocade
 Fit for a feast-night's flourish and no more :
 Nor otherwise poor Misery from her store
 Of looks is fain upgather, keep unfurled
 For common wear as she goes through the world,
 The faint remainder of some worn-out smile
 Meant for a feast-night's service merely. While

Crowd upon crowd rose on Sordello thus, — (Crowds no way interfering to discuss,
 Much less dispute, life's joys with one employed
 In envying them, — or, if they aught enjoyed,
 Where lingered something indefinable
 In every look and tone, the mirth as well
 As woe, that fixed at once his estimate
 Of the result, their good or bad estate) —
 Old memories returned with new effect:
 And the new body, ere he could suspect,
 Cohered, mankind and he were really fused,
 The new self seemed impatient to be used
 By him, but utterly another way
 Than that anticipated: strange to say,
 They were too much below him, more in thrall
 Than he, the adjunct than the principal.
 What bootéd scattered units? — here a mind
 And there, which might repay his own to find,
 And stamp, and use? — a few, how'er august,
 If all the rest were grovelling in the dust?
 No: first a mighty equilibrium, sure,
 Should he establish, privilege procure
 For all, the few had long possessed! He felt
 An error, an exceeding error melt —
 While he was occupied with Mantuan chants,
 Behoved him think of men, and take their wants,
 Such as he now distinguished every side,
 As his own want which might be satisfied, —
 And, after that, think of rare qualities
 Of his own soul demanding exercise.
 It followed naturally, through no claim
 On their part, which made virtue of the aim
 At serving them, on his, — that, past retrieve,
 He felt now in their toils, theirs, — nor could leave
 Wonder how, in the eagerness to rule,
 Impress his will on mankind, he (the fool!)
 Had never even entertained the thought
 That this his last arrangement might be fraught
 With incidental good to them as well,
 And that mankind's delight would help to swell
 His own. So, if he sighed, as formerly
 Because the merry time of life must fleet,
 'T was deeper now, — for could the crowds repeat
 Their poor experiences? His hand that shook
 Was twice to be deplored. "The Legate, look!
 With eyes, like fresh-blown thrush-eggs on a thread.

Faint-blue and loosely floating in his head,
 Large tongue, moist open mouth ; and this long while
 That owner of the idiotic smile
 Serves them ! ”

He fortunately saw in time
 His fault however, and since the office prime Includes the secondary — best accept
 Both offices ; Taurello, its adept,
 Could teach him the preparatory one,
 And how to do what he had fancied done
 Long previously, ere take the greater task.
 How render first these people happy ? Ask
 The people’s friends : for there must be one good,
 One way to it — the Cause ! — he understood
 The meaning now of Palma ; why the jar
 Else, the ado, the trouble wide and far
 Of Guelfs and Ghibellins, the Lombard hope
 And Rome’s despair ? — ’twixt Emperor and Pope
 The confused shifting sort of Eden tale —
 Hardihood still recurring, still to fail —
 That foreign interloping fiend, this free
 And native overbrooding deity —
 Yet a dire fascination o’er the palms
 The Kaiser ruined, troubling even the calms
 Of paradise — or, on the other hand,
 The Pontiff, as the Kaisers understand,
 One snake-like cursed of God to love the ground,
 Whose heavy length breaks in the noon profound
 Some saving tree — which needs the Kaiser, dressed
 As the dislodging angel of that pest :
 Yet flames that pest bedropped, flat head, full fold,
 With coruscating dower of dyes. “ Behold
 The secret, so to speak, and master-spring
 O’ the contest ! — which of the two Powers shall bring Men good — perchance the most good — ay, it may Be that ! — the question, which best knows the way.”

And hereupon Count Mainard strutted past
 Out of San Pietro ; never seemed the last
 Of archers, slingers : and our friend began
 To recollect strange modes of serving man,
 Arbalist, catapult, brake, manganel,
 And more. “ This way of theirs may, — who can tell ? —
 Need perfecting,” said he : “ let all be solved
 At once ! Taurello ’t is, the task devolved
 On late — confront Taurello ! ”

And at last

He did confront him. Scarce an hour had past
 When forth Sordello came, older by years
 Than at his entry. Unexampled fears
 Oppressed him, and he staggered off, blind, mute
 And deaf, like some fresh-mutilated brute,
 Into Ferrara — not the empty town
 That morning witnessed : he went up and down
 Streets whence the veil had been stripped shred by shred,
 So that, in place of huddling with their dead
 Indoors, to answer Salinguerra's ends,
 Townsfolk make shift to crawl forth, sit like friends
 With any one. A woman gave him choice
 Of her two daughters, the infantile voice
 Or the dimpled knee, for half a chain, his throat
 Was clasped with ; but an archer knew the coat —
 Its blue cross and eight lilies, — bade beware
 One dogging him in concert with the pair
 Though thrumming on the sleeve that hid his knife.
 Night set in early, autumn dews were rife,
 They kindled great fires while the Leaguers' mass
 Began at every carroch — he must pass
 Between the kneeling people. Presently
 The carroch of Verona caught his eye
 With purple trappings ; silently he bent
 Over its fire, when voices violent
 Began, " Affirm not whom the youth was like
 That struck me from the porch, I did not strike
 Again : I too have chestnut hair ; my kin
 Hate Azzo and stand up for Ecelin.
 Here, minstrel, drive bad thoughts away ! Sing ! Take
 My glove for guerdon ! " And for that man's sake
 He turned : " A song of Eglamor's ! " — scarce named,
 When, " Our Sordello's rather ! " — all exclaimed ;
 " Is not Sordello famousest for rhyme ? "
 He had been happy to deny, this time, —
 Profess as heretofore the aching head
 And failing heart, — suspect that in his stead
 Some true Apollo had the charge of them,
 Was champion to reward or to condemn,
 So his intolerable risk might shift
 Or share itself ; but Naddo's precious gift
 Of gifts, he owned, be certain ! At the close —
 " I made that," said he to a youth who rose
 As if to hear : 't was Palma through the band
 Conducted him in silence by her hand.
 Back now for Salinguerra. Tito of Trent

Gave place to Palma and her friend ; who went
 In turn at Montelungo's visit — one
 After the other were they come and gone, —
 These spokesmen for the Kaiser and the Pope,
 This incarnation of the People's hope,
 Sordello, — all the say of each was said
 And Salinguerra sat, himself instead
 Of these to talk with, lingered musing yet.
 'T was a drear vast presence-chamber roughly set
 In order for the morning's use ; full face,
 The Kaiser's ominous sign-mark had first place,
 The crowned grim twy-necked eagle, coarsely-blacked
 With ochre on the naked wall ; nor lacked
 Romano's green and yellow either side ;
 But the new token Tito brought had tried
 The Legate's patience — nay, if Palma knew
 What Salinguerra almost meant to do
 Until the sight of her restored his lip
 A certain half-smile, three months' chieftainship
 Had banished ! Afterward, the Legate found
 No change in him, nor asked what badge he wound
 And unwound carelessly. Now sat the Chief
 Silent as when our couple left, whose brief
 Encounter wrought so opportune effect
 In thoughts he summoned not, nor would reject.
 Though time 't was now if ever, to pause — fix
 On any sort of ending : wiles and tricks
 Exhausted, judge ! his charge, the crazy town,
 Just managed to be hindered crashing down —
 His last sound troops ranged — care observed to post
 His best of the maimed soldiers innermost —
 So much was plain enough, but somehow struck
 Him not before. And now with this strange luck
 Of Tito's news, rewarding his address
 So well, what thought he of ? — how the success
 With Friedrich's rescript there, would either hush
 Old Ecelin's scruples, bring the manly flush
 To his young son's white cheek, or, last, exempt
 Himself from telling what there was to tempt ?
 No : that this minstrel was Romano's last
 Servant — himself the first ! Could he contrast
 The whole ! — that minstrel's thirty years just spent
 In doing nought, their notablest event
 This morning's journey hither, as I told —
 Who yet was lean, outworn and really old,
 A stammering awkward man that scarce dared raise

His eye before the magisterial gaze —
 And Salinguerra with his fears and hopes
 Of sixty years, his Emperors and Popes,
 Cares and contrivances, yet, you would say,
 'T was a youth nonchalantly looked away
 Through the embrasure northward o'er the sick
 Expostulating trees — so agile, quick
 And graceful turned the head on the broad chest
 Encased in pliant steel, his constant vest,
 Whence split the sun off in a spray of fire
 Across the room ; and, loosened of its tire
 Of steel, that head let breathe the comely brown
 Large massive locks discolored as if a crown
 Encircled them, so frayed the basnet where
 A sharp white line divided clean the hair ;
 Glossy above, glossy below, it swept
 Curling and fine about a brow thus kept
 Calm, laid coat upon coat, marble and sound :
 This was the mystic mark the Tuscan found,
 Mused of, turned over books about. Square-faced,
 No lion more ; two vivid eyes, enchased
 In hollows filled with many a shade and streak
 Settling from the bold nose and bearded cheek.
 Nor might the half-smile reach them that deformed
 A lip supremely perfect else — unwarmed,
 Unwidened, less or more ; indifferent
 Whether on trees or men his thoughts were bent,
 Thoughts rarely, after all, in trim and train
 As now a period was fulfilled again :
 Of such, a series made his life, compressed
 In each, one story serving for the rest —
 How his life-streams rolling arrived at last
 At the barrier, whence, were it once overpast,
 They would emerge, a river to the end, —
 Gathered themselves up, paused, bade fate befriend,
 Took the leap, hung a minute at the height,
 Then fell back to oblivion infinite :
 Therefore he smiled. Beyond stretched garden-grounds
 Where late the adversary, breaking bounds,
 Had gained him an occasion, That above,
 That eagle, testified he could improve
 Effectually. The Kaiser's symbol lay
 Beside his rescript, a new badge by way
 Of baldric ; while, — another thing that marred
 Alike emprise, achievement and reward, —
 Ecelin's missive was conspicuous too.

What past life did those flying thoughts pursue?
 As his, few names in Mantua half so old;
 But at Ferrara, where his sires enrolled
 It latterly, the Adelardi spared
 No pains to rival them: both factions shared
 Ferrara, so that, counted out, 't would yield
 A product very like the city's shield,
 Half black and white, or Ghibellin and Guelf
 As after Salinguerra stiled himself,
 And Este who, till Marchesalla died,
 (Last of the Adelardi) — never tried
 His fortune there: with Marchesalla's child
 Would pass, — could Blacks and Whites be reconciled,
 And young Taurello wed Linguetta, — wealth
 And sway to a sole grasp. Each treats by stealth
 Already: when the Guelfs, the Ravennese
 Arrive, assault the Pietro quarter, seize Linguetta, and are gone! Men's first dismay
 Abated somewhat, hurries down, to lay
 The after indignation, Boniface,
 This Richard's father. "Learn the full disgrace
 Averted, ere you blame us Guelfs, who rate
 Your Salinguerra, your sole potentate
 That might have been, 'mongst Este's valvassors —
 Ay, Azzo's — who, not privy to, abhors
 Our step; but we were zealous." Azzo's then
 To do with! Straight a meeting of old men:
 "Old Salinguerra dead, his heir a boy,
 What if we change our ruler and decoy
 The Lombard Eagle of the azure sphere
 With Italy to build in, fix him here,
 Settle the city's troubles in a trice?
 For private wrong, let public good suffice!"
 In fine, young Salinguerra's stanchest friends
 Talked of the townsmen making him amends,
 Gave him a goshawk, and affirmed there was
 Rare sport, one morning, over the green grass
 A mile or so. He sauntered through the plain,
 Was restless, fell to thinking, turned again
 In time for Azzo's entry with the bride;
 Count Boniface rode smirking at their side;
 "She brings him half Ferrara," whispers flew,
 "And all Ancona! If the stripling knew!
 Anon the stripling was in Sicily
 Where Heinrich ruled in right of Constance; he
 Was gracious nor his guest incapable;

Each understood the other. So it fell,
 One Spring, when Azzo, thoroughly at ease,
 Had near forgotten by what precise degrees
 He crept at first to such a downy seat,
 The Count trudged over in a special heat
 To bid him of God's love dislodge from each
 Of Salinguerra's palaces, — a breach
 Might yawn else, not so readily to shut,
 For who was just arrived at Mantua but
 The youngster, sword on thigh and tuft on chin,
 With tokens for Celano, Ecelin,
 Pistore, and the like! Next news, — no whit
 Do any of Ferrara's domes besit
 His wife of Heinrich's very blood: a band
 Of foreigners assemble, understand
 Garden-constructing, level and surround,
 Build up and bury in. A last news crowned
 The consternation: since his infant's birth,
 He only waits they end his wondrous girth
 Of trees that link San Pietro with Tomà,
 To visit Mantua. When the Podestà
 Ecelin, at Vicenza, called his friend
 Taurello thither, what could be their end
 But to restore the Ghibellins' late Head,
 The Kaiser helping? He with most to dread
 From vengeance and reprisal, Azzo, there
 With Boniface beforehand, as aware
 Of plots in progress, gave alarm, expelled
 Both plotters: but the Guelfs in triumph yelled
 Too hastily. The burning and the flight,
 And how Taurello, occupied that night
 With Ecelin, lost wife and son, I told:
 — Not how he bore the blow, retained his hold,
 Got friends safe through, left enemies the worst
 O' the fray, and hardly seemed to care at first —
 But afterward men heard not constantly
 Of Salinguerra's House so sure to be!
 Though Azzo simply gained by the event
 A shifting of his plagues — the first, content
 To fall behind the second and estrange
 So far his nature, suffer such a change
 That in Romano sought he wife and child
 And for Romano's sake seemed reconciled
 To losing individual life, which shrunk
 As the other prospered — mortised in his trunk;
 Like a dwarf palm which wanton Arabs foil

Of bearing its own proper wine and oil,
 By grafting into it the stranger-vine,
 Which sucks its heart out, sly and serpentine,
 Till forth one vine-palm feathers to the root,
 And red drops moisten the insipid fruit.
 Once Adelaide set on, — the subtle mate
 Of the weak soldier, urged to emulate
 The Church's valiant women deed for deed,
 And paragon her namesake, win the meed
 O' the great Matilda, — soon they overbore
 The rest of Lombardy, — not as before
 By an instinctive truculence, but patched
 The Kaiser's strategy until it matched
 The Pontiff's, sought old ends by novel means.
 "Only, why is it Salinguerra screens
 Himself behind Romano? — him we bade
 Enjoy our shine i' the front, not seek the shade!"
 — Asked Heinrich, somewhat of the tardiest
 To comprehend. Nor Philip acquiesced
 At once in the arrangement; reasoned, plied
 His friend with offers of another bride,
 A statelier function — fruitlessly: 't was plain
 Taurello through some weakness must remain
 Obscure. And Otho, free to judge of both,
 — Ecelin the unready, harsh and loth,
 And this more plausible and facile wight
 With every point a-sparkle — chose the right,
 Admiring how his predecessors harped
 On the wrong man: "thus," quoth he, "wits are warped
 By outsides!" Carelessly, meanwhile, his life
 Suffered its many turns of peace and strife
 In many lands — you hardly could surprise
 The man; who shamed Sordello (recognize!)
 In this as much beside, that, unconcerned
 What qualities were natural or earned,
 With no ideal of graces, as they came
 He took them, singularly well the same —
 Speaking the Greek's own language, just because
 Your Greek eludes you, leave the least of flaws
 In contracts with him; while, since Arab loré
 Holds the stars' secret — take one trouble more
 And master it! 'T is done, and now deter
 Who may the Tuscan, once Jove trined for her,
 From Friedrich's path! — Friedrich, whose pilgrimage
 The same man puts aside, whom he'll engage
 To leave next year John Brienne in the lurch,

Come to Bassano, see Saint Francis' church
 And judge of Guido the Bolognian's piece
 Which, lend Taurello credit, rivals Greece —
 Angels, with aureoles like golden quoits
 Pitched home, applauding Ecelin's exploits.
 For elegance, he strung the angelot,
 Made rhymes thereto; for prowess, clove he not
 Tiso, last siege, from crest to crupper? Why
 Detail you thus a varied mastery
 But to show how Taurello, on the watch
 For men, to read their hearts and thereby catch
 Their capabilities and purposes,
 Displayed himself so far as displayed these:
 While our Sordello only cared to know
 About men as a means whereby he'd show
 Himself, and men had much or little worth
 According as they kept in or drew forth
 That self; the other's choicest instruments
 Surmised him shallow.

Meantime, malcontents

Dropped off, town after town grew wiser. "How Change the world's face?" asked people; "as 't is now
 It has been, will be ever: very fine
 Subjecting things profane to things divine,
 In talk! This contumacy will fatigue
 The vigilance of Este and the League!
 The Ghibellins gain on us!" — as it happened.
 Old Azzo and old Boniface, entrapped
 By Ponte Alto, both in one month's space
 Slept at Verona: either left a brace
 Of sons — but, three years after, either's pair
 Lost Guglielm and Aldobrand its heir:
 Azzo remained and Richard — all the stay
 Of Este and Saint Boniface, at bay
 As 't were. Then, either Ecelin grew old
 Or his brain altered — not o' the proper mould
 For new appliances — his old palm-stock
 Endured no influx of strange strengths. He'd rock
 As in a drunkenness, or chuckle low
 As proud of the completeness of his woe,
 Then weep real tears; — now make some mad onslaught
 On Este, heedless of the lesson taught
 So painfully, — now cringe for peace, sue peace
 At price of past gain, bar of fresh increase
 To the fortunes of Romano. Up at last
 Rose Este, down Romano sank as fast.

And men remarked these freaks of peace and war
 Happened while Salinguerra was afar :
 Whence every friend besought him, all in vain,
 To use his old adherent's wits again.
 Not he ! — “ who had advisers in his sons,
 Could plot himself, nor needed any one's
 Advice.” 'T was Adelaide's remaining stanch
 Prevented his destruction root and branch
 Forthwith ; but when she died, doom fell, for gay
 He made alliances, gave lands away
 To whom it pleased accept them, and withdrew Forever from the world. Taurello, who
 Was summoned to the convent, then refused
 A word at the wicket, patience thus abused,
 Promptly threw off alike his imbecile
 Ally's yoke, and his own frank, foolish smile.
 Soon a few movements of the happier sort
 Changed matters, put himself in men's report
 As heretofore ; he had to fight, beside,
 And that became him ever. So, in pride
 And flushing of this kind of second youth,
 He dealt a good-will blow. Este in truth
 Lay prone — and men remembered, somewhat late,
 A laughing old outrageous stifled hate
 He bore to Este — how it would outbreak
 At times spite of disguise, like an earthquake
 In sunny weather — as that noted day
 When with his hundred friends he tried to slay
 Azzo before the Kaiser's face : and how,
 On Azzo's calm refusal to allow
 A liegeman's challenge, straight he too was calmed :
 As if his hate could bear to lie embalmed,
 Bricked up, the moody Pharaoh, and survive
 All intermediate crumbings, to arrive
 At earth's catastrophe — 't was Este's crash
 Not Azzo's he demanded, so, no rash
 Procedure ! Este's true antagonist
 Rose out of Ecelin : all voices whist,
 All eyes were sharpened, wits predicted. He
 'T was, leaned in the embrasure absently,
 Amused with his own efforts, now, to trace
 With his steel-sheathed forefinger Friedrich's face
 I' the dust : but as the trees waved sere, his smile
 Deepened, and words expressed its thought erewhile.
 “ Ay, fairly housed at last, my old compeer ?
 That we should stick together, all the year

I kept Vicenza! — How old Boniface,
 Old Azzo caught us in its market-place,
 He by that pillar, I at this, — caught each
 In mid swing, more than fury of his speech,
 Egging the rabble on to disavow
 Allegiance to their Marquis — Bacchus, how
 They boasted! Ecelin must turn their drudge,
 Nor, if released, will Salinguerra grudge
 Paying arrears of tribute due long since —
 Bacchus! My man could promise then, nor wince,
 The bones-and-muscles! Sound of wind and limb,
 Spoke he the set excuse I framed for him:
 And now he sits me, slaving and mute,
 Intent on chafing each starved purple foot
 Benumbed past aching with the altar slab —
 Will no vein throb there when some monk shall blab
 Spitefully to the circle of bald scalps,
 'Friedrich's affirmed to be our side the Alps'
 — Eh, brother Lactance, brother Anaclet?
 Sworn to abjure the world, its fume and fret,
 God's own now? Drop the dormitory bar,
 Enfold the scanty gray serge scapular
 Twice o'er the cowl to muffle memories out!
 So! But the midnight whisper turns a shout,
 Eyes wink, mouths open, pulses circulate
 In the stone walls: the past, the world you hate
 Is with you, ambush, open field — or see
 The surging flame — we fire Vicenza — glee!
 Follow, let Pilio and Bernardo chafe!
 Bring up the Mantuans — through San Biagio — safe!
 Ah, the mad people waken? Ah, they writhe
 And reach us? If they block the gate? No tithe
 Can pass — keep back, you Bassanese! The edge,
 Use the edge — shear, thrust, hew, melt down the wedge,
 Let out the black of those black upturned eyes!
 Hell — are they sprinkling fire too? The blood fries
 And hisses on your brass gloves as they tear
 Those upturned faces choking with despair.
 Brave! Slidder through the reeking gate! 'How now?
 You six had charge of her?' And then the vow
 Comes, and the foam spirts, hair's plucked, till one shriek
 (I hear it) and you fling — you cannot speak —
 Your gold-flowered basnet to a man who haled
 The Adelaide he dared scarce view unveiled
 This morn, naked across the fire: how crown
 The archer that exhausted lays you down

Your infant, smiling at the flame, and dies?
While one, while mine . . .

Bacchus! I think there lies
More than one corpse there" (and he paced the room)
"— Another cinder somewhere: 'twas my doom
Beside, my doom! If Adelaide is dead,
I live the same, this Azzo lives instead
Of that to me, and we pull, any how,
Este into a heap: the matter's now
At the true juncture slipping us so oft.
Ay, Heinrich died and Otho, please you, doffed
His crown at such a juncture! Still, if hold
Our Friedrich's purpose, if this chain enfold
The neck of . . . who but this same Ecelin
That must recoil when the best days begin!
Recoil? that's nought; if the recoiler leaves
His name for me to fight with, no one grieves:
But he must interfere, forsooth, unlock
His cloister to become my stumbling-block
Just as of old! Ay, ay, there 't is again —
The land's inevitable Head — explain
The reverences that subject us! Count
These Ecelins now! Not to say as fount,
Originating power of thought, — from twelve
That drop i' the trenches they joined hands to delve,
Six shall surpass him, but . . . why, men must twine
Somehow with something! Ecelin's a fine
Clear name! 'T were simpler, doubtless, twine with me
At once: our cloistered friend's capacity
Was of a sort! I had to share myself
In fifty portions, like an o'ertasked elf
That's forced illume in fifty points the vast Rare vapor he's environed by. At last
My strengths, though sorely frittered, e'en converge
And crown . . . no, Bacchus, they have yet to urg?
The man be crowned!

That aloe, an he durst,
Would climb! Just such a bloated sprawler first
I noted in Messina's castle-court
The day I came, when Heinrich asked in sport
If I would pledge my faith to win him back
His right in Lombardy: 'for, once bid pack
Marauders,' he continued, 'in my stead
You rule, Taurello!' and upon this head
Laid the silk glove of Constance — I see her

Too, mantled head to foot in miniver,
Retrude following!

I am absolved
From further toil: the empery devolved
On me, 't was Tito's word: I have to lay
For once my plan, pursue my plan my way,
Prompt nobody, and render an account
Taurello to Taurello! Nay, I mount
To Friedrich: he conceives the post I kept,
— Who did true service, able or inept,
Who's worthy guerdon, Ecelin or I.
Me guerdoned, counsel follows: would he vie
With the Pope really? Azzo, Boniface
Compose a right-arm Hohenstauffen's race
Must break ere govern Lombardy. I point
How easy 't were to twist, once out of joint,
The socket from the bone: my Azzo's stare
Meanwhile! for I, this idle strap to wear,
Shall — fret myself abundantly, what end
To serve? There's left me twenty years to spend — How better than my old way? Had I one
Who labored to o'erthrow my work — a son
Hatching with Azzo superb treachery,
To root my pines up and then poison me,
Suppose — 't were worth while frustrate that! Beside,
Another life's ordained me: the world's tide
Rolls, and what hope of parting from the press
Of waves, a single wave through weariness
Gently lifted aside, laid upon shore?
My life must be lived out in foam and roar,
No question. Fifty years the province held
Taurello; troubles raised, and troubles quelled,
He in the midst — who leaves this quaint stone place,
These trees a year or two, then not a trace
Of him! How obtain hold, fetter men's tongues
Like this poor minstrel with the foolish songs —
To which, despite our bustle, he is linked?
— Flowers one may tease, that never grow extinct.
Ay, that patch, surely, green as ever, where
I set Her Moorish lentisk, by the stair,
To overawe the aloes; and we trod
Those flowers, how call you such? — into the sod;
A stately foreigner — a world of pain
To make it thrive, arrest rough winds — all vain!
It would decline; these would not be destroyed:

And now, where is it? where can you avoid
 The flowers? I frighten children twenty years
 Longer! — which way, too, Ecelin appears
 To thwart me, for his son's besotted youth
 Gives promise of the proper tiger-tooth:
 They feel it at Vicenza! Fate, fate, fate,
 My fine Taurello! Go you, promulgate
 Friedrich's decree, and here's shall aggrandize
 Young Ecelin — your Prefect's badge! a prize
 Too precious, certainly.

How now? Compete
 With my old comrade? shuffle from their seat
 His children? Paltry dealing! Don't I know
 Ecelin? now, I think, and years ago!
 What's changed — the weakness? did not I compound
 For that, and undertake to keep him sound
 Despite it? Here's Taurello hankering
 After a boy's preferment — this plaything
 To carry, Bacchus!" And he laughed.

Remark

Why schemes wherein cold-blooded men embark
 Prosper, when your enthusiastic sort
 Fail: while these last are ever stopping short —
 (So much they should — so little they can do!)
 The careless tribe see nothing to pursue
 If they desist; meantime their scheme succeeds.

Thoughts were caprices in the course of deeds
 Methodic with Taurello; so, he turned,
 Enough amused by fancies fairly earned
 Of Este's horror-struck submitted neck,
 And Richard, the cowed braggart, at his beck,
 To his own petty but immediate doubt
 If he could pacify the League without Conceding Richard; just to this was brought
 That interval of vain discursive thought!
 As, shall I say, some Ethiop, past pursuit
 Of all enslavers, dips a shackled foot
 Burnt to the blood, into the drowsy black
 Enormous watercourse which guides him back
 To his own tribe again, where he is king;
 And laughs because he guesses, numbering
 The yellower poison-wattles on the pouch
 Of the first lizard wrested from its couch
 Under the slime (whose skin, the while he strips
 To cure his nostril with, and festered lips,
 And eyeballs bloodshot through the desert-blast)

That he has reached its boundary, at last
 May breathe ; — thinks o'er enchantments of the South
 Sovereign to plague his enemies, their mouth,
 Eyes, nails, and hair ; but, these enchantments tried
 In fancy, puts them soberly aside
 For truth, projects a cool return with friends,
 The likelihood of winning mere amends
 Ere long ; thinks that, takes comfort silently,
 Then, from the river's brink, his wrongs and he,
 Hugging revenge close to their hearts, are soon
 Off-striding for the Mountains of the Moon.

Midnight : the watcher nodded on his spear,
 Since clouds dispersing left a passage clear
 For any meagre and discolored moon
 To venture forth ; and such was peering soon
 Above the harassed city — her close lanes
 Closer, not half so tapering her fanes,
 As though she shrunk into herself to keep
 What little life was saved, more safely. Heap
 By heap the watch-fires mouldered, and beside
 The blackest spoke Sordello and replied
 Palma with none to listen. " 'Tis your cause :
 What makes a Ghibellin ? There should be laws —
 (Remember how my youth escaped ! I trust
 To you for manhood, Palma ? tell me just
 As any child) — there must be laws at work
 Explaining this. Assure me, good may lurk
 Under the bad, — my multitude has part
 In your designs, their welfare is at heart
 With Salinguerra, to their interest
 Refer the deeds he dwelt on, — so divest
 Our conference of much that scared me. Why
 Affect that heartless tone to Tito ? I
 Esteemed myself, yes, in my inmost mind
 This morn, a recreant to my race — mankind
 O'erlooked till now : why boasts my spirit's force,
 — Such force denied its object ? why divorce
 These, then admire my spirit's flight the same
 As though it bore up, helped some half-orbed flame
 Else quenched in the dead void, to living space ?
 That orb cast off to chaos and disgrace,
 Why vaunt so much my unencumbered dance,
 Making a feat's facilities enhance
 Its marvel ? But I front Taurello, one
 Of happier fate, and all I should have done,
 He does ; the people's good being paramount

With him, their progress may perhaps account
 For his abiding still; whereas you heard
 The talk with Tito — the excuse preferred
 For burning those five hostages, — and broached
 By way of blind, as you and I approached,
 I do believe."

She spoke: then he, "My thought
 Plainlier expressed! All to your profit — nought
 Meantime of these, of conquests to achieve
 For them, of wretchedness he might relieve
 While profiting your party. Azzo, too,
 Supports a cause: what cause? Do Guelfs pursue
 Their ends by means like yours, or better?"

When

The Guelfs were proved alike, men weighed with men,
 And deed with deed, blaze, blood, with blood and blaze,
 Morn broke: "Once more, Sordello, meet its gaze
 Proudly — the people's charge against thee fails
 In every point, while either party quails!
 These are the busy ones: be silent thou!
 Two parties take the world up, and allow
 No third, yet have one principle, subsist
 By the same injustice; whoso shall enlist
 With either, ranks with man's inveterate foes.
 So there is one less quarrel to compose:
 The Guelf, the Ghibellin may be to curse —
 I have done nothing, but both sides do worse
 Than nothing. Nay, to me, forgotten, reft
 Of insight, lapped by trees and flowers, was left
 The notion of a service — ha? What lured
 Me here, what mighty aim was I assured
 Must move Taurello? What if there remained
 A cause, intact, distinct from these, ordained
 For me, its true discoverer?"

Some one pressed

Before them here, a watcher, to suggest
 The subject for a ballad: "They must know
 The tale of the dead worthy, long ago
 Consul of Rome — that's long ago for us,
 Minstrels and bowmen, idly squabbling thus
 In the world's corner — but too late no doubt,
 For the brave time he sought to bring about.
 — Not know Crescentius Nomentanus?" Then
 He cast about for terms to tell him, when
 Sordello disavowed it, how they used
 Whenever their Superior introduced

A novice to the Brotherhood — (“ for I
 Was just a brown-sleeve brother, merrily
 Appointed too,” quoth he, “ till Innocent
 Bade me relinquish, to my small content,
 My wife or my brown sleeves ”) — some brother spoke
 Ere nocturns of Crescentius, to revoke
 The edict issued, after his demise,
 Which blotted fame alike and effigies,
 All out except a floating power, a name
 Including, tending to produce the same
 Great act. Rome, dead, forgotten, lived at least
 Within that brain, though to a vulgar priest
 And a vile stranger, — two not worth a slave
 Of Rome’s, Pope John, King Otho, — fortune gave
 The rule there : so, Crescentius, haply dressed
 In white, called Roman Consul for a jest,
 Taking the people at their word, forth stepped
 As upon Brutus’ heel, nor ever kept
 Rome waiting, — stood erect, and from his brain
 Gave Rome out on its ancient place again,
 Ay, bade proceed with Brutus’ Rome, Kings styled
 Themselves mere citizens of, and, beguiled
 Into great thoughts thereby, would choose the gem
 Out of a lapfull, spoil their diadem
 — The Senate’s cypher was so hard to scratch !
 He flashes like a phanal, all men catch
 The flame, Rome’s just accomplished ! when returned
 Otho, with John, the Consul’s step had spurned,
 And Hugo Lord of Este, to redress
 The wrongs of each. Crescentius in the stress
 Of adverse fortune bent. “ They crucified
 Their Consul in the Forum ; and abide E’er since such slaves at Rome, that I — (for I
 Was once a brown-sleeve brother, merrily
 Appointed) — I had option to keep wife
 Or keep brown sleeves, and managed in the strife
 Lose both. A song of Rome ! ”

And Rome, indeed,
 Robed at Goito in fantastic weed,
 The Mother-City of his Mantuan days,
 Looked an established point of light whence rays
 Traversed the world ; for, all the clustered homes
 Beside of men, seemed bent on being Romes
 In their degree ; the question was, how each
 Should most resemble Rome, clean out of reach.
 Nor, of the Two, did either principle

Struggle to change — but to possess — Rome, still,
 Guelf Rome or Ghibellin Rome.

Let Rome advance !

Rome, as she struck Sordello's ignorance —
 How could he doubt one moment? Rome's the Cause !
 Rome of the Pandects, all the world's new laws —
 Of the Capitol, of Castle Angelo ;
 New structures, that inordinately glow,
 Subdued, brought back to harmony, made ripe
 By many a relic of the archetype
 Extant for wonder ; every upstart church
 That hoped to leave old temples in the lurch,
 Corrected by the Theatre forlorn
 That, — as a mundane shell, its world late born, —
 Lay and o'ershadowed it. These hints combined,
 Rome typifies the scheme to put mankind
 Once more in full possession of their rights.

“ Let us have Rome again ! On me it lights
 To build up Rome — on me, the first and last :
 For such a future was endured the past ! ”
 And thus, in the gray twilight, forth he sprung
 To give his thought consistency among
 The very People — let their facts avail
 Finish the dream grown from the archer's tale.

BOOK THE FIFTH.

Is it the same Sordello in the dusk
 As at the dawn ? — merely a perished husk
 Now, that arose a power fit to build
 Up Rome again ? The proud conception chilled
 So soon ? Ay, watch that latest dream of thine
 — A Rome indebted to no Palatine —
 Drop arch by arch, Sordello ! Art possessed
 Of thy wish now, rewarded for thy quest
 To-day among Ferrara's squalid sons ?
 Are this and this and this the shining ones
 Meet for the Shining City ? Sooth to say,
 Your favored tenantry pursue their way
 After a fashion ! This companion slips
 On the smooth causey, t' other blinkard trips
 At his mooned sandal. “ Leave to lead the brawls
 Here i' the atria ? ” No, friend ! He that sprawls
 On agout but a stibadium . . . what his dues

Who puts the lustral vase to such an use?
 Oh, huddle up the day's disasters! March,
 Ye runagates, and drop thou, arch by arch,
 Rome!

Yet before they quite disband — a whim —
 Study mere shelter, now, for him, and him,
 Nay, even the worst, — just house them! Any cave
 Suffices: throw out earth! A loophole? Brave!
 'They ask to feel the sun shine, see the grass
 Grow, hear the larks sing? Dead art thou, alas,
 And I am dead! But here's our son excels
 At hurdle-weaving any Scythian, fells
 Oak and devises rafters, dreams and shapes
 His dream into a door-post, just escapes
 The mystery of hinges. Lie we both
 Perdue another age. The goodly growth
 Of brick and stone! Our building-pelt was rough,
 But that descendant's garb suits well enough
 A portico-contriver. Speed the years —
 What's time to us? At last, a city rears
 Itself! nay, enter — what's the grave to us?
 Lo, our forlorn acquaintance carry thus
 The head! Successively sewer, forum, cirque —
 Last age, an aqueduct was counted work,
 But now they tire the artificer upon
 Blank alabaster, black obsidion,
 — Careful, Jove's face be duly fulgorant,
 And mother Venus' kiss-creased nipples pant
 Back into pristine pulpiness, ere fixed
 Above the baths. What difference betwixt
 This Rome and ours — resemblance what, between
 That scurvy dumb-show and this pageant sheen —
 These Romans and our rabble? Use thy wit!
 The work marched: step by step, — a workman fit
 Took each, nor too fit, — to one task, one time, —
 No leaping o'er the petty to the prime,
 When just the substituting osier lithe
 For brittle bulrush, sound wood for soft withe,
 To further loam-and-roughcast-work a stage, —
 Exacts an architect, exacts an age:
 No tables of the Mauritanian tree
 For men whose maple log's their luxury!
 That way was Rome built. "Better" (say you) "merge
 At once all workmen in the demiurge,
 All epochs in a lifetime, every task
 In one!" So should the sudden city bask

I' the day — while those we 'd feast there, want the knack
Of keeping fresh-chalked gowns from speck and brack,
Distinguish not rare peacock from vile swan,
Nor Mareotic juice from Cæcuban.

“Enough of Rome! ’T was happy to conceive
Rome on a sudden, nor shall fate bereave
Me of that credit: for the rest, her spite
Is an old story — serves my folly right .
By adding yet another to the dull
List of abortions — things proved beautiful
Could they be done, Sordello cannot do.”

He sat upon the terrace, plucked and threw
The powdery aloe-cusps away, saw shift
Rome's walls, and drop arch after arch, and drift
Mist-like afar those pillars of all stripe,
Mounds of all majesty. “Thou archetype,
Last of my dreams and loveliest, depart!”

And then a low voice wound into his heart:
“Sordello!” (low as some old Pythoness
Conceding to a Lydian King's distress
The cause of his long error — one mistake
Of her past oracle) “Sordello, wake!
God has conceded two sights to a man —
One, of men's whole work, time's completed plan,
The other, of the minute's work, man's first
Step to the plan's completeness: what's dispersed
Save hope of that supreme step which, descried
Earliest, was meant still to remain untried
Only to give you heart to take your own
Step, and there stay — leaving the rest alone?
Where is the vanity? Why count as one
The first step, with the last step? What is gone
Except Rome's æry magnificence,
That last step you'd take first? — an evidence
You were God: be man now! Let those glances fall!
The basis, the beginning step of all,
Which proves you just a man — is that gone too?
Pity to disconcert one versed as you
In fate's ill-nature! but its full extent
Eludes Sordello, even: the veil rent,
Read the black writing — that collective man
Outstrips the individual! Who began
The acknowledged greatnesses? Ay, your own art
Shall serve us: put the poet's mimes apart —
Close with the poet's self, and lo, a dim
Yet too plain form divides itself from him!

Alcamo's song enmeshes the lulled Isle,
 Woven into the echoes left erewhile
 By Nina, one soft web of song : no more
 Turning his name, then, flower-like o'er and o'er !
 An elder poet in the younger's place ;
 Nina's the strength, but Alcamo's the grace :
 Each neutralizes each then ! Search your fill ;
 You get no whole and perfect Poet — still
 New Ninas, Alcamos, till time's mid-night
 Shrouds all — or better say, the shutting light
 Of a forgotten yesterday. Dissect
 Every ideal workman — (to reject
 In favor of your fearful ignorance
 The thousand phantasms eager to advance,
 And point you but to those within your reach) —
 Were you the first who brought — (in modern speech)
 The Multitude to be materialized ?
 That loose eternal unrest — who devised
 An apparition i' the midst ? The rout
 Was checked, a breathless ring was formed about
 That sudden flower : get round at any risk
 The gold-rough pointel, silver-blazing disk
 O' the lily ! Swords across it ! Reign thy reign
 And serve thy frolic service, Charlemagne !
 — The very child of over-joyousness,
 Unfeeling thence, strong therefore : Strength by stress
 Of Strength comes of that forehead confident,
 Those widened eyes expecting heart's content,
 A calm as out of just-quelled noise ; nor swerves
 For doubt, the ample cheek in gracious curves
 Abutting on the upthrust nether lip :
 He wills, how should he doubt then ? Ages slip :
 Was it Sordello pried into the work
 So far accomplished, and discovered lurk
 A company amid the other clans,
 Only distinct in priests for castellans
 And popes for suzerains (their rule confessed
 Its rule, their interest its interest,
 Living for sake of living — there an end, —
 Wrapt in itself, no energy to spend
 In making adversaries or allies), —
 Dived you into its capabilities
 And dared create, out of that sect, a soul
 Should turn a multitude, already whole,
 Into its body ? Speak plainer ! Is 't so sure
 God's church lives by a King's investiture ?

Look to last step! A staggering — a shock —
 What's mere sand is demolished, while the rock
 Endures: a column of black fiery dust
 Blots heaven — that help was prematurely thrust
 Aside, perchance! — but air clears, nought's erased
 Of the true outline! Thus much being firm based,
 The other was a scaffold. See him stand
 Buttressed upon his mattock, Hildebrand
 Of the huge brain-mask welded ply o'er ply
 As in a forge; it buries either eye
 White and extinct, that stupid brow; teeth clenched,
 The neck tight-corded, too, the chin deep-trenched,
 As if a cloud enveloped him while fought
 Under its shade, grim prizers, thought with thought
 At dead-lock, agonizing he, until
 The victor thought leap radiant up, and Will,
 The slave with folded arms and drooping lids
 They fought for, lean forth flame-like as it bids.
 Call him no flower — a mandrake of the earth,
 Thwarted and dwarfed and blasted in its birth,
 Rather, — a fruit of suffering's excess,
 Thence feeling, therefore stronger: still by stress
 Of Strength, work Knowledge! Full three hundred years
 Have men to wear away in smiles and tears
 Between the two that nearly seemed to touch,
 Observe you! quit one workman and you clutch
 Another, letting both their trains go by —
 The actors-out of either's policy,
 Heinrich, on this hand, Otho, Barbaross,
 Carry the three Imperial crowns across,
 Aix' Iron, Milan's Silver, and Rome's Gold —
 While Alexander, Innocent uphold
 On that, each Papal key — but, link on link,
 Why is it neither chain betrays a chink?
 How coalesce the small and great? Alack,
 For one thrust forward, fifty such fall back!
 Do the popes coupled there help Gregory
 Alone? Hark — from the hermit Peter's cry
 At Claremont, down to the first serf that says
 Friedrich's no liege of his while he delays
 Getting the Pope's curse off him! The Crusade —
 Or trick of breeding Strength by other aid
 Than Strength, is safe. Hark — from the wild harangue
 Of Vimmercato, to the carroch's clang
 Yonder! The League — or trick of turning Strength
 Against Pernicious Strength, is safe at length.

Yet hark — from Mantuan Albert making cease
 The fierce ones, to Saint Francis preaching peace
 Yonder! God's Truce — or trick to supersede
 The very Use of Strength, is safe. Indeed
 We trench upon the future. Who is found
 To take next step, next age — trail o'er the ground —
 Shall I say, gourd-like? — not the flower's display
 Nor the root's prowess, but the plenteous way
 O' the plant — produced by joy and sorrow, whence
 Unfeeling and yet feeling, strongest thence?
 Knowledge by stress of merely Knowledge? No —
 E'en were Sordello ready to forego
 His life for this, 't were overleaping work
 Some one has first to do, howe'er it irk,
 Nor stray a foot's breadth from the beaten road.
 Who means to help must still support the load
 Hildebrand lifted — ' why hast Thou,' he groaned,
 ' Imposed on me a burden, Paul had moaned,
 And Moses dropped beneath?' Much done — and yet
 Doubtless that grandest task God ever set
 On man, left much to do: at his arm's wrench,
 Charlemagne's scaffold fell; but pillars blench
 Merely, start back again — perchance have been Taken for buttresses: crash every screen,
 Hammer the tenons better, and engage
 A gang about your work, for the next age
 Or two, of Knowledge, part by Strength and part
 By Knowledge! Then, indeed, perchance may start
 Sordello on his race — would time divulge
 Such secrets! If one step's awry, one bulge
 Calls for correction by a step we thought
 Got over long since, why, till that is wrought,
 No progress! And the scaffold in its turn
 Becomes, its service o'er, a thing to spurn.
 Meanwhile, if your half-dozen years of life
 In store, dispose you to forego the strife,
 Who takes exception? Only bear in mind,
 Ferrara's reached, Goito's left behind:
 As you then were, as half yourself, desist!
 — The warrior-part of you may, an it list,
 Finding real faulchions difficult to poise,
 Fling them afar and taste the cream of joys
 By wielding such in fancy, — what is bard
 Of you may spurn the vehicle that marred
 Elys so much, and in free fancy glut
 His sense, yet write no verses — you have but

To please yourself for law, and once could please
 What once appeared yourself, by dreaming these
 Rather than doing these, in days gone by.
 But all is changed the moment you descry
 Mankind as half yourself, — then, fancy's trade
 Ends once and always : how may half evade
 The other half ? men are found half of you.
 Out of a thousand helps, just one or two
 Can be accomplished presently : but flinch
 From these (as from the faulchion, raised an inch,
 Elys, described a couplet) and make proof
 Of fancy, — then, while one half lolls aloof
 I' the vines, completing Rome to the tip-top —
 See if, for that, your other half will stop
 A tear, begin a smile ! The rabble's woes,
 Ludicrous in their patience as they chose
 To sit about their town and quietly
 Be slaughtered, — the poor reckless soldiery,
 With their ignoble rhymes on Richard, how
 ' Polt-foot,' sang they, ' was in a pitfall now,'
 Cheering each other from the engine-mounts, —
 That crippled sprawling idiot who recounts
 How, lopped of limbs, he lay, stupid as stone,
 Till the pains crept from out him one by one,
 And wriggles round the archers on his head
 To earn a morsel of their chestnut bread, —
 And Cino, always in the self-same place
 Weeping ; beside that other wretch's case,
 Eyepits to ear, one gangrene since he plied
 The engine in his coat of raw sheep's hide
 A double watch in the noon sun ; and see
 Lucchino, beauty, with the favors free,
 Trim hacqueton, spruce beard and scented hair,
 Campaigning it for the first time — cut there
 In two already, boy enough to crawl
 For latter orpine round the southern wall,
 Tomà, where Richard's kept, because that whore
 Marfisa, the fool never saw before,
 Sickened for flowers this wearisomest siege :
 And Tiso's wife — men liked their pretty liege,
 Cared for her least of whims once, — Berta, wed
 A twelvemonth gone, and, now poor Tiso's dead,
 Delivering herself of his first child
 On that chance heap of wet filth, reconciled
 To fifty gazers ! ” — (Here a wind below
 Made moody music augural of woe

From the pine barrier) — “What if, now the scene
 Draws to a close, yourself have really been
 — You, plucking purples in Goito’s moss
 Like edges of a trabea (not to cross
 Your consul-humor) or dry aloe-shafts
 For fasces, at Ferrara — he, fate wafts,
 This very age, her whole inheritance
 Of opportunities? Yet you advance
 Upon the last! Since talking is your trade,
 There’s Salinguerra left you to persuade:
 Fail! then” —

“No — no — which latest chance secure!”

Leaped up and cried Sordello: “this made sure,
 The past were yet redeemable; its work
 Was — help the Guelfs, whom I, howe’er it irk,
 Thus help!” He shook the foolish aloe-haulm
 Out of his doublet, paused, proceeded calm
 To the appointed presence. The large head
 Turned on its socket; “And your spokesman,” said
 The large voice, “is Elcorte’s happy sprout?
 Few such” — (so finishing a speech no doubt Addressed to Palma, silent at his side)
 “— My sober councils have diversified.
 Elcorte’s son! good: forward as you may,
 Our lady’s minstrel with so much to say!”
 The hesitating sunset floated back,
 Rosily traversed in the wonted track
 The chamber, from the lattice o’er the girth
 Of pines, to the huge eagle blacked in earth
 Opposite, — outlined sudden, spur to crest,
 That solid Salinguerra, and caressed
 Palma’s contour; ’t was day looped back night’s pall;
 Sordello had a chance left spite of all.

And much he made of the convincing speech
 Meant to compensate for the past and reach
 Through his youth’s daybreak of unprofit, quite
 To his noon’s labor, so proceed till night
 Leisurely! The great argument to bind
 Taurello with the Guelf Cause, body and mind,
 — Came the consummate rhetoric to that?
 Yet most Sordello’s argument dropped flat
 Through his accustomed fault of breaking yoke,
 Disjoining him who felt from him who spoke.
 Was ’t not a touching incident — so prompt
 A rendering the world its just accompt,
 Once proved its debtor? Who’d suppose, before

This proof, that he, Goito's god of yore,
 At duty's instance could demean himself
 So memorably, dwindle to a Guelf?
 Be sure, in such delicious flattery steeped,
 His inmost self at the out-portion peeped,
 Thus occupied; then stole a glance at those
 Appealed to, curious if her color rose
 Or his lip moved, while he discreetly urged
 The need of Lombardy becoming purged
 At soonest of her barons; the poor part
 Abandoned thus, missing the blood at heart
 And spirit in brain, unseasonably off
 Elsewhere! But, though his speech was worthy scoff,
 Good-humored Salinguerra, famed for tact
 And tongue, who, careless of his phrase, ne'er lacked
 The right phrase, and harangued Honorius dumb
 At his accession, — looked as all fell plumb
 To purpose and himself found interest
 In every point his new instructor pressed
 — Left playing with the rescript's white wax seal
 To scrutinize Sordello head and heel.
 He means to yield assent sure? No, alas!
 All he replied was, "What, it comes to pass
 That poesy, sooner than politics,
 Makes fade young hair?" To think such speech could fix Taurello!

Then a flash of bitter truth:
 So fantasies could break and fritter youth
 That he had long ago lost earnestness,
 Lost will to work, lost power to even express
 The need of working! Earth was turned a grave:
 No more occasions now, though he should crave
 Just one, in right of superhuman toil,
 To do what was undone, repair such spoil,
 Alter the past — nothing would give the chance!
 Not that he was to die; he saw askance
 Protract the ignominious years beyond
 To dream in — time to hope and time despond,
 Remember and forget, be sad, rejoice
 As saved a trouble; he might, at his choice,
 One way or other, idle life out, drop
 No few smooth verses by the way — for prop,
 A thyrsus, these sad people, all the same,
 Should pick up, and set store by, — far from blame,
 Plant o'er his hearse, convinced his better part
 Survived him. "Rather tear men out the heart

O' the truth!" — Sordello muttered, and renewed
His propositions for the Multitude.

But Salinguerra, who at this attack
Had thrown great breast and ruffling corslet back
To hear the better, smilingly resumed
His task; beneath, the carroch's warning boomed;
He must decide with Tito; courteously
He turned then, even seeming to agree
With his admonisher — " Assist the Pope,
Extend Guelf domination, fill the scope
O' the Church, thus based on All, by All, for All —
Change Secular to Evangelical " —
Echoing his very sentence: all seemed lost,
When suddenly he looked up, laughingly almost,
To Palma: " This opinion of your friend's —
For instance, would it answer Palma's ends?
Best, were it not, turn Guelf, submit our Strength " —
(Here he drew out his baldric to its length)
— " To the Pope's Knowledge — let our captive slip,
Wide to the walls throw ope our gates, equip
Azzo with . . . what I hold here! Who'll subscribe
To a trite censure of the minstrel tribe
Henceforward? or pronounce, as Heinrich used,
'Spear-heads for battle, burr-heads for the joust!'
— When Constance, for his couplets, would promote Aleamo, from a parti-colored coat,
To holding her lord's stirrup in the wars.
Not that I see where couplet-making jars
With common sense: at Mantua I had borne
This chanted, better than their most forlorn
Of bull-baits, — that's indisputable!"

Brave!

Whom vanity nigh slew, contempt shall save!
All's at an end: a Troubadour suppose
Mankind will class him with their friends or foes?
A puny uncouth ailing vassal think
The world and him bound in some special link?
Abrupt the visionary tether burst.
What were rewarded here, or what amerced
If a poor drudge, solicitous to dream
Deservingly, got tangled by his theme
So far as to conceit the knack or gift
Or whatsoe'er it be, of verse, might lift
The globe, a lever like the hand and head
Of — " Men of Action," as the Jongleurs said,
— " The Great Men," in the people's dialect?

And not a moment did this scorn affect
 Sordello: scorn the poet? They, for once,
 Asking "what was," obtained a full response.
 Bid Naddo think at Mantua, he had but
 To look into his promptuary, put
 Finger on a set thought in a set speech:
 But was Sordello fitted thus for each
 Conjecture? Nowise; since within his soul,
 Perception brooded unexpressed and whole.
 A healthy spirit like a healthy frame
 Craves aliment in plenty — all the same,
 Changes, assimilates its aliment.
 Perceived Sordello, on a truth intent?
 Next day no formularies more you saw
 Than figs or olives in a sated maw.
 'T is Knowledge, whither such perceptions tend;
 They lose themselves in that, means to an end,
 The many old producing some one new,
 A last unlike the first. If lies are true,
 The Caliph's wheel-work man of brass receives
 A meal, munched millet grains and lettuce leaves
 Together in his stomach rattle loose;
 You find them perfect next day to produce:
 But ne'er expect the man, on strength of that,
 Can roll an iron camel-collar flat
 Like Haroun's self! I tell you, what was stored
 Bit by bit through Sordello's life, outpoured
 That eve, was, for that age, a novel thing:
 And round those three the People formed a ring,
 Of visionary judges whose award
 He recognized in full — faces that barred
 Henceforth return to the old careless life,
 In whose great presence, therefore, his first strife
 For their sake must not be ignobly fought;
 All these, for once, approved of him, he thought,
 Suspended their own vengeance, chose await
 The issue of this strife to reinstate
 Them in the right of taking it — in fact
 He must be proved king ere they could exact
 Vengeance for such king's defalcation. Last,
 A reason why the phrases flowed so fast
 Was in his quite forgetting for a time
 Himself in his amazement that the rhyme
 Disguised the royalty so much: he there —
 And Salinguerra yet all unaware
 Who was the lord, who liegeman!

“Thus I lay

On thine my spirit and compel obey
 His lord, — my liegeman, — impotent to build
 Another Rome, but hardly so unskilled
 In what such builder should have been, as brook
 One shame beyond the charge that I forsook
 His function! Free me from that shame, I bend
 A brow before, suppose new years to spend, —
 Allow each chance, nor fruitlessly, recur —
 Measure thee with the Minstrel, then, demur
 At any crowd he claims! That I must cede
 Shamed now, my right to my especial meed —
 Confess thee fitter help the world than I
 Ordained its champion from eternity,
 Is much: but to behold thee scorn the post
 I quit in thy behalf — to hear thee boast
 What makes my own despair!” And while he rung
 The changes on this theme, the roof up-sprung,
 The sad walls of the presence-chamber died
 Into the distance, or embowering vied
 With far-away Goito's vine-frontier;
 And crowds of faces — (only keeping clear
 The rose-light in the midst, his vantage-ground
 To fight their battle from) — deep clustered round
 Sordello, with good wishes no mere breath,
 Kind prayers for him no vapor, since, come death,
 Come life, he was fresh sinewed every joint,
 Each bone new-marrowed as whom gods anoint
 Though mortal to their rescue. Now let sprawl
 The snaky volumes hither! Is Typhon all
 For Hercules to trample — good report
 From Salinguerra only to extort?

“So was I” (closed he his inculcating,

A poet must be earth's essential king)

“So was I, royal so, and if I fail,

'T is not the royalty, ye witness quail,

But one deposed who, caring not exert

Its proper essence, trifled malapert

With accidents instead — good things assigned

As heralds of a better thing behind —

And, worthy through display of these, put forth

Never the inmost all-surpassing worth

That constitutes him king precisely since

As yet no other spirit may evince

Its like: the power he took most pride to test,

Whereby all forms of life had been professed

At pleasure, forms already on the earth,
 Was but a means to power beyond, whose birth
 Should, in its novelty, be kingship's proof.
 Now, whether he came near or kept aloof
 The several forms he longed to imitate,
 Not there the kingship lay, he sees too late.
 Those forms, unalterable first as last,
 Proved him her copier, not the protoplást
 Of nature: what would come of being free,
 By action to exhibit tree for tree,
 Bird, beast, for beast and bird, or prove earth bore
 One veritable man or woman more?
 Means to an end, such proofs are: what the end?
 Let essence, whatsoe'er it be, extend —
 Never contract. Already you include
 The multitude; then let the multitude
 Include yourself; and the result were new:
 Themselves before, the multitude turn you.
 This were to live and move and have, in them,
 Your being, and secure a diadem
 You should transmit (because no cycle yearns
 Beyond itself, but on itself returns)
 When, the full sphere in wane, the world o'erlaid
 Long since with you, shall have in turn obeyed
 Some orb still prouder, some displayer, still
 More potent than the last, of human will,
 And some new king depose the old. Of such
 Am I — whom pride of this elates too much?
 Safe, rather say, 'mid troops of peers again;
 I, with my words, hailed brother of the train
 Deeds once sufficed: for, let the world roll back,
 Who fails, through deeds howe'er diverse, re-track
 My purpose still, my task? A teeming crust —
 Air, flame, earth, wave at conflict! Then, needs must Emerge some Calm embodied, these refer
 The brawl to; — yellow-bearded Jupiter?
 No! Saturn; some existence like a pact
 And protest against Chaos, some first fact
 I' the faint of time. My deep of life, I know,
 Is unavailing e'en to poorly show" . . .
 (For here the Chief immeasurably yawned)
 . . . "Deeds in their due gradation till Song dawned —
 The fullest effluence of the finest mind,
 All in degree, no way diverse in kind
 From minds about it, minds which, more or less,
 Lofty or low, move seeking to impress

Themselves on somewhat; but one mind has climbed
 Step after step, by just ascent sublimed.
 Thought is the soul of act, and, stage by stage,
 Soul is from body still to disengage
 As tending to a freedom which rejects
 Such help and incorporeally affects
 The world, producing deeds but not by deeds,
 Swaying, in others, frames itself exceeds,
 Assigning them the simpler tasks it used
 To patiently perform till Song produced
 Acts, by thoughts only, for the mind: divest
 Mind of e'en Thought, and, lo, God's unexpressed
 Will draws above us! All then is to win
 Save that. How much for me, then? where begin
 My work? About me, faces! and they flock,
 The earnest faces. What shall I unlock
 By song? behold me prompt, whate'er it be,
 To minister: how much can mortals see
 Of Life? No more than so? I take the task
 And marshal you Life's elemental masque,
 Show Men, on evil or on good lay stress,
 This light, this shade make prominent, suppress
 All ordinary hues that softening blend
 Such natures with the level. Apprehend
 Which sinner is, which saint, if I allot
 Hell, Purgatory, Heaven, a blaze or blot,
 To those you doubt concerning! I enwomb
 Some wretched Friedrich with his red-hot tomb;
 Some dubious spirit, Lombard Agilulph
 With the black chastening river I engulf!
 Some unapproached Matilda I enshrine
 With languors of the planet of decline —
 These, fail to recognize, to arbitrate
 Between henceforth, to rightly estimate
 Thus marshalled in the masque! Myself, the while,
 As one of you, am witness, shrink or smile
 At my own showing! Next age — what's to do?
 The men and women stationed hitherto
 Will I unstation, good and bad, conduct
 Each nature to its farthest, or obstruct
 At soonest, in the world: light, thwarted, breaks
 A limpid purity to rainbow flakes,
 Or shadow, massed, freezes to gloom: behold
 How such, with fit assistance to unfold,
 Or obstacles to crush them, disengage
 Their forms, love, hate, hope, fear, peace make, war wage,

In presence of you all! Myself, implied
 Superior now, as, by the platform's side,
 I bade them do and suffer, — would last content
 The world . . . no — that's too far! I circumvent
 A few, my masque contented, and to these
 Offer unveil the last of mysteries —
 Man's inmost life shall have yet freer play:
 Once more I cast external things away,
 And natures composite, so decompose
 That" . . . Why, he writes Sordello!

“ How I rose,

And how have you advanced! since evermore
 Yourselves effect what I was fain before
 Effect, what I supplied yourselves suggest,
 What I leave bare yourselves can now invest.
 How we attain to talk as brothers talk,
 In half-words, call things by half-names, no balk
 From discontinuing old aids. To-day
 Takes in account the work of Yesterday:
 Has not the world a Past now, its adept
 Consults ere he dispense with or accept
 New aids? a single touch more may enhance,
 A touch less turn to insignificance
 Those structures' symmetry the past has strewed
 The world with, once so bare. Leave the mere rude
 Explicit details! 't is but brother's speech
 We need, speech where an accent's change gives each
 The other's soul — no speech to understand
 By former audience: need was then to expand,
 Expatiate — hardly were we brothers! true —
 Nor I lament my small remove from you,
 Nor reconstruct what stands already. Ends
 Accomplished turn to means: my art intends
 New structure from the ancient: as they changed
 The spoils of every clime at Venice, ranged
 The horned and snouted Libyan god, upright
 As in his desert, by some simple bright
 Clay cinerary pitcher — Thebes as Rome,
 Athens as Byzant rifled, till their Dome
 From earth's reputed consummations razed
 A seal, the all-transmuting Triad blazed
 Above. Ah, whose that fortune? Ne'ertheless
 E'en he must stoop contented to express
 No tithe of what 's to say — the vehicle
 Never sufficient: but his work is still
 For faces like the faces that select

The single service I am bound effect, —
 That bid me cast aside such fancies, bow
 Taurello to the Guelf cause, disallow
 The Kaiser's coming — which with heart, soul, strength,
 I labor for, this eve, who feel at length
 My past career's outrageous vanity,
 And would, as its amends, die, even die
 Now I first estimate the boon of life,
 If death might win compliance — sure, this strife
 Is right for once — the People my support."

My poor Sordello! what may we extort
 By this, I wonder? Palma's lighted eyes
 Turned to Taurello who, long past surprise,
 Began, "You love him — what you'd say at large
 Let me say briefly. First, your father's charge
 To me, his friend, peruse: I guessed indeed
 You were no stranger to the course decreed.
 He bids me leave his children to the saints:
 As for a certain project, he acquaints
 The Pope with that, and offers him the best
 Of your possessions to permit the rest
 Go peaceably — to Ecelin, a stripe
 Of soil the cursed Vicentines will gripe,
 — To Alberic, a patch the Trevisan
 Clutches already; extricate, who can,
 Treville, Villarazzi, Puissolo,
 Loria and Cartiglione! — all must go,
 And with them go my hopes. 'Tis lost, then! Lost
 This eve, our crisis, and some pains it cost
 Procuring; thirty years — as good I'd spent
 Like our admonisher! But each his bent
 Pursues: no question, one might live absurd
 Oneself this while, by deed as he by word
 Persisting to obtrude an influence where
 'Tis made account of, much as . . . nay, you fare
 With twice the fortune, youngster! — I submit,
 Happy to parallel my waste of wit
 With the renowned Sordello's: you decide
 A course for me. Romano may abide
 Romano, — Bacchus! After all, what dearth
 Of Ecelins and Alberics on earth?
 Say there's a prize in prospect, must disgrace
 Betide competitors, unless they style
 Themselves Romano? Were it worth my while
 To try my own luck! But an obscure place
 Suits me — there wants a youth to bustle, stalk

And attitudinize — some fight, more talk,
 Most flaunting badges — how, I might make clear
 Since Friedrich's very purposes lie here
 — Here, pity they are like to lie! For me,
 With station fixed unceremoniously
 Long since, small use contesting; I am but
 The liegeman — you are born the lieges — shut
 That gentle mouth now! or resume your kin
 In your sweet self; were Palma Ecelin
 For me to work with! Could that neck endure
 This bauble for a cumbrous garniture,
 She should . . . or might one bear it for her? Stay —
 I have not been so flattered many a day
 As by your pale friend — Bacchus! The least help
 Would lick the hind's fawn to a lion's whelp —
 His neck is broad enough — a ready tongue
 Beside — too writhled — but, the main thing, young —
 I could . . . why, look ye!"

And the badge was thrown Across Sordello's neck: "This badge alone
 Makes you Romano's Head — becomes superb
 On your bare neck, which would, on mine, disturb
 The pauldron," said Taurello. A mad act,
 Nor even dreamed about before — in fact,
 Not when his sportive arm rose for the nonce —
 But he had dallied overmuch, this once,
 With power: the thing was done, and he, aware
 The thing was done, proceeded to declare —
 (So like a nature made to serve, excel
 In serving, only feel by service well!)
 — That he would make Sordello that and more.
 "As good a scheme as any. What's to pore
 At in my face?" he asked — "ponder instead
 This piece of news; you are Romano's Head!
 One cannot slacken pace so near the goal,
 Suffer my Azzo to escape heart-whole
 This time! For you there's Palma to espouse —
 For me, one crowning trouble ere I house
 Like my compeer."

On which ensued a strange . . .
 And solemn visitation; there came change
 O'er every one of them; each looked on each:
 Up in the midst a truth grew, without speech.
 And when the giddiness sank and the haze
 Subsided, they were sitting, no amaze,
 Sordello with the baldrick on, his sire

Silent, though his proportions seemed aspire
 Momently ; and, interpreting the thrill
 Right at its ebb, Palma was found there still Relating somewhat Adelaide confessed
 A year ago, while dying on her breast, —
 Of a contrivance that Vicenza night, —
 When Ecelin had birth. “ Their convoy’s flight,
 Cut off a moment, coiled inside the flame
 That wallowed like a dragon at his game
 The toppling city through — San Biagio rocks !
 And wounded lies in her delicious locks
 Retrude, the frail mother, on her face,
 None of her wasted, just in one embrace
 Covering her child : when, as they lifted her,
 Cleaving the tumult, mighty, mightier
 And mightiest Taurello’s cry outbroke,
 Leapt like a tongue of fire that cleaves the smoke,
 Midmost to cheer his Mantuans onward — drown
 His colleague Ecelin’s clamor, up and down
 The disarray : failed Adelaide see then
 Who was the natural chief, the man of men ?
 Outstripping time, her infant there burst swathe,
 Stood up with eyes haggard beyond the scathe
 From wandering after his heritage
 Lost once and lost for aye — and why that rage,
 That deprecating glance ? A new shape leant
 On a familiar shape — gloatingly bent
 O’er his discomfiture ; ’mid wreaths it wore,
 Still one outflamed the rest — her child’s before
 ’T was Salinguerra’s for his child : scorn, hate,
 Rage now might startle her when all too late !
 Then was the moment ! — rival’s foot had spurned
 Never that House to earth else ! Sense returned —
 The act conceived, adventured and complete,
 They bore away to an obscure retreat
 Mother and child — Retrude’s self not slain ”
 (Nor even here Taurello moved) “ though pain
 Was fled ; and what assured them most ’t was fled,
 All pain, was, if they raised the pale hushed head
 ’T would turn this way and that, waver awhile,
 And only settle into its old smile —
 (Graceful as the disquieted water-flag
 Steadying itself, remarked they, in the quag
 On either side their path) — when suffered look Down on her child. They marched : no sign once shook
 The company’s close litter of crossed spears

Till, as they reached Goito, a few tears
 Slipped in the sunset from her long black lash,
 And she was gone. So far the action rash;
 No crime. They laid Retrude in the font,
 Taurello's very gift, her child was wont
 To sit beneath — constant as eve he came
 To sit by its attendant girls the same
 As one of them. For Palma, she would blend
 With this magnific spirit to the end,
 That ruled her first; but scarcely had she dared
 To disobey the Adelaide who scared
 Her into vowing never to disclose
 A secret to her husband, which so froze
 His blood at half-recital, she contrived
 To hide from him Taurello's infant lived,
 Lest, by revealing that, himself should mar
 Romano's fortunes. And, a crime so far,
 Palma received that action: she was told
 Of Salinguerra's nature, of his cold
 Calm acquiescence in his lot! But free
 To impart the secret to Romano, she Engaged to repossess Sordello of
 His heritage, and hers, and that way doff
 The mask, but after years, long years: while now,
 Was not Romano's sign-mark on that brow?"

Across Taurello's heart his arms were locked:
 And when he did speak 't was as if he mocked
 The minstrel, "who had not to move," he said,
 "Nor stir — should fate defraud him of a shred
 Of his son's infancy? much less his youth!"
 (Laughingly all this) — "which to aid, in truth,
 Himself, reserved on purpose, had not grown
 Old, not too old — 't was best they kept alone
 Till now, and never idly met till now;"

— Then, in the same breath, told Sordello how
 All intimations of this eve's event
 Were lies, for Friedrich must advance to Trent,
 Thence to Verona, then to Rome, there stop,
 Tumble the Church down, institute a-top
 The Alps a Prefecture of Lombardy:
 — "That's now! — no prophesying what may be
 Anon, with a new monarch of the clime,
 Native of Gesi, passing his youth's prime
 At Naples. Tito bids my choice decide
 On whom" . . .

"Embrace him, madman!" Palma cried,

Who through the laugh saw sweat-drops burst apace,
 And his lips blanching : he did not embrace
 Sordello, but he laid Sordello's hand
 On his own eyes, mouth, forehead.

Understand,

This while Sordello was becoming flushed
 Out of his whiteness ; thoughts rushed, fancies rushed ;
 He pressed his hand upon his head and signed
 Both should forbear him. " Nay, the best 's behind !"
 Taurello laughed — not quite with the same laugh :
 " The truth is, thus we scatter, ay, like chaff
 These Guelfs, a despicable monk recoils
 From : nor expect a fickle Kaiser spoils
 Our triumph ! — Friedrich ? Think you, I intend Friedrich shall reap the fruits of blood I spend
 And brain I waste ? Think you, the people clap
 Their hands at my out-hewing this wild gap
 For any Friedrich to fill up ? 'T is mine —
 That's yours : I tell you, towards some such design
 Have I worked blindly, yes, and idly, yes,
 And for another, yes — but worked no less
 With instinct at my heart ; I else had swerved,
 While now — look round ! My cunning has preserved
 Samminiato — that's a central place
 Secures us Florence, boy, — in Pisa's case,
 By land as she by sea ; with Pisa ours,
 And Florence, and Pistoia, one devours
 The land at leisure ! Gloriously dispersed —
 Brescia, observe, Milan, Piacenza first
 That flanked us (ah, you know not !) in the March ;
 On these we pile, as keystone of our arch,
 Romagna and Bologna, whose first span
 Covered the Trentine and the Valsugan ;
 Sofia's Egna by Bolgiano's sure !" . . .
 So he proceeded : half of all this, pure
 Delusion, doubtless, nor the rest too true,
 But what was undone he felt sure to do,
 As ring by ring he wrung off, flung away
 The pauldron-rings to give his sword-arm play —
 Need of the sword now ! That would soon adjust
 Aught wrong at present ; to the sword intrust
 Sordello's whiteness, undersize : 't was plain
 He hardly rendered right to his own brain —
 Like a brave hound, men educate to pride
 Himself on speed or scent nor aught beside,
 As though he could not, gift by gift, match men !

Palma had listened patiently : but when
 'T was time expostulate, attempt withdraw
 Taurello from his child, she, without awe
 Took off his iron arms from, one by one,
 Sordello's shrinking shoulders, and, that done,
 Made him avert his visage and relieve Sordello (you might see his corslet heave
 The while) who, loose, rose — tried to speak, then sank :
 They left him in the chamber. All was blank.

And even reeling down the narrow stair
 Taurello kept up, as though unaware
 Palma was by to guide him, the old device
 — Something of Milan — “ how we muster thrice
 The Torriani's strength there ; all along
 Our own Visconti cowed them ” — thus the song
 Continued even while she bade him stoop,
 Thrid somehow, by some glimpse of arrow-loop,
 The turnings to the gallery below,
 Where he stopped short as Palma let him go.
 When he had sat in silence long enough
 Splintering the stone bench, braving a rebuff
 She stopped the truncheon ; only to commence
 One of Sordello's poems, a pretence
 For speaking, some poor rhyme of “ Elys' hair
 And head that's sharp and perfect like a pear,
 So smooth and close are laid the few fine locks
 Stained like pale honey oozed from topmost rocks
 Sun-blanch'd the livelong summer ” — from his worst
 Performance, the Goito, as his first :
 And that at end, conceiving from the brow
 And open mouth no silence would serve now,
 Went on to say the whole world loved that man
 And, for that matter, thought his face, though wan,
 Eclipsed the Count's — he sucking in each phrase
 As if an angel spoke. The foolish praise
 Ended, he drew her on his mailed knees, made
 Her face a framework with his hands, a shade,
 A crown, an aureole : there must she remain
 (Her little mouth compressed with smiling pain
 As in his gloves she felt her tresses twitch)
 To get the best look at, in fittest niche
 Dispose his saint. That done, he kissed her brow,
 — “ Lauded her father for his treason now,”
 He told her, “ only, how could one suspect
 The wit in him? — whose clansman, recollect,
 Was ever Salinguerra — she, the same,

Romano and his lady — so, might claim
 To know all, as she should" — and thus begun
 Schemes with a vengeance, schemes on schemes, "not one
 Fit to be told that foolish boy," he said,
 "But only let Sordello Palma wed,
 —Then!"

'T was a dim long narrow place at best:
 Midway a sole grate showed the fiery West,
 As shows its corpse the world's end some split tomb —
 A gloom, a rift of fire, another gloom,
 Faced Palma — but at length Taurello set
 Her free; the grating held one ragged jet
 Of fierce gold fire: he lifted her within
 The hollow underneath — how else begin
 Fate's second marvellous cycle, else renew
 The ages than with Palma plain in view?
 Then paced the passage, hands clenched, head erect,
 Pursuing his discourse; a grand unchecked
 Monotony made out from his quick talk
 And the recurring noises of his walk;
 — Somewhat too much like the o'ercharged assent
 Of two resolved friends in one danger bient,
 Who hearten each the other against heart;
 Boasting there's nought to care for, when, apart
 The boaster, all's to care for. He, beside
 Some shape not visible, in power and pride
 Approached, out of the dark, ginglyly near,
 Nearer, passed close in the broad light, his ear
 Crimson, eyeballs suffused, temples full-fraught,
 Just a snatch of the rapid speech you caught,
 And on he strode into the opposite dark,
 Till presently the harsh heel's turn, a spark
 I' the stone, and whirl of some loose embossed throng
 That crashed against the angle aye so long
 After the last, punctual to an amount
 Of mailed great paces you could not but count, —
 Prepared you for the pacing back again.
 And by the snatches you might ascertain
 That, Friedrich's Prefecture surmounted, left
 By this alone in Italy, they cleft
 Asunder, crushed together, at command
 Of none, were free to break up Hildebrand,
 Rebuild, he and Sordello, Charlemagne —
 But garnished, Strength with Knowledge, "if we deign
 Accept that compromise and stoop to give
 Rome law, the Cæsar's Representative."

Enough, that the illimitable flood
 Of triumphs after triumphs, understood
 In its faint reflux (you shall hear) sufficed
 Young Ecelin for appanage, enticed
 Him on till, these long quiet in their graves,
 He found 't was looked for that a whole life's braves
 Should somehow be made good ; so, weak and worn,
 Must stagger up at Milan, one gray morn
 Of the to-come, and fight his latest fight.
 But, Salinguerra's prophecy at height —
 He voluble with a raised arm and stiff,
 A blaring voice, a blazing eye, as if
 He had our very Italy to keep
 Or cast away, or gather in a heap
 To garrison the better — ay, his word
 Was, " run the cucumber into a gourd,
 Drive Trent upon Apulia " — at their pitch
 Who spied the continents and islands which Grew mulberry-leaves and sickles, in the map —
 (Strange that three such confessions so should hap
 To Palma, Dante spoke with in the clear
 Amorous silence of the Swooning-sphere, —
Cunizza, as he called her ! Never ask
 Of Palma more ! She sat, knowing her task
 Was done, the labor of it, — for, success
 Concerned not Palma, passion's votaress)
 Triumph at height, and thus Sordello crowned —
 Above the passage suddenly a sound
 Stops speech, stops walk : back shrinks Taurello, bids
 With large involuntary asking lids,
 Palma interpret. " 'T is his own foot-stamp —
 Your hand ! His summons ! Nay, this idle damp
 Befits not ! " Out they two reeled dizzily.
 " Visconti's strong at Milan," resumed he,
 In the old, somewhat insignificant way —
 (Was Palma wont, years afterward, to say)
 As though the spirit's flight, sustained thus far,
 Dropped at that very instant. Gone they are —
 Palma, Taurello ; Eglamor anon,
 Ecelin, — only Naddo's never gone !
 — Labors, this moonrise, what the Master meant —
 " Is Squarcialupo speckled ? — purulent,
 I'd say, but when was Providence put out ?
 He carries somehow handily about
 His spite nor fouls himself ! " Goito's vines
 Stand like a cheat detected — stark rough lines,

The moon breaks through, a gray mean scale against
 The vault where, this eve's Maiden, thou remain'st
 Like some fresh martyr, eyes fixed — who can tell?
 As Heaven, now all 's at end, did not so well,
 Spite of the faith and victory, to leave
 Its virgin quite to death in the lone eve.
 While the persisting hermit-bee . . . ha! wait
 No longer : these in compass, forward fate!

BOOK THE SIXTH.

THE thought of Eglamor's least like a thought,
 And yet a false one, was, "Man shrinks to nought
 If matched with symbols of immensity ;
 Must quail, forsooth, before a quiet sky
 Or sea, too little for their quietude :"
 And, truly, somewhat in Sordello's mood
 Confirmed its speciousness, while eve slow sank
 Down the near terrace to the farther bank,
 And only one spot left from out the night
 Glimmered upon the river opposite —
 A breadth of watery heaven like a bay,
 A sky-like space of water, ray for ray,
 And star for star, one richness where they mixed
 As this and that wing of an angel, fixed,
 Tumultuary splendors folded in
 To die. Nor turned he till Ferrara's din
 (Say, the monotonous speech from a man's lip
 Who lets some first and eager purpose slip
 In a new fancy's birth ; the speech keeps on Though elsewhere its informing soul be gone)
 — Aroused him, surely offered succor. Fate
 Paused with this eve ; ere she precipitate
 Herself, — best put off new strange thoughts awhile,
 That voice, those large hands, that portentous smile, —
 What help to pierce the future as the past,
 Lay in the plaining city?

And at last

The main discovery and prime concern,
 All that just now imported him to learn,
 Truth's self, like yonder slow moon to complete
 Heaven, rose again, and, naked at his feet,
 Lighted his old life's every shift and change,

Effort with counter-effort ; nor the range
 Of each looked wrong except wherein it checked
 Some other — which of these could he suspect,
 Prying into them by the sudden blaze ?
 The real way seemed made up of all the ways —
 Mood after mood of the one mind in him ;
 Tokens of the existence, bright or dim,
 Of a transcendent all-embracing sense
 Demanding only outward influence,
 A soul, in Palma's phrase, above his soul,
 Power to uplift his power, — such moon's control
 Over such sea-depths, — and their mass had swept Onward from the beginning and still kept
 Its course : but years and years the sky above
 Held none, and so, untasked of any love,
 His sensitiveness idled, now amort,
 Alive now, and, to sullenness or sport
 Given wholly up, disposed itself anew
 At every passing instigation, grew
 And dwindled at caprice, in foam-showers spilt,
 Wedge-like insisting, quivered now a gilt
 Shield in the sunshine, now a blinding race
 Of whitest ripples o'er the reef — found place
 For much display ; not gathered up and, hurled
 Right from its heart, encompassing the world.
 So had Sordello been, by consequence,
 Without a function : others made pretence
 To strength not half his own, yet had some core
 Within, submitted to some moon, before
 Them still, superior still whate'er their force, —
 Were able therefore to fulfil a course,
 Nor missed life's crown, authentic attribute.
 To each who lives must be a certain fruit
 Of having lived in his degree, — a stage,
 Earlier or later in men's pilgrimage,
 To stop at ; and to this the spirits tend
 Who, still discovering beauty without end,
 Amass the scintillations, make one star
 — Something unlike them, self-sustained, afar, —
 And meanwhile nurse the dream of being blest
 By winning it to notice and invest
 Their souls with alien glory, some one day
 Whene'er the nucleus, gathering shape away,
 Round to the perfect circle — soon or late,
 According as themselves are formed to wait ;

Whether mere human beauty will suffice
 — The yellow hair and the luxurious eyes,
 Or human intellect seem best, or each
 Combine in some ideal form past reach
 On earth, or else some shade of these, some aim,
 Some love, hate even, take their place, the same,
 So to be served — all this they do not lose,
 Waiting for death to live, nor idly choose
 What must be Hell — a progress thus pursued
 Through all existence, still above the food
 That's offered them, still fain to reach beyond
 The widened range, in virtue of their bond
 Of sovereignty. Not that a Palma's Love,
 A Salinguerra's Hate, would equal prove
 To swaying all Sordello: but why doubt
 Some love meet for such strength, some moon without
 Would match his sea? — or fear, Good manifest,
 Only the Best breaks faith? — Ah but the Best
 Somehow eludes us ever, still might be
 And is not! Crave we gems? No penury
 Of their material round us! Pliant earth
 And plastic flame — what balks the mage his birth
 — Jacinth in balls or lodestone by the block?
 Flinders enrich the strand, veins swell the rock;
 Nought more! Seek creatures? Life's in the tempest, thought,
 Clothes the keen hill-top, mid-day woods are fraught
 With fervors: human forms are well enough!
 But we had hoped, encouraged by the stuff
 Profuse at nature's pleasure, men beyond
 These actual men! — and thus are over-fond
 In arguing, from Good the Best, from force
 Divided — force combined, an ocean's course
 From this our sea whose mere intestine pants
 Might seem at times sufficient to our wants.
 — External power? If none be adequate
 And he stand forth ordained (a prouder fate)
 Himself a law to his own sphere? — remove
 All incompleteness, for that law, that love?
 Nay, if all other laws be feints, — truth veiled
 Helpfully to weak vision that had failed
 To grasp aught but its special want, — for lure,
 Embodied? Stronger vision could endure
 The unbodied want: no part — the whole of truth!
 The People were himself; nor, by the ruth
 At their condition, was he less impelled

To alter the discrepancy beheld,
 Than if, from the sound Whole, a sickly Part
 Subtracted were transformed, decked out with art,
 Then palmed on him as alien woe — the Guelf
 To succor, proud that he forsook himself?
 All is himself; all service, therefore, rates
 Alike, nor serving one part, immolates
 The rest: but all in time! “That lance of yours
 Makes havoc soon with Malek and his Moors,
 That buckler’s lined with many a giant’s beard,
 Ere long, our champion, be the lance upreared,
 The buckler wielded handsomely as now!
 But view your escort, bear in mind your vow,
 Count the pale tracts of sand to pass ere that,
 And, if you hope we struggle through the flat,
 Put lance and buckler by! Next half-month lacks
 Mere sturdy exercise of mace and axe
 To cleave this dismal brake of prickly-pear
 Which bristling holds Cydippe by the hair,
 Lames barefoot Agathon: this felled, we’ll try
 The picturesque achievements by and by —
 Next life!”

Ay, rally, mock, O People, urge
 Your claims! — for thus he ventured, to the verge,
 Push a vain mummerly which perchance distrust
 Of his fast-slipping resolution thrust
 Likewise: accordingly the Crowd — (as yet
 He had unconsciously contrived forget,
 I’ the whole, to dwell o’ the points . . . one might assuage
 The signal horrors easier than engage
 With a dim vulgar vast unobvious grief
 Not to be fancied off, nor gained relief
 In brilliant fits, cured by a happy quirk,
 But by dim vulgar vast unobvious work
 To correspond . . .) — this Crowd then, forth they stood.
 And now content thy stronger vision, brood
 On thy bare want; uncovered, turf by turf,
 Study the corpse-face through the taint-worms’ scurf!”

Down sank the People’s Then; uprose their Now
 These sad ones render service to! And how Piteously little must that service prove
 — Had surely proved in any case! for, move
 Each other obstacle away, let youth
 Become aware it had surprised a truth
 ’T were service to impart — can truth be seized,
 Settled forthwith, and, of the captive eased,

Its captor find fresh prey, since this alit
 So happily, no gesture luring it,
 The earnest of a flock to follow? Vain,
 Most vain! a life to spend ere this he chain
 To the poor crowd's complacence: ere the crowd
 Pronounce it captured, he desecrates a cloud
 Its kin of twice the plume; which he, in turn,
 If he shall live as many lives, may learn
 How to secure: not else. Then Mantua called Back to his mind how certain bards were thrall'd
 — Buds blasted, but of breath more like perfume
 Than Naddo's staring nose-gay's carrion bloom;
 Some insane rose that burnt heart out in sweets,
 A spendthrift in the spring, no summer greets;
 Some Dularete, drunk with truths and wine,
 Grown bestial, dreaming how become divine.
 Yet to surmount this obstacle, commence
 With the commencement, merits crowning! Hence
 Must truth be casual truth, elicited
 In sparks so mean, at intervals dispread
 So rarely, that 't is like at no one time
 Of the world's story has not truth, the prime
 Of truth, the very truth which, loosed, had hurled
 The world's course right, been really in the world
 — Content the while with some mean spark by dint
 Of some chance-blow, the solitary hint
 Of buried fire, which, rip earth's breast, would stream
 Sky-ward!

Sordello's miserable gleam
 Was looked for at the moment: he would dash
 This badge, and all it brought, to earth, — abash
 Taurello thus, perhaps persuade him wrest
 The Kaiser from his purpose, — would attest
 His own belief, in any case. Before
 He dashes it however, think once more!
 For, were that little, truly service? "Ay,
 I' the end, no doubt; but meantime? Plain you spy
 Its ultimate effect, but many flaws
 Of vision blur each intervening cause.
 Were the day's fraction clear as the life's sum
 Of service, Now as filled as teems To-come
 With evidence of good — nor too minute
 A share to vie with evil! No dispute,
 'T were fittest maintain the Guelfs in rule:
 That makes your life's work: but you have to school
 Your day's work on these natures circumstanced

Thus variously, which yet, as each advanced
 Or might impede the Guelf rule, must be moved
 Now, for the Then's sake, — hating what you loved,
 Loving old hatreds ! Nor if one man bore
 Brand upon temples while his fellow wore
 The aureole, would it task you to decide :
 But, portioned duly out, the future vied
 Never with the unparcelled present ! Smite
 Or spare so much on warrant all so slight ?
 The present's complete sympathies to break,
 Aversions bear with, for a future's sake
 So feeble ? Tito ruined through one speck,
 The Legate saved by his sole lightish fleck ?
 This were work, true, but work performed at cost
 Of other work ; aught gained here, elsewhere lost.
 For a new segment spoil an orb half-done ?
 Rise with the People one step, and sink — one ?
 Were it but one step, less than the whole face
 Of things, your novel duty bids erase !
 Harms to abolish ! What, the prophet saith,
 The minstrel singeth vainly then ? Old faith,
 Old courage, only borne because of harms,
 Were not, from highest to the lowest, charms ?
 Flame may persist ; but is not glare as stanch ?
 Where the salt marshes stagnate, crystals branch ;
 Blood dries to crimson ; Evil's beautified
 In every shape. Thrust Beauty then aside
 And banish Evil ! Wherefore ? After all,
 Is Evil a result less natural
 Than Good ? For overlook the seasons' strife
 With tree and flower, — the hideous animal life,
 (Of which who seeks shall find a grinning taunt
 For his solution, and endure the vaunt
 Of nature's angel, as a child that knows
 Himself befooled, unable to propose
 Aught better than the fooling) — and but care
 For men, for the mere People then and there, —
 In these, could you but see that Good and Ill
 Claimed you alike ! Whence rose their claim but still
 From Ill, as fruit of Ill ? What else could knit
 You theirs but Sorrow ? Any free from it
 Were also free from you ! Whose happiness
 Could be distinguished in this morning's press
 Of miseries ? — the fool's who passed a gibe
 ' On thee,' jeered he, ' so wedded to thy tribe,
 Thou carriest green and yellow tokens in

Thy very face that thou art Ghibellin !
 Much hold on you that fool obtained ! Nay mount
 Yet higher — and upon men's own account
 Must Evil stay : for, what is joy ? — to heave
 Up one obstruction more, and common leave
 What was peculiar, by such act destroy
 Itself ; a partial death is every joy ;
 The sensible escape, enfranchisement
 Of a sphere's essence : once the vexed — content,
 The cramped — at large, the growing circle — round,
 All 's to begin again — some novel bound
 To break, some new enlargement to entreat ;
 The sphere though larger is not more complete.
 Now for Mankind's experience : who alone
 Might style the unobstructed world his own ?
 Whom palled Goito with its perfect things ?
 Sordello's self : whereas for Mankind springs
 Salvation by each hindrance interposed.
 They climb ; life's view is not at once disclosed
 To creatures caught up, on the summit left,
 Heaven plain above them, yet of wings bereft :
 But lower laid, as at the mountain's foot.
 So, range on range, the girdling forests shoot
 'Twixt your plain prospect and the throngs who scale
 Height after height, and pierce mists, veil by veil,
 Heartened with each discovery ; in their soul,
 The Whole they seek by Parts — but, found that Whole,
 Could they revert, enjoy past gains ? The space
 Of time you judge so meagre to embrace
 The Parts were more than plenty, once attained
 The Whole, to quite exhaust it : nought were gained
 But leave to look — not leave to do : Beneath
 Soon sates the looker — look Above, and Death
 Tempts ere a tithe of Life be tasted. Live
 First, and die soon enough, Sordello ! Give
 Body and spirit the first right they claim,
 And pasture soul on a voluptuous shame
 That you, a pageant-city's denizen,
 Are neither vilely lodged 'midst Lombard men —
 Can force joy out of sorrow, seem to truck
 Bright attributes away for sordid muck,
 Yet manage from that very muck educe
 Gold ; then subject nor scruple, to your cruce
 The world's discardings ! Though real ingots pay
 Your pains, the clods that yielded them are clay
 To all beside, — would clay remain, though quenched

Your purging-fire ; who 's robbed then? Had you wrenched
 An ampler treasure forth! — As 't is, they crave
 A share that ruins you and will not save
 Them. Why should sympathy command you quit
 The course that makes your joy, nor will remit
 Their woe? Would all arrive at joy? Reverse
 The order (time instructs you) nor coerce
 Each unit till, some predetermined mode,
 The total be emancipate ; men's road
 Is one, men's times of travel many ; thwart
 No enterprising soul's precocious start
 Before the general march! If slow or fast
 All straggle up to the same point at last,
 Why grudge your having gained, a month ago,
 The brakes at balm-shed, asphodels in blow,
 While they were landlocked? Speed their Then, but how
 This badge would suffer you improve your Now !”

His time of action for, against, or with
 Our world (I labor to extract the pith
 Of this his problem) grew, that even-tide,
 Gigantic with its power of joy, beside
 The world's eternity of impotence
 To profit though at his whole joy's expense.
 “ Make nothing of my day because so brief?
 Rather make more : instead of joy, use grief
 Before its novelty have time subside !
 Wait not for the late savor, leave untried
 Virtue, the creaming honey-wine, quick squeeze
 Vice like a biting spirit from the lees
 Of life! Together let wrath, hatred, lust,
 All tyrannies in every shape, be thrust
 Upon this Now, which time may reason out
 As mischiefs, far from benefits, no doubt ;
 But long ere then Sordello will have slipped
 Away ; you teach him at Goito's crypt,
 There 's a blank issue to that fiery thrill.
 Stirring, the few cope with the many, still :
 So much of sand as, quiet, makes a mass
 Unable to produce three tufts of grass,
 Shall, troubled by the whirlwind, render void
 The whole calm glebe's endeavor : be employed !
 And e'en though somewhat smart the Crowd for this,
 Contribute each his pang to make your bliss,
 'T is but one pang — one blood-drop to the bowl
 Which brimful tempts the sluggish asp uncowl
 At last, stains ruddily the dull red cape,

And, kindling orbs gray as the unripe grape
 Before, avails forthwith to disentrance
 The portent, soon to lead a mystic dance
 Among you! For, who sits alone in Rome?
 Have those great hands indeed hewn out a home,
 And set me there to live? Oh life, life-breath,
 Life-blood, — ere sleep, come travail, life ere death!
 This life stream on my soul, direct, oblique,
 But always streaming! Hindrances? They pique:
 Helps? such . . . but why repeat, my soul o'ertops
 Each height, then every depth profoundlier drops?
 Enough that I can live, and would live! Wait
 For some transcendent life reserved by Fate
 To follow this? Oh, never! Fate, I trust
 The same, my soul to; for, as who flings dust,
 Perchance (so facile was the deed) she checked
 The void with these materials to affect
 My soul diversely: these consigned anew
 To nought by death, what marvel if she threw
 A second and superber spectacle
 Before me? What may serve for sun, what still Wander a moon above me? What else wind
 About me like the pleasures left behind,
 And how shall some new flesh that is not flesh
 Cling to me? What's new laughter? Soothes the fresh
 Sleep like sleep? Fate's exhaustless for my sake
 In brave resource: but whether bids she slake
 My thirst at this first rivulet, or count
 No draught worth lip save from some rocky fount
 Above i' the clouds, while here she's provident
 Of pure loquacious pearl, the soft tree-tent
 Guards, with its face of reate and sedge, nor fail
 The silver globules and gold-sparkling grail
 At bottom? Oh, 't were too absurd to slight
 For the hereafter the to-day's delight!
 Quench thirst at this, then seek next well-spring: wear
 Home-lilies ere strange lotus in my hair!
 Here is the Crowd, whom I with freest heart
 Offer to serve, contented for my part
 To give life up in service, — only grant
 That I do serve; if otherwise, why want
 Aught further of me? If men cannot choose
 But set aside life, why should I refuse
 The gift? I take it — I, for one, engage
 Never to falter through my pilgrimage —
 Nor end it howling that the stock or stone

Were enviable, truly : I, for one,
 Will praise the world, you style mere anteroom
 To palace — be it so ! shall I assume
 — My foot the courtly gait, my tongue the trope,
 My mouth the smirk, before the doors fly ope
 One moment ? What ? with guarders row on row,
 Gay swarms of varletry that come and go,
 Pages to dice with, waiting-girls unlace
 The plackets of, pert claimants help displace,
 Heart-heavy suitors get a rank for, — laugh
 At yon sleek parasite, break his own staff
 'Cross Beetle-brows the Usher's shoulder, — why,
 Admitted to the presence by and by,
 Should thought of having lost these make me grieve
 Among new joys I reach, for joys I leave ?
 Cool citrine-crystals, fierce pyropus-stone,
 Are floor-work there ! But do I let alone
 That black-eyed peasant in the vestibule
 Once and forever ? — Floor-work ? No such fool !
 Rather, were heaven to forestall earth, I 'd say
 I, is it, must be blessed ? Then, my own way
 Bless me ! Giver firmer arm and fleeter foot,
 I 'll thank you : but to no mad wings transmute
 These limbs of mine — our greensward was so soft !
 Nor camp I on the thunder-cloud aloft :
 We feel the bliss distinctlier, having thus
 Engines subservient, not mixed up with us.
 Better move palpably through heaven : nor, freed
 Of flesh, forsooth, from space to space proceed
 'Mid flying synods of worlds ! No : in heaven's marge
 Show Titan still, recumbent o'er his targe
 Solid with stars — the Centaur at his game,
 Made tremulously out in hoary flame !

Life ! Yet the very cup whose extreme dull
 Dregs, even, I would quaff, was dashed, at full,
 Aside so oft ; the death I fly, revealed
 So oft a better life this life concealed,
 And which sage, champion, martyr, through each path
 Have hunted fearlessly — the horrid bath,
 The crippling-irons and the fiery chair.
 'T was well for them ; let me become aware
 As they, and I relinquish life, too ! Let
 What masters life disclose itself ! Forget
 Vain ordinances, I have one appeal —
 I feel, am what I feel, know what I feel ;
 So much is truth to me. What Is, then ? Since

One object, viewed diversely, may evince
 Beauty and ugliness — this way attract,
 That way repel, — why gloze upon the fact?
 Why must a single of the sides be right?
 What bids choose this and leave the opposite?
 Where 's abstract Right for me? — in youth endued
 With Right still present, still to be pursued,
 Through all the interchange of circles, rife
 Each with its proper law and mode of life,
 Each to be dwelt at ease in : where, to sway
 Absolute with the Kaiser, or obey
 Implicit with his serf of fluttering heart,
 Or, like a sudden thought of God's, to start
 Up, Brutus in the presence, then go shout
 That some should pick the unstrung jewels out —
 Each, well ! ”

And, as in moments when the past
 Gave partially enfranchisement, he cast
 Himself quite through mere secondary states
 Of his soul's essence, little loves and hates,
 Into the mid deep yearnings overlaid
 By these ; as who should pierce hill, plain, grove, glade,
 And on into the very nucleus probe
 That first determined there exist a globe.
 As that were easiest, half the globe dissolved,
 So seemed Sordello's closing-truth evolved
 By his flesh-half's break up ; the sudden swell
 Of his expanding soul showed Ill and Well,
 Sorrow and Joy, Beauty and Ugliness,
 Virtue and Vice, the Larger and the Less,
 All qualities, in fine, recorded here,
 Might be but modes of Time and this one sphere,
 Urgent on these, but not of force to bind
 Eternity, as Time — as Matter — Mind,
 If Mind, Eternity, should choose assert
 Their attributes within a Life : thus girt
 With circumstance, next change beholds them cinct
 Quite otherwise — with Good and Ill distinct,
 Joys, sorrows, tending to a like result —
 Contrived to render easy, difficult,
 This or the other course of . . . what new bond
 In place of flesh may stop their flight beyond
 Its new sphere, as that course does harm or good
 To its arrangements. Once this understood,
 As suddenly he felt himself alone,
 Quite out of Time and this world : all was known.

What made the secret of his past despair ?
 — Most imminent when he seemed most aware
 Of his own self-sufficiency ; made mad
 By craving to expand the power he had,
 And not new power to be expanded ? — just
 This made it ; Soul on Matter being thrust,
 Joy comes when so much Soul is wrecked in Time
 On Matter, — let the Soul's attempt sublime
 Matter beyond the scheme and so prevent
 By more or less that deed's accomplishment,
 And Sorrow follows : Sorrow how avoid ?
 Let the employer match the thing employed,
 Fit to the finite his infinity,
 And thus proceed forever, in degree
 Changed but in kind the same, still limited
 To the appointed circumstance and dead
 To all beyond. A sphere is but a sphere ;
 Small, Great, are merely terms we bandy here ;
 Since to the spirit's absoluteness all
 Are like. Now, of the present sphere we call
 Life, are conditions ; take but this among
 Many ; the body was to be so long
 Youthful, no longer : but, since no control
 Tied to that body's purposes his soul,
 She chose to understand the body's trade
 More than the body's self — had fain conveyed
 Her boundless, to the body's bounded lot.
 Hence, the soul permanent, the body not, —
 Scarcely its minute for enjoying here, —
 The soul must needs instruct her weak compeer,
 Run o'er its capabilities and wring
 A joy thence, she held worth experiencing :
 Which, far from half discovered even, — lo,
 The minute gone, the body's power let go
 Apportioned to that joy's acquirement ! Broke
 Morning o'er earth, he yearned for all it woke —
 From the volcano's vapor-flag, winds hoist
 Black o'er the spread of sea, — down to the moist
 Dale's silken barley-spikes sullied with rain,
 Swayed earthwards, heavily to rise again —
 The Small, a sphere as perfect as the Great
 To the soul's absoluteness. Meditate
 Too long on such a morning's cluster-chord
 And the whole music it was framed afford, —
 The chord's might half discovered, what should pluck
 One string, his finger, was found palsy-struck.

And then no marvel if the spirit, shown
 A saddest sight — the body lost alone
 Through her officious proffered help, deprived
 Of this and that enjoyment Fate contrived, —
 Virtue, Good, Beauty, each allowed slip hence, —
 Vaingloriously were fain, for recompense,
 To stem the ruin even yet, protract
 The body's term, supply the power it lacked
 From her infinity, compel it learn ·
 These qualities were only Time's concern,
 And body may, with spirit helping, barred —
 Advance the same, vanquished — obtain reward,
 Reap joy where sorrow was intended grow,
 Of Wrong make Right, and turn Ill Good below.

And the result is, the poor body soon
 Sinks under what was meant a wondrous boon,
 Leaving its bright accomplice all aghast.
 So much was plain then, proper in the past ;
 To be complete for, satisfy the whole
 Series of spheres — Eternity, his soul
 Needs must exceed, prove incomplete for, each
 Single sphere — Time. But does our knowledge reach
 No farther ? Is the cloud of hindrance broke
 But by the failing of the fleshly yoke,
 Its loves and hates, as now when death lets soar
 Sordello, self-sufficient as before,
 Though during the mere space that shall elapse
 'Twixt his enthrallment in new bonds, perhaps ?
 Must life be ever just escaped, which should
 Have been enjoyed ? — nay, might have been and would,
 Each purpose ordered right — the soul's no whit
 Beyond the body's purpose under it —
 Like yonder breadth of watery heaven, a bay,
 And that sky-space of water, ray for ray
 And star for star, one richness where they mixed
 As this and that wing of an angel, fixed,
 Tumultuary splendors folded in
 To die — would soul, proportioned thus, begin
 Exciting discontent, or surelier quell
 The body if, aspiring, it rebel ?
 But how so order life ? Still brutalize
 The soul, the sad world's way, with muffled eyes
 To all that was before, all that shall be
 After this sphere — all and each quality
 Save some sole and immutable Great Good
 And Beauteous whither fate has loosed its hood

To follow? Never may some soul see All — The Great Before and After, and the Small
 Now, yet be saved by this the simplest lore,
 And take the single course prescribed before,
 As the king-bird with ages on his plumes
 Travels to die in his ancestral glooms?
 But where descry the Love that shall select
 That course? Here is a soul whom, to affect,
 Nature has plied with all her means, from trees
 And flowers e'en to the Multitude! — and these,
 Decides he save or no? One word to end!

Ah my Sordello, I this once befriend
 And speak for you. Of a Power above you still
 Which, utterly incomprehensible,
 Is out of rivalry, which thus you can
 Love, though unloving all conceived by man —
 What need! And of — none the minutest duct
 To that out-nature, nought that would instruct
 And so let rivalry begin to live —
 But of a power its representative
 Who, being for authority the same,
 Communication different, should claim
 A course, the first chose but this last revealed —
 This Human clear, as that Divine concealed —
 What utter need!

What has Sordello found?

Or can his spirit go the mighty round,
 End where poor Eglamor begun? — So, says
 Old fable, the two eagles went two ways
 About the world: where, in the midst, they met,
 Though on a shifting waste of sand, men set
 Jove's temple. Quick, what has Sordello found?
 For they approach — approach — that foot's rebound
 Palma? No, Salinguerra though in mail;
 'They mount, have reached the threshold, dash the veil
 Aside — and you divine who sat there dead,
 Under his foot the badge: still, Palma said,
 A triumph lingering in the wide eyes,
 Wider than some spent swimmer's if he spies
 Help from above in his extreme despair,
 And, head far back on shoulder thrust, turns there
 With short quick passionate cry: as Palma pressed
 In one great kiss, her lips upon his breast,
 It beat.

By this, the hermit-bee has stopped
 His day's toil at Goito: the new-cropped

Dead vine-leaf answers, now 't is eve, he bit,
 Twirled so, and filed all day : the mansion's fit,
 God counselled for. As easy guess the word
 That passed betwixt them, and become the third
 To the soft small unfrighted bee, as tax
 Him with one fault — so, no remembrance racks
 Of the stone maidens and the font of stone
 He, creeping through the crevice, leaves alone.
 Alas, my friend, alas Sordello, whom
 Anon they laid within that old font-tomb,
 And, yet again, alas !

And now is 't worth
 Our while bring back to mind, much less set forth
 How Salinguerra extricates himself
 Without Sordello ? Ghibellin and Guef
 May fight their fiercest out ? If Richard sulked
 In durance or the Marquis paid his mulet,
 Who cares, Sordello gone ? The upshot, sure,
 Was peace ; our chief made some frank overture
 That prospered ; compliment fell thick and fast
 On its disposer, and Taurello passed
 With foe and friend for an outstripping soul,
 Nine days at least. Then, — fairly reached the goal, —
 He, by one effort, blotted the great hope
 Out of his mind, nor further tried to cope
 With Este, that mad evening's style, but sent Away the Legate and the League, content
 No blame at least the brothers had incurred,
 — Dispatched a message to the Monk, he heard
 Patiently first to last, scarce shivered at,
 Then curled his limbs up on his wolfskin mat
 And ne'er spoke more, — informed the Ferrarese
 He but retained their rule so long as these
 Lingered in pupilage, — and last, no mode
 Apparent else of keeping safe the road
 From Germany direct to Lombardy
 For Friedrich, — none, that is, to guarantee
 The faith and promptitude of who should next
 Obtain Sofia's dowry, — sore perplexed —
 (Sofia being youngest of the tribe
 Of daughters, Ecelin was wont to bribe
 The envious magnates with — nor, since he sent
 Henry of Egna this fair child, had Trent
 Once failed the Kaiser's purposes — “ we lost
 Egna last year, and who takes Egna's post —
 Opens the Lombard gate if Friedrich knock ? ”)

Himself espoused the Lady of the Rock
 In pure necessity, and, so destroyed
 His slender last of chances, quite made void
 Old prophecy, and spite of all the schemes
 Overt and covert, youth's deeds, age's dreams,
 Was sucked into Romano. And so hushed
 He up this evening's work, that, when 't was brushed
 Somehow against by a blind chronicle
 Which, chronicling whatever woe befell
 Ferrara, noted this the obscure woe
 Of "Salinguerra's sole son Giacomo
 Deceased, fatuous and doting, ere his sire,"
 The townsfolk rubbed their eyes, could but admire
 Which of Sofia's five was meant.

The chaps

Of earth's dead hope were tardy to collapse,
 Obliterated not the beautiful
 Distinctive features at a crash : but dull
 And duller these, next year, as Guelfs withdrew
 Each to his stronghold. Then (securely too
 Ecelin at Campese slept ; close by,
 Who likes may see him in Solagna lie,
 With cushioned head and gloved hand to denote
 The cavalier he was) — then his heart smote
 Young Ecelin at last ; long since adult.
 And, save Vicenza's business, what result
 In blood and blaze ? (So hard to intercept Sordello till his plain withdrawal !). Stepped Then its new lord on Lombardy. I' the nick
 Of time when Ecelin and Alberic
 Closed with Taurello, come precisely news
 That in Verona half the souls refuse
 Allegiance to the Marquis and the Count —
 Have cast them from a throne they bid him mount,
 Their Podestà, through his ancestral worth.
 Ecelin flew there, and the town henceforth
 Was wholly his — Taurello sinking back
 From temporary station to a track
 That suited. News received of this acquist,
 Friedrich did come to Lombardy : who missed
 Taurello then ? Another year : they took Vicenza, left the Marquis scarce a nook
 For refuge, and, when hundreds two or three
 Of Guelfs conspired to call themselves "The Free,"
 Opposing Alberic, — vile Bassanese, —
 (Without Sordello !) — Ecelin at ease

Slaughtered them so observably, that oft
 A little Salinguerra looked with soft
 Blue eyes up, asked his sire the proper age
 To get appointed his proud uncle's page.
 More years passed, and that sire had dwindled down
 To a mere showy turbulent soldier, grown
 Better through age, his parts still in repute,
 Subtle — how else? — but hardly so astute
 As his contemporaneous friends professed;
 Undoubtedly a brawler: for the rest,
 Known by each neighbor, and allowed for, let
 Keep his incorrigible ways, nor fret
 Men who would miss their boyhood's bugbear: "trap
 The ostrich, suffer our bald osprey flap
 A battered pinion!" — was the word. In fine,
 One flap too much and Venice's marine
 Was meddled with; no overlooking that!
 She captured him in his Ferrara, fat
 And florid at a banquet, more by fraud
 Than force, to speak the truth; there's slender laud
 Ascribed you for assisting eighty years
 To pull his death on such a man; fate shears
 The life-cord prompt enough whose last fine thread
 You fritter: so, presiding his board-head,
 The old smile, your assurance all went well
 With Friedrich (as if he were like to tell!)
 In rushed (a plan contrived before) our friends,
 Made some pretence at fighting, some amends
 For the shame done his eighty years — (apart
 The principle, none found it in his heart
 To be much angry with Taurello) — gained
 Their galleys with the prize, and what remained
 But carry him to Venice for a show?
 — Set him, as 't were, down gently — free to go
 His gait, inspect our square, pretend observe
 The swallows soaring their eternal curve
 'Twixt Theodore and Mark, if citizens
 Gathered importunately, fives and tens,
 To point their children the Magnifico,
 All but a monarch once in firm-land, go
 His gait among them now — "it took, indeed,
 Fully this Ecelin to supersede
 That man," remarked the seniors. Singular!
 Sordello's inability to bar
 Rivals the stage, that evening, mainly brought
 About by his strange disbelief that aught

Was ever to be done, — this thrust the Twain
 Under Taurello's tutelage, — whom, brain
 And heart and hand, he forthwith in one rod
 Indissolubly bound to baffle God
 Who loves the world — and thus allowed the thin
 Gray wizened dwarfish devil Ecelin,
 And massy-muscled big-boned Alberic
 (Mere man, alas!) to put his problem quick
 To demonstration — prove wherever 's will
 To do, there 's plenty to be done, or ill
 Or good. Anointed, then, to rend and rip —
 Kings of the gag and flesh-hook, screw and whip,
 They plagued the world: a touch of Hildebrand
 (So far from obsolete!) made Lombards band
 Together, cross their coats as for Christ's cause,
 And saving Milan win the world's applause.
 Ecelin perished: and I think grass grew
 Never so pleasant as in Valley Rù
 By San Zenon where Alberic in turn
 Saw his exasperated captors burn
 Seven children and their mother; then, regaled
 So far, tied on to a wild horse, was trailed
 To death through raunce and bramble-bush. I take God's part and testify that 'mid the brake
 Wild o'er his castle on the pleasant knoll,
 You hear its one tower left, a belfry, toll —
 The earthquake spared it last year, laying flat
 The modern church beneath, — no harm in that!
 Chirrup the contumacious grasshopper,
 Rustles the lizard and the cushats chirre
 Above the ravage: there, at deep of day
 A week since, heard I the old Canon say
 He saw with his own eyes a barrow burst
 And Alberic's huge skeleton unheard
 Only five years ago. He added, "June's
 The month for carding off our first cocoons
 The silkworms fabricate" — a double news,
 Nor he nor I could tell the worthier. Choose!
 And Naddo gone, all's gone; not Eglamor!
 Believe, I knew the face I waited for,
 A guest my spirit of the golden courts!
 Oh strange to see how, despite ill-reports,
 Disuse, some wear of years, that face retained
 Its joyous look of love! Suns waxed and waned,
 And still my spirit held an upward flight,
 Spiral on spiral, gyres of life and light

More and more gorgeous — ever that face there
 The last admitted ! crossed, too, with some care
 As perfect triumph were not sure for all,
 But, on a few, enduring damp must fall,
 — A transient struggle, haply a painful sense
 Of the inferior nature's clinging — whence
 Slight starting tears easily wiped away,
 Fine jealousies soon stifled in the play
 Of irrepressible admiration — not
 Aspiring, all considered, to their lot
 Who ever, just as they prepare ascend
 Spiral on spiral, wish thee well, impend
 Thy frank delight at their exclusive track,
 That upturned fervid face and hair put back !

Is there no more to say ? He of the rhymes —
 Many a tale, of this retreat betimes,
 Was born : Sordello die at once for men ?
 The Chroniclers of Mantua tired their pen
 Telling how Sordello Prince Visconti saved
 Mantua, and elsewhere notably behaved —
 Who thus, by fortunè ordering events,
 Passed with posterity, to all intents,
 For just the god he never could become.
 As Knight, Bard, Gallant, men were never dumb
 In praise of him : while what he should have been,
 Could be, and was not — the one step too mean
 For him to take, — we suffer at this day
 Because of : Ecelin had pushed away
 Its chance ere Dante could arrive and take
 That step Sordello spurned, for the world's sake :
 He did much — but Sordello's chance was gone.
 Thus, had Sordello dared that step alone,
 Apollo had been compassed — 't was a fit
 He wished should go to him, not he to it
 — As one content to merely be supposed
 Singing or fighting elsewhere, while he dozed
 Really at home — one who was chiefly glad
 To have achieved the few real deeds he had,
 Because that way assured they were not worth
 Doing, so spared from doing them henceforth —
 A tree that covets fruitage and yet tastes
 Never itself, itself. Had he embraced
 Their cause then, men had plucked Hesperian fruit
 And, praising that, just thrown him in to boot
 All he was anxious to appear, but scarce
 Solicitous to be. A sorry farce

Such life is, after all ! Cannot I say
He lived for some one better thing ? this way. —
Lo, on a heathy brown and nameless hill
By sparkling Asolo, in mist and chill,
Morning just up, higher and higher runs
A child barefoot and rosy. See ! the sun 's
On the square castle's inner-court's low wall
Like the chine of some extinct animal
Half turned to earth and flowers ; and through the haze
(Save where some slender patches of gray maize
Are to be overleaped) that boy has crossed
The whole hill-side of dew and powder-frost
Matting the balm and mountain camomile.
Up and up goes he, singing all the while
Some unintelligible words to beat
The lark, God's poet, swooning at his feet,
So worsted is he at " the few fine locks
Stained like pale honey oozed from topmost rocks
Sunblanched the livelong summer," — all that's left
Of the Goito lay ! And thus bereft,
Sleep and forget, Sordello ! In effect
He sleeps, the feverish poet — I suspect
Not utterly companionless ; but, friends,
Wake up ! The ghost's gone, and the story ends
I'd fain hope, sweetly ; seeing, peri or ghoul,
That spirits are conjectured fair or foul,
Evil or good, judicious authors think,
According as they vanish in a stink
Or in a perfume. Friends, be frank ! ye snuff
Civet, I warrant. Really ? Like enough !
Merely the savor's rareness ; any nose
May ravage with impunity a rose :
Rifle a musk-pod and 't will ache like yours !
I'd tell you that same pungency ensures
An after-gust, but that were overbold.
Who would has heard Sordello's story told.

PIPPA PASSES

A DRAMA

I DEDICATE MY BEST INTENTIONS, IN THIS POEM, ADMIRINGLY TO THE AUTHOR OF "ION,"
AFFECTIONATELY TO MR. SERGEANT TALFOURD.

R. B.

LONDON, 1841.

---

NEW YEAR'S DAY AT ASOLO IN THE TREVISAN. A large mean airy chamber. A girl, PIPPA, from the silk-mills, springing out of bed.

DAY!

Faster and more fast,
O'er night's brim, day boils at last ;
Boils, pure gold, o'er the cloud-cup's brim
Where spurting and suppressed it lay ;
For not a froth-flake touched the rim
Of yonder gap in the solid gray
Of the eastern cloud, an hour away ;
But forth one wavelet, then another, curled,
Till the whole sunrise, not to be suppressed,
Rose, reddened, and its seething breast
Flickered in bounds, grew gold, then overflowed the world.

Oh, Day, if I squander a wavelet of thee,
A mite of my twelve-hours' treasure,
The least of thy gazes or glances,
(Be they grants thou art bound to or gifts above measure)
One of thy choices or one of thy chances,
(Be they tasks God imposed thee or freaks at thy pleasure)
— My Day, if I squander such labor or leisure,
Then shame fall on Asolo, mischief on me!

Thy long blue solemn hours serenely flowing,
Whence earth, we feel, gets steady help and good —
Thy fitful sunshine-minutes, coming, going,
As if earth turned from work in gamesome mood —
All shall be mine! But thou must treat me not
As prosperous ones are treated, those who live

At hand here, and enjoy the higher lot,
 In readiness to take what thou wilt give,
 And free to let alone what thou refuseth;
 For, Day, my holiday, if thou ill-usest
 Me, who am only Pippa, — old-year's sorrow,
 Cast off last night, will come again to-morrow:
 Whereas, if thou prove gentle, I shall borrow
 Sufficient strength of thee for new-year's sorrow.
 All other men and women that this earth
 Belongs to, who all days alike possess,
 Make general plenty cure particular dearth,
 Get more joy one way, if another, less:
 Thou art my single day, God lends to leaven
 What were all earth else, with a feel of heaven, —
 Sole light that helps me through the year, thy sun's!
 Try now! Take Asolo's Four Happiest Ones —
 And let thy morning rain on that superb
 Great haughty Ottima; can rain disturb
 Her Sebald's homage? All the while thy rain
 Beats fiercest on her shrub-house window-pane,
 He will but press the closer, breathe more warm
 Against her cheek; how should she mind the storm?
 And, morning past, if mid-day shed a gloom
 O'er Jules and Phene, — what care bride and groom
 Save for their dear selves? 'T is their marriage-day;
 And while they leave church and go home their way,
 Hand clasping hand, within each breast would be
 Sunbeams and pleasant weather spite of thee.
 Then, for another trial, obscure thy eve
 With mist, — will Luigi and his mother grieve —
 The lady and her child, unmatched, forsooth,
 She in her age, as Luigi in his youth,
 For true content? The cheerful town, warm, close
 And safe, the sooner that thou art morose,
 Receives them. And yet once again, outbreak
 In storm at night on Monsignor, they make
 Such stir about, — whom they expect from Rome
 To visit Asolo, his brothers' home,
 And say here masses proper to release
 A soul from pain, — what storm dares hurt his peace?
 Calm would he pray, with his own thoughts to ward
 Thy thunder off, nor want the angels' guard.
 But Pippa — just one such mischance would spoil
 Her day that lightens the next twelvemonth's toil
 At wearisome silk-winding, coil on coil!
 And here I let time slip for nought!

Aha, you foolhardy sunbeam, caught
 With a single splash from my ewer !
 You that would mock the best pursuer,
 Was my basin over-deep ?
 One splash of water ruins you asleep,
 And up, up, fleet your brilliant bits
 Wheeling and counterwheeling,
 Reeling, broken beyond healing :
 Now grow together on the ceiling !
 That will task your wits.
 Whoever it was quenched fire first, hoped to see
 Morsel after morsel flee
 As merrily, as giddily . . .
 Meantime, what lights my sunbeam on,
 Where settles by degrees the radiant cripple ?
 Oh, is it surely blown, my martagon ?
 New-blown and ruddy as St. Agnes' nipple,
 Plump as the flesh-bunch on some Turk bird's poll !
 Be sure if corals, branching 'neath the ripple
 Of ocean, bud there, — fairies watch unroll
 Such turban-flowers ; I say, such lamps disperse
 Thick red flame through that dusk green universe !
 I am queen of thee, floweret !
 And each fleshy blossom
 Preserve I not — (safer
 Than leaves that embower it,
 Or shells that embosom)
 — From weevil and chafer ?
 Laugh through my pane then ; solicit the bee ;
 Gibe him, be sure ; and, in midst of thy glee,
 Love thy queen, worship me !

— Worship whom else ? For am I not, this day,
 Whate'er I please ? What shall I please to-day ?
 My morn, noon, eve and night — how spend my day ?
 To-morrow I must be Pippa who winds silk,
 The whole year round, to earn just bread and milk :
 But, this one day, I have leave to go,
 And play out my fancy's fullest games ;
 I may fancy all day — and it shall be so —
 That I taste of the pleasures, am called by the names
 Of the Happiest Four in our Asolo !

See ! Up the hillside yonder, through the morning,
 Some one shall love me, as the world calls love :
 I am no less than Ottima, take warning !

The gardens, and the great stone house above,
 And other house for shrubs, all glass in front,
 Are mine; where Sebald steals, as he is wont,
 To court me, while old Luca yet reposes:
 And therefore, till the shrub-house door uncloses,
 I . . . what now? — give abundant cause for prate
 About me — Ottima, I mean — of late,
 'Too bold, too confident she'll still face down
 The spitefullest of talkers in our town.
 How we talk in the little town below!

But love, love, love — there's better love, I know!
 This foolish love was only day's first offer;
 I choose my next love to defy the scoffer:
 For do not our Bride and Bridegroom sally
 Out of Possagno church at noon?
 Their house looks over Orcana valley:
 Why should not I be the bride as soon
 As Ottima? For I saw, beside,
 Arrive last night that little bride —
 Saw, if you call it seeing her, one flash
 Of the pale snow-pure cheek and black bright tresses,
 Blacker than all except the black eyelash;
 I wonder she contrives those lids no dresses!
 — So strict was she, the veil
 Should cover close her pale
 Pure cheeks — a bride to look at and scarce touch,
 Scarce touch, remember, Jules! For are not such
 Used to be tended, flower-like, every feature,
 As if one's breath would fray the lily of a creature?
 A soft and easy life these ladies lead:
 Whiteness in us were wonderful indeed.
 Oh, save that brow its virgin dimness,
 Keep that foot its lady primness,
 Let those ankles never swerve
 From their exquisite reserve,
 Yet have to trip along the streets like me,
 All but naked to the knee!
 How will she ever grant her Jules a bliss
 So startling as her real first infant kiss?
 Oh, no — not envy, this!

— Not envy, sure! — for if you gave me
 Leave to take or to refuse,
 In earnest, do you think I'd choose
 That sort of new love to enslave me?
 Mine should have lapped me round from the beginning;

As little fear of losing it as winning :
 Lovers grow cold, men learn to hate their wives,
 And only parents' love can last our lives.
 At eve the Son and Mother, gentle pair,
 Commune inside our turret : what prevents
 My being Luigi? While that mossy lair
 Of lizards through the winter-time is stirred
 With each to each imparting sweet intents
 For this new-year, as brooding bird to bird —
 (For I observe of late, the evening walk
 Of Luigi and his mother, always ends
 Inside our ruined turret, where they talk,
 Calmer than lovers, yet more kind than friends)
 — Let me be cared about, kept out of harm,
 And schemed for, safe in love as with a charm ;
 Let me be Luigi ! If I only knew
 What was my mother's face — my father, too !

Nay, if you come to that, best love of all
 Is God's ; then why not have God's love befall
 Myself as, in the palace by the Dome,
 Monsignor? — who to-night will bless the home
 Of his dead brother ; and God bless in turn
 That heart which beats, those eyes which mildly burn
 With love for all men ! I, to-night at least,
 Would be that holy and beloved priest.

Now wait ! — even I already seem to share
 In God's love : what does New-year's hymn declare ?
 What other meaning do these verses bear ?

*All service ranks the same with God :
 If now, as formerly he trod
 Paradise, his presence fills
 Our earth, each only as God wills
 Can work — God's puppets, best and worst,
 Are we ; there is no last nor first.*

*Say not " a small event ! " Why " small " ?
 Costs it more pain that this, ye call
 A " great event," should come to pass,
 Than that ? Untwine me from the mass
 Of deeds which make up life, one deed
 Power shall fall short in or exceed !*

And more of it, and more of it ! — oh yes —
 I will pass each, and see their happiness,

And envy none — being just as great, no doubt,
 Useful to men, and dear to God, as they !
 A pretty thing to care about
 So mightily, this single holiday !
 But let the sun shine ! Wherefore repine ?
 — With thee to lead me, O Day of mine,
 Down the grass path gray with dew,
 Under the pine-wood, blind with boughs,
 Where the swallow never flew
 Nor yet cicala dared carouse —
 No, dared carouse !

[She enters the street.]

I. MORNING. Up the Hillside, inside the Shrub-house. LUCA'S
 Wife, OTTIMA, and her Paramour, the German SEBALD.

Seb. [sings.] *Let the watching lids wink !
 Day's ablaze with eyes, think !
 Deep into the night, drink !*

Otti. Night ? Such may be your Rhine-land nights, perhaps
 But this blood-red beam through the shutter's chink
 — We call such light, the morning : let us see !
 Mind how you grope your way, though ! How these tall
 Naked geraniums straggle ! Push the lattice
 Behind that frame ! — Nay, do I bid you ? — Sebald,
 It shakes the dust down on me ! Why, of course
 The slide-bolt catches. Well, are you content,
 Or must I find you something else to spoil ?
 Kiss and be friends, my Sebald ! Is 't full morning ?
 Oh, don't speak then !

Seb. Ay, thus it used to be !
 Ever your house was, I remember, shut
 Till mid-day ; I observed that, as I strolled
 On mornings through the vale here ; country girls
 Were noisy, washing garments in the brook,
 Hinds drove the slow white oxen up the hills :
 But no, your house was mute, would ope no eye !
 And wisely : you were plotting one thing there,
 Nature, another outside. I looked up —
 Rough white wood shutters, rusty iron bars,
 Silent as death, blind in a flood of light.
 Oh, I remember ! — and the peasants laughed
 And said, "The old man sleeps with the young wife."
 This house was his, this chair, this window — his.

Otti. Ah, the clear morning ! I can see St. Mark's ;
 That black streak is the belfry. Stop : Vicenza

Should lie . . . there's Padua, plain enough, that blue!
Look o'er my shoulder, follow my finger!

Seb. Morning?

It seems to me a night with a sun added.
Where's dew, where's freshness? That bruised plant, I bruised
In getting through the lattice yestereve,
Droops as it did. See, here's my elbow's mark
I' the dust o' the sill.

Otti. Oh, shut the lattice, pray!

Seb. Let me lean out. I cannot scent blood here,
Foul as the morn may be.

There, shut the world out!

How do you feel now, Ottima? There, curse
The world and all outside! Let us throw off
This mask: how do you bear yourself? Let's out
With all of it!

Otti. Best never speak of it.

Seb. Best speak again and yet again of it,
Till words cease to be more than words. "His blood,"
For instance — let those two words mean, "His blood"
And nothing more. Notice, I'll say them now,
"His blood."

Otti. Assuredly if I repented
The deed —

Seb. Repent? Who should repent, or why?
What puts that in your head? Did I once say
That I repented?

Otti. No; I said the deed . . .

Seb. "The deed" and "the event" — just now it was
"Our passion's fruit" — the devil take such cant!
Say, once and always, Luca was a wittol,
I am his cut-throat, you are . . .

Otti. Here's the wine;
I brought it when we left the house above,
And glasses too — wine of both sorts. Black? White then?

Seb. But am not I his cut-throat? What are you?

Otti. There trudges on his business from the Duomo
Benet the Capuchin, with his brown hood
And bare feet; always in one place at church,
Close under the stone wall by the south entry.
I used to take him for a brown cold piece
Of the wall's self, as out of it he rose
To let me pass — at first, I say, I used:
Now, so has that dumb figure fastened on me,
I rather should account the plastered wall
A piece of him, so chilly does it strike.
This, Sebald?

Seb. No, the white wine — the white wine!
Well, Ottima, I promised no new year
Should rise on us the ancient shameful way;
Nor does it rise. Pour on! To your black eyes!
Do you remember last damned New Year's day?

Otti. You brought those foreign prints. We looked at them
Over the wine and fruit. I had to scheme
To get him from the fire. Nothing but saying
His own set wants the proof-mark, roused him up
To hunt them out.

Seb. 'Faith, he is not alive
To fondle you before my face.

Otti. Do you
Fondle me then! Who means to take your life
For that, my Sebald?

Seb. Hark you, Ottima!
One thing to guard against. We'll not make much
One of the other — that is, not make more
Parade of warmth, childish officious coil,
Than yesterday: as if, sweet, I supposed
Proof upon proof were needed now, now first,
To show I love you — yes, still love you — love you
In spite of Luca and what's come to him
— Sure sign we had him ever in our thoughts,
White sneering old reproachful face and all!
We'll even quarrel, love, at times, as if
We still could lose each other, were not tied
By this: conceive you?

Otti. Love!

Seb. Not tied so sure!
Because though I was wrought upon, have struck
His insolence back into him — am I
So surely yours? — therefore forever yours?

Otti. Love, to be wise, (one counsel pays another,)
Should we have — months ago, when first we loved,
For instance that May morning we two stole
Under the green ascent of sycamores —
If we had come upon a thing like that Suddenly . . .

Seb. "A thing" — there again — "a thing!"

Otti. Then, Venus' body, had we come upon
My husband Luca Gaddi's murdered corpse
Within there, at his couch-foot, covered close —
Would you have pored upon it? Why persist
In poring now upon it? For 't is here
As much as there in the deserted house:
You cannot rid your eyes of it. For me,

Now he is dead I hate him worse : I hate . . .
Dare you stay here ? I would go back and hold
His two dead hands, and say, " I hate you worse, Luca, than " . . .

Seb. Off, off — take your hands off mine,
'T is the hot evening — off ! oh, morning is it ?

Otti. There's one thing must be done ; you know what thing
Come in and help to carry. We may sleep
Anywhere in the whole wide house to-night.

Seb. What would come, think you, if we let him lie
Just as he is ? Let him lie there until
The angels take him ! He is turned by this Off from his face beside, as you will see.

Otti. This dusty pane might serve for looking-glass.
Three, four — four gray hairs ! Is it so you said
A plait of hair should wave across my neck ?
No — this way.

Seb. Ottima, I would give your neck,
Each splendid shoulder, both those breasts of yours,
That this were undone ! Killing ! Kill the world,
So Luca lives again ! — ay, lives to sputter
His fulsome dotage on you — yes, and feign
Surprise that I return at eve to sup,
When all the morning I was loitering here —
Bid me dispatch my business and begone.
I would . . .

Otti. See !

Seb. No, I'll finish. Do you think
I fear to speak the bare truth once for all ?
All we have talked of, is, at bottom, fine
To suffer ; there's a recompense in guilt ;
One must be venturous and fortunate :
What is one young for, else ? In age we'll sigh
O'er the wild reckless wicked days flown over ;
Still, we have lived : the vice was in its place.
But to have eaten Luca's bread, have worn
His clothes, have felt his money swell my purse —
Do lovers in romances sin that way ?
Why, I was starving when I used to call
And teach you music, starving while you plucked me
These flowers to smell !

Otti. My poor lost friend !

Seb. He gave me

Life, nothing less : what if he did reproach
My perfidy, and threaten, and do more —
Had he no right ? What was to wonder at ?

He sat by us at table quietly :

Why must you lean across till our cheeks touched ?
 Could he do less than make pretence to strike ?
 'Tis not the crime's sake — I'd commit ten crimes
 Greater, to have this crime wiped out, undone !
 And you — O how feel you ? Feel you for me ?

Otti. Well then, I love you better now than ever,
 And best (look at me while I speak to you) —
 Best for the crime ; nor do I grieve, in truth,
 This mask, this simulated ignorance,
 This affectation of simplicity,
 Falls off our crime ; this naked crime of ours
 May not now be looked over : look it down !
 Great ? let it be great ; but the joys it brought,
 Pay they or no its price ? Come : they or it !
 Speak not ! The past, would you give up the past
 Such as it is, pleasure and crime together ?
 Give up that noon I owned my love for you ?
 The garden's silence : even the single bee
 Persisting in his toil, suddenly stopped,
 And where he hid you only could surmise
 By some campanula chalice set a-swing.
 Who stammered — “ Yes, I love you ? ”

Seb. And I drew
 Back ; put far back your face with both my hands
 Lest you should grow too full of me — your face
 So seemed athirst for my whole soul and body !

Otti. And when I ventured to receive you here,
 Made you steal hither in the mornings —

Seb. When
 I used to look up 'neath the shrub-house here,
 Till the red fire on its glazed windows spread
 To a yellow haze ?

Otti. Ah — my sign was, the sun
 Inflamed the sere side of yon chestnut-tree
 Nipped by the first frost.

Seb. You would always laugh
 At my wet boots : I had to stride through grass
 Over my ankles.

Otti. Then our crowning night !

Seb. The July night ?

Otti. The day of it too, Sebald !
 When heaven's pillars seemed o'erbowed with heat,
 Its black-blue canopy suffered descend
 Close on us both, to weigh down each to each,
 And smother up all life except our life.
 So lay we till the storm came.

Seb. How it came !

Otti. Buried in woods we lay, you recollect ;
Swift ran the searching tempest overhead ;
And ever and anon some bright white shaft
Burned through the pine-tree roof, here burned and there,
As if God's messenger through the close wood screen
Plunged and replunged his weapon at a venture,
Feeling for guilty thee and me : then broke
The thunder like a whole sea overhead —

Seb. Yes !

Otti. — While I stretched myself upon you, hands
To hands, my mouth to your hot mouth, and shook
All my locks loose, and covered you with them —
You, Sebald, the same you !

Seb. Slower, Ottima !

Otti. And as we lay —

Seb. Less vehemently ! Love me !
Forgive me ! Take not words, mere words, to heart !
Your breath is worse than wine. Breathe slow, speak slow !
Do not lean on me !

Otti. Sebald, as we lay,
Rising and falling only with our pants,
Who said, " Let death come now ! 'T is right to die !
Right to be punished ! Nought completes such bliss
But woe ! " Who said that ?

Seb. How did we ever rise ?
Was't that we slept ? Why did it end ?

Otti. I felt you
Taper into a point the ruffled ends
Of my loose locks 'twixt both your humid lips.
My hair is fallen now : knot it again !

Seb. I kiss you now, dear Ottima, now and now !
This way ? Will you forgive me — be once more
My great queen ?

Otti. Bind it thrice about my brow ;
Crown me your queen, your spirit's arbitress,
Magnificent in sin. Say that !

Seb. I crown you
My great white queen, my spirit's arbitress,
Magnificent . . .

[From without is heard the voice of PIPPA singing —

*The year's at the spring
And day's at the morn ;
Morning's at seven ;
The hillside's dew-pearled ;*

*The lark's on the wing ;
The snail's on the thorn :
God's in his heaven —
All's right with the world !*

[PIPPA passes.

Seb. God's in his heaven ! Do you hear that ? Who spoke ?
You, you spoke !

Otti. Oh — that little ragged girl !
She must have rested on the step : we give them
But this one holiday the whole year round.
Did you ever see our silk-mills — their inside ?
There are ten silk-mills now belong to you.
She stoops to pick my double heartsease . . . Sh !
She does not hear : call you out louder !

Seb. Leave me !
Go, get your clothes on — dress those shoulders !

Otti. Sebald ?

Seb. Wipe off that paint ! I hate you.

Otti. Miserable !

Seb. My God, and she is emptied of it now !
Outright now ! — how miraculously gone
All of the grace — had she not strange grace once ?
Why, the blank cheek hangs listless as it likes,
No purpose holds the features up together,
Only the cloven brow and puckered chin
Stay in their places : and the very hair,
'That seemed to have a sort of life in it,
Drops, a dead web !

Otti. Speak to me — not of me !

Seb. — That round great full-orbed face, where not an angle
Broke the delicious indolence — all broken !

Otti. To me — not of me ! Ungrateful, perjured cheat !
A coward too : but ingrate's worse than all !
Beggar — my slave — a fawning, cringing lie !
Leave me ! Betray me ! I can see your drift !
A lie that walks and eats and drinks !

Seb. My God !
Those morbid olive faultless shoulder-blades —
I should have known there was no blood beneath !

Otti. You hate me then ? You hate me then ?

Seb.

To think

She would succeed in her absurd attempt,
And fascinate by sinning, show herself
Superior — guilt from its excess superior
To innocence ! That little peasant's voice

Has righted all again. Though I be lost,
 I know which is the better, never fear,
 Of vice or virtue, purity or lust,
 Nature or trick! I see what I have done,
 Entirely now! Oh I am proud to feel
 Such torments — let the world take credit thence —
 I, having done my deed, pay too its price!
 I hate, hate — curse you! God's in his heaven!

Otti.

— Me!

Me! no, no, Sebald, not yourself — kill me!
 Mine is the whole crime. Do but kill me — then
 Yourself — then — presently — first hear me speak!
 I always meant to kill myself — wait, you!
 Lean on my breast — not as a breast; don't love me
 The more because you lean on me, my own
 Heart's Sebald! There, there, both deaths presently!

Seb. My brain is drowned now — quite drowned: all I feel
 Is . . . is, at swift-recurring intervals,
 A hurry-down within me, as of waters
 Loosened to smother up some ghastly pit:
 There they go — whirls from a black fiery sea!

Otti. Not me — to him, O God, be merciful!

Talk by the way, while PIPPA is passing from the hillside to Orcana. Foreign Students of Painting and Sculpture, from Venice, assembled opposite the house of JULES, a young French Statuary, at Possagno.

1st Student. Attention! My own post is beneath this window, but the pomegranate clump yonder will hide three or four of you with a little squeezing, and Schramm and his pipe must lie flat in the balcony. Four, five — who's a defaulter? We want everybody, for Jules must not be suffered to hurt his bride when the jest's found out.

2d Stud. All here! Only our poet's away — never having much meant to be present, moonstrike him! The airs of that fellow, that Giovacchino! He was in violent love with himself, and had a fair prospect of thriving in his suit, so unmolested was it, — when suddenly a woman falls in love with him, too; and out of pure jealousy he takes himself off to Trieste, immortal poem and all: whereto is this prophetic epitaph appended already, as Bluphocks assures me, — “Here a mammoth-poem lies, Fouled to death by butterflies.” His own fault, the simpleton! Instead of cramp couplets, each like a knife in your entrails, he should write, says Bluphocks, both classically and intelligibly. — Æsculapius, an Epic. Catalogue of the drugs:

Hebe's plaister — One strip Cools your lip. Phæbus' emulsion — One bottle Clears your throttle. Mercury's bolus — One box Cures . . .

3d Stud. Subside, my fine fellow! If the marriage was over by ten o'clock, Jules will certainly be here in a minute with his bride.

2d Stud. Good! — only, so should the poet's muse have been universally acceptable, says Bluphocks, et canibus nostris . . . and Delia not better known to our literary dogs than the boy Giovacchino!

1st Stud. To the point, now. Where's Gottlieb, the new-comer? Oh, — listen, Gottlieb, to what has called down this piece of friendly vengeance on Jules, of which we now assemble to witness the winding-up. We are all agreed, all in a tale, observe, when Jules shall burst out on us in a fury by and by: I am spokesman — the verses that are to undeceive Jules bear my name of Lutwyche — but each professes himself alike insulted by this strutting stone-squarer, who came alone from Paris to Munich, and thence with a crowd of us to Venice and Possagno here, but proceeds in a day or two alone again — oh, alone indubitably! — to Rome and Florence. He, forsooth, take up his portion with these dissolute, brutalized, heartless bunglers! — so he was heard to call us all. Now, is Schramm brutalized, I should like to know? Am I heartless?

Gott. Why, somewhat heartless; for, suppose Jules a coxcomb as much as you choose, still, for this mere coxcombry, you will have brushed off — what do folks style it? — the bloom of his life. Is it too late to alter? These love-letters now, you call his — I can't laugh at them.

4th Stud. Because you never read the sham letters of our inditing which drew forth these.

Gott. His discovery of the truth will be frightful.

4th Stud. That's the joke. But you should have joined us at the beginning: there's no doubt he loves the girl — loves a model he might hire by the hour!

Gott. See here! "He has been accustomed," he writes, "to have Canova's women about him, in stone, and the world's women beside him, in flesh; these being as much below, as those above, his soul's aspiration: but now he is to have the reality." There you laugh again! I say, you wipe off the very dew of his youth.

1st Stud. Schramm! (Take the pipe out of his mouth, somebody!) Will Jules lose the bloom of his youth?

Schramm. Nothing worth keeping is ever lost in this world: look at a blossom — it drops presently, having done its service and lasted its time; but fruits succeed, and where would be the blossom's place could it continue? As well affirm that your eye is no longer in your body, because its earliest favorite, whatever it may have first loved to look on, is dead and done with — as that any affection is lost to the soul when its first object, whatever happened first to satisfy it, is superseded in due course. Keep but ever looking, whether with the body's eye or the mind's, and you will soon find something to look on! Has a man done wondering at women? — there follow men, dead and alive, to wonder at. Has he done wondering at men? — there's God to wonder at: and the faculty of wonder may be, at the same time, old and tired enough with respect to its first object, and yet young and fresh sufficiently, so far as concerns its novel one. Thus . . .

1st Stud. Put Schramm's pipe into his mouth again! There, you see! Well, this Jules . . . a wretched fribble — oh, I watched his disportings at Possagno, the other day! Canova's gallery — you know: there he marches first resolvedly past great works by the dozen without vouchsafing an eye: all at once he stops full at the Psiche-fanciulla — cannot pass that old acquaintance without a nod of encouragement — “In your new place, beauty? Then behave yourself as well here as at Munich — I see you!” Next he posts himself deliberately before the unfinished Pietà for half an hour without moving, till up he starts of a sudden, and thrusts his very nose into — I say, into — the group; by which gesture you are informed that precisely the sole point he had not fully mastered in Canova's practice was a certain method of using the drill in the articulation of the knee-joint — and that, likewise, has he mastered at length! Good-bye therefore, to poor Canova — whose gallery no longer needs detain his successor Jules, the predestinated novel thinker in marble!

5th Stud. Tell him about the women: go on to the women!

1st Stud. Why, on that matter he could never be supercilious enough. How should we be other (he said) than the poor devils you see, with those debasing habits we cherish? He was not to wallow in that mire, at least: he would wait, and love only at the proper time, and meanwhile put up with the Psiche-fanciulla. Now, I happened to hear of a young Greek — real Greek girl at Malamocco; a true Islander, do you see, with Alciphron's “hair like sea-moss” — Schramm knows! — white and quiet as an apparition, and fourteen years old at farthest, — a daughter of Natalia, so she swears — that hag Natalia, who helps us to models at three lire an hour. We selected this girl for the heroine of our jest. So first, Jules received a scented letter — somebody had seen his Tydeus at the Academy, and my picture was nothing to it: a profound admirer bade him persevere — would make herself known to him ere long. (Paolina, my little friend of the Fenice, transcribes divinely.) And in due time, the mysterious correspondent gave certain hints of her peculiar charms — the pale cheeks, the black hair — whatever, in short, had struck us in our Malamocco model: we retained her name, too — Phene, which is, by interpretation, sea-eagle. Now, think of Jules finding himself distinguished from the herd of us by such a creature! In his very first answer he proposed marrying his monitress: and fancy us over these letters, two, three times a day, to receive and dispatch! I concocted the main of it: relations were in the way — secrecy must be observed — in fine, would he wed her on trust, and only speak to her when they were indissolubly united? St — st — Here they come!

6th Stud. Both of them! Heaven's love, speak softly, speak within yourselves!

5th Stud. Look at the bridegroom! Half his hair in storm and half in calm, — patted down over the left temple, — like a frothy cup one blows on to cool it: and the same old blouse that he murders the marble in.

2d Stud. Not a rich vest like yours, Hannibal Scratchy! — rich, that your face may the better set it off.

6th Stud. And the bride! Yes, sure enough, our Phene! Should you have known her in her clothes? How magnificently pale!

Gott. She does not also take it for earnest, I hope?

1st Stud. Oh, Natalia's concern, that is! We settle with Natalia.

6th Stud. She does not speak — has evidently let out no word. The only thing is, will she equally remember the rest of her lesson, and repeat correctly all those verses which are to break the secret to Jules?

Gott. How he gazes on her! Pity — pity!

1st Stud. They go in: now, silence! You three, — not nearer the window, mind, than that pomegranate: just where the little girl, who a few minutes ago passed us singing, is seated!

II. NOON. Over Orcana. The house of JULES, who crosses its threshold with PHENE: she is silent, on which JULES begins —

Do not die, Phene! I am yours now, you
 Are mine now; let fate reach me how she likes,
 If you'll not die: so, never die! Sit here —
 My work-room's single seat. I over-lean
 This length of hair and lustrous front; they turn

Like an entire flower upward : eyes, lips, last
 Your chin — no, last your throat turns : 't is their scent
 Pulls down my face upon you. Nay, look ever
 This one way till I change; grow you — I could Change into you, beloved !

You by me,
 And I by you ; this is your hand in mine,
 And side by side we sit : all 's true. Thank God !
 I have spoken : speak you !

O my life to come !
 My Tydeus must be carved that 's there in clay ;
 Yet how be carved, with you about the room ?
 Where must I place you ? When I think that once
 This room-full of rough block-work seemed my heaven
 Without you ! Shall I ever work again,
 Get fairly into my old ways again,
 Bid each conception stand while, trait by trait,
 My hand transfers its lineaments to stone ?
 Will my mere fancies live near you, their truth —
 The live truth, passing and repassing me,
 Sitting beside me ?

Now speak !

Only first,
 See, all your letters ! Was 't not well contrived ?
 Their hiding-place is Psyche's robe ; she keeps
 Your letters next her skin : which drops out foremost ?
 Ah, — this that swam down like a first moonbeam
 Into my world !

Again those eyes complete
 Their melancholy survey, sweet and slow,
 Of all my room holds ; to return and rest
 On me, with pity, yet some wonder too :
 As if God bade some spirit plague a world,
 And this were the one moment of surprise
 And sorrow while she took her station, pausing
 O'er what she sees, finds good, and must destroy !
 What gaze you at ? Those ? Books, I told you of ;
 Let your first word to me rejoice them, too :
 This minion, a Coluthus, writ in red,
 Bistre and azure by Bessarion's scribe —
 Read this line . . . no, shame — Homer's be the Greek
 First breathed me from the lips of my Greek girl !
 This Odyssey in coarse black vivid type
 With faded yellow blossoms 'twixt page and page,
 To mark great places with due gratitude ;
 " He said, and on Antinous directed

A bitter shaft” . . . a flower blots out the rest!
 Again upon your search? My statues, then!
 — Ah, do not mind that — better that will look
 When cast in bronze — an Almain Kaiser, that,
 Swart-green and gold, with truncheon based on hip.
 This, rather, turn to! What, unrecognized?
 I thought you would have seen that here you sit
 As I imagined you, — Hippolyta,
 Naked upon her bright Numidian horse.
 Recall you this then? “Carve in bold relief” —
 So you commanded — “carve, against I come,
 A Greek, in Athens, as our fashion was,
 Feasting, bay-filleted and thunder-free,
 Who rises ’neath the lifted myrtle-branch.
 ‘Praise those who slew Hipparchus!’ cry the guests,
 ‘While o’er thy head the singer’s myrtle waves
 As erst above our champion: stand up, all!’”
 See, I have labored to express your thought.
 Quite round, a cluster of mere hands and arms
 (Thrust in all senses, all ways, from all sides,
 Only consenting at the branch’s end
 They strain toward) serves for frame to a sole face,
 The Praiser’s, in the centre: who with eyes
 Sightless, so bend they back to light inside
 His brain where visionary forms throng up,
 Sings, minding not that palpitating arch
 Of hands and arms, nor the quick drip of wine
 From the drenched leaves o’erhead, nor crowns cast off,
 Violet and parsley crowns to trample on —
 Sings, pausing as the patron-ghosts approve,
 Devoutly their unconquerable hymn.
 But you must say a “well” to that — say “well”!
 Because you gaze — am I fantastic, sweet?
 Gaze like my very life’s-stuff, marble — marbly
 Even to the silence! Why, before I found
 The real flesh Phene, I inured myself
 To see, throughout all nature, varied stuff
 For better nature’s birth by means of art:
 With me, each substance tended to one form
 Of beauty — to the human archetype.
 On every side occurred suggestive germs
 Of that — the tree, the flower — or take the fruit, —
 Some rosy shape, continuing the peach,
 Curved beewise o’er its bough; as rosy limbs,
 Depending, nestled in the leaves; and just
 From a cleft rose-peach the whole Dryad sprang.

But of the stuffs one can be master of,
 How I divined their capabilities!
 From the soft-rinded smoothening facile chalk
 That yields your outline to the air's embrace,
 Half-softened by a halo's pearly gloom;
 Down to the crisp imperious steel, so sure
 To cut its one confided thought clean out
 Of all the world. But marble! — 'neath my tools
 More pliable than jelly — as it were
 Some clear primordial creature dug from depths
 In the earth's heart, where itself breeds itself,
 And whence all baser substance may be worked;
 Refine it off to air, you may, — condense it
 Down to the diamond; — is not metal there,
 When o'er the sudden speck my chisel trips?
 — Not flesh, as flake off flake I scale, approach,
 Lay bare those bluish veins of blood asleep?
 Lurks flame in no strange windings where, surprised
 By the swift implement sent home at once,
 Flushes and glowings radiate and hover
 About its track?

Phene? what — why is this?
 That whitening cheek, those still dilating eyes!
 Ah, you will die — I knew that you would die!

PHENE begins, on his having long remained silent.

Now the end's coming; to be sure, it must
 Have ended sometime! Tush, why need I speak
 Their foolish speech? I cannot bring to mind
 One half of it, beside; and do not care
 For old Natalia now, nor any of them.
 Oh, you — what are you? — if I do not try
 To say the words Natalia made me learn,
 To please your friends, — it is to keep myself
 Where your voice lifted me, by letting that Proceed: but can it? Even you, perhaps,
 Cannot take up, now you have once let fall,
 The music's life, and me along with that —
 No, or you would! We'll stay, then, as we are:
 Above the world.

You creature with the eyes!
 If I could look forever up to them,
 As now you let me, — I believe, all sin,
 All memory of wrong done, suffering borne,
 Would drop down, low and lower, to the earth
 Whence all that's low comes, and there touch and stay

— Never to overtake the rest of me,
 All that, unspotted, reaches up to you,
 Drawn by those eyes! What rises is myself,
 Not me the shame and suffering; but they sink,
 Are left, I rise above them. Keep me so,
 Above the world!

But you sink, for your eyes
 Are altering — altered! Stay — “I love you, love” . . .
 I could prevent it if I understood:
 More of your words to me: was’t in the tone
 Or the words, your power?

Or stay — I will repeat
 Their speech, if that contents you! Only change
 No more, and I shall find it presently
 Far back here, in the brain yourself filled up.
 Natalia threatened me that harm should follow
 Unless I spoke their lesson to the end,
 But harm to me, I thought she meant, not you.
 Your friends, — Natalia said they were your friends
 And meant you well, — because, I doubted it,
 Observing (what was very strange to see)
 On every face, so different in all else,
 The same smile girls like me are used to bear,
 But never men, men cannot stoop so low;
 Yet your friends, speaking of you, used that smile,
 That hateful smirk of boundless self-conceit
 Which seems to take possession of the world
 And make of God a tame confederate,
 Purveyor to their appetites . . . you know!
 But still Natalia said they were your friends,
 And they assented though they smiled the more,
 And all came round me, — that thin Englishman
 With light lank hair seemed leader of the rest;
 He held a paper — “What we want,” said he,
 Ending some explanation to his friends —
 “Is something slow, involved and mystical,
 To hold Jules long in doubt, yet take his taste
 And lure him on until, at innermost:
 Where he seeks sweetness’ soul, he may find — this!
 — As in the apple’s core, the noisome fly:
 For insects on the rind are seen at once,
 And brushed aside as soon, but this is found
 Only when on the lips or loathing tongue.”
 And so he read what I have got by heart:
 I’ll speak it, — “Do not die, love! I am yours” . . .
 No — is not that, or like that, part of words

Yourself began by speaking? Strange to lose
 What cost such pains to learn! Is this more right?

*I am a painter who cannot paint ;
 In my life, a devil rather than saint ;
 In my brain, as poor a creature too :
 No end to all I cannot do !
 Yet do one thing at least I can —
 Love a man or hate a man
 Supremely : thus my lore began.
 Through the Valley of Love I went,
 In the loveliest spot to abide,
 And just on the verge where I pitched my tent,
 I found Hate dwelling beside.
 (Let the Bridegroom ask what the painter meant,
 Of his Bride, of the peerless Bride !)
 And further, I traversed Hate's grove,
 In the hatefullest nook to dwell ;
 But lo, where I flung myself prone, couched Love
 Where the shadow threefold fell.
 (The meaning — those black bride's eyes above,
 Not a painter's lip should tell !)*

“And here,” said he, “Jules probably will ask,
 ‘You have black eyes, Love, — you are, sure enough,
 My peerless bride, — then do you tell indeed
 What needs some explanation! What means this?’ ”
 — And I am to go on, without a word —

*So, I grew wise in Love and Hate,
 From simple that I was of late.
 Once, when I loved, I would enlase
 Breast, eyelids, hands, feet, form and face
 Of her I loved, in one embrace —
 As if by mere love I could love immensely !
 Once, when I hated, I would plunge
 My sword, and wipe with the first lunge
 My foe's whole life out like a sponge —
 As if by mere hate I could hate intensely !
 But now I am wiser, know better the fashion
 How passion seeks aid from its opposite passion :
 And if I see cause to love more, hate more
 Than ever man loved, ever hated before —
 And seek in the Valley of Love
 The nest, or the nook in Hate's Grove,
 Where my soul may surely reach*

*The essence, nought less, of each,
 The Hate of all Hates, the Love
 Of all Loves, in the Valley or Grove, —
 I find them the very warders
 Each of the other's borders.
 When I love most, Love is disguised
 In Hate ; and when Hate is surprised
 In Love, then I hate most : ask
 How Love smiles through Hate's iron casque,
 Hate grins through Love's rose-braided mask, —
 And how, having hated thee,
 I sought long and painfully
 To reach thy heart, nor prick
 The skin but pierce to the quick —
 Ask this, my Jules, and be answered straight
 By thy bride — how the painter Lutwyche can hate !*

JULES interposes.

Lutwyche ! Who else ? But all of them, no doubt,
 Hated me : they at Venice — presently
 Their turn, however ! You I shall not meet :
 If I dreamed, saying this would wake me.

Keep

What's here, the gold — we cannot meet again,
 Consider ! and the money was but meant
 For two years' travel, which is over now,
 All chance or hope or care or need of it.
 This — and what comes from selling these, my casts
 And books and medals, except . . . let them go
 Together, so the produce keeps you safe
 Out of Natalia's clutches ! If by chance
 (For all's chance here) I should survive the gang
 At Venice, root out all fifteen of them,
 We might meet somewhere, since the world is wide.

[From without is heard the voice of PIPPA, singing —

*Give her but a least excuse to love me !
 When — where —
 How — can this arm establish her above me,
 If fortune fixed her as my lady there,
 There already, to eternally reprove me ?
 ("Hist !" — said Kate the Queen ;
 But "Oh !" — cried the maiden, binding her tresses,
 "'Tis only a page that carols unseen,
 Crumbling your hounds their messes !")*

*Is she wronged? — To the rescue of her honor,
My heart!
Is she poor? — What costs it to be styled a donor?
Merely an earth to cleave, a sea to part.
But that fortune should have thrust all this upon her!
("Nay, list!" — bade Kate the Queen;
And still cried the maiden, binding her tresses,
" 'Tis only a page that carols unseen,
Fitting your hawks their jesses!")* [PIPPA passes.

JULES resumes.

What name was that the little girl sang forth?
Kate? The Cornaro, doubtless, who renounced
The crown of Cyprus to be lady here
At Asolo, where still her memory stays,
And peasants sing how once a certain page
Pined for the grace of her so far above
His power of doing good to, "Kate the Queen —
She never could be wronged, be poor," he sighed,
"Need him to help her!"

Yes, a bitter thing
To see our lady above all need of us;
Yet so we look ere we will love; not I,
But the world looks so. If whoever loves
Must be, in some sort, god or worshipper,
The blessing or the blest one, queen or page,
Why should we always choose the page's part?
Here is a woman with utter need of me, —
I find myself queen here, it seems!

How strange!

Look at the woman here with the new soul,
Like my own Psyche, — fresh upon her lips
Alit, the visionary butterfly,
Waiting my word to enter and make bright,
Or flutter off and leave all blank as first.
This body had no soul before, but slept
Or stirred, was beauteous or ungainly, free
From taint or foul with stain, as outward things
Fastened their image on its passiveness:
Now, it will wake, feel, live — or die again!
Shall to produce form out of unshaped stuff
Be Art — and further, to evoke a soul
From form be nothing? This new soul is mine!

Now, to kill Lutwyche, what would that do? — save
A wretched dauber, men will hoot to death

Without me, from their hooting. Oh, to hear
 God's voice plain as I heard it first, before
 They broke in with their laughter! I heard them
 Henceforth, not God.

To Ancona — Greece — some isle
 I wanted silence only; there is clay
 Everywhere. One may do whate'er one likes
 In Art: the only thing is, to make sure
 That one does like it — which takes pains to know.
 Scatter all this, my Phene — this mad dream!
 Who, what is Lutwyche, what Natalia's friends,
 What the whole world except our love — my own,
 Own Phene? But I told you, did I not,
 Ere night we travel for your land — some isle
 With the sea's silence on it? Stand aside —
 I do but break these paltry models up
 To begin Art afresh. Meet Lutwyche, I —
 And save him from my statue meeting him?
 Some unsuspected isle in the far seas!
 Like a god going through his world, there stands
 One mountain for a moment in the dusk,
 Whole brotherhoods of cedars on its brow:
 And you are ever by me while I gaze
 — Are in my arms as now — as now — as now!
 Some unsuspected isle in the far seas!
 Some unsuspected isle in far-off seas!

*Talk by the way, while PIPPA is passing from Orcana to the Turret.
 Two or three of the Austrian Police loitering with BLUPHOCKS, an English vagabond, just in view of the Turret.*

*Bluphocks.** So, that is your Pippa, the little girl who passed us singing? Well, your Bishop's Intendant's money shall be honestly earned: — now, don't make me that sour face because I bring the Bishop's name into the business; we know he can have nothing to do with such horrors: we know that he is a saint and all that a bishop should be, who is a great man beside.
Oh were but every worm a maggot, Every fly a grig, Every bough a Christmas fagot, Every tune a jig! In fact, I have abjured all religions; but the last I inclined to was the Ar-
 minian: for I have travelled, do you see, and at Koenigsberg, Prussia Improper (so styled because there's a sort of bleak hungry sun there), you might remark over a venerable house-porch, a certain Chaldee inscription; and brief as it is, a mere glance at it used absolutely to change the mood of every bearded

* "He maketh his sun to rise on the evil and on the good, and sendeth rain on the just and on the unjust."

passenger. In they turned, one and all; the young and light-some, with no irreverent pause, the aged and decrepit, with a sensible alacrity: 't was the Grand Rabbi's abode, in short. Struck with curiosity, I lost no time in learning Syriac — (these are vowels, you dogs, — follow my stick's end in the mud — Celarent, Darii, Ferio!) and one morning presented myself, spelling-book in hand, a, b, c, — I picked it out letter by letter, and what was the purport of this miraculous posy? Some cherished legend of the past, you'll say — "How Moses hocus-pocussed Egypt's land with fly and locust," — or, "How to Jonah sounded harshish, Get thee up and go to Tarshish," — or, "How the angel meeting Balaam, Straight his ass returned a salaam." In no wise! "Shackabrack — Boach — somebody or other — Isaach, Re-cei-ver, Pur-cha-ser and Ex-chan-ger of — Stolen Goods!" So, talk to me of the religion of a bishop! I have renounced all bishops save Bishop Beveridge! — mean to live so — and die — As some Greek dog-sage, dead and merry, Hellward bound in Charon's wherry, With food for both worlds, under and upper, Lupine-seed and Hecate's supper, And never an obolus . . . (Though thanks to you, or this Intendant through you, or this Bishop through his Intendant — I possess a burning pocket-full of zwanzigers) . . . To pay the Stygian Ferry!

1st Pol. There is the girl, then; go and deserve them the moment you have pointed out to us Signor Luigi and his mother. [To the rest.] I have been noticing a house yonder, this long while: not a shutter unclosed since morning!

2d Pol. Old Luca Gaddi's, that owns the silk-mills here: he dozes by the hour, wakes up, sighs deeply, says he should like to be Prince Metternich, and then dozes again, after having bidden young Sebald, the foreigner, set his wife to playing draughts. Never molest such a household, they mean well.

Blup. Only, cannot you tell me something of this little Pippa, I must have to do with? One could make something of that name. Pippa—that is, short for Felippa—rhyming to Panurge consults Hertrippa — Believest thou, King Agrippa? Something might be done with that name.

2d Pol. Put into rhyme that your head and a ripe muskmelon would not be dear at half a zwanziger! Leave this fooling, and look out; the afternoon's over or nearly so.

3d Pol. Where in this passport of Signor Luigi does our Principal instruct you to watch him so narrowly? There? What's there beside a simple signature? (That English fool's busy watching.)

2d Pol. Flourish all round — "Put all possible obstacles in his way;" oblong dot at the end — "Detain him till further advices reach you ;” scratch at bottom — “ Send him back on pretence of some informality in the above ;” ink-spirit on right-hand side (which is the case here) — “ Arrest him at once.” Why and wherefore, I don’t concern myself, but my instructions amount to this : if Signor Luigi leaves home to-night for Vienna — well and good, the passport deposed with us for our visa is really for his own use, they have misinformed the Office, and he means well ; but let him stay over to-night — there has been the pretence we suspect, the accounts of his corresponding and holding intelligence with the Carbonari are correct, we arrest him at once, to-morrow comes Venice, and presently Spielberg. Bluphocks makes the signal, sure enough ! That is he, entering the turret with his mother, no doubt.

III. EVENING. Inside the Turret on the Hill above Asolo. LUIGI and his MOTHER entering.

Mother. If there blew wind, you ’d hear a long sigh, easing
The utmost heaviness of music’s heart.

Luigi. Here in the archway ?

Mother. Oh no, no — in farther,
Where the echo is made, on the ridge.

Luigi. Here surely, then.

How plain the tap of my heel as I leaped up !
Hark — “ Lucius Junius !” The very ghost of a voice
Whose body is caught and kept by . . . what are those ?
Mere withered wallflowers, waving overhead ?
They seem an elvish group with thin bleached hair
That lean out of their topmost fortress — look
And listen, mountain men, to what we say,
Hand under chin of each grave earthy face.
Up and show faces all of you ! — “ All of you !”
That’s the king dwarf with the scarlet comb ; old Franz,
Come down and meet your fate ? Hark — “ Meet your fate !”

Mother. Let him not meet it, my Luigi — do not Go to his City ! Putting crime aside,
Half of these ills of Italy are feigned :
Your Pellicos and writers for effect,
Write for effect.

Luigi. Hush ! Say A writes, and B.

Mother. These A’s and B’s write for effect, I say.
Then, evil is in its nature loud, while good
Is silent ; you hear each petty injury,
None of his virtues ; he is old beside,
Quiet and kind, and densely stupid. Why
Do A and B not kill him themselves ?

Luigi. They teach
Others to kill him — me — and, if I fail,
Others to succeed; now, if A tried and failed,
I could not teach that: mine's the lesser task.
Mother, they visit night by night . . .

Mother. — You, Luigi?
Ah, will you let me tell you what you are?

Luigi. Why not? Oh, the one thing you fear to hint,
You may assure yourself I say and say
Ever to myself! At times — nay, even as now
We sit — I think my mind is touched, suspect
All is not sound: but is not knowing that,
What constitutes one sane or otherwise?
I know I am thus — so, all is right again.
I laugh at myself as through the town I walk,
And see men merry as if no Italy
Were suffering; then I ponder — “I am rich,
Young, healthy; why should this fact trouble me,
More than it troubles these?” But it does trouble.
No, trouble's a bad word: for as I walk
There's springing and melody and giddiness,
And old quaint turns and passages of my youth,
Dreams long forgotten, little in themselves,
Return to me — whatever may amuse me:
And earth seems in a truce with me, and heaven
Accords with me, all things suspend their strife,
The very cicala laughs “There goes he, and there!
Feast him, the time is short; he is on his way
For the world's sake: feast him this once, our friend!”
And in return for all this, I can trip
Cheerfully up the scaffold-steps. I go
This evening, mother!

Mother. But mistrust yourself —
Mistrust the judgment you pronounce on him!

Luigi. Oh, there I feel — am sure that I am right!

Mother. Mistrust your judgment then, of the mere means
To this wild enterprise: say, you are right, —
How should one in your state e'er bring to pass
What would require a cool head, a cold heart,
And a calm hand? You never will escape.

Luigi. Escape? To even wish that, would spoil all.
The dying is best part of it. Too much
Have I enjoyed these fifteen years of mine,
To leave myself excuse for longer life:
Was not life pressed down, running o'er with joy,
That I might finish with it ere my fellows

Who, sparelier feasted, make a longer stay?
 I was put at the board-head, helped to all
 At first; I rise up happy and content.
 God must be glad one loves his world so much.
 I can give news of earth to all the dead
 Who ask me: — last year's sunsets, and great stars
 Which had a right to come first and see ebb
 The crimson wave that drifts the sun away —
 Those crescent moons with notched and burning rims
 That strengthened into sharp fire, and there stood,
 Impatient of the azure — and that day
 In March, a double rainbow stopped the storm —
 May's warm slow yellow moonlit summer nights —
 Gone are they, but I have them in my soul!

Mother. (He will not go!)

Luigi.

You smile at me? 'Tis true, —

Voluptuousness, grotesqueness, ghastliness,
 Environ my devotedness as quaintly
 As round about some antique altar wreath
 The rose festoons, goats' horns, and oxen's skulls.

Mother. See now: you reach the city, you must cross
 His threshold — how?

Luigi.

Oh, that's if we conspired!

Then would come pains in plenty, as you guess —
 But guess not how the qualities most fit
 For such an office, qualities I have,
 Would little stead me, otherwise employed,
 Yet prove of rarest merit only here.
 Every one knows for what his excellence
 Will serve, but no one ever will consider
 For what his worst defect might serve: and yet
 Have you not seen me range our coppice yonder
 In search of a distorted ash? — I find
 The wry spoilt branch a natural perfect bow.
 Fancy the thrice-sage, thrice-precautioned man
 Arriving at the palace on my errand!
 No, no! I have a handsome dress packed up —
 White satin here, to set off my black hair;
 In I shall march — for you may watch your life out
 Behind thick walls, make friends there to betray you;
 More than one man spoils everything. March straight —
 Only, no clumsy knife to fumble for,
 Take the great gate, and walk (not saunter) on
 Through guards and guards — I have rehearsed it all
 Inside the turret here a hundred times.
 Don't ask the way of whom you meet, observe!

But where they cluster thickest is the door
 Of doors ; they 'll let you pass — they 'll never blab
 Each to the other, he knows not the favorite,
 Whence he is bound and what 's his business now.
 Walk in — straight up to him ; you have no knife :
 Be prompt, how should he scream ? Then, out with you !
 Italy, Italy, my Italy !
 You 're free, you 're free ! Oh mother, I could dream
 They got about me — Andrea from his exile,
 Pier from his dungeon, Gualtier from his grave !

Mother. Well, you shall go. Yet seems this patriotism
 The easiest virtue for a selfish man
 To acquire : he loves himself — and next, the world —
 If he must love beyond, — but nought between :
 As a short-sighted man sees nought midway
 His body and the sun above. But you
 Are my adored Luigi, ever obedient
 To my least wish, and running o'er with love :
 I could not call you cruel or unkind.
 Once more, your ground for killing him ! — then go !

Luigi. Now do you try me, or make sport of me ?
 How first the Austrians got these provinces . . .
 (If that is all, I 'll satisfy you soon)
 — Never by conquest but by cunning, for
 That treaty whereby . . .

Mother. Well ?

Luigi. (Sure, he 's arrived,
 The tell-tale cuckoo : spring 's his confidant,
 And he lets out her April purposes !)
 Or . . . better go at once to modern time.
 He has . . . they have . . . in fact, I understand
 But can't restate the matter ; that 's my boast :
 Others could reason it out to you, and prove
 Things they have made me feel.

Mother. Why go to-night ?
 Morn 's for adventure. Jupiter is now
 A morning-star. I cannot hear you, Luigi !

Luigi. "I am the bright and morning-star," saith God —
 And, "to such an one I give the morning-star."
 The gift of the morning-star ! Have I God's gift
 Of the morning-star ?

Mother. Chiara will love to see
 That Jupiter an evening-star next June.

Luigi. True, mother. Well for those who live through June !
 Great noontides, thunder-storms, all glaring pomps
 That triumph at the heels of June the god

Leading his revel through our leafy world.
Yes, Chiara will be here.

Mother. In June : remember,
Yourself appointed that month for her coming.

Luigi. Was that low noise the echo ?

Mother. The night-wind.
She must be grown — with her blue eyes upturned
As if life were one long and sweet surprise :
In June she comes.

Luigi. We were to see together
The Titian at Treviso. There, again !

[From without is heard the voice of PIPPA, singing —

*A king lived long ago,
In the morning of the world,
When earth was nigher heaven than now ;
And the king's locks curled,
Disparting o'er a forehead full
As the milk-white space 'twixt horn and horn
Of some sacrificial bull —
Only calm as a babe new-born :
For he was got to a sleepy mood,
So safe from all decrepitude,
Age with its bane, so sure gone by,
(The gods so loved him while he dreamed)
That, having lived thus long, there seemed
No need the king should ever die.*

Luigi. No need that sort of king should ever die !
*Among the rocks his city was :
Before his palace, in the sun,
He sat to see his people pass,
And judge them every one
From its threshold of smooth stone.
They haled him many a valley-thief
Caught in the sheep-pens, robber-chief
Swarthy and shameless, beggar-cheat,
Spy-prowler, or rough pirate found
On the sea-sand left aground ;
And sometimes clung about his feet,
With bleeding lip and burning cheek,
A woman, bitterest wrong to speak
Of one with sullen thickset brows :
And sometimes from the prison-house
The angry priests a pale wretch brought,
Who through some chink had pushed and pressed
On knees and elbows, belly and breast,*

*Worm-like into the temple, — caught
 He was by the very god,
 Who ever in the darkness strode
 Backward and forward, keeping watch
 O'er his brazen bowls, such rogues to catch!
 These, all and every one,
 The king judged, sitting in the sun.*

Luigi. That king should still judge sitting in the sun!

*His councillors, on left and right,
 Looked anxious up, — but no surprise
 Disturbed the king's old smiling eyes
 Where the very blue had turned to white.
 'T is said, a Python scared one day
 The breathless city, till he came,
 With forky tongue and eyes on flame,
 Where the old king sat to judge alway;
 But when he saw the sweepy hair
 Girt with a crown of berries rare
 Which the god will hardly give to wear
 To the maiden who singeth, dancing bare
 In the altar-smoke by the pine-torch lights,
 At his wondrous forest rites, —
 Seeing this, he did not dare
 Approach that threshold in the sun,
 Assault the old king smiling there.
 Such grace had kings when the world begun!*

[PIPPA passes.

Luigi. And such grace have they, now that the world ends!
 The Python at the city, on the throne,
 And brave men, God would crown for slaying him,
 Lurk in by-corners lest they fall his prey.
 Are crowns yet to be won in this late time,
 Which weakness makes me hesitate to reach?
 'T is God's voice calls: how could I stay? Farewell!

Talk by the way, while PIPPA is passing from the Turret to the Bishop's Brother's House, close to the Duomo S. Maria. Poor Girls sitting on the steps.

1st Girl. There goes a swallow to Venice — the stout seafarer!
 Seeing those birds fly, makes one wish for wings.
 Let us all wish; you, wish first!

2d Girl. I? This sunset
 To finish.

3d Girl. That old — somebody I know,
 Grayer and older than my grandfather,

To give me the same treat he gave last week —
 Feeding me on his knee with fig-peckers,
 Lampreys and red Broganze-wine, and mumbling
 The while some folly about how well I fare,
 Let sit and eat my supper quietly :
 Since had he not himself been late this morning
 Detained at — never mind where, — had he not . . .
 “Eh, baggage, had I not !” —

2d Girl. How she can lie !

3d Girl. Look there — by the nails !

2d Girl. What makes your fingers red ?

3d Girl. Dipping them into wine to write bad words with
 On the bright table : how he laughed !

1st Girl. My turn.

Spring 's come and summer 's coming. I would wear
 A long loose gown, down to the feet and hands,
 With plaits here, close about the throat, all day ;
 And all night lie, the cool long nights, in bed ;
 And have new milk to drink, apples to eat,
 Deuzans and junetings, leather-coats . . . ah, I should say,
 This is away in the fields — miles !

3d Girl. Say at once

You 'd be at home : she 'd always be at home !
 Now comes the story of the farm among
 The cherry orchards, and how April snowed
 White blossoms on her as she ran. Why, fool,
 They 've rubbed the chalk-mark out, how tall you were,
 Twisted your starling's neck, broken his cage,
 Made a dung-hill of your garden !

1st Girl. They destroy

My garden since I left them ? well — perhaps
 I would have done so : so I hope they have !
 A fig-tree curled out of our cottage wall ;
 They called it mine, I have forgotten why,
 It must have been there long ere I was born :
Cric — cric — I think I hear the wasps o'erhead
 Pricking the papers strung to flutter there
 And keep off birds in fruit-time — coarse long papers,
 And the wasps eat them, prick them through and through.

3d Girl. How her mouth twitches ! Where was I ? — before
 She broke in with her wishes and long gowns
 And wasps — would I be such a fool ! — Oh, here !
 This is my way : I answer every one
 Who asks me why I make so much of him —
 (If you say, “you love him” — straight “he'll not be gulled !”)

“ He that seduced me when I was a girl
 Thus high — had eyes like yours, or hair like yours,
 Brown, red, white,” — as the case may be : that pleases !
 See how that beetle burnishes in the path !
 There sparkles he along the dust : and, there —
 Your journey to that maize-tuft spoiled at least !

1st Girl. When I was young, they said if you killed one
 Of those sunshiny beetles, that his friend
 Up there, would shine no more that day nor next.

2d Girl. When you were young ? Nor are you young, that's true.

How your plump arms, that were, have dropped away !
 Why, I can span them. Cecco beats you still ?
 No matter, so you keep your curious hair.
 I wish they'd find a way to dye our hair
 Your color — any lighter tint, indeed,
 Than black: the men say they are sick of black,
 Black eyes, black hair !

4th Girl. Sick of yours, like enough.

Do you pretend you ever tasted lampreys
 And ortolans ? Giovita, of the palace,
 Engaged (but there's no trusting him) to slice me
 Polenta with a knife that had cut up
 An ortolan.

2d Girl. Why, there ! Is not that Pippa
 We are to talk to, under the window, — quick ! —
 Where the lights are ?

1st Girl. That she ? No, or she would sing,
 For the Intendant said . . .

3d Girl. Oh, you sing first !
 Then, if she listens and comes close . . . I'll tell you, —
 Sing that song the young English noble made,
 Who took you for the purest of the pure,
 And meant to leave the world for you — what fun !

2d Girl. [sings.]

*You'll love me yet ! — and I can tarry
 Your love's protracted growing :
 June reared that bunch of flowers you carry,
 From seeds of April's sowing.*

*I plant a heartfull now : some seed
 At least is sure to strike,
 And yield — what you'll not pluck indeed,
 Not love, but, may be, like.*

*You'll look at least on love's remains,
A grave's one violet:
Your look? — that pays a thousand pains.
What's death? You'll love me yet!*

3d Girl. [to PIPPA who approaches.] Oh you may come closer — we shall not eat you! Why, you seem the very person that the great rich handsome Englishman has fallen so violently in love with. I'll tell you all about it.

IV. NIGHT. Inside the Palace by the Duomo. MONSIGNOR, dismissing his Attendants.

Mon. Thanks, friends, many thanks! I chiefly desire life now, that I may recompense every one of you. Most I know something of already. What, a repast prepared? Benedictio benedicatur . . . ugh, ugh! Where was I? Oh, as you were remarking, Ugo, the weather is mild, very unlike winter-weather: but I am a Sicilian, you know, and shiver in your Julys here. To be sure, when 't was full summer at Messina, as we priests used to cross in procession the great square on Assumption Day, you might see our thickest yellow tapers twist suddenly in two, each like a falling star, or sink down on themselves in a gore of wax. But go, my friends, but go! [To the Intendant.] Not you, Ugo! [The others leave the apartment.] I have long wanted to converse with you, Ugo.

Inten. Uguccio —

Mon. . . . 'guccio Stefani, man! of Ascoli, Fermo and Fossombruno; — what I do need instructing about, are these accounts of your administration of my poor brother's affairs. Ugh! I shall never get through a third part of your accounts: take some of these dainties before we attempt it, however. Are you bashful to that degree? For me, a crust and water suffice.

Inten. Do you choose this especial night to question me?

Mon. This night, Ugo. You have managed my late brother's affairs since the death of our elder brother: fourteen years and a month, all but three days. On the Third of December, I find him . . .

Inten. If you have so intimate an acquaintance with your brother's affairs, you will be tender of turning so far back: they will hardly bear looking into, so far back.

Mon. Ay, ay, ugh, ugh, — nothing but disappointments here below! I remark a considerable payment made to yourself on this Third of December. Talk of disappointments! There was a young fellow here, Jules, a foreign sculptor I did my utmost to advance, that the Church might be a gainer by us both: he was going on hopefully enough, and of a sudden he notifies to me some marvellous change that has happened in his notions of Art. Here's his letter, — "He never had a clearly conceived Ideal within his brain till to-day. Yet since his hand could manage a chisel, he has practised expressing other men's Ideals; and, in the very perfection he has attained to, he foresees an ultimate failure: his unconscious hand will pursue its prescribed course of old years, and will reproduce with a fatal expertness the ancient types, let the novel one appear never so palpably to his spirit. There is but one method of escape: confiding the virgin type to as chaste a hand, he will turn painter instead of sculptor, and paint, not carve, its characteristics," — strike out, I dare say, a school like Correggio: how think you, Ugo?

Inten. Is Correggio a painter?

Mon. Foolish Jules! and yet, after all, why foolish? He may — probably will, fail egregiously; but if there should arise a new painter, will it not be in some such way, by a poet now, or a musician, (spirits who have conceived and perfected an Ideal through some other channel) transferring it to this, and escaping our conventional roads by pure ignorance of them; eh, Ugo? If you have no appetite, talk at least, Ugo!

Inten. Sir, I can submit no longer to this course of yours. First, you select the group of which I formed one, — next you thin it gradually, — always retaining me with your smile, — and so do you proceed till you have fairly got me alone with you between four stone walls. And now then? Let this farce, this chatter end now: what is it you want with me?

Mon. Ugo!

Inten. From the instant you arrived, I felt your smile on me as you questioned me about this and the other article in those papers — why your brother should have given me this villa, that podere, — and your nod at the end meant, — what?

Mon. Possibly that I wished for no loud talk here. If once you set me coughing, Ugo! —

Inten. I have your brother's hand and seal to all I possess: now ask me what for! what service I did him — ask me!

Mon. I would better not: I should rip up old disgraces, let out my poor brother's weaknesses. By the way, Maffeo of Forli, (which, I forgot to observe, is your true name,) was the interdict ever taken off you for robbing that church at Cesena?

Inten. No, nor needs be: for when I murdered your brother's friend, Pasquale, for him . . .

Mon. Ah, he employed you in that business, did he? Well, I must let you keep, as you say, this villa and that podere, for fear the world should find out my relations were of so indifferent a stamp? Maffeo, my family is the oldest in Messina, and century after century have my progenitors gone on polluting themselves with every wickedness under heaven: my own father . . . rest his soul! — I have, I know, a chapel to support that it may rest: my dear two dead brothers were, — what you know tolerably well; I, the youngest, might have rivalled them in vice, if not in wealth: but from my boyhood I came out from among them, and so am not partaker of their plagues. My glory springs from another source; or if from this, by contrast only, — for I, the bishop, am the brother of your employers, Ugo. I hope to repair some of their wrong, however; so far as my brother's ill-gotten treasure reverts to me, I can stop the consequences of his crime: and not one soldo shall escape me. Maffeo, the sword we quiet men spurn away, you shrewd knaves pick up and commit murders with; what opportunities the virtuous forego, the villanous seize. Because, to pleasure myself apart from other considerations, my food would be millet-cake, my dress sackcloth, and my couch straw, — am I therefore to let you, the off-scouring of the earth, seduce the poor and ignorant by appropriating a pomp these will be sure to think lessens the abominations so unaccountably and exclusively associated with it? Must I let villas and poderi go to you, a murderer and thief, that you may beget by means of them other murderers and thieves? No — if my cough would but allow me to speak!

Inten. What am I to expect? You are going to punish me?

Mon. — Must punish you, Maffeo. I cannot afford to cast away a chance. I have whole centuries of sin to redeem, and only a month or two of life to do it in. How should I dare to say . . .

Inten. “Forgive us our trespasses”?

Mon. My friend, it is because I avow myself a very worm, sinful beyond measure, that I reject a line of conduct you would applaud perhaps. Shall I proceed, as it were, a-pardoning? — I? — who have no symptom of reason to assume that aught less than my strenuousest efforts will keep myself out of mortal sin, much less keep others out. No: I do trespass, but will not double that by allowing you to trespass.

Inten. And suppose the villas are not your brother's to give, nor yours to take? Oh, you are hasty enough just now!

Mon. 1, 2 — N° 3! — ay, can you read the substance of a letter, N° 3, I have received from Rome? It is precisely on the ground there mentioned, of the suspicion I have that a certain child of my late elder brother, who would have succeeded to his estates, was murdered in infancy by you, Maffeo, at the instigation of my late younger brother — that the Pontiff enjoins on me not merely the bringing that Maffeo to condign punish ment, but the taking all pains, as guardian of the infant's heritage for the Church, to recover it parcel by parcel, howsoever, whensoever, and wheresoever. While you are now gnawing those fingers, the police are engaged in sealing up your papers, Maffeo, and the mere raising my voice brings my people from the next room to dispose of yourself. But I want you to confess quietly, and save me raising my voice. Why, man, do I not know the old story? The heir between the succeeding heir, and this heir's ruffianly instrument, and their complot's effect, and the life of fear and bribes and ominous smiling silence? Did you throttle or stab my brother's infant? Come now!

Inten. So old a story, and tell it no better? When did such an instrument ever produce such an effect? Either the child smiles in his face; or, most likely, he is not fool enough to put himself in the employer's power so thoroughly: the child is always ready to produce — as you say — howsoever, wheresoever and whensoever.

Mon. Liar!

Inten. Strike me? Ah, so might a father chastise! I shall sleep soundly to-night at least, though the gallows await me to-morrow; for what a life did I lead! Carlo of Cesena reminds me of his connivance, every time I pay his annuity; which happens commonly thrice a year. If I remonstrate, he will confess all to the good bishop — you!

Mon. I see through the trick, caitiff! I would you spoke truth for once. All shall be sifted, however—seven times sifted.

Inten. And how my absurd riches encumbered me! I dared not lay claim to above half my possessions. Let me but once unbosom myself, glorify Heaven, and die!

Sir, you are no brutal dastardly idiot like your brother I frightened to death: let us understand one another. Sir, I will make away with her for you — the girl — here close at hand; not the stupid obvious kind of killing; do not speak — know nothing of her nor of me! I see her every day — saw her this morning: of course there is to be no killing; but at Rome the courtesans perish off every three years, and I can entice her thither — have indeed begun operations already. There's a certain lusty blue-eyed florid-complexioned English knave, I and the Police employ occasionally. You assent, I perceive — no, that's not it — assent I do not say — but you will let me convert my present havings and holdings into cash, and give me time to cross the Alps? 'Tis but a little black-eyed pretty singing Felippa, gay silk-winding girl. I have kept her out of harm's way up to this present; for I always intended to make your life a plague to you with her. 'Tis as well settled once and forever. Some women I have procured will pass Blu-phocks, my handsome scoundrel, off for somebody; and once Pippa entangled! — you conceive? Through her singing? Is it a bargain?

[From without is heard the voice of PIPPA, singing —
*Overhead the tree-tops meet,
 Flowers and grass spring 'neath one's feet;
 There was nought above me, nought below,
 My childhood had not learned to know:
 For, what are the voices of birds
 — Ay, and of beasts, — but words, our words,
 Only so much more sweet?
 The knowledge of that with my life begun.
 But I had so near made out the sun,
 And counted your stars, the seven and one,
 Like the fingers of my hand:
 Nay, I could all but understand
 Wherefore through heaven the white moon ranges;
 And just when out of her soft fifty changes
 No unfamiliar face might overlook me —
 Suddenly God took me.*

[PIPPA passes.

Mon. [springing up.] My people — one and all — all — within there! Gag this villain — tie him hand and foot! He dares . . . I know not half he dares — but remove him — quick! Miserere mei, Domine! Quick, I say!

PIPPA'S Chamber again. She enters it.

The bee with his comb,
 The mouse at her dray,
 The grub in his tomb,
 While winter away;
 But the fire-fly and hedge-shrew and lob-worm, I pray,
 How fare they?
 Ha, ha, thanks for your counsel, my Zanze!
 “Feast upon lampreys, quaff Breganze” —
 The summer of life so easy to spend,
 And care for to-morrow so soon put away!
 But winter hastens at summer's end,
 And fire-fly, hedge-shrew, lob-worm, pray,
 How fare they?
 No bidding me then to . . . what did Zanze say?
 “Pare your nails pearlwise, get your small feet shoes
 More like” . . . (what said she?) — “and less like canoes!”
 How pert that girl was! — would I be those pert

Impudent staring women! It had done me,
 However, surely no such mighty hurt
 To learn his name who passed that jest upon me:
 No foreigner, that I can recollect,
 Came, as she says, a month since, to inspect
 Our silk-mills — none with blue eyes and thick rings
 Of raw-silk-colored hair, at all events.
 Well, if old Luca keep his good intents,
 We shall do better, see what next year brings!
 I may buy shoes, my Zanze, not appear
 More destitute than you perhaps next year!
 Bluph . . . something! I had caught the uncouth name
 But for Monsignor's people's sudden clatter
 Above us — bound to spoil such idle chatter
 As ours: it were indeed a serious matter
 If silly talk like ours should put to shame
 The pious man, the man devoid of blame,
 The . . . ah but — ah but, all the same,
 No mere mortal has a right
 To carry that exalted air;
 Best people are not angels quite:
 While — not the worst of people's doings scare
 The devil; so there's that proud look to spare!
 Which is mere counsel to myself, mind! for
 I have just been the holy Monsignor:
 And I was you too, Luigi's gentle mother,
 And you too, Luigi! — how that Luigi started
 Out of the turret — doubtlessly departed
 On some good errand or another,
 For he passed just now in a traveller's trim,
 And the sullen company that prowled
 About his path, I noticed, scowled
 As if they had lost a prey in him.
 And I was Jules the sculptor's bride,
 And I was Ottima beside,
 And now what am I? — tired of fooling.
 Day for folly, night for schooling!
 New year's day is over and spent,
 Ill or well, I must be content.
 Even my lily's asleep, I vow:
 Wake up — here's a friend I've plucked you
 Call this flower a heart's-ease now!
 Something rare, let me instruct you,
 Is this, with petals triply swollen,
 Three times spotted, thrice the pollen;
 While the leaves and parts that witness

Old proportions and their fitness,
 Here remain unchanged, unmoved now ;
 Call this pampered thing improved now !
 Suppose there 's a king of the flowers
 And a girl-show held in his bowers —
 "Look ye, buds, this growth of ours,"
 Says he, "Zanze from the Brenta,
 I have made her gorge polenta
 Till both cheeks are near as bouncing
 As her . . . name there 's no pronouncing !
 See this heightened color too,
 For she swilled Breganze wine
 Till her nose turned deep carmine ;
 'T was but white when wild she grew.
 And only by this Zanze's eyes
 Of which we could not change the size,
 The magnitude of all achieved
 Otherwise, may be perceived."

Oh what a drear dark close to my poor day !
 How could that red sun drop in that black cloud ?
 Ah Pippa, morning's rule is moved away,
 Dispensed with, never more to be allowed !
 Day's turn is over, now arrives the night's.
 Oh lark, be day's apostle
 To mavis, merle and throstle,
 Bid them their betters jostle
 From day and its delights !
 But at night, brother howlet, over the woods,
 Toll the world to thy chantry ;
 Sing to the bats' sleek sisterhoods
 Full complines with gallantry :
 Then, owls and bats,
 Cows and twats,
 Monks and nuns, in a cloister's moods,
 Adjourn to the oak-stump pantry !

[After she has begun to undress herself.

Now, one thing I should like to really know :
 How near I ever might approach all these
 I only fancied being, this long day :
 — Approach, I mean, so as to touch them, so
 As to . . . in some way . . . move them — if you please,
 Do good or evil to them some slight way.
 For instance, if I wind
 Silk to-morrow, my silk may bind

[Sitting on the bedside

And border Ottima's cloak's hem.
Ah me, and my important part with them,
This morning's hymn half promised when I rose !
True in some sense or other, I suppose.

[As she lies down.

God bless me ! I can pray no more to-night.
No doubt, some way or other, hymns say right.

*All service ranks the same with God —
With God, whose puppets, best and worst,
Are we ; there is no last nor first.*

[She sleeps.

KING VICTOR AND KING CHARLES

A TRAGEDY

So far as I know, this tragedy is the first artistic consequence of what Voltaire termed "a terrible event without consequences;" and although it professes to be historical, I have taken more pains to arrive at the history than most readers would thank me for particularizing: since acquainted, as I will hope them to be, with the chief circumstances of Victor's remarkable European career — nor quite ignorant of the sad and surprising facts I am about to reproduce (a tolerable account of which is to be found, for instance, in Abbé Roman's Récit, or even the fifth of Lord Orrery's Letters from Italy) — I cannot expect them to be versed, nor desirous of becoming so, in all the detail of the memoirs, correspondence, and relations of the time. From these only may be obtained a knowledge of the fiery and audacious temper, unscrupulous selfishness, profound dissimulation, and singular fertility in resources, of Victor — the extreme and painful sensibility, prolonged immaturity of powers, earnest good purpose and vacillating will of Charles — the noble and right woman's manliness of his wife — and the ill-considered rascality and subsequent better-advised rectitude of D'Ormea. When I say, therefore, that I cannot but believe my statement (combining as it does what appears correct in Voltaire and plausible in Condorcet) more true to person and thing than any it has hitherto been my fortune to meet with, no doubt my word will be taken, and my evidence spared as readily.

R. B.

LONDON, 1842.

PERSONS.

VICTOR AMADEUS, First King of Sardinia.

CHARLES EMMANUEL, his Son, Prince of Piedmont.

D'ORMEA, Minister.

TIME, 1730-1.

FIRST YEAR, 1730. — KING VICTOR.

PART I.

CHARLES, POLYXENA.

Cha. You think so? Well, I do not.

Pol.

My beloved,

All must clear up; we shall be happy yet:

This cannot last forever — oh, may change

To-day or any day!

Cha. — May change? Ah yes —
May change!

Pol. Endure it, then.

Cha. No doubt, a life
Like this drags on, now better and now worse.
My father may . . . may take to loving me ;
And he may take D'Ormea closer yet
To counsel him ; — may even cast off her
— That bad Sebastian ; but he also may
. . . Or no, Polyxena, my only friend,
He may not force you from me ?

Pol. Now, force me
From you ! — me, close by you as if there gloomed
No Sebastians, no D'Ormeas on our path —
At Rivoli or Turin, still at hand,
Arch-counsellor, prime confidant . . . force me !

Cha. Because I felt as sure, as I feel sure
We clasp hands now, of being happy once.
Young was I, quite neglected, nor concerned
By the world's business that engrossed so much
My father and my brother : if I peered
From out my privacy, — amid the crash
And blaze of nations, domineered those two.
'T was war, peace — France our foe, now — England, friend —
In love with Spain — at feud with Austria ! Well —
I wondered, laughed a moment's laugh for pride
In the chivalrous couple, then let drop
My curtain — " I am out of it," I said —
When . . .

Pol. . . . You have told me, Charles.

Cha. Polyxena —

When suddenly, — a warm March day, just that !
Just so much sunshine as the cottager child
Basks in delighted, while the cottager
Takes off his bonnet, as he ceases work,
To catch the more of it — and it must fall
Heavily on my brother ! Had you seen
Philip — the lion-featured ! not like me !

Pol. I know —

Cha. And Philip's mouth yet fast to mine,
His dead cheek on my cheek, his arm still round
My neck, — they bade me rise, " for I was heir
To the Duke," they said, " the right hand of the Duke : "
Till then he was my father, not the Duke.
So . . . let me finish . . . the whole intricate
World's-business their dead boy was born to, I

Must conquer, — ay, the brilliant thing he was,
 I, of a sudden must be: my faults, my follies,
 — All bitter truths were told me, all at once,
 To end the sooner. What I simply styled
 Their overlooking me, had been contempt:
 How should the Duke employ himself, forsooth,
 With such an one, while lordly Philip rode
 By him their Turin through? But he was punished,
 And must put up with — me! 'T was sad enough
 To learn my future portion and submit.
 And then the wear and worry, blame on blame!
 For, spring-sounds in my ears, spring-smells about,
 How could I but grow dizzy in their pent
 Dim palace-rooms at first? My mother's look
 As they discussed my insignificance,
 She and my father, and I sitting by, —
 I bore; I knew how brave a son they missed;
 Philip had gayly run state-papers through,
 While Charles was spelling at them painfully!
 But Victor was my father spite of that.
 "Duke Victor's entire life has been," I said,
 "Innumerable efforts to one end;
 And on the point now of that end's success,
 Our Ducal turning to a Kingly crown,
 Where 's time to be reminded 't is his child
 He spurns?" And so I suffered — scarcely suffered,
 Since I had you at length!

Pol. To serve in place

Of monarch, minister and mistress, Charles!

Cha. But, once that crown obtained, then was 't not like

Our lot would alter? "When he rests, takes breath,

Glances around, sees who there 's left to love —

Now that my mother 's dead, sees I am left —

Is it not like he 'll love me at the last?"

Well, Savoy turns Sardinia; the Duke 's King:

Could I — precisely then — could you expect

His harshness to redouble? These few months

Have been . . . have been . . . Polyxena, do you

And God conduct me, or I lose myself!

What would he have? What is 't they want with me?

Him with this mistress and this minister,

— You see me and you hear him; judge us both!

Pronounce what I should do, Polyxena!

Pol. Endure, endure, beloved! Say you not

He is your father? All 's so incident

To novel sway! Beside, our life must change:

Or you 'll acquire his kingcraft, or he 'll find
Harshness a sorry way of teaching it.
I bear this — not that there 's so much to bear.

Cha. You bear? Do not I know that you, though bound
To silence for my sake, are perishing
Piecemeal beside me? And how otherwise
When every creephole from the hideous Court
Is stopped; the Minister to dog me, here —
The Mistress posted to entrap you, there!
And thus shall we grow old in such a life;
Not careless, never estranged, — but old: to alter
Our life, there is so much to alter!

Pol. Come —

Is it agreed that we forego complaint
Even at Turin, yet complain we here
At Rivoli? 'T were wiser you announced
Our presence to the King. What 's now afoot
I wonder? Not that any more 's to dread
Than every day's embarrassment: but guess
For me, why train so fast succeeded train
On the high-road, each gayer still than each!
I noticed your Archbishop's pursuivant,
The sable cloak and silver cross; such pomp
Bodes . . . what now, Charles? Can you conceive?

Cha. Not I

Pol. A matter of some moment —

Cha. There 's our life!

Which of the group of loiterers that stare
From the lime-avenue, divines that I —
About to figure presently, he thinks,
In face of all assembled — am the one
Who knows precisely least about it?

Pol. Tush!

D'Ormea's contrivance!

Cha. Ay, how otherwise
Should the young Prince serve for the old King's foil?

— So that the simplest courtier may remark

'T were idle raising parties for a Prince

Content to linger the court's laughing-stock.

Something, 't is like, about that weary business

[Pointing to papers he has laid down, and which POLYXENA examines

— Not that I comprehend three words, of course,

After all last night's study.

Pol. The faint heart!

Why, as we rode and you rehearsed just now

Its substance . . . (that 's the folded speech I mean, Concerning the Reduction of the Fiefs)

— What would you have? — I fancied while you spoke,
Some tones were just your father's.

Cha. Flattery!

Pol. I fancied so: — and here lurks, sure enough,
My note upon the Spanish Claims! You've mastered
The fief-speech thoroughly: this other, mind,
Is an opinion you deliver, — stay,
Best read it slowly over once to me;
Read — there's bare time; you read it firmly — loud
— Rather loud, looking in his face, — don't sink
Your eye once — ay, thus! “If Spain claims” . . . begin
— Just as you look at me!

Cha. At you! Oh truly,
You have I seen, say, marshalling your troops,
Dismissing councils, or, through doors ajar,
Head sunk on hand, devoured by slow chagrins
— Then radiant, for a crown had all at once
Seemed possible again! I can behold
Him, whose least whisper ties my spirit fast,
In this sweet brow, nought could divert me from
Save objects like Sebastian's shameless lip,
Or worse, the clipped gray hair and dead white face
And dwindling eye as if it ached with guile,
D'Ormea wears . . .

[As he kisses her, enter from the KING'S apartment D'ORMEA

I said he would divert

My kisses from your brow!

D'O. [Aside.] Here! So, King Victor
Spoke truth for once: and who's ordained, but I
To make that memorable? Both in call,
As he declared! Were't better gnash the teeth,
Or laugh outright now?

Cha. [to POL.] What's his visit for?

D'O. [Aside.] I question if they even speak to me.

Pol. [to CHA.] Face the man! He'll suppose you fear him else.

[Aloud.] The Marquis bears the King's command, no doubt?

D'O. [Aside.] Precisely! — If I threatened him, perhaps?
Well, this at least is punishment enough!

Men used to promise punishment would come.

Cha. Deliver the King's message, Marquis!

D'O. [Aside.] Ah —

So anxious for his fate? [Aloud.] A word, my Prince,
Before you see your father — just one word
Of counsel!

Cha. Oh, your counsel certainly!
Polyxena, the Marquis counsels us!
Well, sir? Be brief, however!

D'O. What? You know
As much as I? — preceded me, most like,
In knowledge! So! ('Tis in his eye, beside —
His voice: he knows it, and his heart's on flame
Already!) You surmise why you, myself,
Del Borgo, Spava, fifty nobles more,
Are summoned thus?

Cha. Is the Prince used to know,
At any time, the pleasure of the King,
Before his minister? — Polyxena,
Stay here till I conclude my task: I feel
Your presence (smile not) through the walls, and take
Fresh heart. The King's within that chamber?

D'O. [Passing the table whereon a paper lies, exclaims, as he glances at it, "Spain!"

Pol. [Aside to CHA.] Tarry awhile: what ails the minister?

D'O. Madam, I do not often trouble you.
The Prince loathes, and you scorn me — let that pass!
But since it touches him and you, not me,
Bid the Prince listen!

Pol. [to CHA.] Surely you will listen:
— Deceit? — Those fingers crumpling up his vest?

Cha. Deceitful to the very fingers' ends!

D'O. [who has approached them, overlooks the other paper CHARLES continues to hold.

My project for the Fiefs! As I supposed!
Sir, I must give you light upon those measures
— For this is mine, and that I spied of Spain,
Mine too!

Cha. Release me! Do you gloze on me
Who bear in the world's face (that is, the world
You make for me at Turin) your contempt?
— Your measures? — When was not a hateful task
D'Ormea's imposition? Leave my robe!
What post can I bestow, what grant concede?
Or do you take me for the King?

D'O. Not I!
Not yet for King, — not for, as yet, thank God,
One who in . . . shall I say a year, a month?
Ay! — shall be wretchered than e'er was slave
In his Sardinia, — Europe's spectacle
And the world's by-word! What? The Prince aggrieved
That I excluded him our counsels? Here

[Touching the paper in CHARLES's hand.

Accept a method of extorting gold
 From Savoy's nobles, who must wring its worth
 In silver first from tillers of the soil,
 Whose hinds again have to contribute brass
 To make up the amount : there 's counsel, sir,
 My counsel, one year old ; and the fruit, this —
 Savoy 's become a mass of misery
 And wrath, which one man has to meet — the King :
 You 're not the King ! Another counsel, sir !
 Spain entertains a project (here it lies)
 Which, guessed, makes Austria offer that same King
 Thus much to baffle Spain ; he promises ;
 Then comes Spain, breathless lest she be forestalled,
 Her offer follows ; and he promises . . .

Cha. — Promises, sir, when he has just agreed
 To Austria's offer ?

D'O. That 's a counsel, Prince !
 But past our foresight, Spain and Austria (choosing
 To make their quarrel up between themselves
 Without the intervention of a friend)
 Produce both treaties, and both promises . . .

Cha. How ?

D'O. Prince, a counsel ! And the fruit of that Both parties covenant afresh, to fall
 Together on their friend, blot out his name,
 Abolish him from Europe. So, take note,
 Here 's Austria and here 's Spain to fight against,
 And what sustains the King but Savoy here,
 A miserable people mad with wrongs ?
 You 're not the King !

Cha. Polyxena, you said
 *All would clear up : all does clear up to me.

D'O. Clear up ! 'Tis no such thing to envy, then ?
 You see the King's state in its length and breadth ?
 You blame me now for keeping you aloof
 From counsels and the fruit of counsels ? Wait
 Till I explain this morning's business !

Cha. [Aside.] No —
 Stoop to my father, yes, — D'Ormea, no ;
 — The King's son, not to the King's counsellor !
 I will do something, but at least retain
 The credit of my deed ! [Aloud.] Then it is this
 You now expressly come to tell me ?

D'O. This
 To tell ! You apprehend me ?

Cha. Perfectly.

Further, D'Ormea, you have shown yourself,
For the first time these many weeks and months,
Disposed to do my bidding?

D'O.

From the heart!

Cha. Acquaint my father, first, I wait his pleasure :
Next . . . or, I'll tell you at a fitter time.
Acquaint the King!

D'O. [Aside.] If I 'scape Victor yet!

First, to prevent this stroke at me : if not, —
Then, to avenge it! [To CHA.] Gracious sir, I go. [Goes.]

Cha. God, I forbore! Which more offends, that man
Or that man's master? Is it come to this?
Have they supposed (the sharpest insult yet)
I needed e'en his intervention? No!
No — dull am I, conceded, — but so dull,
Scarcely! Their step decides me.

Pol.

How decides?

Cha. You would be freed D'Ormea's eye and hers?
— Could fly the court with me and live content?
So, this it is for which the knights assemble!
The whispers and the closeting of late,
The savageness and insolence of old,
— For this!

Pol.

What mean you?

Cha.

How? You fail to catch

Their clever plot? I missed it, but could you?
These last two months of care to inculcate
How dull I am, — D'Ormea's present visit
To prove that, being dull, I might be worse
Were I a King — as wretched as now dull —
You recognize in it no winding up
Of a long plot?

Pol.

Why should there be a plot?

Cha. The crown's secure now; I should shame the crown:
An old complaint; the point is, how to gain
My place for one, more fit in Victor's eyes,
His mistress the Sebastian's child.

Pol.

In truth?

Cha. They dare not quite dethrone Sardinia's Prince:
But they may descant on my dulness till
They sting me into even praying them
Grant leave to hide my head, resign my state,
And end the coil. Not see now? In a word,
They'd have me tender them myself my rights
As one incapable; — some cause for that,
Since I delayed thus long to see their drift!

I shall apprise the King he may resume
My rights this moment.

Pol. Pause! I dare not think
So ill of Victor.

Cha. Think no ill of him!

Pol. — Nor think him, then, so shallow as to suffer
His purpose be divined thus easily.

And yet — you are the last of a great line;
There's a great heritage at stake; new days
Seemed to await this newest of the realms
Of Europe: — Charles, you must withstand this!

Cha. — Ah —

You dare not then renounce the splendid court
For one whom all the world despises? Speak!

Pol. My gentle husband, speak I will, and truth.
Were this as you believe, and I once sure
Your duty lay in so renouncing rule,
I could . . . could? Oh what happiness it were —
To live, my Charles, and die, alone with you!

Cha. I grieve I asked you. To the presence, then!
By this, D'Ormea acquaints the King, no doubt,
He fears I am too simple for mere hints,
And that no less will serve than Victor's mouth
Demonstrating in council what I am.
I have not breathed, I think, these many years!

Pol. Why, it may be! — if he desire to wed
That woman, call legitimate her child.

Cha. You see as much? Oh, let his will have way!
You'll not repent confiding in me, love?
There's many a brighter spot in Piedmont, far,
Than Rivoli. I'll seek him: or, suppose
You hear first how I mean to speak my mind?
— Loudly and firmly both, this time, be sure!
I yet may see your Rhine-land, who can tell?
Once away, ever then away! I breathe.

Pol. And I too breathe.

Cha. Come, my Polyxena!

KING VICTOR.

PART II.

Enter KING VICTOR, bearing the regalia on a cushion, from his apartment. He calls loudly —

D'Ormea! — for patience fails me, treading thus
Among the obscure trains I have laid, — my knights
Safe in the hall here — in that anteroom,
My son, — D'Ormea, where? Of this, one touch —

[Laying down the crown.

This fireball to these mute black cold trains — then
Outbreak enough!

[Contemplating it.] To lose all, after all!

This, glancing o'er my house for ages — shaped,
Brave meteor, like the crown of Cyprus now,
Jerusalem, Spain, England, every change
The braver, — and when I have clutched a prize
My ancestry died wan with watching for,
To lose it! — by a slip, a fault, a trick
Learnt to advantage once and not unlearned
When past the use, — “just this once more” (I thought)
“Use it with Spain and Austria happily,
And then away with trick!” An oversight
I'd have repaired thrice over, any time
These fifty years, must happen now! There's peace
At length; and I, to make the most of peace,
Ventured my project on our people here,
As needing not their help: which Europe knows,
And means, cold-blooded, to dispose herself
(Apart from plausibilities of war)
To crush the new-made King — who ne'er till now
Feared her. As Duke, I lost each foot of earth
And laughed at her: my name was left, my sword
Left, all was left! But she can take, she knows,
This crown, herself conceded . . .

That's to try,

Kind Europe! My career's not closed as yet!
This boy was ever subject to my will,
Timid and tame — the fitter! D'Ormea, too —
What if the sovereign also rid himself
Of thee, his prime of parasites? — I delay!

D'Ormea! [As D'ORMEA enters, the King seats himself.

My son, the Prince — attends he?

D'O.

Sir,
He does attend. The crown prepared! — it seems
That you persist in your resolve.

Vic.

Who's come?
The chancellor and the chamberlain? My knights?

D'O.

The whole Annunziata. If, my liege,
Your fortune had not tottered worse than now . . .

Vic.

Del Borgo has drawn up the schedules? mine —
My son's, too? Excellent! Only, beware
Of the least blunder, or we look but fools.

First, you read the Annulment of the Oaths;
Del Borgo follows . . . no, the Prince shall sign;
Then let Del Borgo read the Instrument:
On which, I enter.

D'O.

Sir, this may be truth;
You, sir, may do as you affect — may break
Your engine, me, to pieces: try at least
If not a spring remain worth saving! Take
My counsel as I've counselled many times!
What if the Spaniard and the Austrian threat?
There's England, Holland, Venice — which ally
Select you?

Vic.

Aha! Come, D'Ormea, — "truth"
Was on your lip a minute since. Allies?
I've broken faith with Venice, Holland, England
— As who knows if not you?

D'O.

But why with me
Break faith — with one ally, your best, break faith?

Vic.

When first I stumbled on you, Marquis — 't was
At Mondovi — a little lawyer's clerk . . .

D'O.

Therefore your soul's ally! — who brought you through
Your quarrel with the Pope, at pains enough —
Who simply echoed you in these affairs —
On whom you cannot therefore visit these
Affairs' ill fortune — whom you trust to guide
You safe (yes, on my soul) through these affairs!

Vic.

I was about to notice, had you not
Prevented me, that since that great town kept
With its chicane D'Ormea's satchel stuffed
And D'Ormea's self sufficiently recluse,
He missed a sight, — my naval armament
When I burned Toulon. How the skiff exults
Upon the galliot's wave! — rises its height,
O'ertops it even; but the great wave bursts,
And hell-deep in the horrible profound
Buries itself the galliot: shall the skiff
Think to escape the sea's black trough in turn?

Apply this : you have been my minister
 — Next me, above me possibly ; — sad post,
 Huge care, abundant lack of peace of mind ;
 Who would desiderate the eminence ?
 You gave your soul to get it ; you 'd yet give
 Your soul to keep it, as I mean you shall,
 D'Ormea ! What if the wave ebbed with me ?
 Whereas it cants you to another crest ;
 I toss you to my son ; ride out your ride !

D' O. Ah, you so much despise me ?

Vic.

You, D'Ormea ?

Nowise : and I 'll inform you why. A king
 Must in his time have many ministers,
 And I 've been rash enough to part with mine
 When I thought proper. Of the tribe, not one
 ( . . . Or wait, did Pianezze ? . . . ah, just the same ! )
 Not one of them, ere his remonstrance reached
 The length of yours, but has assured me (commonly
 Standing much as you stand, — or nearer, say,
 The door to make his exit on his speech)
 — I should repent of what I did. D'Ormea,
 Be candid, you approached it when I bade you
 Prepare the schedules ! But you stopped in time,
 You have not so assured me : how should I
 Despise you then ?

Enter CHARLES.

Vic. [changing his tone.] Are you instructed ? Do
 My order, point by point ! About it, sir !

D' O. You so despise me ! [Aside.] One last stay remains —
 The boy's discretion there.

[To CHARLES.] For your sake, Prince,
 I pleaded, wholly in your interest,
 To save you from this fate !

Cha. [Aside.] Must I be told
 The Prince was supplicated for — by him ?

Vic. [to D' O.] Apprise Del Borgo, Spava and the rest,
 Our son attends them ; then return.

D' O.

One word !

Cha. [Aside.] A moment's pause and they would drive me
 hence,

I do believe !

D' O. [Aside.] Let but the boy be firm !

Vic. You disobey ?

Cha. [to D' O.] You do not disobey

Me, at least ? Did you promise that or no ?

D' O. Sir, I am yours : what would you ? Yours am I !

Cha. When I have said what I shall say, 't is like
Your face will ne'er again disgust me. Go!
Through you, as through a breast of glass, I see.
And for your conduct, from my youth till now,
Take my contempt! You might have spared me much,
Secured me somewhat, nor so harmed yourself:
That's over now. Go, ne'er to come again!

D'O. As son, the father — father, as the son!
My wits! My wits!

[Goes]

Vic. [Seated.] And you, what meant you, pray,
Speaking thus to D'Ormea?

Cha. Let us not Waste words upon D'Ormea! Those I spent
Have half unsettled what I came to say.
His presence vexes to my very soul.

Vic. One called to manage a kingdom, Charles, needs heart
To bear up under worse annoyances
Than seems D'Ormea — to me, at least.

Cha. [Aside.] Ah, good!
He keeps me to the point! Then be it so.

[Aloud.] Last night, sir, brought me certain papers — these —
To be reported on, — your way of late.

Is it last night's result that you demand?

Vic. For God's sake, what has night brought forth? Pronounce
The . . . what's your word? — result!

Cha. Sir, that had proved
Quite worthy of your sneer, no doubt: — a few
Lame thoughts, regard for you alone could wring,
Lame as they are, from brains like mine, believe!
As 't is, sir, I am spared both toil and sneer.
These are the papers.

Vic. Well, sir? I suppose
You hardly burned them. Now for your result!

Cha. I never should have done great things of course,
But . . . oh my father, had you loved me more!

Vic. Loved? [Aside.] Has D'Ormea played me false; I wonder?

[Aloud.] Why, Charles, a king's love is diffused — yourself
May overlook, perchance, your part in it.

Our monarchy is absolutest now
In Europe, or my trouble's thrown away.

I love, my mode, that subjects each and all
May have the power of loving, all and each,

Their mode: I doubt not, many have their sons
To trifle with, talk soft to, all day long:

I have that crown, this chair, D'Ormea, Charles!

Cha. 'Tis well I am a subject then, not you.

Vic. [Aside.] D'Ormea has told him everything.

[Aloud.] Aha,

I apprehend you: when all 's said, you take
Your private station to be prized beyond
My own, for instance?

Cha. — Do and ever did

So take it: 't is the method you pursue
That grieves . . .

Vic. These words! Let me express, my friend,
Your thoughts. You penetrate what I supposed
Secret. D'Ormea plies his trade betimes!
I purpose to resign my crown to you.

Cha. To me?

Vic. Now, — in that chamber.

Cha.

You resign

The crown to me?

Vic. And time enough, Charles, sure?

Confess with me, at four-and-sixty years
A crown 's a load. I covet quiet once
Before I die, and summoned you for that.

Cha. 'T is I will speak: you ever hated me,
I bore it, — have insulted me, borne too —
Now you insult yourself; and I remember
What I believed you, what you really are,
And cannot bear it. What! My life has passed
Under your eye, tormented as you know, —
Your whole sagacities, one after one,
At leisure brought to play on me — to prove me
A fool, I thought and I submitted; now
You'd prove . . . what would you prove me?

Vic.

This to me?

I hardly know you!

Cha. Know me? Oh indeed

You do not! Wait till I complain next time
Of my simplicity! — for here 's a sage

Knows the world well, is not to be deceived,

And his experience and his Macchiavels,

D'Ormeas, teach him — what? — that I this while

Have envied him his crown! He has not smiled,

I warrant, — has not eaten, drunk, nor slept,

For I was plotting with my Princess yonder!

Who knows what we might do or might not do?

Go now, be politic, astound the world!

That sentry in the antechamber — nay,

The varlet who disposed this precious trap

[Pointing to the crown.]

That was to take me — ask them if they think
Their own sons envy them their posts! — Know me!

Vic. But you know me, it seems; so, learn, in brief,
My pleasure. This assembly is convened . . .

Cha. Tell me, that woman put it in your head!
You were not sole contriver of the scheme,
My father!

Vic. Now observe me, sir! I jest
Seldom — on these points, never. Here, I say,
The knights assemble to see me concede,
And you accept, Sardinia's crown.

Cha. Farewell!
'T were vain to hope to change this: I can end it.
Not that I cease from being yours, when sunk
Into obscurity: I'll die for you,
But not annoy you with my presence. Sir,
Farewell! Farewell!

[Enter D'ORMEA.]

D'O. [Aside.] Ha, sure he's changed again —
Means not to fall into the cunning trap!
Then Victor, I shall yet escape you, Victor!

Vic. [suddenly placing the crown upon the head of CHARLES.
D'Ormea, your King!

[To CHARLES.] My son, obey me! Charles,
Your father, clearer-sighted than yourself,
Decides it must be so. 'Faith, this looks real!
My reasons after; reason upon reason
After: but now, obey me! Trust in me!
By this, you save Sardinia, you save me!

Why, the boy swoons! [To D'O.] Come this side!

D'O. [as CHARLES turns from him to VICTOR.] You persist?

Vic. Yes, I conceive the gesture's meaning. 'Faith,
He almost seems to hate you: how is that?
Be reassured, my Charles! Is't over now?

Then, Marquis, tell the new King what remains
To do! A moment's work. Del Borgo reads
The Act of Abdication out, you sign it,
Then I sign; after that, come back to me.

D'O. Sir, for the last time, pause!

Vic. Five minutes longer
I am your sovereign, Marquis. Hesitate —
And I'll so turn those minutes to account
That . . . Ay, you recollect me! [Aside.] Could I bring
My foolish mind to undergo the reading
That Act of Abdication!

[As CHARLES motions D'ORMEA to precede him.

Thanks, dear Charles!

[CHARLES and D'ORMEA retire.]

Vic. A novel feature in the boy, — indeed
 Just what I feared he wanted most. Quite right,
 This earnest tone : your truth, now for effect !
 It answers every purpose : with that look,
 That voice, — I hear him : “ I began no treaty,”
 (He speaks to Spain,) “ nor ever dreamed of this
 You show me ; this I from my soul regret ;
 But if my father signed it, bid not me
 Dishonor him — who gave me all, beside : ”
 And, “ true,” says Spain, “ ’t were harsh to visit that Upon the Prince.” Then come the nobles trooping :
 “ I grieve at these exactions — I had cut
 This hand off ere impose them ; but shall I
 Undo my father’s deed ? ” — and they confer :
 “ Doubtless he was no party, after all ;
 Give the Prince time ! ”

Ay, give us time, but time !

Only, he must not, when the dark day comes,
 Refer our friends to me and frustrate all.
 We ’ll have no child’s play, no desponding fits,
 No Charles at each cross turn entreating Victor
 To take his crown again. Guard against that !

Enter D’ORMEA.

Long live King Charles !

No — Charles’s counsellor !

Well, is it over, Marquis ? Did I jest ?

D’O. “ King Charles ! ” What then may you be ?

Vic.

Anything !

A country gentleman that, cured of bustle,
 Now beats a quick retreat toward Chambery,
 Would hunt and hawk and leave you noisy folk
 To drive your trade without him. I ’m Count Remont —
 Count Tende — any little place’s Count !

D’O. Then Victor, Captain against Catinat
 At Staffarde, where the French beat you ; and Duke
 At Turin, where you beat the French ; King late
 Of Savoy, Piedmont, Montferrat, Sardinia,
 — Now, “ any little place’s Count ” —

Vic.

Proceed !

D’O. Breaker of vows to God, who crowned you first ;
 Breaker of vows to man, who kept you since ;
 Most profligate to me who outraged God
 And man to serve you, and am made pay crimes
 I was but privy to, by passing thus
 To your imbecile son — who, well you know,
 Must — (when the people here, and nations there,

Clamor for you the main delinquent, slipped
 From King to — “Count of any little place”
 Must needs surrender me, all in his reach, —
 I, sir, forgive you: for I see the end —
 See you on your return — (you will return) —
 To him you trust, a moment . . .

Vic.

Trust him? How?

My poor man, merely a prime-minister,
 Make me know where my trust errs!

D'O.

In his fear,

His love, his — but discover for yourself
 What you are weakest, trusting in!

Vic.

Aha,

D'Ormea, not a shrewder scheme than this
 In your repertory? You know old Victor —
 Vain, choleric, inconstant, rash — (I've heard
 Talkers who little thought the King so close) —
 Felicitous now, were 't not, to provoke him
 To clean forget, one minute afterward,
 His solemn act, and call the nobles back
 And pray them give again the very power
 He has abjured? — for the dear sake of what?
 Vengeance on you, D'Ormea! No: such am I,
 Count Tende or Count anything you please,
 — Only, the same that did the things you say,
 And, among other things you say not, used
 Your finest fibre, meanest muscle, — you
 I used, and now, since you will have it so,
 Leave to your fate — mere lumber in the midst,
 You and your works. Why, what on earth beside
 Are you made for, you sort of ministers?

D'O. Not left, though, to my fate! Your witless son
 Has more wit than to load himself with lumber:
 He foils you that way, and I follow you.

Vic. Stay with my son — protect the weaker side!

D'O. Ay, to be tossed the people like a rag,
 And flung by them for Spain and Austria's sport,
 Abolishing the record of your part
 In all this perfidy!

Vic.

Prevent, beside,

My own return!

D'O.

That's half prevented now!

'T will go hard but you find a wondrous charm
 In exile, to discredit me. The Alps,
 Silk-mills to watch, vines asking vigilance —
 Hounds open for the stag, your hawk's a-wing —

Brave days that wait the Louis of the South,
Italy's Janus!

Vic. So, the lawyer's clerk
Won't tell me that I shall repent!

D'O. You give me
Full leave to ask if you repent?

Vic. Whene'er
Sufficient time 's elapsed for that, you judge!

[Shouts inside, "KING CHARLES!"]

D'O. Do you repent?

Vic. [after a slight pause.] . . . I've kept them waiting?

Yes!

Come in, complete the Abdication, sir! [They go out.]

Enter POLYXENA.

Pol. A shout! The sycophants are free of Charles!
Oh is not this like Italy? No fruit
Of his or my distempered fancy, this,
But just an ordinary fact! Beside,
Here they've set forms for such proceedings; Victor
Imprisoned his own mother: he should know,
If any, how a son's to be deprived
Of a son's right. Our duty's palpable.
Ne'er was my husband for the wily king
And the unworthy subjects: be it so!
Come you safe out of them, my Charles! Our life
Grows not the broad and dazzling life, I dreamed
Might prove your lot; for strength was shut in you
None guessed but I — strength which, untrammelled once,
Had little shamed your vaunted ancestry —
Patience and self-devotion, fortitude,
Simplicity and utter truthfulness
— All which, they shout to lose!

So, now my work

Begins — to save him from regret. Save Charles Regret? — the noble nature! He's not made
Like these Italians: 't is a German soul.

Oh, where's the King's heir? Gone: — the Crown-prince?
Gone: —

Where's Savoy? Gone! — Sardinia? Gone! But Charles
Is left! And when my Rhine-land bowers arrive,
If he looked almost handsome yester-twilight
As his gray eyes seemed widening into black
Because I praised him, then how will he look?
Farewell, you stripped and whited mulberry-trees
Bound each to each by lazy ropes of vine!

Now I'll teach you my language: I'm not forced
To speak Italian now, Charles?

[She sees the crown.] What is this?
Answer me — who has done this? Answer!

Cha. He!

I am King now.

Pol. Oh worst, worst, worst of all!

Tell me! What, Victor? He has made you King?

What's he then? What's to follow this? You, King?

Cha. Have I done wrong? Yes, for you were not by!

Pol. Tell me from first to last.

Cha. Hush — a new world

Brightens before me; he is moved away

— The dark form that eclipsed it, he subsides

Into a shape supporting me like you,

And I, alone, tend upward, more and more

Tend upward: I am grown Sardinia's King.

Pol. Now stop: was not this Victor, Duke of Savoy
At ten years old?

Cha. He was.

Pol. And the Duke spent,
Since then, just four-and-fifty years in toil

To be — what?

Cha. King.

Pol. Then why unking himself?

Cha. Those years are cause enough.

Pol. The only cause?

Cha. Some new perplexities.

Pol. Which you can solve

Although he cannot?

Cha. He assures me so.

Pol. And this he means shall last — how long?

Cha. How long?

Think you I fear the perils I confront?

He's praising me before the people's face —

My people!

Pol. Then he's changed — grown kind, the King?

Where can the trap be?

Cha. Heart and soul I pledge!

My father, could I guard the crown you gained,

Transmit as I received it, — all good else

Would I surrender!

Pol. Ah, it opens then

Before you, all you dreaded formerly?

You are rejoiced to be a king, my Charles?

Cha. So much to dare? The better, — much to dread?

The better. I'll adventure though alone.
Triumph or die, there's Victor still to witness
Who dies or triumphs — either way, alone!

Pol. Once I had found my share in triumph, Charles,
Or death.

Cha. But you are I! But you I call
To take, Heaven's proxy, vows I tendered Heaven
A moment since. I will deserve the crown!

Pol. You will. [Aside.] No doubt it were a glorious thing
For any people, if a heart like his Ruled over it. I would I saw the trap.

Enter VICTOR.

'T is he must show me.

Vic. So, the mask falls off
An old man's foolish love at last. Spare thanks!
I know you, and Polyxena I know.
Here's Charles — I am his guest now — does he bid me
Be seated? And my light-haired blue-eyed child
Must not forget the old man far away
At Chambery, who dozes while she reigns.

Pol. Most grateful shall we now be, talking least
Of gratitude — indeed of anything
That hinders what yourself must need to say
To Charles.

Cha. Pray speak, sir!

Vic. 'Faith, not much to say:
Only what shows itself, you once i' the point
Of sight. You're now the King: you'll comprehend
Much you may oft have wondered at — the shifts,
Dissimulation, wiliness I showed.
For what's our post? Here's Savoy and here's Piedmont,
Here's Montferrat — a breadth here, a space there —
To o'er-sweep all these, what's one weapon worth?
I often think of how they fought in Greece
(Or Rome, which was it? You're the scholar, Charles!)
You made a front-thrust? But if your shield too
Were not adroitly planted, some shrewd knave
Reached you behind; and him foiled, straight if thong
And handle of that shield were not cast loose,
And you enabled to outstrip the wind,
Fresh foes assailed you, either side; 'scape these,
And reach your place of refuge — e'en then, odds
If the gate opened unless breath enough
Were left in you to make its lord a speech:
Oh, you will see!

Cha. No: straight on shall I go,
Truth helping; win with it or die with it.

Vic. 'Faith, Charles, you 're not made Europe's fighting-man!
The barrier-guarder, if you please. You clutch
Hold and consolidate, with envious France
This side, with Austria that, the territory
I held — ay, and will hold . . . which you shall hold
Despite the couple! But I've surely earned
Exemption from these weary politics,
— The privilege to prattle with my son
And daughter here, though Europe wait the while.

Pol. Nay, sir, — at Chambéry, away forever,
As soon you will be, 't is farewell we bid you:
Turn these few fleeting moments to account!
'T is just as though it were a death.

Vic. Indeed!

Pol. [Aside.] Is the trap there?

Cha. Ay, call this parting — death!

The sacreder your memory becomes.
If I misrule Sardinia, how bring back
My father?

Vic. I mean . . .

Pol. [who watches VICTOR narrowly this while.]

Your father does not mean

You should be ruling for your father's sake:
It is your people must concern you wholly Instead of him. You mean this, sir? (He drops
My hand!)

Cha. That people is now part of me.

Vic. About the people! I took certain measures
Some short time since . . . Oh, I know well, you know
But little of my measures! These affect
The nobles; we've resumed some grants, imposed
A tax or two: prepare yourself, in short,
For clamor on that score. Mark me: you yield
No jot of aught entrusted you!

Pol. No jot

You yield!

Cha. My father, when I took the oath,
Although my eye might stray in search of yours,
I heard it, understood it, promised God
What you require. Till from this eminence
He move me, here I keep, nor shall concede
The meanest of my rights.

Vic. [Aside.] The boy 's a fool!

— Or rather, I'm a fool: for, what 's wrong here?
To-day the sweets of reigning: let to-morrow
Be ready with its bitters.

Enter D'ORMEA.

There's beside
Somewhat to press upon your notice first.

Cha. Then why delay it for an instant, sir?
That Spanish claim perchance? And, now you speak,
— This morning, my opinion was mature,
Which, boy-like, I was bashful in producing
To one I ne'er am like to fear in future!
My thought is formed upon that Spanish claim.

Vic. Betimes indeed. Not now, Charles! You require
A host of papers on it.

D'O. [coming forward.] Here they are.
[To CHA.] I, sir, was minister and much beside
Of the late monarch; to say little, him
I served: on you I have, to say e'en less,
No claim. This case contains those papers: with them
I tender you my office.

Vic. [hastily.] Keep him, Charles!
There's reason for it — many reasons: you
Distrust him, nor are so far wrong there, — but
He's mixed up in this matter — he'll desire
To quit you, for occasions known to me:
Do not accept those reasons: have him stay!

Pol. [Aside.] His minister thrust on us!

Cha. [to D'ORMEA.] Sir, believe,
In justice to myself, you do not need
E'en this commending: howsoe'er might seem
My feelings toward you, as a private man,
They quit me in the vast and untried field
Of action. Though I shall myself (as late
In your own hearing I engaged to do)
Preside o'er my Sardinia, yet your help
Is necessary. Think the past forgotten
And serve me now!

D'O. I did not offer you
My service — would that I could serve you, sir!
As for the Spanish matter . . .

Vic. But dispatch
At least the dead, in my good daughter's phrase,
Before the living! Help to house me safe
Ere with D'Ormea you set the world agape!
Here is a paper — will you overlook
What I propose reserving for my needs?
I get as far from you as possible:
Here's what I reckon my expenditure.

Cha. [reading.] A miserable fifty thousand crowns!

Vic. Oh, quite enough for country gentlemen!
Beside, the exchequer happens . . . but find out
All that, yourself!

Cha. [still reading.] "Count Tende" — what means this?

Vic. Me: you were but an infant when I burst
Through the defile of Tende upon France.
Had only my allies kept true to me!
No matter. Tende's, then, a name I take
Just as . . .

D'O. — The Marchioness Sebastian takes
The name of Spigno.

Cha. How, sir?

Vic. [to D'ORMEA.] Fool! All that
Was for my own detailing. [To CHARLES.] That anon!

Cha. [to D'ORMEA.] Explain what you have said, sir!

D'O. I supposed

The marriage of the King to her I named,
Profoundly kept a secret these few weeks,
Was not to be one, now he's Count.

Pol. [Aside.] With us

The minister — with him the mistress!

Cha. [to VICTOR.] No —

Tell me you have not taken her — that woman —
To live with, past recall!

Vic. And where's the crime . . .

Pol. [to CHARLES.] True, sir, this is a matter past recall
And past your cognizance. A day before,
And you had been compelled to note this — now
Why note it? The King saved his House from shame:
What the Count did, is no concern of yours.

Cha. [after a pause.] The Spanish claim, D'Ormea!

Vic. Why, my son,

I took some ill-advised . . . one's age, in fact,
Spoils everything: though I was over-reached,
A younger brain, we'll trust, may extricate
Sardinia readily. To-morrow, D'Ormea,
Inform the King!

D'O. [without regarding VICTOR, and leisurely.]

Thus stands the case with Spain:

When first the Infant Carlos claimed his proper
Succession to the throne of Tuscany . . .

Vic. I tell you, that stands over! Let that rest!
There is the policy!

Cha. [to D'ORMEA.] Thus much I know,
And more — too much. The remedy?

D'O. Of course!

No glimpse of one.

Vic. No remedy at all!
 It makes the remedy itself — time makes it.
D'O. [to CHARLES.] But if . . .
Vic. [still more hastily.] In fine, I shall take care of that :
 And, with another project that I have . . .
D'O. [turning on him.] Oh, since Count Tende means to take again
 King Victor's crown! —
Pol. [throwing herself at VICTOR's feet.] E'en now retake
 it, sir!
 Oh, speak! We are your subjects both, once more!
 Say it — a word effects it! You meant not,
 Nor do mean now, to take it: but you must!
 'T is in you — in your nature — and the shame's
 Not half the shame 't would grow to afterwards!
Cha. Polyxena!
Pol. A word recalls the knights —
 Say it! — What's promising and what's the past?
 Say you are still King Victor!
D'O. Better say
 The Count repents, in brief! [VICTOR rises.
Cha. With such a crime
 I have not charged you, sir!
Pol. Charles turns from me!

SECOND YEAR, 1731. — KING CHARLES.

PART I.

Enter QUEEN POLYXENA and D'ORMEA. — A pause.

Pol. And now, sir, what have you to say?
D'O. Count Tende . . .
Pol. Affirm not I betrayed you; you resolve uttering this strange intelligence
 My stepost yourself to find me ere I reach
 As for th<sup>l</sup>, because you know King Charles
Vic. ay or two at Evian baths
 At least th<sup>e</sup> but take warning, — here and thus
 Before the h [Seating herself in the royal seat
 Ere with D'O<sup>n</sup> — not your friend.
 Here is a pap<sup>e</sup>tement, if you still
 What I propos<sup>e</sup>n me, must proceed :
 I get as far from aught else.
 Here's what I re Good! Count Tende . . .
Cha. [reading]rust you, shall acquaint King Charles, trusts you.

D'O. Does he so?

Pol. Why should he not?

D'O. Ay, why not? Motives, seek
You virtuous people, motives! Say, I serve
God at the devil's bidding — will that do?
I'm proud: our people have been pacified,
Really I know not how —

Pol. By truthfulness.

D'O. Exactly; that shows I had nought to do
With pacifying them. Our foreign perils
Also exceed my means to stay: but here
'T is otherwise, and my pride's piqued. Count Tende
Completes a full year's absence: would you, madam,
Have the old monarch back, his mistress back,
His measures back? I pray you, act upon
My counsel, or they will be.

Pol. When?

D'O. Let's think.

Home-matters settled — Victor's coming now;
Let foreign matters settle — Victor's here
Unless I stop him; as I will, this way.

Pol. [reading the papers he presents.] If this should prove a plot 'twixt you and Victor?

You seek annoyances to give the pretext
For what you say you fear!

D'O. Oh, possibly!

I go for nothing. Only show King Charles
That thus Count Tende purposes return,
And style me his inviter, if you please!

Pol. Half of your tale is true; most like, the Count
Seeks to return: but why stay you with us?
To aid in such emergencies.

D'O. Keep safe

Those papers: or, to serve me, leave no proof
I thus have counselled! when the Count returns,
And the King abdicates, 't will stead me little
To have thus counselled.

Pol. The King abdicate!

D'O. He's good, we knew long since — wise, we discover —
Firm, let us hope: — but I'd have gone to work
With him away. Well!

[CHARLES without.] In the Council Chamber?

D'O. All's lost!

Pol. Oh, surely not King Charles! He's changed —
That's not this year's care-burdened voice and step:
'T is last year's step, the Prince's voice!

D'O.

I know.

Enter CHARLES — D'ORMEA retiring a little.

Cha. Now wish me joy, Polyxena! Wish it me
The old way!

[She embraces him.]

There was too much cause for that!

But I have found myself again. What news
At Turin? Oh, if you but felt the load
I'm free of — free! I said this year would end
Or it, or me — but I am free, thank God!

Pol. How, Charles?

Cha.

You do not guess? The day I found

Sardinia's hideous coil, at home, abroad,
And how my father was involved in it, —
Of course, I vowed to rest and smile no more
Until I cleared his name from obloquy.
We did the people right — 't was much to gain
That point, redress our nobles' grievance, too —
But that took place here, was no crying shame:
All must be done abroad, — if I abroad
Appeased the justly-angered Powers, destroyed
The scandal, took down Victor's name at last
From a bad eminence, I then might breathe
And rest! No moment was to lose. Behold
The proud result — a Treaty, Austria, Spain
Agree to —

D'O. [Aside.] I shall merely stipulate
For an experienced headsman.

Cha.

Not a soul

Is compromised: the blotted past's a blank:
Even D'Ormea escapes unquestioned. See!
It reached me from Vienna; I remained
At Evian to dispatch the Count his news;
'T is gone to Chambéry a week ago —
And here am I: do I deserve to feel
Your warm white arms around me?

D'O. [coming forward.]

He knows that?

Cha. What, in Heaven's name, means this?

D'O.

He knows that matters

Are settled at Vienna? Not too late!
Plainly, unless you post this very hour
Some man you trust (say, me) to Chambéry
And take precautions I acquaint you with,
Your father will return here.

Cha.

Are you crazed,

D'Ormea? Here? For what? As well return
To take his crown!

D'O.

He will return for that.

Cha. [to POLYXENA.] You have not listened to this man?

Pol.

He spoke

About your safety — and I listened.

[He disengages himself from her arms.]

Cha. [to D'ORMEA.] What

Apprised you of the Count's intentions?

D'O.

Me?

His heart, sir; you may not be used to read

Such evidence however; therefore read

[Pointing to POLYXENA's papers.]

My evidence.

Cha. [to POLYXENA.] Oh, worthy this of you!

And of your speech I never have forgotten,

Though I professed forgetfulness; which haunts me

As if I did not know how false it was;

Which made me toil unconsciously thus long

That there might be no least occasion left

For aught of its prediction coming true!

And now, when there is left no least occasion

To instigate my father to such crime —

When I might venture to forget (I hoped)

That speech and recognize Polyxena —

Oh worthy, to revive, and tenfold worse,

That plague! D'Ormea at your ear, his slanders

Still in your hand! Silent?

Pol.

As the wronged are.

Cha. And you, D'Ormea, since when have you presumed

To spy upon my father? I conceive

What that wise paper shows, and easily.

Since when?

D'O.

The when and where and how belong

To me. 'Tis sad work, but I deal in such.

You oftentimes serve yourself; I'd serve you here:

Use makes me not so squeamish. In a word,

Since the first hour he went to Chambery,

Of his seven servants, five have I suborned.

Cha. You hate my father?

D'O.

Oh, just as you will!

[Looking at POLYXENA.]

A minute since, I loved him — hate him, now!

What matter? — if you ponder just one thing:

Has he that treaty? — he is setting forward

Already. Are your guards here?

Cha.

Well for you

They are not! [To POL.] Him I knew of old, but you —

To hear that pickthank, further his designs! [To D'O.]

Guards? — were they here, I'd bid them, for your trouble,
Arrest you.

D'O. Guards you shall not want. I lived
The servant of your choice, not of your need.
You never greatly needed me till now
That you discard me. This is my arrest.
Again I tender you my charge — its duty
Would bid me press you read those documents.

Here, sir! [Offering his badge of office.]

Cha. [taking it.] The papers also! Do you think
I dare not read them?

Pol. Read them, sir!

Cha. They prove,
My father, still a month within the year
Since he so solemnly consigned it me,
Means to resume his crown? They shall prove that,
Or my best dungeon . . .

D'O. Even say, Chambery!
'T is vacant, I surmise, by this.

Cha. You prove
Your words or pay their forfeit, sir. Go there!
Polyxena, one chance to rend the veil
Thickening and blackening 'twixt us two! Do say,
You'll see the falsehood of the charges proved!
Do say, at least, you wish to see them proved
False charges — my heart's love of other times!

Pol. Ah, Charles!

Cha. [to D'ORMEA.] Precede me, sir!

D'O. And I'm at length
A martyr for the truth! No end, they say,
Of miracles. My conscious innocence!

[As they go out, enter — by the middle door, at which he pauses —
VICTOR.

Vic. Sure I heard voices? No. Well, I do best
To make at once for this, the heart o' the place.
The old room! Nothing changed! So near my seat, D'Ormea? [Pushing away the stool which is by the KING'S chair.]

I want that meeting over first,
I know not why. Tush, he, D'Ormea, slow
To hearten me, the supple knave? That burst
Of spite so eased him! He'll inform me . . .

What?
Why come I hither? All's in rough: let all
Remain rough. There's full time to draw back — nay,
There's nought to draw back from, as yet; whereas,
If reason should be, to arrest a course

Of error — reason good, to interpose
 And save, as I have saved so many times,
 Our House, admonish my son's giddy youth,
 Relieve him of a weight that proves too much —
 Now is the time, — or now, or never.

'Faith,

This kind of step is pitiful, not due
 To Charles, this stealing back — hither, because He's from his capital! Oh Victor! Victor!
 But thus it is. The age of crafty men
 Is loathsome; youth contrives to carry off
 Dissimulation; we may intersperse
 Extenuating passages of strength,
 Ardor, vivacity and wit — may turn
 E'en guile into a voluntary grace:
 But one's old age, when graces drop away
 And leave guile the pure staple of our lives —
 Ah, loathsome!

Not so — or why pause I? Turin
 Is mine to have, were I so minded, for
 The asking; all the army's mine — I've witnessed
 Each private fight beneath me; all the Court's Mine too; and, best of all, D'Ormea's still D'Ormea and mine. There's some grace clinging yet.
 Had I decided on this step, ere midnight
 I'd take the crown.

No. Just this step to rise
 Exhausts me. Here am I arrived: the rest
 Must be done for me. Would I could sit here
 And let things right themselves, the masque unmasque
 Of the old King, crownless, gray hair and hot blood, —
 The young King, crowned, but calm before his time,
 They say, — the eager mistress with her taunts, —
 And the sad earnest wife who motions me
 Away — ay, there she knelt to me! E'en yet
 I can return and sleep at Chambery
 A dream out.

Rather shake it off at Turin,
 King Victor! Say: to Turin — yes, or no?

'T is this relentless noonday-lighted chamber,
 Lighted like life but silent as the grave,
 That disconcerts me. That's the change must strike.
 No silence last year! Some one flung doors wide
 (Those two great doors which scrutinize me now)
 And out I went 'mid crowds of men — men talking,
 Men watching if my lip fell or brow knit,
 Men saw me safe forth, put me on my road:

That makes the misery of this return.
 Oh had a battle done it! Had I dropped,
 Haling some battle, three entire days old,
 Hither and thither by the forehead — dropped
 In Spain, in Austria, best of all, in France —
 Spurned on its horns or underneath its hoofs,
 When the spent monster went upon its knees
 To pad and pash the prostrate wretch — I, Victor,
 Sole to have stood up against France, beat down
 By inches, brayed to pieces finally
 In some vast unimaginable charge,
 A flying hell of horse and foot and guns
 Over me, and all's lost, forever lost,
 There's no more Victor when the world wakes up!
 Then silence, as of a raw battlefield,
 Throughout the world. Then after (as whole days
 After, you catch at intervals faint noise
 Through the stiff crust of frozen blood) — there creeps
 A rumor forth, so faint, no noise at all,
 That a strange old man, with face outworn for wounds,
 Is stumbling on from frontier town to town,
 Begging a pittance that may help him find
 His Turin out; what scorn and laughter follow
 The coin you fling into his cap! And last,
 Some bright morn, how men crowd about the midst
 O' the market-place, where takes the old king breath
 Ere with his crutch he strike the palace-gate
 Wide ope!

To Turin, yes or no — or no?

Re-enter CHARLES with papers.

Cha. Just as I thought! A miserable falsehood
 Of hirelings discontented with their pay
 And longing for enfranchisement! A few
 Testy expressions of old age that thinks
 To keep alive its dignity o'er slaves
 By means that suit their natures!

[Tearing them.] Thus they shake
 My faith in Victor!

[Turning, he discovers VICTOR.

Vic. [after a pause.] Not at Evian, Charles?
 What's this? Why do you run to close the doors?
 No welcome for your father?

Cha. [Aside.] Not his voice!
 What would I give for one imperious tone
 Of the old sort! That's gone forever.

Vic. Must
 I ask once more . . .

Cha. No — I concede it, sir!
 You are returned for . . . true, your health declines;
 True, Chambery's a bleak unkindly spot;
 You'd choose one fitter for your final lodge —
 Veneria, or Moncagliè — ay, that's closed
 And I concede it.

Vic. I received advices
 Of the conclusion of the Spanish matter,
 Dated from Evian Baths . . .

Cha. And you forbore
 To visit me at Evian, satisfied
 The work I had to do would fully task
 The little wit I have, and that your presence
 Would only disconcert me —

Vic. Charles?

Cha. — Me, set
 Forever in a foreign course to yours,
 And . . .

Sir, this way of wile were good to catch,
 But I have not the sleight of it. The truth!
 Though I sink under it! What brings you here?

Vic. Not hope of this reception, certainly,
 From one who'd scarce assume a stranger mode
 Of speech, did I return to bring about
 Some awfulest calamity!

Cha. — You mean,
 Did you require your crown again! Oh yes,
 I should speak otherwise! But turn not that
 To jesting! Sir, the truth! Your health declines?
 Is aught deficient in your equipage?
 Wisely you seek myself to make complaint,
 And foil the malice of the world which laughs
 At petty discontents; but I shall care
 That not a soul knows of this visit. Speak!

Vic. [Aside.] Here is the grateful much-professing son
 Prepared to worship me, for whose sole sake
 I think to waive my plans of public good!

[Aloud.] Nay, Charles, if I did seek to take once more
 My crown, were so disposed to plague myself,
 What would be warrant for this bitterness?
 I gave it — grant I would resume it — well?

Cha. I should say simply — leaving out the why
 And how — you made me swear to keep that crown:
 And as you then intended . . .

Vic. Fool! What way
 Could I intend or not intend? As man,

With a man's will, when I say "I intend,"
 I can intend up to a certain point,
 No farther. I intended to preserve
 The crown of Savoy and Sardinia whole :
 And if events arise demonstrating
 The way, I hoped should guard it, rather like
 To lose it . . .

Cha. Keep within your sphere and mine !
 It is God's province we usurp on, else.
 Here, blindfold through the maze of things we walk
 By a slight clue of false, true, right and wrong ;
 All else is rambling and presumption. I
 Have sworn to keep this kingdom : there's my truth.

Vic. Truth, boy, is here, within my breast ; and in
 Your recognition of it, truth is, too ;
 And in the effect of all this tortuous dealing
 With falsehood, used to carry out the truth,
 — In its success, this falsehood turns, again,
 Truth for the world ! But you are right : these themes
 Are over-subtle. I should rather say
 In such a case, frankly, — it fails, my scheme :
 I hoped to see you bring about, yourself,
 What I must bring about. I interpose
 On your behalf — with my son's good in sight —
 To hold what he is nearly letting go,
 Confirm his title, add a grace perhaps.
 There's Sicily, for instance, — granted me
 And taken back, some years since : till I give
 That island with the rest, my work's half done.
 For his sake, therefore, as of those he rules . . .

Cha. Our sakes are one ; and that, you could not say,
 Because my answer would present itself
 Forthwith : — a year has wrought an age's change.
 This people's not the people now, you once
 Could benefit ; nor is my policy
 Your policy.

Vic. [with an outburst.] I know it ! You undo
 All I have done — my life of toil and care !
 I left you this the absolutest rule
 In Europe : do you think I sit and smile,
 Bid you throw power to the populace —
 See my Sardinia, that has kept apart,
 Join in the mad and democratic whirl.
 Whereto I see all Europe haste full tide ?
 England casts off her kings ; France mimics England :

This realm I hoped was safe! Yet here I talk,
 When I can save it, not by force alone,
 But bidding plagues, which follow sons like you,
 Fasten upon my disobedient . . .

[Recollecting himself.] Surely
 I could say this — if minded so — my son?

Cha. You could not. Bitterer curses than your curse
 Have I long since denounced upon myself
 If I misused my power. In fear of these
 I entered on those measures — will abide
 By them: so, I should say, Count Tende . . .

Vic. No!
 But no! But if, my Charles, your — more than old —
 Half-foolish father urged these arguments,
 And then confessed them futile, but said plainly
 That he forgot his promise, found his strength
 Fail him, had thought at savage Chambery
 Too much of brilliant Turin, Rivoli here,
 And Susa, and Veneria, and Superga —
 Pined for the pleasant places he had built
 When he was fortunate and young —

Cha. My father!

Vic. Stay yet! — and if he said he could not die
 Deprived of baubles he had put aside,
 He deemed, forever — of the Crown that binds
 Your brain up, whole, sound and impregnable,
 Creating kingliness — the Sceptre too,
 Whose mere wind, should you wave it, back would beat
 Invaders — and the golden Ball which throbs
 As if you grasped the palpitating heart
 Indeed o' the realm, to mould as choose you may!
 — If I must totter up and down the streets
 My sires built, where myself have introduced
 And fostered laws and letters, sciences,
 The civil and the military arts!
 Stay, Charles! I see you letting me pretend
 To live my former self once more — King Victor,
 The venturous yet politic: they style me
 Again, the Father of the Prince: friends wink
 Good-humoredly at the delusion you
 So sedulously guard from all rough truths
 That else would break upon my dotage! — You —
 Whom now I see preventing my old shame —
 I tell not, point by cruel point, my tale —
 For is 't not in your breast my brow is hid?
 Is not your hand extended? Say you not . . .

Enter D'ORMEA, leading in POLYXENA.

Pol. [advancing and withdrawing CHARLES — to VICTOR.]

In this conjuncture even, he would say
 (Though with a moistened eye and quivering lip)
 The suppliant is my father. I must save
 A great man from himself, nor see him fling
 His well-earned fame away : there must not follow
 Ruin so utter, a break-down of worth
 So absolute : no enemy shall learn,
 He thrust his child 'twixt danger and himself,
 And, when that child somehow stood danger out,
 Stole back with serpent wiles to ruin Charles
 — Body, that's much, — and soul, that's more — and realm,
 That's most of all ! No enemy shall say . . .

D'O. Do you repent, sir ?

Vic. [resuming himself.] D'Ormea ? This is well !
 Worthily done, King Charles, craftily done !
 Judiciously you post these, to o'erhear
 The little your importunate father thrusts
 Himself on you to say ! — Ah, they'll correct
 The amiable blind facility
 You show in answering his peevish suit.
 What can he need to sue for ? Thanks, D'Ormea !
 You have fulfilled your office : but for you,
 The old Count might have drawn some few more livres
 To swell his income ! Had you, lady, missed
 The moment, a permission might be granted
 To buttress up my ruinous old pile !
 But you remember properly the list
 Of wise precautions I took when I gave
 Nearly as much away — to reap the fruits
 I should have looked for !

Cha. Thanks, sir : degrade me,
 So you remain yourself ! Adieu !

Vic. I'll not Forget it for the future, nor presume
 Next time to slight such mediators ! Nay —
 Had I first moved them both to intercede,
 I might secure a chamber in Moncaglièr
 — Who knows ?

Cha. Adieu !

Vic. You bid me this adieu
 With the old spirit ?

Cha. Adieu !

Vic. Charles — Charles !

Cha. Adieu !

[VICTOR goes.]

Cha. You were mistaken, Marquis, as you hear!
 'T was for another purpose the Count came.

The Count desires Moncaglièr. Give the order!

D'O. [leisurely.] Your minister has lost your confidence,
 Asserting late, for his own purposes,
 Count Tende would . . .

Cha. [flinging his badge back.] Be still the minister!
 And give a loose to your insulting joy;
 It irks me more thus stifled than expressed:
 Loose it!

D'O. There's none to loose, alas! I see
 I never am to die a martyr.

Pol. Charles!

Cha. No praise, at least, Polyxena — no praise!

KING CHARLES.

PART II.

D'ORMEA seated, folding papers he has been examining.

This at the last effects it: now, King Charles
 Or else King Victor — that's a balance: but now,
 D'Ormea the arch-culprit, either turn
 O' the scale, — that's sure enough. A point to solve,
 My masters, moralists, whate'er your style!
 When you discover why I push myself
 Into a pitfall you'd pass safely by,
 Impart to me among the rest! No matter.
 Prompt are the righteous ever with their rede
 To us the wrongful: lesson them this once!
 For safe among the wicked are you set,
 D'Ormea! We lament life's brevity,
 Yet quarter e'en the threescore years and ten,
 Nor stiek to call the quarter roundly "life."
 D'Ormea was wicked, say, some twenty years;
 A tree so long was stunted; afterward,
 What if it grew, continued growing, till
 No fellow of the forest equalled it?
 'T was a stump then; a stump it still must be:
 While forward saplings, at the outset checked,
 In virtue of that first sprout keep their style
 Amid the forest's green fraternity.
 Thus I shoot up to surely get lopped down
 And bound up for the burning. Now for it!

Enter CHARLES and POLYXENA with Attendants.

D'O. [rises.] Sir, in the due discharge of this my office —
This enforced summons of yourself from Turin,
And the disclosure I am bound to make
To-night, — there must already be, I feel,
So much that wounds . . .

Cha. Well, sir?

D'O. — That I, perchance,
May utter also what, another time,
Would irk much, — it may prove less irksome now.

Cha. What would you utter?

D'O. That I from my soul
Grieve at to-night's event: for you I grieve,
E'en grieve for . . .

Cha. Tush, another time for talk!
My kingdom is in imminent danger?

D'O. Let
The Count communicate with France — its King,
His grandson, will have Fleury's aid for this,
Though for no other war.

Cha. First for the levies:
What forces can I muster presently?

[D'ORMEA delivers papers which CHARLES inspects.]

Cha. Good — very good. Montorio . . . how is this?
— Equips me double the old complement
Of soldiers?

D'O. Since his land has been relieved
From double imposts, this he manages:
But under the late monarch . . .

Cha. Peace! I know.
Count Spava has omitted mentioning
What proxy is to head these troops of his.

D'O. Count Spava means to head his troops himself.
Something to fight for now; "Whereas," says he,
"Under the sovereign's father" . . .

Cha. It would seem
That all my people love me.

D'O. Yes.

[To POLYXENA while CHARLES continues to inspect the papers.
A temper

Like Victor's may avail to keep a state;
He terrifies men and they fall not off;
Good to restrain: best, if restraint were all.
But, with the silent circle round him, ends
Such sway: our King's begins precisely there.
For to suggest, impel and set at work,
Is quite another function. Men may slight,

In time of peace, the King who brought them peace :
 In war, — his voice, his eyes, help more than fear.
 They love you, sir !

Cha. [to Attendants.] Bring the regalia forth !
 Quit the room ! And now, Marquis, answer me !
 Why should the King of France invade my realm ?

D'O. Why ? Did I not acquaint your Majesty
 An hour ago ?

Cha. I choose to hear again
 What then I heard.

D'O. Because, sir, as I said,
 Your father is resolved to have his crown
 At any risk ; and, as I judge, calls in
 The foreigner to aid him.

Cha. And your reason
 For saying this ?

D'O. [Aside.] Ay, just his father's way !
 [To CH.] The Count wrote yesterday to your forces' Chief,
 Rhebinder — made demand of help —

Cha. To try
 Rhebinder — he's of alien blood. Aught else ?

D'O. Receiving a refusal, — some hours after,
 The Count called on Del Borgo to deliver
 The Act of Abdication : he refusing,
 Or hesitating, rather —

Cha. What ensued ?

D'O. At midnight, only two hours since, at Turin,
 He rode in person to the citadel
 With one attendant, to Soccorso gate,
 And bade the governor, San Remi, open —
 Admit him.

Cha. For a purpose I divine.
 These three were faithful, then ?

D'O. They told it me :
 And I —

Cha. Most faithful —

D'O. Tell it you — with this
 Moreover of my own : if, an hour hence,
 You have not interposed, the Count will be
 O' the road to France for succor.

Cha. Very good !
 You do your duty now to me your monarch
 Fully, I warrant : — have, that is, your project
 For saving both of us disgrace, no doubt ?

D'O. I give my counsel, — and the only one.
 A month since, I besought you to employ

Restraints which had prevented many a pang :
 But now the harsher course must be pursued.
 These papers, made for the emergency,
 Will pain you to subscribe : this is a list
 Of those suspected merely — men to watch ;
 This — of the few of the Count's very household
 You must, however reluctantly, arrest ;
 While here's a method of remonstrance — sure
 Not stronger than the case demands — to take
 With the Count's self.

Cha. Deliver those three papers.

Pol. [while CHARLES inspects them — to D'ORMEA.]
 Your measures are not over-harsh, sir : France
 Will hardly be deterred from her intents
 By these.

D'O. If who proposes might dispose,
 I could soon satisfy you. Even these,
 Hear what he'll say at my presenting !

Cha. [who has signed them.] There !
 About the warrants ! You've my signature.
 What turns you pale ? I do my duty by you
 In acting boldly thus on your advice.

D'O. [reading them separately.] Arrest the people I suspected merely ?

Cha. Did you suspect them ?

D'O. Doubtless : but — but — sir,
 This Forquieri's governor of Turin,
 And Rivarol and he have influence over
 Half of the capital ! Rabella, too ?
 Why, sir —

Cha. Oh, leave the fear to me !

D'O. [still reading.] You bid me
 Incarcerate the people on this list ?
 Sir —

Cha. But you never bade arrest those men,
 So close related to my father too,
 On trifling grounds ?

D'O. Oh, as for that, St. George,
 President of Chambery's senators,
 Is hatching treason ! still —

[More troubled.] Sir, Count Cumiane
 Is brother to your father's wife ! What's here ?
 Arrest the wife herself ?

Cha. You seem to think
 A venial crime this plot against me. Well ?

D'O. [who has read the last paper.] Wherefore am I thus ruined ? Why not take

My life at once? This poor formality
 Is, let me say, unworthy you! Prevent it
 You, madam! I have served you, am prepared
 For all disgraces: only, let disgrace
 Be plain, be proper — proper for the world
 To pass its judgment on 'twixt you and me!
 Take back your warrant, I will none of it!

Cha. Here is a man to talk of fickleness!
 He stakes his life upon my father's falsehood;
 I bid him . . .

D'O. Not you! Were he trebly false,
 You do not bid me . . .

Cha. Is 't not written there?
 I thought so: give — I'll set it right.

D'O. Is it there?
 Oh yes, and plain — arrest him now — drag here
 Your father! And were all six times as plain,
 Do you suppose I trust it?

Cha. Just one word!
 You bring him, taken in the act of flight,
 Or else your life is forfeit.

D'O. Ay, to Turin
 I bring him, and to-morrow?

Cha. Here and now!
 The whole thing is a lie, a hateful lie,
 As I believed and as my father said.
 I knew it from the first, but was compelled
 To circumvent you; and the great D'Ormea,
 That baffled Alberoni and tricked Coscia,
 The miserable sower of such discord
 'Twixt sire and son, is in the toils at last.
 Oh I see! you arrive — this plan of yours,
 Weak as it is, torments sufficiently
 A sick old peevish man — wrings hasty speech,
 An ill-considered threat from him; that's noted;
 Then out you ferret papers, his amusement
 In lonely hours of lassitude — examine
 The day-by-day report of your paid spies —
 And back you come: all was not ripe, you find,
 And, as you hope, may keep from ripening yet,
 But you were in bare time! — Only, 't were best
 I never saw my father — these old men
 Are potent in excuses: and meanwhile,
 D'Ormea's the man I cannot do without!

Pol. Charles —

Cha. Ah, no question! You against me too!

You 'd have me eat and drink and sleep, live, die,
 With this lie coiled about me, choking me!
 No, no, D'Ormea! You venture life, you say,
 Upon my father's perfidy: and I
 Have, on the whole, no right to disregard
 The chains of testimony you thus wind
 About me; though I do — do from my soul
 Discredit them: still I must authorize
 These measures, and I will. Perugia!

[Many Officers enter.]

Count —

You and Solar, with all the force you have,
 Stand at the Marquis' orders: what he bids,
 Implicitly perform! You are to bring
 A traitor here; the man that's likest one
 At present, fronts me; you are at his beck
 For a full hour! he undertakes to show
 A fouler than himself, — but, failing that,
 Return with him, and, as my father lives,
 He dies this night! The clemency you blame
 So oft, shall be revoked — rights exercised,
 Too long abjured.

[To D'ORMEA.] Now, sir, about the work!

To save your king and country! Take the warrant!

D'O. You hear the sovereign's mandate, Count Perugia?
 Obey me! As your diligence, expect
 Reward! All follow to Montcaglièr!

Cha. [in great anguish.] D'Ormea! [D'ORMEA goes.
 He goes, lit up with that appalling smile!

[To POLYXENA after a pause

At least you understand all this?

Pol.

These means

Of our defence — these measures of precaution?

Cha. It must be the best way: I should have else
 Withered beneath his scorn.

Pol.

What would you say?

Cha. Why, do you think I mean to keep the crown,
 Polyxena?

Pol.

You then believe the story

In spite of all — that Victor comes?

Cha.

Believe it?

I know that he is coming — feel the strength
 That has upheld me leave me at his coming!
 'T was mine, and now he takes his own again.
 Some kinds of strength are well enough to have;
 But who's to have that strength? Let my crown go!
 I meant to keep it; but I cannot — cannot!

Only, he shall not taunt me — he, the first . . .
 See if he would not be the first to taunt me
 With having left his kingdom at a word,
 With letting it be conquered without stroke,
 With . . . no — no — 't is no worse than when he left!
 I've just to bid him take it, and, that over,
 We'll fly away — fly, for I loathe this Turin,
 This Rivoli, all titles loathe, all state.
 We'd best go to your country — unless God
 Send I die now!

Pol. Charles, hear me!

Cha. And again

Shall you be my Polyxena — you'll take me
 Out of this woe! Yes, do speak, and keep speaking!
 I would not let you speak just now, for fear
 You'd counsel me against him: but talk, now,
 As we two used to talk in blessed times:
 Bid me endure all his caprices; take me
 From this mad post above him!

Pol. I believe

We are undone, but from a different cause.
 All your resources, down to the least guard,
 Are at D'Ormea's beck. What if, the while,
 He act in concert with your father? We
 Indeed were lost. This lonely Rivoli —
 Where find a better place for them?

Cha. [pacing the room.] And why

Does Victor come? To undo all that's done,
 Restore the past, prevent the future! Seat
 His mistress in your seat, and place in mine
 . . . Oh, my own people, whom will you find there,
 To ask of, to consult with, to care for,
 To hold up with your hands? Whom? One that's false —
 False — from the head's crown to the foot's sole, false!
 The best is, that I knew it in my heart
 From the beginning, and expected this,
 And hated you, Polyxena, because
 You saw through him, though I too saw through him,
 Saw that he meant this while he crowned me, while
 He prayed for me, — nay, while he kissed my brow,
 I saw —

Pol. But if your measures take effect,
 D'Ormea true to you?

Cha. Then worst of all!

I shall have loosed that callous wretch on him!
 Well may the woman taunt him with his child —

I, eating here his bread, clothed in his clothes,
 Seated upon his seat, let slip D'Ormea
 To outrage him! We talk — perchance he tears
 My father from his bed; the old hands feel
 For one who is not, but who should be there:
 He finds D'Ormea! D'Ormea too finds him!
 The crowded chamber when the lights go out —
 Closed doors — the horrid scuffle in the dark —
 The accursed prompting of the minute! My guards!
 To horse — and after, with me — and prevent!

Pol. [seizing his hand.] King Charles! Pause here upon this strip of time

Allotted you out of eternity!

Crowns are from God: you in his name hold yours.
 Your life's no least thing, were it fit your life
 Should be abjured along with rule; but now,
 Keep both! Your duty is to live and rule —
 You, who would vulgarly look fine enough
 In the world's eye, deserting your soul's charge, —
 Ay, you would have men's praise, this Rivoli
 Would be illumined! While, as 't is, no doubt,
 Something of stain will ever rest on you;
 No one will rightly know why you refused
 To abdicate; they'll talk of deeds you could
 Have done, no doubt, — nor do I much expect
 Future achievement will blot out the past,
 Envelop it in haze — nor shall we two
 Live happy any more. 'T will be, I feel,
 Only in moments that the duty's seen
 As palpably as now: the months, the years
 Of painful indistinctness are to come,
 While daily must we tread these palace-rooms
 Pregnant with memories of the past: your eye
 May turn to mine and find no comfort there,
 Through fancies that beset me, as yourself,
 Of other courses, with far other issues,
 We might have taken this great night: such bear,
 As I will bear! What matters happiness?
 Duty! There's man's one moment: this is yours!

[Putting the crown on his head, and the sceptre in his hand, she places him on his seat: a long pause and silence.]

Enter D'ORMEA and VICTOR, with Guards.

Vic. At last I speak; but once — that once, to you!
 'T is you I ask, not these your varletry,
 Who's King of us?

Cha. [from his seat.] Count Tende . . .

Vic.

What your spies

Assert I ponder in my soul, I say —
 Here to your face, amid your guards! I choose
 To take again the crown whose shadow I gave —
 For still its potency surrounds the weak
 White locks their felon hands have discomposed.
 Or I'll not ask who's King, but simply, who Withholds the crown I claim? Deliver it!
 I have no friend in the wide world: nor France
 Nor England cares for me: you see the sum
 Of what I can avail. Deliver it!

Cha. Take it, my father!

And now say in turn,

Was it done well, my father — sure not well,
 To try me thus! I might have seen much cause
 For keeping it — too easily seen cause!
 But, from that moment, e'en more wofully
 My life had pined away, than pine it will.
 Already you have much to answer for.
 My life to pine is nothing, — her sunk eyes
 Were happy once! No doubt, my people think
 I am their King still . . . but I cannot strive!
 Take it!

Vic. [one hand on the crown CHARLES offers, the other on his neck.] So few years give it quietly,

My son! It will drop from me. See you not?
 A crown's unlike a sword to give away —
 That, let a strong hand to a weak hand give!
 But crowns should slip from palsied brows to heads
 Young as this head: yet mine is weak enough,
 E'en weaker than I knew. I seek for phrases
 To vindicate my right. 'Tis of a piece!
 All is alike gone by with me — who beat
 Once D'Orleans in his lines — his very lines!
 To have been Eugene's comrade, Louis's rival,
 And now . . .

Cha. [putting the crown on him, to the rest.] The King speaks, yet none kneels, I think!

Vic. I am then King! As I became a King
 Despite the nations, kept myself a King,
 So I die King, with Kingship dying too
 Around me! I have lasted Europe's time!
 What wants my story of completion? Where
 Must needs the damning break show? Who mistrusts
 My children here — tell they of any break
 'Twixt my day's sunrise and its fiery fall?

And who were by me when I died but they?
D'Ormea there!

Cha. What means he?

Vic. Ever there!

Charles — how to save your story! Mine must go!

Say — say that you refused the crown to me!

Charles, yours shall be my story! You immured

Me, say, at Rivoli. A single year

I spend without a sight of you, then die.

That will serve every purpose — tell that tale

The world!

Cha. Mistrust me? Help!

Vic. Past help, past reach!

'T is in the heart — you cannot reach the heart:

This broke mine, that I did believe, you, Charles,

Would have denied me and disgraced me.

Pol. Charles

Has never ceased to be your subject, sir!

He reigned at first through setting up yourself

As pattern: if he e'er seemed harsh to you,

'T was from a too intense appreciation

Of your own character: he acted you —

Ne'er for an instant did I think it real,

Nor look for any other than this end.

I hold him worlds the worse on that account;

But so it was.

Cha. [to POLYX.] I love you now indeed!

[To VICTOR.] You never knew me!

Vic. Hardly till this moment,

When I seem learning many other things

Because the time for using them is past.

If 't were to do again! That's idly wished.

Truthfulness might prove policy as good

As guile. Is this my daughter's forehead? Yes:

I've made it fitter now to be a queen's

Than formerly: I've ploughed the deep lines there

Which keep too well a crown from slipping off.

No matter. Guile has made me King again.

Louis — 't was in King Victor's time: — long since,

When Louis reigned and, also, Victor reigned.

How the world talks already of us two!

God of eclipse and each discolored star,

Why do I linger then?

Ha! Where lurks he?

D'Ormea! Nearer to your King! Now stand!

[Collecting his strength as D'ORMEA approaches.]

You lied, D'Ormea! I do not repent.

[Dies.]

NOTES

The number of the page is given, followed immediately by the number of the line on the page. The word or passage which is interpreted is given in italics. All the passages on a page are put into one paragraph, but in case there is more than one the page number is not repeated and the number of the line is put in parenthesis.

PAULINE. 4:38, his award; (40) his whom all honor; 5:1, poet; (2) sun-treader, all refer to Shelley.

8:38, A god wandering after beauty, Apollo seeking Daphnis, Ovid, Metamorphoses, i. 554. (39) A giant, Atlas, as described by Ovid, Metamorphoses, iv. 744. (40) an old hunter, Peleus, at his wedding with Thetis. (41) A high-crested chief, Nestor, who sailed to Tenedos after Trojan war, Odyssey, iii. 200.

9:9, Swift-footed, Hermes, who carried messages of gods to Hades, whose wife was Proserpine.

10:36, man preferred to a system is said by Mrs. Orr to be Plato, but the editors of Poet-Lore think Shelley is referred to.

11:27, Plato had the key to life refers to his ideal state and idealistic philosophy.

12:27, Arab birds, pelicans, that fly all night far from land; but some think Birds of Paradise are meant.

13:30, branch from the gold forest, golden bough which Cumæan Sybil told Æneas he must bring to Proserpine to gain admittance to Hades, Æneid, vi. 136.

14:26, that king treading the purple, Agamemnon warned by Cassandra that Clytemnestra would take his life, in Browning's translation of Æschylus' Agamemnon, page 28, line 22. (31) him sitting alone in blood, Actæon torn to pieces by his dogs, Ovid, Metamorphoses, iii. (32) the boy with white breast, Orestes avenging the death of his father, Agamemnon, described in Choephoræ of Æschylus.

16:27, Andromeda, and she is with me, described in Ovid, Metamorphoses, iv. 792. Also that of a picture by Pondoro di Caravaggio, an engraving of which Browning had always before his eyes while he was writing this and his other earlier poem. Of this Sharp says in his Life: "It is strange that among all his father's collection of drawings and engravings nothing had such fascination for him as an engraving of a picture of Andromeda and Perseus by Caravaggio. The story of the innocent victim and the divine deliverer was one of which in his boyhood he never tired of hearing; and as he grew older the charm of its pictorial presentment had for him a deeper and more complex significance."

23:45, the fair pale sister, Antigone, who committed suicide to escape Creon's sentence of death by being buried alive for having interred her brother Polynices at night, Sophocles, Antigone, i. 760.

PARACELsus. 32: 44, Trithemius, Johann, Abbot of St. Jacob, Wurzburg, 1461–1516, teacher of Paracelsus in astrology, alchemy, and magic, in which he was a special adept.

38: 14, riveled, wrinkled; burgonet, a form of helmet.

45: 18, twine amaranth, assertion of immortality, amaranth being with Greeks and Romans a sacred plant and emblem of immortal life, therefore worn at funerals.

46: 10, Turk verse along a scimitar; Turks, Arabs, and other Mohammedans adorn scimitars and other weapons with verses of Koran. (29) genethliac, calculator of horoscopes, or astrologer.

52: 15, fire-labarum; Constantine, founder of Constantinople, used cross as standard, called by him labarum, from laver, to command.

56: 24, wyvern, flying serpent, figured on coats of arms.

64: 17, pansies, Paracelsus' favorite flowers.

66: 14, Rhasis, Rhazes, an Arab physician of tenth century.

68: 7, Castellanus, Pierre Duchatel, French prelate, for whom Erasmus secured a place as corrector of press to Frobenius. (8) Munsterus, Thomas Münzer, taught Hebrew and theology at Basle, took part in peasants' war and was executed, 1490–1525; Frobenius, celebrated printer, publisher of Erasmus's works, cured by Paracelsus, 1460–1527.

70: 19, rear-mice, leather-winged bats. (22) Lachen, village on Lake Zurich.

71: 20, sudary, handkerchief or napkin on which face of Virgin Mary was impressed when she used it. (24) suffumigation, fumigation by smoke as a medical remedy, used by Hippocrates. (29) cross-grained devil in my sword, legend that Paracelsus had a devil or familiar spirit in his sword that he could call upon to do his bidding, described in Hudibras, ii. 3:—

Bumbastus kept a devil's bird
Shut in the pummel of his sword,
That taught him all the cunning pranks
Of past and future mountebanks.

Naudæus, in History of Magic, says of this familiar spirit, "that though the alchemists maintain that it was the secret of the philosopher's stone, yet it were more rational to believe that, if there was anything in it, it was certainly two or three doses of his laudanum, which he never went without, because he did strange things with it, and used it as a medicine to cure almost all diseases."

78: 10, a sick wretch describes the ape, vision seen in delirium.

79: 26, Spain's cork-groves; cork-oak grows in Catalonia and Valencia, provinces of eastern Spain.

81: 7, Præclare, Optime, Bravo! well done.

82: 40, Aëtius, famous Greek medical writer, died at Constantinople, 367; Oribasius, physician of Emperor Julian, 326–403. (41) Serapion, Syrian physician of Damascus, wrote two medical treatises, ninth century; Avicenna, Arab physician and philosopher of tenth century; Averrões, Moorish philosopher of thirteenth century, introduced Aristotle among Mohammedans.

83: 11, Carolostadius, reformer, one of Luther's earliest supporters, became Antinomian fanatic at Wittenberg and leader of iconoclasts, banished, died at Basle, 1541.

84: 1, gangs of peasants refers to peasants' war led by Münzer.

85: 26, Johannes Oporinus, Paracelsus' secretary for three years, chief of his followers, professor of Greek, also printer and bookseller. See page 126, Browning's note 5. Sic itur ad astra, such is the way to the stars, meaning that this is the way to immortality. (30) Liechtenfels, Canon Cornelius of Liechtenfels, who, when dying of gout, called in Paracelsus, received two small pills, and recovered, but refused to pay the bill. See Browning's note 6.

88: 18, Quid multa? Why say more?

90: 6, cassia, cinnamon; sandal, small tree that is very fragrant. (7) labdanum, fragrant exudation from the plants Cistus creticus and Cistus ladaniferus; aloe, fragrant resin of agalloch or lign-aloe. (8) nard, spikenard, fragrant oil of valerian.

92: 41, Fiat experientia corpore vili, Let the experiment be made on a body of no value.

117: 18, Thus he dwells in all; Paracelsus sums up teachings of Kabbalah, which are stated in Encyclopedia Britannica, xiii. 812. The same ideas were entertained by the Neo-Platonists.

STRAFFORD. 130: 32, training infant villanies; Wentworth used his authority in Ireland to manipulate justice to his own ends, that he might gain wealth.

137: 28, nibble at what you do, inquiries made about the Court as to the conduct of Wentworth.

138: 9, your profit in the customs; in a letter to Laud, Wentworth wrote: "I have a share for a short time in these customs, which, while his majesty's revenue is then increased more than £20,000 by year, proves, nevertheless, a greater profit to me than ever I dreamed of."

139: 8, picked up the Queen's glove; Wentworth succeeded ill in his efforts to secure the good-will of the Queen. (12) these insects refers to Wentworth's dislike of the Court attendants and their gossip.

140: 34, you twice prayed so humbly; Wentworth asked Charles to make him an earl, and again proffered the same request in order that his enemies might be thereby refuted.

141: 5, I refused, the first; in fact he wrote the king asking that no other person be informed that his request had been refused.

153: 19, Squires are not the Giant's friends. Wentworth wrote: "The army altogether unexercised, . . . the worst I ever saw. Our horse all cowardly, . . . a general disaffection to the King's service, none sensible of his dishonor. In one word, here alone to fight with all these evils without any one to help."

154: 22, you that told me first; here the poet draws on his imagination, making Lady Carlisle win Strafford to become the king's champion.

155: 29, showing the George, St. George fighting the dragon, on badge of order of the Garter.

159: 28, Theobald's, manor in Hertfordshire, built for Elizabeth.

166: 11, rufflers, swaggerers.

183, scene ii, song of children, O bell' andare; this boat-song is from Redi's "Bacco," and has been long naturalized in the joyous and delicate version of Leigh Hunt. "When the play was rehearsing,

Mr. Browning gave Macready a lilt which he had composed for the children's song in Act V. His object was just to give the children a thing children would croon; but the two little professional singers, Master and Miss Walker, preferred something that should exhibit their powers more effectually, and a regular song was substituted, scarcely, it will be thought, to the improvement of the play." This lilt composed by Browning is given here:—

Andante.

O bell' an - da - re, Per bar - ca, in

ma-re, Ver-so la se-ra, Di pri-ma. Ve-ra, O bell' an - da - re, O bell' an - da - - - re.

184:20, The ignoble Term . . . the Genius on his orb, the Roman god Terminus, who presided over boundaries, Genius being the image that represented a guardian spirit. Browning wrote of these references: "Suppose the enemies of a man to have thrown down the image and replaced it by a mere Term, and you will have what I put in Strafford's head. Putting the Genius on the pedestal usurped, means—or tries to mean—substituting eventually the true notion of Strafford's endeavor and performance in the world, for what he conceives to be the ignoble and distorted conception of these by his contemporary judges."

185:32, his Sejanus, Richelieu and what not, Eliot's denunciation of Buckingham, including Strafford, before Parliament, in 1629; the meaning here being that Strafford may have aimed to do for Charles what Richelieu had done for the kings of France.

SORDELLO. 193:4, friendless-people's friend, Don Quixote, which work was intended by Cervantes to present the interests of the common people, and Browning undertakes the same cause. (6) Pentapolin named o' the Naked Arm, Don Quixote, I. iii. described by the knight when he sees two flocks of sheep: "Know, friend Sancho, that yonder army before us is commanded by the Emperor Alifanfaron, sovereign of the island of Trapoban; and the other is commanded by his enemy the king of the Garamanteans, known by the name of Pentapolin with the naked arm, because he always engages in battle with the right arm bare."

195: 1, stay—thou, spirit, Shelley. (6) the thunder-phrase of the Athenian, Æschylus, who fought as a young man at Marathon, and whose powerful dramas kept alive the great Athenian traditions. (10) Sidney, Sir Philip Sidney. (19) the Second Friedrich, grandson of Barbarossa, crowned as emperor of the Holy Roman Empire, in 1220, by Honorius, third pope of that name. (26) A single eye, Sordello. (43) Count Richard of Saint Boniface, son of Richard of San Bonifaccio, ruler of Verona, a count of the Guelf party. (44) Azzo, Este's Lord, Azzo VII., Marquis of Este and Ancona, leader of Guelf party from 1215. (45) Taurello Salinguerra, leader of Ghibelline party in Ferrara, and its lieutenant in Italy under Ecelin, his name meaning Bullock Sally-in-war.

196: 1, Ecelin Romano, Frederick's chief in northern Italy, a powerful noble, fierce, hard and oppressive, and who raised the house of the Romano to a position of grandeur and influence. (6) Lombard League, a union of the cities of Lombardy in opposition to the Emperor and in favor of the Pope, formed in 1175 against Barbarossa, and included Bologna, Milan, Verona, Mantua, Brescia, Turin, Padua, and other cities, to the number of fifteen. (11) purple pavis, a pavis or pavese, large shield covering the whole body, used when attacking a fortress; when prone its owner was helpless. That used by the Este party was purple in color. (14) your pushing-by refers to Este's venturesome spirit, and that he cannot accomplish what he promises; "your" meaning Este, though spoken to a third person. (17) Duke o' the Rood; Azzo was a knight of the Order of the Holy Cross or Rood, and in being head of the Lombard League might become the Pope's chief supporter. (19) the hill-cat, Ecelin, who was little better than a pirate in his methods of warfare. (22) the lion hunts, Azzo, Lord of Este. (24) like an osprey, Salinguerra, whose mild and generous life was in strange contrast with that of his brother-in-law, the brutal and murderous Ecelin, whose life was devoted to constant outrages and plunderings. (27) Kaiser, Friedrich or Frederick II., one of the greatest rulers of the Middle Ages, liberal, broad-minded, a ripe scholar, a troubadour of no mean ability, and a man of great personal capacities, he ruled with a powerful hand, and though nearly all his life under the ban of the Church, held his Empire loyal to himself. (34) Pontiff, Honorius III., the opponent of Friedrich, and using every influence against him. (35) Oliero, the monastery entered by Ecelin when he became tired of the world. (41) Cino Bocchimpane chanced to meet Buccio Virtu, representatives of the Guelf and Ghibelline parties among the people. (42) God's wafer, the wafer used in the mass, an oath here, Ostia di Dio, the Host of God. (43) Tutti Santi, Italian for All Saints.

197: 1, To Padua; Salinguerra, though head of the Ghibelline party, resided in Ferrara, and was a vassal of Azzo, head of the Guelf party. The Guelfs thought this not consistent, and forced Salinguerra and his adherents out of the city; but in a short time, by means of a treaty, they were permitted to return, only to force out the Guelfs the next year, a year being called by Browning a week; Podestà, mayor or chief of a city. (16) Azzo, stunned awhile, refers to the expulsion by Salinguerra from Ferrara of Azzo and his party, the effort of Azzo and Richard, called by Browning lynx and ounce, to reinstate themselves, and their encamping about the city with their armies. (22) within their walls men fed on men; probably this did not happen, but indicates the straits to which the besieged were reduced. (23) Taurello calls a parley; Salinguerra induces Richard to enter the city with a company of horsemen, under plea of treating for peace, and then imprisons him and his companions, upon which Azzo retires from the siege. (44) dropped the mask; Friedrich had been promising to lead a crusade in order to restore the confidence of the Pope, set sail in August, 1218, but returned in three days. (45) John of Brienne, King of Jerusalem, whose daughter the Emperor had married, and who charged the Emperor with failing in his promises, as well as neglecting his wife for Bianca, who gave birth to two sons by him.

198:2, leisure to retrieve; Friedrich did not wish to undertake a crusade because it would have given his opponents an opportunity during his absence to recover ground lost by them under Otho and Barbarossa. (4) Alps less easy to recross, that he might keep free communication between Germany and northern Italy, and thus prevent any advantage to the papal party. (6) was excommunicate; Gregory IX., Honorius' successor, excommunicated Friedrich Sept. 30, 1229, because of his friendship to the Moslem, his delay in undertaking a crusade, and his supposed insincerity. (7) triple-bearded Teuton, Barbarossa, who was said by legend to be asleep in Unsterberg, and would come to life when his beard had grown three times around his council-table of rock.

199:6, Arpo or Yoland refers to obscure and perhaps unknown origin of the house of Romano, that began with Germans who crossed the Alps with Conrad II., and who held the Trentine Pass into Italy. (9) the Trevisan, the province of Treviso, with its capital city of the same name. (10) Conrad, Conrad III., founder of house of Hohenstauffens, Emperors of Germany, in whose time Guelf and Ghibelline feud began. (11) Ecelo, first of the Ecelin family, grandfather of the Ecelin of this poem. (13) Godego, Ramon, Loria, etc., villages and cities in the hills between Venice and the Alps. (15) Suabian's fief, of these towns and cities the emperor was over-lord as head of the Suabian lords. (18) Vale of Trent, Trent or Tridentium in Tyrol; the valley affords a way of entrance into Italy from the north. (19) Roncaglia, town in same region as those just named, at which Frederick I. held a diet in 1154, and established himself Emperor over this region of northern Italy, proving it of immense value in holding the peninsula as a part of the Empire. (22) sadness fills them all; Ecelin was made ruler of the region in the Asolan hills and Julian Alps by Frederick I., and his fierce character made the people fear his rule. (36) Otho, third of that name, who was ambitious to establish the Empire in Italy.

200:13, Rovigo's Polesine, cities north of the Po, Rovigo being twenty-seven miles from Padua. (14) Ancona's march, the region governed, with Ancona, on Adriatic, as capital. (22) Father Porphyry, imaginary abbot, who destroys documents in order to favor the Este family. (26) Twenty-four, the magistrates of Verona, who discuss in his palace Richard's escape from the clutches of Salinguerra. (30) cressets, lamps borne on long poles as torch-lights. (33) carroch, or carroccio, a great cart drawn by oxen, which held a bell, the standard of the army and the Sacred Host, and carried soldiers in front and behind.

201: 15, Armenian bridegroom, custom among Armenians of being buried in their wedding costume. (17) gate-vein, chief vein in passing blood from abdomen to heart, here used of Sordello as the first to write in the vernacular, and therefore to open the way for Dante; also called forerunner of the same Florentine. (36) John's transcendent vision, Apocalypse or Revelation of Saint John. (45) half is slough; the Mincio, in flowing from the lake of Garda to Po, makes a large swamp about the city of Mantua.

202: 7, Goito, castle at foot of mountains overlooking Mantua. (23) Arab's wisdom, proverbs in Arabic letters engraved on walls of room. (38) Caryatides, figures of women supporting entablatures, so called from Caryatis, as Diana was named, from Carya, town in Arcadia.

203: 39, with all his wives; Ecelin was four times married, to Agnes Este, Speronella Dalesmannini, Cecilia di Abano, and Adelaide di Mangone. Beside these he stole Maria di Camposanpietro, and had a daughter by her, who may be the Auria mentioned.

205: 5, a legend; several primitive theories of creation run along the general lines stated by the poet.

206: 19, that Pisan pair, Nicolo Pisano (Nicholas of Pisa) and his son Giovanni, sculptors and architects of Pisa, were among the leaders in restoring the calmness and freedom of the Greek style. (21) Guidone, Guido da Sienna, whose picture of 1221, now in Sienna, marks the very beginning of the Renaissance. (23) Saint Eufemia's sacristy, a brick church in Verona of the thirteenth century, containing a picture of the saint; and also, it is said, her body reposes there. (35) pyz, sacred coffer, containing relics of saints, which in the Middle Ages were regarded as essential to a church. (37) so they found at Babylon; "It is said that after the city of Seleucia was burnt, the soldiers searching the temple of Apollo found a narrow hole, and when this was opened in the hope of finding something of value in it, there issued from some deep gulf, which the secret magic of the Chaldeans had closed up, a pestilence laden with the strength of incurable disease, which polluted the whole world with contagion, in the time of Verus and Marcus Antoninus, and from the borders of Persia to Gaul and the Rhine." — Ammianus Marcellinus, i. 607. (38) mad Lucius and sage Antonine, Lucius Verus and Marcus Aurelius Antoninus, joint Emperors, Verus being in command of Roman army in the East in 163-5.

207: 4, Loxian, Apollo. (23) foreign women-servants, kept about him because they could not inform him of passing occurrences, owing to their inability to speak his tongue. (33) palmer-worm, a kind of caterpillar, so called from its travelling habits.

208: 12, orpine, a yellow plant called popularly Livelong or Stonecrop, Sedum Telephium. (20) adventurous spider, species of Orbweaver, Orbitelarie, popularly called garden, geometric or diadem spider, which swathes its prey round and round with its web, and makes with its web a long bridge from point to point, but cannot shoot it to great distances, as the poet says it can.

209:2, Naddo, a typical critic of poets; eat fern-seed, supposed anciently to make one invisible. (17) fleering, from Icelandic flyra, to grin, and refers to appearance of laughter in the poppy when in full bloom. (18) crane, the seed-vessel of the ripe poppy.

210:14, Adelaide bent double o'er a scroll; this last wife of Ecelin was accused of magic and astrology. (31) valvassor and suzerain, in feudal law a vassal holding rule under a great lord is a valvassor, while the lord himself is a suzerain.

211:30, Ecelin becomes Imperial Vicar, so made by Otho IV., in 1209, as his representative in Italy. (33) Guelf's paid stabber; Professor Sounenschein says: "In 1209 Otho IV. entered Italy, and held his court near Verona. All the chief lords of Venetia, but especially Eccelin II., da Romano, and Azzo VI., Marquis d'Este, were summoned to attend. Those two gentlemen had profited by the long interregnum which preceded Otho's reign. They had used the various discords between the towns to increase each his own faction; and the hatred between the two was more bitter than ever. A dramatic scene took place at the meeting before the Emperor. When Eccelin saw Azzo, he said, in the presence of the whole court, 'We were intimate in our youth, and I believed him to be my friend. One day we were in Venice together, walking together on the Place of St. Mark, when his assassins flung themselves upon me to stab me; and at the same moment the Marquis seized my arms, to prevent me from defending myself; and if I had not by a violent effort escaped, I should have been killed, as was one of my soldiers by my side. I denounce him, therefore, before this assembly as a traitor; and of you, Sire, I demand permission to prove by a single combat his treachery to me as well as to Salinguerra, and to the podesta of Vicenza.' Shortly afterwards, Salinguerra arrived, followed by a hundred men at arms, and throwing himself at the feet of the Emperor, he made a similar accusation against the Marquis, and also demanded the ordeal of battle. Azzo replied to him, that he had on his hands plenty of gentlemen more noble than Salinguerra ready to fight for him if he was so anxious for battle. Then Otho commanded all three to be silent, and declared that he should not accord to any of them the privilege of fighting for any of their past quarrels. From these two chiefs the Emperor expected greater service than from all other Italians; and he secured their allegiance by confirming the lordship of the Marches of Ancona upon the Marquis, and by declaring Eccelin to be imperial deputy and permanent podesta of Vicenza." (34) the sleight o' the sword, measured for Ecelin's escape, as just narrated above.

212:13, struck Malek down, a supposititious Moor struck down by Sordello. (40) the Miramoline, a Saracen prince of North Africa, whose title was Emiral Maromenium, Prince of the Faithful, another reference to the friendship of Friedrich for the Mohammedans. (43) dates plucked, John of Brienne, king of Jerusalem, sent his son-in-law, Frederick II., a bunch of dates as a reminder of his promise to undertake a crusade, in order that the king might recover his kingdom.

214:9, the Pythons, disappearance of pythons owing to attacks of Apollo, reference to destruction of Python which lived in caves of Parnassus. (13) Delians, priestesses of Apollo at temple of Delos, the statues of girls being so regarded by Sordello. (19) Daphne; Sordello regards leader of these girls as the nymph who loved and was changed into a laurel-tree, Ovid, Metamorphoses, i. v.

215: 21, Northward to Provence that, and thus far south the other, refers to movements of troubadours or singers and makers of songs, and trouveres or story-tellers, between southern France, the chief seat of their art, and Sicily, where they were in high favor in the Emperor's court at Messina. (24) in their very tongue; the troubadours sang in Provençal, the language of the common people.

217: 25, Jongleurs, singers of the songs of the troubadours. (26) Court of Love, poetical tournament held by troubadours, in charge of companies of ladies, one or more of whom acted as judge. (28) Elys; Browning himself says this "is merely the ideal subject, with such a name, of Eglamour's poem, and referred to in other places as his (Sordello's) type of perfection, realized according to his faculty;" the word has meaning of lily, also of lute-string.

218: 8, scarab 'neath the tongue, a knot under the tongue of the sacred bull Apis, in shape like a scarabæus, that was one of the signs of his divinity, here applied by Naddo to Sordello as indicative of his poetical gifts. (35) Squarcialupe and Tagliafer, imaginary jongleurs.

220: 4, a Roman bride; the early Roman bride had her hair parted on her wedding day with a spear, perhaps a remnant of marriage by capture, and said to be an emblem of her husband's authority over her. (42) a poor gnome; the Rosicrucians made gnomes controllers of mines.

222: 26, a plant yielding a three-leaved bell, day-lily, St. Bruno's lily, Hemerocallis liliastrum. (32) My own month, May, Browning's birth-month. (36) Massic jars dug up at Baiæ, Baiæ, a health and fashion resort near Naples, where the famous Massic wine was much used; jars here named after the wine contained in them.

223: 12, Vicenza banished the Vivaresi kith and kin, opening of the Guelf and Ghibelline conflict in 1194; Ecelin, being at head of Vivaresi or Ghibelline party, was exiled from Vicenza by the Counts of Vicenza, who headed the Guelf faction. (14) Maltraversi, a noble family of Padua, belonging to the Guelf party. (21) Elcorte, Sordello's father, who, according to some of the old chroniclers, was a song-writer attached to the Count of Saint Boniface, with whose wife he eloped; the incidents here described by the poet being of the same kind, more legend than fact.

226: 5, huge throbbing stone; Ossian describes bards walking about a rocking stone, and making it move by their singing, as a battle oracle. (27) truchman, an interpreter.

227: 25, rondel, tenzon, virlai or sirvent, forms of verse used by the troubadours and jongleurs; rondel, from rotundus, a thirteen-verse song with repeat in third and fourth verses; tenzon, a musical contest or dialogue between two troubadours, each inventing music and song in reply to the other; virlai, short poem in two rhymes; sirvent, a war-song with which the troubadours cheered their soldiers, no special form of verse being used. (27) angelot, a mediæval lute.

228: 1, Anafest and Lucio, imaginary persons. (5) Bianca: the youth supposes Sordello in love with this woman ; in Dean Milman's tragedy of Fazio, the wife of Fazio, who tried to save her husband's life, but failed and went mad. (39) rewrought that language, Sordello's attempt to combine dialects of Verona, Cremona, and Brescia into a true Tuscan popular speech, as described by Dante in his De Vulgari Eloquentia.

229: 32, sparkles off, intransitive verb, meaning that the new language will sparkle as does bright mail. (34) Apollo from the sudden corpse of Hyacinth ; in training Hyacinth Apollo accidentally killed him while they were playing quoits. (37) Montfort, Simon de Montfort, who led crusade against the Albigenses of Languedoc, an event that brought the troubadour movement to an end.

230: 2, "In this passage the word 'will' is used in a peculiar and somewhat undefinable sense, in which it reappears throughout the poem. It means the power in virtue of which we feel potentially an experience or quality ; i. e., while one may not actually realize a thing, he feels that he has the spiritual capacity to realize it." — W. J. Alexander, Introduction to the Poetry of Browning. "In this, as in other places in this poem, Browning seems to use the word 'will' as equivalent to imagination and the capacity to realize in himself all his images." — Annie Wall, Sordello's Story Retold in Prose. (34) the Poet thwarting hopelessly the Man who ; here "who" refers to Poet, the subject down to "bright" in line 45 ; the "who" that follows refers to Man.

231: 14, Quiver and bow away, the lyre alone ; here quiver and bow symbolize the inner content or imaginative gift of the poet, while the lyre expresses his mastery of language. (21) John's cloud-girt angel, Revelation, x. 1-10. (44) Vidal, troubadour of Toulouse, one of wildest of these poets and most adventurous, disliked by Sordello, and referred to by Dante in Purgatorio, xxvi. 113. (45) murrey-colored, dark red or mulberry color ; filamot, yellow-brown, from feuille-morte.

232: 15, rathe-ripe, Anglo-Saxon hrathe, quick, here used in sense of early ripe. (24) plectre, or plectrum, the ivory or horn staff with which a lyre is struck, a twenty-cubit one being very large.

233: 6, Bocafoli's stark-naked psalms, an imaginary poet of strong realism. (7) Plara's sonnets, imaginary poet of superfine style. (8) knops that stud some almug, knops means knobs, Anglo-Saxon cnoep ; and almug is red sandal wood of China and India, mentioned in 2 Chronicles, ix. 10, 11. (13) pompion, pumpkin.

234: 19, Pappacoda, Tagliafer, typical jongleurs, Tagliafer or Taillefer being the famous minstrel of William of Normandy, who sang the magic song of Roland in front of the army at the battle of Senlac. (22) o'er toise, old French toise, long measure, here meaning overstretch.

235: 7, Count Lori, Loria of Naples, here a typical gallant. (8) peasant-Paul, belonging to Paulicians or Paterini, the sect to which Ecelin is said to have united himself. (21) I am sick, too ; Ecelin, owing to his Paterini ideas, entered convent at Oliero in 1223, having divided his lands between the Pope and his two sons, and planned to unite them in marriage with Beatrix Este and Giglia Saint Boniface, also to marry his daughter Palma to Count Richard

236: 9, congeed, French conger, permitted to take leave, meaning

ironical politeness. (11) green and yellow; a green mantle and gold circlet formed the livery of Ecelin, and also of the Emperor. (12) Retrude, wife of Taurello Salinguerra, daughter of Henry VI. (31) Strojavacca, typical troubadour acting as rival to Sordello. (34) cob-swan, head-swan, leader of flock, from Anglo-Saxon cop, head.

237:24, cat's head and ibis' tail, Egyptian symbols from sacred animals set in mosaic of the pavement. (27) Soldan, Sultan.

238:1, iris root, orris-root. (5) Carian group, sculpture of the Caryatides or Carian women at feast of Diana Caryatis. (30) moon-fern, moonwort; hemionitis, a healing plant; trifoly, clover, trifolium, supposed to have magical qualities.

239:3, byssus, silky fibres by which shell-fish fasten themselves to rocks, and of which silk has been spun. (4) Tyrrhene whelk, shell-fish from which Tyrian purple was made, and exported from Tyre. (5) trireme, ancient ship or galley with three galleries of oars.

241:20, island-house, Emperor's country villa near Palermo, Sicily, called La Favara. (24) Nuocera, a colony of Saracens from Sicily, between Pompeii and Amalfi, settled there by Frederick II. (26) molitious, soft and luxurious. (27) Byzant domes, those of Byzantium or Constantinople, considered as built by the devil because the enemies most hated by Christians erected them. (29) Dandolo; "Enrico Dandolo, one of the patrician family of that name in Venice, was chosen doge in 1192, although already blind and seventy-two years old. After naval successes against the Pisans, he was applied to at the time of the fourth crusade to furnish vessels for transport to Constantinople. After making terms most advantageous to the Republic, he himself led the enterprise to success, and shared with the French in pillage of the city, and very largely in booty and privileges accruing. The four horses of St. Mark's Church were brought over to Venice by him." — Professor Sonnenschein. (33) sardius, Carnelian stone. (34) transport to Venice' Square; this square is adorned with beautiful columns brought from temples and buildings pillaged in many cities by the Venetians.

243:29, bulb dormant; hyacinth bulbs were buried with the dead by the Egyptians as symbols of immortality.

244:11, the end of the siege was nigh, that of Ferrara. (28) You mind refers back to the opening of the poem. (38) the rule of Charlemagne broken by Hildebrand; the Holy Roman Empire as established by Charlemagne was subverted by the methods of Hildebrand in making the Church its superior, and it was Frederick's ambition to restore it to its former prestige and power.

245:18, Now turn; Verona was on the side of Richard, but the adherents of the other party in the city were preparing to aid Ferrara, now undergoing a siege. (23) the candle's at the gateway; candle burning at the gate is made a measure of time, as in laws of King Alfred and in other mediæval customs. (25) Tiso Sampier; Tisolin di Campo St. Pierre and Ecelin I. were intimate friends until the claims of a marriage portion divided them, Ecelin grasping for the whole, a lasting feud arose between them. (26) Ferrara's succored, Palma, the helping of Ferrara by the opposition party in Verona, this remark being from the Ghibelline side, while the words beginning above with "Now, Lady," are from the Guelf point of view. (36) Agnes' milk; Palma had the mildness of her mother, Agnes Este, as compared with the fierceness of her father, Ecelin.

246:41, Cesano, city of Emilia, between Bologna and Ancona, that often changed sides in the fierce struggles of the time, described by Dante, Inferno, xxvii. 47-52, as living midway between tyranny and freedom.

247:18, insuperable Tuscan, Ecelin's wife Adelaide.

248:20, the orb I sought to serve; Browning identifies his Palma with Dante's Cunizza, placed by him in third heaven of Venus, Paradiso, ix. 13-36, daughter of Ecelin the monk, and sister of Ecelin the cut-throat; but she was devoted to love. (21) Fomalhaut; this star in constellation of the Southern Fish is associated by the poet with Venus, in primitive form a fish-goddess, and made by Dante (Purgatorio, i. 19-21), and also by Browning, a love influence. (40) first knight who followed Conrad; Ecelo was an adventurous follower of Conrad II.

249:6, Saponian strength; Browning explained this as referring to the Saponi family, a branch of the Ecelin, which settled in Lombardy before time of Sordello. (13) Podesta among the Vicentines; Ecelin was at head of Vicenza, and afterwards held power in Padua. (21) Alberic, Palma's younger brother; lion's-crine, lion's hair, Latin crinis, hair, meaning yellow or golden. (34) Adelaide of Susa, Marchioness of Piedmont, contemporary of Matilda, Countess of Tuscany, and who mediated between Pope and Emperor, both these women being effective rulers and of great influence in their time on Italian politics. (39) Our Adelaide, Adelaide of Tuscany, who kept Trentine Pass open for the Emperor, as Adelaide of Susa did that through the Alps into France for the Pope.

251:44, Verona's Lady, Palma. (45) Brennus, general of Gauls, who, in 385 B. C., marched on Rome, climbed the Tarpeian rock, and was about to enter the citadel, when the sacred geese gave the alarm, and the invaders were driven back by Manlius, and all killed.

252:7, platan, plane-tree. (8) archimage, a superior magician or head of the Magi. (20) put aside entrance — thy synod, not permit any fresh thought or new ideas to enter the synod.

253:23, colibri, humming-birds.

254:2, Bassanese, Bassano on the Brenta, an old home of the Ecelin. (14) Giudecca, Venetian canal.

255:14, fastuous, haughty. (22) shent, blamed, Anglo-Saxon, scendan. (41) Basilic, Basilica of St. Mark's in Venice. (42) Corpus Domini, Body of the Lord, the feast of Sacrament Day, Thursday after Trinity Sunday.

256:11, God spoke of right-hand, foot and eye, Matthew v. 29. (19) losel, lose-all, worthless fellow. (45) mugwort, herb of the genus Artemisia.

257:1, Zin the horrid, desert without water, Numbers xx. 1. (9) Potsherd him, Gibeonites, Joshua ix. and x. (14) Meribah, Numbers xx. 13.

258:14, Piombi, in Ducal palace at Venice terrible torture-cells immediately under the roof. (17) Zanze, imaginary object of beauty.

259:33, Hercules first parched, legend of journey of Hercules to Egypt in search of apples of Hesperides, captured by Busiris, the king, who was about to sacrifice him to Zeus when he broke bonds, and slew Busiris and his servants. (44) my patron-friend, Walter Savage Landor, one of the first admirers of Browning's poetry, and who praised it when others criticised.

260:1, like your own trumpeter at Marathon refers to poems of Landor treating of Æschylus and his service at battle of Marathon and his use of his experiences in his drama of The Persians, as well as his going to Sicily, where King Hiero was then building city of Ætna; likewise to Browning's visit to Landor, near Ætna. (10) a flawless ruby; Polycrates of Samos had a ruby he threw into the sea by advice of Amasis, King of Egypt, because the great luck it gave him might bring on him vengeance of the gods; but a fish presented to him was found to contain it in its stomach. (14) your verse, Landor's poem of appreciation. (16) my English Eyebright, one of Browning's early friends, whose name Euphrasia means Eyebright, the flower of that name being Euphrasia officinalis. (45) Xanthus, a disciple of St. John in A Death in the Desert.

261:3, Polycarp, early Christian martyr, said to be disciple of St. John. (4) Charicle, imaginary disciple with Polycarp. (24) twyprong, pastoral cross; first is forked prong of hazel or almond used by magicians in raising the devil, contrasted with Y-shaped cross on priest's vestments.

262:10, quitchgrass, dog-grass, or couch-grass, which is very difficult of extermination. (20) Montelungo, Gregorio di Montemongo, pontifical legate of Gregory IX. (28) Tito, Friedrich's representative from Trent. (30) Mainard, Lord of Tyrol, capital at Görz. (36) arbalist, cross-bow; manganel, battering-ram; catapult, engine for throwing stones into besieged city or camp.

263:3, crested white ostrich with horse-shoe in beak, crest of Ecelin. (23) cautelous, wary, old French cautelle, inability of Barbarossa to conquer Alexandria, built by Lombard League. (29) Brenta and Bacchiglion; the first, a river near Padua; the other, a river that runs by Vicenza and Padua. (36) Concorezzi, noble family in Padua. (37) San Vitale, village near Vicenza.

264:39, Messina marbles Constance took delight in; Constance, Norman heiress of Sicily, married Henry VI., and therefore Messina became seat of the Emperors, the marbles being statues in their palace.

265:7, the Fighter, and 16, the Slave, statues in Taurello's garden-terrace.

270:12, twy-necked eagle, the two-headed eagle that was symbol of the Empire. (16) Palma knew what Salinguerra meant to do, to assume for himself the chief place.

271:13, basnet, bascinet, light helmet of basin-shape.

272:1, what past life; there follows an account of the life and experiences of Taurello Salinguerra, who belonged to the Torelli family of Ferrara, and was a beneficent and noble ruler. (4) Adelardi, a noble family of Ferrara opposed to the Torelli. (13) Blacks and Whites; the Guelfs were called Neri or Blacks, and the Ghibellines the Bianchi or Whites. (14) Taurello wed Linguetta; when

Taurello was a young man he proposed to wed Linguetta Marchesalla, heiress of her family; but the opposing or Guelf faction, led by the Adelardi, carried her off, and, on pretense of a hunt, got him out of the city, while Azzo entered it with Linguetta. Taurello went to court of Henry VI., married Retrude, and returned to Ferrara, built a palace, was soon after attacked, and his wife mortally wounded; at last he was successful and secured the city.

274: 10, Matilda, Countess of Tuscany, 1046–1114, friend and helper of Hildebrand, a powerful defender of the Church and a great ruler. (18) Heinrich, Henry VI., Emperor, 1190–1197. (19) Philip, rival to Otho as Emperor, 1197–1208. (24) Otho, Otho IV., papal contestant to Empire against Frederick II. (43) Jove trined for her; Adelaide's belief in astrology led her to think it an auspicious event when Jupiter, the earth, and a third planet made a triangle of 120 degrees or a third of the zodiac. (44) from Friedrich's path; the poet here assumes that Adelaide led Frederick II. to oppose the Pope and not undertake a crusade, using Taurello for this purpose, seeing in him certain astrologic signs favorable to his success.

275: 2, Guido the Bolognian, a little known painter of the twelfth century. (7) clove he not Tiso, last siege; the skill of Taurello as a leader is referred to, and not exact history, as W. M. Rossetti's translation of Muratori's account of this shows, who says: "Salinguerra, the old fox, fearing lest the populace should rise against him on account of the rigors of the siege, sent to the Marquis, conceding to him to enter Ferrara, where concord between the parties might be amicably treated of. The Marquis fell unsuspectingly into the net, and with one hundred noblemen of his party he entered the city. Thereupon Salinguerra, raising a rumor that the new-comers insolently seized upon provisions and committed other outrages, shouted To arms! to arms! Some of the visitors had the good fortune of escaping along with the Marquis; the others were slain, and among these Tisolino of Campo San Pietro, a most noble Paduan knight, was stopped while retiring by the peasants of a village named Girzola or Guzola, and killed." (27) old Azzo and old Boniface, heads of the Este and Boniface houses, whose sons Aldrovandio Este and Guglielm Boniface died in three years after the deaths of their fathers, and were succeeded by Azzo VII. and Richard Boniface, so often mentioned in the poem. (33) at bay; the power of Taurello in Ferrara became too strong for that of Azzo.

276: 45, old compeer; Taurello so describes Ecelin, and recalls their experiences together.

277: 22, scapular, a monk's garment worn over shoulder and breast in two strips, usually called scapulary. (23) cowl, monk's hood. (29) Pilio and Bernardo, imaginary persons of Guelf faction. (30) San Biagio, St. Biase, village near Lake of Garda.

279: 35, poor minstrel, Sordello. (39) lentisk, the mastich-tree of north Africa, Pistacia lentiscus.

280: 4, his son's besotted youth, Ecelin III., whose fiendish temper made him a cut-throat and son of the devil, as he was called, or, as Ariosto said:—

Fierce Ecelin, that most unhuman lord,
Who shall be deemed by men a child of hell.

40, poison-wattles, the excrescence or lobe of flesh on a lizard's neck.

282:40, Crescentius Nomentanus; in 998 "Rome made a bold attempt to shake off the Saxon yoke, and the consul Crescentius was the Brutus of the Republic. From the condition of the subject and an exile, he twice rose to the command of the city, oppressed, expelled, and created the popes, and formed a conspiracy for restoring the authority of the Greek emperors. In the fortress of St. Angelo, he maintained an obstinate siege, till the unfortunate consul was betrayed by a promise of safety; his body was suspended on a gibbet, and his head was exposed on the battlements of the castle."—Gibbon, chap. xlix.

283:3, Innocent, third of that name, Pope in 1198, who put down the party that favored wives for monks and secular ways of living. (12) vulgar priest and a vile stranger; John XV. and Otho III. are meant. (26) phanal, beacon-light. (32) Consul; Crescentius was so put to death.

284:5, Rome of the Pandects; Justinian's laws abridged and digested, made in sixth century, were called Pandects, and these furnished the common law of the Empire. (38) mooned sandal; crescent was worn on toe of shoes at this time. (40) atria, chief room, with court and fountain, in Roman house. (41) stibadium, reclining couch used by Romans at meals.

285:26, obsidian, glassy product of volcanoes. (27) fulgurant, like flash of lightning. (41) Mauritanian tree, citrus-wood of North Africa, Mauritania being one of its countries. (44) demiurge, secondary creator or instrument through which God creates.

286:4, Mareotic juice from Cæcuban; Lake Mareotis in Egypt was famous for its wine, which is here regarded as better than that of Cæcubum in Latium. (19) Pythonesse conceding to a Lydian King; priestess of Apollo gave Cræsus of Lydia an oracle he interpreted in his own favor, but it led to the destruction of his kingdom by Cyrus, Herodotus i. 26.

287:1, Alcamo, Sicilian poet of Palermo, 1112–1178. (3) Nina, poetess of Sicily, first woman who wrote in Italian. (4) turning his name o'er and o'er; Nina is spoken of as one "whose love of her art caused her to become enamored of a poet whom she had never seen. This fortunate bard (who returned her poetical passion) was called Dante; but we cannot plead in her excuse that he had anything else in common with the great poet of that name. She was so engrossed by her passion for her lover that she wished herself always to be called The Nina of Dante." (36) priests for castellans and popes for suzerains, the feudalization of the church, making priests like governors of castles and popes like great lords.

288:8, Hildebrand of the huge brain-mask, the great feudal organizer of the Catholic Church, who made it superior in power to the Empire and became Pope Gregory in 1073; the brain-mask referring to his astuteness and ability to bring about the greatest ends through others, and when his own mighty intellectual force was hidden. (19) mandrake thwarted and dwarfed, old superstition that the forked root of the mandrake caused it to shriek with pain, as Hildebrand is supposed to have done with his great labor. (30) the three Imperial crowns, three crowns worn by Emperor in succession, that of the crowning at Aachen as King of Franks, that at Pavia or Milan as King of Sicily, and that at Rome as Emperor; the first being of iron, the second of silver, and the third of gold. (32) Alexander, second pope of that name, who was put into office by Hildebrand, in 1061; Innocent, the third of the name, 1198, who became a great Papal ruler. (38) Peter's cry, Peter the Hermit preaching the crusades, the first begun at Claremont in 1095. (44) wild harangue of Vimmercato, place of formation of a league against Frederick I., likened to the effort being made to overcome the liberal policy of Frederick II., and his wish to check the authority of the Popes.

289:1, Mantuan Albert, Patriarch of Jerusalem, umpire between Emperor and Pope. (2) Saint Francis, of Assisi, founder of Order of St. Francis, 1182-1226, who preached peace, and regarded all creatures as his "brothers and sisters." (3) God's Truce, "Truce of God," or suspension of arms in 999.

290:33, hacqueton, quilted jacket worn under armor.

291:4, trabea, Roman toga worn as regal robe.

292:44, thyrsus, spear carried at feasts of Bacchus, wrapped about with ivy.

294:20, the Caliph's wheel-work man of brass refers to Haroun al Raschid, 756-809, the renowned Caliph, who had great love of mechanics, and who sent to Charlemagne a manikin such as the poet describes.

297:28, Friedrich with his red-hot tomb, as described by Dante, Inferno, x. 120, who placed the Emperor in a fiery tomb of his city of flame. (29) Lombard Agilufh, King of Lombardy, chosen by Theodolinda to succeed her husband, Authari, in 590. (31) Matilda I enshrine, Dante, in Purgatorio, xxviii. 53-64, meets the famous Tuscan Countess, and she becomes his guide in place of Virgil, shooting upon him glances of Venus, the planet that goes with the sun in rising and setting.

298:34, the spoils of every clime at Venice; this city was in Middle Ages the great commercial centre of the West, and into St. Mark's Cathedral were gathered spoils from every clime. (35) snouted god, Set. (37) cinerary pitcher, great jar used for burial purposes. (39) earth's reputed consummations; finest treasures of the world were brought to St. Mark's. (40) all-transmuting Triad; St. Mark, St. Pantaleon, and St. Lawrence Justiniani were the patron saints of Venice, whose statues stood in St. Mark's, regarded as in their combined powers giving the city its prosperity.

300:17, writhled, wrinkled or shrunken. (22) pauldron, part of armor plate to defend shoulders.

301:12, Retrude the frail mother refers to death of Retrude at sack of Ferrara and loss of her child, the future Sordello. Line 8, "Cut off a moment," to line 26, "That deprecating glance?" gives a sentence of which she is the subject. In line 21 Sordello is referred to as the natural chief, but now an infant. In line 26, "A new shape," Adelaide becomes the subject, who rejoices at the misery of Sordello. She finds Taurello is superior to her husband Ecelin, and steals his child to rear him in secret. Her object in this is to prevent Taurello's growing power from passing to his child and taking the place of her own as chief of the Emperor.

302: 43, Native of Gesi, city in province of Ancona, of which Frederick II. was a native.

303: 23, Samminiato secures us Florence, in Pisa's case; the possession of the hill Samminiato will control Florence as the possession of Florence will control Pisa. (26) Pistoia; the command of Florence will control all the neighboring cities. (31) whose first span; the power of the Emperor would gradually pass, from its entrance into Italy at the Trentine pass in the Alps, to include the southern regions of Romagna and Bologna. (32) Valsugan, town on the Brenta, between Trent and Venice. (33) Sofia's Egna by Bolgiano's sure; the pass of Bolgiano was insured to the Ghibellins by the marriage of Sofia Ecelin and Henry of Egna.

304: 14, Torriani, Lombard faction of Valsassina, fighting the Visconti, a Ghibellin family with Otho Visconti, archbishop of Milan, at its head, 1262. The first were democrats, the other family aristocrats.

305: 43, rebuild Charlemagne; Taurello and Sordello were to destroy the papal strength and give new power to the Empire as represented by Charlemagne, its founder.

306: 17, Drive Trent upon Apulia, push the interests of the Empire from the extreme north to the extreme south of Italy. (21) To Palma, Dante spoke with in the clear amorous silence of the swooning-sphere, — Cunizza, as he called her; Cunizza was sister to Ecelin III., and is mentioned by Dante in Paradiso, ix. 32. She was married to Richard St. Boniface, but had an intrigue with Sordello, Purgatorio, vi. Then she lived with a soldier, married a nobleman of Braganza, and finally a gentleman of Verona. She was described as a lady who "lived lovingly in dress, song, and sport, but consented not to any impropriety or unlawful act." Browning changes Cunizza into Palma for some reason of his own, as he here admits. (42) purulent, diseased, matured.

309: 23, jacinth, hyacinth of mineralogy, several kinds of stone. 24, flinders, fragments of shining metal.

310: 19, Cydippe by the hair, lames barefoot Agathon, imaginary persons who meet with difficulties, but probably drawn from Ovid, story of Cydippe and Acantius.

311: 15, Dularete, imaginary person like Naddo, representing cultivated but sensuous artistic temperament.

314: 15, brakes at balm-shed, brake-ferns at time of shedding their seeds. (45) the sluggish asp; as the asp drains the blood of its victim its cowl becomes stained with the blood and its eyes become bright.

315: 32, reate, a water weed. (33) gold-sparkling grail, yellow gravel.

316: 16, citrine-crystals, quartz of a yellow and pellucid kind; pyropus-stone, carbuncle of fiery redness. (31) Tūan, constellation of Orion. (32) Centaur, constellation of that name in southern hemisphere.

317: 14, Brutus, feigned madness of Lucius Brutus before Tarquin, but sane efforts to overthrow him when out of his presence.

320: 5, the king-bird, Egyptian Phoenix, sacred to Osiris, is said by Herodotus, ii. 73, to travel to Heliopolis once in five hundred years to die, enters temple of Sun with gold and crimson plumes, and buries its father (or itself) in an egg of myrrh. (28) old fable, the two eagles; according to Pindar, fourth Pythian ode, Jove's golden eagles were placed near the sacred tripod, from which one flew east and the other west until they met at Delphi or Pytho.

321:18, our chief refers to efforts made in 1225 to secure the release of Richard from Taurello, which were successful.

322:6, hushed up this evening's work, a plain suggestion that the poet had made his own Sordello in the poem, using the chroniclers to give historic setting to his incidents. (20) Campese, on Brenta, near Bassano. (21) Solagna, village near Vicenza. (32) in Verona half the souls refuse allegiance to the Marquis and the Count; on his release Richard went to Verona, but in a few months many leading persons in the city joined with the Montecchi family, Ghibellins, and drove him out, led thereto, says Muratori, by Taurello's money. Ecelin di Romano went to the help of this movement, being a chief ally of Taurello.

323:18, she captured him in his Ferrara; Taurello was captured at siege of Ferrara by the papal party in 1240, being then eighty years of age. He was imprisoned at Venice, where, according to Milman, History of Latin Christianity, book x, chap. iv., he lived for five years.

324:7, big-boned Alberic, second son of Ecelin the Monk, Podesta of Vicenza in 1236, and though detested by the Lombards was not so fiendish as his older brother, called "the devil." (11) anointed to rend and rip; the older of the Ecelin brothers was called by himself the "scourge of God," and such he was at capture of Padua in 1237, when he committed the most atrocious barbarities; and these he carried into all northern Italy. (14) Lombards band together, league against Ecelin the devil; he gained the victory and seized Mantua and Brescia, but another uprising led to his defeat in 1259, when he was captured, refused to eat, tore bandages from his wounds, and died. (18) Valley Rù by San Zenon, Alberic's castle in eastern Alps, where he was besieged in 1260, betrayed by his followers, tied to tail of a horse, and dragged to death, his sons torn in pieces, his wife and two daughters burned at the stake. (23) raunce, broken stone or marble. (30) cushats chirre, wood-pigeon's or ring-dove's cooing note.

325:19, Sordello Prince Visconti; Aliprando, in his chronicle of Milan, makes Sordello a member of the Visconti family, and gives him a very flattering history. Miss Wall says: "The chronicles of Mantua tell how Sordello, Prince Visconti, saved that city and elsewhere distinguished himself greatly; that he was famous as a minstrel and fortunate as a lover; he was praised for the very things he never did and never could have done."

326:17, the few fine locks; a child of modern Asola is made by the poet to sing these lines, attributed to Sordello's first poem. (33) rifle a musk-pod; the aim of the poet has been to produce an enduring fragrance like that of musk, that at first causes an ache, but gradually becomes attractive.

PIPPA PASSES. 329:16, martagon, lily, Lilium Martagon. (17) St. Agnes', martyr of fourth century, who was beautiful and admired. (18) Turk bird's poll, turkey, because brought from Turkey.

330: 15, Possagno church, designed by Canova, native of the city, in form a circular temple.

334: 9, proof-mark, indications of first or later impressions of a print.

335: 11, he is turned, superstition that murdered man's face looks towards heaven for vengeance.

340: 8, et canibus nostris, and to our dogs, Virgil, Eclogues, iii. 67. 14, all in a tale, compelled to tell the same story.

341: 19, Psiche-fanciulla, one of Canova's finest works, representing Psyche as a girl with butterfly. (23) unfinished Pieta, in Possagno church a statue of Mary with dead Christ in her arms. (39) Malamocco, island near Venice with town; Alciphron, Greek philosopher of time of Alexander the Great. (43) lire, Italian coin of value of twenty cents. (45) Tydeus at the Academy, one of heroes of Theban war, and Academy of Fine Arts, Venice.

342: 2, Fenice, Phenix, leading theatre in Venice. (20) Hannibal Scratchy, burlesque spelling of Annibale Caracci, famous Italian painter.

343: 34, Coluthus, Greek poet of sixth century, native of Lycopolis in Egypt, whose poem on the Rape of Helen was discovered by Bessarion, Greek cardinal of fifteenth century. (35) bistre, dark brown paint made of wood soot. (41) Antinous, Odyssey, xxii. 10.

344: 13, thunder-free; protection from lightning was anciently thought to be secured by wearing the crown of bay or laurel. (15) Hipparchus, Athenian tyrant and patron of letters, who was slain in 514 B. C., at festival of Panathenaea by participants who concealed their daggers in the myrtle branches they bore. (29) parsley crowns; the kind of parsley known to us as celery was used by ancients for its fragrance, leaves being made into crowns for drinking bouts.

348: 37, Kate the Queen, Caterina Cornaro, 1454-1510, Queen of Cyprus, but abdicated, and was given a palace at Asola by Venice, her native city.

349: 9, jesses, strap about hawk's leg, to which is attached strap held by falconer.

350: 29, Bluphocks, reported to mean "Blue Fox," a hit at Edinburgh Review, which was bound in blue and fox. (30) Intendant, superintendent of estates inherited by a bishop. (36) grig, cricket.

351: 6, Celarent, Darii, Ferio, words used in logic, without other meaning. (8) posy, poesy. (22) zwanzigers, twenty-kreuzer, piece of Austrian money. (35) Panurge consults Hertrippa; in Rabelais' Gargantua and Pantagruel Panurge consults Hertrippa as to his marriage.

352: 6, deposed, obsolete form of deposited. (10) Carbonari, Italian secret society seeking liberation from Austria. (27) Old Franz, Francis I., Emperor of Austria.

355: 9, Andrea, Pier, Gualtier, conspirators against Austrian rule in Italy. (35) I am the bright and morning star, Revelation ii. 28.

359: 19, ortolans, small singing-birds much esteemed by epicures for the table. (21) polenta, pudding made of corn-meal.

360: 11, Benedicto benedicatur, a specially strong form of benediction.

361: 32, podere, small farm.

362: 12, soldo, copper coin, of value of sou or penny. (21) poderi, plural of podere.

364: 13, the seven and one, Pleiades and Aldebaran. (23) Miserere mei, Domine, Be merciful to me, O Lord. (25) dray, nest. (28) hedge-shrew, field-mouse; lob-worm, larger than earth-worm, of same kind.

366: 25, mavis, English song-thrush; merle, English black-bird; throstle, a thrush. (33) cowls and twats; Browning said of the word twats: "The word struck me as a distinctive part of a nun's attire that might fitly pair off with the cowl appropriated to a monk," thus used to mean a hood.

KING VICTOR AND KING CHARLES. 371: 33, Is it not like he'll love me at the last? Victor had a brilliant son who died at seventeen, then he devoted himself ardently to the education of Charles, made him familiar with all state affairs, and did nothing without discussing it with his son; but otherwise treated him harshly, giving him no liberties.

375: 10, Spain entertains a project, that of return of Bourbons to Italy; both France and Austria made overtures to Victor for his aid if an attempt of this kind was made; he made promises to both, and when his double attitude was about being disclosed he abdicated in favor of Charles.

379: 5, Annunziata, chief order of knights of the Kingdom of Savoy. (7) Del Borgo, Minister of Foreign Affairs, an intriguer, but adroit. (18) D'Ormea, Minister of State, who had been raised to power by Victor, to whom he had rendered important services, but had been very poor and without family connections at first. (31) gal-liot, Dutch sailing vessel used for trade.

382: 11, You resign the crown to me? "He called his son to him, and declared to him his design. The young prince, astonished, troubled, fearing perhaps that this overture was only a trap in order to prove him, said to the King all that was proper to turn him from such a design. He prayed the King, if he really thought a time of repose was necessary to his health, to confer upon him the temporary exercise of authority, reserving the right to retake the crown when he thought proper. He ended by throwing himself at his father's feet and conjuring him to change his resolution."

383: 30, Act of Abdication, read September 3, 1730, by Marquis Del Borgo, in presence of ministers, knights, and the great of the nation, giving Victor's reasons, old age, and wish for rest before his death.

384: 30, Captain against Catinat, battle of Straffarde, when French gained victory over Savoy and ravaged the country; but at battle of Turin Victor severely beat the French.

386: 1, Louis of the South, as rival of Louis XIV. of France.

391: 8, Marchioness Sebastian; after death of his queen, Victor married Anna Teresa Canali, a lady in waiting to his queen and daughter, but did not make it known until his abdication. He made her Countess of Spigno, and was ruled by her to a large degree.

399: 5, Moncalier, town four miles south of Turin.

401: 17, Susa and Superga, towns in neighborhood of Turin. (31) fostered laws and letters; Victor was very public-spirited, did much for education and arts, founded a college at Turin, and prepared Victorian Code of four volumes for governing his kingdom.

404: 13, Fleury's aid, Cardinal, supposed to be a helper of Victor, but probably intrigued against him.

405: 14, Rhebinder, marshal of the army. (17) Count called on Del Borgo to deliver the Act of Abdication; after leaving the throne Victor took up his abode in the old castle of Chambéry, with his marchioness. Here ennui beset him, even the company of his lady not being sufficient to overcome it. He had an attack of apoplexy, which rendered his mental faculties feeble, and caused him to be irritable, and subject to violent fits of passion. The marchioness had set her heart on being a queen, no less than a king's consort, and she had no rest till she had stirred up Victor to seize again the crown he had voluntarily laid aside.

The king, his son, twice visited Victor in his retirement; and in the second interview, which took place in the summer of 1731, as Charles Emanuel accompanied his queen, Polyxena of Hesse, to the baths of Evian, he found his father querulous, captious, and dissatisfied with the policy pursued by the new government. Victor directed from Chambéry the councils of his son, and he, apparently, complained both that his instructions had not been literally followed, and that during and after his illness the communications of the ministers with him had suffered interruption.

Charles Emanuel quitted his father after three days, and proceeded to Evian; but he had scarcely arrived at this place when a young Savoyard priest, by name Michon, announced to him that, having been admitted to view the royal apartments at Chambéry, he had, by the sheerest chance, overheard a conversation between the old king and the marchioness, from which it was clear that they contemplated a journey to Turin, with a view to possess themselves of the royal authority.

Charles Emanuel lost no time in crossing the Alps, and followed the less frequented path of the little St. Bernard to avoid an encounter with his father on Mont Cenis. Through this latter mountain, in fact, the old king had travelled with his best speed, but he nevertheless only reached Rivoli in time to hear the cannon announcing his son's arrival at the royal palace in the capital. Charles did not fail to pay his respects to his father on the morrow. Victor pleaded, as a reason for his return, his desire to live in a more genial climate than that of Savoy; and the young king, who had in reality advised such a removal at the time of his stay in Chambéry, showed himself satisfied with his father's resolution, however sudden, and placed the castle of Moncalieri at Victor's disposal.

At Moncalieri the old king received the homage of his son's ministers, and gave vent in their presence to his ill-humor and dissatisfaction, and even allowed himself some harsh and threatening expressions against them. The marchioness, always by his side, gave herself queenly airs, and her demeanor to the young queen, both at Chambéry and at her new residence, gave Charles Emanuel the first hint of his father's intentions, while at the same time it obliged him, were it only out of regard to the royal lady who shared his throne, to frustrate them.

On the twenty-fifth of September, 1731, in the evening, Victor Amadeus sent for the Marquis del Borgo, and bade him deliver up the deed of abdication. The minister in the greatest perplexity gave some evasive answer, and hastened to convey to the king the unexpected demand. Charles Emanuel was a modest, submissive son; a man of upright, pious, generous nature. His first impulse was, it seems, compliance with his father's wishes. Awakened from his sleep by del Borgo, he summoned his ministers around him, and with them the Archbishop of Turin, Charles Arboreo of Gattinara, and other conspicuous personages. To these he communicated his father's desires, adding that he was ready for his own part to give his consent, but that he did not deem himself authorized to divest himself of the royal dignity without at least the knowledge of those in whose presence he had solemnly accepted it.

The king's lay advisers, not unmindful of Victor's threats, were terrified at the prospect of his return to power; they dared not nevertheless too openly propose a son's rebellion against his father, and none of them ventured to break silence. The archbishop, Gattinara, strongly and at full length demonstrated the unreasonableness of Victor's pretensions; when, at his persuasion, it was unanimously resolved that the tranquillity of the country did not admit of a repeal of the king's act of abdication.

407:13, arrest him now; whilst they were yet deliberating, a note was handed to the king, by which the baron of St. Remy, commander of the citadel of Turin, announced that at midnight Victor had come from Moncalieri, on horseback, followed by a single aid-de-camp, and asked for admittance into the fortress. The commander had firmly but respectfully answered that the gates of the citadel could not be opened without an order from the king, whereupon the old king, in a towering passion, had turned his horse's head back to Moncalieri. This last proof of Victor's readiness to resort to extreme measures determined the still wavering minds in the king's council. An order of arrest against Victor was drawn up, which Charles Emanuel signed with trembling hand, with tears in his eyes.

The marquis of Ormea, who had been raised to power by the father, who now conducted the affairs of the son, and was more than any other man implicated in these fatal differences between them, took the warrant from Charles's reluctant hands, and on the night of the twenty-seventh and twenty-eighth of September repaired to Moncalieri. He had encompassed the castle with troops summoned from the neighborhood of the capital, and charged four colonels with the conduct of the dangerous expedition. These walked, without resistance, into the old king's apartments, where he was found plunged in one of his fits of lethargic sleep. The marchioness awoke and bounded up with a scream, but she was hurried away, and conveyed first to a nunnery at Carignano, then to a state prison, at the castle of Ceva. Not a few of her relatives and partisans were arrested in the course of the same night.

The chevalier Solaro, one of the colonels, next proceeded to possess himself of the king's sword, which lay on a table by his bedside; and at length succeeded, not without great difficulty, in breaking the king's heavy slumbers. Victor sat up in his bed; he looked hard at the faces of his disturbers, and inquired on what errand they came; on hearing it he burst into a paroxysm of fury; he refused to accompany them, to dress, to rise from his bed. They had to wrap him in his bedclothes, and thus to force him from the chamber. The soldiers had been chosen for their character of reliable steadiness and discipline, but were not proof against the passionate appeals of the man who had so often led them to victory. Murmurs were heard from the midst of them, and a regiment of dragoons, addressed by Victor in the courtyard, gave signs of open mutiny. The colonel, count of Perosa, however, with great presence of mind, ordered silence, in the king's name, and under penalty of death, and drowned the old king's voice by a roll of the drums. They thus shut him up in one of the court carriages, into which he would admit no companion, and followed him on horseback, with a large escort, to the castle of Rivoli.

407:23, Alberoni and Coscia, cardinals who opposed D'Ormea in Victor's contentions with the Church.

411:12, Take it, my father; it appears probable that Charles did desire to give back the crown to his father. (31) beat D'Orleans in his lines; at battle of Turin this duke was wounded. (32) Eugene, governor-general of Turin, his comrade at battle of Turin.

412:8, tell that tale the world; Rivoli was for some time a very hard prison to Victor Amadeus, with bars at the windows, a strong guard at the doors, and unbroken silence and solitude within. His ungovernable rage made him like a maniac; and he cracked a marble table with his fist in a paroxysm of anguish and fury. Melancholy followed, the rigor of his prison was relaxed, books, papers, and friends were allowed him, and at last the companionship of the marchioness. At his own request he was returned to Moncalieri; and he there began to prepare for approaching death. Through his confessor he begged for a last interview with his son. Charles Emanuel instantly ordered his carriage; but the ministers and the queen advised against the visit. The king shed tears, but the father and son never met again. Charles Emanuel never alluded to the final catastrophe of his father's life without visible signs of the most painful emotion. Victor died at Moncalieri on the thirty-first of October, 1732, at the age of sixty-six.

INTRODUCTION.

ALL the poems contained in the present volume appeared in Bells and Pomegranates, the Dramatic Lyrics being contained in the third number, and the series concluded with the eighth number, which contained Luria and A Soul's Tragedy. None of the poems had been previously published, with the exception of a half dozen of the lyrics, which were given to Thomas Hood for his magazine, at a time when he was ill. The Dramatic Lyrics were prefaced with the following:—

ADVERTISEMENT.

Such poems as the following come properly enough, I suppose, under the title of "Dramatic Pieces;" being, though for the most part Lyric in expression, always Dramatic in principle, and so many utterances of so many imaginary persons, not mine.

R. B.

The poems contained in this number of the Bells were Cavalier Tunes: I. Marching Along. II. Give a Rouse. III. My Wife Gertrude; Italy and France: I. Italy. II. France; Camp and Cloister: I. Camp (French). II. Cloister (Spanish; In a Gondola; Artemis Prologizes; Waring: I. "What is become of Waring?" II. "When I last saw Waring;" Queen Worship: I. Rudel and the Lady of Tripoli. II. Cristina; Madhouse Cells: I. "There's Heaven above." II. "The rain set early in to-night;" Through the Metidja to Abd-el-Kadr, 1842; The Pied Piper of Hamelin, a Child's Story.

As will be seen, several poems were added later, and some of those printed here were subsequently put into other collections of the shorter poems. The titles of single poems were changed, and their groupings were altered to some extent. These changes were for the most part made in the Poetical Works of 1863, the first complete edition of Browning's works. The third of the Cavalier Tunes was entitled My Wife Gertrude, in Bells and Pomegranates. The poems published under the general title of Italy and France were My Lost Duchess, called Italy; and Count Gismond appeared as France. The two poems grouped as Camp and Cloister were Incident of the French Camp and Soliloquy of the Spanish Cloister. The subtitles to Waring were omitted on republication. Under the head of Queen-Worship were grouped Rudel and the Lady of Tripoli and Cristina. Madhouse Cells included Johannes Agricola in Meditation (now in Men and Women), and Porphyria's Lover.

In the fourth number of the Bells and Pomegranates appeared The Return of the Druses. The first mention of this tragedy was in a letter to a friend, written at the time when he was completing Sordello. "I want a subject of the most wild and passionate love, to contrast with the one I mean to have ready in a short time [King Victor and King Charles]. I have many half-conceptions, floating fancies: give me your notion of a thorough self-devotement, self-forgetting; should it be a woman who loves thus, or a man? What circumstances will best draw out, set forth, this feeling?" The title he first chose was Mansoor, the Hierophant. Mrs. Orr relates that some years later the London Browning Society was proposing to bring one of Browning's plays before the public: when "a friend told him she had been seriously occupied with the possibility of producing the Eastern play, he assented to the idea with a simplicity that was almost touching. 'It was written for the stage,' he said, 'and has only one scene.'"

The war between the Druses and the Christians, which took place in the Lebanon during the year 1842, evidently drew Browning's attention to this subject. He studied the historical settings of the subject carefully, without doubt; but, as was usually the case with him, he used them in a manner to vindicate his own poetical inspiration, and not to satisfy or to justify history. In some of the chief incidents of his plot he violated the conditions of historical fact, but what he was aiming at was the presentation of "a wild and passionate love," one full of "self-devotement and self-forgetting."

OF THE

The fifth number of Bells and Pomegranates was occupied with the play called A Blot in the 'Scutcheon. It was written at the request of William Macready, who proposed to put it at once upon the stage, and to take the leading part himself. It was written in the space of five days, so strongly had the actor impressed the poet with his wish to have the play in hand immediately. It was brought out in February, 1843, at Drury Lane Theatre. Macready seems not to have liked the play, and he put various obstacles in the way of its success; but it was produced to crowded houses until Macready's theatrical arrangements failed from financial causes.

A BLOT IN THE 'SCUTCHEON.

The history of the production of this play has been told in detail by Mr. Edmund Gosse in his Personalia, and also in Mrs. Orr's biography of the poet. Reports having gone abroad that the play was a failure, Browning gave to a friend, in a letter, the full details of its production; but only years after, when Macready's journals were published, did he understand the financial causes for the manner in which he was dealt with by the actor. The hasty printing of the play, within twenty-four hours, was done to prevent its being mutilated by Macready in its production on the stage.

Almost at the same time was written Colombe's Birthday, which filled the sixth number of Bells and Pomegranates. The play was not put upon the stage until 1853, when Miss Helen Faucit produced it at the Haymarket Theatre. When it was published, it was called on the title-page "A Play, in five Acts. By Robert Browning, author of Paracelsus." In his Personalia Mr. Gosse gives this account of the play and its first production:—

COLOMBE'S

"Fired with the memory of so many plaudits, Mr. Browning set himself to the composition of another actable play, and this also had its little hour of success, though not until many years afterward. Colombe's Birthday, which formed number six of Bells and Pomegranates, appeared in 1843. I have before me at the present moment a copy of the first edition, marked for acting by the author, who has written : 'I made the alterations in this copy to suit some — I forget what — projected stage representation ; not that of Miss Faucit, which was carried into effect long afterward.' The stage directions are numerous and minute, showing the science which the dramatist had gained since he first essayed to put his creations on the boards. Some of the suggestions are characteristic enough. For instance, 'unless a very good Valence is found,' this extremely fine speech, perhaps the jewel of the play, is to be left out. In the present editions the verses run otherwise." Mr. Gosse refers to the speech of Valence in the fourth act, in which he describes Berthold to the Duchess.

In the seventh number of Bells and Pomegranates was published Dramatic Romances and Lyrics, which contained the following poems : How they brought the Good News from Ghent to Aix (16—) ; Pictor Ignotus, Florence, (15—) ; Italy in England ; England in Italy ; The Lost Leader ; The Lost Mistress ; Home Thoughts from Abroad : I. "Oh to be in England." II. "Here's to Nelson's Memory." III. "Nobly Cape St. Vincent ;" The Tomb at St. Praxed's ; Garden Fancies : I. The Flower's Name. II. Sibrandus Schafnaburgensis ; France and Spain : I. The Laboratory (Ancien Régime). II. The Confessional ; The Flight of the Duchess ; Earth's Immortalities : I. "See, as the prettiest graves." II. "So, the year's done with ;" Song ; The Boy and the Angel ; Night and Morning : I. Night. II. Morning ; Claret and Tokay : I. "My heart sunk with our claret flask." II. "Up jumped Tokay on our table ;" Saul (first part) ; Time's Revenges ; The Glove (Peter Ronsard loquitur).

The poems grouped under the general title of Home Thoughts from Abroad were, first, the poem now bearing that name ; second, the second part of the present Nationality of Drinks ; third, the present Home-Thoughts, from the Sea. The poems grouped as Night and Morning now appear as Meeting at Night and Parting at Morning. The Claret and Tokay group included the first two now having the title of Nationality of Drinks. Saul appeared only in its first part, ending with the ninth section, the last four lines being as follows : —

“On one head the joy and the pride, even rage like the three
That opes the rock, helps its glad labor, and lets the gold go—
And ambition that sees a man lead it—oh, all of these—all
Combine to unite in one creature—Saul!”

The rest of Saul was written in Rome, in 1853–54; and the completed poem first appeared in Men and Women, 1855.

As in the case of Dramatic Lyrics the titles of these poems were in several instances changed when prepared for the collected edition of 1863, and the arrangement was made more strictly in harmony with the titles of the several collections. The lyrics were put together in Dramatic Lyrics, and only the romantic or story-poems appeared under the title of Dramatic Romances. Into both these collections were placed later poems, some of those published as Men and Women, as well as those of a still more recent date.

It is evident from his letters to Miss Barrett that Browning was not satisfied with A Soul's Tragedy, that concluded the eighth and last number of Bells and Pomegranates.

In writing her under date of February 11, 1846, he <sup>A SOUL'S TRAGEDY.</sup> said: “For the Soul's Tragedy—that will surprise you, I think. There is no trace of you there—it is all sneering and disillusion—and shall not be printed but burned if you say the word—now wait and see, and then say! I will bring the first of the two parts next Saturday.”

On Friday morning he wrote: “Two nights ago I read the Soul's Tragedy once more, and though there were not a few points which still struck me as successful in design and execution, yet on the whole I came to a decided opinion, that it will be better to postpone the publication of it for the present. It is not a good ending, an auspicious wind-up of this series; subject-matter and style are alike unpopular even for the literary grecx that stands aloof from the purer plebs, and uses that privilege to display and parade an ignorance which the other is altogether unconscious of,—so that, if Luria is clearish, the Tragedy would be an unnecessary troubling of the waters. Whereas, if I printed it first in order, my readers, according to custom, would make the (comparatively) little they did not see into, a full excuse for shutting their eyes at the rest, and we may as well part friends, so as not to meet enemies. But, at bottom, I believe the proper objection is to the immediate, first effect of the whole, — its moral effect, — which is dependent on the contrary supposition of its being really understood, in the main drift of it. Yet I don't know; for I wrote it with the intention of producing the best of all effects: perhaps the truth is, that I am tired, rather, and desirous of getting done, and Luria will answer my purpose so far. Will not the best way be to reserve this unlucky play, and in the event of a second edition — as Moxon seems to think such an apparition possible — might not this be quietly inserted? — in its place, too, for it was written two or three years ago. I have lost, of late, interest in dramatic writing, as you know, and, perhaps, occasion."

When the play was finally published, Miss Barrett wrote in enthusiastic praise of it, but added: "I think now you were right in omitting the theological argument you told me of, from this second part. It would clog the action, and already I am half inclined to fancy it a little clogged in one or two places." In reply to this letter, Browning wrote: "How you surprise me (whatever may you think) by liking that Tragedy! It seems as if, having got out of the present trouble, I shall never fall into its fellow: I will strike, for the future, on the glowing, malleable metal; afterward, filing is quite another process from hammering. Note, that 'filing' is the wrong word, — and the rest of it, the wrong simile, — and all of it, in its stupid wrongness, very characteristic of what I try to illustrate: oh, the better, better days are before me there as in all else!" When the play was published, he wrote: "Here comes Luria and the other, and I lay it at my dear Lady's feet, wishing it were worthier of them, and only comforted, through all the conviction of the offering's unworthiness, by knowing that she will know that I would give her my life gladlier at a word."

Although Luria was printed first in the last of the Bells and Pomegranates, it was written last of the poems contained in that series. In accordance with this fact, it was placed after A Soul's Tragedy in the final arrangement of the poems. Browning's first mention of it in his letters to Miss Barrett is under date of October 27, 1845, when he says: "Yesterday I took out Luria and read it through, — the skeleton. I shall hope to finish it soon now. It is for a purely imaginary stage, — very simple and straightforward." In his letter of January 22, 1846, he again mentions the play. "I must not tell you," he says, "but I wished just these feelings to be in your mind about Domizia, and the death of Luria: the last act throws light back on all, I hope. Observe only, that Luria would stand, if I have plied him effectually with adverse influences, in such a position as to render any other end impossible without the hurt to Florence which his religion is to avoid inflicting; passively awaiting, for instance, the sentence and punishment to come at night, would as surely inflict it as taking part with her foes. His aim is to prevent the harm she will do herself by striking him, so he moves aside from the blow. But I know there is very much to improve and heighten in this fourth act, as in the others; but the right aspect of things seems obtained, and the rest of the work is plain and easy."

A fortnight later he writes that, "so long as the parts cohere and the whole is discernible, all will be well yet. I shall not look at it, nor think of it, for a week or two, and then see what I have forgotten. Domizia is all wrong; I told you I knew that her special color had faded, — it was but a bright line, and the more distinctly deep that it was so narrow. One of my half dozen words on my scrap of paper 'pro memoria' was, under the 'Act V.,' 'she loves,' — to which I could not bring it, you see! Yet the play requires it still; something may yet be effected, though. . . . I meant that she should propose to go to Pisa with him, and begin a new life. But there is no hurry, — I suppose it is of no use publishing much before Easter. I will try and remember what my whole character did mean; it was, in two words, understood at the time by 'panther's-beauty,' — on which hint I ought to have spoken. But the work grew cold, and you came between, and the sun put out the fire on the hearth nec vult panthera domari!"

"I am unwell and entirely irritated with this sad Luria," he wrote March 23. "I thought it a failure at first; I find it infinitely worse than I thought, — it is a pure exercise of clever- ness, even where most successful; clever attempted reproduction of what was conceived by another faculty, and foolishly let pass away. If I go on, even hurry the more to get on, with the printing, it is to throw out and away from me the irritating obstruction once and forever. I have corrected it, cut it down, and it may stand and pledge me to do better hereafter."

Miss Barrett, on being shown the play, suggests emendations, which give rise to the full discussion of the poem in a letter dated April 1. "Did you notice the alterations (curtailments) in Luria? . . . Well, and then there is Domizia, — I could not bring her to my purpose. I left the neck stiff that was to have bowed of its own accord, for nothing graceful could be accomplished by pressing with both hands on the head above! I meant to make her leave off her own projects through love of Luria. As it is, they in a manner fulfil themselves, so far as she has any power over them, and then, she being left unemployed, sees Luria, begins to see him, having hitherto seen only her own ends which he has to further. Oh, enough of it! I have told you, and tell you, and will tell you, because it is simple truth, that you have been helping me to cover a defeat, not gain a triumph."

A week later the poem is again discussed, this time with more explicit acknowledgment of indebtedness to Miss Barrett. "All your corrections are golden. In Luria, I alter 'little circle' to 'circling faces,' which is more like what I meant."

These passages afford a very interesting and suggestive commentary on this dramatic work, as well as upon the literary methods of the poet. As Browning indicates in one of these letters, his absorbing devotion to Miss Barrett, and their engagement, was a distracting influence at this time. He was living poetry too largely to find it easy to write it at the same time. Other causes were also at work, undoubtedly, for Browning did not try his hand at producing a dramatic work after the completion of Luria. Other forms of composition proved more satisfactory, and fitter instruments for the expression of his genius. He had outgrown his taste and preference for play-writing, probably in greater or less degree because his dramas did not prove to have that fitness for theatrical presentation that was essential to maintain his interest in that kind of composition.

The poems contained in this book are now regarded as among the very best the poet wrote, and yet the fact is that Browning's father paid for the publication of Bells and Pomegranates, and never secured a full return of his money. Browning's obscurity was much urged at this time; his poetry had not won its way to popular interest, and he was very little read, although fully appreciated by the few. In a letter written in 1865 he described his literary position at this period, when the Bells and Pomegranates were publishing. "I suppose," he wrote, "that what you call 'my fame within these four years' comes from a little of this gossiping and going about, and showing myself to be alive; and so indeed some folks say, — but I hardly think it: for remember I was uninterruptedly (almost) in London from the time I published Paracelsus till I ended that string of plays with Luria, — and I used to go out then, and see far more of literary people, critics, etc., than I do now, — but what came of it? There were always a few people who had a certain opinion of my poems, but nobody cared to speak what he thought, or the things printed twenty-five years ago would not have waited so long for a good word; but at last a new set of men arrive who don't mind the conventionalities of ignoring one and seeing everything in another. Chapman says the 'new orders come from Oxford and Cambridge,' and all my new cultivators are young men; more than that, I observe that some of my old friends don't like at all the irruption of outsiders who rescue me from their sober and private approval, and take those words out of their mouths 'which they always meant to say' and never did. When there gets to be a general feeling of this kind, that there must be something in the works of an author, the reviews are obliged to notice him, such notice as it is, — but what poor work, even when doing its best! I mean poor in the failure to give a general notion of the whole works; not a particular one of such and such points therein. As I begun, so shall I end, — taking my own course, pleasing myself, or aiming at doing so, and thereby, I hope, pleasing God."

DRAMATIC LYRICS

IN a late edition were collected and redistributed the pieces first published in 1842, 1845, and 1855, respectively, under the titles of "Dramatic Lyrics," "Dramatic Romances," and "Men and Women." It is not worth while to disturb this arrangement.

Such Poems as the majority in this volume might also come properly enough, I suppose, under the head of "Dramatic Pieces;" being, though often Lyric in expression, always Dramatic in principle, and so many utterances of so many imaginary persons, not mine.

Part of the Poems were inscribed to my dear friend John Kenyon; I hope the whole may obtain the honor of an association with his memory.

CAVALIER TUNES.

I. MARCHING ALONG.

I.

Kentish Sir Byng stood for his King,
Bidding the crop-headed Parliament swing:
And, pressing a troop unable to stoop
And see the rogues flourish and honest folk droop,
Marched them along, fifty-score strong,
Great-hearted gentlemen, singing this song.

II.

God for King Charles! Pym and such carles
To the Devil that prompts 'em their treasonous parles!
Cavaliers, up! Lips from the cup,
Hands from the pasty, nor bite take nor sup
Till you 're —

CHORUS. — Marching along, fifty-score strong,
Great-hearted gentlemen, singing this song.

III.

Hampden to hell, and his obsequies' knell.
Serve Hazelrig, Fiennes, and young Harry as well!
England, good cheer! Rupert is near!
Kentish and loyalists, keep we not here,

CHORUS. — Marching along, fifty-score strong,
Great-hearted gentlemen, singing this song?

IV.

Then, God for King Charles! Pym and his snarls
 To the Devil that pricks on such pestilent carles!
 Hold by the right, you double your might;
 So, onward to Nottingham, fresh for the fight,

CHORUS. — March we along, fifty-score strong,
 Great-hearted gentlemen, singing this song!

II. GIVE A ROUSE.

I.

King Charles, and who'll do him right now?
 King Charles, and who's ripe for fight now?
 Give a rouse: here 's, in hell's despite now,
 King Charles!

II.

Who gave me the goods that went since?
 Who raised me the house that sank once?
 Who helped me to gold I spent since?
 Who found me in wine you drank once?

CHORUS. — King Charles, and who'll do him right now?
 King Charles, and who's ripe for fight now?
 Give a rouse: here 's, in hell's despite now,
 King Charles!

III.

To whom used my boy George quaff else,
 By the old fool's side that begot him?
 For whom did he cheer and laugh else,
 While Noll's damned troopers shot him?

CHORUS. — King Charles, and who'll do him right now?
 King Charles, and who's ripe for fight now?
 Give a rouse: here 's, in hell's despite now,
 King Charles!

III. BOOT AND SADDLE.

I.

Boot, saddle, to horse, and away!
 Rescue my castle before the hot day

Brightens to blue from its silvery gray.

CHORUS. — Boot, saddle, to horse, and away !

II.

Ride past the suburbs, asleep as you 'd say ;
Many 's the friend there, will listen and pray

“ God's luck to gallants that strike up the lay —

CHORUS. — Boot, saddle, to horse, and away ! ”

III.

Forty miles off, like a roebuck at bay,
Flouts Castle Brancepeth the Roundheads' array :
Who laughs, “ Good fellows ere this, by my fay,

CHORUS. — Boot, saddle, to horse, and away ! ”

IV.

Who? My wife Gertrude ; that, honest and gay,
Laughs when you talk of surrendering, “ Nay !

I've better counsellors ; what counsel they ?

CHORUS. — Boot, saddle, to horse, and away ! ”

THE LOST LEADER.

I.

Just for a handful of silver he left us,

Just for a riband to stick in his coat —

Found the one gift of which fortune bereft us,

Lost all the others she lets us devote ;

They, with the gold to give, doled him out silver,

So much was theirs who so little allowed :

How all our copper had gone for his service !

Rags — were they purple, his heart had been proud !

We that had loved him so, followed him, honored him,

Lived in his mild and magnificent eye,

Learned his great language, caught his clear accents,

Made him our pattern to live and to die !

Shakespeare was of us, Milton was for us,

Burns, Shelley, were with us, — they watch from their graves !

He alone breaks from the van and the freemen,

— He alone sinks to the rear and the slaves !

II

We shall march prospering, — not through his presence ;

Songs may inspirit us, — not from his lyre ;

Deeds will be done, — while he boasts his quiescence,
 Still bidding crouch whom the rest bade aspire :
 Blot out his name, then, record one lost soul more,
 One task more declined, one more footpath untrod,
 One more devils' triumph and sorrow for angels,
 One wrong more to man, one more insult to God !
 Life's night begins : let him never come back to us !
 There would be doubt, hesitation and pain,
 Forced praise on our part — the glimmer of twilight,
 Never glad confident morning again !
 Best fight on well, for we taught him — strike gallantly,
 Menace our heart ere we master his own ;
 Then let him receive the new knowledge and wait us,
 Pardoned in heaven, the first by the throne !

“HOW THEY BROUGHT THE GOOD NEWS FROM

[16—.]

I.

I sprang to the stirrup, and Joris, and he ;
 I galloped, Dirck galloped, we galloped all three ;
 “ Good speed ! ” cried the watch, as the gate-bolts undrew ;
 “ Speed ! ” echoed the wall to us galloping through ;
 Behind shut the postern, the lights sank to rest,
 And into the midnight we galloped abreast.

II.

Not a word to each other ; we kept the great pace
 Neck by neck, stride by stride, never changing our place ;
 I turned in my saddle and made its girths tight,
 Then shortened each stirrup, and set the pique right,
 Rebuckled the cheek-strap, chained slacker the bit,
 Nor galloped less steadily Roland a whit.

III.

'T was moonset at starting ; but while we drew near
 Lokeren, the cocks crew and twilight dawned clear ;
 At Boom, a great yellow star came out to see ;
 At Düffeld, 't was morning as plain as could be ;
 And from Mecheln church-steeple we heard the half-chime,
 So, Joris broke silence with, “ Yet there is time ! ”

IV.

At Aershot, up leaped of a sudden the sun,
 And against him the cattle stood black every one,
 To stare through the mist at us galloping past,
 And I saw my stout galloper Roland at last,
 With resolute shoulders, each butting away
 The haze, as some bluff river headland its spray :

V.

And his low head and crest, just one sharp ear bent back
 For my voice, and the other pricked out on his track ;
 And one eye's black intelligence, — ever that glance
 O'er its white edge at me, his own master, askance !
 And the thick heavy spume-flakes which aye and anon
 His fierce lips shook upwards in galloping on.

VI.

By Hasselt, Dirck groaned ; and cried Joris, " Stay spur !
 Your Roos galloped bravely, the fault 's not in her,
 We 'll remember at Aix " — for one heard the quick wheeze
 Of her chest, saw the stretched neck and staggering knees,
 And sunk tail, and horrible heave of the flank,
 As down on her haunches she shuddered and sank.

VII.

So, we were left galloping, Joris and I,
 Past Looz and past Tongres, no cloud in the sky ;
 The broad sun above laughed a pitiless laugh,
 'Neath our feet broke the brittle bright stubble like chaff ;
 Till over by Dalhem a dome-spire sprang white,
 And " Gallop," gasped Joris, " for Aix is in sight ! "

VIII.

" How they 'll greet us ! " — and all in a moment his roan
 Rolled neck and croup over, lay dead as a stone ;
 And there was my Roland to bear the whole weight
 Of the news which alone could save Aix from her fate,
 With his nostrils like pits full of blood to the brim,
 And with circles of red for his eye-sockets' rim.

IX.

Then I cast loose my buffcoat, each holster let fall,
 Shook off both my jack-boots, let go belt and all,
 Stood up in the stirrup, leaned, patted his ear,
 Called my Roland his pet-name, my horse without peer :

Clapped my hands, laughed and sang, any noise, bad or good,
Till at length into Aix Roland galloped and stood.

X.

And all I remember is — friends flocking round
As I sat with his head 'twixt my knees on the ground ;
And no voice but was praising this Roland of mine,
As I poured down his throat our last measure of wine,
Which (the burgasses voted by common consent)
Was no more than his due who brought good news from Ghent.

THROUGH THE METIDJA TO ABD-EL-KADR.

1842.

I.

As I ride, as I ride,
With a full heart for my guide,
So its tide rocks my side,
As I ride, as I ride,
That, as I were double-eyed,
He, in whom our Tribes confide,
Is descried, ways untried,
As I ride, as I ride.

II.

As I ride, as I ride
To our Chief and his Allied,
Who dares chide my heart's pride
As I ride, as I ride ?
Or are witnesses denied —
Through the desert waste and wide
Do I glide unespied
As I ride, as I ride ?

III.

As I ride, as I ride,
When an inner voice has cried,
The sands slide, nor abide
(As I ride, as I ride)
O'er each visioned homicide
That came vaunting (has he lied ?)
To reside — where he died,
As I ride, as I ride.

IV.

As I ride, as I ride,
 Ne'er has spur my swift horse plied,
 Yet his hide, streaked and pied,
 As I ride, as I ride,
 Shows where sweat has sprung and dried,
 — Zebra-footed, ostrich-thighed —
 How has vied stride with stride
 As I ride, as I ride !

V.

As I ride, as I ride,
 Could I loose what Fate has tied,
 Ere I pried, she should hide
 (As I ride, as I ride)
 All that 's meant me — satisfied
 When the Prophet and the Bride
 Stop veins I 'd have subside
 As I ride, as I ride !

NATIONALITY IN DRINKS.

I.

My heart sank with our Claret-flask,
 Just now, beneath the heavy sedges
 That serve this pond's black face for mask ;
 And still at yonder broken edges
 O' the hole, where up the bubbles glisten,
 After my heart I look and listen.

II.

Our laughing little flask, compelled
 Through depth to depth more bleak and shady ;
 As when, both arms beside her held,
 Feet straightened out, some gay French lady
 Is caught up from life's light and motion,
 And dropped into death's silent ocean !

— UP jumped Tokay on our table,
 Like a pygmy castle-warder,
 Dwarfish to see, but stout and able,
 Arms and accoutrements all in order ;
 And fierce he looked North, then, wheeling South,
 Blew with his bugle a challenge to Drouth,

Cocked his flap-hat with the tosspot-feather,
 Twisted his thumb in his red moustache,
 Jingled his huge brass spurs together,
 Tightened his waist with its Buda sash,
 And then, with an impudence nought could abash,
 Shrugged his hump-shoulder, to tell the beholder,
 For twenty such knaves he should laugh but the bolder:
 And so, with his sword-hilt gallantly jutting,
 And dexter-hand on his haunch abutting,
 Went the little man, Sir Ausbruch, strutting!

— HERE'S to Nelson's memory!
 'Tis the second time that I, at sea,
 Right off Cape Trafalgar here,
 Have drunk it deep in British Beer.
 Nelson forever — any time
 Am I his to command in prose or rhyme!
 Give me of Nelson only a touch,
 And I save it, be it little or much:
 Here's one our Captain gives, and so
 Down at the word, by George, shall it go!
 He says that at Greenwich they point the beholder
 To Nelson's coat, "still with tar on the shoulder:
 For he used to lean with one shoulder digging,
 Jigging, as it were, and zig-zag-zigging
 Up against the mizzen-rigging!"

GARDEN FANCIES.

I. THE FLOWER'S NAME.

I.

Here's the garden she walked across,
 Arm in my arm, such a short while since:
 Hark, now I push its wicket, the moss
 Hinders the hinges and makes them wince!
 She must have reached this shrub ere she turned,
 As back with that murmur the wicket swung;
 For she laid the poor snail, my chance foot spurned,
 To feed and forget it the leaves among.

II.

Down this side of the gravel-walk
 She went while her robe's edge brushed the box:

And here she paused in her gracious talk
 To point me a moth on the milk-white phlox.
 Roses, ranged in valiant row,
 I will never think that she passed you by!
 She loves you, noble roses, I know;
 But yonder, see, where the rock-plants lie!

III.

This flower she stopped at, finger on lip,
 Stopped over, in doubt, as settling its claim;
 Till she gave me, with pride to make no slip,
 Its soft meandering Spanish name:
 What a name! Was it love or praise?
 Speech half-asleep or song half-awake?
 I must learn Spanish, one of these days,
 Only for that slow sweet name's sake.

IV.

Roses, if I live and do well,
 I may bring her, one of these days,
 To fix you fast with as fine a spell,
 Fit you each with his Spanish phrase;
 But do not detain me now; for she lingers
 There, like sunshine over the ground,
 And ever I see her soft white fingers
 Searching after the bud she found.

V.

Flower, you Spaniard, look that you grow not,
 Stay as you are and be loved forever!
 Bud, if I kiss you 't is that you blow not,
 Mind, the shut pink mouth opens never!
 For while it pouts, her fingers wrestle,
 Twinkling the audacious leaves between,
 Till round they turn and down they nestle —
 Is not the dear mark still to be seen?

VI.

Where I find her not, beauties vanish;
 Whither I follow her, beauties flee;
 Is there no method to tell her in Spanish
 June's twice June since she breathed it with me?
 Come, bud, show me the least of her traces,
 Treasure my lady's lightest footfall!
 — Ah, you may flout and turn up your faces —
 Roses, you are not so fair after all!

II. SIBRANDUS SCHAFNABURGENSIS.

I.

Plague take all your pedants, say I !
 He who wrote what I hold in my hand,
 Centuries back was so good as to die,
 Leaving this rubbish to cumber the land ;
 This, that was a book in its time,
 Printed on paper and bound in leather,
 Last month in the white of a matin-prime,
 Just when the birds sang all together.

II.

Into the garden I brought it to read,
 And under the arbuté and laurustine
 Read it, so help me grace in my need,
 From title-page to closing line.
 Chapter on chapter did I count,
 As a curious traveller counts Stonehenge ;
 Added up the mortal amount ;
 And then proceeded to my revenge.

III.

Yonder 's a plum-tree with a crevice
 An owl would build in, were he but sage ;
 For a lap of moss, like a fine pont-levis
 In a castle of the Middle Age,
 Joins to a lip of gum, pure amber ;
 When he 'd be private, there might he spend
 Hours alone in his lady's chamber :
 Into this crevice I dropped our friend.

IV.

Splash, went he, as under he ducked,
 — At the bottom, I knew, rain-drippings stagnate ;
 Next, a handful of blossoms I plucked
 To bury him with, my bookshelf's magnate ;
 Then I went in-doors, brought out a loaf,
 Half a cheese, and a bottle of Chablis ;
 Lay on the grass and forgot the oaf
 Over a jolly chapter of Rabelais.

V.

Now, this morning, betwixt the moss
 And gum that locked our friend in limbo,

A spider had spun his web across,
 And sat in the midst with arms akimbo :
 So, I took pity, for learning's sake,
 And, de profundis, accentibus latis,
Cantate! quoth I, as I got a rake ;
 And up I fished his delectable treatise.

VI.

Here you have it, dry in the sun,
 With all the binding all of a blister,
 And great blue spots where the ink has run,
 And reddish streaks that wink and glister
 O'er the page so beautifully yellow :
 Oh, well have the droppings played their tricks !
 Did he guess how toadstools grow, this fellow ?
 Here 's one stuck in his chapter six !

VII.

How did he like it when the live creatures
 Tickled and toused and browsed him all over,
 And worm, slug, eft, with serious features,
 Came in, each one, for his right of trover ?
 — When the water-beetle with great blind deaf face
 Made of her eggs the stately deposit,
 And the newt borrowed just so much of the preface
 As tiled in the top of his black wife's closet ?

VIII.

All that life and fun and romping,
 All that frisking and twisting and coupling,
 While slowly our poor friend's leaves were swamping
 And clasps were cracking and covers suppling !
 As if you had carried sour John Knox
 To the play-house at Paris, Vienna or Munich,
 Fastened him into a front-row box,
 And danced off the ballet with trousers and tunic.

IX.

Come, old martyr ! What, torment enough is it ?
 Back to my room shall you take your sweet self.
 Good-bye, mother-beetle ; husband-eft, sufficit!
 See the snug niche I have made on my shelf !
 A's book shall prop you up, B's shall cover you,
 Here 's C to be grave with, or D to be gay,
 And with E on each side, and F right over you,
 Dry-rot at ease till the Judgment-day !

SOLILOQUY OF THE SPANISH CLOISTER.

I.

Gr-r-r — there go, my heart's abhorrence!
 Water your damned flower-pots, do!
 If hate killed men, Brother Lawrence,
 God's blood, would not mine kill you!
 What? your myrtle-bush wants trimming?
 Oh, that rose has prior claims —
 Needs its leaden vase filled brimming?
 Hell dry you up with its flames!

II.

At the meal we sit together:
Salve tibi! I must hear
 Wise talk of the kind of weather,
 Sort of season, time of year:
Not a plenteous cork-crop: scarcely
Dare we hope oak-galls, I doubt:
What's the Latin name for "parsley"?
 What's the Greek name for Swine's Snout?

III.

Whew! We'll have our platter burnished,
 Laid with care on our own shelf!
 With a fire-new spoon we're furnished,
 And a goblet for ourself,
 Rinsed like something sacrificial
 Ere 't is fit to touch our chaps —
 Marked with L for our initial!
 (He-he! There his lily snaps!)

IV.

Saint, forsooth! While brown Dolores
 Squats outside the Convent bank
 With Sanchicha, telling stories,
 Steeping tresses in the tank,
 Blue-black, lustrous, thick like horsehairs
 — Can't I see his dead eye glow,
 Bright as 't were a Barbary corsair's?
 (That is, if he'd let it show!)

V.

When he finishes refection,
 Knife and fork he never lays

Cross-wise, to my recollection,
 As do I, in Jesu's praise.
 I the Trinity illustrate,
 Drinking watered orange-pulp —
 In three sips the Arian frustrate ;
 While he drains his at one gulp.

VI.

Oh, those melons ! If he 's able
 We 're to have a feast ! so nice !
 One goes to the Abbot's table,
 All of us get each a slice.
 How go on your flowers ? None double ?
 Not one fruit-sort can you spy ?
 Strange ! — And I, too, at such trouble
 Keep them close-nipped on the sly !

VII.

There 's a great text in Galatians,
 Once you trip on it, entails
 Twenty-nine distinct damnations,
 One sure, if another fails :
 If I trip him just a-dying,
 Sure of heaven as sure can be,
 Spin him round and send him flying
 Off to hell, a Manichee ?

VIII.

Or, my serofulous French novel
 On gray paper with blunt type !
 Simply glance at it, you grovel
 Hand and foot in Belial's gripe :
 If I double down its pages
 At the woful sixteenth print,
 When he gathers his greengages,
 Ope a sieve and slip it in 't ?

IX.

Or, there 's Satan ! — one might venture
 Pledge one's soul to him, yet leave
 Such a flaw in the indenture
 As he 'd miss till, past retrieve,
 Blasted lay that rose-acacia
 We 're so proud of ! Hy, Zy, Hine . . .
 'St, there 's Vespers ! Plena gratiâ,
Ave, Virgo ! Gr-r-r — you swine !

THE LABORATORY.

ANCIEN RÉGIME.

I.

Now that I, tying thy glass mask tightly,
 May gaze through these faint smokes curling whitely,
 As thou pliest thy trade in this devil's-smithy —
 Which is the poison to poison her, prithee ?

II.

He is with her, and they know that I know
 Where they are, what they do : they believe my tears flow
 While they laugh, laugh at me, at me fled to the drear
 Empty church, to pray God in, for them ! — I am here.

III.

Grind away, moisten and mash up thy paste,
 Pound at thy powder, — I am not in haste !
 Better sit thus, and observe thy strange things,
 Than go where men wait me and dance at the King's.

IV.

That in the mortar — you call it a gum ?
 Ah, the brave tree whence such gold oozings come !
 And yonder soft phial, the exquisite blue,
 Sure to taste sweetly, — is that poison too ?

V.

Had I but all of them, thee and thy treasures,
 What a wild crowd of invisible pleasures !
 To carry pure death in an earring, a casket,
 A signet, a fan-mount, a filigree basket !

VI.

Soon, at the King's, a mere lozenge to give,
 And Pauline should have just thirty minutes to live !
 But to light a pastile, and Elise, with her head
 And her breast and her arms and her hands, should drop dead !

VII.

Quick — is it finished ? The color 's too grim !
 Why not soft like the phial's, enticing and dim ?
 Let it brighten her drink, let her turn it and stir,
 And try it and taste, ere she fix and prefer !

VIII.

What a drop! She's not little, no minion like me!
That's why she ensnared him: this never will free
The soul from those masculine eyes, — say, "no!"
To that pulse's magnificent come-and-go.

IX.

For only last night, as they whispered, I brought
My own eyes to bear on her so, that I thought
Could I keep them one half minute fixed, she would fall
Shrivelled; she fell not; yet this does it all!

X.

Not that I bid you spare her the pain;
Let death be felt and the proof remain:
Brand, burn up, bite into its grace —
He is sure to remember her dying face!

XI.

Is it done? Take my mask off! Nay, be not morose;
It kills her, and this prevents seeing it close:
The delicate droplet, my whole fortune's fee!
If it hurts her, beside, can it ever hurt me?

XII.

Now, take all my jewels, gorge gold to your fill,
You may kiss me, old man, on my mouth if you will!
But brush this dust off me, lest horror it brings
Ere I know it — next moment I dance at the King's!

THE CONFESSIONAL.

[SPAIN.]

I.

It is a lie — their Priests, their Pope,
Their Saints, their . . . all they fear or hope
Are lies, and lies — there! through my door
And ceiling, there! and walls and floor,
There, lies, they lie — shall still be hurled
Till spite of them I reach the world!

II.

You think Priests just and holy men!
Before they put me in this den

I was a human creature too,
 With flesh and blood like one of you,
 A girl that laughed in beauty's pride
 Like lilies in your world outside.

III.

I had a lover — shame avaunt !
 This poor wrenched body, grim and gaunt,
 Was kissed all over till it burned,
 By lips the truest, love e'er turned
 His heart's own tint : one night they kissed
 My soul out in a burning mist.

IV.

So, next day when the accustomed train
 Of things grew round my sense again,
 "That is a sin," I said : and slow
 With downcast eyes to church I go,
 And pass to the confession-chair,
 And tell the old mild father there.

V.

But when I falter Beltran's name,
 "Ha !" quoth the father ; "much I blame
 The sin ; yet wherefore idly grieve ?
 Despair not — strenuously retrieve !
 Nay, I will turn this love of thine
 To lawful love, almost divine ;

VI.

"For he is young, and led astray,
 This Beltran, and he schemes, men say,
 To change the laws of church and state ;
 So, thine shall be an angel's fate,
 Who, ere the thunder breaks, should roll
 Its cloud away and save his soul.

VII.

"For, when he lies upon thy breast,
 Thou mayst demand and be possessed
 Of all his plans, and next day steal
 To me, and all those plans reveal,
 That I and every priest, to purge
 His soul, may fast and use the scourge."

VIII.

That father's beard was long and white,
 With love and truth his brow seemed bright ;
 I went back, all on fire with joy,
 And, that same evening, bade the boy
 Tell me, as lovers should, heart-free,
 Something to prove his love of me.

IX.

He told me what he would not tell
 For hope of heaven or fear of hell ;
 And I lay listening in such pride !
 And, soon as he had left my side,
 Tripped to the church by morning-light
 To save his soul in his despite.

X.

I told the father all his schemes,
 Who were his comrades, what their dreams ;
 " And now make haste," I said, " to pray
 The one spot from his soul away ;
 To-night he comes, but not the same
 Will look ! " At night he never came.

XI.

Nor next night : on the after-morn,
 I went forth with a strength new-born.
 The church was empty ; something drew
 My steps into the street ; I knew
 It led me to the market-place :
 Where, lo, on high, the father's face !

XII.

That horrible black scaffold dressed,
 That stapled block . . . God sink the rest !
 That head strapped back, that blinding vest,
 Those knotted hands and naked breast,
 Till near one busy hangman pressed,
 And, on the neck these arms caressed. . . .

XIII.

No part in aught they hope or fear !
 No heaven with them, no hell ! — and here,
 No earth, not so much space as pens
 My body in their worst of dens

But shall bear God and man my cry,
Lies — lies, again — and still, they lie !

CRISTINA.

I.

She should never have looked at me
If she meant I should not love her !
There are plenty . . . men, you call such,
I suppose . . . she may discover
All her soul to, if she pleases,
And yet leave much as she found them :
But I 'm not so, and she knew it
When she fixed me, glancing round them.

II.

What? To fix me thus meant nothing?
But I can't tell (there 's my weakness)
What her look said ! — no vile cant, sure,
About " need to strew the bleakness
Of some lone shore with its pearl-seed,
That the sea feels " — no " strange yearning
That such souls have, most to lavish
Where there 's chance of least returning."

III.

Oh we 're sunk enough here, God knows !
But not quite so sunk that moments,
Sure though seldom, are denied us,
When the spirit's true endowments
Stand out plainly from its false ones,
And apprise it if pursuing
Or the right way or the wrong way,
To its triumph or undoing.

IV.

There are flashes struck from midnights,
There are fire-flames noondays kindle,
Whereby piled-up honors perish,
Whereby swollen ambitions dwindle,
While just this or that poor impulse,
Which for once had play unstified,
Seems the sole work of a lifetime,
That away the rest have trifled.

V.
 Doubt you if, in some such moment,
 As she fixed me, she felt clearly,
 Ages past the soul existed,
 Here an age 't is resting merely,
 And hence fleets again for ages,
 While the true end, sole and single,
 It stops here for is, this love-way,
 With some other soul to mingle?

VI.

Else it loses what it lived for,
 And eternally must lose it ;
 Better ends may be in prospect,
 Deeper blisses (if you choose it),
 But this life's end and this love-bliss
 Have been lost here. Doubt you whether
 This she felt as, looking at me,
 Mine and her souls rushed together ?

VII.

Oh, observe ! Of course, next moment,
 The world's honors, in derision,
 Trampled out the light forever :
 Never fear but there 's provision
 Of the devil's to quench knowledge
 Lest we walk the earth in rapture !
 — Making those who catch God's secret
 Just so much more prize their capture !

VIII.

Such am I : the secret 's mine now !
 She has lost me, I have gained her ;
 Her soul 's mine : and thus, grown perfect,
 I shall pass my life's remainder.
 Life will just hold out the proving
 Both our powers, alone and blended :
 And then, come the next life quickly !
 This world's use will have been ended.

THE LOST MISTRESS.

I.

All's over, then : does truth sound bitter
 As one at first believes ?
 Hark, 't is the sparrows' good-night twitter
 About your cottage eaves !

II.

And the leaf-buds on the vine are woolly,
 I noticed that, to-day ;
 One day more bursts them open fully
 — You know the red turns gray.

III.

To-morrow we meet the same then, dearest ?
 May I take your hand in mine ?
 Mere friends are we, — well, friends the merest
 Keep much that I resign :

IV.

For each glance of the eye so bright and black,
 Though I keep with heart's endeavor, —
 Your voice, when you wish the snowdrops back,
 Though it stay in my soul forever ! —

V.

Yet I will but say what mere friends say,
 Or only a thought stronger ;
 I will hold your hand but as long as all may,
 Or so very little longer !

EARTH'S IMMORTALITIES.

FAME.

See, as the prettiest graves will do in time,
 Our poet's wants the freshness of its prime ;
 Spite of the sexton's browsing horse, the sods
 Have struggled through its binding osier rods ;
 Headstone and half-sunk footstone lean awry,
 Wanting the brick-work promised by-and-by ;
 How the minute gray lichens, plate o'er plate,
 Have softened down the crisp-cut name and date !

LOVE.

So, the year's done with!
 (Love me forever!)
 All March begun with,
 April's endeavor;
 May-wreaths that bound me
 June needs must sever;
 Now snows fall round me,
 Quenching June's fever —
 (Love me forever!)

MEETING AT NIGHT.

I.

The gray sea and the long black land;
 And the yellow half-moon large and low;
 And the startled little waves that leap
 In fiery ringlets from their sleep,
 As I gain the cove with pushing prow,
 And quench its speed i' the slushy sand.

II.

Then a mile of warm sea-scented beach;
 Three fields to cross till a farm appears;
 A tap at the pane, the quick sharp scratch
 And blue spurt of a lighted match,
 And a voice less loud, through its joys and fears,
 Than the two hearts beating each to each!

PARTING AT MORNING.

Round the cape of a sudden came the sea,
 And the sun looked over the mountain's rim:
 And straight was a path of gold for him,
 And the need of a world of men for me.

SONG.

I.

Nay but you, who do not love her,
 Is she not pure gold, my mistress?

Holds earth aught — speak truth — above her?
 Aught like this tress, see, and this tress,
 And this last fairest tress of all,
 So fair, see, ere I let it fall?

II. .

Because, you spend your lives in praising;
 To praise, you search the wide world over:
 Then why not witness, calmly gazing,
 If earth holds aught — speak truth — above her?
 Above this tress, and this, I touch
 But cannot praise, I love so much!

A WOMAN'S LAST WORD.

I.

Let's contend no more, Love,
 Strive nor weep:
 All be as before, Love,
 — Only sleep!

II.

What so wild as words are?
 I and thou
 In debate, as birds are,
 Hawk on bough!

III.

See the creature stalking
 While we speak!
 Hush and hide the talking,
 Cheek on cheek!

IV.

What so false as truth is,
 False to thee?
 Where the serpent's tooth is Shun the tree —

V.

Where the apple reddens
 Never pry —
 Lest we lose our Edens,
 Eve and I.

VI.

Be a god and hold me
 With a charm !
 Be a man and fold me
 With thine arm !

VII.

Teach me, only teach, Love !
 As I ought
 I will speak thy speech, Love,
 Think thy thought —

VIII.

Meet, if thou require it,
 Both demands,
 Laying flesh and spirit
 In thy hands.

IX.

That shall be to-morrow,
 Not to-night :
 I must bury sorrow
 Out of sight :

X.

— Must a little weep, Love,
 (Foolish me !)
 And so fall asleep, Love,
 Loved by thee.

EVELYN HOPE.

I.

Beautiful Evelyn Hope is dead !
 Sit and watch by her side an hour.
 That is her book-shelf, this her bed ;
 She plucked that piece of geranium-flower,
 Beginning to die too, in the glass ;
 Little has yet been changed, I think :
 The shutters are shut, no light may pass
 Save two long rays through the hinge's chink.

II.

Sixteen years old when she died !
 Perhaps she had scarcely heard my name ;
 It was not her time to love ; beside,
 Her life had many a hope and aim,
 Duties enough and little cares,
 And now was quiet, now astir,
 Till God's hand beckoned unawares, —
 And the sweet white brow is all of her.

III.

Is it too late then, Evelyn Hope ?
 What, your soul was pure and true,
 The good stars met in your horoscope,
 Made you of spirit, fire and dew —
 And, just because I was thrice as old
 And our paths in the world diverged so wide,
 Each was nought to each, must I be told ?
 We were fellow mortals, nought beside ?

IV.

No, indeed ! for God above
 Is great to grant, as mighty to make,
 And creates the love to reward the love :
 I claim you still, for my own love's sake !
 Delayed it may be for more lives yet,
 Through worlds I shall traverse, not a few :
 Much is to learn, much to forget
 Ere the time be come for taking you.

V.

But the time will come, — at last it will,
 When, Evelyn Hope, what meant (I shall say)
 In the lower earth, in the years long still,
 That body and soul so pure and gay ?
 Why your hair was amber, I shall divine,
 And your mouth of your own geranium's red —
 And what you would do with me, in fine,
 In the new life come in the old one's stead.

VI.

I have lived (I shall say) so much since then,
 Given up myself so many times,
 Gained me the gains of various men,
 Ransacked the ages, spoiled the climes ;

Yet one thing, one, in my soul's full scope,
 Either I missed or itself missed me :
 And I want and find you, Evelyn Hope !
 What is the issue ? let us see !

VII.

I loved you, Evelyn, all the while !
 My heart seemed full as it could hold ;
 There was place and to spare for the frank young smile,
 And the red young mouth, and the hair's young gold.
 So, hush, — I will give you this leaf to keep :
 See, I shut it inside the sweet cold hand !
 There, that is our secret : go to sleep !
 You will wake, and remember, and understand.

LOVE AMONG THE RUINS.

I.

Where the quiet-colored end of evening smiles
 Miles and miles
 On the solitary pastures where our sheep
 Half-asleep
 Tinkle homeward through the twilight, stray or stop
 As they crop —
 Was the site once of a city great and gay,
 (So they say)
 Of our country's very capital, its prince
 Ages since
 Held his court in, gathered councils, wielding far
 Peace or war.

II.

Now, — the country does not even boast a tree,
 As you see,
 To distinguish slopes of verdure, certain rills
 From the hills
 Intersect and give a name to, (else they run Into one,)
 Where the domed and daring palace shot its spires
 Up like fires
 O'er the hundred-gated circuit of a wall
 Bounding all,
 Made of marble, men might march on nor be pressed,
 Twelve abreast.

III.

And such plenty and perfection, see, of grass
 Never was!
 Such a carpet as, this summer-time, o'erspreads
 And embeds
 Every vestige of the city, guessed alone,
 Stock or stone —
 Where a multitude of men breathed joy and woe
 Long ago;
 Lust of glory pricked their hearts up, dread of shame
 Struck them tame;
 And that glory and that shame alike, the gold
 Bought and sold.

IV.

Now, — the single little turret that remains
 On the plains,
 By the caper overrooted, by the gourd
 Overscored,
 While the patching houseleek's head of blossom winks
 Through the chinks —
 Marks the basement whence a tower in ancient time
 Sprang sublime,
 And a burning ring, all round, the chariots traced
 As they raced,
 And the monarch and his minions and his dames
 Viewed the games.

V.

And I know, while thus the quiet-colored eve
 Smiles to leave
 To their folding, all our many-tinkling fleece
 In such peace,
 And the slopes and rills in undistinguished gray
 Melt away —
 That a girl with eager eyes and yellow hair
 Waits me there
 In the turret whence the charioteers caught soul
 For the goal,
 When the king looked, where she looks now, breathless, dumb
 Till I come.

VI.

But he looked upon the city, every side,
 Far and wide,

All the mountains topped with temples, all the glades'
 Colonnades,
 All the causeys, bridges, aqueducts, — and then,
 All the men!
 When I do come, she will speak not, she will stand,
 Either hand
 On my shoulder, give her eyes the first embrace
 Of my face,
 Ere we rush, ere we extinguish sight and speech
 Each on each.

VII.

In one year they sent a million fighters forth
 South and North,
 And they built their gods a brazen pillar high
 As the sky,
 Yet reserved a thousand chariots in full force —
 Gold, of course.
 Oh heart! oh blood that freezes, blood that burns!
 Earth's returns
 For whole centuries of folly, noise and sin!
 Shut them in,
 With their triumphs and their glories and the rest!
 Love is best.

A LOVERS' QUARREL.

I.

Oh, what a dawn of day!
 How the March sun feels like May!
 All is blue again
 After last night's rain,
 And the South dries the hawthorn-spray
 Only, my Love's away!
 I'd as lief that the blue were gray.

II.

Runnels, which rilletts swell,
 Must be dancing down the dell,
 With a foaming head
 On the beryl bed
 Paven smooth as a hermit's cell;
 Each with a tale to tell,
 Could my Love but attend as well.

III.

Dearest, three months ago !
 When we lived blocked-up with snow, —
     When the wind would edge
     In and in his wedge,
 In, as far as the point could go —
     Not to our ingle, though,
 Where we loved each the other so !

IV.

Laughs with so little cause !
 We devised games out of straws.
     We would try and trace
     One another's face
 In the ash, as an artist draws ;
     Free on each other's flaws,
 How we chattered like two church daws !

V.

What's in the "Times" ? — a scold
 At the Emperor deep and cold ;
     He has taken a bride
     To his gruesome side,
 That's as fair as himself is bold :
     There they sit ermine-stoled,
 And she powders her hair with gold.

VI.

Fancy the Pampas' sheen !
 Miles and miles of gold and green
     Where the sunflowers blow
     In a solid glow,
 And — to break now and then the screen —
     Black neck and eyeballs keen,
 Up a wild horse leaps between !

VII.

Try, will our table turn ?
 Lay your hands there light, and yearn
     Till the yearning slips
     Through the finger-tips
 In a fire which a few discern,
     And a very few feel burn,
 And the rest, they may live and learn !

VIII.

Then we would up and pace,
 For a change, about the place,
     Each with arm o'er neck :
     'T is our quarter-deck,
 We are seamen in woful case.
     Help in the ocean-space !
 Or, if no help, we 'll embrace.

IX.

See, how she looks now, dressed
 In a sleding-cap and vest !
     'T is a huge fur cloak —
     Like a reindeer's yoke
 Falls the lappet along the breast :
     Sleeves for her arms to rest,
 Or to hang, as my Love likes best.

X.

Teach me to flirt a fan
 As the Spanish ladies can,
     Or I tint your lip
     With a burnt stick's tip
 *And you turn into such a man !
     Just the two spots that span
 Half the bill of the young male swan.

XI.

Dearest, three months ago
 When the mesmerizer Snow
     With his hand's first sweep
     Put the earth to sleep :
 'T was a time when the heart could show
     All — how was earth to know,
 'Neath the mute hand's to-and-fro ?

XII.

Dearest, three months ago
 When we loved each other so,
     Lived and loved the same
     Till an evening came
 When a shaft from the devil's bow
     Pierced to our ingle-glow,
 And the friends were friend and foe !

XIII.

Not from the heart beneath —
 'T was a bubble born of breath,
     Neither sneer nor vaunt,
     Nor reproach nor taunt.
 See a word, how it severeth!
     Oh, power of life and death
 In the tongue, as the Preacher saith!

XIV.

Woman, and will you cast
 For a word, quite off at last
     Me, your own, your You. —
     Since, as truth is true,
 I was You all the happy past —
     Me do you leave aghast
 With the memories We amassed?

XV.

Love, if you knew the light
 That your soul casts in my sight,
     How I look to you
     For the pure and true.
 And the beauteous and the right. —
     Bear with a moment's spite
 When a mere mote threatens the white!

XVI.

What of a hasty word?
 Is the fleshly heart not stirred
     By a worm's pin-prick
     Where its roots are quick?
 See the eye, by a fly's-foot blurred —
     Ear, when a straw is heard
 Scratch the brain's coat of curd!

XVII.

Foul be the world or fair
 More or less, how can I care?
     'T is the world the same
     For my praise or blame,
 And endurance is easy there.
     Wrong in the one thing rare —
 Oh, it is hard to bear!

XVIII.

Here 's the spring back or close,
When the almond-blossom blows ;
    We shall have the word
    In a minor third,
There is none but the cuckoo knows :
    Heaps of the guelder-rose !
I must bear with it, I suppose.

XIX.

Could but November come,
Were the noisy birds struck dumb
    At the warning slash
    Of his driver's-lash —
I would laugh like the valiant Thumb
    Facing the castle glum
And the giant's fee-faw-fum !

XX.

Then, were the world well stripped
Of the gear wherein equipped
    We can stand apart,
    Heart dispense with heart
In the sun, with the flowers unripped, —
    Oh, the world's hangings ripped,
We were both in a bare-walled crypt !

XXI.

Each in the crypt would cry
" But one freezes here ! and why ?
    When a heart, as chill,
    At my own would thrill
Back to life, and its fires out-fly ?
    Heart, shall we live or die ?
The rest, . . . settle by and by ! "

XXII.

So, she 'd efface the score,
And forgive me as before.
    It is twelve o'clock :
    I shall hear her knock
In the worst of a storm's uproar,
    I shall pull her through the door,
I shall have her for evermore !

UP AT A VILLA — DOWN IN THE CITY.

(AS DISTINGUISHED BY AN ITALIAN PERSON OF QUALITY.)

I.

Had I but plenty of money, money enough and to spare,
The house for me, no doubt, were a house in the city-square;
Ah, such a life, such a life, as one leads at the window there!

II.

Something to see, by Bacchus, something to hear, at least!
There, the whole day long, one's life is a perfect feast;
While up at a villa one lives, I maintain it, no more than a beast.

III.

Well now, look at our villa! stuck like the horn of a bull
Just on a mountain-edge as bare as the creature's skull,
Save a mere shag of a bush with hardly a leaf to pull!
— I scratch my own, sometimes, to see if the hair's turned wool.

IV.

But the city, oh the city — the square with the houses! Why?
They are stone-faced, white as a curd, there's something to take the eye!
Houses in four straight lines, not a single front awry;
You watch who crosses and gossips, who saunters, who hurries
by;
Green blinds, as a matter of course, to draw when the sun gets high;
And the shops with fanciful signs which are painted properly.

V.

What of a villa? Though winter be over in March by rights,
'Tis May perhaps ere the snow shall have withered well off the heights:
You've the brown ploughed land before, where the oxen steam and wheeze,
And the hills over-smoked behind by the faint gray olive-trees.

VI.

Is it better in May, I ask you? You've summer all at once;
In a day he leaps complete with a few strong April suns.
'Mid the sharp short emerald wheat, scarce risen three fingers
well,

The wild tulip, at end of its tube, blows out its great red bell
Like a thin clear bubble of blood, for the children to pick and sell.

VII.

Is it ever hot in the square? There's a fountain to spout and splash!
In the shade it sings and springs; in the shine such foambows flash
On the horses with curling fish-tails, that prance and paddle and pash
Round the lady atop in her conch — fifty gazers do not abash,
Though all that she wears is some weeds round her waist in a sort of sash.

VIII.

All the year long at the villa, nothing to see though you linger,
Except yon cypress that points like death's lean lifted forefinger.
Some think fireflies pretty, when they mix i' the corn and mingle,
Or thrud the stinking hemp till the stalks of it seem a-tingle.
Late August or early September, the stunning cicala is shrill,
And the bees keep their tiresome whine round the resinous firs on the hill.
Enough of the seasons, — I spare you the months of the fever and chill.

IX.

Ere you open your eyes in the city, the blessed church-bells begin:
No sooner the bells leave off than the diligence rattles in:
You get the pick of the news, and it costs you never a pin.
By-and-by there's the travelling doctor gives pills, lets blood,
draws teeth;
Or the Pulcinello-trumpet breaks up the market beneath.
At the post-office such a scene-picture — the new play, piping hot!
And a notice how, only this morning, three liberal thieves were shot.
Above it, behold the Archbishop's most fatherly of rebukes,
And beneath, with his crown and his lion, some little new law of the Duke's!
Or a sonnet with flowery marge, to the Reverend Don So-and-so
Who is Dante, Boccaccio, Petrarca, Saint Jerome, and Cicero,
"And moreover," (the sonnet goes rhyming,) "the skirts of Saint Paul has reached,

Having preached us those six Lent-lectures more unctuous than ever he preached."

Noon strikes, — here sweeps the procession! our Lady borne smiling and smart

With a pink gauze gown all spangles, and seven swords stuck in her heart!

Bang-whang-whang goes the drum, tootle-te-tootle the fife;
No keeping one's haunches still: it's the greatest pleasure in life.

X.

But bless you, it's dear — it's dear! fowls, wine, at double the rate.

They have clapped a new tax upon salt, and what oil pays passing the gate

It's a horror to think of. And so, the villa for me, not the city!
Beggars can scarcely be choosers: but still — ah, the pity, the pity!

Look, two and two go the priests, then the monks with cowls and sandals,

And the penitents dressed in white shirts, a-holding the yellow candles;

One, he carries a flag up straight, and another a cross with handles,

And the Duke's guard brings up the rear, for the better prevention of scandals:

Bang-whang-whang goes the drum, tootle-te-tootle the fife.

Oh, a day in the city-square, there is no such pleasure in life!

A TOCCATA OF GALUPPI'S.

I.

Oh Galuppi, Baldassare, this is very sad to find!

I can hardly misconceive you; it would prove me deaf and blind;

But although I take your meaning, 't is with such a heavy mind!

II.

Here you come with your old music, and here's all the good it brings.

What, they lived once thus at Venice where the merchants were the kings,

Where St. Mark's is, where the Doges used to wed the sea with rings?

III.

Ay, because the sea's the street there; and 't is arched by . . .
 what you call
 . . . Shylock's bridge with houses on it, where they kept the carnival:
 I was never out of England — it's as if I saw it all.

IV.

Did young people take their pleasure when the sea was warm
 in May?
 Balls and masks begun at midnight, burning ever to mid-day,
 When they made up fresh adventures for the morrow, do you say?

V.

Was a lady such a lady, cheeks so round and lips so red, —
 On her neck the small face buoyant, like a bell-flower on its bed,
 O'er the breast's superb abundance where a man might base his head?

VI.

Well, and it was graceful of them — they'd break talk off and afford
 — She, to bite her mask's black velvet — he, to finger on his sword,
 While you sat and played Toccatas, stately at the clavichord?

VII.

What? Those lesser thirds so plaintive, sixths diminished, sigh
 on sigh,
 Told them something? Those suspensions, those solutions —
 "Must we die?"
 Those commiserating sevenths — "Life might last! we can but try!"

VIII.

"Were you happy?" — "Yes." — "And are you still as happy?" — "Yes. And you?"
 — "Then, more kisses!" — "Did I stop them, when a million seemed so few?"
 Hark, the dominant's persistence till it must be answered to!

IX.

So, an octave struck the answer. Oh, they praised you, I dare say!

“ Brave Galuppi ! that was music ! good alike at grave and gay !
I can always leave off talking when I hear a master play ! ”

X.

Then they left you for their pleasure : till in due time, one by one,
Some with lives that came to nothing, some with deeds as well undone,
Death stepped tacitly and took them where they never see the sun.

XI.

But when I sit down to reason, think to take my stand nor swerve,
While I triumph o'er a secret wrung from nature's close reserve,
In you come with your cold music till I creep through every nerve.

XII.

Yes, you, like a ghostly cricket, creaking where a house was burned :
“ Dust and ashes, dead and done with, Venice spent what Venice earned.
The soul, doubtless, is immortal — where a soul can be discerned.

XIII.

“ Yours for instance : you know physics, something of geology,
Mathematics are your pastime ; souls shall rise in their degree ;
Butterflies may dread extinction, — you 'll not die, it cannot be !

XIV.

“ As for Venice and her people, merely born to bloom and drop,
Here on earth they bore their fruitage, mirth and folly were the crop :
What of soul was left, I wonder, when the kissing had to stop ?

XV.

“ Dust and ashes ! ” So you creak it, and I want the heart to scold.
Dear dead women, with such hair, too — what's become of all the gold
Used to hang and brush their bosoms ? I feel chilly and grown old.

OLD PICTURES IN FLORENCE.

I.

The morn when first it thunders in March,
 The eel in the pond gives a leap, they say :
 As I leaned and looked over the aloed arch
 Of the villa-gate this warm March day,
 No flash snapped, no dumb thunder rolled
 In the valley beneath where, white and wide
 And washed by the morning water-gold,
 Florence lay out on the mountain-side.

II.

River and bridge and street and square
 Lay mine, as much at my beck and call,
 Through the live translucent bath of air,
 As the sights in a magic crystal ball.
 And of all I saw and of all I praised,
 The most to praise and the best to see,
 Was the startling bell-tower Giotto raised :
 But why did it more than startle me ?

III.

Giotto, how, with that soul of yours,
 Could you play me false who loved you so ?
 Some slights if a certain heart endures
 Yet it feels, I would have your fellows know !
 I' faith, I perceive not why I should care
 To break a silence that suits them best,
 But the thing grows somewhat hard to bear
 When I find a Giotto join the rest.

IV.

On the arch where olives overhead
 Print the blue sky with twig and leaf,
 (That sharp-curved leaf which they never shed)
 'Twixt the aloes, I used to lean in chief,
 And mark through the winter afternoons,
 By a gift God grants me now and then,
 In the mild decline of those suns like moons,
 Who walked in Florence, besides her men.

V.

They might chirp and chaffer, come and go
 For pleasure or profit, her men alive —

My business was hardly with them, I trow,
 But with empty cells of the human hive;
 — With the chapter-room, the cloister-porch,
 The church's apsis, aisle or nave,
 Its crypt, one fingers along with a torch,
 Its face set full for the sun to shave.

VI.

Wherever a fresco peels and drops,
 Wherever an outline weakens and wanes
 Till the latest life in the painting stops,
 Stands One whom each fainter pulse-tick pains:
 One, wishful each scrap should clutch the brick,
 Each tinge not wholly escape the plaster,
 — A lion who dies of an ass's kick,
 The wronged great soul of an ancient Master.

VII.

For oh, this world and the wrong it does!
 They are safe in heaven with their backs to it,
 The Michaels and Rafaels, you hum and buzz
 Round the works of, you of the little wit!
 Do their eyes contract to the earth's old scope,
 Now that they see God face to face,
 And have all attained to be poets, I hope?
 'T is their holiday now, in any case.

VIII.

Much they reckon of your praise and you!
 But the wronged great souls — can they be quit
 Of a world where their work is all to do,
 Where you style them, you of the little wit,
 Old Master This and Early the Other,
 Not dreaming that Old and New are fellows:
 A younger succeeds to an elder brother,
 Da Vincis derive in good time from Dellos.

IX.

And here where your praise might yield returns,
 And a handsome word or two give help,
 Here, after your kind, the mastiff girns
 And the puppy pack of poodles yelp.
 What, not a word for Stefano there,
 Of brow once prominent and starry,
 Called Nature's Ape, and the world's despair
 For his peerless painting? (see Vasari.)

X.

There stands the Master. Study, my friends,
 What a man's work comes to! So he plans it,
 Performs it, perfects it, makes amends
 For the toiling and moiling, and then, sic transit!
 Happier the thrifty blind-folk labor,
 With upturned eye while the hand is busy,
 Not sidling a glance at the coin of their neighbor!
 'T is looking downward that makes one dizzy.

XI.

"If you knew their work you would deal your dole."
 May I take upon me to instruct you?
 When Greek Art ran and reached the goal,
 Thus much had the world to boast in fructu —
 The Truth of Man, as by God first spoken,
 Which the actual generations garble,
 Was re-uttered, and Soul (which Limbs betoken)
 And Limbs (Soul informs) made new in marble.

XII.

So, you saw yourself as you wished you were,
 As you might have been, as you cannot be;
 Earth here, rebuked by Olympus there:
 And grew content in your poor degree
 With your little power, by those statues' godhead,
 And your little scope, by their eyes' full sway,
 And your little grace, by their grace embodied,
 And your little date, by their forms that stay.

XIII.

You would fain be kinglier, say, than I am?
 Even so, you will not sit like Theseus.
 You would prove a model? The Son of Priam
 Has yet the advantage in arms' and knees' use.
 You're wroth — can you slay your snake like Apollo?
 You're grieved — still Niobe's the grander!
 You live — there's the Racers' frieze to follow:
 You die — there's the dying Alexander.

XIV.

So, testing your weakness by their strength,
 Your meagre charms by their rounded beauty,
 Measured by Art in your breadth and length,
 You learned — to submit is a mortal's duty.

— When I say “you” ’t is the common soul,
 The collective, I mean : the race of Man
 That receives life in parts to live in a whole,
 And grow here according to God’s clear plan.

XV.

Growth came when, looking your last on them all,
 You turned your eyes inwardly one fine day
 And cried with a start — What if we so small
 Be greater and grander the while than they?
 Are they perfect of lineament, perfect of stature?
 In both, of such lower types are we
 Precisely because of our wider nature;
 For time, theirs — ours, for eternity.

XVI.

To-day’s brief passion limits their range;
 It seethes with the morrow for us and more.
 They are perfect — how else? they shall never change:
 We are faulty — why not? we have time in store.
 The Artificer’s hand is not arrested
 With us; we are rough-hewn, nowise polished:
 They stand for our copy, and, once invested
 With all they can teach, we shall see them abolished.

XVII.

’T is a life-long toil till our lump be leaven —
 The better! What’s come to perfection perishes.
 Things learned on earth, we shall practise in heaven:
 Works done least rapidly, Art most cherishes.
 Thyself shalt afford the example, Giotto!
 Thy one work, not to decrease or diminish,
 Done at a stroke, was just (was it not?) “O!”
 Thy great Campanile is still to finish.

XVIII.

Is it true that we are now, and shall be hereafter,
 But what and where depend on life’s minute?
 Hails heavenly cheer or infernal laughter
 Our first step out of the gulf or in it?
 Shall Man, such step within his endeavor,
 Man’s face, have no more play and action
 Than joy which is crystallized forever,
 Or grief, an eternal petrification?

XIX.

On which I conclude, that the early painters,
 To cries of "Greek Art and what more wish you?" —
 Replied, "To become now self-acquainters,
 And paint man, man, whatever the issue!
 Make new hopes shine through the flesh they fray,
 New fears aggrandize the rags and tatters:
 To bring the invisible full into play!
 Let the visible go to the dogs — what matters?"

XX.

Give these, I exhort you, their guerdon and glory
 For daring so much, before they well did it.
 The first of the new, in our race's story,
 Beats the last of the old; 't is no idle quiddit.
 The worthies began a revolution,
 Which if on earth you intend to acknowledge,
 Why, honor them now! (ends my allocution)
 Nor confer your degree when the folk leave college.

XXI.

There's a fancy some lean to and others hate —
 That, when this life is ended, begins
 New work for the soul in another state,
 Where it strives and gets weary, loses and wins:
 Where the strong and the weak, this world's congeries,
 Repeat in large what they practised in small,
 Through life after life in unlimited series;
 Only the scale's to be changed, that's all.

XXII.

Yet I hardly know. When a soul has seen
 By the means of Evil that Good is best,
 And, through earth and its noise, what is heaven's serene, —
 When our faith in the same has stood the test —
 Why, the child grown man, you burn the rod,
 The uses of labor are surely done;
 There remaineth a rest for the people of God:
 And I have had troubles enough, for one.

XXIII.

But at any rate I have loved the season
 Of Art's spring-birth so dim and dewy;
 My sculptor is Nicolo the Pisan,
 My painter — who but Cimabue?

Nor ever was man of them all indeed,
 From these to Ghiberti and Ghirlandajo,
 Could say that he missed my critic-meed.
 So, now to my special grievance — heigh-ho !

XXIV.

Their ghosts still stand, as I said before,
 Watching each fresco flaked and rasped,
 Blocked up, knocked out, or whitewashed o'er :
 — No getting again what the church has grasped !
 The works on the wall must take their chance ;
 “ Works never conceded to England's thick clime ! ”
 (I hope they prefer their inheritance
 Of a bucketful of Italian quick-lime.)

XXV.

When they go at length, with such a shaking
 Of heads o'er the old delusion, sadly
 Each master his way through the black streets taking,
 Where many a lost work breathes though badly —
 Why don't they bethink them of who has merited ?
 Why not reveal, while their pictures dree
 Such doom, how a captive might be out-ferreted ?
 Why is it they never remember me ?

XXVI.

Not that I expect the great Bigordi,
 Nor Sandro to hear me, chivalric, bellicose ;
 Nor the wronged Lippino ; and not a word I
 Say of a scrap of Frà Angelico's :
 But are you too fine, Taddeo Gaddi,
 To grant me a taste of your intonaco,
 Some Jerome that seeks the heaven with a sad eye ?
 Not a churlish saint, Lorenzo Monaco ?

XXVII.

Could not the ghost with the close red cap,
 My Pollajolo, the twice a craftsman,
 Save me a sample, give me the hap
 Of a muscular Christ that shows the draughtsman ?
 No Virgin by him the somewhat petty,
 Of finical touch and tempera crumbly —
 Could not Alesso Baldovinetti
 Contribute so much, I ask him humbly ?

XXVIII.

Margheritone of Arezzo,
 With the grave-clothes garb and swaddling barret,
 (Why purse up mouth and beak in a pet so,
 You bald old saturnine poll-clawed parrot?)
 Not a poor glimmering Crucifixion,
 Where in the foreground kneels the donor?
 If such remain, as is my conviction,
 The hoarding it does you but little honor.

XXIX.

They pass; for them the panels may thrill,
 The tempera grow alive and tinglysh;
 Their pictures are left to the mercies still
 Of dealers and stealers, Jews and the English,
 Who, seeing mere money's worth in their prize,
 Will sell it to somebody calm as Zeno
 At naked High Art, and in ecstasies
 Before some clay-cold vile Carlino!

XXX.

No matter for these! But Giotto, you,
 Have you allowed, as the town-tongues babble it,—
 Oh, never! it shall not be counted true —
 That a certain precious little tablet
 Which Buonarroto eyed like a lover —
 Was buried so long in oblivion's womb
 And, left for another than I to discover,
 Turns up at last! and to whom? — to whom?

XXXI.

I, that have haunted the dim San Spirito,
 (Or was it rather the Ognissanti?)
 Patient on altar-step planting a weary toe!
 Nay, I shall have it yet! Detur amanti!
 My Koh-i-noor — or (if that's a platitude)
 Jewel of Giamschid, the Persian Sofi's eye;
 So, in anticipative gratitude,
 What if I take up my hope and prophesy?

XXXII.

When the hour grows ripe, and a certain dotard
 Is pitched, no parcel that needs invoicing,
 To the worse side of the Mont St. Gothard,
 We shall begin by way of rejoicing;

None of that shooting the sky (blank cartridge),
 Nor a civic guard, all plumes and lacquer,
 Hunting Radetzky's soul like a partridge
 Over Morello with squib and cracker.

XXXIII.

This time we 'll shoot better game and bag 'em hot —
 No mere display at the stone of Dante,
 But a kind of sober Witanagemot
 (Ex: "Casa Guidi," quod videas ante)
 Shall ponder, once Freedom restored to Florence,
 How Art may return that departed with her.
 Go, hated house, go each trace of the Loraine's,
 And bring us the days of Orgagna hither!

XXXIV.

How we shall prologuize, how we shall perorate,
 Utter fit things upon art and history,
 Feel truth at blood-heat and falsehood at zero rate,
 Make of the want of the age no mystery;
 Contrast the fructuous and sterile eras,
 Show — monarchy ever its uncouth cub licks
 Out of the bear's shape into Chimæra's,
 While Pure Art's birth is still the republic's.

XXXV.

Then one shall propose in a speech (curt Tuscan,
 Expurgate and sober, with scarcely an "issimo,")
 To end now our half-told tale of Cambuscan,
 And turn the bell-tower's alt to altissimo:
 And fine as the beak of a young beccaccia
 The Campanile, the Duomo's fit ally,
 Shall soar up in gold full fifty braccia,
 Completing Florence, as Florence, Italy.

XXXVI.

Shall I be alive that morning the scaffold
 Is broken away, and the long-pent fire,
 Like the golden hope of the world, unbaffled
 Springs from its sleep, and up goes the spire
 While "God and the People" plain for its motto,
 Thence the new tricolor flaps at the sky?
 At least to foresee that glory of Giotto
 And Florence together, the first am I!

“DE GUSTIBUS —”

I.

Your ghost will walk, you lover of trees,
 (If our loves remain)
 In an English lane,

By a cornfield-side a-flutter with poppies.
 Hark, those two in the hazel coppice —
 A boy and a girl, if the good fates please,
 Making love, say, —
 The happier they!

Draw yourself up from the light of the moon,
 And let them pass, as they will too soon,
 With the beanflowers' boon,
 And the blackbird's tune,
 And May, and June!

II.

What I love best in all the world
 Is a castle, precipice-encurled,
 In a gash of the wind-grieved Apennine.
 Or look for me, old fellow of mine,
 (If I get my head from out the mouth
 O' the grave, and loose my spirit's bands,
 And come again to the land of lands) —
 In a sea-side house to the farther South,
 Where the baked cicala dies of drouth,
 And one sharp tree — 't is a cypress — stands,
 By the many hundred years red-rusted,
 Rough iron-spiked, ripe fruit-o'ererusted,
 My sentinel to guard the sands
 To the water's edge. For, what expands
 Before the house, but the great opaque
 Blue breadth of sea without a break?
 While, in the house, forever crumbles
 Some fragment of the frescoed walls,
 From blisters where a scorpion sprawls.
 A girl bare-footed brings, and tumbles
 Down on the pavement, green-flesh melons,
 And says there's news to-day — the king
 Was shot at, touched in the liver-wing,
 Goes with his Bourbon arm in a sling:
 — She hopes they have not caught the felons.
 Italy, my Italy!
 Queen Mary's saying serves for me —

(When fortune's malice Lost her, Calais)
 Open my heart and you will see
 Graved inside of it, "Italy."
 Such lovers old are I and she :
 So it always was, so shall ever be !

HOME-THOUGHTS, FROM ABROAD.

I.

Oh, to be in England
 Now that April's there,
 And whoever wakes in England
 Sees, some morning, unaware,
 That the lowest boughs and the brush-wood sheaf
 Round the elm-tree bole are in tiny leaf,
 While the chaffinch sings on the orchard bough
 In England — now !

II.

And after April, when May follows,
 And the whitethroat builds, and all the swallows !
 Hark, where my blossomed pear-tree in the hedge
 Leans to the field and scatters on the clover
 Blossoms and dewdrops — at the bent spray's edge —
 That's the wise thrush ; he sings each song twice over,
 Lest you should think he never could recapture
 The first fine careless rapture !
 And though the fields look rough with hoary dew,
 All will be gay when noontide wakes anew
 The buttercups, the little children's dower
 — Far brighter than this gaudy melon-flower !

HOME-THOUGHTS, FROM THE SEA.

Nobly, nobly Cape Saint Vincent to the North-West died away ;
 Sunset ran, one glorious blood-red, reeking into Cadiz Bay ;
 Bluish 'mid the burning water, full in face Trafalgar lay ;
 In the dimmest North-East distance dawned Gibraltar grand and gray ;
 " Here and here did England help me : how can I help England ? " — say,
 Whoso turns as I, this evening, turn to God to praise and pray,
 While Jove's planet rises yonder, silent over Africa.

SAUL.

I.

Said Abner, "At last thou art come! Ere I tell, ere thou speak, Kiss my cheek, wish me well!" Then I wished it, and did kiss his cheek.

And he: "Since the King, O my friend, for thy countenance sent,

Neither drunken nor eaten have we; nor until from his tent
Thou return with the joyful assurance the King liveth yet,
Shall our lip with the honey be bright, with the water be wet.
For out of the black mid-tent's silence, a space of three days,
Not a sound hath escaped to thy servants, of prayer nor of praise,

To betoken that Saul and the Spirit have ended their strife,
And that, faint in his triumph, the monarch sinks back upon life.

II.

"Yet now my heart leaps, O beloved! God's child with his dew
On thy gracious gold hair, and those lilies still living and blue
Just broken to twine round thy harp-strings, as if no wild heat
Were now raging to torture the desert!"

III.

Then I, as was meet,
Knelt down to the God of my fathers, and rose on my feet,
And ran o'er the sand burnt to powder. The tent was un-
looped;

I pulled up the spear that obstructed, and under I stooped;
Hands and knees on the slippery grass-patch, all withered and
gone,

That extends to the second enclosure, I groped my way on Till I felt where the foldskirts fly open. Then once more I prayed,

And opened the foldskirts and entered, and was not afraid
But spoke, "Here is David, thy servant!" And no voice replied.

At the first I saw nought but the blackness; but soon I descried
A something more black than the blackness — the vast, the upright

Main prop which sustains the pavilion: and slow into sight
Grew a figure against it, gigantic and blackest of all.

Then a sunbeam, that burst through the tent-roof, showed Saul.

IV.

He stood as erect as that tent-prop, both arms stretched out wide
 On the great cross-support in the centre, that goes to each side ;
 He relaxed not a muscle, but hung there as, caught in his pangs
 And waiting his change, the king-serpent all heavily hangs,
 Far away from his kind, in the pine, till deliverance come
 With the spring-time, — so agonized Saul, drear and stark, blind and dumb.

V.

Then I tuned my harp, — took off the lilies we twine round its chords
 Lest they snap 'neath the stress of the noontide — those sunbeams like swords !
 And I first played the tune all our sheep know, as, one after one,
 So docile they come to the pen-door till folding be done.
 They are white and untorn by the bushes, for lo, they have fed
 Where the long grasses stifle the water within the stream's bed ;
 And now one after one seeks its lodging, as star follows star
 Into eve and the blue far above us, — so blue and so far !

VI.

— Then the tune, for which quails on the cornland will each leave his mate
 To fly after the player ; then, what makes the crickets elate
 Till for boldness they fight one another : and then, what has weight
 To set the quick jerboa a-musing outside his sand house —
 There are none such as he for a wonder, half bird and half mouse !
 God made all the creatures and gave them our love and our fear,
 To give sign, we and they are his children, one family here.

VII.

Then I played the help-tune of our reapers, their wine-song, when hand
 Grasps at hand, eye lights eye in good friendship, and great hearts expand
 And grow one in the sense of this world's life. — And then, the last song
 When the dead man is praised on his journey — “ Bear, bear him along,
 With his few faults shut up like dead flowerets ! Are balm seeds not here

To console us? The land has none left such as he on the bier.
 Oh, would we might keep thee, my brother!" — And then, the glad chaunt
 Of the marriage, — first go the young maidens, next, she whom we vaunt
 As the beauty, the pride of our dwelling. — And then, the great march
 Wherein man runs to man to assist him and buttress an arch
 Nought can break; who shall harm them, our friends? Then,
 the chorus intoned
 As the Levites go up to the altar in glory enthroned.
 But I stopped here: for here in the darkness Saul groaned.

VIII.

And I paused, held my breath in such silence, and listened
 apart;
 And the tent shook, for mighty Saul shuddered: and sparkles
 'gan dart
 From the jewels that woke in his turban, at once with a start,
 All its lordly male-sapphires, and rubies courageous at heart.
 So the head: but the body still moved not, still hung there erect.
 And I bent once again to my playing, pursued it unchecked,
 As I sang: —

IX.

"Oh, our manhood's prime vigor! No spirit feels waste,
 Not a muscle is stopped in its playing nor sinew unbraced.
 Oh, the wild joys of living! the leaping from rock up to rock,
 The strong rending of boughs from the fir-tree, the cool silver shock
 Of the plunge in a pool's living water, the hunt of the bear,
 And the sultriness showing the lion is couched in his lair.
 And the meal, the rich dates yellowed over with gold dust
 divine,
 And the locust-flesh steeped in the pitcher, the full draught of wine,
 And the sleep in the dried river-channel where bulrushes tell
 That the water was wont to go warbling so softly and well.
 How good is man's life, the mere living! how fit to employ
 All the heart and the soul and the senses forever in joy!
 Hast thou loved the white locks of thy father, whose sword thou didst guard
 When he trusted thee forth with the armies, for glorious reward?"

Didst thou see the thin hands of thy mother, held up as men sung
 The low song of the nearly-departed, and hear her faint tongue
 Joining in while it could to the witness, 'Let one more attest,
 I have lived, seen God's hand through a lifetime, and all was for best?'
 Then they sung through their tears in strong triumph, not much, but the rest.
 And thy brothers, the help and the contest, the working whence grew
 Such result as, from seething grape-bundles, the spirit strained
     true:
 And the friends of thy boyhood — that boyhood of wonder and hope,
 Present promise and wealth of the future beyond the eye's scope, —
 Till lo, thou art grown to a monarch; a people is thine;
 And all gifts, which the world offers singly, on one head combine!
 On one head, all the beauty and strength, love and rage (like the three
 That, a-work in the rock, helps its labor and lets the gold go)
 High ambition and deeds which surpass it, fame crowning them,
     — all
 Brought to blaze on the head of one creature — King Saul!"

x.

And lo, with that leap of my spirit, — heart, hand, harp and voice,
 Each lifting Saul's name out of sorrow, each bidding rejoice
 Saul's fame in the light it was made for — as when, dare I say,
 The Lord's army, in rapture of service, strains through its array,
 And upsoareth the cherubim-chariot — "Saul!" cried I, and stopped,
 And waited the thing that should follow. Then Saul, who hung propped
 By the tent's cross-support in the centre, was struck by his name.
 Have ye seen when Spring's arrowy summons goes right to the aim,
 And some mountain, the last to withstand her, that held (he alone,
 While the vale laughed in freedom and flowers) on a broad bust of stone
 A year's snow bound about for a breastplate, — leaves grasp of the sheet?

Fold on fold all at once it crowds thunderously down to his feet,
 And there fronts you, stark, black, but alive yet, your mountain
 of old,
 With his rents, the successive bequeathings of ages untold —
 Yea, each harm got in fighting your battles, each furrow and scar
 Of his head thrust 'twixt you and the tempest — all hail, there they are!
 — Now again to be softened with verdure, again hold the nest
 Of the dove, tempt the goat and its young to the green on his crest
 For their food in the ardors of summer. One long shudder thrilled
 All the tent till the very air tingled, then sank and was stilled
 At the King's self left standing before me, released and aware.
 What was gone, what remained? All to traverse 'twixt hope and despair,
 Death was past, life not come: so he waited. Awhile his right hand
 Held the brow, helped the eyes left too vacant forthwith to remand
 To their place what new objects should enter: 't was Saul as before.
 I looked up and dared gaze at those eyes, nor was hurt any more
 Than by slow pallid sunsets in autumn, ye watch from the shore,
 At their sad level gaze o'er the ocean — a sun's slow decline
 Over hills which, resolved in stern silence, o'erlap and entwine
 Base with base to knit strength more intensely: so, arm folded arm
 O'er the chest whose slow heavings subsided.

XI.

What spell or what charm,
 (For, awhile there was trouble within me,) what next should I urge
 To sustain him where song had restored him? — Song filled to the verge
 His cup with the wine of this life, pressing all that it yields
 Of mere fruitage, the strength and the beauty: beyond, on what fields,
 Glean a vintage more potent and perfect to brighten the eye
 And bring blood to the lip, and commend them the cup they put by?

He saith, "It is good;" still he drinks not: he lets me praise
 life,
 Gives assent, yet would die for his own part.

XII.

Then fancies grew rife

Which had come long ago on the pasture, when round me the sheep
 Fed in silence — above, the one eagle wheeled slow as in sleep;
 And I lay in my hollow and mused on the world that might lie
 'Neath his ken, though I saw but the strip 'twixt the hill and the sky:
 And I laughed — "Since my days are ordained to be passed
 with my flocks,
 Let me people at least, with my fancies, the plains and the rocks,
 Dream the life I am never to mix with, and image the show
 Of mankind as they live in those fashions I hardly shall know!
 Schemes of life, its best rules and right uses, the courage that gains,
 And the prudence that keeps what men strive for." And now these old trains
 Of vague thought came again; I grew surer; so, once more the string
 Of my harp made response to my spirit, as thus —

XIII.

"Yea, my King,"

I began — "thou dost well in rejecting mere comforts that spring
 From the mere mortal life held in common by man and by brute:
 In our flesh grows the branch of this life, in our soul it bears fruit.
 Thou hast marked the slow rise of the tree, — how its stem trembled first
 Till it passed the kid's lip, the stag's antler; then safely outburst
 The fan-branches all round; and thou mindest when these too,
 in turn,
 Broke a-bloom and the palm-tree seemed perfect: yet more was
 to learn,
 E'en the good that comes in with the palm-fruit. Our dates shall we slight,
 When their juice brings a cure for all sorrow? or care for the plight
 Of the palm's self whose slow growth produced them? Not so!
 stem and branch

Shall decay, nor be known in their place, while the palm-wine shall stanch

Every wound of man's spirit in winter. I pour thee such wine.

Leave the flesh to the fate it was fit for! the spirit be thine!

By the spirit, when age shall o'ercome thee, thou still shalt enjoy
More indeed, than at first when unconscious, the life of a boy.

Crush that life, and behold its wine running! Each deed thou hast done

Dies, revives, goes to work in the world; until e'en as the sun
Looking down on the earth, though clouds spoil him, though tempests efface,

Can find nothing his own deed produced not, must everywhere trace

The results of his past summer-prime, — so, each ray of thy will,
Every flash of thy passion and prowess, long over, shall thrill
Thy whole people, the countless, with ardor, till they too give forth

A like cheer to their sons, who in turn, fill the South and the North

With the radiance thy deed was the germ of. Carouse in the past!

But the license of age has its limit; thou diest at last:

As the lion when age dims his eyeball, the rose at her height,

So with man — so his power and his beauty forever take flight.

No! Again a long draught of my soul-wine! Look forth o'er the years!

Thou hast done now with eyes for the actual; begin with the seer's!

Is Saul dead? In the depth of the vale make his tomb — bid arise

A gray mountain of marble heaped four-square, till, built to the skies,

Let it mark where the great First King slumbers: whose fame
would ye know?

Up above see the rock's naked face, where the record shall go
In great characters cut by the scribe, — Such was Saul, so he did;

With the sages directing the work, by the populace chid, —
For not half, they'll affirm, is comprised there! Which fault to amend,

In the grove with his kind grows the cedar, whereon they shall spend

(See, in tablets 't is level before them) their praise, and record
With the gold of the graver, Saul's story, — the statesman's great word

Side by side with the poet's sweet comment. The river's a-wave

With smooth paper-reeds grazing each other when prophet-winds rave :
 So the pen gives unborn generations their due and their part
 In thy being ! Then, first of the mighty, thank God that thou art ! ”

XIV.

And behold while I sang . . . but O Thou who didst grant me
 that day,
 And before it not seldom hast granted thy help to essay,
 Carry on and complete an adventure, — my shield and my sword
 In that act where my soul was thy servant, thy word was my word, —
 Still be with me, who then at the summit of human endeavor
 And scaling the highest, man's thought could, gazed hopeless as ever
 On the new stretch of heaven above me — till, mighty to save,
 Just one lift of thy hand cleared that distance — God's throne
 from man's grave !
 Let me tell out my tale to its ending — my voice to my heart
 Which can scarce dare believe in what marvels last night I took part,
 As this morning I gather the fragments, alone with my sheep,
 And still fear lest the terrible glory vanish like sleep !
 For I wake in the gray dewy covert, while Hebron upheaves
 The dawn struggling with night on his shoulder, and Kidron retrieves
 Slow the damage of yesterday's sunshine.

XV.

I say then, — my song

While I sang thus, assuring the monarch, and ever more strong
 Made a proffer of good to console him — he slowly resumed
 His old motions and habitudes kingly. The right hand replumed
 His black locks to their wonted composure, adjusted the swathes
 Of his turban, and see — the huge sweat that his countenance
 bathes,
 He wipes off with the robe ; and he girds now his loins as of yore,
 And feels slow for the armlets of price, with the clasp set before.
 He is Saul, ye remember in glory, — ere error had bent
 The broad brow from the daily communion ; and still, though much spent

Be the life and the bearing that front you, the same, God did choose,

To receive what a man may waste, desecrate, never quite lose.
So sank he along by the tent-prop till, stayed by the pile
Of his armor and war-cloak and garments, he leaned there awhile,

And sat out my singing, — one arm round the tent-prop, to raise

His bent head, and the other hung slack — till I touched on the praise

I foresaw from all men in all time, to the man patient there ;
And thus ended, the harp falling forward. Then first I was
'ware

That he sat, as I say, with my head just above his vast knees
Which were thrust out on each side around me, like oak roots which please

To encircle a lamb when it slumbers. I looked up to know
If the best I could do had brought solace : he spoke not, but slow

Lifted up the hand slack at his side, till he laid it with care
Soft and grave, but in mild settled will, on my brow : through my hair

The large fingers were pushed, and he bent back my head, with kind power —

All my face back, intent to peruse it, as men do a flower.
Thus held he me there with his great eyes that scrutinized
mine —

And oh, all my heart how it loved him ! but where was the sign ?

I yearned — “ Could I help thee, my father, inventing a bliss,
I would add, to that life of the past, both the future and this ;
I would give thee new life altogether, as good, ages hence,
As this moment, — had love but the warrant, love's heart to dispense ! ”

XVI.

Then the truth came upon me. No harp more — no song more !
out-broke —

XVII.

“ I have gone the whole round of creation : I saw and I spoke :
I, a work of God's hand for that purpose, received in my brain
And pronounced on the rest of his handwork — returned him again

His creation's approval or censure : I spoke as I saw :
I report, as a man may of God's work — all's love, yet all's law.
Now I lay down the judgeship he lent me. Each faculty tasked

To perceive him, has gained an abyss, where a dewdrop was asked.

Have I knowledge? confounded it shrivels at Wisdom laid bare.
Have I forethought? how purblind, how blank, to the Infinite Care!

Do I task any faculty highest, to image success?

I but open my eyes, — and perfection, no more and no less,
In the kind I imagined, full-fronts me, and God is seen God
In the star, in the stone, in the flesh, in the soul and the clod.

And thus looking within and around me, I ever renew
(With that stoop of the soul which in bending upraises it too)
The submission of man's nothing-perfect to God's all-complete,
As by each new obeisance in spirit, I climb to his feet.

Yet with all this abounding experience, this deity known,
I shall dare to discover some province, some gift of my own.

There's a faculty pleasant to exercise, hard to hoodwink,
I am fain to keep still in abeyance, (I laugh as I think)
Lest, insisting to claim and parade in it, wot ye, I worst
E'en the Giver in one gift. — Behold, I could love if I durst!

But I sink the pretension as fearing a man may o'ertake
God's own speed in the one way of love: I abstain for love's sake.
— What, my soul? see thus far and no farther? when doors great and small,

Nine-and-ninety flew ope at our touch, should the hundredth appall?

In the least things have faith, yet distrust in the greatest of all?
Do I find love so full in my nature, God's ultimate gift,
That I doubt his own love can compete with it? Here, the parts shift?

Here, the creature surpass the Creator, — the end, what Began?
Would I fain in my impotent yearning do all for this man,
And dare doubt he alone shall not help him, who yet alone can?
Would it ever have entered my mind, the bare will, much less power,

To bestow on this Saul what I sang of, the marvellous dower
Of the life he was gifted and filled with? to make such a soul,
Such a body, and then such an earth for insphering the whole?
And doth it not enter my mind (as my warm tears attest)
These good things being given, to go on, and give one more, the best?

Ay, to save and redeem and restore him, maintain at the height
This perfection, — succeed with life's dayspring, death's minute of night?

Interpose at the difficult minute, snatch Saul the mistake,
Saul the failure, the ruin he seems now, — and bid him awake
From the dream, the probation, the prelude, to find himself set

Clear and safe in new light and new life, — a new harmony yet
To be run, and continued, and ended — who knows? — or endure!

The man taught enough by life's dream, of the rest to make sure;

By the pain-throb, triumphantly winning intensified bliss,
And the next world's reward and repose, by the struggles in this.

XVIII.

"I believe it! 'T is thou, God, that givest, 't is I who receive:
In the first is the last, in thy will is my power to believe.

All's one gift: thou canst grant it moreover, as prompt to my prayer

As I breathe out this breath, as I open these arms to the air.

From thy will, stream the worlds, life and nature, thy dread
Sabaoth:

I will? — the mere atoms despise me! Why am I not loth
To look that, even that in the face too? Why is it I dare Think but lightly of such impuissance? What stops my despair?

This; — 't is not what man Does which exalts him, but what man Would do!

See the King — I would help him but cannot, the wishes fall through.

Could I wrestle to raise him from sorrow, grow poor to enrich,
To fill up his life, starve my own out, I would — knowing which,
I know that my service is perfect. Oh, speak through me now!
Would I suffer for him that I love? So wouldst thou — so wilt thou!

So shall crown thee the topmost, ineffablest, uttermost crown —
And thy love fill infinitude wholly, nor leave up nor down
One spot for the creature to stand in! It is by no breath,
Turn of eye, wave of hand, that salvation joins issue with death!
As thy Love is discovered almighty, almighty be proved
Thy power, that exists with and for it, of being Beloved!
He who did most, shall bear most; the strongest shall stand the most weak.

'T is the weakness in strength, that I cry for! my flesh, that I seek

In the Godhead! I seek and I find it. O Saul, it shall be
A Face like my face that receives thee; a Man like to me,
Thou shalt love and be loved by, forever: a Hand like this hand

Shall throw open the gates of new life to thee! See the Christ stand!"

XIX.

I know not too well how I found my way home in the night.
 There werè witnesses, cohorts about me, to left and to right,
 Angels, powers, the unuttered, unseen, the alive, the aware :
 I repressed, I got through them as hardly, as strugglingly there,
 As a runner beset by the populace famished for news —
 Life or death. The whole earth was awakened, hell loosed with her crews ;
 And the stars of night beat with emotion, and tingled and shot
 Out in fire the strong pain of pent knowledge : but I fainted not,
 For the Hand still impelled me at once and supported, suppressed
 All the tumult, and quenched it with quiet, and holy behest,
 Till the rapture was shut in itself, and the earth sank to rest.
 Anon at the dawn, all that trouble had withered from earth —
 Not so much, but I saw it die out in the day's tender birth ;
 In the gathered intensity brought to the gray of the hills ;
 In the shuddering forests' held breath ; in the sudden wind-
     thrills ;
 In the startled wild beasts that bore off, each with eye sidling still
 Though averted with wonder and dread ; in the birds stiff and chill
 That rose heavily, as I approached them, made stupid with awe :
 E'en the serpent that slid away silent, — he felt the new law.
 The same stared in the white humid faces upturned by the flowers ;
 The same worked in the heart of the cedar and moved the vine-
     bowers :
 And the little brooks witnessing murmured, persistent and low,
 With their obstinate, all but hushed voices — " E'en so, it is so ! "

MY STAR.

All that I know
     Of a certain star
 Is, it can throw
     (Like the angled spar)
 Now a dart of red,
     Now a dart of blue ;
 Till my friends have said

They would fain see, too,
 My star that dartles the red and the blue!
 Then it stops like a bird; like a flower, hangs furl'd:
 They must solace themselves with the Saturn above it.
 What matter to me if their star is a world?
 Mine has opened its soul to me; therefore I love it.

BY THE FIRESIDE.

I.

How well I know what I mean to do
 When the long dark autumn evenings come;
 And where, my soul, is thy pleasant hue?
 With the music of all thy voices, dumb
 In life's November too!

II.

I shall be found by the fire, suppose,
 O'er a great wise book as beseemeth age,
 While the shutters flap as the cross-wind blows,
 And I turn the page, and I turn the page,
 Not verse now, only prose!

III.

Till the young ones whisper, finger on lip,
 "There he is at it, deep in Greek:
 Now then, or never, out we slip
 To cut from the hazels by the creek
 A mainmast for our ship!"

IV.

I shall be at it indeed, my friends!
 Greek puts already on either side
 Such a branch-work forth as soon extends
 To a vista opening far and wide,
 And I pass out where it ends.

V.

The outside-frame, like your hazel-trees —
 But the inside-archway widens fast,
 And a rarer sort succeeds to these,
 And we slope to Italy at last
 And youth, by green degrees.

VI.

I follow wherever I am led,
 Knowing so well the leader's hand :
 Oh woman-country, wooed not wed,
 Loved all the more by earth's male-lands,
 Laid to their hearts instead !

VII.

Look at the ruined chapel again
 Half-way up in the Alpine gorge !
 Is that a tower, I point you plain,
 Or is it a mill, or an iron forge
 Breaks solitude in vain ?

VIII.

A turn, and we stand in the heart of things ;
 The woods are round us, heaped and dim ;
 From slab to slab how it slips and springs,
 The thread of water single and slim,
 Through the ravage some torrent brings !

IX.

Does it feed the little lake below ?
 That speck of white just on its marge
 Is Pella ; see, in the evening-glow,
 How sharp the silver spear-heads charge
 When Alp meets heaven in snow !

X.

On our other side is the straight-up rock ;
 And a path is kept 'twixt the gorge and it
 By boulder-stones where lichens mock
 The marks on a moth, and small ferns fit
 Their teeth to the polished block.

XI.

Oh the sense of the yellow mountain-flowers,
 And thorny balls, each three in one,
 The chestnuts throw on our path in showers !
 For the drop of the woodland fruit's begun,
 These early November hours,

XII.

That crimson the creeper's leaf across
 Like a splash of blood, intense, abrupt,

O'er a shield else gold from rim to boss,
 And lay it for show on the fairy-cupped
 Elf-needed mat of moss,

XIII.

By the rose-flesh mushrooms, undivulged
 Last evening — nay, in to-day's first dew
 Yon sudden coral nipple bulged,
 Where a freaked fawn-colored flaky crew
 Of toad-stools peep indulged.

XIV.

And yonder, at foot of the fronting ridge
 That takes the turn to a range beyond,
 Is the chapel reached by the one-arched bridge
 Where the water is stopped in a stagnant pond
 Danced over by the midge.

XV.

The chapel and bridge are of stone alike,
 Blackish-gray and mostly wet ;
 Cut hemp-stalks steep in the narrow dyke.
 See here again, how the lichens fret
 And the roots of the ivy strike !

XVI.

Poor little place, where its one priest comes
 On a festa-day, if he comes at all,
 To the dozen folk from their scattered homes,
 Gathered within that precinct small
 By the dozen ways one roams —

XVII.

To drop from the charcoal-burners' huts,
 Or climb from the hemp-dressers' low shed,
 Leave the grange where the woodman stores his nuts,
 Or the wattled cote where the fowlers spread
 Their gear on the rock's bare juts.

XVIII.

It has some pretension too, this front,
 With its bit of fresco half-moon-wise
 Set over the porch, Art's early wont :
 'T is John in the Desert, I surmise,
 But has borne the weather's brunt —

XIX.

Not from the fault of the builder, though,
 For a pent-house properly projects
 Where three carved beams make a certain show,
 Dating — good thought of our architect's —
 'Five, six, nine, he lets you know.

XX.

And all day long a bird sings there,
 And a stray sheep drinks at the pond at times;
 The place is silent and aware;
 It has had its scenes, its joys and crimes,
 But that is its own affair.

XXI.

My perfect wife, my Leonor,
 Oh heart, my own, oh eyes, mine too,
 Whom else could I dare look backward for,
 With whom beside should I dare pursue
 The path gray heads abhor?

XXII.

For it leads to a crag's sheer edge with them;
 Youth, flowery all the way, there stops —
 Not they; age threatens and they contemn,
 Till they reach the gulf wherein youth drops,
 One inch from life's safe hem!

XXIII.

With me, youth led . . . I will speak now,
 No longer watch you as you sit
 Reading by fire-light, that great brow
 And the spirit-small hand propping it,
 Mutely, my heart knows how —

XXIV.

When, if I think but deep enough,
 You are wont to answer, prompt as rhyme;
 And you, too, find without rebuff
 Response your soul seeks many a time
 Piercing its fine flesh-stuff.

XXV.

My own, confirm me! If I tread
 This path back, is it not in pride

To think how little I dreamed it led
 To an age so blest that, by its side,
 Youth seems the waste instead ?

XXVI.

My own, see where the years conduct !
 At first, 't was something our two souls
 Should mix as mists do ; each is sucked
 In each now : on, the new stream rolls,
 Whatever rocks obstruct.

XXVII.

Think, when our one soul understands
 The great Word which makes all things new,
 When earth breaks up and heaven expands,
 How will the change strike me and you
 In the house not made with hands ?

XXVIII.

Oh I must feel your brain prompt mine,
 Your heart anticipate my heart,
 You must be just before, in fine,
 See and make me see, for your part,
 New depths of the divine !

XXIX.

But who could have expected this
 When we two drew together first
 Just for the obvious human bliss,
 To satisfy life's daily thirst
 With a thing men seldom miss ?

XXX.

Come back with me to the first of all,
 Let us lean and love it over again,
 Let us now forget and now recall,
 Break the rosary in a pearly rain
 And gather what we let fall !

XXXI.

What did I say ? — that a small bird sings
 All day long, save when a brown pair
 Of hawks from the wood float with wide wings
 Strained to a bell : 'gainst noon-day glare
 You count the streaks and rings.

XXXII.

But at afternoon or almost eve
 'T is better ; then the silence grows
 To that degree, you half believe
 It must get rid of what it knows,
 Its bosom does so heave.

XXXIII.

Hither we walked then, side by side,
 Arm in arm and cheek to cheek,
 And still I questioned or replied,
 While my heart, convulsed to really speak,
 Lay choking in its pride.

XXXIV.

Silent the crumbling bridge we cross,
 And pity and praise the chapel sweet,
 And care about the fresco's loss,
 And wish for our souls a like retreat,
 And wonder at the moss,

XXXV.

Stoop and kneel on the settle under,
 Look through the window's grated square :
 Nothing to see ! For fear of plunder,
 The cross is down and the altar bare,
 As if thieves don't fear thunder.

XXXVI.

We stoop and look in through the grate,
 See the little porch and rustic door,
 Read duly the dead builder's date ;
 Then cross the bridge that we crossed before,
 Take the path again — but wait !

XXXVII.

Oh moment, one and infinite !
 The water slips o'er stock and stone ;
 The West is tender, hardly bright :
 How gray at once is the evening grown —
 One star, its chrysolite !

XXXVIII.

We two stood there with never a third,
 But each by each, as each knew well :

The sights we saw and the sounds we heard,
The lights and the shades made up a spell
Till the trouble grew and stirred.

XXXIX.

Oh, the little more, and how much it is!
And the little less, and what worlds away!
How a sound shall quicken content to bliss,
Or a breath suspend the blood's best play,
And life be a proof of this!

XL.

Had she willed it, still had stood the screen
So slight, so sure, 'twixt my love and her:
I could fix her face with a guard between,
And find her soul as when friends confer,
Friends — lovers that might have been.

XLI.

For my heart had a touch of the woodland-time,
Wanting to sleep now over its best.
Shake the whole tree in the summer-prime,
But bring to the last leaf no such test!
"Hold the last fast!" runs the rhyme.

XLII.

For a chance to make your little much,
To gain a lover and lose a friend,
Venture the tree and a myriad such,
When nothing you mar but the year can mend:
But a last leaf — fear to touch!

XLIII.

Yet should it unfasten itself and fall
Eddying down till it find your face
At some slight wind — best chance of all!
Be your heart henceforth its dwelling-place
You trembled to forestall!

XLIV.

Worth how well, those dark gray eyes,
That hair so dark and dear, how worth
That a man should strive and agonize,
And taste a veriest hell on earth
For the hope of such a prize!

XLV.

You might have turned and tried a man,
 Set him a space to weary and wear,
 And prove which suited more your plan,
 His best of hope or his worst despair,
 Yet end as he began.

XLVI.

But you spared me this, like the heart you are,
 And filled my empty heart at a word.
 If two lives join, there is oft a scar,
 They are one and one, with a shadowy third ;
 One near one is too far.

XLVII.

A moment after, and hands unseen
 Were hanging the night around us fast ;
 But we knew that a bar was broken between
 Life and life : we were mixed at last
 In spite of the mortal screen.

XLVIII.

The forests had done it ; there they stood ;
 We caught for a moment the powers at play :
 They had mingled us so, for once and good,
 Their work was done — we might go or stay,
 They relapsed to their ancient mood.

XLIX.

How the world is made for each of us !
 How all we perceive and know in it
 Tends to some moment's product thus,
 When a soul declares itself — to wit,
 By its fruit, the thing it does !

L.

Be hate that fruit or love that fruit,
 It forwards the general deed of man,
 And each of the Many helps to recruit
 The life of the race by a general plan ;
 Each living his own, to boot.

LI.

I am named and known by that moment's feat ;
 There took my station and degree ;

So grew my own small life complete,
 As nature obtained her best of me —
 One born to love you, sweet !

LII.

And to watch you sink by the fireside now
 Back again, as you mutely sit
 Musing by fire-light, that great brow
 And the spirit-small hand propping it,
 Yonder, my heart knows how !

LIII.

So, earth has gained by one man the more,
 And the gain of earth must be heaven's gain too ;
 And the whole is well worth thinking o'er
 When autumn comes : which I mean to do
 One day, as I said before.

ANY WIFE TO ANY HUSBAND.

I.

My love, this is the bitterest, that thou —
 Who art all truth, and who dost love me now
 As thine eyes say, as thy voice breaks to say —
 Shouldst love so truly, and couldst love me still
 A whole long life through, had but love its will,
 Would death that leads me from thee brook delay.

II.

I have but to be by thee, and thy hand
 Will never let mine go, nor heart withstand
 The beating of my heart to reach its place.
 When shall I look for thee and feel thee gone ?
 When cry for the old comfort and find none ?
 Never, I know ! Thy soul is in thy face.

III.

Oh, I should fade — 't is willed so ! Might I save,
 Gladly I would, whatever beauty gave
 Joy to thy sense, for that was precious too.
 It is not to be granted. But the soul
 Whence the love comes, all ravage leaves that whole ;
 Vainly the flesh fades ; soul makes all things new.

IV.

It would not be because my eye grew dim
 Thou couldst not find the love there, thanks to Him
 Who never is dishonored in the spark
 He gave us from his fire of fires, and bade
 Remember whence it sprang, nor be afraid
 While that burns on, though all the rest grow dark.

V.

So, how thou wouldst be perfect, white and clean
 Outside as inside, soul and soul's demesne
 Alike, this body given to show it by!
 Oh, three-parts through the worst of life's abyss,
 What plaudits from the next world after this,
 Couldst thou repeat a stroke and gain the sky!

VI.

And is it not the bitterer to think
 That disengage our hands and thou wilt sink
 Although thy love was love in very deed?
 I know that nature! Pass a festive day,
 Thou dost not throw its relic-flower away
 Nor bid its music's loitering echo speed.

VII.

Thou let'st the stranger's glove lie where it fell;
 If old things remain old things all is well,
 For thou art grateful as becomes man best:
 And hadst thou only heard me play one tune,
 Or viewed me from a window, not so soon
 With thee would such things fade as with the rest.

VIII.

I seem to see! We meet and part; 't is brief;
 The book I opened keeps a folded leaf,
 The very chair I sat on, breaks the rank;
 That is a portrait of me on the wall —
 Three lines, my face comes at so slight a call:
 And for all this, one little hour to thank!

IX.

But now, because the hour through years was fixed,
 Because our inmost beings met and mixed,
 Because thou once hast loved me — wilt thou dare
 Say to thy soul and Who may list beside,

“Therefore she is immortally my bride;
 Chance cannot change my love, nor time impair.

X.

“So, what if in the dusk of life that’s left,
 I, a tired traveller of my sun bereft,
 Look from my path when, mimicking the same,
 The fire-fly glimpses past me, come and gone?
 — Where was it till the sunset? where anon
 It will be at the sunrise! What’s to blame?”

XI.

Is it so helpful to thee? Canst thou take
 The mimic up, nor, for the true thing’s sake,
 Put gently by such efforts at a beam?
 Is the remainder of the way so long,
 Thou need’st the little solace, thou the strong?
 Watch out thy watch, let weak ones doze and dream!

XII.

— Ah, but the fresher faces! “Is it true,”
 Thou’lt ask, “some eyes are beautiful and new?
 Some hair, — how can one choose but grasp such wealth?
 And if a man would press his lips to lips
 Fresh as the wilding hedge-rose-cup there slips
 The dewdrop out of, must it be by stealth?”

XIII.

“It cannot change the love still kept for Her,
 More than if such a picture I prefer
 Passing a day with, to a room’s bare side:
 The painted form takes nothing she possessed,
 Yet, while the Titian’s Venus lies at rest,
 A man looks. Once more, what is there to chide?”

XIV.

So must I see, from where I sit and watch,
 My own self sell myself, my hand attach
 Its warrant to the very thefts from me —
 Thy singleness of soul that made me proud,
 Thy purity of heart I loved aloud,
 Thy man’s-truth I was bold to bid God see!

XV.

Love so, then, if thou wilt! Give all thou canst
 Away to the new faces — disentranced,

(Say it and think it) obdurate no more :
 Re-issue looks and words from the old mint,
 Pass them afresh, no matter whose the print
 Image and superscription once they bore !

XVI.

Re-coin thyself and give it them to spend, —
 It all comes to the same thing at the end,
 Since mine thou wast, mine art and mine shalt be,
 Faithful or faithless, sealing up the sum
 Or lavish of my treasure, thou must come
 Back to the heart's place here I keep for thee !

XVII.

Only, why should it be with stain at all ?
 Why must I, 'twixt the leaves of coronal,
 Put any kiss of pardon on thy brow ?
 Why need the other women know so much,
 And talk together, " Such the look and such
 The smile he used to love with, then as now ! "

XVIII.

Might I die last and show thee ! Should I find
 Such hardship in the few years left behind,
 If free to take and light my lamp, and go
 Into thy tomb, and shut the door and sit,
 Seeing thy face on those four sides of it
 The better that they are so blank, I know !

XIX.

Why, time was what I wanted, to turn o'er
 Within my mind each look, get more and more
 By heart each word, too much to learn at first,
 And join thee all the fitter for the pause
 'Neath the low doorway's lintel. That were cause
 For lingering, though thou calledst, if I durst !

XX.

And yet thou art the nobler of us two :
 What dare I dream of, that thou canst not do,
 Outstripping my ten small steps with one stride ?
 I'll say then, here 's a trial and a task —
 Is it to bear ? — if easy, I'll not ask :
 Though love fail, I can trust on in thy pride.

XXI.

Pride? — when those eyes forestall the life behind
 The death I have to go through! — when I find,
 Now that I want thy help most, all of thee!
 What did I fear? Thy love shall hold me fast
 Until the little minute's sleep is past
 And I wake saved. — And yet it will not be!

TWO IN THE CAMPAGNA.

I.

I wonder do you feel to-day
 As I have felt since, hand in hand,
 We sat down on the grass, to stray
 In spirit better through the land,
 This morn of Rome and May?

II.

For me, I touched a thought, I know,
 Has tantalized me many times,
 (Like turns of thread the spiders throw Mocking across our path) for rhymes
 To catch at and let go.

III.

Help me to hold it! First it left
 The yellowing fennel, run to seed
 There, branching from the brickwork's cleft,
 Some old tomb's ruin: yonder weed
 Took up the floating weft,

IV.

Where one small orange cup amassed
 Five beetles, — blind and green they grope
 Among the honey-meal: and last,
 Everywhere on the grassy slope
 I traced it. Hold it fast!

V.

The champaign with its endless fleece
 Of feathery grasses everywhere!
 Silence and passion, joy and peace,
 An everlasting wash of air —
 Rome's ghost since her decease.

VI.

Such life here, through such lengths of hours,
 Such miracles performed in play,
 Such primal naked forms of flowers,
 Such letting nature have her way
 While heaven looks from its towers !

VII.

How say you ? Let us, O my dove,
 Let us be unashamed of soul,
 As earth lies bare to heaven above !
 How is it under our control
 To love or not to love ?

VIII.

I would that you were all to me,
 You that are just so much, no more.
 Nor yours nor mine, nor slave nor free !
 Where does the fault lie ? What the core
 O' the wound, since wound must be ?

IX.

I would I could adopt your will,
 See with your eyes, and set my heart
 Beating by yours, and drink my fill
 At your soul's springs, — your part my part
 In life, for good and ill.

X.

No. I yearn upward, touch you close,
 Then stand away. I kiss your cheek,
 Catch your soul's warmth, — I pluck the rose
 And love it more than tongue can speak —
 Then the good minute goes.

XI.

Already how am I so far
 Out of that minute ? Must I go
 Still like the thistle-ball, no bar,
 Onward, whenever light winds blow,
 Fixed by no friendly star ?

XII.

Just when I seemed about to learn !
 Where is the thread now ? Off again !

The old trick ! Only I discern —
 Infinite passion, and the pain
 Of finite hearts that yearn.

MISCONCEPTIONS.

I.

This is a spray the Bird clung to,
 Making it blossom with pleasure,
 Ere the high tree-top she sprung to,
 Fit for her nest and her treasure.
 Oh, what a hope beyond measure
 Was the poor spray's, which the flying feet hung to, —
 So to be singled out, built in, and sung to !

II.

This is a heart the Queen leant on.
 Thrilled in a minute erratic,
 Ere the true bosom she bent on,
 Meet for love's regal dalmatic.
 Oh, what a fancy ecstatic
 Was the poor heart's, ere the wanderer went on —
 Love to be saved for it, proffered to, spent on !

A SERENADE AT THE VILLA.

I.

That was I, you heard last night
 When there rose no moon at all,
 Nor, to pierce the strained and tight
 Tent of heaven, a planet small :
 Life was dead and so was light.

II.

Not a twinkle from the fly,
 Not a glimmer from the worm ;
 When the crickets stopped their cry,
 When the owls forbore a term,
 You heard music ; that was I.

III.

Earth turned in her sleep with pain,
 Sultrily suspired for proof :

In at heaven and out again,
 Lightning! — where it broke the roof,
 Bloodlike, some few drops of rain.

IV.

What they could my words expressed,
 O my love, my all, my one!
 Singing helped the verses best,
 And when singing's best was done,
 To my lute I left the rest.

V.

So wore night; the East was gray,
 White the broad-faced hemlock-flowers
 There would be another day;
 Ere its first of heavy hours
 Found me, I had passed away.

VI.

What became of all the hopes,
 Words and song and lute as well?
 Say, this struck you — “When life gropes
 Feebly for the path where fell
 Light last on the evening slopes,

VII.

“One friend in that path shall be,
 To secure my step from wrong;
 One to count night day for me,
 Patient through the watches long,
 Serving most with none to see.”

VIII.

Never say — as something bodes —
 “So, the worst has yet a worse!
 When life halts 'neath double loads,
 Better the task-master's curse
 Than such music on the roads!

IX.

“When no moon succeeds the sun,
 Nor can pierce the midnight's tent
 Any star, the smallest one,
 While some drops, where lightning rent,
 Show the final storm begun —

IX. I — your only love!
 "When the fire-fly hides its spot,
 When the garden-voices fail
 In the darkness thick and hot, —
 Shall another voice avail,
 That shape be where these are not?"

XI.

"Has some plague a longer lease,
 Proffering its help uncouth?
 Can't one even die in peace?
 As one shuts one's eyes on youth,
 Is that face the last one sees?"

XII.

Oh how dark your villa was,
 Windows fast and obdurate!
 How the garden grudged me grass
 Where I stood — the iron gate
 Ground its teeth to let me pass!

ONE WAY OF LOVE.

I.

All June I bound the rose in sheaves.
 Now, rose by rose, I strip the leaves
 And strew them where Pauline may pass.
 She will not turn aside? Alas!
 Let them lie. Suppose they die?
 The chance was they might take her eye.

II.

How many a month I strove to suit
 These stubborn fingers to the lute!
 To-day I venture all I know.
 She will not hear my music? So!
 Break the string; fold music's wing:
 Suppose Pauline had bade me sing!

III.

My whole life long I learned to love.
 This hour my utmost art I prove
 And speak my passion — heaven or hell?

She will not give me heaven? 'T is well!
 Lose who may — I still can say,
 Those who win heaven, blest are they!

ANOTHER WAY OF LOVE.

I.

June was not over
 Though past the full,
 And the best of her roses
 Had yet to blow,
 When a man I know
 (But shall not discover,
 Since ears are dull,
 And time discloses)
 Turned him and said with a man's true air,
 Half sighing a smile in a yawn, as 't were, —
 "If I tire of your June, will she greatly care?"

II.

Well, dear, in-doors with you!
 True! serene deadness
 Tries a man's temper.
 What's in the blossom
 June wears on her bosom?
 Can it clear scores with you?
 Sweetness and redness,
Eadem semper!
 Go, let me care for it greatly or slightly!
 If June mend her bower now, your hand left unsightly
 By plucking the roses, — my June will do rightly.

III.

And after, for pastime,
 If June be refulgent
 With flowers in completeness,
 All petals, no prickles,
 Delicious as trickles
 Of wine poured at mass-time, —
 And choose One indulgent
 To redness and sweetness:
 Or if, with experience of man and of spider,
 June use my June-lightning, the strong insect-ridder,
 And stop the fresh film-work, — why, June will consider.

A PRETTY WOMAN.

I.

That fawn-skin-dappled hair of hers,
 And the blue eye
 Dear and dewy,
 And that infantine fresh air of hers !

II.

To think men cannot take you, Sweet,
 And enfold you,
 Ay, and hold you,
 And so keep you what they make you, Sweet !

III.

You like us for a glance, you know —
 For a word's sake
 Or a sword's sake,
 All 's the same, whate'er the chance, you know.

IV.

And in turn we make you ours, we say —
 You and youth too,
 Eyes and mouth too,
 All the face composed of flowers, we say.

V.

All 's our own, to make the most of, Sweet —
 Sing and say for,
 Watch and pray for,
 Keep a secret or go boast of, Sweet !

VI.

But for loving, why, you would not, Sweet,
 Though we prayed you,
 Paid you, brayed you
 In a mortar — for you could not, Sweet !

VII.

So, we leave the sweet face fondly there :
 Be its beauty
 Its sole duty !
 Let all hope of grace beyond, lie there !

VIII.

And while the face lies quiet there,
 Who shall wonder
 That I ponder
 A conclusion? I will try it there.

IX.

As, — why must one, for the love foregone,
 Scout mere liking?
 Thunder-striking
 Earth, — the heaven, we looked above for, gone!

X.

Why, with beauty, needs there money be,
 Love with liking?
 Crush the fly-king
 In his gauze, because no honey-bee?

XI.

May not liking be so simple-sweet,
 If love grew there
 'T would undo there
 All that breaks the cheek to dimples sweet?

XII.

Is the creature too imperfect, say?
 Would you mend it.
 And so end it?
 Since not all addition perfects aye!

XIII.

Or is it of its kind, perhaps,
 Just perfection —
 Whence, rejection
 Of a grace not to its mind, perhaps?

XIV.

Shall we burn up, tread that face at once
 Into tinder,
 And so hinder
 Sparks from kindling all the place at once?

XV.

Or else kiss away one's soul on her?
 Your love-fancies!

— A sick man sees
Truer, when his hot eyes roll on her !

XVI.

Thus the craftsman thinks to grace the rose, —
Plucks a mould-flower
For his gold flower,
Uses fine things that efface the rose :

XVII.

Rosy rubies make its cup more rose,
Precious metals
Ape the petals, —
Last, some old king locks it up, morose !

XVIII.

Then how grace a rose ? I know a way !
Leave it, rather.
Must you gather ?
Smell, kiss, wear it — at last, throw away !

RESPECTABILITY.

I.

Dear, had the world in its caprice
Deigned to proclaim " I know you both,
Have recognized your plighted troth,
Am sponsor for you : live in peace ! " —
How many precious months and years
Of youth had passed, that speed so fast,
Before we found it out at last,
The world, and what it fears !

II.

How much of priceless life were spent
With men that every virtue decks,
And women models of their sex,
Society's true ornament, —
Ere we dared wander, nights like this,
Through wind and rain, and watch the Seine,
And feel the Boulevard break again
To warmth and light and bliss !

III.

I know ! the world proscribes not love ;
Allows my finger to caress

Your lips' contour and downiness,
 Provided it supply a glove.
 The world's good word! — the Institute!
 Guizot receives Montalembert!
 Eh? Down the court three lampions flare:
 Put forward your best foot!

LOVE IN A LIFE.

I.

Room after room,
 I hunt the house through
 We inhabit together.
 Heart, fear nothing, for, heart, thou shalt find her —
 Next time, herself! — not the trouble behind her
 Left in the curtain, the couch's perfume!
 As she brushed it, the cornice-wreath blossomed anew:
 Yon looking-glass gleamed at the wave of her feather.

II.

Yet the day wears,
 And door succeeds door;
 I try the fresh fortune —
 Range the wide house from the wing to the centre.
 Still the same chance! she goes out as I enter.
 Spend my whole day in the quest, — who cares?
 But 't is twilight, you see, — with such suites to explore,
 Such closets to search, such alcoves to importune!

LIFE IN A LOVE.

Escape me?
 Never —
 Beloved!
 While I am I, and you are you,
     So long as the world contains us both,
     Me the loving and you the loth,
 While the one eludes, must the other pursue.
 My life is a fault at last, I fear:
     It seems too much like a fate, indeed!
     Though I do my best I shall scarce succeed.
 But what if I fail of my purpose here?
 It is but to keep the nerves at strain,
     To dry one's eyes and laugh at a fall,

And baffled, get up and begin again, —
 So the chase takes up one's life, that's all.
 While, look but once from your farthest bound
 At me so deep in the dust and dark,
 No sooner the old hope goes to ground
 Than a new one, straight to the selfsame mark,
 I shape me —
 Ever
 Removed!

IN THREE DAYS.

I.

So, I shall see her in three days
 And just one night, but nights are short,
 Then two long hours, and that is morn.
 See how I come, unchanged, unworn!
 Feel, where my life broke off from thine,
 How fresh the splinters keep and fine, —
 Only a touch and we combine!

II.

Too long, this time of year, the days!
 But nights, at least the nights are short.
 As night shows where her one moon is,
 A hand's-breadth of pure light and bliss,
 So life's night gives my lady birth
 And my eyes hold her! What is worth
 The rest of heaven, the rest of earth?

III.

O loaded curls, release your store
 Of warmth and scent, as once before
 The tingling hair did, lights and darks
 Outbreaking into fairy sparks,
 When under curl and curl I pried
 After the warmth and scent inside,
 Through lights and darks how manifold —
 The dark inspired, the light controlled!
 As early Art embrowns the gold.

IV.

What great fear, should one say, "Three days
 That change the world might change as well
 Your fortune; and if joy delays,

Be happy that no worse befell ! ”
 What small fear, if another says,
 “ Three days and one short night beside
 May throw no shadow on your ways ;
 But years must teem with change untried,
 With chance not easily defied,
 With an end somewhere undescried.”
 No fear ! — or if a fear be born
 This minute, it dies out in scorn.
 Fear ? I shall see her in three days
 And one night, now the nights are short,
 Then just two hours, and that is morn.

IN A YEAR.

I.

Never any more,
 While I live,
 Need I hope to see his face
 As before.
 Once his love grown chill,
 Mine may strive :
 Bitterly we re-embrace,
 Single still.

II.

Was it something said,
 Something done,
 Vexed him ? was it touch of hand,
 Turn of head ?
 Strange ! that very way
 Love begun :
 I as little understand
 Love's decay.

III.

When I sewed or drew,
 I recall
 How he looked as if I sung,
 — Sweetly too.
 If I spoke a word,
 First of all
 Up his cheek the color sprung,
 Then he heard.

IV.

Sitting by my side,
 At my feet,
 So he breathed but air I breathed,
 Satisfied!
 I, too, at love's brim
 Touched the sweet:
 I would die if death bequeathed
 Sweet to him.

V.

“Speak, I love thee best!”
 He exclaimed:
 “Let thy love my own foretell!”
 I confessed:
 “Clasp my heart on thine
 Now unblamed,
 Since upon thy soul as well
 Hangeth mine!”

VI.

Was it wrong to own,
 Being truth?
 Why should all the giving prove
 His alone?
 I had wealth and ease,
 Beauty, youth:
 Since my lover gave me love,
 I gave these.

VII.

That was all I meant,
 — To be just,
 And the passion I had raised,
 To content.
 Since he chose to change
 Gold for dust,
 If I gave him what he praised
 Was it strange?

VIII.

Would he loved me yet,
 On and on,
 While I found some way undreamed
 — Paid my debt!

Gave more life and more,
 Till, all gone,
 He should smile "She never seemed
 Mine before.

IX.

"What, she felt the while,
 Must I think?
 Love's so different with us men!"
 He should smile:
 "Dying for my sake —
 White and pink!
 Can't we touch these bubbles then
 But they break?"

X.

Dear, the pang is brief,
 Do thy part,
 Have thy pleasure! How perplexed
 Grows belief!
 Well, this cold clay clod
 Was man's heart:
 Crumble it, and what comes next?
 Is it God?

WOMEN AND ROSES.

I.

I dream of a red-rose tree.
 And which of its roses three
 Is the dearest rose to me?

II.

Round and round, like a dance of snow
 In a dazzling drift, as its guardians, go
 Floating the women faded for ages,
 Sculptured in stone, on the poet's pages.
 Then follow women fresh and gay,
 Living and loving and loved to-day,
 Last, in the rear, flee the multitude of maidens,
 Beauties yet unborn. And all, to one cadence,
 They circle their rose on my rose tree.

III.

Dear rose, thy term is reached,
Thy leaf hangs loose and bleached :
Bees pass it unimpeached.

IV.

Stay then, stoop, since I cannot climb,
You, great shapes of the antique time !
How shall I fix you, fire you, freeze you,
Break my heart at your feet to please you ?
Oh, to possess and be possessed !
Hearts that beat 'neath each pallid breast !
Once but of love, the poesy, the passion,
Drink but once and die ! — In vain, the same fashion,
They circle their rose on my rose tree.

V.

Dear rose, thy joy's undimmed,
Thy cup is ruby-rimmed,
Thy cup's heart nectar-brimmed.

VI.

Deep, as drops from a statue's plinth
The bee sucked in by the hyacinth,
So will I bury me while burning,
Quench like him at a plunge my yearning,
Eyes in your eyes, lips on your lips !
Fold me fast where the cincture slips,
Prison all my soul in eternities of pleasure,
Girdle me for once ! But no — the old measure,
They circle their rose on my rose tree.

VII.

Dear rose without a thorn,
Thy bud's the babe unborn :
First streak of a new morn.

VIII.

Wings, lend wings for the cold, the clear !
What is far conquers what is near.
Roses will bloom nor want beholders,
Sprung from the dust where our flesh moulders.
What shall arrive with the cycle's change ?
A novel grace and a beauty strange.
I will make an Eve, be the artist that began her,

Shaped her to his mind ! — Alas ! in like manner
They circle their rose on my rose tree.

BEFORE.

I.

Let them fight it out, friend ! things have gone too far.
God must judge the couple : leave them as they are
— Whichever one 's the guiltless, to his glory,
And whichever one the guilt 's with, to my story !

II.

Why, you would not bid men, sunk in such a slough,
Strike no arm out further, stick and stink as now,
Leaving right and wrong to settle the embroilment,
Heaven with snaky hell, in torture and entoilment ?

III.

Who 's the culprit of them ? How must he conceive
God — the queen he caps to, laughing in his sleeve,
" 'Tis but decent to profess oneself beneath her :
Still, one must not be too much in earnest, either ! "

IV.

Better sin the whole sin, sure that God observes ;
Then go live his life out ! Life will try his nerves,
When the sky, which noticed all, makes no disclosure,
And the earth keeps up her terrible composure.

V.

Let him pace at pleasure, past the walls of rose,
Pluck their fruits when grape-trees graze him as he goes !
For he 'gins to guess the purpose of the garden,
With the sly mute thing, beside there, for a warden.

VI.

What 's the leopard-dog-thing, constant at his side,
A leer and lie in every eye of its obsequious hide ?
When will come an end to all the mock obeisance,
And the price appear that pays for the misfeasance ?

VII.

So much for the culprit. Who 's the martyred man ?
Let him bear one stroke more, for be sure he can !
He that strove thus evil's lump with good to leaven,
Let him give his blood at last and get his heaven !

VIII.

All or nothing, stake it! Trusts he God or no?
 Thus far and no farther? farther? be it so!
 Now, enough of your chicane of prudent pauses,
 Sage provisos, sub-intents and saving-clauses!

IX.

Ah, "forgive" you bid him? While God's champion lives,
 Wrong shall be resisted: dead, why, he forgives.
 But you must not end my friend ere you begin him;
 Evil stands not crowned on earth, while breath is in him.

X.

Once more — Will the wronger, at this last of all,
 Dare to say, "I did wrong," rising in his fall?
 No? — Let go, then! Both the fighters to their places!
 While I count three, step you back as many paces!

AFTER.

Take the cloak from his face, and at first
 Let the corpse do its worst!

How he lies in his rights of a man!

Death has done all death can.

And, absorbed in the new life he leads,

He recks not, he heeds

Nor his wrong nor my vengeance; both strike

On his senses alike,

And are lost in the solemn and strange

Surprise of the change.

Ha, what avails death to erase

His offence, my disgrace?

I would we were boys as of old

In the field, by the fold:

His outrage, God's patience, man's scorn

Were so easily borne!

I stand here now, he lies in his place:

Cover the face!

THE GUARDIAN-ANGEL.

A PICTURE AT FANO.

I.

Dear and great Angel, wouldst thou only leave
 That child, when thou hast done with him, for me!
 Let me sit all the day here, that when eve
 Shall find performed thy special ministry,
 And time come for departure, thou, suspending
 Thy flight, may'st see another child for tending,
 Another still, to quiet and retrieve.

II.

Then I shall feel thee step one step, no more,
 From where thou standest now, to where I gaze,
 — And suddenly my head is covered o'er
 With those wings, white above the child who prays
 Now on that tomb — and I shall feel thee guarding
 Me, out of all the world; for me, discarding
 Yon heaven thy home, that waits and opes its door.

III.

I would not look up thither past thy head
 Because the door opes, like that child, I know,
 For I should have thy gracious face instead,
 Thou bird of God! And wilt thou bend me low
 Like him, and lay, like his, my hands together,
 And lift them up to pray, and gently tether
 Me, as thy lamb there, with thy garment's spread?

IV.

If this was ever granted, I would rest
 My head beneath thine, while thy healing hands
 Close-covered both my eyes beside thy breast,
 Pressing the brain, which too much thought expands,
 Back to its proper size again, and smoothing
 Distortion down till every nerve had soothing,
 And all lay quiet, happy and suppressed.

V.

How soon all worldly wrong would be repaired!
 I think how I should view the earth and skies
 And sea, when once again my brow was bared
 After thy healing, with such different eyes.

O world, as God has made it! All is beauty :
And knowing this, is love, and love is duty.

What further may be sought for or declared ?

VI.

Guercino drew this angel I saw teach
(Alfred, dear friend!) — that little child to pray,
Holding the little hands up, each to each
Pressed gently, — with his own head turned away
Over the earth where so much lay before him
Of work to do, though heaven was opening o'er him,
And he was left at Fano by the beach.

VII.

We were at Fano, and three times we went
To sit and see him in his chapel there,
And drink his beauty to our soul's content
— My angel with me too : and since I care
For dear Guercino's fame (to which in power
And glory comes this picture for a dower,
Fraught with a pathos so magnificent) —

VIII.

And since he did not work thus earnestly
At all times, and has else endured some wrong —
I took one thought his picture struck from me,
And spread it out, translating it to song.
My love is here. Where are you, dear old friend?
How rolls the Wairoa at your world's far end?
This is Ancona, yonder is the sea.

MEMORABILIA.

I.

Ah, did you once see Shelley plain,
And did he stop and speak to you,
And did you speak to him again?
How strange it seems and new!

II.

But you were living before that,
And also you are living after ;
And the memory I started at —
My starting moves your laughter!

III.

I crossed a moor, with a name of its own
 And a certain use in the world no doubt,
 Yet a hand's-breadth of it shines alone
 'Mid the blank miles round about :

IV.

For there I picked up on the heather,
 And there I put inside my breast
 A moulted feather, an eagle-feather !
 Well, I forget the rest.

POPULARITY.

I.

Stand still, true poet that you are !
 I know you ; let me try and draw you.
 Some night you 'll fail us : when afar
 You rise, remember one man saw you,
 Knew you, and named a star !

II.

My star, God's glow-worm ! Why extend
 That loving hand of his which leads you,
 Yet locks you safe from end to end
 Of this dark world, unless he needs you,
 Just saves your light to spend ?

III.

His clenched hand shall uncloset at last,
 I know, and let out all the beauty :
 My poet holds the future fast,
 Accepts the coming ages' duty,
 Their present for this past.

IV.

That day, the earth's feast-master's brow
 Shall clear, to God the chalice raising ;
 "Others give best at first, but thou
 Forever set'st our table praising,
 Keep'st the good wine till now !"

V.

Meantime, I 'll draw you as you stand,
 With few or none to watch and wonder :

I'll say — a fisher, on the sand
 By Tyre the old, with ocean-plunder,
 A netful, brought to land.

VI.

Who has not heard how Tyrian shells
 Enclosed the blue, that dye of dyes
 Whereof one drop worked miracles,
 And colored like Astarte's eyes
 Raw silk the merchant sells?

VII.

And each bystander of them all
 Could criticise, and quote tradition
 How depths of blue sublimed some pall
 — To get which, pricked a king's ambition;
 Worth sceptre, crown and ball.

VIII.

Yet there's the dye, in that rough mesh,
 The sea has only just o'er-whispered!
 Live whelks, each lip's beard dripping fresh,
 As if they still the water's lisp heard
 Through foam the rock-weeds thresh.

IX.

Enough to furnish Solomon
 Such hangings for his cedar-house,
 That, when gold-robed he took the throne
 In that abyss of blue, the Spouse
 Might swear his presence shone

X.

Most like the centre-spike of gold
 Which burns deep in the bluebell's womb
 What time, with ardors manifold,
 The bee goes singing to her groom,
 Drunken and overbold.

XI.

Mere conchs! not fit for warp or woof!
 Till cunning come to pound and squeeze
 And clarify, — refine to proof
 The liquor filtered by degrees,
 While the world stands aloof.

XII.

And there 's the extract, flasked and fine,
 And priced and salable at last !
 And Hobbs, Nobbs, Stokes and Nokes combine
 To paint the future from the past,
 Put blue into their line.

XIII.

Hobbs hints blue, — straight he turtle eats :
 Nobbs prints blue, — claret crowns his cup :
 Nokes outdares Stokes in azure feats, —
 Both gorge. Who fished the murex up ?
 What porridge had John Keats ?

MASTER HUGUES OF SAXE-GOTHA.

I.

Hist, but a word, fair and soft !
 Forth and be judged, Master Hugues !
 Answer the question I 've put you so oft :
 What do you mean by your mountainous fugues ?
 See, we 're alone in the loft, —

II.

I, the poor organist here,
 Hugues, the composer of note,
 Dead though, and done with, this many a year :
 Let 's have a colloquy, something to quote,
 Make the world prick up its ear !

III.

See, the church empties apace :
 Fast they extinguish the lights.
 Hallo there, sacristan ! Five minutes' grace !
 Here 's a crank pedal wants setting to rights,
 Balks one of holding the base.

IV.

See, our huge house of the sounds,
 Hushing its hundreds at once,
 Bids the last loiterer back to his bounds !
 — O you may challenge them, not a response
 Get the church-saints on their rounds !

V.

(Saints go their rounds, who shall doubt ?

— March, with the moon to admire,
Up nave, down chancel, turn transept about,
Supervise all betwixt pavement and spire,
Put rats and mice to the rout —

VI.

Aloys and Jurien and Just —
Order things back to their place,
Have a sharp eye lest the candlesticks rust,
Rub the church-plate, darn the sacrament-lace,
Clear the desk-velvet of dust.)

VII.

Here 's your book, younger folks shelve !
Played I not off-hand and runningly,
Just now, your masterpiece, hard number twelve ?
Here 's what should strike, could one handle it cunningly :
Help the axe, give it a helve !

VIII.

Page after page as I played,
Every bar's rest, where one wipes
Sweat from one's brow, I looked up and surveyed,
O'er my three claviers, yon forest of pipes
Whence you still peeped in the shade.

IX.

Sure you were wishful to speak ?
You, with brow ruled like a score,
Yes, and eyes buried in pits on each cheek,
Like two great breves, as they wrote them of yore,
Each side that bar, your straight beak !

X.

Sure you said — “ Good, the mere notes !
Still, couldst thou take my intent,
Know what procured me our Company's votes —
A master were lauded and sciolists shent,
Parted the sheep from the goats ! ”

XI.

Well then, speak up, never flinch !
Quick, ere my candle 's a snuff

— Burnt, do you see? to its uttermost inch —
 I believe in you, but that's not enough:
 Give my conviction a clinch!

XII.

First you deliver your phrase
 — Nothing propound, that I see,
 Fit in itself for much blame or much praise —
 Answered no less, where no answer needs be;
 Off start the Two on their ways.

XIII.

Straight must a Third interpose,
 Volunteer needlessly help;
 In strikes a Fourth, a Fifth thrusts in his nose,
 So the cry's open, the kennel's a-yelp,
 Argument's hot to the close.

XIV.

One dissertates, he is candid;
 Two must discept, — has distinguished;
 Three helps the couple, if ever yet man did;
 Four protests; Five makes a dart at the thing wished:
 Back to One, goes the case bandied.

XV.

One says his say with a difference;
 More of expounding, explaining!
 All now is wrangle, abuse and vociferance;
 Now there's a truce, all's subdued, self-restraining:
 Five, though, stands out all the stiffer hence.

XVI.

One is incisive, corrosive;
 Two retorts, nettled, curt, crepitant;
 Three makes rejoinder, expansive, explosive;
 Four overbears them all, strident and strepitant:
 Five . . . O Danaides, O Sieve!

XVII.

Now, they ply axes and crowbars;
 Now, they prick pins at a tissue
 Fine as a skein of the casuist Escobar's
 Worked on the bone of a lie. To what issue?
 Where is our gain at the Two-bars?

XVIII.

Est fuga, volvitur rota.

On we drift: where looms the dim port?
 One, Two, Three, Four, Five, contribute their quota;
 Something is gained, if one caught but the import —
 Show it us, Hugues of Saxe-Gotha!

XIX.

What with affirming, denying,
 Holding, risposting, subjoining,
 All's like . . . it's like . . . for an instance I'm trying . . .
 There! See our roof, its gilt moulding and groining
 Under those spider-webs lying!

XX.

So your fugue broadens and thickens,
 Greatens and deepens and lengthens,
 Till we exclaim — “But where's music, the dickens?
 Blot ye the gold, while your spider-web strengthens
 — Blacked to the stoutest of tickens?”

XXI.

I for man's effort am zealous:
 Prove me such censure unfounded!
 Seems it surprising a lover grows jealous —
 Hopes 't was for something, his organ-pipes sounded,
 Tiring three boys at the bellows?

XXII.

Is it your moral of Life?
 Such a web, simple and subtle,
 Weave we on earth here in impotent strife,
 Backward and forward each throwing his shuttle,
 Death ending all with a knife?

XXIII.

Over our heads truth and nature' —
 Still our life's zigzags and dodges,
 Ins and outs, weaving a new legislature —
 God's gold just shining its last where that lodges,
 Palled beneath man's usurpature.

XXIV.

So we o'ershroud stars and roses,
 Cherub and trophy and garland;

Nothing grows something which quietly closes
 Heaven's earnest eye : not a glimpse of the far land
 Gets through our comments and glozes.

XXV.

Ah but traditions, inventions,
 (Say we and make up a visage)
 So many men with such various intentions,
 Down the past ages, must know more than this age !
 Leave we the web its dimensions !

XXVI.

Who thinks Hugues wrote for the deaf,
 Proved a mere mountain in labor ?
 Better submit ; try again ; what 's the clef ?
 'Faith, 't is no trifle for pipe and for tabor —
 Four flats, the minor in F.

XXVII.

Friend, your fugue taxes the finger :
 Learning it once, who would lose it ?
 Yet all the while a misgiving will linger,
 Truth 's golden o'er us although we refuse it —
 Nature, through cobwebs we string her.

XXVIII.

Hugues ! I advise meâ penâ
 (Counterpoint glares like a Gorgon)
 Bid One, Two, Three, Four, Five, clear the arena !
 Say the word, straight I unstop the full-organ,
 Blare out the mode Palestrina.

XXIX.

While in the roof, if I'm right there,
 . . . Lo you, the wick in the socket !
 Hallo, you sacristan, show us a light there !
 Down it dips, gone like a rocket.
 What, you want, do you, to come unawares,
 Sweeping the church up for first morning-prayers,
 And find a poor devil has ended his cares
 At the foot of your rotten-runged rat-riddled stairs ?
 Do I carry the moon in my pocket ?

THE RETURN OF THE DRUSES

---

PERSONS.

The Grand-Master's Prefect.                      The Republic's Admiral.
The Patriarch's Nuncio.                      LOYS DE DREUX, Knight-Novice.
Initiated Druses — DJABAL, KHALIL, ANAEL, MAANI, KARSHOOK, RAGHIB, AYOOB, and others.
Uninitiated Druses. Prefect's Guard, Nuncio's Attendants, Admiral's Force.

TIME, 14—.

PLACE, An Islet of the Southern Sporades, colonized by Druses of Lebanon, and garrisoned by the Knights-Hospitallers of Rhodes.

SCENE, A Hall in the Prefect's Palace.

---

ACT I.

Enter stealthily KARSHOOK, RAGHIB, AYOOB, and other initiated Druses, each as he enters casting off a robe that conceals his distinctive black vest and white turban; then, as giving a loose to exultation, —

Kar. The moon is carried off in purple fire:
Day breaks at last! Break glory, with the day,
On Djabal's dread incarnate mystery
Now ready to resume its pristine shape
Of Hakeem, as the Khalif vanished erst
In what seemed death to uninstructed eyes,
On red Mokattam's verge — our Founder's flesh,
As he resumes our Founder's function!

Ragh.

— Death.

Sweep to the Christian Prefect that enslaved
So long us sad Druse exiles o'er the sea!

Ay. — Most joy be thine, O Mother-mount! Thy brood
Returns to thee, no outcasts as we left,
But thus — but thus! Behind, our Prefect's corse;
Before, a presence like the morning — thine,

Absolute Djabal late, — God Hakeem now
That day breaks !

Kar. Off then, with disguise at last !

As from our forms this hateful garb we strip,
Lose every tongue its glozing accent too,
Discard each limb the ignoble gesture ! Cry,
T is the Druse Nation, warders on our Mount
Of the world's secret, since the birth of time,
— No kindred slips, no offsets from thy stock,
No spawn of Christians are we, Prefect, we
Who rise . . .

Ay. Who shout . . .

Ragh. Who seize, a first-fruits, ha —
Spoil of the spoiler ! Brave !

[They begin to tear down, and to dispute for, the decorations of the hall.]

Kar. Hold !

Ay. — Mine, I say ;

And mine shall it continue !

Kar. Just this fringe !

Take anything beside ! Lo, spire on spire,
Curl serpentwise wreathed columns to the top
O' the roof, and hide themselves mysteriously
Among the twinkling lights and darks that haunt
Yon cornice ! Where the huge veil, they suspend
Before the Prefect's chamber of delight,
Floats wide, then falls again as if its slave,
The scented air, took heart now, and anon
Lost heart to buoy its breadths of gorgeousness
Above the gloom they droop in — all the porch
Is jewelled o'er with frostwork character ;
And, see, yon eight-point cross of white flame, winking
Hoar-silvery like some fresh-broke marble stone :
Raze out the Rhodian cross there, so thou leav'st me
This single fringe !

Ay. Ha, wouldst thou, dog-fox ? Help !
— Three hand-breadths of gold fringe, my son was set
To twist, the night he died !

Kar. Nay, hear the knave !

And I could witness my one daughter borne,
A week since, to the Prefect's couch, yet fold
These arms, be mute, lest word of mine should mar
Our Master's work, delay the Prefect here
A day, prevent his sailing hence for Rhodes —
How know I else ? — Hear me denied my right
By such a knave !

Ragh. [interposing.] Each ravage for himself!
 Booty enough! On, Druses! Be there found
 Blood and a heap behind us; with us, Djabal
 Turned Hakeem; and before us, Lebanon!
 Yields the porch? Spare not! There his minions dragged
 Thy daughter, Karshook, to the Prefect's couch!
 Ayoob! Thy son, to soothe the Prefect's pride,
 Bent o'er that task, the death-sweat on his brow,
 Carving the spice-tree's heart in scroll-work there!
 Onward in Djabal's name!

As the tumult is at height, enter KHALIL. A pause and silence.

Kha. Was it for this,
 Djabal hath summoned you? Deserve you thus
 A portion in to-day's event? What, here —
 When most behoves your feet fall soft, your eyes
 Sink low, your tongues lie still, — at Djabal's side,
 Close in his very hearing, who, perchance,
 Assumes e'en now God Hakeem's dreaded shape, —
 Dispute you for these gauds?

Ay. How say'st thou, Khalil?
 Doubtless our Master prompts thee! Take the fringe,
 Old Karshook! I supposed it was a day . . .

Kha. For pillage?

Kar. Hearken, Khalil! Never spoke
 A boy so like a song-bird; we avouch thee
 Prettiest of all our Master's instruments
 Except thy bright twin-sister; thou and Anael
 Challenge his prime regard: but we may crave
 (Such nothings as we be) a portion too
 Of Djabal's favor; in him we believed,
 His bound ourselves, him moon by moon obeyed,
 Kept silence till this daybreak — so, may claim
 Reward: who grudges me my claim?

Ay. To-day
 Is not as yesterday!

Ragh. Stand off!

Kha. Rebel you?
 Must I, the delegate of Djabal, draw
 His wrath on you, the day of our Return?

Other Druses. Wrench from their grasp the fringe! Hounds! must the earth

Vomit her plagues on us through thee? — and thee?
 Plague me not, Khalil, for their fault!

Kha. Oh, shame!
 Thus breaks to-day on you, the mystic tribe
 Who, flying the approach of Osman, bore

Our faith, a merest spark, from Syria's ridge,
 Its birthplace, hither! "Let the sea divide
 These hunters from their prey," you said; "and safe
 In this dim islet's virgin solitude
 Tend we our faith, the spark, till happier time
 Fan it to fire; till Hakeem rise again,
 According to his word that, in the flesh
 Which faded on Mokattam ages since,
 He, at our extreme need, would interpose,
 And, reinstating all in power and bliss,
 Lead us himself to Lebanon once more."
 Was 't not thus you departed years ago,
 Ere I was born?

Druses. 'T was even thus, years ago.

Kha. And did you call — (according to old laws
 Which bid us, lest the sacred grow profane,
 Assimilate ourselves in outward rites
 With strangers fortune makes our lords, and live
 As Christian with the Christian, Jew with Jew,
 Druse only with the Druses) — did you call
 Or no, to stand 'twixt you and Osman's rage,
 (Mad to pursue e'en hither through the sea
 The remnant of our tribe,) a race self vowed
 To endless warfare with his hordes and him,
 The White-cross Knights of the adjacent Isle?

Kar. And why else rend we down, wrench up, rase out?
 These Knights of Rhodes we thus solicited
 For help, bestowed on us a fiercer pest
 Than aught we fled — their Prefect; who began
 His promised mere paternal governance,
 By a prompt massacre of all our Sheikhs
 Able to thwart the Order in its scheme
 Of crushing, with our nation's memory,
 Each chance of our return, and taming us
 Bondslaves to Rhodes forever — all, he thinks
 To end by this day's treason.

Kha. Say I not?

You, fitted to the Order's purposes,
 Your Sheikhs cut off, your rights, your garb proscribed,
 Must yet receive one degradation more;
 The Knights at last throw off the mask — transfer,
 As tributary now and appanage,
 This islet they are but protectors of,
 To their own ever-craving liege, the Church,
 Who licenses all crimes that pay her thus.
 You, from their Prefect, were to be consigned

(Pursuant of I know not what vile pact)
 To the Knights' Patriarch, ardent to outvie
 His predecessor in all wickedness.
 When suddenly rose Djabal in the midst,
 Djabal, the man in semblance, but our God
 Confessed by signs and portents. Ye saw fire
 Bicker round Djabal, heard strange music flit
 Bird-like about his brow?

Druses.

We saw — we heard !

Djabal is Hakeem, the incarnate Dread,
 The phantasm Khalif, King of Prodigies !

Kha. And as he said has not our Khalif done,
 And so disposed events (from land to land
 Passing invisibly) that when, this morn,
 The pact of villany complete, there comes
 This Patriarch's Nuncio with this Master's Prefect
 Their treason to consummate, — each will face
 For a crouching handful, an uplifted nation ;
 For simulated Christians, confessed Druses ;
 And, for slaves past hope of the Mother-mount,
 Freedmen returning there 'neath Venice' flag ;
 That Venice which, the Hospitallers' foe,
 Grants us from Candia escort home at price
 Of our relinquished isle, Rhodes counts her own —
 Venice, whose promised argosies should stand
 Toward harbor : is it now that you, and you,
 And you, selected from the rest to bear
 The burden of the Khalif's secret, further
 To-day's event, entitled by your wrongs,
 And witness in the Prefect's hall his fate —
 That you dare clutch these gauds ? Ay, drop them !

Kar.

True,

Most true, all this ; and yet, may one dare hint,
 Thou art the youngest of us ? — though employed
 Abundantly as Djabal's confidant,
 Transmitter of his mandates, even now.
 Much less, whene'er beside him Anael graces
 The cedar throne, his queen-bride, art thou like
 To occupy its lowest step that day !
 Now, Khalil, wert thou checked as thou aspirest,
 Forbidden such or such an honor, — say,
 Would silence serve so amply ?

Kha.

Karshook thinks

I covet honors ? Well, nor idly thinks !
 Honors ? I have demanded of them all
 The greatest !

Kar. I supposed so.

Kha. Judge, yourselves!

Turn, thus: 't is in the alcove at the back
Of yonder columned porch, whose entrance now
The veil hides, that our Prefect holds his state,
Receives the Nuncio, when the one, from Rhodes,
The other lands from Syria; there they meet.
Now, I have sued with earnest prayers . . .

Kar. For what
Shall the Bride's brother vainly sue?

Kha. That mine —
Avenging in one blow a myriad wrongs
— Might be the hand to slay the Prefect there!

Djabal reserves that office for himself. [A silence

Thus far, as youngest of you all, I speak
— Scarce more enlightened than yourselves; since, near
As I approach him, nearer as I trust
Soon to approach our Master, he reveals
Only the God's power, not the glory yet.
Therefore I reasoned with you: now, as servant
To Djabal, bearing his authority,
Hear me appoint your several posts! Till noon
None see him save myself and Anael: once
The deed achieved, our Khalif, casting off
The embodied Awe's tremendous mystery,
The weakness of the flesh disguise, resumes
His proper glory, ne'er to fade again.

Enter a Druse.

The Druse. Our Prefect lands from Rhodes! — without a sign

That he suspects aught since he left our Isle;
Nor in his train a single guard beyond
The few he sailed with hence: so have we learned
From Loys.

Kar. Loys? Is not Loys gone
Forever?

Ayoob. Loys, the Frank Knight, returned?

The Druse. Loys, the boy, stood on the leading prow
Conspicuous in his gay attire, and leapt
Into the surf the foremost. Since day-dawn
I kept watch to the Northward; take but note
Of my poor vigilance to Djabal!

Kha. Peace!

Thou, Karshook, with thy company, receive
The Prefect as appointed: see, all keep
The wonted show of servitude: announce

His entry here by the accustomed peal
Of trumpets, then await the further pleasure
Of Djabal! (Loys back, whom Djabal sent
To Rhodes that we might spare the single Knight Worth sparing!)

Enter a second Druse.

The Druse. I espied it first! Say, I
First spied the Nuncio's galley from the South!
Said'st thou a Crossed-keys' flag would flap the mast?
It nears apace! One galley and no more.
If Djabal chance to ask who spied the flag,
Forget not, I it was!

Kha. Thou, Ayoob, bring
The Nuncio and his followers hither! Break
One rule prescribed, ye wither in your blood,
Die at your fault!

Enter a third Druse.

The Druse. I shall see home, see home!
— Shall banquet in the sombre groves again!
Hail to thee, Khalil! Venice looms afar;
The argosies of Venice, like a cloud,
Bear up from Candia in the distance!

Kha. Joy!
Summon our people, Raghib! Bid all forth!
Tell them the long-kept secret, old and young!
Set free the captive, let the trampled raise
Their faces from the dust, because at length
The cycle is complete, God Hakeem's reign
Begins anew! Say, Venice for our guard,
Ere night we steer for Syria! Hear you, Druses?
Hear you this crowning witness to the claims
Of Djabal? Oh, I spoke of hope and fear,
Reward and punishment, because he bade
Who has the right; for me, what should I say
But, mar not those imperial lineaments,
No majesty of all that rapt regard
Vex by the least omission! Let him rise
Without a check from you!

Druses. Let Djabal rise!

Enter LOYS. — The Druses are silent.

Loys. Who speaks of Djabal? — for I seek him, friends!
[Aside.] Tu Dieu! 'Tis as our Isle broke out in song
For joy, its Prefect-incubus drops off
To-day, and I succeed him in his rule!
But no — they cannot dream of their good fortune!
[Aloud.] Peace to you, Druses! I have tidings for you,

But first for Djabal : where 's your tall bewitcher,
With that small Arab thin-lipped silver-mouth ?

Kha. [Aside to KAR.] Loys, in truth ! Yet Djabal cannot err !

Kar. [to KHA.] And who takes charge of Loys ? That 's forgotten,
Despite thy wariness ! Will Loys stand
And see his comrades slaughtered ?

Loys. [Aside.] How they shrink
And whisper, with those rapid faces ! What ?
The sight of me in their oppressors' garb
Strikes terror to the simple tribe ? God's shame
On those that bring our Order ill repute !
But all 's at end now ; better days begin
For these mild mountaineers from over-sea :
The timidest shall have in me no Prefect
To cower at thus ! [Aloud.] I asked for Djabal —

Kar. [Aside.] Better
One lured him, ere he can suspect, inside
The corridor ; 't were easy to dispatch
A youngster. [To LOYS.] Djabal passed some minutes since
Through yonder porch, and . . .

Kha. [Aside.] Hold ! What, him dispatch ?
The only Christian of them all we charge
No tyranny upon ? Who, — noblest Knight
Of all that learned from time to time their trade
Of lust and cruelty among us, — heir
To Europe's pomp, a truest child of pride, —
Yet stood between the Prefect and ourselves
From the beginning ? Loys, Djabal makes
Account of, and precisely sent to Rhodes
For safety ? I take charge of him !

[To LOYS.] Sir Loys, —
Loys. There, cousins ! Does Sir Loys strike you dead ?

Kha. [advancing.] Djabal has intercourse with few or none
Till noontide : but, your pleasure ?

Loys. " Intercourse
With few or none ? " — (Ah, Khalil, when you spoke
I saw not your smooth face ! All health ! — and health
To Anael ! How fares Anael ?) — " Intercourse
With few or none ? " Forget you, I've been friendly
With Djabal long ere you or any Druse ?
— Enough of him at Rennes, I think, beneath
The Duke my father's roof ! He 'd tell by the hour,
With fixed white eyes beneath his swarthy brow,
Plausiblist stories . . .

Kha. Stories, say you? — Ah,
The quaint attire!

Loys. My dress for the last time!
How sad I cannot make you understand,
This ermine, o'er a shield, betokens me
Of Bretagne, ancientest of provinces
And noblest; and, what's best and oldest there,
See, Dreux', our house's blazon, which the Nuncio
Tacks to an Hospitaller's vest to-day!

Kha. The Nuncio we await? What brings you back
From Rhodes, Sir Loys?

Loys. How you island-tribe
Forget the world's awake while here you drowse!
What brings me back? What should not bring me, rather!
Our Patriarch's Nuncio visits you to-day —
Is not my year's probation out? I come
To take the knightly vows.

Kha. What's that you wear?

Loys. This Rhodian cross? The cross your Prefect wore.
You should have seen, as I saw, the full Chapter
Rise, to a man, while they transferred this cross
From that unworthy Prefect's neck to . . . (fool —
My secret will escape me!) In a word,
My year's probation passed, a Knight ere eve
Am I; bound, like the rest, to yield my wealth
To the common stock, to live in chastity,
(We Knights espouse alone our Order's fame)
— Change this gay weed for the black white-crossed gown,
And fight to death against the Infidel
— Not, therefore, against you, you Christians with Such partial difference only as befits
The peaceullest of tribes! But Khalil, prithee,
Is not the Isle brighter than wont to-day?

Kha. Ah, the new sword!

Loys. See now! You handle sword
As 't were a camel-staff! Pull! That's my motto,
Annealed "Pro fide," on the blade in blue.

Kha. No curve in it? Surely a blade should curve!

Loys. Straight from the wrist! Loose — it should poise itself!

Kha. [waving with irrepressible exultation the sword.] We are a nation, Loys, of old fame
Among the mountains! Rights have we to keep
With the sword too!

[Remembering himself.] But I forget — you bid me
Seek Djabal?

Loys. What! A sword's sight scares you not?

(The People I will make of him and them !

Oh let my Prefect-sway begin at once !)

Bring Djabal — say, indeed, that come he must !

Kha. At noon seek Djabal in the Prefect's Chamber,
And find . . . [Aside.] Nay, 't is thy cursed race's token,
Frank pride, no special insolence of thine !

[Aloud.] Tarry, and I will do your bidding, Loys !

[To the rest aside.] Now, forth you ! I proceed to Djabal straight.

Leave this poor boy, who knows not what he says !

Oh will it not add joy to even thy joy,

Djabal, that I report all friends were true ?

[KHALIL goes, followed by the Druses.

Loys. Tu Dieu! How happy I shall make these Druses !

Was 't not surpassingly contrived of me

To get the long list of their wrongs by heart,

Then take the first pretence for stealing off

From these poor islanders, present myself

Sudden at Rhodes before the noble Chapter,

And (as best proof of ardor in its cause

Which ere to-night will have become, too, mine)

Acquaint it with this plague-sore in its body,

This Prefect and his villainous career ?

The princely Synod ! All I dared request

Was his dismissal ; and they graciously

Consigned his very office to myself —

Myself may cure the Isle diseased !

And well

For them, they did so ! Since I never felt

How lone a lot, though brilliant, I embrace,

Till now that, past retrieval, it is mine.

To live thus, and thus die ! Yet, as I leapt

On shore, so home a feeling greeted me

That I could half believe in Djabal's story,

He used to tempt my father with, at Rennes —

And me, too, since the story brought me here —

Of some Count Dreux and ancestor of ours

Who, sick of wandering from Bouillon's war,

Left his old name in Lebanon.

Long days

At least to spend in the Isle ! and, my news known

An hour hence, what if Anael turn on me

The great black eyes I must forget ?

Why, fool,

Recall them, then ? My business is with Djabal,

Not Anael ! Djabal tarries : if I seek him ? —

The Isle is brighter than its wont to-day !

ACT II.

Enter DJABAL.

Dja. That a strong man should think himself a God!
 I — Hakeem? To have wandered through the world,
 Sown falsehood, and thence reaped now scorn, now faith,
 For my one chant with many a change, my tale
 Of outrage, and my prayer for vengeance — this
 Required, forsooth, no mere man's faculty,
 Nought less than Hakeem's? The persuading Loys
 To pass probation here; the getting access
 By Loys to the Prefect; worst of all,
 The gaining my tribe's confidence by fraud
 That would disgrace the very Frank, — a few
 Of Europe's secrets which subdue the flame,
 The wave, — to ply a simple tribe with these,
 Took Hakeem?

And I feel this first to-day!

Does the day break, is the hour imminent
 When one deed, when my whole life's deed, my deed
 Must be accomplished? Hakeem? Why the God?
 Shout, rather, "Djabal, Youssof's child, thought slain
 With his whole race, the Druses' Sheikhs, this Prefect
 Endeavored to extirpate — saved, a child,
 Returns from traversing the world, a man,
 Able to take revenge, lead back the march
 To Lebanon" — so shout, and who gainsays?
 But now, because delusion mixed itself
 Insensibly with this career, all's changed!
 Have I brought Venice to afford us convoy?
 "True — but my jugglings wrought that!" Put I heart
 Into our people where no heart lurked? — "Ah,
 What cannot an impostor do!"

Not this!

Not do this which I do! Not bid avaunt
 Falsehood! Thou shalt not keep thy hold on me!
 — Nor even get a hold on me! 'Tis now —
 This day — hour — minute — 't is as here I stand
 On the accursed threshold of the Prefect,
 That I am found deceiving and deceived!
 And now what do I? — hasten to the few
 Deceived, ere they deceive the many — shout,
 "As I professed, I did believe myself!
 Say, Druses, had you seen a butchery —

If Ayoob, Karshook saw — Maani there
 Must tell you how I saw my father sink ;
 My mother's arms twine still about my neck ;
 I hear my brother shriek, here 's yet the scar
 Of what was meant for my own death-blow — say,
 If you had woke like me, grown year by year
 Out of the tumult in a far-off clime,
 Would it be wondrous such delusion grew ?
 I walked the world, asked help at every hand ;
 Came help or no ? Not this and this ? Which helps
 When I returned with, found the Prefect here,
 The Druses here, all here, but Hakeem's self,
 The Khalif of the thousand prophecies,
 Reserved for such a juncture, — could I call
 My mission aught but Hakeem's ? Promised Hakeem
 More than performs the Djabal — you absolve ?
 — Me, you will never shame before the crowd
 Yet happily ignorant ? — Me, both throngs surround
 The few deceived, the many unabused,
 — Who, thus surrounded, slay for you and them
 The Prefect, lead to Lebanon ? No Khalif,
 But Sheikh once more ! Mere Djabal — not ” . . .

Enter KHALIL hastily.

Kha.

— God Hakeem!

'Tis told ! The whole Druse nation knows thee, Hakeem,
 As we ! and mothers lift on high their babes
 Who seem aware, so glisten their great eyes,
 Thou hast not failed us ; ancient brows are proud !
 Our elders could not earlier die, it seems,
 Than at thy coming ! The Druse heart is thine !
 Take it ! my lord and theirs, be thou adored !

Dja. [Aside.] Adored ! — but I renounce it utterly !

Kha. Already are they instituting choirs
 And dances to the Khalif, as of old
 'Tis chronicled thou bad'st them.

Dja. [Aside.] I abjure it !

'Tis not mine — not for me !

Kha.

Why pour they wine

Flavored like honey and bruised mountain-herbs,
 Or wear those strings of sun-dried cedar-fruit ?
 Oh, let me tell thee — Esaad, we supposed
 Doting, is carried forth, eager to see
 The last sun rise on the Isle : he can see now !
 The shamed Druse women never wept before :
 They can look up when we reach home, they say.
 Smell ! — sweet cane, saved in Lilith's breast thus long —

Sweet! — it grows wild in Lebanon. And I
 Alone do nothing for thee! 'T is my office
 Just to announce what well thou know'st — but thus Thou bidst me. At this self-same moment tend
 The Prefect, Nuncio and the Admiral
 Hither by their three sea-paths: nor forget
 Who were the trusty watchers! — thou forget?
 Like me, who do forget that Anael bade . . .

Dja. [Aside.] Ay, Anael, Anael — is that said at last?
 Louder than all, that would be said, I knew!
 What does abjuring mean, confessing mean,
 To the people? Till that woman crossed my path,
 On went I, solely for my people's sake:
 I saw her, and I then first saw myself,
 And slackened pace: "If I should prove indeed
 Hakeem — with Anael by!"

Kha. [Aside.] Ah, he is rapt!
 Dare I at such a moment break on him
 Even to do my sister's bidding? Yes:
 The eyes are Djabal's and not Hakeem's yet,
 Though but till I have spoken this, perchance.

Dja. [Aside.] To yearn to tell her, and yet have no one Great heart's word that will tell her! I could gasp
 Doubtless one such word out, and die.

[Aloud.] You said
 That Anael . . .

Kha. . . . Fain would see thee, speak with thee,
 Before thou change, discard this Djabal's shape
 She knows, for Hakeem's shape she is to know.
 Something to say that will not from her mind!
 I know not what — "Let him but come!" she said.

Dja. [Half apart.] My nation — all my Druses — how fare they?

Those I must save, and suffer thus to save,
 Hold they their posts? Wait they their Khalif too?

Kha. All at the signal pant to flock around
 That banner of a brow!

Dja. [Aside.] And when they flock,
 Confess them this: and after, for reward,
 Be chased with howlings to her feet perchance!
 — Have the poor outraged Druses, deaf and blind,
 Precede me there, forestall my story there,
 Tell it in mocks and jeers!

I lose myself!
 Who needs a Hakeem to direct him now?
 I need the veriest child — why not this child?

[Turning abruptly to KHALIL.

You are a Druse too, Khalil ; you were nourished
 Like Anael with our mysteries : if she Could vow, so nourished, to love only one
 Who should avenge the Druses, whence proceeds
 Your silence ? Wherefore made you no essay,
 Who thus implicitly can execute
 My bidding ? What have I done, you could not ?
 Who, knowing more than Anael the prostration
 Of our once lofty tribe, the daily life
 Of this detested . . .

Does he come, you say,
 This Prefect ? All 's in readiness ?

Kha. The sword,
 The sacred robe, the Khalif's mystic tiar,
 Laid up so long, are all disposed beside
 The Prefect's chamber.

Dja. — Why did you despair ?
Kha. I know our nation's state ? Too surely know,
 As thou who speak'st to prove me ! Wrongs like ours
 Should wake revenge : but when I sought the wronged
 And spoke, — “ The Prefect stabbed your son — arise !
 Your daughter, while you starve, eats shameless bread
 In his pavilion — then arise ! ” — my speech
 Fell idly : 't was, “ Be silent, or worse fare !
 Endure till time's slow cycle prove complete !
 Who may'st thou be that takest on thee to thrust
 Into this peril — art thou Hakeem ? ” No !
 Only a mission like thy mission renders
 All these obedient at a breath, subdues
 Their private passions, brings their wills to one !

Dja. You think so ?

Kha. Even now — when they have witnessed
 Thy miracles — had I not threatened all
 With Hakeem's vengeance, they would mar the work,
 And couch ere this, each with his special prize,
 Safe in his dwelling, leaving our main hope
 To perish. No ! When these have kissed thy feet
 At Lebanon, the past purged off, the present
 Clear, — for the future, even Hakeem's mission
 May end, and I perchance, or any youth,
 Shall rule them thus renewed. — I tutor thee !

Dja. And wisely. (He is Anael's brother, pure
 As Anael's self.) Go say, I come to her.
 Haste ! I will follow you.

[KHALIL goes

Oh, not confess
 To these, the blindēd multitude — confess,

Before at least the fortune of my deed
 Half authorize its means! Only to her
 Let me confess my fault, who in my path
 Curled up like incense from a Mage-king's tomb
 When he would have the wayfarer descend
 Through the earth's rift and bear hid treasure forth!
 How should child's-carelessness prove manhood's crime
 Till now that I, whose lone youth hurried past,
 Letting each joy 'scape for the Druses' sake,
 At length recover in one Druse all joy?
 Were her brow brighter, her eyes richer, still
 Would I confess! On the gulf's verge I pause.
 How could I slay the Prefect, thus and thus?
 Anaël, be mine to guard me, not destroy!

[Goes.]

Enter ANAËL, and MAANI who is assisting to array her in the ancient dress of the Druses.

An. Those saffron vestures of the tabret-girls!
 Comes Djabal, think you?

Maa. Doubtless Djabal comes.

An. Dost thou snow-swathe thee kinglier, Lebanon,
 Than in my dreams? — Nay, all the tresses off
 My forehead! Look I lovely so? He says
 That I am lovely.

Maa. Lovely: nay, that hangs
 Awry.

An. You tell me how a khandjar hangs?
 The sharp side, thus, along the heart, see, marks
 The maiden of our class. Are you content
 For Djabal as for me?

Maa. Content, my child.

An. Oh mother, tell me more of him! He comes
 Even now — tell more, fill up my soul with him!

Maa. And did I not . . . yes, surely . . . tell you all?

An. What will be changed in Djabal when the Change
 Arrives? Which feature? Not his eyes!

Maa. 'T is writ
 Our Hakeem's eyes rolled fire and clove the dark
 Superbly.

An. Not his eyes! His voice perhaps?
 Yet that's no change; for a grave current lived
 — Grandly beneath the surface ever lived,
 That, scattering, broke as in live silver spray
 While . . . ah, the bliss . . . he would discourse to me
 In that enforced still fashion, word on word!
 'T is the old current which must swell through that,
 For what least tone, Maani, could I lose?

'Tis surely not his voice will change !

— If Hakeem

Only stood by ! If Djabal, somehow, passed
Out of the radiance as from out a robe ;
Possessed, but was not it !

He lived with you ?

Well — and that morning Djabal saw me first
And heard me vow never to wed but one
Who saved my People — on that day . . . proceed !

Maa. Once more, then : from the time of his return
In secret, changed so since he left the Isle
That I, who screened our Emir's last of sons,
This Djabal, from the Prefect's massacre
— Who bade him ne'er forget the child he was,
— Who dreamed so long the youth he might become —
I knew not in the man that child ; the man
Who spoke alone of hope to save our tribe,
How he had gone from land to land to save
Our tribe — allies were sure, nor foes to dread ;
And much he mused, days, nights, alone he mused :
But never till that day when, pale and worn
As by a persevering woe, he cried
“ Is there not one Druse left me ? ” — and I showed
The way to Khalil's and your hiding-place
From the abhorred eye of the Prefect here,
So that he saw you, heard you speak — till then,
Never did he announce — (how the moon seemed To ope and shut, the while, above us both !)
— His mission was the mission promised us ;
The cycle had revolved ; all things renewing,
He was lost Hakeem clothed in flesh to lead
His children home anon, now veiled to work
Great purposes : the Druses now would change !

An. And they have changed ! And obstacles did sink,
And furtherances rose ! And round his form
Played fire, and music beat her angel wings !
My people, let me more rejoice, oh more
For you than for myself ! Did I but watch
Afar the pageant, feel our Khalif pass,
One of the throng, how proud were I — though ne'er
Singled by Djabal's glance ! But to be chosen
His own from all, the most his own of all,
To be exalted with him, side by side.
Lead the exulting Druses, meet . . . ah, how Worthily meet the maidens who await
Ever beneath the cedars — how deserve

This honor, in their eyes? So bright are they
 Who saffron-vested sound the tabret there,
 The girls who throng there in my dream! One hour
 And all is over: how shall I do aught
 That may deserve next hour's exalting? — How? —

[Suddenly to MAANI.

Mother, I am not worthy him! I read it
 Still in his eyes! He stands as if to tell me
 I am not, yet forbears. Why else revert
 To one themé ever? — how mere human gifts
 Suffice him in myself — whose worship fades,
 Whose awe goes ever off at his approach,
 As now, who when he comes . . .

[DJABAL enters.] Oh why is it
 I cannot kneel to you?

Dja. Rather, 't is I
 Should kneel to you, my Anael!

An. Even so!

For never seem you — shall I speak the truth? —
 Never a God to me! 'T is the Man's hand,
 Eye, voice! Oh do you veil these to our people,
 Or but to me? To them, I think, to them!
 And brightness is their veil, shadow — my truth!
 You mean that I should never kneel to you
 — So, thus I kneel!

Dja. [preventing her.] No — no!
 [Feeling the khandjar as he raises her.

Ha, have you chosen . . .

An. The khandjar with our ancient garb. But, Djabal,
 Change not, be not exalted yet! Give time
 That I may plan more, perfect more! My blood
 Beats, beats!

[Aside.] Oh must I then — since Loys leaves us
 Never to come again, renew in me
 These doubts so near effaced already — must
 I needs confess them now to Djabal? — own
 That when I saw that stranger, heard his voice,
 My faith fell, and the woful thought flashed first
 That each effect of Djabal's presence, taken
 For proof of more than human attributes
 In him, by me whose heart at his approach
 Beat fast, whose brain while he was by swam round,
 Whose soul at his departure died away,
 — That every such effect might have been wrought
 In other frames, though not in mine, by Loys
 Or any merely mortal presence? Doubt

Is fading fast ; shall I reveal it now ?
 How shall I meet the rapture presently,
 With doubt unexpiated, undisclosed ?

Dja. [Aside.] Avow the truth ? I cannot ! In what words
 Avow that all she loved in me was false ?

— Which yet has served that flower-like love of hers
 To climb by, like the clinging gourd, and clasp
 With its divinest wealth of leaf and bloom.

Could I take down the prop-work, in itself
 So vile, yet interlaced and overlaid

With painted cups and fruitage — might these still
 Bask in the sun, unconscious their own strength

Of matted stalk and tendril had replaced
 The old support thus silently withdrawn !

But no ; the beauteous fabric crushes too.

'T is not for my sake but for Anael's sake

I leave her soul this Hakeem where it leans !

Oh could I vanish from her — quit the Isle !

And yet — a thought comes : here my work is done

At every point ; the Druses must return —

Have convoy to their birth-place back, whoe'er

The leader be, myself or any Druse —

Venice is pledged to that : 't is for myself,

For my own vengeance in the Prefect's death,

I stay now, not for them : to slay or spare

The Prefect, whom imports it save myself ?

He cannot bar their passage from the Isle ;

What would his death be but my own reward ?

Then, mine I will forego. It is foregone !

Let him escape with all my House's blood !

Ere he can reach land, Djabal disappears,

And Hakeem, Anael loved, shall, fresh as first,

Live in her memory, keeping her sublime

Above the world. She cannot touch that world

By ever knowing what I truly am,

Since Loys, — of mankind the only one

Able to link my present with my past,

My life in Europe with my Island life,

Thence, able to unmask me, — I've disposed

Safely at last at Rhodes, and

Enter KHALIL.

Kha.

Loys greets thee !

Dja. Loys ? To drag me back ? It cannot be !

An. [Aside.] Loys ! Ah, doubt may not be stifled so ! —

Kha. Can I have erred that thou so gazest ? Yes,
 I told thee not in the glad press of tidings

Of higher import, Loys is returned
 Before the Prefect, with, if possible,
 Twice the light-heartedness of old. As though
 On some inauguration he expects,
 To-day, the world's fate hung!

Dja. — And asks for me?

Kha. Thou knowest all things! Thee in chief he greets,
 But every Druse of us is to be happy
 At his arrival, he declares: were Loys
 Thou, Master, he could have no wider soul
 To take us in with. How I love that Loys!

Dja. [Aside.] Shame winds me with her tether round and round!

An. [Aside.] Loys? I take the trial! it is meet,
 The little I can do, be done; that faith,
 All I can offer, want no perfecting
 Which my own act may compass. Ay, this way
 All may go well, nor that ignoble doubt
 Be chased by other aid than mine. Advance
 Close to my fear, weigh Loys with my Lord,
 The mortal with the more than mortal gifts!

Dja. [Aside.] Before, there were so few deceived! and now

There's doubtless not one least Druse in the Isle
 But, having learned my superhuman claims,
 And calling me his Khalif-God, will clash
 The whole truth out from Loys at first word!
 While Loys, for his part, will hold me up,
 With a Frank's unimaginable scorn
 Of such imposture, to my people's eyes!
 Could I but keep him longer yet awhile
 From them, amuse him here until I plan
 How he and I at once may leave the Isle!
 Khalil I cannot part with from my side —
 My only help in this emergency:
 There's Anael!

An. Please you?

Dja. Anael — none but she!

[To ANAEL.] I pass some minutes in the chamber there,
 Ere I see Loys: you shall speak with him
 Until I join you. Khalil follows me.

An. [Aside.] As I divined: he bids me save myself!
 Offers me a probation — I accept!
 Let me see Loys!

Loys. [Without.] Djabal!

An. [Aside.] 'T is his voice.

The smooth Frank trifier with our people's wrongs,
 The self-complacent boy-inquirer, loud
 On this and that inflicted tyranny,
 — Aught serving to parade an ignorance
 Of how wrong feels, inflicted! Let me close
 With what I viewed at distance: let myself
 Probe this delusion to the core!

Dja.

He comes.

Khalil, along with me! while Anael waits
 Till I return once more — and but once more!

ACT III.

ANAEL and LOYS.

An. Here leave me! Here I wait another. 'T was
 For no mad protestation of a love
 Like this you say possesses you, I came.

Loys. Love? how protest a love I dare not feel?
 Mad words may doubtless have escaped me: you
 Are here — I only feel you here!

An.

No more!

Loys. But once again, whom could you love? I dare,
 Alas, say nothing of myself, who am
 A Knight now, for when Knighthood we embrace,
 Love we abjure: so, speak on safely: speak,
 Lest I speak, and betray my faith! And yet
 To say your breathing passes through me, changes
 My blood to spirit, and my spirit to you,
 As Heaven the sacrificer's wine to it —
 This is not to protest my love! You said
 You could love one . . .

An.

One only! We are bent
 To earth — who raises up my tribe, I love;
 The Prefect bows us — who removes him; we
 Have ancient rights — who gives them back to us,
 I love. Forbear me! Let my hand go!

Loys.

Him

You could love only? Where is Djabal? Stay!
 [Aside.] Yet wherefore stay? Who does this but myself?
 Had I apprised her that I come to do
 Just this, what more could she acknowledge? No,
 She sees into my heart's core! What is it
 Feeds either cheek with red, as June some rose?
 Why turns she from me? Ah fool, over-fond

To dream I could call up . . . . . What never dream
 Yet feigned! 'Tis love! Oh Anael, speak to me!
 Djabal —

An. Seek Djabal by the Prefect's chamber
 At noon! [She paces the room.

Loys. [Aside.] And am I not the Prefect now?
 Is it my fate to be the only one
 Able to win her love, the only one
 Unable to accept her love? The past
 Breaks up beneath my footing: came I here
 This morn as to a slave, to set her free
 And take her thanks, and then spend day by day
 Content beside her in the Isle? What works
 This knowledge in me now? Her eye has broken
 The faint disguise away: for Anael's sake
 I left the Isle, for her espoused the cause
 Of the Druses, all for her I thought, till now,
 To live without!

— As I must live! To-day
 Ordains me Knight, forbids me . . . never shall Forbid me to profess myself, heart, arm,
 Thy soldier!

An. Djabal you demanded, comes!

Loys. [Aside.] What wouldst thou, Loys? See him? Nought beside

Is wanting: I have felt his voice a spell
 From first to last. He brought me here, made known
 The Druses to me, drove me hence to seek
 Redress for them; and shall I meet him now,
 When nought is wanting but a word of his,
 To — what? — induce me to spurn hope, faith, pride,
 Honor away, — to cast my lot among
 His tribe, become a proverb in men's mouths,
 Breaking my high pact of companionship
 With those who graciously bestowed on me
 The very opportunities I turn
 Against them! Let me not see Djabal now!

An. The Prefect also comes!

Loys. [Aside.] Him let me see,
 Not Djabal! Him, degraded at a word,
 To soothe me, — to attest belief in me —
 And after, Djabal! Yes, ere I return
 To her, the Nuncio's vow shall have destroyed
 This heart's rebellion, and coerced this will Forever.

Anael, not before the vows
Irrevocably fix me . . .

Let me fly!

The Prefect, or I lose myself forever!

[Goes

An. Yes, I am calm now; just one way remains —
One, to attest my faith in him: for, see,
I were quite lost else: Loys, Djabal, stand
On either side — two men! I balance looks
And words, give Djabal a man's preference,
No more. In Djabal, Hakeem is absorbed!
And for a love like this, the God who saves
My race, selects me for his bride? One way! —

Enter DJABAL.

Dja. [to himself.] No moment is to waste then; 't is resolved
If Khalil may be trusted to lead back
My Druses, and if Loys can be lured
Out of the Isle — if I procure his silence,
Or promise never to return at least, —
All's over. Even now my bark awaits:
I reach the next wild islet and the next,
And lose myself beneath the sun forever.
And now, to Anael!

An. Djabal, I am thine!

Dja. Mine? Djabal's? — As if Hakeem had not been?

An. Not Djabal's? Say first, do you read my thought?
Why need I speak, if you can read my thought?

Dja. I do not, I have said a thousand times.

An. (My secret's safe, I shall surprise him yet!)
Djabal, I knew your secret from the first:
Djabal, when first I saw you . . . (by our porch
You leant, and pressed the tinkling veil away,
And one fringe fell behind your neck — I see!)
. . . I knew you were not human, for I said
"This dim secluded house where the sea beats
Is heaven to me — my people's huts are hell
To them; this august form will follow me,
Mix with the waves his voice will, — I have him;
And they, the Prefect! Oh, my happiness
Rounds to the full whether I choose or no!
His eyes met mine, he was about to speak,
His hand grew damp — surely he meant to say
He let me love him: in that moment's bliss
I shall forget my people pine for home —
They pass and they repass with pallid eyes!"
I vowed at once a certain vow; this vow —
Not to embrace you till my tribe was saved.
Embrace me!

Dja. [Apart.] And she loved me! Nought remained
But that! Nay, Anael, is the Prefect dead?

An. Ah, you reproach me! True, his death crowns all,
I know — or should know: and I would do much,
Believe! but, death! Oh, you, who have known death,
Would never doom the Prefect, were death fearful
As we report!

Death! — a fire curls within us
From the foot's palm, and fills up to the brain,
Up, out, then shatters the whole bubble-shell
Of flesh, perchance!

Death! — witness, I would die,
Whate'er death be, would venture now to die
For Khalil, for Maani — what for thee?
Nay but embrace me, Djabal, in assurance
My vow will not be broken, for I must
Do something to attest my faith in you,
Be worthy you!

Dja. [avoiding her.] I come for that — to say
Such an occasion is at hand: 't is like
I leave you — that we part, my Anael, — part
Forever!

An. We part? Just so! I have succumbed, —
I am, he thinks, unworthy — and nought less
Will serve than such approval of my faith.
Then, we part not! Remains there no way short
Of that? Oh not that!

Death! — yet a hurt bird
Died in my hands; its eyes filmed — “Nay, it sleeps,”
I said, “will wake to-morrow well:” ’t was dead.

Dja. I stand here and time fleets. Anael — I come
To bid a last farewell to you: perhaps
We never meet again. But, ere the Prefect
Arrive . . .

Enter KHALIL, breathlessly.

Kha. He's here! The Prefect! Twenty guards,
No more — no sign he dreams of danger. All Awaits thee only. Ayoub, Karshook, keep
Their posts — wait but the deed's accomplishment
To join us with thy Druses to a man.
Still holds his course the Nuncio — near and near
The fleet from Candia steering.

Dja. [Aside.] All is lost!
— Or won?

Kha. And I have laid the sacred robe,
The sword, the head-tiar, at the porch — the place
Commanded. Thou wilt hear the Prefect's trumpet.

Dja. Then I keep Anael, — him then, past recall,
I slay — 't is forced on me! As I began
I must conclude — so be it!

Kha. For the rest,
Save Loys, our foe's solitary sword,
All is so safe that . . . I will ne'er entreat
Thy post again of thee: though danger none,
There must be glory only meet for thee
In slaying the Prefect!

An. [Aside.] And 't is now that Djabal
Would leave me! — in the glory meet for him!

Dja. As glory, I would yield the deed to you
Or any Druse; what peril there may be,
I keep. [Aside.] All things conspire to hound me on!
Not now, my soul, draw back, at least! Not now!
The course is plain, how'er obscure all else.
Once offer this tremendous sacrifice,
Prevent what else will be irreparable,
Secure these transcendental helps, regain
The Cedars — then let all dark clear itself!
I slay him!

Kha. Anael, and no part for us!
[To Dja.] Hast thou possessed her with . . .

Dja. [to AN.] Whom speak you to?
What is it you behold there? Nay, this smile
Turns stranger. Shudder you? The man must die,
As thousands of our race have died through him.
One blow, and I discharge his weary soul
From the flesh that pollutes it! Let him fill
Straight some new expiatory form, of earth
Or sea, the reptile or some aëry thing:
What is there in his death?

An. My brother said,
Is there no part in it for us?

Dja. For Khalil, —
The trumpet will announce the Nuncio's entry;
Here, I shall find the Prefect hastening
In the Pavilion to receive him — here
I slay the Prefect; meanwhile Ayob leads
The Nuncio with his guards within: once these Secured in the outer hall, bid Ayob bar
Entry or egress till I give the sign
Which waits the landing of the argosies
You will announce to me: this double sign
That justice is performed and help arrived,
When Ayob shall receive, but not before,

Let him throw open the palace doors, admit
The Druses to behold their tyrant, ere
We leave forever this detested spot.
Go, Khalil, hurry all! No pause, no pause!
Whirl on the dream, secure to wake anon!

Kha. What sign? and who the bearer?

Dja. Who shall show
My ring, admit to Ayoob. How she stands!
Have I not . . . I must have some task for her.
Anael, not that way! 'Tis the Prefect's chamber!
Anael, keep you the ring — give you the sign!
(It holds her safe amid the stir.) You will Be faithful?

An. [taking the ring.] I would fain be worthy. Hark!

[Trumpet without.]

Kha. He comes!

Dja. And I too come.

An. One word, but one!

Say, shall you be exalted at the deed?
Then? On the instant?

Dja. I exalted? What?

He, there — we, thus — our wrongs revenged, our tribe
Set free? Oh, then shall I, assure yourself,
Shall you, shall each of us, be in his death
Exalted!

Kha. He is here!

Dja. Away — away! [They go.]

Enter the PREFECT with Guards, and LOYS.

The Prefect [to Guards.] Back, I say, to the galley every guard!

That's my sole care now; see each bench retains
Its complement of rowers; I embark
O' the instant, since this Knight will have it so.
Alas me! Could you have the heart, my Loys!
[To a Guard who whispers.] Oh, bring the holy Nuncio here forthwith!

[The Guards go.]

Loys, a rueful sight, confess, to see
The gray discarded Prefect leave his post,
With tears i' the eye! So, you are Prefect now?
You depose me — you succeed me? Ha, ha!

Loys. And dare you laugh, whom laughter less becomes
Than yesterday's forced meekness we beheld . . .

Pref. — When you so eloquently pleaded, Loys,
For my dismissal from the post? Ah, meek
With cause enough, consult the Nuncio else!

And wish him the like meekness : for so stanch
 A servant of the church can scarce have bought
 His share in the Isle, and paid for it, hard pieces !
 You 've my successor to condole with, Nuncio !
 I shall be safe by then i' the galley, Loys !

Loys. You make as you would tell me you rejoice
 To leave your scene of . . .

Pref. Trade in the dear Druses ?
 Blood and sweat traffic ? Spare what yesterday
 We heard enough of ! Drove I in the Isle
 A profitable game ? Learn wit, my son,
 Which you 'll need shortly ! Did it never breed
 Suspicion in you, all was not pure profit,
 When I, the insatiate . . . and so forth — was bent
 On having a partaker in my rule ?
 Why did I yield this Nuncio half the gain,
 If not that I might also shift — what on him ?
 Half of the peril, Loys !

Loys. Peril ?

Pref. Hark you !
 I'd love you if you 'd let me — this for reason,
 You save my life at price of . . . well, say risk
 At least, of yours. I came a long time since
 To the Isle ; our Hospitallers bade me tame
 These savage wizards, and reward myself —

Loys. The Knights who so repudiate your crime ?

Pref. Loys, the Knights ! we doubtless understood
 Each other ; as for trusting to reward
 From any friend beside myself . . . no, no !
 I clutched mine on the spot, when it was sweet,
 And I had taste for it. I felt these wizards
 Alive — was sure they were not on me, only
 When I was on them : but with age comes caution :
 And stinging pleasures please less and sting more.
 Year by year, fear by fear ! The girls were brighter
 Than ever ('faith, there 's yet one Anael left,
 I set my heart upon — Oh, prithee, let
 That brave new sword lie still ! ) — These joys looked brighter,
 But silenter the town, too, as I passed.
 With this alcove's delicious memories
 Began to mingle visions of gaunt fathers,
 Quick-eyed sons, fugitives from the mine, the oar,
 Stealing to catch me. Brief, when I began
 To quake with fear — (I think I hear the Chapter
 Solicited to let me leave, now all
 Worth staying for was gained and gone ! ) — I say,

Just when, for the remainder of my life,
 All methods of escape seemed lost — that then
 Up should a young hot-headed Loys spring,
 Talk very long and loud, — in fine, compel
 The Knights to break their whole arrangement, have me
 Home for pure shame — from this safehold of mine
 Where but ten thousand Druses seek my life,
 To my wild place of banishment, San Gines
 By Murcia, where my three fat manors lying,
 Purchased by gains here and the Nuncio's gold,
 Are all I have to guard me, — that such fortune
 Should fall to me, I hardly could expect!
 Therefore I say, I'd love you!

Loys. Can it be?

I play into your hands then? Oh no, no!
 The Venerable Chapter, the Great Order
 Sunk o' the sudden into fiends of the pit?
 But I will back — will yet unveil you!

Pref. Me?

To whom? — perhaps Sir Galeas, who in Chapter
 Shook his white head thrice — and some dozen times
 My hand next morning shook, for value paid!
 To that Italian saint, Sir Cosimo? —
 Indignant at my wringing year by year
 A thousand bezants from the coral divers,
 As you recounted; felt the saint aggrieved?
 Well might he — I allowed for his half-share
 Merely one hundred! To Sir . . .

Loys. See! you dare

Inculcate the whole Order; yet should I,
 A youth, a sole voice, have the power to change
 Their evil way, had they been firm in it?
 Answer me!

Pref. Oh, the son of Bretagne's Duke,

And that son's wealth, the father's influence, too,
 And the young arm, we'll even say, my Loys,
 — The fear of losing or diverting these
 Into another channel, by gainsaying
 A novice too abruptly, could not influence
 The Order! You might join, for aught they cared,
 Their red-cross rivals of the Temple! Well,
 I thank you for my part, at all events.
 Stay here till they withdraw you! You'll inhabit
 My palace — sleep, perchance, in the alcove
 Whither I go to meet our holy friend.
 Good! and now disbelieve me if you can, —

This is the first time for long years I enter
Thus [lifts the arras] without feeling just as if I lifted
The lid up of my tomb.

Loys. They share his crime!
God's punishment will overtake you yet.

Pref. Thank you it does not! Pardon this last flash:
I bear a sober visage presently
With the disinterested Nuncio here —
His purchase-money safe at Murcia, too!
Let me repeat — for the first time, no draught
Coming as from a sepulchre salutes me.
When we next meet, this folly may have passed,
We'll hope. Ha, ha! [Goes through the arras]

Loys. Assure me but . . . he's gone!
He could not lie. Then what have I escaped,
I, who had so nigh given up happiness
Forever, to be linked with him and them!
Oh, opportunist of discoveries! I
Their Knight? I utterly renounce them all!
Hark! What, he meets by this the Nuncio? yes,
The same hyæna groan-like laughter! Quick —
To Djabal! I am one of them at last,
These simple-hearted Druses — Anael's tribe!
Djabal! She's mine at last. Djabal, I say! [Goes.]

ACT IV.

Enter DJABAL.

Dja. Let me but slay the Prefect. The end now!
To-morrow will be time enough to pry
Into the means I took: suffice, they served,
Ignoble as they were, to hurl revenge
True to its object. [Seeing the robe, etc. disposed.]

Mine should never so
Have hurried to accomplishment! Thee, Djabal,
Far other mood befitted! Calm the Robe
Should clothe this doom's awarder!

[Taking the robe.] Shall I dare
Assume my nation's Robe? I am at least
A Druse again, chill Europe's policy
Drops from me: I dare take the Robe. Why not
The Tiar? I rule the Druses, and what more
Betokens it than rule? — yet — yet —

[Lays down the tiar
[Footsteps in the alcove.] He comes! [Taking the sword]

If the Sword serve, let the Tiar lie! So, feet
 Clogged with the blood of twenty years can fall
 Thus lightly! Round me, all ye ghosts! He 'll lift . . .
 Which arm to push the arras wide? — or both?
 Stab from the neck down to the heart — there stay!
 Near he comes — nearer — the next footstep! Now!

[As he dashes aside the arras, ANAEL is discovered.]

Ha! Anael! Nay, my Anael, can it be?
 Heard you the trumpet? I must slay him here,
 And here you ruin all. Why speak you not?
 Anael, the Prefect comes! [ANAEL screams.] So slow to feel
 'T is not a sight for you to look upon?
 A moment's work — but such work! Till you go,
 I must be idle — idle, I risk all!

[Pointing to her hair.]

Those locks are well, and you are beauteous thus,
 But with the dagger 't is, I have to do!

An. With mine!

Dja. Blood — Anael?

An.

Djabal, 't is thy deed!

It must be! I had hoped to claim it mine —
 Be worthy thee — but I must needs confess
 'T was not I, but thyself . . . not I have . . . Djabal!
 Speak to me!

Dja. Oh, my punishment!

An.

Speak to me

While I can speak! touch me, despite the blood!
 When the command passed from thy soul to mine,
 I went, fire leading me, muttering of thee,
 And the approaching exaltation, — “make
 One sacrifice!” I said, — and he sat there,
 Bade me approach; and, as I did approach,
 Thy fire with music burst into my brain.
 'T was but a moment's work, thou saidst — perchance
 It may have been so! Well, it is thy deed!

Dja. It is my deed!

An.

His blood all this! — this! and . . .

And more! Sustain me, Djabal! Wait not — now
 Let flash thy glory! Change thyself and me!
 It must be! Ere the Druses flock to us!
 At least confirm me! Djabal, blood gushed forth —
 He was our tyrant — but I looked he 'd fall
 Prone as asleep — why else is death called sleep?
 Sleep? He bent o'er his breast! 'T is sin, I know, —
 Punish me, Djabal, but wilt thou let him?
 Be it thou that punishest, not he — who creeps

On his red breast — is here! 'T is the small groan
Of a child — no worse! Bestow the new life, then!
Too swift it cannot be, too strange, surpassing!

[Following him up as he retreats

Now! Change us both! Change me and change thou!

Dja. [sinks on his knees.]

Thus!

Behold my change! You have done nobly. I! —

An. Can Hakeem kneel?

Dja.

No Hakeem, and scarce Djabal!

I have dealt falsely, and this woe is come.

No — hear me ere scorn blast me! Once and ever,

The deed is mine! Oh think upon the past!

An. [to herself.] Did I strike once, or twice, or many times?

Dja. I came to lead my tribe where, bathed in glooms,

Doth Bahumid the Renovator sleep:

Anael, I saw my tribe: I said, "Without

A miracle this cannot be" — I said

"Be there a miracle!" — for I saw you!

An. His head lies south the portal!

Dja.

— Weighed with this

The general good, how could I choose my own?

What matter was my purity of soul?

Little by little I engaged myself —

Heaven would accept me for its instrument,

I hoped: I said Heaven had accepted me!

An. Is it this blood breeds dreams in me? — Who said

You were not Hakeem? And your miracles —

The fire that plays innocuous round your form?

[Again changing her whole manner.

Ah, thou wouldst try me — thou art Hakeem still!

Dja. Woe — woe! As if the Druses of the Mount (Scarce Arabs, even there, but here, in the Isle,

Beneath their former selves) should comprehend

The subtle lore of Europe! A few secrets

That would not easily affect the meanest

Of the crowd there, could wholly subjugate

The best of our poor tribe. Again that eye?

An. [after a pause springs to his neck.] Djabal, in this there can be no deceit!

Why, Djabal, were you human only, — think,

Maani is but human, Khalil human,

Loys is human even — did their words

Haunt me, their looks pursue me? Shame on you

So to have tried me! Rather, shame on me

So to need trying! Could I, with the Prefect

And the blood, there — could I see only you?

— Hang by your neck over this gulf of blood?
 Speak, I am saved! Speak, Djabal! Am I saved?

[As DJABAL slowly unclasps her arms, and puts her silently from him,

Hakeem would save me! Thou art Djabal! Crouch!
 Bow to the dust, thou basest of our kind!
 The pile of thee, I reared up to the cloud —
 Full, midway, of our fathers' trophied tombs,
 Based on the living rock, devoured not by
 The unstable desert's jaws of sand, — falls prone!
 Fire, music, quenched: and now thou liest there
 A ruin, obscene creatures will moan through!
 — Let us come, Djabal!

Dja. Whither come?

An. At once —

Lest so it grow intolerable. Come!
 Will I not share it with thee? Best at once!
 So, feel less pain! Let them deride, — thy tribe
 Now trusting in thee, — Loys shall deride!
 Come to them, hand in hand, with me!

Dja. Where come?

An. Where? — to the Druses thou hast wronged! Confess,
 Now that the end is gained — (I love thee now —)
 That thou hast so deceived them — (perchance love thee
 Better than ever!) Come, receive their doom
 Of infamy! Oh, best of all I love thee!
 Shame with the man, no triumph with the God,
 Be mine! Come!

Dja. Never! More shame yet? and why?

Why? You have called this deed mine — it is mine!
 And with it I accept its circumstance.
 How can I longer strive with fate? The past
 Is past: my false life shall henceforth show true.
 Hear me! The argosies touch land by this;
 They bear us to fresh scenes and happier skies:
 What if we reign together? — if we keep
 Our secret for the Druses' good? — by means
 Of even their superstition, plant in them
 New life? I learn from Europe: all who seek Man's good must awe man, by such means as these.
 We two will be divine to them — we are!
 All great works in this world spring from the ruins
 Of greater projects — ever, on our earth,
 Babels men block out, Babylons they build.
 I wrest the weapon from your hand! I claim
 The deed! Retire! You have my ring — you bar

All access to the Nuncio till the forces
From Venice land !

An. Thou wilt feign Hakeem then ?

Dja. [putting the Tiara of Hakeem on his head.] And from this moment that I dare ope wide
Eyes that till now refused to see, begins
My true dominion : for I know myself,
And what am I to personate. No word ?

[ANAEL goes.

'Tis come on me at last ! His blood on her —
What memories will follow that ! Her eye,
Her fierce distorted lip and ploughed black brow !
Ah, fool ! Has Europe then so poorly tamed
The Syrian blood from out thee ? Thou, presume
To work in this foul earth by means not foul ?
Scheme, as for heaven, — but, on the earth, be glad
If a least ray like heaven's be left thee !

Thus

I shall be calm — in readiness — no way
Surprised.

[A noise without.

This should be Khalil and my Druses.
Venice is come then ! Thus I grasp thee, sword !
Druses, 'tis Hakeem saves you ! In ! Behold
Your Prefect !

Enter LOYS. DJABAL hides the khandjar in his robe.

Loys. Oh, well found, Djabal ! — but no time for words.
You know who waits there ? [Pointing to the alcove.

Well ! — and that 't is there

He meets the Nuncio ? Well ? Now, a surprise —
He there —

Dja. I know —

Loys. — is now no mortal's lord,
Is absolutely powerless — call him, dead —
He is no longer Prefect — you are Prefect !
Oh, shrink not ! I do nothing in the dark,
Nothing unworthy Breton blood, believe !
I understood at once your urgency
That I should leave this isle for Rhodes ; I felt
What you were loath to speak — your need of help.
I have fulfilled the task, that earnestness
Imposed on me : have, face to face, confronted
The Prefect in full Chapter, charged on him
The enormities of his long rule ; he stood
Mute, offered no defence, no crime denied.
On which, I spoke of you, and of your tribe,
Your faith so like our own, and all you urged

Of old to me — I spoke, too, of your goodness,
 Your patience — brief, I hold henceforth the Isle
 In charge, am nominally lord, — but you,
 You are associated in my rule —
 Are the true Prefect! Ay, such faith had they
 In my assurance of your loyalty
 (For who insults an imbecile old man?)
 That we assume the Prefecture this hour!
 You gaze at me? Hear greater wonders yet —
 I cast down all the fabric I have built!
 These Knights, I was prepared to worship . . . but
 Of that another time; what's now to say,
 Is — I shall never be a Knight! Oh, Djabal,
 Here first I throw all prejudice aside,
 And call you brother! I am Druse like you:
 My wealth, my friends, my power, are wholly yours,
 Your people's, which is now my people: for
 There is a maiden of your tribe, I love —
 She loves me — Khalil's sister —

Dja. Anael?

Loys. Start you?

Seems what I say, unknighly? Thus it chanced:
 When first I came, a novice, to the isle . . .

Enter one of the NUNCIO'S Guards from the alcove.

Guard. Oh horrible! Sir Loys! Here is Loys!

[Pointing to DJABAL.] Secure him, bind him — this is he!

[They surround DJABAL.

Loys. Madmen — what is 't you do? Stand from my friend,
 And tell me!

Guard. Thou canst have no part in this —

Surely no part! But slay him not! The Nuncio

Commanded, slay him not!

Loys. Speak, or . . .

Guard. The Prefect

Lies murdered there by him thou dost embrace.

Loys. By Djabal? Miserable fools! How Djabal?

[A Guard lifts DJABAL'S robe; DJABAL flings down the khandjar.

Loys. [after a pause.] Thou hast received some insult worse than all,

Some outrage not to be endured —

[To the Guards.] Stand back!

He is my friend — more than my friend! Thou hast

Slain him upon that provocation!

Guard. No!

No provocation! 'T is a long devised

Conspiracy : the whole tribe is involved.
 He is their Khalif — 't is on that pretence —
 Their mighty Khalif who died long ago,
 And now comes back to life and light again!
 All is just now revealed, I know not how,
 By one of his confederates — who, struck
 With horror at this murder, first apprised
 The Nuncio. As 't was said, we find this Djabal
 Here where we take him.

Dja. [Aside.] Who broke faith with me ?

Loys. [to DJABAL.] Hear'st thou ? Speak ! Till thou speak
 I keep off these,

Or die with thee. Deny this story ! Thou
 A Khalif, an impostor ? Thou, my friend,
 Whose tale was of an inoffensive tribe,
 With . . . but thou know'st — on that tale's truth I pledged
 My faith before the Chapter : what art thou ?

Dja. Loys, I am as thou hast heard. All's true !
 No more concealment ! As these tell thee, all
 Was long since planned. Our Druses are enough
 To crush this handful : the Venetians land
 Even now in our behalf. Loys, we part !
 Thou, serving much, wouldst fain have served me more ;
 It might not be. I thank thee. As thou hearest,
 We are a separated tribe : farewell !

Loys. Oh where will truth be found now ? Canst thou so
 Belie the Druses ? Do they share thy crime ?
 Those thou professest of our Breton stock,
 Are partners with thee ? Why, I saw but now
 Khalil, my friend — he spoke with me — no word
 Of this ! and Anael — whom I love, and who Loves me — she spoke no word of this !

Dja.

Poor boy !

Anael, who loves thee ? Khalil, fast thy friend ?
 We, offsets from a wandering Count of Dreux ?
 No : older than the oldest, princelier
 Than Europe's princeliest race, our tribe : enough
 For thine, that on our simple faith we found
 A monarchy to shame your monarchies
 At their own trick and secret of success.
 The child of this our tribe shall laugh upon
 The palace-step of him whose life ere night
 Is forfeit, as that child shall know, and yet
 Shall laugh there ! What, we Druses wait forsooth
 The kind interposition of a boy
 — Can only save ourselves if thou concede ?

— Khalil admire thee? He is my right hand,
My delegate! — Anael accept thy love?
She is my bride!

Loys. Thy bride? She one of them?

Dja. My bride!

Loys. And she retains her glorious eyes!

She, with those eyes, has shared this miscreant's guilt!

Ah — who but she directed me to find

Djabal within the Prefect's chamber? Khalil

Bade me seek Djabal there, too! All is truth!

What spoke the Prefect worse of them than this?

Did the Church ill to institute long since

Perpetual warfare with such serpentry?

And I — have I desired to shift my part,

Evade my share in her design? 'T is well!

Dja. Loys, I wronged thee — but unwittingly:

I never thought there was in thee a virtue

That could attach itself to what thou deemest

A race below thine own. I wronged thee, Loys,

But that is over: all is over now,

Save the protection I ensure against

My people's anger. By their Khalif's side,

Thou art secure and may'st depart: so, come!

Loys. Thy side? I take protection at thy hand?

Enter other Guards.

Guards. Fly with him! Fly, Sir Loys! 'T is too true!

And only by his side thou may'st escape!

The whole tribe is in full revolt: they flock

About the palace — will be here — on thee —

And there are twenty of us, we the Guards

O' the Nuncio, to withstand them! Even we

Had stayed to meet our death in ignorance,

But that one Druse, a single faithful Druse,

Made known the horror to the Nuncio. Fly!

The Nuncio stands aghast. At least let us

Escape thy wrath, O Hakeem! We are nought

In thy tribe's persecution! [To Loys.] Keep by him!

They hail him Hakeem, their dead Prince returned:

He is their God, they shout, and at his beck

Are life and death!

[Loys springing at the khandjar DJABAL had thrown down, seizes him by the throat.]

Thus by his side am I!

Thus I resume my knighthood and its warfare,

Thus end thee, miscreant, in thy pride of place!

Thus art thou caught. Without, thy dupes may cluster.

Friends aid thee, foes avoid thee, — thou art Hakeem,
 How say they? — God art thou! but also here
 Is the least, youngest, meanest the Church calls
 Her servant, and his single arm avails
 To aid her as she lists. I rise, and thou
 Art crushed! Hordes of thy Druses flock without:
 Here thou hast me, who represent the Cross,
 Honor and Faith, 'gainst Hell, Mahound and thee.
 Die! [DJABAL remains calm.] Implore my mercy, Hakeem, that my scorn
 May help me! Nay, I cannot ply thy trade;
 I am no Druse, no stabber: and thine eye,
 Thy form, are too much as they were — my friend
 Had such! Speak! Beg for mercy at my foot!

[DJABAL still silent.

Heaven could not ask so much of me — not, sure,
 So much! I cannot kill him so!

[After a pause.] Thou art

Strong in thy cause, then — dost outbrave us, then.
 Heardst thou that one of thine accomplices,
 Thy very people, has accused thee? Meet
 His charge! Thou hast not even slain the Prefect
 As thy own vile creed warrants. Meet that Druse!
 Come with me and disprove him — be thou tried
 By him, nor seek appeal! Promise me this,
 Or I will do God's office! What, shalt thou
 Boast of assassins at thy beck, yet truth
 Want even an executioner? Consent,
 Or I will strike — look in my face — I will!

Dja. Give me again my khandjar, if thou darest!

[Loys gives it

Let but one Druse accuse me, and I plunge
 This home. A Druse betray me? Let us go!

[Aside.] Who has betrayed me? [Shouts without.

Hearest thou? I hear

No plainer than long years ago I heard
 That shout — but in no dream now! They return!
 Wilt thou be leader with me, Loys? Well!

ACT V.

The uninitiated Druses, filling the hall tumultuously, and speaking together.

Here flock we, obeying the summons. Lo, Hakeem hath appeared, and the Prefect is dead, and we return to Lebanon!

My manufacture of goats' fleece must, I doubt, soon fall away there. Come, old Nasif — link thine arm in mine — we fight, if needs be. Come, what is a great fight-word? — “Lebanon?” (My daughter — my daughter!) — But is Khalil to have the office of Hamza? — Nay, rather, if he be wise, the monopoly of henna and cloves. Where is Hakeem? — The only prophet I ever saw, prophesied at Cairo once, in my youth: a little black Copht, dressed all in black too, with a great stripe of yellow cloth flapping down behind him like the back-fin of a water-serpent. Is this he? Biamrallah! Biamreh! HAKEEM!

Enter the NUNCIO, with Guards.

Nuncio [to his Attendants]. Hold both, the sorcerer and this accomplice

Ye talk of, that accuseth him! And tell
 Sir Loys he is mine, the Church's hope:
 Bid him approve himself our Knight indeed!
 Lo, this black disemboguing of the Isle!
 [To the Druses.] Ah children, what a sight for these old eyes
 That kept themselves alive this voyage through
 To smile their very last on you! I came
 To gather one and all you wandering sheep
 Into my fold, as though a father came . . .
 As though, in coming, a father should . . .

[To his Guards.] (Ten, twelve
 — Twelve guards of you, and not an outlet? None?
 The wizards stop each avenue? Keep close!)

[To the Druses.] As if one came to a son's house, I say,
 So did I come — no guard with me — to find . . .
 Alas — alas!

A Druse. Who is the old man?

Another. Oh, ye are to shout!

Children, he styles you.

Druses. Ay, the Prefect's slain!

Glory to the Khalif, our Father!

Nuncio. Even so!

I find (ye prompt aright) your father slain!
 While most he plotted for your good, that father
 (Alas, how kind, ye never knew) — lies slain!

[Aside.] (And hell's worm gnaw the glozing knave — with me,
 For being duped by his cajoleries!

Are these the Christians? These the docile crew
 My bezants went to make me Bishop o'er?)

[To his Attendants, who whisper.] What say ye does this wizard style himself?

Hakeem? Biamrallah? The third Fatemite?
 What is this jargon? He — the insane Khalif,

Dead near three hundred years ago, come back
In flesh and blood again?

Druses.

He mutters! Hear ye?

He is blaspheming Hakeem. The old man
Is our dead Prefect's friend. Tear him!

Nuncio.

Ye dare not!

I stand here with my five-and-seventy years,
The Patriarch's power behind me, God's above!
Those years have witnessed sin enough; ere now
Misguided men arose against their lords,
And found excuse; but ye, to be enslaved
By sorceries, cheats — alas! the same tricks, tried
On my poor children in this nook o' the earth,
Could triumph, that have been successively
Exploded, laughed to scorn, all nations through:
“Romaioi, Ioudaioi te kai proselutoi,
Cretes and Arabians,” — you are duped the last!
Said I, refrain from tearing me? I pray ye
Tear me! Shall I return to tell the Patriarch
That so much love was wasted — every gift
Rejected, from his benison I brought,
Down to the galley-full of bezants, sunk
An hour since at the harbor's mouth, by that . . .
That . . . never will I speak his hated name!
[To his Servants.] What was the name his fellow slip-fetter
Called their arch-wizard by? [They whisper.] Oh, Djabal was 't?

Druses. But how a sorcerer? false wherein?

Nuncio.

(Ay, Djabal!)

How false? Ye know not, Djabal has confessed . . .
Nay, that by tokens found on him we learn . . .
What I sailed hither solely to divulge —
How by his spells the demons were allured
To seize you: not that these be aught save lies
And mere illusions. Is this clear? I say,
By measures such as these, he would have led you
Into a monstrous ruin: follow ye?
Say, shall ye perish for his sake, my sons?

Druses. Hark ye!

Nuncio.

— Be of one privilege amerced?

No! Infinite the Patriarch's mercies are!
No! With the Patriarch's license, still I bid
Tear him to pieces who misled you! Haste!

Druses. The old man's beard shakes, and his eyes are white fire! After all, I know nothing of Djabal beyond what Karshook says; he knows but what Khalil says, who knows just what Djabal says himself. Now, the little Copht Prophet, I saw at

Cairo in my youth, began by promising each bystander three full measures of wheat . . .

Enter KHALIL and the initiated Druses.

Kha. Venice and her deliverance are at hand:
Their fleet stands through the harbor! Hath he slain
The Prefect yet? Is Djabal's change come yet?

Nuncio. [to Attendants.] What's this of Venice? Who's this boy?

[Attendants whisper.] One Khalil?
Djabal's accomplice, Loys called, but now,
The only Druse, save Djabal's self, to fear?

[To the Druses.] I cannot hear ye with these aged ears:
Is it so? Ye would have my troops assist?

Doth he abet him in his sorceries?
Down with the cheat, guards, as my children bid!

[They spring at KHALIL; as he beats them back,
Stay! No more bloodshed! Spare deluded youth!
Whom seek'st thou? (I will teach him) — whom, my child?

Thou know'st not what these know, what these declare.
I am an old man as thou seest — have done

With life; and what should move me but the truth?
Art thou the only fond one of thy tribe?

'T is I interpret for thy tribe!

Kha. Oh, this
Is the expected Nuncio! Druses, hear —

Endure ye this? Unworthy to partake
The glory Hakeem gains you! While I speak,

The ships touch land: who makes for Lebanon?
They plant the winged lion in these halls!

Nuncio. [Aside.] If it be true! Venice? Oh, never true!
Yet Venice would so gladly thwart our Knights,

So fain get footing here, stand close by Rhodes!
Oh, to be duped this way!

Kha. Ere he appear
And lead you gloriously, repent, I say!

Nuncio. [Aside.] Nor any way to stretch the arch wizard stark

Ere the Venetians come? Cut off the head,
The trunk were easily stilled. [To the Druses.] He? Bring him forth!

Since so you needs will have it, I assent!
You'd judge him, say you, on the spot? — confound

The sorcerer in his very circle? Where's
Our short black-bearded sallow friend who swore

He'd earn the Patriarch's guerdon by one stab?
Bring Djabal forth at once!

Druses. Ay, bring him forth!
The Patriarch drives a trade in oil and silk,
And we're the Patriarch's children — true men, we!
Where is the glory? Show us all the glory!

Kha. You dare not so insult him! What, not see . . .
(I tell thee, Nuncio, these are uninstructed, Untrusted — they know nothing of our Khalif!)
— Not see that if he lets a doubt arise
'Tis but to give yourselves the chance of seeming
To have some influence in your own Return!
That all may say ye would have trusted him
Without the all-convincing glory — ay,
And did! Embrace the occasion, friends! For, think —
What wonder when his change takes place? But now
For your sakes, he should not reveal himself!
No — could I ask and have, I would not ask
The change yet!

Enter DJABAL and LOYS.

Spite of all, reveal thyself!

I had said, pardon them for me — for Anael —
For our sakes pardon these besotted men —
Ay, for thine own — they hurt not thee! Yet now
One thought swells in me and keeps down all else.
This Nuncio couples shame with thee, has called
Imposture thy whole course, all bitter things
Has said: he is but an old fretful man!
Hakeem — nay, I must call thee Hakeem now —
Reveal thyself! See! Where is Anael? See!

Loys. [to DJA.] Here are thy people! Keep thy word to me!

Dja. Who of my people hath accused me?

Nuncio.

So!

So this is Djabal, Hakeem, and what not?
A fit deed, Loys, for thy first Knight's day!
May it be augury of thy after-life!
Ever prove truncheon of the Church as now
That, Nuncio of the Patriarch, having charge
Of the Isle here, I claim thee [turning to DJA.] as these bid
me,
Forfeit for murder done thy lawful prince,
Thou conjurer that peep'st and mutterest!
Why should I hold thee from their hands? (Spells, children?
But hear how I dispose of all his spells!)
Thou art a prophet? — wouldst entice thy tribe
From me? — thou workest miracles? (Attend!
Let him but move me with his spells!) I, Nuncio . . .

Dja. . . . Which how thou camest to be, I say not now,
 Though I have also been at Stamboul, Luke!
 Ply thee with spells, forsooth! What need of spells?
 If Venice, in her Admiral's person, stoop
 To ratify thy compact with her foe,
 The Hospitallers, for this Isle — withdraw
 Her warrant of the deed which reinstates
 My people in their freedom, tricked away
 By him I slew, — refuse to convoy us
 To Lebanon and keep the Isle we leave —
 Then will be time to try what spells can do!
 Dost thou dispute the Republic's power?

Nuncio.

Lo ye!

He tempts me too, the wily exorcist!
 No! The renowned Republic was and is
 The Patriarch's friend: 't is not for courting Venice
 That I — that these implore thy blood of me!
 Lo ye, the subtle miscerant! Ha, so subtle?
 Ye, Druses, hear him! Will ye be deceived?
 How he evades me! Where's the miracle
 He works? I bid him to the proof — fish up
 Your galley full of bezants that he sank!
 That were a miracle! One miracle!
 Enough of trifling, for it chafes my years.
 I am the Nuncio, Druses! I stand forth
 To save you from the good Republic's rage
 When she shall find her fleet was summoned here
 To aid the mummeries of a knave like this!

[As the Druses hesitate, his Attendants whisper.

Ah, well suggested! Why, we hold the while
 One who, his close confederate till now,
 Confesses Djabal at the last a cheat,
 And every miracle a cheat! Who throws me
 His head? I make three offers, once I offer, —
 And twice . . .

Dja. Let who moves perish at my foot!

Kha. Thanks, Hakeem, thanks! Oh, Anael, Maani,
 Why tarry they?

Druses. [to each other.] He can! He can! Live fire —
 [To the NUNCIO.] I say he can, old man! Thou know'st him not.

Live fire like that thou seest now in his eyes,
 Plays fawning round him. See! The change begins!
 All the brow lightens as he lifts his arm!
 Look not at me! It was not I!

Dja.

What Druse

Accused me, as he saith? I bid each bone
Crumble within that Druse! None, Loys, none
Of my own people, as thou said'st, have raised
A voice against me.

Nuncio. [Aside.] Venice to come! Death!

Dja. [continuing.] Confess and go unscathed, however false!
Seest thou my Druses, Luke? I would submit
To thy pure malice did one Druse confess!
How said I, Loys?

Nuncio. [to his Attendants who whisper.] Ah, ye counsel so?
[Aloud.] Bring in the witness, then, who, first of all,
Disclosed the treason! Now I have thee, wizard!
Ye hear that? If one speaks, he bids you tear him
Joint after joint: well then, one does speak! One,
Befooled by Djabal, even as yourselves,
But who hath voluntarily proposed
To expiate, by confessing thus, the fault
Of having trusted him.

[They bring in a veiled Druse

Loys. Now, Djabal, now!

Nuncio. Friend, Djabal fronts thee! Make a ring, sons.
Speak!

Expose this Djabal — what he was, and how;
The wiles he used, the aims he cherished; all,
Explicitly as late 't was spoken to these
My servants: I absolve and pardon thee.

Loys. Thou hast the dagger ready, Djabal?

Dja. Speak,

Recrant!

Druses. Stand back, fool! farther! Suddenly
You shall see some huge serpent glide from under
The empty vest, or down will thunder crash!
Back, Khalil!

Kha. I go back? Thus go I back!

[To AN.] Unveil! Nay, thou shalt face the Khalif! Thus!

[He tears away ANAEL'S veil; DJABAL folds his arms and bows his head; the Druses fall back; LOYS springs from the side of DJABAL and the NUNCIO.

Loys. Then she was true — she only of them all!
True to her eyes — may keep those glorious eyes,
And now be mine, once again mine! Oh, Anael!
Dared I think thee a partner in his crime —
That blood could soil that hand? nay, 't is mine — Anael,
— Not mine? — Who offer thee before all these
My heart, my sword, my name — so thou wilt say

That Djabal, who affirms thou art his bride,
Lies — say but that he lies!

Dja. Thou, Anael?

Loys. Nay, Djabal, nay, one chance for me — the last!
Thou hast had every other; thou hast spoken
Days, nights, what falsehood listed thee — let me
Speak first now; I will speak now!

Nuncio. Loys, pause!

Thou art the Duke's son, Bretagne's choicest stock,
Loys of Dreux, God's sepulchre's first sword:
This wilt thou spit on, this degrade, this trample
To earth?

Loys. [to AN.] Who had foreseen that one day, Loys
Would stake these gifts against some other good
In the whole world? I give them thee! I would
My strong will might bestow real shape on them,
That I might see, with my own eyes, thy foot
Tread on their very neck! 'T is not by gifts
I put aside this Djabal: we will stand —
We do stand, see, two men! Djabal, stand forth!
Who's worth her, I or thou? I — who for Anael
Uprightly, purely kept my way, the long
True way — left thee each by-path, boldly lived
Without the lies and blood, — or thou, or thou?
Me! love me, Anael! Leave the blood and him!
[To DJA.] Now speak — now, quick on this that I have said, —
Thou with the blood, speak if thou art a man!

Dja. [to AN.] And was it thou betrayedst me? 'T is well!
I have deserved this of thee, and submit.

Nor 't is much evil thou inflictest: life
Ends here. The cedars shall not wave for us:
For there was crime, and must be punishment.
See fate! By thee I was seduced, by thee
I perish: yet do I — can I repent?
I with my Arab instinct, thwarted ever
By my Frank policy, — and with, in turn,
My Frank brain, thwarted by my Arab heart —
While these remained in equipoise, I lived
— Nothing; had either been predominant,
As a Frank schemer or an Arab mystic,
I had been something; — now, each has destroyed
The other — and behold, from out their crash,
A third and better nature rises up —
My mere man's-nature! And I yield to it:
I love thee, I who did not love before!

An. Djabal!

Dja. It seemed love, but it was not love :
 How could I love while thou adoredst me ?
 Now thou despisest, art above me so
 Immeasurably ! Thou, no other, doomest
 My death now ; this my steel shall execute
 Thy judgment ; I shall feel thy hand in it !
 Oh, luxury to worship, to submit,
 Transcended, doomed to death by thee !

An.

My Djabal !

Dja. Dost hesitate ? I force thee then ! Approach,
 Druses ! for I am out of reach of fate ;
 No further evil waits me. Speak the doom !
 Hear, Druses, and hear, Nuncio, and hear, Loys !

An. HAKEEM !

[She falls dead.

[The Druses scream, grovelling before him.

Druses. Ah Hakeem ! — not on me thy wrath !
 Biamrallah, pardon ! never doubted I !
 Ha, dog, how sayest thou ?

[They surround and seize the NUNCIO and his Guards. LOYS flings himself upon the body of ANAEL, on which DJABAL continues to gaze as stupefied.

Nuncio.

Caitiffs ! Have ye eyes ?

Whips, racks should teach you ! What, his fools ? his dupes ?
 Leave me ! unhand me !

Kha. [approaching DJABAL timidly.] Save her for my sake !

She was already thine ; she would have shared
 To-day thine exaltation : think, this day
 Her hair was plaited thus because of thee !
 Yes, feel the soft bright hair — feel !

Nuncio. [struggling with those who have seized him.] What,
 because

His leman dies for him ? You think it hard
 To die ? Oh, would you were at Rhodes, and choice
 Of deaths should suit you !

Kha. [bending over ANAEL'S body.] Just restore her life !
 So little does it ! there — the eyelids tremble !
 'T was not my breath that made them : and the lips
 Move of themselves. I could restore her life !
 Hakeem, we have forgotten — have presumed
 On our free converse : we are better taught.
 See, I kiss — how I kiss thy garment's hem
 For her ! She kisses it — Oh, take her deed
 In mine ! Thou dost believe now, Anael ? — See,
 She smiles ! Were her lips open o'er the teeth
 Thus, when I spoke first ? She believes in thee !

Go not without her to the cedars, lord!
 Or leave us both — I cannot go alone!
 I have obeyed thee, if I dare so speak:
 Hath Hakeem thus forgot all Djabal knew?
 Thou feelest then my tears fall hot and fast
 Upon thy hand, and yet thou speakest not?
 Ere the Venetian trumpet sound — ere thou
 Exalt thyself, O Hakeem! save thou her!

Nuncio. And the accursed Republic will arrive
 And find me in their toils — dead, very like,
 Under their feet!

What way — not one way yet
 To foil them? None? [Observing DJABAL'S face.]

What ails the Khalif? Ah,
 That ghastly face! A way to foil them yet!
 [To the Druses.] Look to your Khalif, Druses! Is that face
 God Hakeem's? Where is triumph, — where is . . . what
 Said he of exaltation — hath he promised
 So much to-day? Why then, exalt thyself!
 Cast off that husk, thy form, set free thy soul
 In splendor! Now, bear witness! here I stand —
 I challenge him exalt himself, and I
 Become, for that, a Druse like all of you!

The Druses. Exalt thyself! Exalt thyself, O Hakeem!

Dja. [advances.] I can confess now all from first to last.
 There is no longer shame for me. I am . . .

[Here the Venetian trumpet sounds: the Druses shout, DJABAL'S eye catches the expression of those about him, and, as the old dream comes back, he is again confident and inspired.]

— Am I not Hakeem? And ye would have crawled
 But yesterday within these impure courts
 Where now ye stand erect! Not grand enough?
 — What more could be conceded to such beasts
 As all of you, so sunk and base as you,
 Than a mere man? A man among such beasts
 Was miracle enough: yet him you doubt,
 Him you forsake, him fain would you destroy —
 With the Venetians at your gate, the Nuncio
 Thus — (see the baffled hypocrite!) and, best,
 The Prefect there!

Druses. No, Hakeem, ever thine!

Nuncio. He lies — and twice he lies — and thrice he lies!
 Exalt thyself, Mahound! Exalt thyself!

Dja. Druses! we shall henceforth be far away —
 Out of mere mortal ken — above the cedars —
 But we shall see ye go, hear ye return,
 Repeopling the old solitudes; — through thee,

My Khalil! Thou art full of me: I fill
 Thee full — my hands thus fill thee! Yestereve,
 — Nay, but this morn, I deemed thee ignorant
 Of all to do, requiring word of mine
 To teach it: now, thou hast all gifts in one,
 With truth and purity go other gifts,
 All gifts come clustering to that. Go, lead
 My people home whate'er betide!

[Turning to the Druses.] Ye take
 This Khalil for my delegate? To him
 Bow as to me? He leads to Lebanon —
 Ye follow?

Druses. We follow! Now exalt thyself!

Dja. [raises LOYS.] Then to thee, Loys! How I wronged thee, Loys!

Yet, wronged, no less thou shalt have full revenge,
 Fit for thy noble self, revenge — and thus.
 Thou, loaded with such wrongs, the princely soul,
 The first sword of Christ's sepulchre — thou shalt
 Guard Khalil and my Druses home again!
 Justice, no less, God's justice and no more,
 For those I leave! — to seeking this, devote
 Some few days out of thy Knight's brilliant life:
 And, this obtained them, leave their Lebanon,
 My Druses' blessing in thine ears — (they shall Bless thee with blessing sure to have its way)
 — One cedar-blossom in thy ducal cap,
 One thought of Anael in thy heart, — perchance,
 One thought of him who thus, to bid thee speed,
 His last word to the living speaks! This done,
 Resume thy course, and, first amidst the first
 In Europe, take my heart along with thee!
 Go boldly, go serenely, go augustly —
 What shall withstand thee then?

[He bends over ANAEL.] And last to thee!
 Ah, did I dream I was to have, this day,
 Exalted thee? A vain dream: hast thou not Won greater exaltation? What remains
 But press to thee, exalt myself to thee?
 Thus I exalt myself, set free my soul!

[He stabs himself. As he falls, supported by KHALIL and LOYS, the VENETIANS enter; the ADMIRAL advances.]

Admiral. God and St. Mark for Venice! Plant the Lion!

[At the clash of the planted standard, the Druses shout, and move tumultuously forward, LOYS drawing his sword.]

Dja. [leading them a few steps between KHALIL and LOYS.]
 On to the Mountain! At the Mountain, Druses! [Dies.]

PERSONS.

MILDRED TRESHAM.

AUSTIN TRESHAM.

GUENDOLEN TRESHAM.

HENRY, Earl Mertoun.

THOROLD, Earl Tresham.

GERARD, and other Retainers of Lord Tresham.

---

ACT I.

SCENE I. The interior of a lodge in LORD TRESHAM'S park. Many Retainers crowded at the window, supposed to command a view of the entrance to his mansion. GERARD, the Warrener, his back to a table on which are flagons, etc.

1*st* Ret. Ay, do! push, friends, and then you'll push down me!

— What for? Does any hear a runner's foot
Or a steed's trample or a coach-wheel's cry?
Is the Earl come or his least poursuivant?
But there's no breeding in a man of you
Save Gerard yonder: here's a half-place yet,
Old Gerard!

Ger. Save your courtesies, my friend.
Here is my place.

2*d* Ret. Now, Gerard, out with it!
What makes you sullen, this of all the days
I' the year? To-day that young rich bountiful
Handsome Earl Mertoun, whom alone they match
With our Lord Tresham through the country-side,
Is coming here in utmost bravery
To ask our master's sister's hand?

Ger.

What then?

2*d* Ret. What then? Why, you, she speaks to, if she meets
Your worship, smiles on as you hold apart

The boughs to let her through her forest walks,
 You, always favorite for your no-deserts,
 You've heard, these three days, how Earl Mertoun sues
 To lay his heart and house and broad lands too
 At Lady Mildred's feet: and while we squeeze
 Ourselves into a mousehole lest we miss
 One congee of the least page in his train,
 You sit o' one side — "there's the Earl," say I —
 "What then?" say you!

3d Ret. I'll wager he has let
 Both swans he tamed for Lady Mildred swim
 Over the falls and gain the river!

Ger. Ralph,
 Is not to-morrow my inspecting-day
 For you and for your hawks?

4th Ret. Let Gerard be!
 He's coarse-grained, like his carved black cross-bow stock.
 Ha, look now, while we squabble with him, look!
 Well done, now — is not this beginning, now,
 To purpose?

1st Ret. Our retainers look as fine —
 That's comfort. Lord, how Richard holds himself
 With his white staff! Will not a knave behind
 Prick him upright?

4th Ret. He's only bowing, fool!
 The Earl's man bent us lower by this much.

1st Ret. That's comfort. Here's a very cavalcade!

3d Ret. I don't see wherefore Richard, and his troop
 Of silk and silver varlets there, should find
 Their perfumed selves so indispensable
 On high days, holidays! Would it so disgrace
 Our family, if I, for instance, stood —
 In my right hand a cast of Swedish hawks,
 A leash of greyhounds in my left? —

Ger. — With Hugh
 The logman for supporter, in his right
 The bill-hook, in his left the brushwood-shears!

3d Ret. Out on you, crab! What next, what next? The Earl!

1st Ret. Oh Walter, groom, our horses, do they match
 The Earl's? Alas, that first pair of the six —
 They paw the ground — Ah Walter! and that brute
 Just on his haunches by the wheel!

6th Ret. Ay — Ay!
 You, Philip, are a special hand, I hear,
 At soups and sauces: what's a horse to you?

D' ye mark that beast they 've slid into the midst
So cunningly? — then, Philip, mark this further;
No leg has he to stand on!

1st Ret. No? That 's comfort.

2d Ret. Peace, Cook! The Earl descends. — Well, Gerard, see

The Earl at least! Come, there 's a proper man,
I hope! Why, Ralph, no falcon, Pole or Swede,
Has got a starrier eye.

3d Ret. His eyes are blue —

But leave my hawks alone!

4th Ret. So young, and yet

So tall and shapely!

5th Ret. Here 's Lord Tresham's self!

There now — there 's what a nobleman should be!

He 's older, graver, loftier, he 's more like

A House's head!

2d Ret. But you 'd not have a boy

— And what 's the Earl beside? — possess too soon

That stateliness?

1st Ret. Our master takes his hand —

Richard and his white staff are on the move —

Back fall our people — (tsh! — there 's Timothy

Sure to get tangled in his ribbon-ties,

And Peter's cursed rosette 's a-coming off!)

— At last I see our lord's back and his friend's;

And the whole beautiful bright company

Close round them — in they go! [Jumping down from the window-bench, and making for the table and its jugs.]

Good health, long life,

Great joy to our Lord Tresham and his House!

6th Ret. My father drove his father first to court,

After his marriage-day — ay, did he!

2d Ret. God bless

Lord Tresham, Lady Mildred, and the Earl!

Here, Gerard, reach your beaker!

Ger. Drink, my boys!

Don't mind me — all 's not right about me — drink!

2d Ret. [Aside.] He 's vexed, now, that he let the show escape!

[To GER.] Remember that the Earl returns this way.

Ger. That way?

2d Ret. Just so.

Ger. Then my way 's here. [Goes.]

2d Ret. Old Gerard

Will die soon — mind, I said it! He was used

To care about the pitifullest thing
 That touched the House's honor, not an eye
 But his could see wherein: and on a cause
 Of scarce a quarter this importance, Gerard
 Fairly had fretted flesh and bone away
 In cares that this was right, nor that was wrong,
 Such point decorous, and such square by rule —
 He knew such niceties, no herald more:
 And now — you see his humor: die he will!

2d Ret. God help him! Who's for the great servants'-hall
 To hear what's going on inside? They'd follow
 Lord Tresham into the saloon.

3d Ret. I! —

4th Ret. I! —

Leave Frank alone for catching, at the door,
 Some hint of how the parley goes inside!
 Prosperity to the great House once more!
 Here's the last drop!

1st Ret. Have at you! Boys, hurrah!

SCENE II. A saloon in the Mansion.

Enter LORD TRESHAM, LORD MERTOUN, AUSTIN, and GUENDOLEN

Tresh. I welcome you, Lord Mertoun, yet once more,
 To this ancestral roof of mine. Your name
 — Noble among the noblest in itself,
 Yet taking in your person, fame avers,
 New price and lustre, — (as that gem you wear,
 Transmitted from a hundred knightly breasts,
 Fresh chased and set and fixed by its last lord,
 Seems to re-kindle at the core) — your name
 Would win you welcome! —

Mer. Thanks!

Tresh. — But add to that,

The worthiness and grace and dignity
 Of your proposal for uniting both
 Our Houses even closer than respect
 Unites them now — add these, and you must grant
 One favor more, nor that the least, — to think
 The welcome I should give; — 't is given! My lord,
 My only brother, Austin — he's the king's.
 Our cousin, Lady Guendolen — betrothed
 To Austin: all are yours.

Mer. I thank you — less

For the expressed commendings which your seal,
 And only that, authenticates — forbids

My putting from me . . . to my heart I take
 Your praise . . . but praise less claims my gratitude,
 Than the indulgent insight it implies
 Of what must needs be uppermost with one
 Who comes, like me, with the bare leave to ask,
 In weighed and measured unimpassioned words,
 A gift, which, if as calmly 't is denied,
 He must withdraw, content upon his cheek,
 Despair within his soul. That I dare ask
 Firmly, near boldly, near with confidence
 That gift, I have to thank you. Yes, Lord Tresham,
 I love your sister — as you 'd have one love
 That lady . . . oh more, more I love her! Wealth,
 Rank, all the world thinks me, they 're yours, you know,
 To hold or part with, at your choice — but grant
 My true self, me without a rood of land,
 A piece of gold, a name of yesterday,
 Grant me that lady, and you . . . Death or life ?

Guen. [apart to AUS.] Why, this is loving, Austin!

Aus. He 's so young!

Guen. Young? Old enough, I think, to half surmise
 He never had obtained an entrance here,
 Were all this fear and trembling needed.

Aus. Hush!

He reddens.

Guen. Mark him, Austin; that 's true love!

Ours must begin again.

Tresh. We 'll sit, my lord.

Ever with best desert goes diffidence.
 I may speak plainly nor be misconceived.
 That I am wholly satisfied with you
 On this occasion, when a falcon's eye
 Were dull compared with mine to search out faults,
 Is somewhat. Mildred's hand is hers to give
 Or to refuse.

Mer. But you, you grant my suit?

I have your word if hers?

Tresh. My best of words

If hers encourage you. I trust it will.
 Have you seen Lady Mildred, by the way?

Mer. I . . . I . . . our two demesnes, remember, touch;

I have been used to wander carelessly
 After my stricken game: the heron roused
 Deep in my woods, has trailed its broken wing
 Through thicks and glades a mile in yours, — or else
 Some eyass ill-reclaimed has taken flight

And lured me after her from tree to tree,
I marked not whither. I have come upon
The lady's wondrous beauty unaware,
And — and then . . . I have seen her.

Guen. [aside to Aus.]

Note that mode

Of faltering out that, when a lady passed,
He, having eyes, did see her! You had said —
“On such a day I scanned her, head to foot;
Observed a red, where red should not have been,
Outside her elbow; but was pleased enough
Upon the whole.” Let such irreverent talk
Be lessoned for the future!

Tresh.

What's to say

May be said briefly. She has never known
A mother's care; I stand for father too.
Her beauty is not strange to you, it seems —
You cannot know the good and tender heart,
Its girl's trust and its woman's constancy,
How pure yet passionate, how calm yet kind,
How grave yet joyous, how reserved yet free
As light where friends are — how imbued with lore
The world most prizes, yet the simplest, yet
The . . . one might know I talked of Mildred — thus
We brothers talk!

Mer.

I thank you.

Tresh.

In a word,

Control's not for this lady; but her wish
To please me outstrips in its subtlety
My power of being pleased: herself creates
The want she means to satisfy. My heart
Prefers your suit to her as 't were its own.
Can I say more?

Mer.

No more — thanks, thanks — no more!

Tresh. This matter then discussed . . .

Mer.

— We'll waste no breath

On aught less precious. I'm beneath the roof
Which holds her: while I thought of that, my speech
To you would wander — as it must not do,
Since as you favor me I stand or fall.
I pray you suffer that I take my leave!

Tresh. With less regret 't is suffered, that again
We meet, I hope, so shortly.

Mer.

We? again? —

Ah yes, forgive me — when shall . . . you will crown
Your goodness by forthwith apprising me
When . . . if . . . the lady will appoint a day
For me to wait on you — and her.

Tresh. So soon
As I am made acquainted with her thoughts
On your proposal!— howsoe'er they lean —
A messenger shall bring you the result.

Mer. You cannot bind me more to you, my lord.

Farewell till we renew . . . I trust, renew

A converse ne'er to disunite again.

Tresh. So may it prove!

Mer. You, lady, you, sir, take

My humble salutation!

Guen. & Aus. Thanks!

Tresh. Within there!

Servants enter. TRESHAM conducts MERTOUN to the door. Meantime
AUSTIN remarks,

Well,

Here I have an advantage of the Earl,
Confess now! I'd not think that all was safe
Because my lady's brother stood my friend!
Why, he makes sure of her — "do you say, yes —
She'll not say, no," — what comes it to beside?
I should have prayed the brother, "speak this speech,
For Heaven's sake urge this on her — put in this —
Forget not, as you'd save me, t'other thing, —
Then set down what she says, and how she looks,
And if she smiles, and" (in an under breath)
"Only let her accept me, and do you
And all the world refuse me, if you dare!"

Guen. That way you'd take, friend Austin? What a shame
I was your cousin, tamely from the first
Your bride, and all this fervor's run to waste!
Do you know you speak sensibly to-day?
The Earl's a fool.

Aus. Here's Thorold. Tell him so!

Tresh. [returning.] Now, voices, voices! 'St! the lady's first!

How seems he? — seems he not . . . come, faith give fraud!
The mercy-stroke whenever they engage!

Down with fraud, up with faith! How seems the Earl?

A name! a blazon! if you knew their worth,

As you will never! come — the Earl?

Guen. He's young.

Tresh. What's she? an infant save in heart and brain.

Young! Mildred is fourteen, remark! And you . . .

Austin, how old is she?

Guen. There's tact for you!

I meant that being young was good excuse

If one should tax him . . .

Tresh. Well?

Guen. — With lacking wit.

Tresh. He lacked wit? Where might he lack wit, so please you?

Guen. In standing straighter than the steward's rod
And making you the tiresomest harangue,
Instead of slipping over to my side
And softly whispering in my ear, "Sweet lady,
Your cousin there will do me detriment
He little dreams of: he's absorbed, I see,
In my old name and fame — be sure he'll leave
My Mildred, when his best account of me
Is ended, in full confidence I wear
My grandsire's periwig down either cheek.
I'm lost unless your gentleness vouchsafes" . . .

Tresh. . . . "To give a best of best accounts, yourself,
Of me and my demerits." You are right!
He should have said what now I say for him.
You golden creature, will you help us all?
Here's Austin means to vouch for much, but you
— You are . . . what Austin only knows! Come up,
All three of us: she's in the library
No doubt, for the day's wearing fast. Precede!

Guen. Austin, how we must —!

Tresh. Must what? Must speak truth,
Malignant tongue! Detect one fault in him!
I challenge you!

Guen. Witchcraft's a fault in him,
For you're bewitched.

Tresh. What's urgent we obtain
Is, that she soon receive him — say, to-morrow —
Next day at furthest.

Guen. Ne'er instruct me!

Tresh. Come!
— He's out of your good graces, since forsooth,
He stood not as he'd carry us by storm
With his perfections! You're for the composed Manly assured becoming confidence!
— Get her to say, "to-morrow," and I'll give you . . .
I'll give you black Urganda, to be spoiled
With petting and snail-paces. Will you? Come!

SCENE III. MILDRED'S Chamber. A painted window overlooks the Park. MILDRED and GUENDOLEN.

Guen. Now, Mildred, spare those pains. I have not left
Our talkers in the library, and climbed

The wearisome ascent to this your bower
 In company with you, — I have not dared . . .
 Nay, worked such prodigies as sparing you
 Lord Mertoun's pedigree before the flood,
 Which Thorold seemed in very act to tell
 — Or bringing Austin to pluck up that most
 Firm-rooted heresy — your suitor's eyes,
 He would maintain, were gray instead of blue —
 I think I brought him to contrition! — Well,
 I have not done such things, (all to deserve
 A minute's quiet cousin's talk with you,)
 To be dismissed so coolly!

Mil. Guendolen!

What have I done? what could suggest . . .

Guen. There, there'

Do I not comprehend you'd be alone
 To throw those testimonies in a heap,
 Thorold's enlargings, Austin's brevities,
 With that poor silly heartless Guendolen's
 Ill-timed misplaced attempted smartnesses —
 And sift their sense out? now, I come to spare you
 Nearly a whole night's labor. Ask and have!
 Demand, be answered! Lack I ears and eyes?
 Am I perplexed which side of the rock-table
 The Conqueror dined on when he landed first,
 Lord Mertoun's ancestor was bidden take —
 The bow-hand or the arrow-hand's great meed?
 Mildred, the Earl has soft blue eyes!

Mil. My brother —

Did he . . . you said that he received him well?

Guen. If I said only "well" I said not much.

Oh, stay — which brother?

Mil. Thorold! who — who else?

Guen. Thorold (a secret) is too proud by half, —
 Nay, hear me out — with us he's even gentler
 Than we are with our birds. Of this great House
 The least retainer that e'er caught his glance
 Would die for him, real dying — no mere talk:
 And in the world, the court, if men would cite
 The perfect spirit of honor, Thorold's name
 Rises of its clear nature to their lips.
 But he should take men's homage, trust in it,
 And care no more about what drew it down.
 He has desert, and that, acknowledgment;
 Is he content?

Mil. You wrong him, Guendolen.

Guen. He's proud, confess; so proud with brooding o'er
The light of his interminable line,
An ancestry with men all paladins,
And women all . . .

Mil. Dear Guendolen, 't is late!
When yonder purple pane the climbing moon
Pierces, I know 't is midnight.

Guen. Well, that Thorold
Should rise up from such musings, and receive
One come audaciously to graft himself
Into this peerless stock, yet find no flaw,
No slightest spot in such an one . . .

Mil. Who finds
A spot in Mertoun?

Guen. Not your brother; therefore,
Not the whole world.

Mil. I am weary, Guendolen.
Bear with me!

Guen. I am foolish.

Mil. Oh no, kind!
But I would rest.

Guen. Good night and rest to you!
I said how gracefully his mantle lay
Beneath the rings of his light hair?

Mil. Brown hair.

Guen. Brown? why, it is brown: how could you know that?

Mil. How? did not you — Oh, Austin 't was, declared
His hair was light, not brown — my head! — and look,
The moon-beam purpling the dark chamber! Sweet,
Good night!

Guen. Forgive me — sleep the soundlier for me!

[Going, she turns suddenly.
Mildred!

Perdition! all's discovered! Thorold finds — That the Earl's greatest of all grandmothers
Was grander daughter still — to that fair dame
Whose garter slipped down at the famous dance!

[Goes.

Mil. Is she — can she be really gone at last?
My heart! I shall not reach the window. Needs
Must I have sinned much, so to suffer!

[She lifts the small lamp which is suspended before the Virgin's image in the window, and places it by the purple pane.

There!

[She returns to the seat in front.

Mildred and Mertoun! Mildred, with consent
Of all the world and Thorold, Mertoun's bride!
Too late! 'T is sweet to think of, sweeter still

To hope for, that this blessed end soothes up
 The curse of the beginning; but I know
 It comes too late: 't will sweetest be of all
 To dream my soul away and die upon. [A noise without.
 The voice! Oh why, why glided sin the snake
 Into the paradise Heaven meant us both?

[The window opens softly. A low voice sings.

There's a woman like a dew-drop, she's so purer than the purest;
 And her noble heart's the noblest, yes, and her sure faith's the surest:
 And her eyes are dark and humid, like the depth on depth of lustre
 Hid i' the harebell, while her tresses, sunnier than the wild-grape cluster,
 Gush in golden-tinted plenty down her neck's rose-misted marble:
 Then her voice's music . . . call it the well's bubbling, the bird's warble!

And this woman says, "My days were sunless and my nights were moon-
 less,
 Parched the pleasant April herbage, and the lark's heart's outbreak tune-
 less,
 If you loved me not!" And I who—(ah, for words of flame!) adore
 her,

Who am mad to lay my spirit prostrate palpably before her—

[He enters, approaches her seat, and bends over her.

I may enter at her portal soon, as now her lattice takes me,
 And by noontide as by midnight make her mine, as hers she makes me!

[The EARL throws off his slouched hat and long cloak.

My very heart sings, so I sing, beloved!

Mil. Sit, Henry—do not take my hand!

Mer.

'T is mine.

The meeting that appalled us both so much
 Is ended.

Mil. What begins now?

Mer. Happiness

Such as the world contains not.

Mil. That is it.

Our happiness would, as you say, exceed
 The whole world's best of blisses: we—do we Deserve that? Utter to your soul, what mine
 Long since, Beloved, has grown used to hear,
 Like a death-knell, so much regarded once,
 And so familiar now; this will not be!

Mer. Oh, Mildred, have I met your brother's face?

Compelled myself—if not to speak untruth,
 Yet to disguise, to shun, to put aside
 The truth, as—what had e'er prevailed on me
 Save you, to venture? Have I gained at last
 Your brother, the one scarer of your dreams,
 And waking thoughts' sole apprehension too?
 Does a new life, like a young sunrise, break

On the strange unrest of our night, confused
 With rain and stormy flaw — and will you see
 No dripping blossoms, no fire-tinted drops
 On each live spray, no vapor steaming up,
 And no expressless glory in the East?
 When I am by you, to be ever by you,
 When I have won you and may worship you,
 Oh, Mildred, can you say “this will not be”?

Mil. Sin has surprised us, so will punishment.

Mer. No — me alone, who sinned alone!

Mil.

The night

You likened our past life to — was it storm
 Throughout to you then, Henry?

Mer.

Of your life

I spoke — what am I, what my life, to waste
 A thought about when you are by me? — you
 It was, I said my folly called the storm
 And pulled the night upon. 'T was day with me —
 Perpetual dawn with me.

Mil.

Come what come will,

You have been happy: take my hand!

Mer. [after a pause.]

How good

Your brother is! I figured him a cold —
 Shall I say, haughty man?

Mil.

They told me all.

I know all.

Mer.

It will soon be over.

Mil.

Over?

Oh, what is over? what must I live through
 And say, “'t is over”? Is our meeting over?
 Have I received in presence of them all
 The partner of my guilty love — with brow
 Trying to seem a maiden's brow — with lips
 Which make believe that when they strive to form
 Replies to you and tremble as they strive,
 It is the nearest ever they approached
 A stranger's . . . Henry, yours that stranger's . . . lip —
 With cheek that looks a virgin's, and that is . . .
 Ah God, some prodigy of thine will stop
 This planned piece of deliberate wickedness
 In its birth even! some fierce leprous spot
 Will mar the brow's dissimulating! I
 Shall murmur no smooth speeches got by heart,
 But, frenzied, pour forth all our woful story,
 The love, the shame, and the despair — with them
 Round me aghast as round some cursed fount

That should spirt water, and spouts blood. I'll not
 . . . Henry, you do not wish that I should draw
 This vengeance down? I'll not affect a grace
 That's gone from me — gone once, and gone forever!

Mer. Mildred, my honor is your own. I'll share
 Disgrace I cannot suffer by myself.

A word informs your brother I retract
 This morning's offer; time will yet bring forth
 Some better way of saving both of us.

Mil. I'll meet their faces, Henry!

Mer. When? to-morrow!
 Get done with it!

Mil. — Oh, Henry, not to-morrow!
 Next day! I never shall prepare my words
 And looks and gestures sooner. — How you must Despise me!

Mer. Mildred, break it if you choose,
 A heart the love of you uplifted — still
 Uplifts, through this protracted agony,
 To heaven! but Mildred, answer me, — first pace
 The chamber with me — once again — now, say
 Calmly the part, the . . . what it is of me
 You see contempt (for you did say contempt)
 — Contempt for you in! I would pluck it off
 And cast it from me! — but no — no, you'll not Repeat that? — will you, Mildred, repeat that?

Mil. Dear Henry!

Mer. I was scarce a boy — e'en now
 What am I more? And you were infantine
 When first I met you; why, your hair fell loose
 On either side! My fool's-cheek reddens now
 Only in the recalling how it burned
 That morn to see the shape of many a dream
 — You know we boys are prodigal of charms
 To her we dream of — I had heard of one,
 Had dreamed of her, and I was close to her,
 Might speak to her, might live and die her own,
 Who knew? I spoke. Oh, Mildred, feel you not
 That now, while I remember every glance
 Of yours, each word of yours, with power to test
 And weigh them in the diamond scales of pride,
 Resolved the treasure of a first and last
 Heart's love shall have been bartered at its worth,
 — That now I think upon your purity
 And utter ignorance of guilt — your own
 Or other's guilt — the girlish undisguised

Delight at a strange novel prize — (I talk
 A silly language, but interpret, you!)
 If I, with fancy at its full, and reason
 Scarce in its germ, enjoined you secrecy,
 If you had pity on my passion, pity
 On my protested sickness of the soul
 To sit beside you, hear you breathe, and watch
 Your eyelids and the eyes beneath — if you
 Accorded gifts and knew not they were gifts —
 If I grew mad at last with enterprise
 And must behold my beauty in her bower
 Or perish — (I was ignorant of even
 My own desires — what then were you?) if sorrow —
 Sin — if the end came — must I now renounce
 My reason, blind myself to light, say truth
 Is false and lie to God and my own soul?
 Contempt were all of this!

Mil. Do you believe . . .

Or, Henry, I'll not wrong you — you believe
 That I was ignorant. I scarce grieve o'er
 The past! We'll love on; you will love me still!

Mer. Oh, to love less what one has injured! Dove,
 Whose pinion I have rashly hurt, my breast —
 Shall my heart's warmth not nurse thee into strength?
 Flower I have crushed, shall I not care for thee?
 Bloom o'er my crest, my fight-mark and device!
 Mildred, I love you and you love me!

Mil. Go!

Be that your last word. I shall sleep to-night.

Mer. This is not our last meeting?

Mil. One night more.

Mer. And then — think, then!

Mil. Then, no sweet courtship-days,

No dawning consciousness of love for us,
 No strange and palpitating births of sense
 From words and looks, no innocent fears and hopes,
 Reserves and confidences: morning's over!

Mer. How else should love's perfected noontide follow?
 All the dawn promised shall the day perform.

Mil. So may it be! but —

You are cautious, Love?

Are sure that unobserved you scaled the walls?

Mer. Oh, trust me! Then our final meeting's fixed
 To-morrow night?

Mil. Farewell! Stay, Henry . . . wherefore?
 His foot is on the yew-tree bough; the turf

Receives him : now the moonlight as he runs
 Embraces him — but he must go — is gone.
 Ah, once again he turns — thanks, thanks, my Love !
 He's gone. Oh, I'll believe him every word !
 I was so young, I loved him so, I had
 No mother, God forgot me, and I fell.
 There may be pardon yet : all's doubt beyond.
 Surely the bitterness of death is past !

ACT II.

SCENE. The Library.Enter LORD TRESHAM, hastily.Tresh. This way ! In, Gerard, quick ![As GERARD enters, TRESHAM secures the door.

Now speak ! or, wait —

I'll bid you speak directly.

[Seats himself.

Now repeat

Firmly and circumstantially the tale
 You just now told me ; it eludes me ; either
 I did not listen, or the half is gone
 Away from me. How long have you lived here ?
 Here in my house, your father kept our woods
 Before you ?

Ger. — As his father did, my lord.

I have been eating, sixty years almost,
 Your bread.

Tresh. Yes, yes. You ever were of all
 The servants in my father's house, I know,
 The trusted one. You'll speak the truth.

Ger.

I'll speak

God's truth. Night after night . . .

Tresh.

Since when ?

Ger.

At least

A month — each midnight has some man access
 To Lady Mildred's chamber.

Tresh.

Tush, "access" —

No wide words like "access" to me !

Ger.

He runs

Along the woodside, crosses to the South,
 Takes the left tree that ends the avenue . . .

Tresh. The last great yew-tree ?Ger.

You might stand upon

The main boughs like a platform. Then he . . .

Tresh.

Quick!

Ger. Climbs up, and, where they lessen at the top,
— I cannot see distinctly, but he throws,
I think — for this I do not vouch — a line
That reaches to the lady's casement —

Tresh.

— Which

He enters not! Gerard, some wretched fool
Dares pry into my sister's privacy!
When such are young, it seems a precious thing
To have approached, — to merely have approached,
Got sight of, the abode of her they set
Their frantic thoughts upon! He does not enter?
Gerard?

Ger. There is a lamp that 's full i' the midst,
Under a red square in the painted glass
Of Lady Mildred's . . .

Tresh.

Leave that name out! Well?

That lamp?

Ger. — Is moved at midnight higher up
To one pane — a small dark-blue pane; he waits
For that among the boughs: at sight of that,
I see him, plain as I see you, my lord,
Open the lady's casement, enter there . . .

Tresh. — And stay?

Ger.

An hour, two hours.

Tresh.

And this you saw

Once? — twice? — quick!

Ger.

Twenty times.

Tresh.

And what brings you

Under the yew-trees?

Ger.

The first night I left

My range so far, to track the stranger stag
That broke the pale, I saw the man.

Tresh.

Yet sent

No cross-bow shaft through the marauder?

Ger.

But

He came, my lord, the first time he was seen,
In a great moonlight, light as any day,
From Lady Mildred's chamber.

Tresh. [after a pause.] You have no cause
— Who could have cause to do my sister wrong?

Ger. Oh, my lord, only once — let me this once
Speak what is on my mind! Since first I noted
All this, I've groaned as if a fiery net
Plucked me this way and that — fire if I turned
To her, fire if I turned to you, and fire

If down I flung myself and strove to die.
 The lady could not have been seven years old
 When I was trusted to conduct her safe
 Through the deer-herd to stroke the snow-white fawn
 I brought to eat bread from her tiny hand
 Within a month. She ever had a smile
 To greet me with — she . . . if it could undo
 What's done, to lop each limb from off this trunk . . .
 All that is foolish talk, not fit for you —
 I mean, I could not speak and bring her hurt
 For Heaven's compelling. But when I was fixed
 To hold my peace, each morsel of your food
 Eaten beneath your roof, my birth-place too,
 Choked me. I wish I had grown mad in doubts
 What it behoved me do. This morn it seemed
 Either I must confess to you, or die :
 Now it is done, I seem the vilest worm
 That crawls, to have betrayed my lady !

Tresh.

No —

No, Gerard !

Ger.

Let me go !

Tresh.

A man, you say :

What man ? Young ? Not a vulgar hind ? What dress ?

Ger. A slouched hat and a large dark foreign cloak

Wraps his whole form ; even his face is hid ;

But I should judge him young : no hind, be sure !

Tresh. Why ?

Ger.

He is ever armed : his sword projects

Beneath the cloak.

Tresh.

Gerard, — I will not say

No word, no breath of this !

Ger.

Thanks, thanks, my lord ! [Goes

TRESHAM paces the room. After a pause,

Oh, thought's absurd ! — as with some monstrous fact

Which, when ill thoughts beset us, seems to give

Merciful God that made the sun and stars,

The waters and the green delights of earth,

The lie ! I apprehend the monstrous fact —

Yet know the maker of all worlds is good,

And yield my reason up, inadequate

To reconcile what yet I do behold —

Blasting my sense ! There's cheerful day outside :

This is my library, and this the chair

My father used to sit in carelessly

After his soldier-fashion, while I stood

Between his knees to question him : and here

Gerard our gray retainer, — as he says,
 Fed with our food, from sire to son, an age, —
 Has told a story — I am to believe!
 That Mildred . . . oh, no, no! both tales are true,
 Her pure cheek's story and the forester's!
 Would she, or could she, err — much less, confound
 All guilts of treachery, of craft, of . . . Heaven
 Keep me within its hand! — I will sit here
 Until thought settle and I see my course.
 Avert, oh God, only this woe from me!

[As he sinks his head between his arms on the table, GUENDOLEN'S voice is heard at the door.]

Lord Tresham! [She knocks.] Is Lord Tresham there?

[TRESHAM, hastily turning, pulls down the first book above him and opens it.]

Tresh. Come in!

[She enters.]

Ha, Guendolen! — good morning.

Guen. Nothing more?

Tresh. What should I say more?

Guen. Pleasant question! more?

This more. Did I besiege poor Mildred's brain
 Last night till close on morning with "the Earl,"
 "The Earl" — whose worth did I asseverate
 Till I am very fain to hope that . . . Thorold,
 What is all this? You are not well!

Tresh. Who, I?

You laugh at me.

Guen. Has what I'm fain to hope,
 Arrived then? Does that huge tome show some blot
 In the Earl's 'scutcheon come no longer back
 Than Arthur's time?

Tresh. When left you Mildred's chamber?

Guen. Oh, late enough, I told you! The main thing
 To ask is, how I left her chamber, — sure,
 Content yourself, she'll grant this paragon
 Of Earls no such ungracious . . .

Tresh. Send her here!

Guen. Thorold?

Tresh. I mean — acquaint her, Guendolen,
 — But mildly!

Guen. Mildly?

Tresh. Ah, you guessed aright!

I am not well: there is no hiding it.
 But tell her I would see her at her leisure —

That is, at once! here in the library!

The passage in that old Italian book

We hunted for so long is found, say, found —
 And if I let it slip again . . . you see,
 That she must come — and instantly!

Guen. I'll die
 Piecemeal, record that, if there have not gloomed
 Some blot i' the 'scutcheon!

Tresh. Go! or, Guendolen,
 Be you at call, — with Austin, if you choose, —
 In the adjoining gallery! — There, go! [GUENDOLEN goes.
 Another lesson to me! You might bid
 A child disguise his heart's sore, and conduct
 Some sly investigation point by point
 With a smooth brow, as well as bid me catch
 The inquisitorial cleverness some praise!
 If you had told me yesterday, "There's one
 You needs must circumvent and practise with,
 Entrap by policies, if you would worm
 The truth out: and that one is — Mildred!" There,
 There — reasoning is thrown away on it!
 Prove she's unchaste . . . why, you may after prove
 That she's a poisoner, traitress, what you will!
 Where I can comprehend nought, nought's to say,
 Or do, or think! Force on me but the first
 Abomination, — then outpour all plagues,
 And I shall ne'er make count of them!

Enter MILDRED.
Mil. What book?
 Is it I wanted, Thorold? Guendolen
 Thought you were pale; you are not pale. That book?
 That's Latin surely.

Tresh. Mildred, here's a line,
 (Don't lean on me: I'll English it for you)
 "Love conquers all things." What love conquers them?
 What love should you esteem — best love?

Mil. True love.
Tresh. I mean, and should have said, whose love is best
 Of all that love or that profess to love?

Mil. The list's so long: there's father's, mother's, husband's . . .

Tresh. Mildred, I do believe a brother's love
 For a sole sister must exceed them all.
 For see now, only see! there's no alloy
 Of earth that creeps into the perfect'st gold
 Of other loves! — no gratitude to claim;
 You never gave her life, not even aught
 That keeps life — never tended her, instructed,

Enriched her — so, your love can claim no right
 O'er her save pure love's claim : that's what I call
 Freedom from earthliness. You'll never hope
 To be such friends, for instance, she and you,
 As when you hunted cowslips in the woods
 Or played together in the meadow hay.
 Oh yes — with age, respect comes, and your worth
 Is felt, there's growing sympathy of tastes,
 There's ripened friendship, there's confirmed esteem :
 — Much head these make against the new-comer !
 The startling apparition, the strange youth —
 Whom one half-hour's conversing with, or, say,
 Mere gazing at, shall change (beyond all change
 This Ovid ever sang about) your soul
 . . . Her soul, that is, — the sister's soul ! With her
 'T was winter yesterday ; now, all is warmth,
 The green leaf's springing and the turtle's voice,
 " Arise and come away ! " Come whither ? — far Enough from the esteem, respect, and all
 The brother's somewhat insignificant
 Array of rights ! All which he knows before,
 Has calculated on so long ago !
 I think such love, (apart from yours and mine,)
 Contented with its little term of life,
 Intending to retire betimes, aware
 How soon the background must be place for it,
 — I think, am sure, a brother's love exceeds
 All the world's love in its unworldliness.

Mil. What is this for ?

Tresh. This, Mildred, is it for !

Or, no, I cannot go to it so soon !
 That's one of many points my haste left out —
 Each day, each hour throws forth its silk-slight film
 Between the being tied to you by birth,
 And you, until those slender threads compose
 A web that shrouds her daily life of hopes
 And fears and fancies, all her life, from yours :
 So close you live and yet so far apart !
 And must I rend this web, tear up, break down
 The sweet and palpitating mystery
 That makes her sacred ? You — for you I mean,
 Shall I speak, shall I not speak ?

Mil.

Speak !

Tresh.

— I will.

Is there a story men could — any man
 Could tell of you, you would conceal from me ?

I'll never think there's falsehood on that lip.
 Say "There is no such story men could tell,"
 And I'll believe you, though I disbelieve
 The world — the world of better men than I,
 And women such as I suppose you. Speak!
 [After a pause.] Not speak? Explain then! Clear it up then!

Move

Some of the miserable weight away
 That presses lower than the grave! Not speak?
 Some of the dead weight, Mildred! Ah, if I
 Could bring myself to plainly make their charge
 Against you! Must I, Mildred? Silent still?
 [After a pause.] Is there a gallant that has night by night
 Admittance to your chamber?

[After a pause.] Then, his name!
 Till now, I only had a thought for you:
 But now, — his name!

Mil. Thorold, do you devise
 Fit expiation for my guilt, if fit
 There be! 'T is nought to say that I'll endure
 And bless you, — that my spirit yearns to purge
 Her stains off in the fierce renewing fire:
 But do not plunge me into other guilt!
 Oh, guilt enough! I cannot tell his name.

Tresh. Then judge yourself! How should I act? Pronounce!

Mil. Oh, Thorold, you must never tempt me thus!
 To die here in this chamber by that sword
 Would seem like punishment: so should I glide,
 Like an arch-cheat, into extremest bliss!
 'T were easily arranged for me: but you —
 What would become of you?

Tresh. And what will now
 Become of me? I'll hide your shame and mine
 From every eye; the dead must heave their hearts
 Under the marble of our chapel-floor;
 They cannot rise and blast you. You may wed
 Your paramour above our mother's tomb;
 Our mother cannot move from 'neath your foot.
 We too will somehow wear this one day out:
 But with to-morrow hastens here — the Earl!
 The youth without suspicion face can come
 From heaven, and heart from . . . whence proceed such hearts?
 I have dispatched last night at your command
 A missive bidding him present himself
 To-morrow — here — thus much is said: the rest

Is understood as if 't were written down —
 "His suit finds favor in your eyes." Now dictate
 This morning's letter that shall countermand
 Last night's — do dictate that!

Mil. But, Thorold — if

I will receive him as I said?

Tresh. The Earl?

Mil. I will receive him.

Tresh. [Starting up.] Ho there! Guendolen!

GUENDOLEN and AUSTIN enter.

And, Austin, you are welcome, too! Look there!
 The woman there!

Aus. & Guen. How? Mildred?

Tresh. Mildred once!

Now the receiver night by night, when sleep
 Blesses the inmates of her father's house,
 — I say, the soft sly wanton that receives
 Her guilt's accomplice 'neath this roof which holds
 You, Guendolen, you, Austin, and has held
 A thousand Treshams — never one like her!
 No lighter of the signal-lamp her quick
 Foul breath near quenches in hot eagerness
 To mix with breath as foul! no loosener
 O' the lattice, practised in the stealthy tread,
 The low voice and the noiseless come-and-go!
 Not one composer of the bacchant's mien
 Into — what you thought Mildred's, in a word!
 Know her!

Guen. Oh Mildred, look to me, at least!
 Thorold — she's dead, I'd say, but that she stands
 Rigid as stone and whiter!

Tresh. You have heard . . .

Guen. Too much! You must proceed no further.

Mil.

Yes —

Proceed! All's truth. Go from me!

Tresh. All is truth,

She tells you! Well, you know, or ought to know,
 All this I would forgive in her. I'd con
 Each precept the harsh world enjoins, I'd take
 Our ancestors' stern verdicts one by one,
 I'd bind myself before them to exact
 The prescribed vengeance — and one word of hers,
 The sight of her, the bare least memory
 Of Mildred, my one sister, my heart's pride
 Above all prides, my all in all so long,
 Would scatter every trace of my resolve. —

What were it silently to waste away
 And see her waste away from this day forth,
 Two scathed things with leisure to repent,
 And grow acquainted with the grave, and die
 Tired out if not at peace, and be forgotten?
 It were not so impossible to bear.
 But this — that, fresh from last night's pledge renewed
 Of love with the successful gallant there,
 She calmly bids me help her to entice,
 Inveigle an unconscious trusting youth
 Who thinks her all that's chaste and good and pure,
 — Invites me to betray him . . . who so fit
 As honor's self to cover shame's arch-deed?
 — That she'll receive Lord Mertoun — (her own phrase) —
 This, who could bear? Why, you have heard of thieves,
 Stabbers, the earth's disgrace, who yet have laughed,
 "Talk not to me of torture — I'll betray
 No comrade I've pledged faith to!" — you have heard
 Of wretched women — all but Mildreds — tied
 By wild illicit ties to losels vile
 You'd tempt them to forsake; and they'll reply
 "Gold, friends, repute, I left for him, I find
 In him, why should I leave him then for gold,
 Repute or friends?" — and you have felt your heart
 Respond to such poor outcasts of the world
 As to so many friends; bad as you please,
 You've felt they were God's men and women still,
 So, not to be disowned by you. But she
 That stands there, calmly gives her lover up
 As means to wed the Earl that she may hide
 Their intercourse the surelier: and, for this,
 I curse her to her face before you all.
 Shame hunt her from the earth! Then Heaven do right
 To both! It hears me now — shall judge her then!

[As MILDRED faints and falls, TRESHAM rushes out.]

Aus. Stay, Tresham, we'll accompany you!

Guen. We?

What, and leave Mildred? We? Why, where's my place
 But by her side, and where yours but by mine?

Mildred — one word! Only look at me, then!

Aus. No, Guendolen! I echo Thorold's voice.
 She is unworthy to behold . . .

Guen. Us two?

If you spoke on reflection, and if I
 Approved your speech — if you (to put the thing
 At lowest) you the soldier, bound to make

The king's cause yours and fight for it, and throw
 Regard to others of its right or wrong,
 — If with a death-white woman you can help,
 Let alone sister, let alone a Mildred,
 You left her — or if I, her cousin, friend
 This morning, playfellow but yesterday,
 Who said, or thought at least a thousand times,
 "I'd serve you if I could," should now face round
 And say, "Ah, that's to only signify
 I'd serve you while you're fit to serve yourself
 So long as fifty eyes await the turn
 Of yours to forestall its yet half-formed wish,
 I'll proffer my assistance you'll not need —
 When every tongue is praising you, I'll join
 The praisers' chorus — when you're hemmed about
 With lives between you and detraction — lives
 To be laid down if a rude voice, rash eye,
 Rough hand should violate the sacred ring
 Their worship throws about you, — then indeed,
 Who'll stand up for you stout as I?" If so
 We said, and so we did, — not Mildred there
 Would be unworthy to behold us both,
 But we should be unworthy, both of us,
 To be beheld by — by — your meanest dog,
 Which, if that sword were broken in your face
 Before a crowd, that badge torn off your breast,
 And you cast out with hooting and contempt,
 — Would push his way through all the hooters, gain
 Your side, go off with you and all your shame
 To the next ditch you choose to die in! Austin,
 Do you love me? Here's Austin, Mildred, — here's
 Your brother says he does not believe half —
 No, nor half that — of all he heard! He says,
 Look up and take his hand!

Aus.

Look up and take

My hand, dear Mildred!

Mil.

I — I was so young!

Beside, I loved him, Thorold — and I had
 No mother; God forgot me: so, I fell.

Guen. Mildred!

Mil.

Require no further! Did I dream
 That I could palliate what is done? All's true.
 Now, punish me! A woman takes my hand?
 Let go my hand! You do not know, I see.
 I thought that Thorold told you.

Guen.

What is this?

Where start you to?

Mil. Oh, Austin, loosen me !
 You heard the whole of it — your eyes were worse,
 In their surprise, than Thorold's ! Oh, unless
 You stay to execute his sentence, loose
 My hand ! — Has Thorold gone, and are you here ?

Guen. Here, Mildred, we two friends of yours will wait
 Your bidding ; be you silent, sleep or muse !
 Only, when you shall want your bidding done,
 How can we do it if we are not by ?
 Here's Austin waiting patiently your will !
 One spirit to command, and one to love
 And to believe in it and do its best,
 Poor as that is, to help it — why, the world
 Has been won many a time, its length and breadth,
 By just such a beginning !

Mil. I believe
 If once I threw my arms about your neck
 And sunk my head upon your breast, that I
 Should weep again.

Guen. . . . Let go her hand now, Austin !
 Wait for me. Pace the gallery and think
 On the world's seemings and realities,
 Until I call you. [AUSTIN goes.

Mil. No — I cannot weep.
 No more tears from this brain — no sleep — no tears !
 O Guendolen, I love you !

Guen. Yes : and "love"
 Is a short word that says so very much !
 It says that you confide in me.

Mil. Confide !
Guen. Your lover's name, then ! I've so much to learn,
 Ere I can work in your behalf !

Mil. My friend,
 You know I cannot tell his name.

Guen. At least
 He is your lover ? and you love him too ?

Mil. Ah, do you ask me that ? — but I am fallen
 So low !

Guen. You love him still, then ?

Mil. My sole prop
 Against the guilt that crushes me ! I say,
 Each night ere I lie down, "I was so young —
 I had no mother, and I loved him so !"
 And then God seems indulgent, and I dare
 Trust him my soul in sleep.

Guen. How could you let us
 E'en talk to you about Lord Mertoun then ?

Mil. There is a cloud around me.

Guen.

But you said

You would receive his suit in spite of this?

Mil. I say there is a cloud . . .

Guen.

No cloud to me!

Lord Mertoun and your lover are the same!

Mil. What maddest fancy . . .

Guen. [calling aloud.] Austin! (spare your pains —

When I have got a truth, that truth I keep) —

Mil. By all you love, sweet Guendolen, forbear!

Have I confided in you . . .

Guen.

Just for this!

Austin! — Oh, not to guess it at the first!

But I did guess it — that is, I divined,

Felt by an instinct how it was: why else

Should I pronounce you free from all that heap

Of sins which had been irredeemable?

I felt they were not yours — what other way

Than this, not yours? The secret's wholly mine!

Mil. If you would see me die before his face . . .

Guen. I'd hold my peace! And if the Earl returns

To-night?

Mil. Ah Heaven, he's lost!

Guen.

I thought so. Austin!

Enter AUSTIN.

Oh, where have you been hiding?

Aus.

Thorold's gone,

I know not how, across the meadow-land.

I watched him till I lost him in the skirts

O' the beech-wood.

Guen.

Gone? All thwarts us.

Mil.

Thorold too?

Guen. I have thought. First lead this Mildred to her room.

Go on the other side; and then we'll seek

Your brother: and I'll tell you, by the way,

The greatest comfort in the world. You said

There was a clue to all. Remember, Sweet,

He said there was a clue! I hold it. Come!

ACT III.

SCENE I. *The end of the Yew-tree Avenue under MILDRED'S window.
A light seen through a central red pane.*

Enter TRESHAM through the trees.

Tresh. Again here! But I cannot lose myself.
The heath — the orchard — I have traversed glades
And dells and bosky paths which used to lead
Into green wild-wood depths, bewildering
My boy's adventurous step. And now they tend Hither or soon or late; the blackest shade
Breaks up, the thronged trunks of the trees ope wide,
And the dim turret I have fled from, fronts
Again my step; the very river put
Its arm about me and conducted me
To this detested spot. Why then, I'll shun
Their will no longer: do your will with me!
Oh, bitter! To have reared a towering scheme
Of happiness, and to behold it razed,
Were nothing: all men hope, and see their hopes
Frustrate, and grieve awhile, and hope anew.
But I . . . to hope that from a line like ours
No horrid prodigy like this would spring,
Were just as though I hoped that from these old
Confederates against the sovereign day,
Children of older and yet older sires,
Whose living coral berries dropped, as now
On me, on many a baron's surcoat once,
On many a beauty's wimple — would proceed
No poison-tree, to thrust, from hell its root,
Hither and thither its strange snaky arms.
Why came I here? What must I do? [a bell strikes.] A bell?
Midnight! and 't is at midnight . . . Ah, I catch
— Woods, river, plains, I catch your meaning now,
And I obey you! Hist! This tree will serve.

[*He retires behind one of the trees. After a pause, enter MER-
TOUN cloaked as before.*

Mer. Not time! Beat out thy last voluptuous beat
Of hope and fear, my heart! I thought the clock
I' the chapel struck as I was pushing through
The ferns. And so I shall no more see rise
My love-star! Oh, no matter for the past!
So much the more delicious task to watch
Mildred revive: to pluck out, thorn by thorn,
All traces of the rough forbidden path

My rash love lured her to ! Each day must see
Some fear of hers effaced, some hope renewed :
Then there will be surprises, unforeseen
Delights in store. I'll not regret the past.

[The light is placed above in the purple pane.]

And see, my signal rises, Mildred's star !
I never saw it lovelier than now
It rises for the last time. If it sets,
'T is that the re-assuring sun may dawn.

[As he prepares to ascend the last tree of the avenue, TRESHAM arrests his arm.]

Unhand me — peasant, by your grasp ! Here 's gold.
'T was a mad freak of mine. I said I'd pluck
A branch from the white-blossomed shrub beneath
The casement there. Take this, and hold your peace.

Tresh. Into the moonlight yonder, come with me !

Out of the shadow

Mer. I am armed, fool !

Tresh. Yes,

Or no ? You'll come into the light, or no ?

My hand is on your throat — refuse ! —

Mer. That voice !

Where have I heard . . . no — that was mild and slow.

I'll come with you. [They advance.]

Tresh. You're armed : that's well. Declare

Your name : who are you ?

Mer. (Tresham ! — she is lost !)

Tresh. Oh, silent ? Do you know, you bear yourself
Exactly as, in curious dreams I've had
How felons, this wild earth is full of, look
When they're detected, still your kind has looked !
The bravo holds an assured countenance,
The thief is voluble and plausible,
But silently the slave of lust has crouched
When I have fancied it before a man.
Your name !

Mer. I do conjure Lord Tresham — ay,
Kissing his foot, if so I might prevail —
That he for his own sake forbear to ask
My name ! As heaven's above, his future weal
Or woe depends upon my silence ! Vain !
I read your white inexorable face.

Know me, Lord Tresham !

[He throws off his disguises.]

Tresh. Mertoun !

[After a pause.]

Draw now !

Mer.

But speak first !

Hear me

Tresh. Not one least word on your life!
 Be sure that I will strangle in your throat
 The least word that informs me how you live
 And yet seem what you seem! No doubt 't was you
 Taught Mildred still to keep that face and sin.
 We should join hands in frantic sympathy
 If you once taught me the unteachable,
 Explained how you can live so, and so lie.
 With God's help I retain, despite my sense,
 The old belief — a life like yours is still Impossible. Now draw!

Mer. Not for my sake,
 Do I entreat a hearing — for your sake,
 And most, for her sake!

Tresh. Ha ha, what should I
 Know of your ways? A miscreant like yourself,
 How must one rouse his ire? A blow? — that's pride
 No doubt, to him! One spurns him, does one not?
 Or sets the foot upon his mouth, or spits
 Into his face! Come! Which, or all of these?

Mer. 'Twixt him and me and Mildred, Heaven be judge!
 Can I avoid this? Have your will, my lord!
 [He draws and, after a few passes, falls.]

Tresh. You are not hurt?

Mer. You'll hear me now!

Tresh. But rise!

Mer. Ah, Tresham, say I not "you'll hear me now!"
 And what procures a man the right to speak
 In his defence before his fellow man,
 But — I suppose — the thought that presently
 He may have leave to speak before his God
 His whole defence?

Tresh. Not hurt? It cannot be!
 You made no effort to resist me. Where Did my sword reach you? Why not have returned
 My thrusts? Hurt where?

Mer. My lord —

Tresh. How young he is!

Mer. Lord Tresham, I am very young, and yet
 I have entangled other lives with mine.
 Do let me speak, and do believe my speech!
 That when I die before you presently, —

Tresh. Can you stay here till I return with help?

Mer. Oh, stay by me! When I was less than boy
 I did you grievous wrong and knew it not —
 Upon my honor, knew it not! Once known,

I could not find what seemed a better way
 To right you than I took : my life — you feel
 How less than nothing were the giving you
 The life you've taken ! But I thought my way
 The better — only for your sake and hers :
 And as you have decided otherwise,
 Would I had an infinity of lives
 To offer you ! Now say — instruct me — think
 Can you, from the brief minutes I have left,
 Eke out my reparation ? Oh think — think !
 For I must wring a partial — dare I say,
 Forgiveness from you, ere I die ?

Tresh.

I do

Forgive you.

Mer.

Wait and ponder that great word !

Because, if you forgive me, I shall hope
 To speak to you of — Mildred !

Tresh.

Mertoun, haste

And anger have undone us. 'Tis not you
 Should tell me for a novelty you're young,
 Thoughtless, unable to recall the past.

Be but your pardon ample as my own !

Mer. Ah, Tresham, that a sword-stroke and a drop
 Of blood or two, should bring all this about !
 Why, 't was my very fear of you, my love
 Of you — (what passion like a boy's for one
 Like you ?) — that ruined me ! I dreamed of you —
 You, all accomplished, courted everywhere,
 The scholar and the gentleman. I burned
 To knit myself to you : but I was young,
 And your surpassing reputation kept me
 So far aloof ! Oh, wherefore all that love ?
 With less of love, my glorious yesterday
 Of praise and gentlest words and kindest looks,
 Had taken place perchance six months ago.
 Even now, how happy we had been ! And yet
 I know the thought of this escaped you, Tresham !
 Let me look up into your face ; I feel
 'T is changed above me : yet my eyes are glazed.
 Where ? where ?

[As he endeavors to raise himself, his eye catches the lamp

Ah, Mildred ! What will Mildred do ?

Tresham, her life is bound up in the life
 That's bleeding fast away ! I'll live — must live,
 There, if you'll only turn me I shall live
 And save her ! Tresham — oh, had you but heard !

Had you but heard! What right was yours to set
The thoughtless foot upon her life and mine,
And then say, as we perish, "Had I thought,
All had gone otherwise?" We've sinned and die:
Never you sin, Lord Tresham! for you'll die,
And God will judge you.

Tresh. Yes, be satisfied!

That process is begun.

Mer. And she sits there
Waiting for me! Now, say you this to her —
You, not another — say, I saw him die
As he breathed this, "I love her" — you don't know
What those three small words mean! Say, loving her
Lowers me down the bloody slope to death
With memories . . . I speak to her, not you,
Who had no pity, will have no remorse,
Perchance intend her . . . Die along with me,
Dear Mildred! 't is so easy, and you'll 'scape
So much unkindness! Can I lie at rest,
With rude speech spoken to you, ruder deeds
Done to you? — heartless men shall have my heart,
And I tied down with grave-clothes and the worm,
Aware, perhaps, of every blow — oh God! —
Upon those lips — yet of no power to tear
The felon stripe by stripe! Die, Mildred! Leave
Their honorable world to them! For God
We're good enough, though the world casts us out.

[A whistle is heard.

Tresh. Ho, Gerard!

Enter GERARD, AUSTIN and GUENDOLEN, with lights.

No one speak! You see what's done.

I cannot bear another voice.

Mer. There's light —

Light all about me, and I move to it.

Tresham, did I not tell you — did you not

Just promise to deliver words of mine

To Mildred?

Tresh. I will bear those words to her.

Mer. Now?

Tresh. Now. Lift you the body, and leave me
The head.

[As they have half raised MERTOUN, he turns suddenly.

Mer. I knew they turned me: turn me not from her!

There! stay you! there! [Dies.

Guen. [after a pause.] Austin, remain you here
With Thorold until Gerard comes with help:

Then lead him to his chamber. I must go
To Mildred.

Tresh. Guendolen, I hear each word
You utter. Did you hear him bid me give
His message? Did you hear my promise? I,
And only I, see Mildred.

Guen. She will die.

Tresh. Oh no, she will not die! I dare not hope
She'll die. What ground have you to think she'll die?
Why, Austin's with you!

Aus. Had we but arrived
Before you fought!

Tresh. There was no fight at all.
He let me slaughter him — the boy! I'll trust
The body there to you and Gerard — thus!
Now bear him on before me.

Aus. Whither bear him?

Tresh. Oh, to my chamber! When we meet there next,
We shall be friends.

[They bear out the body of MERTOUN.

Will she die, Guendolen?

Guen. Where are you taking me?

Tresh. He fell just here.
Now answer me. Shall you in your whole life
— You who have nought to do with Mertoun's fate,
Now you have seen his breast upon the turf,
Shall you e'er walk this way if you can help?
When you and Austin wander arm-in-arm
Through our ancestral grounds, will not a shade
Be ever on the meadow and the waste —
Another kind of shade than when the night
Shuts the woodside with all its whispers up?
But will you ever so forget his breast
As carelessly to cross this bloody turf
Under the black yew avenue? That's well!
You turn your head: and I then? —

Guen. What is done

Is done. My care is for the living. Thorold,
Bear up against this burden: more remains
To set the neck to!

Tresh. Dear and ancient trees
My fathers planted, and I loved so well!
What have I done that, like some fabled crime
Of yore, lets loose a Fury leading thus
Her miserable dance amidst you all?
Oh, never more for me shall winds intone

With all your tops a vast antiphony,
Demanding and responding in God's praise!
Hers ye are now, not mine! Farewell — farewell!

SCENE II. MILDRED'S Chamber. MILDRED alone.

Mil. He comes not! I have heard of those who seemed Resourceless in prosperity, — you thought
Sorrow might slay them when she listed; yet
Did they so gather up their diffused strength
At her first menace, that they bade her strike,
And stood and laughed her subtlest skill to scorn.
Oh, 't is not so with me! The first woe fell,
And the rest fall upon it, not on me:
Else should I bear that Henry comes not? — fails
Just this first night out of so many nights?
Loving is done with. Were he sitting now,
As so few hours since, on that seat; we'd love
No more — contrive no thousand happy ways
To hide love from the loveless, any more.
I think I might have urged some little point
In my defence, to Thorold; he was breathless
For the least hint of a defence: but no,
The first shame over, all that would might fall.
No Henry! Yet I merely sit and think
The morn's deed o'er and o'er. I must have crept
Out of myself. A Mildred that has lost
Her lover — oh, I dare not look upon
Such woe! I crouch away from it! 'T is she,
Mildred, will break her heart, not I! The world
Forsakes me: only Henry's left me — left?
When I have lost him, for he does not come,
And I sit stupidly . . . Oh Heaven, break up
This worse than anguish, this mad apathy,
By any means or any messenger!

Tresh. [without.] Mildred!

Mil. Come in! Heaven hears me!

[Enter TRESHAM.] You? alone?

Oh, no more cursing!

Tresh. Mildred, I must sit.

There — you sit!

Mil. Say it, Thorold — do not look

The curse! deliver all you come to say!

What must become of me? Oh, speak that thought

Which makes your brow and cheeks so pale!

Tresh. My thought?

Mil. All of it!

Tresh. How we waded — years ago —
After those water-lilies, till the splash,
I know not how, surprised us; and you dared
Neither advance nor turn back: so, we stood
Laughing and crying until Gerard came —
Once safe upon the turf, the loudest too,
For once more reaching the relinquished prize!
How idle thoughts are, some men's, dying men's!
Mildred, —

Mil. You call me kindlier by my name
Than even yesterday: what is in that?

Tresh. It weighs so much upon my mind that I
This morning took an office not my own!
I might . . . of course, I must be glad or grieved,
Content or not, at every little thing
That touches you. I may with a wrung heart
Even reprove you, Mildred; I did more:
Will you forgive me?

Mil. Thorold? do you mock?
Or no . . . and yet you bid me . . . say that word!

Tresh. Forgive me, Mildred! — are you silent, Sweet?

Mil. [starting up.] Why does not Henry Mertoun come tonight?
Are you, too, silent?

[Dashing his mantle aside, and pointing to his scabbard, which is empty.]

Ah, this speaks for you!
You've murdered Henry Mertoun! Now proceed!
What is it I must pardon? This and all?
Well, I do pardon you — I think I do.
Thorold, how very wretched you must be!

Tresh. He bade me tell you . . .

Mil. What I do forbid
Your utterance of! So much that you may tell
And will not — how you murdered him . . . but, no!
You'll tell me that he loved me, never more
Than bleeding out his life there: must I say
"Indeed," to that? Enough! I pardon you.

Tresh. You cannot, Mildred! for the harsh words, yes:
Of this last deed Another's judge: whose doom
I wait in doubt, despondency and fear.

Mil. Oh, true! There's nought for me to pardon! True!
You loose my soul of all its cares at once.
Death makes me sure of him forever! You
Tell me his last words? He shall tell me them,

And take my answer — not in words, but reading
Himself the heart I had to read him late,
Which death . . .

Tresh. Death? You are dying too? Well said
Of Guendolen! I dared not hope you'd die:
But she was sure of it.

Mil. Tell Guendolen
I loved her, and tell Austin . . .

Tresh. Him you loved:
And me?

Mil. Ah, Thorold! Was't not rashly done
To quench that blood, on fire with youth and hope
And love of me — whom you loved too, and yet
Suffered to sit here waiting his approach
While you were slaying him? Oh, doubtlessly
You let him speak his poor confused boy's speech
— Do his poor utmost to disarm your wrath
And respite me! — you let him try to give
The story of our love and ignorance,
And the brief madness and the long despair —
You let him plead all this, because your code
Of honor bids you hear before you strike:
But at the end, as he looked up for life
Into your eyes — you struck him down!

Tresh. No! No!
Had I but heard him — had I let him speak
Half the truth — less — had I looked long on him
I had desisted! Why, as he lay there,
The moon on his flushed cheek, I gathered all
The story ere he told it: I saw through
The troubled surface of his crime and yours
A depth of purity immovable;
Had I but glanced, where all seemed turbidest
Had gleamed some inlet to the calm beneath;
I would not glance: my punishment's at hand,
There, Mildred, is the truth! and you — say on —
You curse me?

Mil. As I dare approach that Heaven!
Which has not bade a living thing despair,
Which needs no code to keep its grace from stain,
But bids the vilest worm that turns on it
Desist and be forgiven, — I — forgive not,
But bless you, Thorold, from my soul of souls!

[Falls on his neck.
There! Do not think too much upon the past!
The cloud that's broke was all the same a cloud

While it stood up between my friend and you ;
 You hurt him 'neath its shadow : but is that
 So past retrieve ? I have his heart, you know ;
 I may dispose of it : I give it you !
 It loves you as mine loves ! Confirm me, Henry !

[Dies.]

Tresh. I wish thee joy, Beloved ! I am glad
 In thy full gladness !

Guen. [without.] Mildred ! Tresham !

[Entering with AUSTIN.]

Thorold,

I could desist no longer. Ah, she swoons !
 That 's well.

Tresh. Oh, better far than that !

Guen. She 's dead !

Let me unlock her arms !

Tresh. She threw them thus
 About my neck, and blessed me, and then died :
 You 'll let them stay now, Guendolen !

Aus. Leave her

And look to him ! What ails you, Thorold ?

Guen. White

As she, and whiter ! Austin ! quick — this side !

Aus. A froth is oozing through his clenched teeth ;
 Both lips, where they 're not bitten through, are black :
 Speak, dearest Thorold !

Tresh. Something does weigh down
 My neck beside her weight : thanks : I should fall
 But for you, Austin, I believe ! — there, there,
 'T will pass away soon ! — ah, — I had forgotten :
 I am dying.

Guen. Thorold — Thorold — why was this ?

Tresh. I said, just as I drank the poison off,
 The earth would be no longer earth to me,
 The life out of all life was gone from me.
 There are blind ways provided, the foredone
 Heart-weary player in this pageant-world
 Drops out by, letting the main masque defile
 By the conspicuous portal : I am through —
 Just through !

Guen. Don't leave him, Austin ! Death is close.

Tresh. Already Mildred's face is peacefuller.
 I see you, Austin — feel you : here 's my hand,
 Put yours in it — you, Guendolen, yours too !
 You 're lord and lady now — you 're Treshams ; name
 And fame are yours : you hold our 'scutcheon up.
 Austin, no blot on it ! You see how blood
 Must wash one blot away : the first blot came

And the first blood came. To the vain world's eye
All's gules again : no care to the vain world,
From whence the red was drawn !

Aus. No blot shall come !

Tresh. I said that : yet it did come. Should it come,
Vengeance is God's, not man's. Remember me! [Dies.

Guen. [letting fall the pulseless arm.] Ah, Thorold, we can but — remember you!

COLOMBE'S BIRTHDAY

A PLAY

"Ivy and violet, what do ye here
With blossom and shoot in the warm spring-weather,
Hiding the arms of Monchenci and Vere?"

HAMMER.

NO ONE LOVES AND HONORS BARRY CORNWALL MORE THAN DOES
ROBERT BROWNING;

WHO, HAVING NOTHING BETTER THAN THIS PLAY TO GIVE HIM IN PROOF OF IT, MUST SAY SO.

LONDON, 1844.

---

PERSONS.

COLOMBE OF RAVESTEIN, Duchess of Juliers and Cleves.

SABYNE, ADOLF, her Attendants.

GUIBERT, GAUCELME, MAUFROY, CLUGNET, Courtiers.

VALENCE, Advocate of Cleves.

PRINCE BERTHOLD, Claimant of the Duchy.

MELCHIOR, his Confidant.

TIME, 16—.

---

ACT I

Morning. SCENE. A corridor leading to the Audience-chamber.

GAUCELME, CLUGNET, MAUFROY and other Courtiers, round GUIBERT who is silently reading a paper: as he drops it at the end—

Gui. That this should be her birthday; and the day

We all invested her, twelve months ago,

As the late Duke's true heiress and our liege;

And that this' also must become the day . . .

Oh, miserable lady!

1st Court. Ay, indeed?

2d Court. Well, Guibert?

3d Court. But your news, my friend, your news!

The sooner, friend, one learns Prince Berthold's pleasure,

The better for us all: how writes the Prince?

Give me! I'll read it for the common good.

Gui. In time, sir, — but till time comes, pardon me!

Our old Duke just disclosed his child's retreat,
 Declared her true succession to his rule,
 And died: this birthday was the day, last year,
 We convoyed her from Castle Ravestein —
 That sleeps out trustfully its extreme age
 On the Meuse' quiet bank, where she lived queen
 Over the water-buds, — to Juliers' court
 With joy and bustle. Here again we stand;
 Sir Gaucelme's buckle's constant to his cap:
 To-day's much such another sunny day!

Gau. Come, Guibert, this outgrows a jest, I think!
 You're hardly such a novice as to need
 The lesson, you pretend.

Gui. What lesson, sir?
 That everybody, if he'd thrive at court,
 Should, first and last of all, look to himself?
 Why, no: and therefore with your good example,
 (— Ho, Master Adolf!) — to myself I'll look.

Enter ADOLF.

Gui. The Prince's letter; why, of all men else,
 Comes it to me?

Adolf. By virtue of your place,
 Sir Guibert! 'Twas the Prince's express charge,
 His envoy told us, that the missive there
 Should only reach our lady by the hand
 Of whosoever held your place.

Gui. Enough! [ADOLF retires.
 Then, gentles, who'll accept a certain poor
 Indifferently honorable place,
 My friends, I make no doubt, have gnashed their teeth
 At leisure minutes these half-dozen years,
 To find me never in the mood to quit?
 Who asks may have it, with my blessing, and —
 This to present our lady. Who'll accept?
 You, — you, — you? There it lies, and may, for me!

Mau. [a youth, picking up the paper, reads aloud.] "Prince
 Berthold, proved by titles following
 Undoubted Lord of Juliers, comes this day
 To claim his own, with license from the Pope,
 The Emperor, the Kings of Spain and France" . . .

Gau. Sufficient "titles following," I judge!
 Don't read another! Well, — "to claim his own?"

Mau. "— And take possession of the Duchy held
 Since twelve months, to the true heir's prejudice,
 By" . . . Colombe, Juliers' mistress, so she thinks,
 And Ravestein's mere lady, as we find! —

Who wants the place and paper? Guibert's right.
 I hope to climb a little in the world, —
 I'd push my fortunes, — but, no more than he,
 Could tell her on this happy day of days,
 That, save the nosegay in her hand, perhaps,
 There's nothing left to call her own. Sir Clugnet,
 You famish for promotion; what say you?

Clug. [an old man.] To give this letter were a sort, I take it,
 Of service: services ask recompense:
 What kind of corner may be Ravestein?

Gui. The castle? Oh, you'd share her fortunes? Good!
 Three walls stand upright, full as good as four,
 With no such bad remainder of a roof.

Clug. Oh, — but the town?

Gui. Five houses, fifteen huts;
 A church whereto was once a spire, 't is judged;
 And half a dyke, except in time of thaw.

Clug. Still, there's some revenue?

Gui. Else Heaven forfend!

You hang a beacon out, should fogs increase;
 So, when the Autumn floats of pine-wood steer
 Safe 'mid the white confusion, thanks to you,
 Their grateful raftsmen fling a guilder in;
 — That's if he mean to pass your way next time.

Clug. If not?

Gui. Hang guilders, then! he blesses you.

Clug. What man do you suppose me? Keep your paper!
 And, let me say, it shows no handsome spirit
 To dally with misfortune: keep your place!

Gau. Some one must tell her.

Gui. Some one may: you may!

Gau. Sir Guibert, 't is no trifle turns me sick
 Of court-hypocrisy at years like mine,
 But this goes near it. Where's there news at all?
 Who'll have the face, for instance, to affirm
 He never heard, e'en while we crowned the girl,
 That Juliers' tenure was by Salic law;
 That one, confessed her father's cousin's child,
 And, she away, indisputable heir,
 Against our choice protesting and the Duke's,
 Claimed Juliers? — nor, as he preferred his claim,
 That first this, then another potentate,
 Inclined to its allowance? — I or you,
 Or any one except the lady's self?
 Oh, it had been the direst cruelty
 To break the business to her! Things might change:

At all events, we 'd see next masque at end,
 Next mummery over first: and so the edge
 Was taken off sharp tidings as they came,
 Till here 's the Prince upon us, and there 's she
 — Wreathing her hair, a song between her lips,
 With just the faintest notion possible
 That some such claimant earns a livelihood
 About the world, by feigning grievances —
 Few pay the story of, but grudge its price,
 And fewer listen to, a second time.

Your method proves a failure; now try mine!
 And, since this must be carried . . .

Gui. [snatching the paper from him.] By your leave!
 Your zeal transports you! 'T will not serve the Prince
 So much as you expect, this course you 'd take.

If she leaves quietly her palace, — well;

But if she died upon its threshold, — no:

He'd have the trouble of removing her.

Come, gentles, we 're all — what the devil knows!

You, Gaucelme, won't lose character, beside —

You broke your father's heart superiorly

To gather his succession — never blush!

You're from my province, and, be comforted,

They tell of it with wonder to this day.

You can afford to let your talent sleep.

We'll take the very worst supposed, as true:

There, the old Duke knew, when he hid his child

Among the river-flowers at Ravestein,

With whom the right lay! Call the Prince our Duke!

There, she's no Duchess, she's no anything

More than a young maid with the bluest eyes:

And now, sirs, we'll not break this young maid's heart

Coolly as Gaucelme could and would! No haste!

His talent's full-blown, ours but in the bud:

We'll not advance to his perfection yet —

Will we, Sir Maufroy? See, I've ruined Maufroy

Forever as a courtier!

Gau.

Here's a coil!

And, count us, will you? Count its residue,

This boasted convoy, this day last year's crowd!

A birthday, too, a gratulation day!

I'm dumb: bid that keep silence!

Mau. and others.

Eh, Sir Guibert?

He's right: that does say something: that's bare truth.

Ten — twelve, I make: a perilous dropping off!

Gui. Pooh — is it audience hour? The vestibule

Swarms too, I wager, with the common sort
That want our privilege of entry here.

Gau. Adolf! [Re-enter ADOLF.] Who's outside?

Gui. Oh, your looks suffice!

Nobody waiting?

Mau. [looking through the door-folds.] Scarce our number!

Gui. 'Sdeath!

Nothing to beg for, to complain about?

It can't be! Ill news spreads, but not so fast

As thus to frighten all the world!

Gau. The world

Lives out of doors, sir — not with you and me

By presence-chamber porches, state-room stairs,

Wherever warmth's perpetual: outside's free

To every wind from every compass-point

And who may get nipped needs be weather-wise.

The Prince comes and the lady's People go;

The snow-geese settles down, the swallows flee —

Why should they wait for winter-time? 'T is instinct:

Don't you feel somewhat chilly?

Gui. That's their craft?

And last year's crowders-round and criers-forth

That strewed the garlands, overarched the roads,

Lighted the bonfires, sang the loyal songs!

Well 't is my comfort, you could never call me

The People's Friend! The People keep their word —

I keep my place: don't doubt I'll entertain

The People when the Prince comes, and the People

Are talked of! Then, their speeches — no one tongue

Found respite, not a pen had holiday

— For they wrote, too, as well as spoke, these knaves!

Now see: we tax and tithè them, pill and poll,

They wince and fret enough, but pay they must

— We manage that, — so, pay with a good grace

They might as well, it costs so little more.

But when we've done with taxes, meet folk next

Outside the toll-booth and the rating-place,

In public — there they have us if they will,

We're at their mercy after that, you see!

For one tax not ten devils could extort —

Over and above necessity, a grace;

This prompt disbosoming of love, to wit —

Their vine-leaf wrappage of our tribute penny,

And crowning attestation, all works well.

Yet this precisely do they thrust on us!

These cappings quick, these crook-and-erings low,

Hand to the heart, and forehead to the knee,
 With grin that shuts the eyes and opes the mouth —
 So tender they their love ; and, tender made,
 Go home to curse us, the first doit we ask.
 As if their souls were any longer theirs !
 As if they had not given ample warrant
 To who should clap a collar on their neck,
 Rings in their nose, a goad to either flank,
 And take them for the brute they boast themselves !
 Stay — there 's a bustle at the outer door —
 And somebody entreating . . . that 's my name !
 Adolf, — I heard my name !

Adolf. 'T was probably

The suitor.

Gui. Oh, there is one ?

Adolf. With a suit

He 'd fain enforce in person.

Gui. The good heart

— And the great fool ! Just ope the mid-door's fold !
 Is that a lappet of his cloak, I see ?

Adolf. If it bear plenteous sign of travel . . . ay,
 The very cloak my comrades tore !

Gui. Why tore ?

Adolf. He seeks the Duchess' presence in that trim :
 Since daybreak, was he posted hereabouts
 Lest he should miss the moment.

Gui. Where 's he now ?

Adolf. Gone for a minute possibly, not more :
 They have ado enough to thrust him back.

Gui. Ay — but my name, I caught ?

Adolf. Oh, sir — he said

— What was it ? — You had known him formerly,
 And, he believed, would help him did you guess
 He waited now ; you promised him as much :
 The old plea ! 'Faith, he 's back, — renews the charge !
 [Speaking at the door.] So long as the man parleys, peace outside —

Nor be too ready with your halberts, there !

Gau. My horse bespattered, as he blocked the path
 A thin sour man, not unlike somebody.

Adolf. He holds a paper in his breast, whereon
 He glances when his cheeks flush and his brow
 At each repulse —

Gau. I noticed he 'd a brow.

Adolf. So glancing, he grows calmer, leans awhile
 Over the balustrade, adjusts his dress,

And presently turns round, quiet again,
 With some new pretext for admittance. — Back!
 [To GUIBERT.] — Sir, he has seen you! Now cross halberts!

Ha —

Pascal is prostrate — there lies Fabian too!
 No passage! Whither would the madman press?
 Close the doors quick on me!

Gui.

Too late! He's here.

Enter, hastily and with discomposed dress, VALENCE.

Val. Sir Guibert, will you help me? — Me, that come
 Charged by your townsmen, all who starve at Cleves,
 To represent their heights and depths of woe
 Before our Duchess and obtain relief!
 Such errands barricade such doors, it seems:
 But not a common hindrance drives me back
 On all the sad yet hopeful faces, lit
 With hope for the first time, which sent me forth.
 Cleves, speak for me! Cleves' men and women, speak!
 Who followed me — your strongest — many a mile
 That I might go the fresher from their ranks,
 — Who sit — your weakest — by the city gates,
 To take me fuller of what news I bring
 As I return — for I must needs return!
 — Can I? 'T were hard, no listener for their wrongs,
 To turn them back upon the old despair —
 Harder, Sir Guibert, than imploring thus —
 So, I do — any way you please — implore!
 If you . . . but how should you remember Cleves?
 Yet they of Cleves remember you so well!
 Ay, comment on each trait of you they keep,
 Your words and deeds caught up at second hand, —
 Proud, I believe, at bottom of their hearts,
 O' the very levity and recklessness
 Which only prove that you forget their wrongs.
 Cleves, the grand town, whose men and women starve,
 Is Cleves forgotten? Then, remember me!
 You promised me that you would help me once
 For other purpose: will you keep your word?

Gui. And who may you be, friend?

Val.

Valence of Cleves.

Gui. Valence of . . . not the advocate of Cleves,
 I owed my whole estate to, three years back?
 Ay, well may you keep silence! Why, my lords,
 You've heard, I'm sure, how, Pentecost three years,
 I was so nearly ousted of my land
 By some knave's-pretext — (eh? when you refused me

Your ugly daughter, Clugnet!) — and you've heard
 How I recovered it by miracle
 — (When I refused her!) Here's the very friend,
 — Valence of Cleves, all parties have to thank!
 Nay, Valence, this procedure's vile in you!
 I'm no more grateful than a courtier should,
 But politic am I — I bear a brain,
 Can cast about a little, might require
 Your services a second time. I tried
 To tempt you with advancement here to court
 — “No!” — well, for curiosity at least
 To view our life here — “No!” — our Duchess, then, —
 A pretty woman's worth some pains to see,
 Nor is she spoiled, I take it, if a crown
 Complete the forehead pale and tresses pure . . .

Val. Our city trusted me its miseries,
 And I am come.

Gui. So much for taste! But “come,” —
 So may you be, for anything I know,
 To beg the Pope's cross, or Sir Clugnet's daughter,
 And with an equal chance you get all three!
 If it was ever worth your while to come,
 Was not the proper way worth finding too?

Val. Straight to the palace-portal, sir, I came —

Gui. — And said? —

Val. — That I had brought the miseries
 Of a whole city to relieve.

Gui. — Which saying
 Won your admittance? You saw me, indeed,
 And here, no doubt, you stand: as certainly,
 My intervention, I shall not dispute,
 Procures you audience; which, if I procure, —
 That paper's closely written — by Saint Paul,
 Here flock the Wrongs, follow the Remedies,
 Chapter and verse, One, Two, A, B and C!
 Perhaps you'd enter, make a reverence,
 And launch these “miseries” from first to last?

Val. How should they let me pause or turn aside?

Gau. [to VALENCE.] My worthy sir, one question! You've come straight
 From Cleves, you tell us: heard you any talk
 At Cleves about our lady?

Val. Much.

Gau. And what?

Val. Her wish was to redress all wrongs she knew.

Gau. That, you believed?

Val. You see me, sir!

Gau. — Nor stopped

Upon the road from Cleves to Juliers here,
For any — rumors you might find afloat?

Val. I had my townsmen's wrongs to busy me.

Gau. This is the lady's birthday, do you know?

— Her day of pleasure?

Val. — That the great, I know,

For pleasure born, should still be on the watch

To exclude pleasure when a duty offers :

Even as, for duty born, the lowly too

May ever snatch a pleasure if in reach :

Both will have plenty of their birthright, sir!

Gau. [Aside to GUIBERT.] Sir Guibert, here's your man!

No scruples now —

You'll never find his like! Time presses hard.

I've seen your drift and Adolf's too, this while,

But you can't keep the hour of audience back

Much longer, and at noon the Prince arrives.

[Pointing to VALENCE.] Entrust him with it — fool no chance

away!

Gui. Him?

Gau. — With the missive! What's the man to her?

Gui. No bad thought! — Yet, 't is yours, who ever played

The tempting serpent: else 't were no bad thought!

I should — and do — mistrust it for your sake,

Or else . . .

Enter an Official who communicates with ADOLF.

Adolf. The Duchess will receive the court!

Gui. Give us a moment, Adolf! Valence, friend,

I'll help you. We of the service, you're to mark,

Have special entry, while the herd . . . the folk

Outside, get access through our help alone;

— Well, it is so, was so, and I suppose

So ever will be: your natural lot is, therefore,

To wait your turn and opportunity,

And probably miss both. Now, I engage

To set you, here and in a minute's space,

Before the lady, with full leave to plead

Chapter and verse, and A, and B, and C,

To heart's content.

Val. I grieve that I must ask, —

This being, yourself admit, the custom here, —

To what the price of such a favor mounts?

Gui. Just so! You're not without a courtier's tact.

Little at court, as your quick instinct prompts,
Do such as we without a recompense.

Val. Yours is? —

Gui.

A trifle : here 's a document

'T is some one's duty to present her Grace —

I say, not mine — these say, not theirs — such points
Have weight at court. Will you relieve us all

And take it? Just say, "I am bidden lay

This paper at the Duchess' feet!"

Val.

No more?

I thank you, sir!

Adolf.

Her Grace receives the court!

Gui. [Aside.] Now, sursum corda, quoth the mass-priest!

Do —

Whoever 's my kind saint, do let alone

These pushings to and fro, and pullings back;

Peaceably let me hang o' the devil's arm

The downward path, if you can't pluck me off

Completely! Let me live quite his, or yours!

[The Courtiers begin to range themselves, and move toward the door.

After me, Valence! So, our famous Cleves

Lacks bread? Yet don't we gallants buy their lace?

And dear enough — it beggars me, I know,

To keep my very gloves fringed properly.

This, Valence, is our Great State Hall you cross;

Yon gray urn's veritable marcasite,

The Pope's gift: and those salvers testify

The Emperor. Presently you'll set your foot

. . . But you don't speak, friend Valence!

Val.

I shall speak.

Gau. [Aside to GUIBERT.] Guibert — it were no such un-graceful thing

If you and I, at first, seemed horror-struck

With the bad news. Look here, what you shall do!

Suppose you, first, clap hand to sword and cry

"Yield strangers our allegiance? First I'll perish

Beside your Grace!" — and so give me the cue

To . . .

Gui. — Clap your hand to note-book and jot down

That to regale the Prince with? I conceive.

[To VALENCE.] Do, Valence, speak, or I shall half suspect

You're plotting to supplant us, me the first,

I' the lady's favor! Is't the grand harangue

You mean to make, that thus engrosses you?

— Which of her virtues you'll apostrophize?

Or is't the fashion you aspire to start,

Of that close-curved, not unbecoming hair?
Or what else ponder you?

Val.

My townsmen's wrongs.

ACT II.

Noon. SCENE. The Presence-chamber.

The DUCHESS and SABYNE.

The D. Announce that I am ready for the court!

Sab. 'T is scarcely audience-hour, I think; your Grace
May best consult your own relief, no doubt,
And shun the crowd: but few can have arrived.

The D. Let those not yet arrived, then, keep away!
'T was me, this day last year at Ravestein,
You hurried. It has been full time, beside,
This half-hour. Do you hesitate?

Sab.

Forgive me!

The D. Stay, Sabyne; let me hasten to make sure
Of one true thanker: here with you begins
My audience, claim you first its privilege!
It is my birth's event they celebrate:
You need not wish me more such happy days,
But — ask some favor! Have you none to ask?
Has Adolf none, then? this was far from least
Of much I waited for impatiently,
Assure yourself! It seemed so natural
Your gift, beside this bunch of river-bells,
Should be the power and leave of doing good
To you, and greater pleasure to myself.
You ask my leave to-day to marry Adolf?
The rest is my concern.

Sab.

Your Grace is ever

Our lady of dear Ravestein, — but, for Adolf . . .

The D. "But"? You have not, sure, changed in your regard

And purpose towards him?

Sab.

We change?

The D.

Well then? Well?

Sab. How could we two be happy, and, most like,
Leave Juliers, when — when . . . but 't is audience-time!

The D. "When, if you left me, I were left indeed!"

Would you subjoin that? — Bid the court approach!

— Why should we play thus with each other, Sabyne?

Do I not know, if courtiers prove remiss,

If friends detain me, and get blame for it,
There is a cause? Of last year's fervid throng
Scarce one half comes now.

Sab. [Aside.] One half? No, alas!

The D. So can the mere suspicion of a cloud
Over my fortunes, strike each loyal heart.
They've heard of this Prince Berthold; and, forsooth,
Some foolish arrogant pretence he makes,
May grow more foolish and more arrogant,
They please to apprehend! I thank their love.
Admit them!

Sab. [Aside.] How much has she really learned?

The D. Surely, whoever's absent, Tristan waits?
— Or at least Romuald, whom my father raised
From nothing — come, he's faithful to me, come!
(Sabyne, I should but be the prouder — yes,
The fitter to comport myself aright)
Not Romuald? Xavier — what said he to that?
For Xavier hates a parasite, I know!

[SABYNE goes out.]

The D. Well, sunshine's everywhere, and summer too.
Next year 't is the old place again, perhaps —
The water-breeze again, the birds again.
— It cannot be! It is too late to be!
What part had I, or choice in all of it?
Hither they brought me; I had not to think
Nor care, concern myself with doing good
Or ill, my task was just — to live, — to live,
And, answering ends there was no need explain,
To render Juliers happy — so they said.
All could not have been falsehood: some was love,
And wonder and obedience. I did all
They looked for: why then cease to do it now?
Yet this is to be calmly set aside,
And — ere next birthday's dawn, for aught I know,
Things change, a claimant may arrive, and I . . .
It cannot nor it shall not be! His right?
Well then, he has the right, and I have not,
— But who bade all of you surround my life
And close its growth up with your ducal crown
Which, plucked off rudely, leaves me perishing?
I could have been like one of you, — loved, hoped,
Feared, lived and died like one of you — but you
Would take that life away and give me this,
And I will keep this! I will face you! Come!

Enter the Courtiers and VALENCE.

The Courtiers. Many such happy mornings to your Grace.

The D. [Aside, as they pay their devoir.] The same words, the same faces, — the same love!

I have been overfearful. These are few; —
But these, at least, stand firmly: these are mine.

As many come as may; and if no more,
'T is that these few suffice — they do suffice!

What succor may not next year bring me? Plainly,
I feared too soon. [To the Courtiers.] I thank you, sirs: all thanks!

Val. [Aside, as the DUCHESS passes from one group to another, conversing.] 'T is she — the vision this day last year brought,

When, for a golden moment at our Cleves,
She tarried in her progress hither. Cleves

Chose me to speak its welcome, and I spoke
— Not that she could have noted the recluse

— Ungainly, old before his time — who gazed.

Well, Heaven's gifts are not wasted, and that gaze
Kept, and shall keep me to the end, her own!

She was above it — but so would not sink

My gaze to earth! The People caught it, hers —
Thenceforward, mine; but thus entirely mine,

Who shall affirm, had she not raised my soul

Ere she retired and left me — them? She turns —

There's all her wondrous face at once! The ground

Reels and . . . [suddenly occupying himself with his paper.]

These wrongs of theirs I have to plead!

The D. [to the Courtiers.] Nay, compliment enough! and kindness' self

Should pause before it wish me more such years.

'T was fortunate that thus, ere youth escaped,

I tasted life's pure pleasure — one such, pure,

Is worth a thousand, mixed — and youth's for pleasure:

Mine is received; let my age pay for it.

Gau. So, pay, and pleasure paid for, thinks your Grace,
Should never go together?

Gui. How, Sir Gaucelme?

Hurry one's feast down unenjoyingly

At the snatched breathing-intervals of work?

As good you saved it till the dull day's-end

When, stiff and sleepy, appetite is gone.

Eat first, then work upon the strength of food!

The D. True: you enable me to risk my future,
By giving me a past beyond recall.

I lived, a girl, one happy leisure year :
 Let me endeavor to be the Duchess now !
 And so, — what news, Sir Guibert, spoke you of ?

[As they advance a little, and GUIBERT speaks —
 — That gentleman ?

Val. [Aside.] I feel her eyes on me.

Gui. [to VALENCE.] The Duchess, sir, inclines to hear your suit.

Advance ! He is from Cleves.

Val. [coming forward.] [Aside.] Their wrongs — their wrongs !

The D. And you, sir, are from Cleves ? How fresh in mind,
 The hour or two I passed at queenly Cleves !
 She entertained me bravely, but the best
 Of her good pageant seemed its standers-by
 With insuppressive joy on every face !
 What says my ancient famous happy Cleves ?

Val. Take the truth, lady — you are made for truth !

So think my friends : nor do they less deserve
 The having you to take it, you shall think,
 When you know all — nay, when you only know
 How, on that day you recollect at Cleves,
 When the poor acquiescing multitude
 Who thrust themselves with all their woes apart
 Into unnoticed corners, that the few,
 Their means sufficed to muster trappings for,
 Might fill the foreground, occupy your sight
 With joyous faces fit to bear away
 And boast of as a sample of all Cleves
 — How, when to daylight these crept out once more,
 Clutching, unconscious, each his empty rags
 Whence the scant coin, which had not half bought bread,
 That morn he shook forth, counted piece by piece,
 And, well-advisedly, on perfumes spent them
 To burn, or flowers to strew, before your path
 — How, when the golden flood of music and bliss
 Ebb'd, as their moon retreated, and again
 Left the sharp black-point rocks of misery bare
 — Then I, their friend, had only to suggest “ Saw she the horror as she saw the pomp ! ”
 And as one man they cried “ He speaks the truth :
 Show her the horror ! Take from our own mouths
 Our wrongs and show them, she will see them too ! ”
 This they cried, lady ! I have brought the wrongs.

The D. Wrongs ? Cleves has wrongs — apparent now and thus ?

I thank you ! In that paper ? Give it me !

Val. (There, Cleves!) In this! (What did I promise, Cleves?)
 Our weavers, clothiers, spinners are reduced
 Since . . . Oh, I crave your pardon! I forget
 I buy the privilege of this approach,
 And promptly would discharge my debt. I lay
 This paper humbly at the Duchess' feet.

[Presenting GUIBERT's paper.]

Gui. Stay! for the present . . .

The D. Stay, sir? I take aught
 That teaches me their wrongs with greater pride
 Than this your ducal circlet. Thank you, sir!

[The DUCHESS reads hastily; then, turning to the Courtiers—

What have I done to you? Your deed or mine
 Was it, this crowning me? I gave myself
 No more a title to your homage, no,
 Than church-flowers, born this season, wrote the words
 In the saint's-book that sanctified them first.

For such a flower, you plucked me; well, you erred —
 Well, 't was a weed; remove the eye-sore quick!

But should you not remember it has lain
 Steeped in the candles' glory, palely shrined,
 Nearer God's Mother than most earthly things?
 — That if 't be faded 't is with prayer's sole breath —

That the one day it boasted was God's day?

Still, I do thank you! Had you used respect,

Here might I dwindle to my last white leaf,

Here lose life's latest freshness, which even yet

May yield some wandering insect rest and food:

So, fling me forth, and — all is best for all!

[After a pause.] Prince Berthold, who art Juliers' Duke it seems —

The King's choice, and the Emperor's, and the Pope's —

Be mine, too! Take this People! Tell not me

Of rescripts, precedents, authorities,

— But take them, from a heart that yearns to give!

Find out their love, — I could not; find their fear, —

I would not; find their like, — I never shall,

Among the flowers!

[Taking off her coronet.]

Colombe of Ravestein

Thanks God she is no longer Duchess here!

Val. [advancing to GUIBERT.] Sir Guibert, knight, they call you — this of mine

Is the first step I ever set at court.

You dared make me your instrument, I find;

For that, so sure as you and I are men,

We reckon to the utmost presently :
 But as you are a courtier and I none,
 Your knowledge may instruct me. I, already,
 Have too far outraged, by my ignorance
 Of courtier-ways, this lady, to proceed
 A second step and risk addressing her :
 — I am degraded — you let me address !
 Out of her presence, all is plain enough
 What I shall do — but in her presence, too,
 Surely there's something proper to be done.
 [To the others.] You, gentles, tell me if I guess aright —
 May I not strike this man to earth ?

The Courtiers. [as GUIBERT springs forward, withholding him.] Let go !

— The clothiers' spokesman, Guibert ? Grace a churl ?

The D. [to VALENCE.] Oh, be acquainted with your party,
 sir !

He's of the oldest lineage Juliers boasts ;
 A lion crests him for a cognizance
 "Scorning to waver" — that's his 'scutcheon's word ;
 His office with the new Duke — probably
 The same in honor as with me ; or more,
 By so much as this gallant turn deserves.
 He's now, I dare say, of a thousand times
 The rank and influence that remain with her
 Whose part you take ! So, lest for taking it
 You suffer . . .

Val. I may strike him then to earth ?

Gui. [falling on his knee.] Great and dear lady, pardon me ! Hear once !

Believe me and be merciful — be just !
 I could not bring myself to give that paper
 Without a keener pang than I dared meet
 — And so felt Clugnet here, and Maufroy here
 — No one dared meet it. Protestation's cheap, —
 But, if to die for you did any good,
 [To GAUCELME.] Would not I die, sir ? Say your worst of me !
 But it does no good, that's the mournful truth.
 And since the hint of a resistance, even,
 Would just precipitate, on you the first,
 A speedier ruin — I shall not deny,
 Saving myself indubitable pain,
 I thought to give you pleasure (who might say ?) —
 By showing that your only subject found
 To carry the sad notice, was the man
 Precisely ignorant of its contents ;

A nameless, mere provincial advocate ;
 One whom 't was like you never saw before,
 Never would see again. All has gone wrong ;
 But I meant right, God knows, and you, I trust !

The D. A nameless advocate, this gentleman ?
 — (I pardon you, Sir Guibert !)

Gui. [rising, to VALENCE.] Sir, and you ?

Val. — Rejoice that you are lightened of a load.
 Now, you have only me to reckon with.

The D. One I have never seen, much less obliged ?

Val. Dare I speak, lady ?

The D. Dare you ! Heard you not
 I rule no longer ?

Val. Lady, if your rule
 Were based alone on such a ground as these [Pointing to the Courtiers.

Could furnish you, — abjure it ! They have hidden
 A source of true dominion from your sight.

The D. You hear them — no such source is left . . .

Val. Hear Cleves !

Whose haggard craftsmen rose to starve this day,
 Starve now, and will lie down at night to starve,
 Sure of a like to-morrow — but as sure
 Of a most unlike morrow-after-that,
 Since end things must, end howsoe'er things may.

What curbs the brute-force instinct in its hour ?

What makes — instead of rising, all as one,

And teaching fingers, so expert to wield

Their tool, the broadsword's play or carbine's trick,

— What makes that there 's an easier help, they think,

For you, whose name so few of them can spell,

Whose face scarce one in every hundred saw, —

You simply have to understand their wrongs,

And wrongs will vanish — so, still trades are plied,

And swords lie rusting, and myself stand here ?

There is a vision in the heart of each

Of justice, mercy, wisdom, tenderness

To wrong and pain, and knowledge of its cure :

And these embodied in a woman's form

That best transmits them, pure as first received,

From God above her, to mankind below.

Will you derive your rule from such a ground,

Or rather hold it by the suffrage, say,

Of this man — this — and this ?

The D. [after a pause.] You come from Cleves :

How many are at Cleves of such a mind ?

Val. [from his paper.] "We, all the manufacturers of Cleves —"

The D. Or stay, sir — lest I seem too covetous —
Are you my subject? such as you describe,
Am I to you, though to no other man?

Val. [from his paper.] — "Valence, ordained your Advocate at Cleves" —

The D. [replacing the coronet.] Then I remain Cleves' Duchess! Take you note,
While Cleves but yields one subject of this stamp,
I stand her lady till she waves me off!
For her sake, all the Prince claims I withhold;
Laugh at each menace; and, his power defying,
Return his missive with its due contempt! [Casting it away.]

Gui. [picking it up.] — Which to the Prince I will deliver, lady, (Note it down, Gaucelme) — with your message too!

The D. I think the office is a subject's, sir!
— Either . . . how style you him? — my special guarder
The Marshal's — for who knows but violence
May follow the delivery? — Or, perhaps,
My Chancellor's — for law may be to urge
On its receipt! — Or, even my Chamberlain's —
For I may violate established form!

[To VALENCE.] Sir, — for the half-hour till this service ends,
Will you become all these to me?

Val. [falling on his knee.] My liege!

The D. Give me! [The Courtiers present their badges of office.
[Putting them by.] Whatever was their virtue once,
They need new consecration. [Raising VALENCE.] Are you mine?

I will be Duchess yet!

[She retires.]

The Courtiers. Our Duchess yet!
A glorious lady! Worthy love and dread!
I'll stand by her, — and I, whate'er betide!

Gui. [to VALENCE.] Well done, well done, sir! I care not who knows,

You have done nobly and I envy you —
Though I am but unfairly used, I think:
For when one gets a place like this I hold,
One gets too the remark that its mere wages,
The pay and the preferment, make our prize.
Talk about zeal and faith apart from these,
We're laughed at — much would zeal and faith subsist
Without these also! Yet, let these be stopped,
Our wages discontinue, — then, indeed,

Our zeal and faith, (we hear on every side,)
 Are not released — having been pledged away
 I wonder, for what zeal and faith in turn?
 Hard money purchased me my place! No, no —
 I'm right, sir — but your wrong is better still,
 If I had time and skill to argue it.
 Therefore, I say, I'll serve you, how you please —
 If you like, — fight you, as you seem to wish —
 (The kinder of me that, in sober truth,
 I never dreamed I did you any harm) . . .

Gau. — Or, kinder still, you'll introduce, no doubt,
 His merits to the Prince who's just at hand,
 And let no hint drop he's made Chancellor
 And Chamberlain and Heaven knows what beside!

Clug. [to VALENCE.] You stare, young sir, and threaten! Let me say,
 That at your age, when first I came to court,
 I was not much above a gentleman;
 While now . . .

Val. — You are Head-Lackey? With your office
 I have not yet been graced, sir!

— Other Courtiers. [to Clugnet.] Let him talk!
 Fidelity, disinterestedness,
 Excuse so much! Men claim my worship ever
 Who staunchly and steadfastly . . .

Enter ADOLF.

Adolf. The Prince arrives.

Courtiers. Ha? How?

Adolf. He leaves his guard a stage behind
 At Aix, and enters almost by himself.

1st Court. The Prince! This foolish business puts all out.

2d Court. Let Gaucelme speak first!

3d Court. Better I began

About the state of Juliers: should one say
 All's prosperous and inviting him?

4th Court. — Or rather,

All's prostrate and imploring him?

5th Court. That's best.

Where's the Cleves' paper, by the way?

4th Court. [to VALENCE.] Sir — sir —

If you'll but lend that paper — trust it me,
 I'll warrant . . .

5th Court. Softly, sir — the Marshal's duty!

Clug. Has not the Chamberlain a hearing first
 By virtue of his patent?

Gau. Patents? — Duties?

All that, my masters, must begin again!
 One word composes the whole controversy:
 We're simply now — the Prince's!

The Others.

Ay — the Prince's!

Enter SABYNE.

Sab. Adolf! Bid . . . Oh, no time for ceremony!
 Where's whom our lady calls her only subject?
 She needs him. Who is here the Duchess's?

Val. [starting from his reverie.] Most gratefully I follow to her feet.

ACT III.

Afternoon. SCENE. The Vestibule.

Enter PRINCE BERTHOLD and MELCHIOR.

Berth. A thriving little burgh this Juliers looks.
 [Half-apart.] Keep Juliers, and as good you kept Cologne:
 Better try Aix, though! —

Mel.

Please 't your Highness speak?

Berth. [as before.] Aix, Cologne, Frankfort, — Milan; — Rome! —

Mel.

The Grave.

More weary seems your Highness, I remark,
 Than sundry conquerors whose path I've watched
 Through fire and blood to any prize they gain.
 I could well wish you, for your proper sake,
 Had met some shade of opposition here
 — Found a blunt seneschal refuse unlock,
 Or a scared usher lead your steps astray.
 You must not look for next achievement's palm
 So easily: this will hurt your conquering.

Berth. My next? Ay, as you say, my next and next!
 Well, I am tired, that's truth, and moody too,
 This quiet entrance-morning: listen why!
 Our little burgh, now, Juliers — 't is indeed
 One link, however insignificant,
 Of the great chain by which I reach my hope,
 — A link I must secure; but otherwise,
 You'd wonder I esteem it worth my grasp.
 Just see what life is, with its shifts and turns!
 It happens now — this very nook — to be
 A place that once . . . not a long while since, neither —
 When I lived an ambiguous hanger-on
 Of foreign courts, and bore my claims about,

Discarded by one kinsman, and the other
 A poor priest merely, — then, I say, this place
 Shone my ambition's object; to be Duke —
 Seemed then, what to be Emperor seems now.
 My rights were far from judged as plain and sure
 In those days as of late, I promise you:
 And 't was my day-dream, Lady Colombe here
 Might e'en compound the matter, pity me,
 Be struck, say, with my chivalry and grace
 (I was a boy!) — bestow her hand at length,
 And make me Duke, in her right if not mine.
 Here am I, Duke confessed, at Juliers now.
 Harken: if ever I be Emperor,
 Remind me what I felt and said to-day!

Mel. All this consoles a bookish man like me.
 — And so will weariness cling to you. Wrong,
 Wrong! Had you sought the lady's court yourself, —
 Faced the redoubtables composing it,
 Flattered this, threatened that man, bribed the other, —
 Pledged by writ and word and deed, your cause, —
 Conquered a footing inch by painful inch, —
 And, after long years' struggle, pounced at last
 On her for prize, — the right life had been lived,
 And justice done to divers faculties
 Shut in that brow. Yourself were visible
 As you stood victor, then; whom now — (your pardon!)
 I am forced narrowly to search and see,
 So are you hid by helps — this Pope, your uncle —
 Your cousin, the other King! You are a mind, —
 They, body: too much of mere legs-and-arms
 Obstructs the mind so! Match these with their like:
 Match mind with mind!

Berth. And where's your mind to match?
 They show me legs-and-arms to cope withal!
 I'd subjugate this city — where's its mind?

[The Courtiers enter slowly.]

Mel. Got out of sight when you came troops and all!
 And in its stead, here greets you flesh-and-blood:
 A smug economy of both, this first!

[As CLUGNET bows obsequiously.]

Well done, gout, all considered! — I may go?

Berth. Help me receive them!

Mel. Oh, they just will say

What yesterday at Aix their fellows said, —
 At Treves, the day before! Sir Prince, my friend,
 Why do you let your life slip thus? — Meantime,

I have my little Juliers to achieve —
 The understanding this tough Platonist,
 Your holy uncle disinterred, Amelius:
 Lend me a company of horse and foot,
 To help me through his tractate — gain my Duchy!

Berth. And Empire, after that is gained, will be — ?

Mel. To help me through your uncle's comment, Prince!

[Goes

Berth. Ah? Well: he o'er-refines — the scholar's fault!
 How do I let my life slip? Say, this life,
 I lead now, differs from the common life
 Of other men in mere degree, not kind,
 Of joys and griefs, — still there is such degree
 Mere largeness in a life is something, sure, —
 Enough to care about and struggle for,
 In this world: for this world, the size of things;
 The sort of things, for that to come, no doubt.
 A great is better than a little aim:
 And when I wooed Priscilla's rosy mouth
 And failed so, under that gray convent-wall,
 Was I more happy than I should be now

[By this time, the Courtiers are ranged before him.

If failing of my Empire? Not a whit.
 — Here comes the mind, it once had tasked me sore
 To baffle, but for my advantages!
 All's best as 't is: these scholars talk and talk.

[Seats himself.

The Courtiers. Welcome our Prince to Juliers! — to his heritage!

Our dutifullest service proffer we!

Clug. I, please your Highness, having exercised
 The function of Grand Chamberlain at court,
 With much acceptance, as men testify . . .

Berth. I cannot greatly thank you, gentlemen!
 The Pope declares my claim to the Duchy founded
 On strictest justice — you concede it, therefore,
 I do not wonder: and the kings my friends
 Protest they mean to see such claim enforced, —
 You easily may offer to assist.

But there's a slight discretionary power
 To serve me in the matter, you've had long,
 Though late you use it. This is well to say —
 But could you not have said it months ago?
 I'm not denied my own Duke's truncheon, true —
 'Tis flung me — I stoop down, and from the ground
 Pick it, with all you placid standers-by:

And now I have it, gems and mire at once,
Grace go with it to my soiled hands, you say!

Gui. (By Paul, the advocate our doughty friend Cuts the best figure!)

Gau. If our ignorance
May have offended, sure our loyalty . . .

Berth. Loyalty? Yours? Oh — of yourselves you speak!
I mean the Duchess all this time, I hope!

And since I have been forced repeat my claims
As if they never had been urged before,

As I began, so must I end, it seems.
The formal answer to the grave demand!

What says the lady?
Courtiers. [one to another.] 1st Court. Marshal! 2d Court.

Orator!
Gui. A variation of our mistress' way!

Wipe off his boots' dust, Clugnet! — that, he waits!

1st Court. Your place!
2d Court. Just now it was your own!

Gui. The devil's!
Berth. [to GUIBERT.] Come forward, friend — you with the paper, there!

Is Juliers the first city I've obtained?

By this time, I may boast proficiency
In each decorum of the circumstance.

Give it me as she gave it — the petition,
Demand, you style it! What's required, in brief?

What title's reservation, appanage's
Allowance? I heard all at Treves, last week.

Gau. [to GUIBERT.] "Give it him as she gave it!"
Gui. And why not?

[To BERTHOLD.] The lady crushed your summons thus together,

And bade me, with the very greatest scorn
So fair a frame could hold, inform you . . .

Courtiers. Stop — Idiot!

Gui. — Inform you she denied your claim,
Defied yourself! (I tread upon his heel,
The blustering advocate!)

Berth. By heaven and earth!
Dare you jest, sir?

Gui. Did they at Treves, last week?

Berth. [starting up.] Why then, I look much bolder than I knew,

And you prove better actors than I thought:

Since, as I live, I took you as you entered
 For just so many dearest friends of mine,
 Fled from the sinking to the rising power
 — The sneaking'st crew, in short, I e'er despised !
 Whereas, I am alone here for the moment,
 With every soldier left behind at Aix !
 Silence ? That means the worst ? I thought as much !
 What follows next then ?

Courtiers. Gracious Prince — he raves !

Gui. He asked the truth and why not get the truth ?

Berth. Am I a prisoner ? Speak, will somebody ?
 — But why stand paltering with imbeciles ?
 Let me see her, or . . .

Gui. Her, without her leave,
 Shall no one see : she's Duchess yet !

Courtiers. [Footsteps without, as they are disputing.] Good chance !

She's here — the Lady Colombe's self !

Berth. 'T is well !

[Aside.] Array a handful thus against my world ?
 Not ill done, truly ! Were not this a mind
 To match one's mind with ? Colombe ! Let us wait !
 I failed so, under that gray convent wall !
 She comes.

Gui. The Duchess ! Strangers, range yourselves !

[As the DUCHESS enters in conversation with VALENCE, BERTHOLD and the Courtiers fall back a little.]

The D. Presagefully it beats, presagefully,
 My heart : the right is Berthold's and not mine.

Val. Grant that he has the right, dare I mistrust
 Your power to acquiesce so patiently
 As you believe, in such a dream-like change
 Of fortune — change abrupt, profound, complete ?

The D. Ah, the first bitterness is over now !
 Bitter I may have felt it to confront
 The truth, and ascertain those natures' value
 I had so counted on ; that was a pang :
 But I did bear it, and the worst is over.
 Let the Prince take them !

Val. And take Juliers too ?
 — Your people without crosses, wands and chains —
 Only with hearts ?

The D. There I feel guilty, sir !
 I cannot give up what I never had :
 For I ruled these, not them — these stood between.
 Shall I confess, sir ? I have heard by stealth

Of Berthold from the first ; more news and more :
 Closer and closer swam the thunder cloud,
 But I was safely housed with these, I knew.
 At times when to the casement I would turn,
 At a bird's passage or a flower-trail's play,
 I caught the storm's red glimpses on its edge —
 Yet I was sure some one of all these friends
 Would interpose : I followed the bird's flight
 Or plucked the flower — some one would interpose !

Val. Not one thought on the People — and Cleves there !

The D. Now, sadly conscious my real sway was missed,
 Its shadow goes without so much regret :
 Else could I not again thus calmly bid you,
 Answer Prince Berthold !

Val. Then you acquiesce ?

The D. Remember over whom it was I ruled !

Gui. [stepping forward.] Prince Berthold, yonder, craves an audience, lady !

The D. [to VALENCE.] I only have to turn, and I shall face

Prince Berthold ! Oh, my very heart is sick !
 It is the daughter of a line of Dukes
 This scornful insolent adventurer
 Will bid depart from my dead father's halls !
 I shall not answer him — dispute with him —
 But, as he bids, depart ! Prevent it, sir !
 Sir — but a mere day's respite ! Urge for me
 — What I shall call to mind I should have urged
 When time's gone by — 't will all be mine, you urge !
 A day — an hour — that I myself may lay
 My rule down ! 'T is too sudden — must not be !
 The world's to hear of it ! Once done — forever !
 How will it read, sir ? How be sung about ?
 Prevent it !

Berth. [approaching.] Your frank indignation, lady,
 Cannot escape me ! Overbold I seem ;
 But somewhat should be pardoned my surprise
 At this reception, — this defiance, rather.
 And if, for their and your sake, I rejoice
 Your virtues could inspire a trusty few
 To make such gallant stand in your behalf,
 I cannot but be sorry, for my own,
 Your friends should force me to retrace my steps :
 Since I no longer am permitted speak
 After the pleasant peaceful course prescribed
 No less by courtesy than relationship —

Which I remember, if you once forgot.
 But never must attack pass unrepelled.
 Suffer that, through you, I demand of these,
 Who controverts my claim to Juliers ?

The D.

— Me

You say, you do not speak to —

Berth.

Of your subjects

I ask, then : whom do you accredit ? Where Stand those should answer ?

Val. [advancing.]

The lady is alone.

Berth. Alone, and thus ? So weak and yet so bold ?

Val. I said she was alone —

Berth.

And weak, I said.

Val. When is man strong until he feels alone ?

It was some lonely strength at first, be sure,
 Created organs, such as those you seek,
 By which to give its varied purpose shape :
 And, naming the selected ministrants,
 Took sword, and shield, and sceptre, — each, a man !
 That strength performed its work and passed its way :
 You see our lady : there, the old shapes stand !
 — A Marshal, Chamberlain, and Chancellor —
 “ Be helped their way, into their death put life
 And find advantage ! ” — so you counsel us.
 But let strength feel alone, seek help itself, —
 And, as the inland-hatched sea-creature hunts
 The sea's breast out, — as, littered 'mid the waves
 The desert-brute makes for the desert's joy,
 So turns our lady to her true resource,
 Passing o'er hollow fictions, worn-out types,
 — And I am first her instinct fastens on.
 And prompt I say, as clear as heart can speak,
 The People will not have you ; nor shall have !
 It is not merely I shall go bring Cleves
 And fight you to the last, — though that does much,
 And men and children, — ay, and women too,
 Fighting for home, are rather to be feared
 Than mercenaries fighting for their pay —
 But, say you beat us, since such things have been,
 And, where this Juliers laughed, you set your foot
 Upon a steaming bloody plash — what then ?
 Stand you the more our lord that there you stand ?
 Lord it o'er troops whose force you concentrate,
 A pillared flame whereto all ardors tend —
 Lord it 'mid priests whose schemes you amplify,
 A cloud of smoke 'neath which all shadows brood —

But never, in this gentle spot of earth,
 Can you become our Colombe, our play-queen,
 For whom, to furnish lilies for her hair,
 We'd pour our veins forth to enrich the soil!
 — Our conqueror? Yes! — Our despot? Yes! — Our Duke?
 Know yourself, know us!

Berth. [who has been in thought.] Know your lady, also!
 [Very deferentially.] — To whom I needs must exculpate myself

For having made a rash demand, at least.
 Wherefore to you, sir, who appear to be
 Her chief adviser, I submit my claims,
 But, this step taken, take no further step,
 Until the Duchess shall pronounce their worth.
 Here be our meeting-place; at night, its time:
 Till when I humbly take the lady's leave!

[Giving papers.]

[He withdraws. As the DUCHESS turns to VALENCE, the Courtiers interchange glances and come forward a little.]

1st Court. So, this was their device!

2d Court. No bad device!

3d Court. You'd say they love each other, Guibert's friend
 From Cleves, and she, the Duchess!

4th Court. — And moreover,
 That all Prince Berthold comes for, is to help
 Their loves!

5th Court. Pray, Guibert, what is next to do?

Gui. [advancing.] I laid my office at the Duchess' foot —

Others. And I — and I — and I!

The D. I took them, sirs.

Gui. [Apart to VALENCE.] And now, sir, I am simple knight
 again —

Guibert, of the great ancient house, as yet
 That never bore affront; whate'er your birth, —
 As things stand now, I recognize yourself
 (If you'll accept experience of some date)
 As like to be the leading man o' the time,
 Therefore as much above me now, as I
 Seemed above you this morning. Then, I offered
 To fight you: will you be as generous
 And now fight me?

Val. Ask when my life is mine!

Gui. ('Tis hers now!)

Clug. [Apart to VALENCE, as GUIBERT turns from him.]

You, sir, have insulted me

Grossly, — will grant me, too, the selfsame favor
 You've granted him, just now, I make no question?

Val. I promise you, as him, sir.

Clug.

Do you so?

Handsomely said! I hold you to it, sir.

You'll get me reinstated in my office

As you will Guibert!

The D.

I would be alone!

[They begin to retire slowly; as VALENCE is about to follow—
Alone, sir — only with my heart: you stay!

Gau. You hear that? Ah, light breaks upon me! Cleves —
It was at Cleves some man harangued us all —

With great effect, — so those who listened said,

My thoughts being busy elsewhere: was this he?

Guibert, — your strange, disinterested man!

Your uncorrupted, if uncourtly friend!

The modest worth you mean to patronize!

He cares about no Duchesses, not he —

His sole concern is with the wrongs of Cleves!

What, Guibert? What, it breaks on you at last?

Gui. Would this hall's floor were a mine's roof! I'd back
And in her very face . . .

Gau.

Apply the match

That fired the train, — and where would you be, pray?

Gui. With him!

Gau.

Stand, rather, safe outside with me!

The mine's charged: shall I furnish you the match

And place you properly? To the antechamber!

Gui. Can you?

Gau.

Try me! Your friend's in fortune!

Gui.

Quick —

To the antechamber! He is pale with bliss!

Gau. No wonder! Mark her eyes!

Gui.

To the antechamber!

[The Courtiers retire

The D. Sir, could you know all you have done for me
You were content! You spoke, and I am saved.

Val. Be not too sanguine, lady! Ere you dream,
That transient flush of generosity

Fades off, perchance! The man, beside, is gone, —

Him we might bend; but see, the papers here —

Inalterably his requirement stays,

And cold hard words have we to deal with now.

In that large eye there seemed a latent pride,

To self-denial not incompetent,

But very like to hold itself dispensed

From such a grace: however, let us hope!

He is a noble spirit in noble form.

I wish he less had bent that brow to smile
 As with the fancy how he could subject
 Himself upon occasion to — himself!
 From rudeness, violence, you rest secure;
 But do not think your Duchy rescued yet!

The D. You, — who have opened a new world to me,
 Will never take the faded language up
 Of that I leave? My Duchy — keeping it,
 Or losing it — is that my sole world now?

Val. Ill have I spoken if you thence despise
 Juliers; although the lowest, on true grounds,
 Be worth more than the highest rule, on false:
 Aspire to rule, on the true grounds!

The D. Nay, hear —
 False, I will never — rash, I would not be!
 This is indeed my birthday — soul and body,
 Its hours have done on me the work of years.
 You hold the requisition: ponder it!
 If I have right, my duty's plain: if he —
 Say so, nor ever change a tone of voice!
 At night you meet the Prince; meet me at eve!
 Till when, farewell! This discomposes you?
 Believe in your own nature, and its force
 Of renovating mine! I take my stand
 Only as under me the earth is firm:
 So, prove the first step stable, all will prove.
 That first, I choose — [laying her hand on his,] — the next to take, choose you! [She withdraws.]

Val. [after a pause.] What drew down this on me? — on me, dead once,
 She thus bids live, — since all I hitherto
 Thought dead in me, youth's ardors and emprise,
 Burst into life before her, as she bids
 Who needs them. Whither will this reach, where end?
 Her hand's print burns on mine . . . Yet she's above —
 So very far above me! All's too plain:
 I served her when the others sank away,
 And she rewards me as such souls reward —
 The changed voice, the suffusion of the cheek,
 The eye's acceptance, the expressive hand,
 — Reward, that's little, in her generous thought,
 Though all to me . . .

I cannot so disclaim
 Heaven's gift, nor call it other than it is!
 She loves me!

[Looking at the Prince's papers.] — Which love, these, perchance, forbid.

Can I decide against myself — pronounce
 She is the Duchess and no mate for me?
 — Cleves, help me! Teach me, — every haggard face, —
 To sorrow and endure! I will do right
 Whatever be the issue. Help me, Cleves!

ACT IV.

Evening. SCENE. An Antechamber.

Enter the Courtiers.

Mau. Now, then, that we may speak — how spring this mine?

Gau. Is Guibert ready for its match? He cools!
 Not so friend Valence with the Duchess there!
 “Stay, Valence! Are not you my better self?”
 And her cheek mantled —

Gui. Well, she loves him, sir:
 And more, — since you will have it I grow cool, —
 She's right: he's worth it.

Gau. For his deeds to-day?
 Say so!

Gui. What should I say beside?

Gau. Not this —
 For friendship's sake leave this for me to say —
 That we're the dupes of an egregious cheat!
 This plain unpractised suitor, who found way
 To the Duchess through the merest die's turn-up,
 A year ago had seen her and been seen,
 Loved and been loved.

Gui. Impossible!

Gau. — Nor say,
 How sly and exquisite a trick, moreover,
 Was this which — taking not their stand on facts
 Boldly, for that had been endurable,
 But worming on their way by craft, they choose
 Resort to, rather, — and which you and we,
 Sheep-like, assist them in the playing-off!
 The Duchess thus parades him as preferred,
 Not on the honest ground of preference,
 Seeing first, liking more, and there an end —
 But as we all had started equally,
 And at the close of a fair race he proved
 The only valiant, sage and loyal man.
 Herself, too, with the pretty fits and starts, —

The careless, winning, candid ignorance
 Of what the Prince might challenge or forego —
 She had a hero in reserve! What risk
 Ran she? This deferential easy Prince
 Who brings his claims for her to ratify
 — He's just her puppet for the nonce! You'll see, —
 Valence pronounces, as is equitable,
 Against him: off goes the confederate:
 As equitably, Valence takes her hand!

The Chancellor. You run too fast: her hand, no subject takes.
 Do not our archives hold her father's will?
 That will provides against such accident,
 And gives next heir, Prince Berthold, the reversion
 Of Juliers, which she forfeits, wedding so.

Gau. I know that, well as you, — but does the Prince?
 Knows Berthold, think you, that this plan, he helps,
 For Valence's ennoblement, — would end,
 If crowned with the success which seems its due,
 In making him the very thing he plays,
 The actual Duke of Juliers? All agree
 That Colombe's title waived or set aside,
 He is next heir.

The Chan. — Incontrovertibly.

Gau. Guibert, your match, now, to the train!

Gui. Enough!

I'm with you: selfishness is best again.
 I thought of turning honest — what a dream!
 Let's wake now!

Gau. Selfish, friend, you never were:
 'T was but a series of revenges taken
 On your unselfishness for prospering ill.
 But now that you're grown wiser, what's our course?

Gui. — Wait, I suppose, till Valence weds our lady,
 And then, if we must needs revenge ourselves,
 Apprise the Prince.

Gau. — The Prince, ere then dismissed
 With thanks for playing his mock part so well?
 Tell the Prince now, sir! Ay, this very night,
 Ere he accepts his dole and goes his way,
 Explain how such a marriage makes him Duke,
 Then trust his gratitude for the surprise!

Gui. — Our lady wedding Valence all the same
 As if the penalty were undisclosed?
 Good! If she loves, she'll not disown her love,
 Throw Valence up. I wonder you see that.

Gau. The shame of it — the suddenness and shame!

Within her, the inclining heart — without,
 A terrible array of witnesses —
 And Valence by, to keep her to her word,
 With Berthold's indignation or disgust!
 We'll try it! — Not that we can venture much.
 Her confidence we've lost forever: Berthold's
 Is all to gain.

Gui. To-night, then, venture we!

Yet — if lost confidence might be renewed?

Gau. Never in noble natures! With the base ones, —
 Twist off the crab's claw, wait a smarting-while,
 And something grows and grows and gets to be
 A mimic of the lost joint, just so like
 As keeps in mind it never, never will Replace its predecessor! Crabs do that:
 But lop the lion's foot — and . . .

Gui. To the Prince!

Gau. [Aside.] And come what will to the lion's foot, I pay
 you,

My cat's-paw, as I long have yearned to pay!

[Aloud.] Footsteps! Himself! 'Tis Valence breaks on us,
 Exulting that their scheme succeeds. We'll hence —
 And perfect ours! Consult the archives, first —
 Then, fortified with knowledge, seek the Hall!

Clug. [to GAUCELME as they retire.] You have not smiled
 so since your father died!

As they retire, enter VALENCE with papers.

Val. So must it be! I have examined these
 With scarce a palpitating heart — so calm,
 Keeping her image almost wholly off,
 Setting upon myself determined watch,
 Repelling to the uttermost his claims:
 And the result is — all men would pronounce,
 And not I, only, the result to be —
 Berthold is heir; she has no shade of right
 To the distinction which divided us,
 But, suffered to rule first, I know not why,
 Her rule connived at by those Kings and Popes,
 To serve some devil's-purpose, — now 't is gained,
 Whate'er it was, the rule expires as well.
 — Valence, this rapture . . . selfish can it be?
 Eject it from your heart, her home! — It stays!
 Ah, the brave world that opens on us both!
 — Do my poor townsmen so esteem it? Cleves, —
 I need not your pale faces! This, reward
 For service done to you? Too horrible!

I never served you : 't was myself I served —
 Nay, served not — rather saved from punishment
 Which, had I failed you then, would plague me now !
 My life continues yours, and your life, mine.
 But if, to take God's gift, I swerve no step —
 Cleves ! If I breathe no prayer for it — if she,

[Footsteps without.

Colombe, that comes now, freely gives herself —
 Will Cleves require, that, turning thus to her,
 I . . .

Enter PRINCE BERTHOLD.

Pardon, sir ! I did not look for you
 Till night, i' the Hall ; nor have as yet declared
 My judgment to the lady.

Berth. So I hoped.

Val. And yet I scarcely know why that should check
 The frank disclosure of it first to you —
 What her right seems, and what, in consequence,
 She will decide on.

Berth. That I need not ask.

Val. You need not : I have proved the lady's mind :
 And, justice being to do, dare act for her.

Berth. Doubtless she has a very noble mind.

Val. Oh, never fear but she 'll in each conjuncture
 Bear herself bravely ! She no whit depends
 On circumstance ; as she adorns a throne,
 She had adorned . . .

Berth. A cottage — in what book
 Have I read that, of every queen that lived ?
 A throne ! You have not been instructed, sure,
 To forestall my request ?

Val. 'T is granted, sir !
 My heart instructs me. I have scrutinized
 Your claims . . .

Berth. Ah — claims, you mean, at first preferred ?
 I come, before the hour appointed me,
 To pray you let those claims at present rest,
 In favor of a new and stronger one.

Val. You shall not need a stronger : on the part
 O' the lady, all you offer I accept,
 Since one clear right suffices : yours is clear.
 Propose !

Berth. I offer her my hand.

Val. Your hand ?

Berth. A Duke's, yourself say ; and, at no far time,
 Something here whispers me — an Emperor's.

The lady's mind is noble : which induced
This seizure of occasion : ere my claims
Were — settled, let us amicably say !

Val. Your hand !

Berth. (He will fall down and kiss it next !)

Sir, this astonishment's too flattering,
Nor must you hold your mistress' worth so cheap.
Enhance it, rather, — urge that blood is blood —
The daughter of the Burgraves, Landgraves, Markgraves,
Remains their daughter ! I shall scarce gainsay.
Elsewhere or here, the lady needs must rule :
Like the imperial crown's great chrysoprase,
They talk of — somewhat out of keeping there,
And yet no jewel for a meaner cap.

Val. You wed the Duchess ?

Berth. Cry you mercy, friend !

Will the match also influence fortunes here ?
A natural solicitude enough.
Be certain, no bad chance it proves for you !
However high you take your present stand,
There's prospect of a higher still remove —
For Juliers will not be my resting-place,
And, when I have to choose a substitute
To rule the little burgh, I'll think of you
Who need not give your mates a character.
And yet I doubt your fitness to supplant
The gray smooth Chamberlain : he'd hesitate
A doubt his lady could demean herself
So low as to accept me. Courage, sir !
I like your method better : feeling's play
Is franker much, and flatters me beside.

Val. I am to say, you love her ?

Berth.

Say that too !

Love has no great concernment, thinks the world,
With a Duke's marriage. How go precedents
In Juliers' story — how use Juliers' Dukes ?
I see you have them here in goodly row ;
Yon must be Luitpold — ay, a stalwart sire !
Say, I have been arrested suddenly
In my ambition's course, its rocky course,
By this sweet flower : I fain would gather it
And then proceed : so say and speedily
— (Nor stand there like Duke Luitpold's brazen self !)
Enough, sir : you possess my mind, I think.
This is my claim, the others being withdrawn,

And to this be it that, i' the Hall to-night,
Your lady's answer comes ; till when, farewell !

[He retires.]

Val. [after a pause.] The heavens and earth stay as they were ; my heart
Beats as it beat : the truth remains the truth.
What falls away, then, if not faith in her ?
Was it my faith, that she could estimate
Love's value, and, such faith still guiding me,
Dare I now test her ? Or grew faith so strong
Solely because no power of test was mine ?

Enter the DUCHESS.

The D. My fate, sir ! Ah, you turn away. All's over.
But you are sorry for me ? Be not so !
What I might have become, and never was,
Regret with me ! What I have merely been,
Rejoice I am no longer ! What I seem
Beginning now, in my new state, to be,
Hope that I am ! — for, once my rights proved void,
This heavy roof seems easy to exchange
For the blue sky outside — my lot henceforth.

Val. And what a lot is Berthold's !

The D. How of him ?

Val. He gathers earth's whole good into his arms ;
Standing, as man now, stately, strong and wise,
Marching to fortune, not surprised by her.
One great aim, like a guiding-star, above —
Which tasks strength, wisdom, stateliness, to lift
His manhood to the height that takes the prize ;
A prize not near — lest overlooking earth
He rashly spring to seize it — nor remote,
So that he rest upon his path content :
But day by day, while shimmering grows shine,
And the faint circlet prophesies the orb,
He sees so much as, just evolving these,
The stateliness, the wisdom and the strength,
To due completion, will suffice this life,
And lead him at his grandest to the grave.
After this star, out of a night he springs ;
A beggar's cradle for the throne of thrones
He quits ; so, mounting, feels each step he mounts,
Nor, as from each to each exultingly
He passes, overleaps one grade of joy.
This, for his own good : — with the world, each gift
Of God and man, — reality, tradition,
Fancy and fact — so well environ him,

That as a mystic panoply they serve —
 Of force, untenanted, to awe mankind,
 And work his purpose out with half the world,
 While he, their master, dexterously slipt
 From such encumbrance, is meantime employed
 With his own prowess on the other half.
 Thus shall he prosper, every day's success
 Adding, to what is he, a solid strength —
 An æry might to what encircles him,
 Till at the last, so life's routine lends help,
 That as the Emperor only breathes and moves,
 His shadow shall be watched, his step or stalk
 Become a comfort or a portent, how
 He trails his ermine take significance, —
 Till even his power shall cease to be most power,
 And men shall dread his weakness more, nor dare
 Peril their earth its bravest, first and best,
 Its typified invincibility.

Thus shall he go on, greatening, till he ends —
 The man of men, the spirit of all flesh,
 The fiery centre of an earthly world !

The D. Some such a fortune I had dreamed should rise
 Out of my own — that is, above my power
 Seemed other, greater potencies to stretch —

Val. For you?

The D. It was not I moved there, I think :
 But one I could, — though constantly beside,
 And aye approaching, — still keep distant from,
 And so adore. 'T was a man moved there.

Val. Who?

The D. I felt the spirit, never saw the face.

Val. See it ! 'T is Berthold's ! He enables you
 To realize your vision.

The D. Berthold ?

Val. Duke —

Emperor to be : he proffers you his hand.

The D. Generous and princely !

Val. He is all of this.

The D. Thanks, Berthold, for my father's sake. No hand
 Degrades me !

Val. You accept the proffered hand ?

The D. That he should love me !

Val. "Loved" I did not say.

Had that been — love might so incline the Prince
 To the world's good, the world that's at his foot, —
 I do not know, this moment, I should dare

Desire that you refused the world — and Cleves —
The sacrifice he asks.

The D. Not love me, sir ?

Val. He scarce affirmed it.

The D. May not deeds affirm ?

Val. What does he ? . . . Yes, yes, very much he does !

All the shame saved, he thinks, and sorrow saved —

Immitigable sorrow, so he thinks, —

Sorrow that 's deeper than we dream, perchance !

The D. Is not this love ?

Val. So very much he does !

For look, you can descend now gracefully :

All doubts are banished, that the world might have,

Or worst, the doubts yourself, in after-time,

May call up of your heart's sincereness now.

To such, reply, "I could have kept my rule —

Increased it to the utmost of my dreams —

Yet I abjured it." This, he does for you :

It is munificently much.

The D. Still "much !"

But why is it not love, sir ? Answer me !

Val. Because not one of Berthold's words and looks

Had gone with love's presentment of a flower

To the beloved : because bold confidence,

Open superiority, free pride —

Love owns not, yet were all that Berthold owned :

Because where reason, even, finds no flaw,

Unerringly a lover's instinct may.

The D. You reason, then, and doubt ?

Val.

I love, and know.

The D. You love ? How strange ! I never cast a thought

On that ! Just see our selfishness ! You seemed

So much my own . . . I had no ground — and yet,

I never dreamed another might divide

My power with you, much less exceed it.

Val.

Lady,

I am yours wholly.

The D. Oh, no, no, not mine !

'T is not the same now, never more can be.

— Your first love, doubtless. Well, what 's gone from me ?

What have I lost in you ?

Val.

My heart replies —

No loss there ! So, to Berthold back again :

This offer of his hand, he bids me make —

Its obvious magnitude is well to weigh.

The D. She 's . . . yes, she must be very fair for you !

Val. I am a simple advocate of Cleves.

The D. You! With the heart and brain that so helped me,
I fancied them exclusively my own,
Yet find are subject to a stronger sway!
She must be . . . tell me, is she very fair?

Val. Most fair, beyond conception or belief.

The D. Black eyes? — no matter! Colombe, the world leads
Its life without you, whom your friends professed
The only woman — see how true they spoke!
One lived this while, who never saw your face,
Nor heard your voice — unless . . . Is she from Cleves?

Val. Cleves knows her well.

The D. Ah — just a fancy, now!
When you poured forth the wrongs of Cleves, — I said,
— Thought, that is, afterward . . .

Val. You thought of me?

The D. Of whom else? Only such great cause, I thought,
For such effect: see what true love can do!
Cleves is his love. I almost fear to ask
. . . And will not. This is idling: to our work!
Admit before the Prince, without reserve,
My claims misgrounded; then may follow better
. . . When you poured out Cleves' wrongs impetuously,
Was she in your mind?

Val. All done was done for her
— To humble me!

The D. She will be proud at least.

Val. She?

The D. When you tell her.

Val. That will never be.

The D. How — are there sweeter things you hope to tell?
No, sir! You counselled me, — I counsel you
In the one point I — any woman — can.
Your worth, the first thing; let her own come next —
Say what you did through her, and she through you —
The praises of her beauty afterward!
Will you?

Val. I dare not.

The D. Dare not?

Val. She I love

Suspects not such a love in me.

The D. You jest.

Val. The lady is above me and away.
Not only the brave form, and the bright mind,
And the great heart, combine to press me low —
But all the world calls rank divides us.

The D.

Rank!

Now grant me patience! Here's a man declares
Oracularly in another's case —

Sees the true value and the false, for them —

Nay, bids them see it, and they straight do see.

You called my court's love worthless — so it turned:

I threw away as dross my heap of wealth,

And here you stickle for a piece or two!

First — has she seen you?

Val.

Yes.

The D.

She loves you, then.

Val. One flash of hope burst; then succeeded night:

And all's at darkest now. Impossible!

The D. We'll try: you are — so to speak — my subject
yet?

Val. As ever — to the death.

The D.

Obey me, then!

Val. I must.

The D.

Approach her, and . . . no! first of all

Get more assurance. "My instructress," say,

"Was great, descended from a line of kings,

And even fair" — (wait why I say this folly) —

"She said, of all men, none for eloquence,

Courage, and" (what cast even these to shade)

"The heart they sprung from, — none deserved like him

Who saved her at her need: if she said this,

What should not one I love, say?"

Val.

Heaven — this hope —

Oh, lady, you are filling me with fire!

The D. Say this! — nor think I bid you cast aside

One touch of all the awe and reverence;

Nay, make her proud for once to heart's content

That all this wealth of heart and soul's her own!

Think you are all of this, — and, thinking it,

. . . (Obey!)

Val.

I cannot choose.

The D.

Then, kneel to her!

[VALENCE sinks on his knee.

I dream!

Val. Have mercy! Yours, unto the death, —

I have obeyed. Despise, and let me die!

The D. Alas, sir, is it to be ever thus?

Even with you as with the world? I know

This morning's service was no vulgar deed

Whose motive, once it dares avow itself,

Explains all done and infinitely more,

So, takes the shelter of a nobler cause.

Your service named its true source, — loyalty!

The rest's unsaid again. The Duchess bids you,

Rise, sir! The Prince's words were in debate.

Val. [rising.] Rise? Truth, as ever, lady, comes from you!

I should rise — I who spoke for Cleves, can speak
For Man — yet tremble now, who stood firm then.

I laughed — for't was past tears — that Cleves should starve

With all hearts beating loud the infamy,

And no tongue daring trust as much to air:

Yet here, where all hearts speak, shall I be mute?

Oh, lady, for your own sake look on me!

On all I am, and have, and do — heart, brain,

Body and soul, — this Valence and his gifts!

I was proud once: I saw you, and they sank,

So that each, magnified a thousand times,

Were nothing to you — but such nothingness,

Would a crown gild it, or a sceptre prop,

A treasure speed, a laurel-wreath enhance?

What is my own desert? But should your love

Have . . . there's no language helps here . . . singled me, —

Then — oh, that wild word "then!" — be just to love,

In generosity its attribute!

Love, since you pleased to love! All's cleared — a stage

For trial of the question kept so long:

Judge you — Is love or vanity the best?

You, solve it for the world's sake — you, speak first

What all will shout one day — you, vindicate

Our earth and be its angel! All is said.

Lady, I offer nothing — I am yours:

But, for the cause's sake, look on me and him,

And speak!

The D. I have received the Prince's message:

Say, I prepare my answer!

Val.

Take me, Cleves!

[He withdraws]

The D. Mournful — that nothing's what it calls itself!

Devotion, zeal, faith, loyalty — mere love!

And, love in question, what may Berthold's be?

I did ill to mistrust the world so soon:

Already was this Berthold at my side.

The valley-level has its hawks no doubt:

May not the rock-top have its eagles, too?

Yet Valence . . . let me see his rival then!

ACT V.

Night. SCENE. The Hall.

Enter BERTHOLD and MELCHIOR.

Mel. And here you wait the matter's issue?

Berth.

Here.

Mel. I don't regret I shut Amelius, then.

But tell me, on this grand disclosure, — how
Behaved our spokesman with the forehead?

Berth.

Oh,

Turned out no better than the foreheadless —
Was dazzled not so very soon, that's all!
For my part, this is scarce the hasty showy
Chivalrous measure you give me credit of.
Perhaps I had a fancy, — but 't is gone.
— Let her commence the unfriended innocent
And carry wrongs about from court to court?
No, truly! The least shake of fortune's sand,
— My uncle-Pope chokes in a coughing fit,
King-cousin takes a fancy to blue eyes, —
And wondrously her claims would brighten up;
Forth comes a new gloss on the ancient law,
O'er-looked provisoes, o'er-past premises,
Follow in plenty. No: 't is the safe step.
The hour beneath the convent-wall is lost:
Juliers and she, once mine, are ever mine.

Mel. Which is to say, you, losing heart already,
Elude the adventure.

Berth.

Not so — or, if so —

Why not confess at once that I advise
None of our kingly craft and guild just now
To lay, one moment, down their privilege
With the notion they can any time at pleasure
Retake it: that may turn out hazardous.
We seem, in Europe, pretty well at end
O' the night, with our great masque: those favored few
Who keep the chamber's top, and honor's chance
Of the early evening, may retain their place
And figure as they list till out of breath.
But it is growing late: and I observe
A dim grim kind of tipstaves at the doorway
Not only bar new-comers entering now,
But caution those who left, for any cause,
And would return, that morning draws too near;

The ball must die off, shut itself up. We —
 I think, may dance lights out and sunshine in,
 And sleep off headache on our frippery :
 But friend the other, who cunningly stole out,
 And, after breathing the fresh air outside,
 Means to re-enter with a new costume,
 Will be advised go back to bed, I fear.
 I stick to privilege, on second thoughts.

Mel. Yes — you evade the adventure : and, beside,
 Give yourself out for colder than you are.
 King Philip, only, notes the lady's eyes ?
 Don't they come in for somewhat of the motive
 With you too ?

Berth. Yes — no : I am past that now.
 Gone 't is : I cannot shut my soul to fact.
 Of course, I might by forethought and contrivance
 Reason myself into a rapture. Gone :
 And something better come instead, no doubt.

Mel. So be it ! Yet, all the same, proceed my way,
 Though to your ends ; so shall you prosper best !
 The lady, — to be won for selfish ends, —
 Will be won easier my unselfish . . . call it,
 Romantic way.

Berth. Won easier ?

Mel. Will not she ?

Berth. There I profess humility without bound :
 Ill cannot speed — not I — the Emperor.

Mel. And I should think the Emperor best waived,
 From your description of her mood and way.
 You could look, if it pleased you, into hearts ;
 But are too indolent and fond of watching
 Your own — you know that, for you study it.

Berth. Had you but seen the orator her friend,
 So bold and voluble an hour before,
 Abashed to earth at aspect of the change !
 Make her an Empress ? Ah, that changed the case !
 Oh, I read hearts ! 'T is for my own behoof,
 I court her with my true worth : wait the event !
 I learned my final lesson on that head
 When years ago, — my first and last essay —
 Before the priest my uncle could by help
 Of his superior, raise me from the dirt —
 Priscilla left me for a Brabant lord
 Whose cheek was like the topaz on his thumb.
 I am past illusion on that score.

Mel. Here comes

The lady —

Berth. — And there you go. But do not! Give me
Another chance to please you! Hear me plead!

Mel. You'll keep, then, to the lover, to the man?

Enter the DUCHESS — followed by ADOLF and SABYNE, and, after an interval, by the Courtiers.

Berth. Good auspice to our meeting!

The D.

May it prove!

— And you, sir, will be Emperor one day?

Berth. (Ay, that's the point!) I may be Emperor.

The D. 'Tis not for my sake only, I am proud

Of this you offer: I am prouder far

That from the highest state should duly spring

The highest, since most generous, of deeds.

Berth. (Generous — still that!) You underrate yourself.

You are, what I, to be complete, must gain —

Find now, and may not find, another time.

While I career on all the world for stage,

There needs at home my representative.

The D. — Such, rather, would some warrior-woman be —

One dowered with lands and gold, or rich in friends —

One like yourself.

Berth. Lady, I am myself,

And have all these: I want what's not myself,

Nor has all these. Why give one hand two swords?

Here's one already: be a friend's next gift

A silk glove, if you will — I have a sword.

The D. You love me, then?

Berth.

Your lineage I revere,

Honor your virtue, in your truth believe,

Do homage to your intellect, and bow

Before your peerless beauty.

The D.

But, for love —

Berth. A further love I do not understand.

Our best course is to say these hideous truths,

And see them, once said, grow endurable:

Like waters shuddering from their central bed,

Black with the midnight bowels of the earth,

That, once up-spouted by an earthquake's throe,

A portent and a terror — soon subside,

Freshen apace, take gold and rainbow hues

In sunshine, sleep in shadow, and at last

Grow common to the earth as hills or trees —

Accepted by all things they came to scare.

The D. You cannot love, then?

Berth.

— Charlemagne, perhaps!

Are you not over-curious in love-lore?

The D. I have become so, very recently.
It seems, then, I shall best deserve esteem,
Respect, and all your candor promises,
By putting on a calculating mood —
Asking the terms of my becoming yours?

Berth. Let me not do myself injustice, neither.
Because I will not condescend to fictions
That promise what my soul can ne'er acquit,
It does not follow that my guarded phrase
May not include far more of what you seek,
Than wide profession of less scrupulous men.
You will be Empress, once for all: with me
The Pope disputes supremacy — you stand,
And none gainsays, the earth's first woman.

The D. That —
Or simple Lady of Ravestein again?

Berth. The matter's not in my arbitrament:
Now I have made my claims — which I regret —
Cede one, cede all.

The D. This claim then, you enforce?

Berth. The world looks on.

The D. And when must I decide?

Berth. When, lady? Have I said thus much so promptly
For nothing? — Poured out, with such pains, at once
What I might else have suffered to ooze forth
Droplet by droplet in a lifetime long —
For aught less than as prompt an answer, too?
All's fairly told now: who can teach you more?

The D. I do not see him.

Berth. I shall ne'er deceive.
This offer should be made befittingly
Did time allow the better setting forth
The good of it, with what is not so good,
Advantage, and disparagement as well:
But as it is, the sum of both must serve.
I am already weary of this place;
My thoughts are next stage on to Rome. Decide!
The Empire — or, — not even Juliers now!
Hail to the Empress — farewell to the Duchess!

[The Courtiers, who have been drawing nearer and nearer interpose.

Gau. — "Farewell," Prince? when we break in at our risk —

Clug. Almost upon court-license trespassing —

Gau. — To point out how your claims are valid yet!
You know not, by the Duke her father's will,
The lady, if she weds beneath her rank,

Forfeits her Duchy in the next heir's favor —
 So 't is expressly stipulate. And if
 It can be shown 't is her intent to wed
 A subject, then yourself, next heir, by right
 Succeed to Juliers.

Berth. What insanity? —

Gui. Sir, there 's one Valence, the pale fiery man
 You saw and heard this morning — thought, no doubt,
 Was of considerable standing here :
 I put it to your penetration, Prince,
 If aught save love, the truest love for her
 Could make him serve the lady as he did !
 He 's simply a poor advocate of Cleves
 — Creeps here with difficulty, finds a place
 With danger, gets in by a miracle,
 And for the first time meets the lady's face —
 So runs the story : is that credible ?
 For, first — no sooner in, than he 's apprised
 Fortunes have changed ; you are all-powerful here,
 The lady as powerless : he stands fast by her !

The D. [Aside.] And do such deeds spring up from love
 alone ?

Gui. But here occurs the question, does the lady
 Love him again? I say, how else can she?
 Can she forget how he stood singly forth
 In her defence, dared outrage all of us,
 Insult yourself — for what, save love's reward ?

The D. [Aside.] And is love then the sole reward of love ?

Gui. But, love him as she may and must — you ask,
 Means she to wed him? "Yes," both natures answer !
 Both, in their pride, point out the sole result ;
 Nought less would he accept nor she propose.
 For each conjuncture was she great enough
 — Will be, for this.

Clug. Though, now that this is known,
 Policy, doubtless, urges she deny . . .

The D. — What, sir, and wherefore? — since I am not sure
 That all is any other than you say !
 You take this Valence, hold him close to me,
 Him with his actions : can I choose but look ?
 I am not sure, love trulier shows itself
 Than in this man, you hate and would degrade,
 Yet, with your worst abatement, show me thus.
 Nor am I — (thus made look within myself,
 Ere I had dared) — now that the look is dared —
 Sure that I do not love him !

Gui.

Hear you, Prince?

Berth. And what, sirs, please you, may this prattle mean
Unless to prove with what alacrity
You give your lady's secrets to the world?
How much indebted, for discovering
That quality, you make me, will be found
When there's a keeper for my own to seek.

Courtiers. "Our lady?"

Berth.

— She assuredly remains.

The D. Ah, Prince — and you too can be generous?
You could renounce your power, if this were so,
And let me, as these phrase it, wed my love
Yet keep my Duchy? You perhaps exceed
Him, even, in disinterestedness!

Berth. How, lady, should all this affect my purpose?
Your will and choice are still as ever, free.
Say, you have known a worthier than myself
In mind and heart, of happier form and face —
Others must have their birthright: I have gifts,
To balance theirs, not blot them out of sight.
Against a hundred alien qualities,
I lay the prize I offer. I am nothing:
Wed you the Empire?

The D.

And my heart away?

Berth. When have I made pretension to your heart?
I give none. I shall keep your honor safe;
With mine I trust you, as the sculptor trusts
Yon marble woman with the marble rose,
Loose on her hand, she never will let fall,
In graceful, slight, silent security.
You will be proud of my world-wide career,
And I content in you the fair and good.
What were the use of planting a few seeds
The thankless climate never would mature —
Affections all repelled by circumstance?
Enough: to these no credit I attach, —
To what you own, find nothing to object.
Write simply on my requisition's face
What shall content my friends — that you admit,
As Colombe of Ravestein, the claims therein,
Or never need admit them, as my wife —
And either way, all's ended!

The D.

Let all end!

Berth. The requisition!

Gui.

— Valence holds, of course!

Berth. Desire his presence!

[ADOLF goes out.]

Courtiers. [to each other.] Out it all comes yet ;
 He'll have his word against the bargain yet ;
 He's not the man to tamely acquiesce.
 One passionate appeal — upbraiding even,
 May turn the tide again. Despair not yet ! [They retire a little.

Berth. [to MELCHIOR.] The Empire has its old success, my friend !

Mel. You've had your way : before the spokesman speaks,
 Let me, but this once, work a problem out,
 And ever more be dumb ! The Empire wins ?
 To better purpose have I read my books !

Enter VALENCE.

Mel. [to the Courtiers.] Apart, my masters !

[To VALENCE.] Sir, one word with you !

I am a poor dependant of the Prince's —
 Pitched on to speak, as of slight consequence.
 You are no higher, I find : in other words,
 We two, as probably the wisest here,
 Need not hold diplomatic talk like fools.
 Suppose I speak, divesting the plain fact
 Of all their tortuous phrases, fit for them ?
 Do you reply so, and what trouble saved !
 The Prince, then — an embroiled strange heap of news
 This moment reaches him — if true or false,
 All dignity forbids he should inquire
 In person, or by worthier deputy ;
 Yet somehow must inquire, lest slander come :
 And so, 't is I am pitched on. You have heard
 His offer to your lady ?

Val. Yes.

Mel. — Conceive
 Her joy thereat ?

Val. I cannot.

Mel. No one can.

All draws to a conclusion, therefore.

Val. [Aside.] So !

No after-judgment — no first thought revised —
 Her first and last decision ! — me, she leaves,
 Takes him ; a simple heart is flung aside,
 The ermine o'er a heartless breast embraced.
 Oh Heaven, this mockery has been played too oft !
 Once, to surprise the angels — twice, that fiends
 Recording, might be proud they chose not so —
 Thrice, many thousand times, to teach the world
 All men should pause, misdoubt their strength, since men
 Can have such chance yet fail so signally,

— But ever, ever this farewell to Heaven,
Welcome to earth — this taking death for life —
This spurning love and kneeling to the world —
Oh Heaven, it is too often and too old !

Mel. Well, on this point, what but an absurd rumor
Arises — these, its source — its subject, you !
Your faith and loyalty misconstruing,
They say, your service claims the lady's hand !
Of course, nor Prince nor lady can respond :
Yet something must be said : for, were it true
You made such claim, the Prince would . . .

Val. Well, sir, — would !

Mel. — Not only probably withdraw his suit,
But, very like, the lady might be forced
Accept your own. Oh, there are reasons why !
But you 'll excuse at present all save one, —
I think so. What we want is, your own witness,
For, or against — her good, or yours : decide !

Val. [Aside.] Be it her good if she accounts it so !
[After a contest.] For what am I but hers, to choose as she ?
Who knows how far, beside, the light from her
May reach, and dwell with, what she looks upon ?

Mel. [to the Prince.] Now to him, you !

Berth. [to VALENCE.] My friend acquaints you, sir,
The noise runs . . .

Val. — Prince, how fortunate are you,
Wedding her as you will, in spite of noise,
To show belief in love ! Let her but love you,
All else you disregard ! What else can be ?
You know how love is incompatible
With falsehood — purifies, assimilates
All other passions to itself.

Mel. Ay, sir :
But softly ! Where, in the object we select,
Such love is, perchance, wanting ?

Val. Then indeed,
What is it you can take ?

Mel. Nay, ask the world !
Youth, beauty, virtue, an illustrious name,
An influence o'er mankind.

Val. When man perceives . . .
— Ah, I can only speak as for myself !

The D. Speak for yourself !

Val. May I ? — no, I have spoken,
And time 's gone by. Had I seen such an one,
As I loved her — weighing thoroughly that word —

So should my task be to evolve her love :

If for myself! — if for another — well.

Berth. Heroic truly! And your sole reward, —
The secret pride in yielding up love's right?

Val. Who thought upon reward? And yet how much
Comes after — oh, what amplest recompense!

Is the knowledge of her, nought? the memory, nought?

— Lady, should such an one have looked on you,

Ne'er wrong yourself so far as quote the world

And say, love can go unrequited here!

You will have blessed him to his whole life's end —

Low passions hindered, baser cares kept back,

All goodness cherished where you dwelt — and dwell.

What would he have? He holds you — you, both form

And mind, in his, — where self-love makes such room

For love of you, he would not serve you now

The vulgar way, — repulse your enemies,

Win you new realms, or best, to save the old

Die blissfully — that's past so long ago!

He wishes you no need, thought, care of him —

Your good, by any means, himself unseen,

Away, forgotten! — He gives that life's task up,

As it were . . . but this charge which I return —

[Offers the requisition, which she takes.

Wishing your good.

The D. [having subscribed it.] And opportunely, sir —

Since at a birthday's close, like this of mine,

Good wishes gentle deeds reciprocate.

Most on a wedding-day, as mine is too,

Should gifts be thought of: yours comes first by right.

Ask of me!

Berth. He shall have whate'er he asks,

For your sake and his own.

Val. [Aside.] If I should ask —

The withered bunch of flowers she wears — perhaps,

One last touch of her hand, I never more

Shall see! [After a pause, presenting his paper to the Prince.

Cleves' Prince, redress the wrongs of Cleves!

Berth. I will, sir!

The D. [as VALENCE prepares to retire.] — Nay, do out your duty, first!

You bore this paper; I have registered

My answer to it: read it and have done!

[VALENCE reads it

I take him — give up Juliers and the world.

This is my Birthday.

Mel. Berthold, my one hero
Of the world she gives up, one friend worth my books,
Sole man I think it pays the pains to watch, —
Speak, for I know you through your Popes and Kings!

Berth. [after a pause.] Lady, well rewarded! Sir, as well deserved!

I could not imitate — I hardly envy —
I do admire you. All is for the best.
Too costly a flower were this, I see it now,
To pluck and set upon my barren helm
To wither — any garish plume will do.
I'll not insult you and refuse your Duchy —
You can so well afford to yield it me,
And I were left, without it, sadly lorn.
As it is — for me — if that will flatter you,
A somewhat wearier life seems to remain
Than I thought possible where . . . 'faith, their life
Begins already! They're too occupied
To listen: and few words content me best.

[Abruptly to the Courtiers.] I am your Duke, though! Who obey me here?

The D. Adolf and Sabyne follow us —

Gui. [starting from the Courtiers.] — And I?
Do I not follow them, if I may n't you?
Shall not I get some little duties up
At Ravestein and emulate the rest?
God save you, Gaucelme! 'T is my Birthday, too!

Berth. You happy handful that remain with me
. . . That is, with Dietrich the black Barnabite
I shall leave over you — will earn your wages
Or Dietrich has forgot to ply his trade!
Meantime, — go copy me the precedents
Of every installation, proper styles
And pedigrees of all your Juliers' Dukes —
While I prepare to plod on my old way,
And somewhat wearily, I must confess!

The D. [with a light joyous laugh as she turns from them.]

Come, Valence, to our friends, God's earth . . .

Val. [as she falls into his arms.] — And thee!

DRAMATIC ROMANCES

INCIDENT OF THE FRENCH CAMP.

I.

You know, we French stormed Ratisbon :
A mile or so away,
On a little mound, Napoleon
Stood on our storming-day ;
With neck out-thrust, you fancy how,
Legs wide, arms locked behind,
As if to balance the prone brow
Oppressive with its mind.

II.

Just as perhaps he mused " My plans
That soar, to earth may fall,
Let once my army-leader Lannes
Waver at yonder wall," —
Out 'twixt the battery-smokes there flew
A rider, bound on bound
Full-galloping ; nor bridle drew
Until he reached the mound.

III.

Then off there flung in smiling joy,
And held himself erect
By just his horse's mane, a boy :
You hardly could suspect —
(So tight he kept his lips compressed, Scarce any blood came through)
You looked twice ere you saw his breast
Was all but shot in two.

IV.

" Well," cried he, " Emperor, by God's grace
We've got you Ratisbon !
The Marshal's in the market-place,
And you'll be there anon

To see your flag-bird flap his vans
 Where I, to heart's desire,
 Perched him!" The chief's eye flashed; his plans
 Soared up again like fire.

V.

The chief's eye flashed; but presently
 Softened itself, as sheathes
 A film the mother-eagle's eye
 When her bruised eaglet breathes;
 "You're wounded!" "Nay," the soldier's pride
 Touched to the quick, he said:
 "I'm killed, Sire!" And his chief beside,
 Smiling the boy fell dead.

THE PATRIOT.

AN OLD STORY.

I.

It was roses, roses, all the way,
 With myrtle mixed in my path like mad:
 The house-roofs seemed to heave and sway,
 The church-spires flamed, such flags they had,
 A year ago on this very day.

II.

The air broke into a mist with bells,
 The old walls rocked with the crowd and cries.
 Had I said, "Good folk, mere noise repels—
 But give me your sun from yonder skies!"
 They had answered, "And afterward, what else?"

III.

Alack, it was I who leaped at the sun
 To give it my loving friends to keep!
 Nought man could do, have I left undone:
 And you see my harvest, what I reap
 This very day, now a year is run.

IV.

There's nobody on the house-tops now—
 Just a palsied few at the windows set;
 For the best of the sight is, all allow,

At the Shambles' Gate — or, better yet,
By the very scaffold's foot, I trow.

V.

I go in the rain, and, more than needs,
A rope cuts both my wrists behind ;
And I think, by the feel, my forehead bleeds,
For they fling, whoever has a mind,
Stones at me for my year's misdeeds.

VI.

Thus I entered, and thus I go !
In triumphs, people have dropped down dead.
"Paid by the world, what dost thou owe
Me?" — God might question ; now instead,
'Tis God shall repay : I am safer so.

MY LAST DUCHESS.

FERRARA.

That's my last Duchess painted on the wall,
Looking as if she were alive. I call
That piece a wonder, now : Frà Pandolf's hands
Worked busily a day, and there she stands.
Will 't please you sit and look at her ? I said
"Frà Pandolf" by design, for never read
Strangers like you that pictured countenance,
The depth and passion of its earnest glance,
But to myself they turned (since none puts by
The curtain I have drawn for you, but I)
And seemed as they would ask me, if they durst,
How such a glance came there ; so, not the first
Are you to turn and ask thus. Sir, 't was not
Her husband's presence only, called that spot
Of joy into the Duchess' cheek : perhaps
Frà Pandolf chanced to say " Her mantle laps
Over my lady's wrist too much," or " Paint
Must never hope to reproduce the faint
Half-flush that dies along her throat : " such stuff
Was courtesy, she thought, and cause enough
For calling up that spot of joy. She had
A heart — how shall I say ? — too soon made glad,
Too easily impressed ; she liked whate'er
She looked on, and her looks went everywhere.

Sir, 't was all one ! My favor at her breast,
 The dropping of the daylight in the West,
 The bough of cherries some officious fool
 Broke in the orchard for her, the white mule
 She rode with round the terrace — all and each
 Would draw from her alike the approving speech,
 Or blush, at least. She thanked men, — good ! but thanked Somehow — I know not how — as if she ranked
 My gift of a nine-hundred-years-old name
 With anybody's gift. Who'd stoop to blame
 This sort of trifling ? Even had you skill
 In speech — (which I have not) — to make your will Quite clear to such an one, and say, " Just this
 Or that in you disgusts me ; here you miss,
 Or there exceed the mark " — and if she let
 Herself be lessoned so, nor plainly set
 Her wits to yours, forsooth, and made excuse,
 — E'en then would be some stooping ; and I choose
 Never to stoop. Oh sir, she smiled, no doubt,
 Whene'er I passed her ; but who passed without Much the same smile ? This grew ; I gave commands ;
 Then all smiles stopped together. There she stands
 As if alive. Will 't please you rise ? We'll meet
 The company below, then. I repeat,
 The Count your master's known munificence
 Is ample warrant that no just pretence
 Of mine for dowry will be disallowed ;
 Though his fair daughter's self, as I avowed
 At starting, is my object. Nay, we'll go
 Together down, sir. Notice Neptune, though,
 Taming a sea-horse, thought a rarity,
 Which Claus of Innsbruck cast in bronze for me !

COUNT GISMOND.

AIX IN PROVENCE.

I.

Christ God who savest man, save most
 Of men Count Gismond who saved me !
 Count Gauthier, when he chose his post,
 Chose time and place and company
 To suit it ; when he struck at length
 My honor, 't was with all his strength.

II.

And doubtlessly ere he could draw
 All points to one, he must have schemed!
 That miserable morning saw
 Few half so happy as I seemed,
 While being dressed in queen's array
 To give our tourney prize away.

III.

I thought they loved me, did me grace
 To please themselves; 't was all their deed;
 God makes, or fair or foul, our face;
 If showing mine so caused to bleed
 My cousins' hearts, they should have dropped
 A word, and straight the play had stopped.

IV.

They, too, so beauteous! Each a queen
 By virtue of her brow and breast;
 Not needing to be crowned, I mean,
 As I do. E'en when I was dressed,
 Had either of them spoke, instead
 Of glancing sideways with still head!

V.

But no: they let me laugh, and sing
 My birthday song quite through, adjust
 The last rose in my garland, fling
 A last look on the mirror, trust
 My arms to each an arm of theirs,
 And so descend the castle-stairs —

VI.

And come out on the morning-troop
 Of merry friends who kissed my cheek,
 And called me queen, and made me stoop
 Under the canopy — (a streak
 That pierced it, of the outside sun,
 Powdered with gold its gloom's soft dun) —

VII.

And they could let me take my state
 And foolish throne amid applause
 Of all come there to celebrate
 My queen's-day — Oh I think the cause

Of much was, they forgot no crowd
Makes up for parents in their shroud!

VIII.

However that be, all eyes were bent
Upon me, when my cousins cast
Theirs down; 't was time I should present
The victor's crown, but . . . there, 't will last
No long time . . . the old mist again
Blinds me as then it did. How vain!

IX.

See! Gismond's at the gate, in talk
With his two boys: I can proceed.
Well, at that moment, who should stalk
Forth boldly — to my face, indeed —
But Gauthier, and he thundered, "Stay!"
And all stayed. "Bring no crowns, I say!"

X.

"Bring torches! Wind the penance-sheet
About her! Let her shun the chaste,
Or lay herself before their feet!
A nigh shall she whose body I embraced
For honest long, queen it in the day?
's sake no crowns, I say!"

I? What I. XI.

I never fancied answered? As I live,
As answer possible such a thing
What says the noble to give.
Some monstrous body when they spring
Strength on it? Torture-engine's whole
No more says the soul.

Till out strode Gismond XII.

That I was saved, Gismond; then I knew
His face before, but, I never met
I felt quite sure that at first view,
Himself to Satan; what God had set
A minute's mistrust who would spend on the end?

He strode to Gauthier XIII.

Gave him the lie, ever, in his throat
then struck his mouth

With one back-handed blow that wrote
 In blood men's verdict there. North, South,
 East, West, I looked. The lie was dead,
 And damned, and truth stood up instead.

XIV.

This glads me most, that I enjoyed
 The heart of the joy, with my content
 In watching Gismond unalloyed
 By any doubt of the event :
 God took that on him — I was bid
 Watch Gismond for my part : I did.

XV.

Did I not watch him while he let
 His armorer just brace his greaves,
 Rivet his hauberk, on the fret
 The while ! His foot . . . my memory leaves
 No least stamp out, nor how anon
 He pulled his ringing gauntlets on.

XVI.

And e'en before the trumpet's sound
 Was finished, prone lay the false knight,
 Prone as his lie, upon the ground :
 Gismond flew at him, used no sleight
 O' the sword, but open-breasted drove,
 Cleaving till out the truth he clove.

XVII.

Which done, he dragged him to my feet
 And said, " Here die, but end thy breath
 In full confession, lest thou fleet
 From my first, to God's second death !
 Say, hast thou lied ? " And, " I have lied
 To God and her," he said, and died.

XVIII.

Then Gismond, kneeling to me, asked
 — What safe my heart holds, though no word
 Could I repeat now, if I tasked
 My powers forever, to a third
 Dear even as you are. Pass the rest
 Until I sank upon his breast.

XIX.

Over my head his arm he flung
 Against the world ; and scarce I felt
 His sword (that dripped by me and swung)
 A little shifted in its belt :
 For he began to say the while
 How South our home lay many a mile.

XX.

So 'mid the shouting multitude
 We two walked forth to never more
 Return. My cousins have pursued
 Their life, untroubled as before
 I vexed them. Gauthier's dwelling-place
 God lighten ! May his soul find grace !

XXI.

Our elder boy has got the clear
 Great brow ; though when his brother's black
 Full eye shows scorn, it . . . Gismond here ?
 And have you brought my tercel back ?
 I just was telling Adela
 How many birds it struck since May.

THE BOY AND THE ANGEL.

Morning, evening, noon and night,
 "Praise God !" sang Theocrite.

Then to his poor trade he turned,
 Whereby the daily meal was earned.

Hard he labored, long and well ;
 O'er his work the boy's curls fell.

But ever, at each period,
 He stopped and sang, "Praise God !"

Then back again his curls he threw,
 And cheerful turned to work anew.

Said Blaise, the listening monk, "Well done ;
 I doubt not thou art heard, my son :

“As well as if thy voice to-day
Were praising God, the Pope’s great way.”

“This Easter Day, the Pope at Rome
Praises God from Peter’s dome.”

Said Theocrite, “Would God that I Might praise him, that great way, and die!”

Night passed, day shone,
And Theocrite was gone.

With God a day endures alway,
A thousand years are but a day.

God said in heaven, “Nor day nor night
Now brings the voice of my delight.”

Then Gabriel, like a rainbow’s birth,
Spread his wings and sank to earth;

Entered, in flesh, the empty cell,
Lived there, and played the craftsman well;

And morning, evening, noon and night,
Praised God in place of Theocrite.

And from a boy, to youth he grew:
The man put off the stripling’s hue:

The man matured and fell away
Into the season of decay:

And ever o’er the trade he bent,
And ever lived on earth content.

(He did God’s will; to him, all one
If on the earth or in the sun.)

God said, “A praise is in mine ear;
There is no doubt in it, no fear:

“So sing old worlds, and so
New worlds that from my footstool go.

“Clearer loves sound other ways:
I miss my little human praise.”

Then forth sprang Gabriel's wings, off fell
The flesh disguise, remained the cell.

'T was Easter Day : he flew to Rome,
And paused above Saint Peter's dome.

In the tiring-room close by
The great outer gallery,

With his holy vestments dight,
Stood the new Pope, Theocrite :

And all his past career
Came back upon him clear,

Since when, a boy, he plied his trade,
Till on his life the sickness weighed ;

And in his cell, when death drew near,
An angel in a dream brought cheer :

And rising from the sickness drear,
He grew a priest, and now stood here.

To the East with praise he turned,
And on his sight the angel burned.

" I bore thee from thy craftsman's cell,
And set thee here ; I did not well.

" Vainly I left my angel-sphere,
Vain was thy dream of many a year.

" Thy voice's praise seemed weak ; it dropped —
Creation's chorus stopped !

" Go back and praise again
The early way, while I remain.

" With that weak voice of our disdain,
Take up creation's pausing strain.

" Back to the cell and poor employ :
Resume the craftsman and the boy ! "

Theocrite grew old at home ;
A new Pope dwelt in Peter's dome.

One vanished as the other died :
They sought God side by side.

INSTANS TYRANNUS.

I.

Of the million or two, more or less,
I rule and possess,
One man, for some cause undefined,
Was least to my mind.

II.

I struck him, he grovelled of course —
For, what was his force ?
I pinned him to earth with my weight
And persistence of hate :
And he lay, would not moan, would not curse,
As his lot might be worse.

III.

“ Were the object less mean, would he stand
At the swing of my hand !
For obscurity helps him and blots
The hole where he squats.”
So, I set my five wits on the stretch
To inveigle the wretch.
All in vain ! Gold and jewels I threw,
Still he couched there perdue ;
I tempted his blood and his flesh,
Hid in roses my mesh,
Choicest cates and the flagon’s best spilth :
Still he kept to his filth.

IV.

Had he kith now or kin, were access
To his heart, did I press :
Just a son or a mother to seize !
No such booty as these.
Were it simply a friend to pursue
’Mid my million or two,
Who could pay me in person or pelf
What he owes me himself !
No : I could not but smile through my chafe :
For the fellow lay safe
As his mates do, the midge and the nit,
— Through minuteness, to wit.

V.

Then a humor more great took its place
 At the thought of his face,
 The droop, the low cares of the mouth,
 The trouble uncouth
 'Twixt the brows, all that air one is fain
 To put out of its pain.
 And, "no!" I admonished myself,
 "Is one mocked by an elf,
 Is one baffled by toad or by rat?
 The gravamen's in that!
 How the lion, who crouches to suit
 His back to my foot,
 Would admire that I stand in debate!
 But the small turns the great
 If it vexes you, — that is the thing!
 Toad or rat vex the king?
 Though I waste half my realm to unearth
 Toad or rat, 't is well worth!"

VI.

So, I soberly laid my last plan
 To extinguish the man.
 Round his creep-hole, with never a break
 Ran my fires for his sake;
 Over-head, did my thunder combine
 With my under-ground mine:
 Till I looked from my labor content
 To enjoy the event.

VII.

When sudden . . . how think ye, the end?
 Did I say "without friend"?
 Say rather, from marge to blue marge
 The whole sky grew his targe
 With the sun's self for visible boss,
 While an Arm ran across
 Which the earth heaved beneath like a breast
 Where the wretch was safe prest!
 Do you see? Just my vengeance complete,
 The man sprang to his feet,
 Stood erect, caught at God's skirts, and prayed!
 — So, I was afraid!

MESMERISM

I.

All I believed is true!
— I am able yet
All I want, to get
By a method as strange as new:
Dare I trust the same to you?

II.

If at night, when doors are shut,
— And the wood-worm picks,
And the death-watch ticks,
And the bar has a flag of smut,
And a cat's in the water-butt —

III.

And the socket floats and flares,
And the house-beams groan,
And a foot unknown
Is surmised on the garret-stairs,
And the locks slip unawares —

IV.

And the spider, to serve his ends,
By a sudden thread,
Arms and legs outspread,
On the table's midst descends,
Comes to find, God knows what friends! —

V.

If since eve drew in, I say,
I have sat and brought
(So to speak) my thought
To bear on the woman away,
Till I felt my hair turn gray —

VI.

Till I seemed to have and hold,
In the vacancy
"Twixt the wall and me,
From the hair-plait's chestnut-gold
To the foot in its muslin fold —

VII.

Have and hold, then and there,
 Her, from head to foot,
 Breathing and mute,
 Passive and yet aware,
 In the grasp of my steady stare —

VIII.

Hold and have, there and then,
 All her body and soul
 That completes my whole,
 All that women add to men,
 In the clutch of my steady ken —

IX.

Having and holding, till
 I imprint her fast
 On the void at last
 As the sun does whom he will
 By the calotypist's skill —

X.

Then, — if my heart's strength serve,
 And through all and each
 Of the veils I reach
 To her soul and never swerve,
 Knitting an iron nerve —

XI.

Command her soul to advance
 And inform the shape
 Which has made escape
 And before my countenance
 Answers me glance for glance —

XII.

I, still with a gesture fit
 Of my hands that best
 Do my soul's behest,
 Pointing the power from it,
 While myself do steadfast sit —

XIII.

Steadfast and still the same
 On my object bent,

While the hands give vent
To my ardor and my aim
And break into very flame —

XIV.

Then I reach, I must believe,
Not her soul in vain,
For to me again
It reaches, and past retrieve
Is wound in the toils I weave ;

XV.

And must follow as I require,
As befits a thrall,
Bringing flesh and all,
Essence and earth-attire,
To the source of the tractile fire :

XVI.

Till the house called hers, not mine,
With a growing weight
Seems to suffocate
If she break not its leaden line
And escape from its close confine.

XVII.

Out of doors into the night !
On to the maze
Of the wild wood-ways,
Not turning to left nor right
From the pathway, blind with sight —

XVIII.

Making through rain and wind
O'er the broken shrubs,
'Twixt the stems and stubs,
With a still, composed, strong mind,
Nor a care for the world behind —

XIX.

Swifter and still more swift,
As the crowding peace
Doth to joy increase
In the wide blind eyes uplift
Through the darkness and the drift !

XX.

While I — to the shape, I too
 Feel my soul dilate
 Nor a whit abate,
 And relax not a gesture due,
 As I see my belief come true.

XXI.

For, there! have I drawn or no
 Life to that lip?
 Do my fingers dip
 In a flame which again they throw
 On the cheek that breaks a-glow?

XXII.

Ha! was the hair so first?
 What, unfileted,
 Made alive, and spread
 Through the void with a rich outburst,
 Chestnut gold-interspersed?

XXIII.

Like the doors of a casket-shrine,
 See, on either side,
 Her two arms divide
 Till the heart betwixt makes sign,
 Take me, for I am thine!

XXIV.

“Now — now” — the door is heard!
 Hark, the stairs! and near —
 Nearer — and here —
 “Now!” and at call the third
 She enters without a word.

XXV.

On doth she march and on
 To the fancied shape;
 It is, past escape,
 Herself, now: the dream is done
 And the shadow and she are one.

XXVI.

First I will pray. Do Thou
 That ownest the soul,

Yet wilt grant control
 To another, nor disallow
 For a time, restrain me now!

XXVII.

I admonish me while I may,
 Not to squander guilt,
 Since require Thou wilt
 At my hand its price one day!
 What the price is, who can say?

THE GLOVE.

(PETER RONSARD loquitur.)

“Heigho,” yawned one day King Francis,
 “Distance all value enhances!
 When a man’s busy, why, leisure
 Strikes him as wonderful pleasure:
 ’Faith, and at leisure once is he?
 Straightway he wants to be busy.
 Here we’ve got peace; and aghast I’m Caught thinking war the true pastime.
 Is there a reason in metre?
 Give us your speech, master Peter!”
 I who, if mortal dare say so,
 Ne’er am at loss with my Naso,
 “Sire,” I replied, “joys prove cloudlets:
 Men are the merest Ixions” —
 Here the King whistled aloud, “Let’s — Heigho — go look at our lions!”
 Such are the sorrowful chances
 If you talk fine to King Francis.

And so, to the courtyard proceeding,
 Our company, Francis was leading,
 Increased by new followers tenfold
 Before he arrived at the penfold;
 Lords, ladies, like clouds which bedizen
 At sunset the western horizon.
 And Sir De Lorge pressed ’mid the foremost
 With the dame he professed to adore most.
 Oh, what a face! One by fits eyed
 Her, and the horrible pitside;
 For the penfold surrounded a hollow
 Which led where the eye scarce dared follow,

And shelved to the chamber secluded
 Where Bluebeard, the great lion, brooded.
 The King hailed his keeper, an Arab
 As glossy and black as a scarab,
 And bade him make sport and at once stir
 Up and out of his den the old monster.
 They opened a hole in the wire-work
 Across it, and dropped there a firework,
 And fled : one's heart 's beating redoubled ;
 A pause, while the pit's mouth was troubled,
 The blackness and silence so utter,
 By the firework's slow sparkling and sputter ;
 Then earth in a sudden contortion
 Gave out to our gaze her abortion.
 Such a brute ! Were I friend Clement Marot (Whose experience of nature 's but narrow,
 And whose faculties move in no small mist
 When he versifies David the Psalmist)
 I should study that brute to describe you
Illum Juda Leonem de Tribu.

One's whole blood grew curdling and creepy
 To see the black mane, vast and heapy,
 The tail in the air stiff and straining,
 The wide eyes, nor waxing nor waning,
 As over the barrier which bounded
 His platform, and us who surrounded
 The barrier, they reached and they rested
 On space that might stand him in best stead :
 For who knew, he thought, what the amazement,
 The eruption of clatter and blaze meant,
 And if, in this minute of wonder,
 No outlet, 'mid lightning and thunder,
 Lay broad, and, his shackles all shivered,
 The lion at last was delivered ?
 Ay, that was the open sky o'erhead !
 And you saw by the flash on his forehead,
 By the hope in those eyes wide and steady,
 He was leagues in the desert already,
 Driving the flocks up the mountain,
 Or catlike couched hard by the fountain
 To waylay the date-gathering negress :
 So guarded he entrance or egress.
 " How he stands ! " quoth the King : " we may well swear,
 (No novice, we 've won our spurs elsewhere
 And so can afford the confession,)

We exercise wholesome discretion
 In keeping aloof from his threshold,
 Once hold you, those jaws want no fresh hold,
 Their first would too pleasantly purloin
 The visitor's brisket or surjoin :
 But who 's he would prove so fool-hardy ?
 Not the best man of Marignan, pardie ! ”

The sentence no sooner was uttered,
 Than over the rails a glove fluttered,
 Fell close to the lion, and rested :
 The dame 't was, who flung it and jested
 With life so, De Lorge had been wooing
 For months past ; he sat there pursuing
 His suit, weighing out with nonchalance
 Fine speeches like gold from a balance.

Sound the trumpet, no true knight 's a tARRIER !
 De Lorge made one leap at the barrier,
 Walked straight to the glove, — while the lion
 Ne'er moved, kept his far-reaching eye on
 The palm-tree-edged desert-spring's sapphire,
 And the musky oiled skin of the Kaffir, —
 Picked it up, and as calmly retreated,
 Leaped back where the lady was seated,
 And full in the face of its owner
 Flung the glove.

“ Your heart's queen, you dethrone her ?
 So should I ! ” — cried the King — “ 't was mere vanity,
 Not love, set that task to humanity ! ”
 Lords and ladies alike turned with loathing
 From such a proved wolf in sheep's clothing.
 Not so, I ; for I caught an expression
 In her brow's undisturbed self-possession
 Amid the Court's scoffing and merriment, —
 As if from no pleasing experiment
 She rose, yet of pain not much heedful
 So long as the process was needful, —
 As if she had tried in a crucible,
 To what “ speeches like gold ” were reducible,
 And, finding the finest prove copper,
 Felt the smoke in her face was but proper ;
 To know what she had not to trust to,
 Was worth all the ashes and dust too.
 She went out 'mid hooting and laughter ;
 Clement Marot stayed ; I followed after,

And asked, as a grace, what it all meant?
 If she wished not the rash deed's recalment?
 "For I" — so I spoke — "am a poet:
 Human nature, — behoves that I know it!"

She told me, "Too long had I heard
 Of the deed proved alone by the word:
 For my love — what De Lorge would not dare!
 With my scorn — what De Lorge could compare!
 And the endless descriptions of death
 He would brave when my lip formed a breath,
 I must reckon as braved, or, of course,
 Doubt his word — and moreover, perforce,
 For such gifts as no lady could spurn,
 Must offer my love in return.
 When I looked on your lion, it brought
 All the dangers at once to my thought,
 Encountered by all sorts of men,
 Before he was lodged in his den, —
 From the poor slave whose club or bare hands
 Dug the trap, set the snare on the sands,
 With no King and no Court to applaud,
 By no shame, should he shrink, overawed,
 Yet to capture the creature made shift,
 That his rude boys might laugh at the gift,
 — To the page who last leaped o'er the fence
 Of the pit, on no greater pretence
 Than to get back the bonnet he dropped,
 Lest his pay for a week should be stopped.
 So, wiser I judged it to make
 One trial what 'death for my sake'
 Really meant, while the power was yet mine,
 Than to wait until time should define
 Such a phrase not so simply as I,
 Who took it to mean just 'to die.'
 The blow a glove gives is but weak:
 Does the mark yet discolor my cheek?
 But when the heart suffers a blow,
 Will the pain pass so soon, do you know?"

I looked, as away she was sweeping,
 And saw a youth eagerly keeping
 As close as he dared to the doorway.
 No doubt that a noble should more weigh
 His life than befits a plebeian;
 And yet, had our brute been Nemean —

(I judge by a certain calm fervor
 The youth stepped with, forward to serve her)
 — He 'd have scarce thought you did him the worst turn
 If you whispered, "Friend, what you 'd get, first earn!"
 And when, shortly after, she carried
 Her shame from the Court, and they married,
 To that marriage some happiness, maugre
 The voice of the Court, I dared augur.

For De Lorge, he made women with men vie,
 Those in wonder and praise, these in envy ;
 And in short stood so plain a head taller
 That he wooed and won . . . how do you call her?
 The beauty, that rose in the sequel
 To the King's love, who loved her a week well.
 And 't was noticed he never would honor
 De Lorge (who looked daggers upon her)
 With the easy commission of stretching
 His legs in the service, and fetching
 His wife, from her chamber, those straying
 Sad gloves she was always mislaying,
 While the King took the closet to chat in, —
 But of course this adventure came pat in.
 And never the King told the story,
 How bringing a glove brought such glory,
 But the wife smiled — "His nerves are grown firmer :
 Mine he brings now and utters no murmur."

With which moral I drop my theorbo.

TIME'S REVENGES.

I 've a Friend, over the sea ;
 I like him, but he loves me.
 It all grew out of the books I write ;
 They find such favor in his sight
 That he slaughters you with savage looks
 Because you don't admire my books.
 He does himself though, — and if some vein
 Were to snap to-night in this heavy brain,
 To-morrow month, if I lived to try,
 Round should I just turn quietly,
 Or out of the bedclothes stretch my hand
 Till I found him, come from his foreign land
 To be my nurse in this poor place,

And make my broth and wash my face
 And light my fire and, all the while,
 Bear with his old good-humored smile
 That I told him "Better have kept away
 Than come and kill me, night and day,
 With, worse than fever throbs and shoots,
 The creaking of his clumsy boots."
 I am as sure that this he would do,
 As that Saint Paul's is striking two.
 And I think I rather . . . woe is me!

— Yes, rather would see him than not see,
 If lifting a hand could seat him there
 Before me in the empty chair
 To-night, when my head aches indeed,
 And I can neither think nor read,
 Nor make these purple fingers hold
 The pen; this garret's freezing cold!

And I've a Lady — there he wakes,
 The laughing fiend and prince of snakes
 Within me, at her name, to pray
 Fate send some creature in the way
 Of love for her, to be down-torn,
 Upthrust and outward-borne,
 So I might prove myself that sea
 Of passion which I needs must be!
 Call my thoughts false and my fancies quaint
 And my style infirm and its figures faint,
 All the critics say, and more blame yet,
 And not one angry word you get.
 But, please you, wonder I would put
 My cheek beneath that lady's foot
 Rather than trample under mine
 The laurels of the Florentine,
 And you shall see how the devil spends
 A fire God gave for other ends!
 I tell you, I stride up and down
 This garret, crowned with love's best crown,
 And feasted with love's perfect feast,
 To think I kill for her, at least,
 Body and soul and peace and fame,
 Alike youth's end and manhood's aim,
 — So is my spirit, as flesh with sin,
 Filled full, eaten out and in
 With the face of her, the eyes of her,
 The lips, the little chin, the stir

Of shadow round her mouth ; and she
 — I'll tell you — calmly would decree
 That I should roast at a slow fire,
 If that would compass her desire
 And make her one whom they invite
 To the famous ball to-morrow night.

There may be heaven ; there must be hell ;
 Meantime, there is our earth here — well !

THE ITALIAN IN ENGLAND.

That second time they hunted me
 From hill to plain, from shore to sea,
 And Austria, hounding far and wide
 Her blood-hounds through the country-side,
 Breathed hot and instant on my trace, —
 I made six days a hiding-place
 Of that dry green old aqueduct
 Where I and Charles, when boys, have plucked
 The fire-flies from the roof above,
 Bright creeping through the moss they love :
 — How long it seems since Charles was lost !
 Six days the soldiers crossed and crossed
 The country in my very sight ;
 And when that peril ceased at night,
 The sky broke out in red dismay
 With signal fires ; well, there I lay
 Close covered o'er in my recess,
 Up to the neck in ferns and cress,
 Thinking on Metternich our friend,
 And Charles's miserable end,
 And much beside, two days ; the third,
 Hunger o'ercame me when I heard
 The peasants from the village go
 To work among the maize ; you know,
 With us in Lombardy, they bring
 Provisions packed on mules, a string
 With little bells that cheer their task,
 And casks, and boughs on every cask
 To keep the sun's heat from the wine ;
 These I let pass in jingling line,
 And, close on them, dear noisy crew,
 The peasants from the village, too ;

For at the very rear would troop
 Their wives and sisters in a group
 To help, I knew. When these had passed,
 I threw my glove to strike the last,
 Taking the chance : she did not start,
 Much less cry out, but stooped apart,
 One instant rapidly glanced round,
 And saw me beckon from the ground :
 A wild bush grows and hides my crypt ;
 She picked my glove up while she stripped
 A branch off, then rejoined the rest
 With that ; my glove lay in her breast.
 Then I drew breath ; they disappeared :
 It was for Italy I feared.

An hour, and she returned alone
 Exactly where my glove was thrown.
 Meanwhile came many thoughts : on me
 Rested the hopes of Italy ;
 I had devised a certain tale
 Which, when 't was told her, could not fail
 Persuade a peasant of its truth ;
 I meant to call a freak of youth
 This hiding, and give hopes of pay,
 And no temptation to betray.
 But when I saw that woman's face,
 Its calm simplicity of grace,
 Our Italy's own attitude
 In which she walked thus far, and stood,
 Planting each naked foot so firm,
 To crush the snake and spare the worm —
 At first sight of her eyes, I said,
 " I am that man upon whose head
 They fix the price, because I hate
 The Austrians over us : the State
 Will give you gold — oh, gold so much ! —
 If you betray me to their clutch,
 And be your death, for aught I know,
 If once they find you saved their foe.
 Now, you must bring me food and drink,
 And also paper, pen and ink,
 And carry safe what I shall write
 To Padua, which you 'll reach at night
 Before the duomo shuts ; go in,
 And wait till Tenebræ begin ;
 Walk to the third confessional,

Between the pillar and the wall,
 And kneeling whisper, Whence comes peace?
 Say it a second time, then cease ;
 And if the voice inside returns,
From Christ and Freedom ; what concerns
The cause of Peace ? — for answer, slip
 My letter where you placed your lip ;
 Then come back happy we have done
 Our mother service — I, the son,
 As you the daughter of our land ! ”

Three mornings more, she took her stand
 In the same place, with the same eyes :
 I was no surer of sunrise
 Than of her coming. We conferred
 Of her own prospects, and I heard
 She had a lover — stout and tall,
 She said — then let her eyelids fall,
 “ He could do much ” — as if some doubt
 Entered her heart, — then, passing out,
 “ She could not speak for others, who
 Had other thoughts ; herself she knew : ”
 And so she brought me drink and food.
 After four days, the scouts pursued
 Another path ; at last arrived
 The help my Paduan friends contrived
 To furnish me : she brought the news.
 For the first time I could not choose
 But kiss her hand, and lay my own
 Upon her head — “ This faith was shown
 To Italy, our mother ; she Uses my hand and blesses thee.”
 She followed down to the sea-shore ;
 I left and never saw her more.

How very long since I have thought
 Concerning — much less wished for — aught
 Beside the good of Italy,
 For which I live and mean to die !
 I never was in love ; and since
 Charles proved false, what shall now convince
 My inmost heart I have a friend ?
 However, if I pleased to spend
 Real wishes on myself — say, three —
 I know at least what one should be.
 I would grasp Metternich until

I felt his red wet throat distil
 In blood through these two hands. And next,
 — Nor much for that am I perplexed —
 Charles, perjured traitor, for his part,
 Should die slow of a broken heart
 Under his new employers. Last
 — Ah, there, what should I wish? For fast
 Do I grow old and out of strength.
 If I resolved to seek at length
 My father's house again, how scared
 They all would look, and unprepared!
 My brothers live in Austria's pay
 — Disowned me long ago, men say;
 And all my early mates who used
 To praise me so — perhaps induced
 More than one early step of mine —
 Are turning wise: while some opine
 "Freedom grows license," some suspect
 "Haste breeds delay," and recollect
 They always said, such premature
 Beginnings never could endure!
 So, with a sullen "All's for best,"
 The land seems settling to its rest.
 I think then, I should wish to stand
 This evening in that dear, lost land,
 Over the sea the thousand miles,
 And know if yet that woman smiles
 With the calm smile; some little farm
 She lives in there, no doubt: what harm
 If I sat on the door-side bench,
 And, while her spindle made a trench
 Fantastically in the dust,
 Inquired of all her fortunes — just
 Her children's ages and their names,
 And what may be the husband's aims
 For each of them. I'd talk this out,
 And sit there, for an hour about,
 Then kiss her hand once more, and lay
 Mine on her head, and go my way.

So much for idle wishing — how
 It steals the time! To business now.

THE ENGLISHMAN IN ITALY.

PIANO DI SORRENTO.

Fortù, Fortù, my beloved one,
 Sit here by my side,
 On my knees put up both little feet !
 I was sure, if I tried,
 I could make you laugh spite of Scirocco.
 Now, open your eyes,
 Let me keep you amused till he vanish
 In black from the skies,
 With telling my memories over
 As you tell your beads ;
 All the Plain saw me gather, I garland
 — The flowers or the weeds.
 Time for rain ! for your long hot dry Autumn
 Had net-worked with brown
 The white skin of each grape on the bunches,
 Marked like a quail's crown,
 Those creatures you make such account of,
 Whose heads, — speckled white
 Over brown like a great spider's back,
 As I told you last night, —
 Your mother bites off for her supper.
 Red-ripe as could be,
 Pomegranates were chapping and splitting
 In halves on the tree :
 And betwixt the loose walls of great flintstone,
 Or in the thick dust
 On the path, or straight out of the rock-side,
 Wherever could thrust
 Some burnt sprig of bold hardy rock-flower
 Its yellow face up,
 For the prize were great butterflies fighting,
 Some five for one cup.
 So, I guessed, ere I got up this morning,
 What change was in store,
 By the quick rustle-down of the quail-nets
 Which woke me before
 I could open my shutter, made fast
 With a bough and a stone,
 And look through the twisted dead vine-twigs,
 Sole lattice that 's known.
 Quick and sharp rang the rings down the net-poles,

While, busy beneath,
 Your priest and his brother tugged at them,
 The rain in their teeth.
 And out upon all the flat house-roofs
 Where split figs lay drying,
 The girls took the frails under cover :
 Nor use seemed in trying
 To get out the boats and go fishing,
 For, under the cliff,
 Fierce the black water frothed o'er the blind-rock.
 No seeing our skiff
 Arrive about noon from Amalfi,
 — Our fisher arrive,
 And pitch down his basket before us,
 All trembling alive
 With pink and gray jellies, your sea-fruit ;
 You touch the strange lumps,
 And mouths gape there, eyes open, all manner
 Of horns and of humps,
 Which only the fisher looks grave at,
 While round him like imps
 Cling screaming the children as naked
 And brown as his shrimps ;
 Himself too as bare to the middle
 — You see round his neck
 The string and its brass coin suspended,
 That saves him from wreck.
 But to-day not a boat reached Salerno,
 So back, to a man,
 Came our friends, with whose help in the vineyards
 Grape-harvest began.
 In the vat, halfway up in our house-side,
 Like blood the juice spins,
 While your brother all bare-legged is dancing
 Till breathless he grins
 Dead-beaten in effort on effort
 To keep the grapes under,
 Since still when he seems all but master,
 In pours the fresh plunder
 From girls who keep coming and going
 With basket on shoulder,
 And eyes shut against the rain's driving ;
 Your girls that are older, —
 For under the hedges of aloe,
 And where, on its bed
 Of the orchard's black mould, the love-apple

Lies pulpy and red,
All the young ones are kneeling and filling
Their laps with the snails
Tempted out by this first rainy weather, —
Your best of regales,
As to-night will be proved to my sorrow,
When, supping in state,
We shall feast our grape-gleaners (two dozen,
Three over one plate)
With lasagne so tempting to swallow
In slippery ropes,
And gourds fried in great purple slices,
That color of popes.
Meantime, see the grape bunch they've brought you :
The rain-water slips
O'er the heavy blue bloom on each globe
Which the wasp to your lips
Still follows with fretful persistence :
Nay, taste, while awake,
This half of a curd-white smooth cheese-ball
That peels, flake by flake,
Like an onion, each smoother and whiter ;
Next, sip this weak wine
From the thin green glass flask, with its stopper,
A leaf of the vine ;
And end with the prickly-pear's red flesh
That leaves through its juice
The stony black seeds on your pearl-teeth.
Scirocco is loose !
Hark, the quick, whistling pelt of the olives
Which, thick in one's track,
Tempt the stranger to pick up and bite them,
Though not yet half black !
How the old twisted olive trunks shudder,
The medlars let fall
Their hard fruit, and the brittle great fig-trees
Snap off, figs and all,
For here comes the whole of the tempest !
No refuge, but creep
Back again to my side and my shoulder,
And listen or sleep.
O, how will your country show next week,
When all the vine-boughs
Have been stripped of their foliage to pasture
The mules and the cows ?
Last eve, I rode over the mountains ;

Your brother, my guide,
 Soon left me, to feast on the myrtles
 That offered, each side,
 Their fruit-balls, black, glossy and luscious, —
 Or strip from the sorbs
 A treasure, or, rosy and wondrous,
 Those hairy gold orbs!
 But my mule picked his sure sober path out,
 Just stopping to neigh,
 When he recognized down in the valley
 His mates on their way
 With the faggots and barrels of water ;
 And soon we emerged
 From the plain, where the woods could scarce follow ;
 And still as we urged
 Our way, the woods wondered, and left us,
 As up still we trudged,
 Though the wild path grew wilder each instant,
 And place was e'en grudged
 'Mid the rock-chasms and piles of loose stones
 Like the loose broken teeth
 Of some monster which climbed there to die
 From the ocean beneath —
 Place was grudged to the silver-gray fume-weed
 That clung to the path,
 And dark rosemary ever a-dying
 That, 'spite the wind's wrath,
 So loves the salt rock's face to seaward,
 And lentisks as staunch
 To the stone where they root and bear berries,
 And . . . what shows a branch
 Coral-colored, transparent, with circlets
 Of pale seagreen leaves ;
 Over all trod my mule with the caution
 Of gleaners o'er sheaves,
 Still, foot after foot like a lady,
 Till, round after round,
 He climbed to the top of Calvano,
 And God's own profound
 Was above me, and round me the mountains,
 And under, the sea,
 And within me my heart to bear witness
 What was and shall be.
 Oh, heaven and the terrible crystal !
 No rampart excludes
 Your eye from the life to be lived

In the blue solitudes.
Oh, those mountains, their infinite movement!
Still moving with you;
For, ever some new head and breast of them
Thrusts into view
To observe the intruder; you see it
If quickly you turn
And, before they escape you, surprise them.
They grudge you should learn
How the soft plains they look on, lean over
And love (they pretend)
— Cower beneath them, the flat sea-pine crouches,
The wild fruit-trees bend,
E'en the myrtle-leaves curl, shrink and shut:
All is silent and grave:
'T is a sensual and timorous beauty,
How fair! but a slave.
So, I turned to the sea; and there slumbered
As greenly as ever
Those isles of the siren, your Galli;
No ages can sever
The Three, nor enable their sister
To join them, — halfway
On the voyage, she looked at Ulysses —
No farther to-day,
Though the small one, just launched in the wave,
Watches breast-high and steady
From under the rock, her bold sister
Swum halfway already.
Fortù, shall we sail there together
And see from the sides
Quite new rocks show their faces, new haunts
Where the siren abides?
Shall we sail round and round them, close over
The rocks, though unseen,
That ruffle the gray glassy water
To glorious green?
Then scramble from splinter to splinter,
Reach land and explore,
On the largest, the strange square black tarret
With never a door,
Just a loop to admit the quick lizards;
Then, stand there and hear
The birds' quiet singing, that tells us
What life is, so clear?
— The secret they sang to Ulysses

When, ages ago,
 He heard and he knew this life's secret
 I hear and I know.

Ah, see! The sun breaks o'er Calvano;
 He strikes the great gloom
 And flutters it o'er the mount's summit
 In airy gold fume.
 All is over. Look out, see the gypsy,
 Our tinker and smith,
 Has arrived, set up bellows and forge,
 And down-squatted forthwith
 To his hammering, under the wall there;
 One eye keeps aloof
 The urchins that itch to be putting
 His jews'-harps to proof,
 While the other, through locks of curled wire,
 Is watching how sleek
 Shines the hog, come to share in the windfall
 — Chew abbot's own cheek!
 All is over. Wake up and come out now,
 And down let us go,
 And see the fine things got in order
 At church for the show
 Of the Sacrament, set forth this evening;
 To-morrow's the Feast
 Of the Rosary's Virgin, by no means
 Of Virgins the least,
 As you'll hear in the off-hand discourse
 Which (all nature, no art)
 The Dominican brother, these three weeks,
 Was getting by heart.
 Not a pillar nor post but is dized
 With red and blue papers;
 All the roof waves with ribbons, each altar
 Ablaze with long tapers;
 But the great masterpiece is the scaffold
 Rigged glorious to hold
 All the fiddlers and fifers and drummers
 And trumpeters bold,
 Not afraid of Bellini nor Auber,
 Who, when the priest's hoarse,
 Will strike us up something that's brisk
 For the feast's second course.
 And then will the flaxen-wigged Image
 Be carried in pomp

Through the Plain, while in gallant procession
 The priests mean to stomp.
 All round the glad church lie old bottles
 With gunpowder stopped,
 Which will be, when the Image re-enters,
 Religiously popped ;
 And at night from the crest of Calvano
 Great bonfires will hang,
 On the Plain will the trumpets join chorus,
 And more poppers bang.
 At all events, come — to the garden
 As far as the wall ;
 See me tap with a hoe on the plaster
 Till out there shall fall
 A scorpion with wide angry nippers !

— “ Such trifles ! ” you say ?
 Fortù, in my England at home,
 Men meet gravely to-day
 And debate, if abolishing Corn-laws
 Be righteous and wise
 — If ’t were proper, Scirocco should vanish
 In black from the skies !

IN A GONDOLA.

He sings.

I send my heart up to thee, all my heart
 In this my singing.
 For the stars help me, and the sea bears part ;
 The very night is clinging
 Closer to Venice’ streets to leave one space
 Above me, whence thy face
 May light my joyous heart to thee its dwelling-place.

She speaks.

Say after me, and try to say
 My very words, as if each word
 Came from you of your own accord,
 In your own voice, in your own way :
 “ This woman’s heart and soul and brain
 Are mine as much as this gold chain
 She bids me wear ; which ” (say again)
 “ I choose to make by cherishing
 A precious thing, or choose to fling

Over the boat-side, ring by ring."
 And yet once more say . . . no word more!
 Since words are only words. Give o'er!

Unless you call me, all the same,
 Familiarly by my pet name,
 Which if the Three should hear you call,
 And me reply to, would proclaim
 At once our secret to them all.
 Ask of me, too, command me, blame —
 Do, break down the partition-wall
 'Twixt us, the daylight world beholds
 Curtained in dusk and splendid folds!
 What's left but — all of me to take?
 I am the Three's: prevent them, slake
 Your thirst! 'T is said, the Arab sage,
 In practising with gems, can loose
 Their subtle spirit in his cruce
 And leave but ashes: so, sweet mage,
 Leave them my ashes when thy use
 Sucks out my soul, thy heritage!

He sings.

I.

Past we glide, and past, and past!
 What's that poor Agnese doing
 Where they make the shutters fast?
 Gray Zanobi's just a-wooing
 To his couch the purchased bride:
 Past we glide!

II.

Past we glide, and past, and past!
 Why's the Pucci Palace flaring
 Like a beacon to the blast?
 Guests by hundreds, not one caring
 If the dear host's neck were wried:
 Past we glide!

She sings.

I.

The moth's kiss, first!
 Kiss me as if you made believe
 You were not sure, this eve,

How my face, your flower, had pursed
 Its petals up; so, here and there
 You brush it, till I grow aware
 Who wants me, and wide ope I burst.

II.

The bee's kiss, now!
 Kiss me as if you entered gay
 My heart at some noonday,
 A bud that dares not disallow
 The claim, so all is rendered up,
 And passively its shattered cup
 Over your head to sleep I bow.

He sings.

I.

What are we two?
 I am a Jew,
 And carry thee, farther than friends can pursue,
 To a feast of our tribe;
 Where they need thee to bribe
 The devil that blasts them unless he imbibe
 Thy . . . Scatter the vision forever! And now,
 As of old, I am I, thou art thou!

II.

Say again, what we are?
 The sprite of a star,
 I lure thee above where the destinies bar
 My plumes their full play
 Till a ruddier ray
 Than my pale one announce there is withering away
 Some . . . Scatter the vision forever! And now,
 As of old, I am I, thou art thou!

He muses.

Oh, which were best, to roam or rest?
 The land's lap or the water's breast?
 To sleep on yellow millet-sheaves,
 Or swim in lucid shallows just
 Eluding water-lily leaves,
 An inch from Death's black fingers, thrust
 To lock you, whom release he must;
 Which life were best on Summer eves?

He speaks, musing.

Lie back ; could thought of mine improve you ?
 From this shoulder let there spring
 A wing ; from this, another wing ;
 Wings, not legs and feet, shall move you !
 Snow-white must they spring, to blend
 With your flesh, but I intend
 They shall deepen to the end,
 Broader, into burning gold,
 Till both wings crescent-wise enfold
 Your perfect self, from 'neath your feet
 To o'er your head, where, lo, they meet
 As if a million sword-blades hurled
 Defiance from you to the world !

Rescue me thou, the only real !
 And scare away this mad ideal
 That came, nor motions to depart !
 Thanks ! Now, stay ever as thou art !

Still he muses.

I.

What if the Three should catch at last
 Thy serenader ? While there 's cast
 Paul's cloak about my head, and fast
 Gian pinions me, Himself has past
 His stylet through my back ; I reel ;
 And . . . is it thou I feel ?

II.

They trail me, these three godless knaves,
 Past every church that saints and saves,
 Nor stop till, where the cold sea raves
 By Lido's wet accursed graves,
 They scoop mine, roll me to its brink,
 And . . . on thy breast I sink !

She replies, musing.

Dip your arm o'er the boat-side, elbow-deep,
 As I do : thus : were death so unlike sleep,
 Caught this way ? Death 's to fear from flame or steel,
 Or poison doubtless ; but from water — feel !

Go find the bottom ! Would you stay me ? There !
 Now pluck a great blade of that ribbon-grass

To plait in where the foolish jewel was,
I flung away: since you have praised my hair,
'T is proper to be choice in what I wear.

He speaks.

Row home? must we row home? Too surely
Know I where its front's demurely
Over the Giudecca piled;
Window just with window mating,
Door on door exactly waiting,
All's the set face of a child:
But behind it, where's a trace
Of the staidness and reserve,
And formal lines without a curve,
In the same child's playing-face?
No two windows look one way
O'er the small sea-water thread
Below them. Ah, the autumn day
I, passing, saw you overhead!
First, out a cloud of curtain blew,
Then a sweet cry, and last came you —
To catch your lory that must needs
Escape just then, of all times then,
To peck a tall plant's fleecy seeds,
And make me happiest of men.
I scarce could breathe to see you reach
So far back o'er the balcony
To catch him ere he climbed too high
Above you in the Smyrna peach,
That quick the round smooth cord of gold,
This coiled hair on your head, unrolled,
Fell down you like a gorgeous snake
The Roman girls were wont, of old,
When Rome there was, for coolness' sake
To let lie curling o'er their bosoms.
Dear lory, may his beak retain
Ever its delicate rose stain
As if the wounded lotus-blossoms
Had marked their thief to know again!

Stay longer yet, for others' sake
Than mine! What should your chamber do?
— With all its rarities that ache
In silence while day lasts, but wako
At night-time and their life renew,
Suspended just to pleasure you

Who brought against their will together
 These objects, and, while day lasts, weave
 Around them such a magic tether
 That dumb they look : your harp, believe,
 With all the sensitive tight strings
 Which dare not speak, now to itself
 Breathes slumberously, as if some elf
 Went in and out the chords, his wings
 Make murmur wheresoe'er they graze,
 As an angel may, between the maze
 Of midnight palace-pillars, on
 And on, to sow God's plagues, have gone
 Through guilty glorious Babylon.
 And while such murmurs flow, the nymph
 Bends o'er the harp-top from her shell
 As the dry limpet for the lymph
 Come with a tune he knows so well.
 And how your statues' hearts must swell !
 And how your pictures must descend
 To see each other, friend with friend !
 Oh, could you take them by surprise,
 You 'd find Schidone's eager Duke
 Doing the quaintest courtesies
 To that prim saint by Haste-thee-Luke !
 And, deeper into her rock den,
 Bold Castelfranco's Magdalen
 You 'd find retreated from the ken
 Of that robed counsel-keeping Ser —
 As if the Tizian thinks of her,
 And is not, rather, gravely bent
 On seeing for himself what toys
 Are these, his progeny invent,
 What litter now the board employs
 Whereon he signed a document
 That got him murdered ! Each enjoys
 Its night so well, you cannot break
 The sport up, so, indeed must make
 More stay with me, for others' sake.

She speaks.

I.

To-morrow, if a harp-string, say,
 Is used to tie the jasmine back
 That overflows my room with sweets,
 Contrive your Zorzi somehow meets

My Zanze! If the ribbon's black,
The Three are watching: keep away!

II.

Your gondola — let Zorzi wreath
A mesh of water-weeds about
Its prow, as if he unaware
Had struck some quay or bridge-foot stair!
That I may throw a paper out
As you and he go underneath.

There's Zanze's vigilant taper; safe are we.
Only one minute more to-night with me?
Resume your past self of a month ago!
Be you the bashful gallant, I will be
The lady with the colder breast than snow.
Now bow you, as becomes, nor touch my hand
More than I touch yours when I step to land,
And say, "All thanks, Siora!" —

Heart to heart

And lips to lips! Yet once more, ere we part,
Clasp me and make me thine, as mine thou art!

He is surprised, and stabbed.

It was ordained to be so, sweet! — and best
Comes now, beneath thine eyes, upon thy breast.
Still kiss me! Care not for the cowards! Care
Only to put aside thy beauteous hair
My blood will hurt! The Three, I do not scorn
To death, because they never lived: but I
Have lived indeed, and so — (yet one more kiss) — can die!

WARING.

I.

I.

What's become of Waring
Since he gave us all the slip,
Chose land-travel or seafaring,
Boots and chest or staff and scrip,
Rather than pace up and down
Any longer London town?

II.

Who'd have guessed it from his lip
 Or his brow's accustomed bearing,
 On the night he thus took ship
 Or started landward? — little caring
 For us, it seems, who supped together
 (Friends of his too, I remember)
 And walked home through the merry weather,
 The snowiest in all December.
 I left his arm that night myself
 For what 's-his-name's, the new prose-poet
 Who wrote the book there, on the shelf —
 How, forsooth, was I to know it
 If Waring meant to glide away
 Like a ghost at break of day?
 Never looked he half so gay!

III.

He was prouder than the devil:
 How he must have cursed our revel!
 Ay and many other meetings,
 Indoor visits, outdoor greetings,
 As up and down he paced this London,
 With no work done, but great works undone,
 Where scarce twenty knew his name.
 Why not, then, have earlier spoken,
 Written, bustled? Who's to blame
 If your silence kept unbroken?
 "True, but there were sundry jottings,
 Stray-leaves, fragments, blurs and blottings,
 Certain first steps were achieved
 Already which" — (is that your meaning?)
 "Had well borne out whoe'er believed
 In more to come!" But who goes gleaning
 Hedge-side chance-blades, while full-sheaved
 Stand cornfields by him? Pride, o'erweening
 Pride alone, puts forth such claims
 O'er the day's distinguished names.

IV.

Meantime, how much I loved him,
 I find out now I've lost him.
 I who cared not if I moved him,
 Who could so carelessly accost him,
 Henceforth never shall get free
 Of his ghostly company,

His eyes that just a little wink
 As deep I go into the merit
 Of this and that distinguished spirit —
 His cheeks' raised color, soon to sink,
 As long I dwell on some stupendous
 And tremendous (Heaven defend us!)
 Monstr'-inform'-ingens-horrend-ous
 Demoniaco-seraphic
 Penman's latest piece of graphic.
 Nay, my very wrist grows warm
 With his dragging weight of arm.
 E'en so, swimmingly appears,
 Through one's after-supper musings,
 Some lost lady of old years
 With her beauteous vain endeavor
 And goodness unrepaid as ever ;
 The face, accustomed to refusings,
 We, puppies that we were . . . Oh never
 Surely, nice of conscience, scrupled
 Being aught like false, forsooth, to ?
 Telling aught but honest truth to ?
 What a sin, had we centupled
 Its possessor's grace and sweetness !
 No ! she heard in its completeness
 Truth, for truth's a weighty matter,
 And truth, at issue, we can't flatter !
 Well, 'tis done with ; she's exempt
 From damning us through such a sally ;
 And so she glides, as down a valley,
 Taking up with her contempt,
 Past our reach ; and in, the flowers
 Shut her unregarded hours.

V.

Oh, could I have him back once more,
 This Waring, but one half-day more !
 Back, with the quiet face of yore,
 So hungry for acknowledgment
 Like mine ! I'd fool him to his bent.
 Feed, should not he, to heart's content ?
 I'd say, "to only have conceived,
 Planned your great works, apart from progress,
 Surpasses little works achieved !"
 I'd lie so, I should be believed.
 I'd make such havoc of the claims
 Of the day's distinguished names

To feast him with, as feasts an ogress
 Her feverish sharp-toothed gold-crowned child!
 Or as one feasts a creature rarely
 Captured here, unreconciled
 To capture; and completely gives
 Its pettish humors license, barely
 Requiring that it lives.

VI.

Ichabod, Ichabod,
 The glory is departed!
 Travels Waring East away?
 Who, of knowledge, by hearsay,
 Reports a man upstarted
 Somewhere as a god,
 Hordes grown European-hearted,
 Millions of the wild made tame
 On a sudden at his fame?
 In Vishnu-land what Avatar?
 Or who in Moscow, toward the Czar,
 With the demurest of footfalls
 Over the Kremlin's pavement bright
 With serpentine and syenite,
 Steps, with five other Generals
 That simultaneously take snuff,
 For each to have pretext enough
 And kerchiefwise unfold his sash
 Which, softness' self, is yet the stuff
 To hold fast where a steel chain snaps,
 And leave the grand white neck no gash?
 Waring in Moscow, to those rough
 Cold northern natures born perhaps,
 Like the lambwhite maiden dear
 From the circle of mute kings
 Unable to repress the tear,
 Each as his sceptre down he flings,
 To Dian's fane at Taurica,
 Where now a captive priestess, she always
 Mingles her tender grave Hellenic speech
 With theirs, tuned to the hailstone-beaten beach
 As pours some pigeon, from the myrrhy lands
 Rapt by the whirlblast to fierce Scythian strands
 Where breed the swallows, her melodious cry
 Amid their barbarous twitter!
 In Russia? Never! Spain were fitter!
 Ay, most likely 't is in Spain

That we and Waring meet again
 Now, while he turns down that cool narrow lane
 Into the blackness, out of grave Madrid
 All fire and shine, abrupt as when there 's slid
 Its stiff gold blazing pall
 From some black coffin-lid.
 Or, best of all,
 I love to think
 The leaving us was just a feint ;
 Back here to London did he slink,
 And now works on without a wink
 Of sleep, and we are on the brink
 Of something great in fresco-paint :
 Some garret's ceiling, walls and floor,
 Up and down and o'er and o'er
 He splashes, as none splashed before
 Since great Caldara Polidore.
 Or Music means this land of ours
 Some favor yet, to pity won
 By Purcell from his Rosy Bowers, —
 " Give me my so-long promised son,
 Let Waring end what I begun !"
 Then down he creeps and out he steals
 Only when the night conceals
 His face ; in Kent 't is cherry-time,
 Or hops are picking : or at prime
 Of March he wanders as, too happy,
 Years ago when he was young,
 Some mild eve when woods grew sappy
 And the early moths had sprung
 To life from many a trembling sheath
 Woven the warm boughs beneath ;
 While small birds said to themselves
 What should soon be actual song,
 And young gnats, by tens and twelves,
 Made as if they were the throng
 That crowd around and carry aloft
 The sound they have nursed, so sweet and pure,
 Out of a myriad noises soft,
 Into a tone that can endure
 Amid the noise of a July noon
 When all God's creatures crave their boon,
 All at once and all in tune,
 And get it, happy as Waring then,
 Having first within his ken
 What a man might do with men :

And far too glad, in the even-glow,
 To mix with the world he meant to take
 Into his hand, he told you, so —
 And out of it his world to make,
 To contract and to expand
 As he shut or oped his hand.
 O Waring, what 's to really be?
 A clear stage and a crowd to see!
 Some Garrick, say, out shall not he
 The heart of Hamlet's mystery pluck?
 Or, where most unclean beasts are rife,
 Some Junius — am I right? — shall tuck
 His sleeve, and forth with flaying-knife!
 Some Chatterton shall have the luck
 Of calling Rowley into life!
 Some one shall somehow run a-muck
 With this old world for want of strife
 Sound asleep. Contrive, contrive
 To rouse us, Waring! Who 's alive?
 Our men scarce seem in earnest now.
 Distinguished names! — but 't is, somehow,
 As if they played at being names
 Still more distinguished, like the games
 Of children. Turn our sport to earnest
 With a visage of the sternest!
 Bring the real times back, confessed
 Still better than our very best!

II.

I.

"When I last saw Waring . . ."
 (How all turned to him who spoke!
 You saw Waring? Truth or joke?
 In land-travel or sea-faring?)

II.

"We were sailing by Triest
 Where a day or two we harbored:
 A sunset was in the West,
 When, looking over the vessel's side,
 One of our company espied
 A sudden speck to larboard.
 And as a sea-duck flies and swims
 At once, so came the light craft up,

With its sole lateen sail that trims
 And turns (the water round its rims
 Dancing, as round a sinking cup)
 And by us like a fish it curled,
 And drew itself up close beside,
 Its great sail on the instant furled,
 And o'er its thwarts a shrill voice cried,
 (A neck as bronzed as a Lascar's)
 'Buy wine of us, you English brig?
 Or fruit, tobacco and cigars?
 A pilot for you to Triest?
 Without one, look you ne'er so big,
 They'll never let you up the bay!
 We natives should know best.'
 I turned, and 'just those fellows' way,'
 Our captain said, 'The 'long-shore thieves
 Are laughing at us in their sleeves.'

III.

"In truth, the boy leaned laughing back;
 And one, half-hidden by his side
 Under the furled sail, soon I spied,
 With great grass hat and kerchief black
 Who looked up with his kingly throat
 Said somewhat, while the other shook
 His hair back from his eyes to look
 Their longest at us; then the boat,
 I know not how, turned sharply round,
 Laying her whole side on the sea
 As a leaping fish does; from the lee
 Into the weather, cut somehow
 Her sparkling path beneath our bow
 And so went off, as with a bound,
 Into the rosy and golden half
 O' the sky, to overtake the sun
 And reach the shore, like the sea-calf
 Its singing cave; yet I caught one
 Glance ere away the boat quite passed,
 And neither time nor toil could mar
 Those features: so I saw the last
 Of Waring!" — You? Oh, never star
 Was lost here but it rose afar!
 Look East, where whole new thousands are!
 In Vishnu-land what Avatar?

THE TWINS.

“Give” and “It-shall-be-given-unto-you.”

I.

Grand rough old Martin Luther
 Bloomed fables — flowers on furze,
 The better the uncouth :
 Do roses stick like burrs ?

II.

A beggar asked an alms
 One day at an abbey-door,
 Said Luther ; but, seized with qualms,
 The Abbot replied, “ We ’re poor !

III.

“ Poor, who had plenty once,
 When gifts fell thick as rain :
 But they give us nought, for the nonce,
 And how should we give again ? ”

IV.

Then the beggar, “ See your sins !
 Of old, unless I err,
 Ye had brothers for inmates, twins,
 Date and Dabitur.

V.

“ While Date was in good case
 Dabitur flourished too :
 For Dabitur’s lenten face
 No wonder if Date rue.

VI.

“ Would ye retrieve the one ?
 Try and make plump the other !
 When Date’s penance is done,
 Dabitur helps his brother.

VII.

“ Only, beware relapse ! ”
 The Abbot hung his head.
 This beggar might be perhaps
 An angel, Luther said.

A LIGHT WOMAN.

I.

So far as our story approaches the end,
Which do you pity the most of us three? —
My friend, or the mistress of my friend
With her wanton eyes, or me?

II.

My friend was already too good to lose,
And seemed in the way of improvement yet,
When she crossed his path with her hunting-noose,
And over him drew her net.

III.

When I saw him tangled in her toils,
A shame, said I, if she adds just him
To her nine-and-ninety other spoils,
The hundredth for a whim!

IV.

And before my friend be wholly hers,
How easy to prove to him, I said,
An eagle's the game her pride prefers,
Though she snaps at a wren instead!

V.

So, I gave her eyes my own eyes to take,
My hand sought hers as in earnest need,
And round she turned for my noble sake,
And gave me herself indeed.

VI.

The eagle am I, with my fame in the world,
The wren is he, with his maiden face.
— You look away and your lip is curled?
Patience, a moment's space!

VII.

For see, my friend goes shaking and white;
He eyes me as the basilisk:
I have turned, it appears, his day to night,
Eclipsing his sun's disk.

VIII.

And I did it, he thinks, as a very thief:
“ Though I love her — that, he comprehends —

One should master one's passions, (love, in chief)
And be loyal to one's friends !”

IX.

And she, — she lies in my hand as tame
As a pear late basking over a wall ;
Just a touch to try and off it came ;
'T is mine, — can I let it fall ?

X.

With no mind to eat it, that 's the worst !
Were it thrown in the road, would the case assist ?
'T was quenching a dozen blue-flies' thirst
When I gave its stalk a twist.

XI.

And I, — what I seem to my friend, you see :
What I soon shall seem to his love, you guess :
What I seem to myself, do you ask of me ?
No hero, I confess.

XII.

'T is an awkward thing to play with souls,
And matter enough to save one's own :
Yet think of my friend, and the burning coals
He played with for bits of stone !

XIII.

One likes to show the truth for the truth ;
That the woman was light is very true :
But suppose she says, — Never mind that youth !
What wrong have I done to you ?

XIV.

Well, anyhow, here the story stays,
So far at least as I understand ;
And, Robert Browning, you writer of plays,
Here 's a subject made to your hand !

THE LAST RIDE TOGETHER.

I.

I said — Then, dearest, since 't is so,
Since now at length my fate I know,
Since nothing all my love avails,

Since all, my life seemed meant for, fails,

Since this was written and needs must be —

My whole heart rises up to bless

Your name in pride and thankfulness!

Take back the hope you gave, — I claim

Only a memory of the same,

— And this beside, if you will not blame,

Your leave for one more last ride with me.

II.

My mistress bent that brow of hers;

Those deep dark eyes where pride demurs

When pity would be softening through,

Fixed me a breathing-while or two

With life or death in the balance: right!

The blood replenished me again;

My last thought was at least not vain:

I and my mistress, side by side

Shall be together, breathe and ride,

So, one day more am I deified.

Who knows but the world may end to-night?

III.

Hush! if you saw some western cloud

All billowy-bosomed, over-bowed

By many benedictions — sun's

And moon's and evening-star's at once —

And so, you, looking and loving best,

Conscious grew, your passion drew

Cloud, sunset, moonrise, star-shine too,

Down on you, near and yet more near,

Till flesh must fade for heaven was here! —

Thus leant she and lingered — joy and fear!

Thus lay she a moment on my breast.

IV.

Then we began to ride. My soul

Smoothed itself out, a long-cramped scroll

Freshening and fluttering in the wind.

Past hopes already lay behind.

What need to strive with a life awry?

Had I said that, had I done this,

So might I gain, so might I miss.

Might she have loved me? just as well

She might have hated, who can tell!

Where had I been now if the worst befell?

And here we are riding, she and I.

V.

Fail I alone, in words and deeds?
 Why, all men strive, and who succeeds?
 We rode; it seemed my spirit flew,
 Saw other regions, cities new,
     As the world rushed by on either side.
 I thought, — All labor, yet no less
 Bear up beneath their unsuccess.
 Look at the end of work, contrast
 The petty done, the undone vast,
 This present of theirs with the hopeful past!
     I hoped she would love me; here we ride.

VI.

What hand and brain went ever paired?
 What heart alike conceived and dared?
 What act proved all its thought had been?
 What will but felt the fleshly screen?
     We ride and I see her bosom heave.
 There's many a crown for who can reach.
 Ten lines, a statesman's life in each!
 The flag stuck on a heap of bones,
 A soldier's doing! what atones?
 They scratch his name on the Abbey-stones.
     My riding is better, by their leave.

VII.

What does it all mean, poet? Well,
 Your brains beat into rhythm, you tell
 What we felt only; you expressed
 You hold things beautiful the best,
     And place them in rhyme so, side by side.
 'T is something, nay 't is much: but then,
 Have you yourself what's best for men?
 Are you — poor, sick, old ere your time —
 Nearer one whit your own sublime
 Than we who never have turned a rhyme?
     Sing, riding's a joy! For me, I ride.

VIII.

And you, great sculptor — so, you gave
 A score of years to Art, her slave,
 And that's your Venus, whence we turn
 To yonder girl that fords the burn!
     You acquiesce, and shall I repine?

What, man of music, you grown gray
 With notes and nothing else to say,
 Is this your sole praise from a friend,
 "Greatly his opera's strains intend,
 But in music we know how fashions end!"
 I gave my youth; but we ride, in fine.

IX.

Who knows what's fit for us? Had fate
 Proposed bliss here should sublimate
 My being — had I signed the bond —
 Still one must lead some life beyond,
 Have a bliss to die with, dim-descried.
 This foot once planted on the goal,
 This glory-garland round my soul,
 Could I desery such? Try and test!
 I sink back shuddering from the quest.
 Earth being so good, would heaven seem best?
 Now, heaven and she are beyond this ride.

X.

And yet — she has not spoke so long!
 What if heaven be that, fair and strong
 At life's best, with our eyes upturned
 Whither life's flower is first discerned,
 We, fixed so, ever should so abide?
 What if we still ride on, we two,
 With life forever old yet new,
 Changed not in kind but in degree,
 The instant made eternity, —
 And heaven just prove that I and she
 Ride, ride together, forever ride?

THE PIED PIPER OF HAMELIN;

A CHILD'S STORY.

(WRITTEN FOR, AND INSCRIBED TO, W. M. THE YOUNGER.)

I.

Hamelin Town's in Brunswick,
 By famous Hanover city;
 The river Weser, deep and wide,
 Washes its wall on the southern side;
 A pleasanter spot you never spied;

But, when begins my ditty,
 Almost five hundred years ago,
 To see the townsfolk suffer so
 From vermin, was a pity.

II.

Rats !
 They fought the dogs and killed the cats,
 And bit the babies in the cradles,
 And ate the cheeses out of the vats,
 And licked the soup from the cooks' own ladles,
 Split open the kegs of salted sprats,
 Made nests inside men's Sunday hats,
 And even spoiled the women's chats,
 By drowning their speaking
 With shrieking and squeaking
 In fifty different sharps and flats.

III.

At last the people in a body
 To the Town Hall came flocking :
 " 'T is clear," cried they, " our Mayor 's a noddy ;
 And as for our Corporation — shocking
 To think we buy gowns lined with ermine
 For dolts that can't or won't determine
 What 's best to rid us of our vermin !
 You hope, because you 're old and obese,
 To find in the furry civic robe ease ?
 Rouse up, sirs ! Give your brains a racking
 To find the remedy we 're lacking,
 Or, sure as fate, we 'll send you packing ! "
 At this the Mayor and Corporation
 Quaked with a mighty consternation.

IV.

An hour they sat in council ;
 At length the Mayor broke silence :
 " For a guilder I 'd my ermine gown sell,
 I wish I were a mile hence !
 It 's easy to bid one rack one's brain —
 I 'm sure my poor head aches again,
 I 've scratched it so, and all in vain.
 Oh for a trap, a trap, a trap ! "
 Just as he said this, what should hap
 At the chamber-door but a gentle tap ?
 " Bless us," cried the Mayor, " what 's that ? "

(With the Corporation as he sat,
 Looking little though wondrous fat ;
 Nor brighter was his eye, nor moister
 Than a too-long-opened oyster,
 Save when at noon his paunch grew mutinous
 For a plate of turtle green and glutinous)
 " Only a scraping of shoes on the mat ?
 Anything like the sound of a rat
 Makes my heart go pit-a-pat ! "

V.

" Come in ! " — the Mayor cried, looking bigger :
 And in did come the strangest figure !
 His queer long coat from heel to head
 Was half of yellow and half of red,
 And he himself was tall and thin,
 With sharp blue eyes, each like a pin,
 And light loose hair, yet swarthy skin,
 No tuft on cheek nor beard on chin,
 But lips where smiles went out and in ;
 There was no guessing his kith and kin :
 And nobody could enough admire
 The tall man and his quaint attire.
 Quoth one : " It 's as my great-grandsire,
 Starting up at the Trump of Doom 's tone,
 Had walked this way from his painted tomb-stone ! "

VI.

He advanced to the council-table :
 And, " Please your honors," said he, " I 'm able,
 By means of a secret charm, to draw
 All creatures living beneath the sun,
 That creep or swim or fly or run,
 After me so as you never saw !
 And I chiefly use my charm
 On creatures that do people harm,
 The mole and toad and newt and viper ;
 And people call me the Pied Piper."
 (And here they noticed round his neck
 A scarf of red and yellow stripe,
 To match with his coat of the self-same cheque ;
 And at the scarf 's end hung a pipe ;
 And his fingers, they noticed, were ever straying
 As if impatient to be playing
 Upon this pipe, as low it dangled
 Over his vesture so old-fangled.)

"Yet," said he, "poor piper as I am,
 In Tartary I freed the Cham,
 Last June, from his huge swarms of gnats;
 I eased in Asia the Nizam
 Of a monstrous brood of vampire-bats:
 And as for what your brain bewilders,
 If I can rid your town of rats
 Will you give me a thousand guilders?"
 "One? fifty thousand!" — was the exclamation
 Of the astonished Mayor and Corporation.

VII.

Into the street the Piper stept,
 Smiling first a little smile,
 As if he knew what magic slept
 In his quiet pipe the while;
 Then, like a musical adept,
 To blow the pipe his lips he wrinkled,
 And green and blue his sharp eyes twinkled,
 Like a candle-flame where salt is sprinkled;
 And ere three shrill notes the pipe uttered,
 You heard as if an army muttered;
 And the muttering grew to a grumbling;
 And the grumbling grew to a mighty rumbling;
 And out of the houses the rats came tumbling.
 Great rats, small rats, lean rats, brawny rats,
 Brown rats, black rats, gray rats, tawny rats,
 Grave old plodders, gay young friskers,
 Fathers, mothers, uncles, cousins,
 Cocking tails and pricking whiskers,
 Families by tens and dozens,
 Brothers, sisters, husbands, wives —
 Followed the Piper for their lives.
 From street to street he piped advancing,
 And step for step they followed dancing,
 Until they came to the river Weser,
 Wherein all plunged and perished!
 — Save one who, stout as Julius Cæsar,
 Swam across and lived to carry
 (As he, the manuscript he cherished)
 To Rat-land home his commentary:
 Which was, "At the first shrill notes of the pipe,
 I heard a sound as of scraping tripe,
 And putting apples, wondrous ripe,
 Into a cider-press's gripe:
 And a moving away of pickle-tub-boards,

And a leaving ajar of conserve-cupboards,
 And a drawing the corks of train-oil-flasks,
 And a breaking the hoops of butter-casks:
 And it seemed as if a voice
 (Sweeter far than by harp or by psaltery
 Is breathed) called out, 'Oh rats, rejoice!
 The world is grown to one vast drysaltery!
 So munch on, crunch on, take your nuncheon,
 Breakfast, supper, dinner, luncheon!'—
 And just as a bulky sugar-puncheon,
 All ready staved, like a great sun shone
 Glorious scarce an inch before me,
 Just as methought it said, 'Come, bore me!'—
 — I found the Weser rolling o'er me."

VIII.

You should have heard the Hamelin people
 Ringing the bells till they rocked the steeple.
 "Go," cried the Mayor; "and get long poles,
 Poke out the nests and block up the holes!
 Consult with carpenters and builders,
 And leave in our town not even a trace
 Of the rats!" — when suddenly, up the face
 Of the Piper perked in the market-place,
 With a, "First, if you please, my thousand guilders!"

IX.

A thousand guilders! The Mayor looked blue;
 So did the Corporation too.
 For council dinners made rare havoc
 With Claret, Moselle, Vin-de-Grave, Hock;
 And half the money would replenish
 Their cellar's biggest butt with Rhénish.
 To pay this sum to a wandering fellow
 With a gypsy coat of red and yellow!
 "Beside," quoth the Mayor with a knowing wink,
 "Our business was done at the river's brink;
 We saw with our eyes the vermin sink,
 And what's dead can't come to life, I think.
 So, friend, we're not the folks to shrink
 From the duty of giving you something for drink,
 And a matter of money to put in your poke;
 But as for the guilders, what we spoke
 Of them, as you very well know, was in joke.
 Beside, our losses have made us thrifty.
 A thousand guilders! Come, take fifty!"

X.

The Piper's face fell, and he cried
 "No trifling! I can't wait, beside!
 I've promised to visit by dinner time
 Bagdat, and accept the prime
 Of the Head-Cook's pottage, all he's rich in,
 For having left, in the Caliph's kitchen,
 Of a nest of scorpions no survivor:
 With him I proved no bargain-driver,
 With you, don't think I'll bate a stiver!
 And folks who put me in a passion
 May find me pipe after another fashion."

XI.

"How?" cried the Mayor, "d'ye think I brook
 Being worse treated than a Cook?
 Insulted by a lazy ribald
 With idle pipe and vesture piebald?
 You threaten us, fellow? Do your worst,
 Blow your pipe there till you burst!"

XII.

Once more he stepped into the street,
 And to his lips again
 Laid his long pipe of smooth straight cane;
 And ere he blew three notes (such sweet
 Soft notes as yet musician's cunning
 Never gave the enraptured air)
 There was a rustling that seemed like a bustling
 Of merry crowds justling at pitching and hustling;
 Small feet were pattering, wooden shoes clattering,
 Little hands clapping and little tongues chattering,
 And, like fowls in a farm-yard when barley is scattering,
 Out came the children running.
 All the little boys and girls,
 With rosy cheeks and flaxen curls,
 And sparkling eyes and teeth like pearls,
 Tripping and skipping, ran merrily after
 The wonderful music with shouting and laughter.

XIII.

The Mayor was dumb, and the Council stood
 As if they were changed into blocks of wood,
 Unable to move a step, or cry
 To the children merrily skipping by,

— Could only follow with the eye
That joyous crowd at the Piper's back.
But how the Mayor was on the rack,
And the wretched Council's bosoms beat,
As the Piper turned from the High Street
To where the Weser rolled its waters
Right in the way of their sons and daughters !
However, he turned from South to West,
And to Koppelberg Hill his steps addressed,
And after him the children pressed ;
Great was the joy in every breast.
“ He never can cross that mighty top !
He's forced to let the piping drop,
And we shall see our children stop ! ”
When, lo, as they reached the mountain-side,
A wondrous portal opened wide,
As if a cavern was suddenly hollowed ;
And the Piper advanced and the children followed,
And when all were in to the very last,
The door in the mountain-side shut fast.
Did I say, all ? No ! One was lame,
And could not dance the whole of the way ;
And in after years, if you would blame
His sadness, he was used to say, —
“ It's dull in our town since my playmates left !
I can't forget that I'm bereft
Of all the pleasant sights they see,
Which the Piper also promised me.
For he led us, he said, to a joyous land,
Joining the town and just at hand,
Where waters gushed and fruit-trees grew,
And flowers put forth a fairer hue,
And everything was strange and new ;
The sparrows were brighter than peacocks here,
And their dogs outran our fallow deer,
And honey-bees had lost their stings,
And horses were born with eagles' wings :
And just as I became assured
My lame foot would be speedily cured,
The music stopped and I stood still,
And found myself outside the hill,
Left alone against my will,
To go now limping as before,
And never hear of that country more ! ”

XIV.

Alas, alas for Hamelin!

There came into many a burgher's pate
A text which says that heaven's gate
Opes to the rich at as easy rate

As the needle's eye takes a camel in!
The Mayor sent East, West, North and South,
To offer the Piper, by word of mouth,

Wherever it was men's lot to find him,
Silver and gold to his heart's content,
If he'd only return the way he went,
And bring the children behind him.

But when they saw 't was a lost endeavor,
And Piper and dancers were gone forever,
They made a decree that lawyers never

Should think their records dated duly
If, after the day of the month and year,
These words did not as well appear,

"And so long after what happened here
On the Twenty-second of July,
Thirteen hundred and seventy-six:"

And the better in memory to fix
The place of the children's last retreat,
They called it, the Pied Piper's Street —
Where any one playing on pipe or tabor
Was sure for the future to lose his labor.
Nor suffered they hostelry or tavern

To shock with mirth a street so solemn;
But opposite the place of the cavern

They wrote the story on a column,
And on the great church-window painted
The same, to make the world acquainted
How their children were stolen away,
And there it stands to this very day.

And I must not omit to say
That in Transylvania there's a tribe
Of alien people who ascribe
The outlandish ways and dress
On which their neighbors lay such stress,
To their fathers and mothers having risen
Out of some subterraneous prison

Into which they were trepanned
Long time ago in a mighty band
Out of Hamelin town in Brunswick land,
But how or why, they don't understand.

XV.

So, Willy, let me and you be wipers
 Of scores out with all men — especially pipers !
 And, whether they pipe us free fróm rats or fróm mice,
 If we 've promised them aught, let us keep our promise !

THE FLIGHT OF THE DUCHESS.

I.

You 're my friend :
 I was the man the Duke spoke to ;
 I helped the Duchess to cast off his yoke, too ;
 So, here 's the tale from beginning to end,
 My friend !

II.

Ours is a great wild country :
 If you climb to our castle's top,
 I don't see where your eye can stop ;
 For when you 've passed the cornfield country,
 Where vineyards leave off, flocks are packed,
 And sheep-range leads to cattle-tract,
 And cattle-tract to open-chase,
 And open-chase to the very base
 Of the mountain where, at a funeral pace,
 Round about, solemn and slow,
 One by one, row after row,
 Up and up the pine-trees go,
 So, like black priests up, and so
 Down the other side again
 To another greater, wilder country,
 That 's one vast red drear burnt-up plain,
 Branched through and through with many a vein
 Whence iron 's dug, and copper 's dealt ;
 Look right, look left, look straight before, —
 Beneath they mine, above they smelt,
 Copper-ore and iron-ore,
 And forge and furnace mould and melt,
 And so on, more and ever more,
 Till at the last, for a bounding belt,
 Comes the salt sand hoar of the great sea-shore,
 — And the whole is our Duke's country.

III.

I was born the day this present Duke was —
 (And O, says the song, ere I was old !)
 In the castle where the other Duke was —
 (When I was happy and young, not old !)
 I in the kennel, he in the bower :
 We are of like age to an hour.
 My father was huntsman in that day ;
 Who has not heard my father say
 That, when a boar was brought to bay,
 Three times, four times out of five,
 With his huntspear he 'd contrive
 To get the killing-place transfixed,
 And pin him true, both eyes betwixt ?
 And that 's why the old Duke would rather
 He lost a salt-pit than my father,
 And loved to have him ever in call ;
 That 's why my father stood in the hall
 When the old Duke brought his infant out
 To show the people, and while they passed
 The wondrous bantling round about,
 Was first to start at the outside blast
 As the Kaiser's courier blew his horn,
 Just a month after the babe was born.
 " And," quoth the Kaiser's courier, " since
 The Duke has got an heir, our Prince
 Needs the Duke's self at his side : "
 The Duke looked down and seemed to wince,
 But he thought of wars o'er the world wide,
 Castles a-fire, men on their march,
 The toppling tower, the crashing arch ;
 And up he looked, and awhile he eyed
 The row of crests and shields and banners
 Of all achievements after all manners,
 And " ay," said the Duke with a surly pride.
 The more was his comfort when he died
 At next year's end, in a velvet suit,
 With a gilt glove on his hand, his foot
 In a silken shoe for a leather boot,
 Petticoated like a herald,
 In a chamber next to an ante-room,
 Where he breathed the breath of page and groom,
 What he called stink, and they, perfume :
 — They should have set him on red Berold
 Mad with pride, like fire to manage ! —

They should have got his cheek fresh tannage
 Such a day as to-day in the merry sunshine!
 Had they stuck on his fist a rough-foot merlin!
 (Hark, the wind's on the heath at its game!
 Oh for a noble falcon-lanner
 To flap each broad wing like a banner,
 And turn in the wind, and dance like flame!)
 Had they broached a white-beer cask from Berlin
 — Or if you incline to prescribe mere wine
 Put to his lips, when they saw him pine,
 A cup of our own Moldavia fine,
 Cotnar for instance, green as May sorrel
 And ropy with sweet, — we shall not quarrel.

IV.

So, at home, the sick tall yellow Duchess
 Was left with the infant in her clutches,
 She being the daughter of God knows who:
 And now was the time to revisit her tribe.
 Abroad and afar they went, the two,
 And let our people rail and gibe
 At the empty hall and extinguished fire,
 As loud as we liked, but ever in vain,
 Till after long years we had our desire,
 And back came the Duke and his mother again.

V.

And he came back the pertest little ape
 That ever affronted human shape;
 Full of his travel, struck at himself.
 You'd say, he despised our bluff old ways?
 — Not he! For in Paris they told the elf
 Our rough North land was the Land of Lays,
 The one good thing left in evil days;
 Since the Mid-Age was the Heroic Time,
 And only in wild nooks like ours
 Could you taste of it yet as in its prime,
 And see true castles, with proper towers,
 Young-hearted women, old-minded men,
 And manners now as manners were then.
 So, all that the old Dukes had been, without knowing it,
 This Duke would fain know he was, without being it;
 'T was not for the joy's self, but the joy of his showing it,
 Nor for the pride's self, but the pride of our seeing it,
 He revived all usages thoroughly worn-out,
 The souls of them fumed-forth, the hearts of them torn-out:

And chief in the chase his neck he perilled,
 On a lathy horse, all legs and length,
 With blood for bone, all speed, no strength ;
 — They should have set him on red Berold
 With the red eye slow consuming in fire,
 And the thin stiff ear like an abbey spire !

VI.

Well, such as he was, he must marry, we heard :
 And out of a convent, at the word,
 Came the lady, in time of spring.
 — Oh, old thoughts they cling, they cling !
 That day, I know, with a dozen oaths
 I clad myself in thick hunting-clothes
 Fit for the chase of urochs or buffle
 In winter-time when you need to muffle.
 But the Duke had a mind we should cut a figure,
 And so we saw the lady arrive :
 My friend, I have seen a white crane bigger !
 She was the smallest lady alive,
 Made in a piece of nature's madness,
 Too small, almost, for the life and gladness
 That over-filled her, as some hive
 Out of the bears' reach on the high trees
 Is crowded with its safe merry bees :
 In truth, she was not hard to please !
 Up she looked, down she looked, round at the mead,
 Straight at the castle, that 's best indeed
 To look at from outside the walls :
 As for us, styled the "serfs and thralls,"
 She as much thanked me as if she had said it,
 (With her eyes, do you understand ?)
 Because I patted her horse while I led it ;
 And Max, who rode on her other hand,
 Said, no bird flew past but she inquired
 What its true name was, nor ever seemed tired —
 If that was an eagle she saw hover,
 And the green and gray bird on the field was the plover.
 When suddenly appeared the Duke :
 And as down she sprung, the small foot pointed
 On to my hand, — as with a rebuke,
 And as if his backbone were not jointed,
 The Duke stepped rather aside than forward,
 And welcomed her with his grandest smile ;
 And, mind you, his mother all the while
 Chilled in the rear, like a wind to Nor'ward ;

And up, like a weary yawn, with its pulleys
 Went, in a shriek, the rusty portcullis ;
 And, like a glad sky the north-wind sullies,
 The lady's face stopped its play,
 As if her first hair had grown gray ;
 For such things must begin some one day.

VII.

In a day or two she was well again ;
 As who should say, " You labor in vain !
 This is all a jest against God, who meant
 I should ever be, as I am, content
 And glad in his sight ; therefore, glad I will be."
 So, smiling as at first went she.

VIII.

She was active, stirring, all fire —
 Could not rest, could not tire —
 To a stone she might have given life !
 (I myself loved once, in my day)
 — For a shepherd's, miner's, huntsman's wife,
 (I had a wife, I know what I say)
 Never in all the world such an one !
 And here was plenty to be done,
 And she that could do it, great or small,
 She was to do nothing at all.
 There was already this man in his post,
 This in his station, and that in his office,
 And the Duke's plan admitted a wife, at most,
 To meet his eye, with the other trophies,
 Now outside the hall, now in it,
 To sit thus, stand thus, see and be seen,
 At the proper place in the proper minute,
 And die away the life between.
 And it was amusing enough, each infraction
 Of rule — (but for after-sadness that came)
 To hear the consummate self-satisfaction
 With which the young Duke and the old dame
 Would let her advise, and criticise,
 And, being a fool, instruct the wise,
 And, child-like, parcel out praise or blame :
 They bore it all in complacent guise,
 As though an artificer, after contriving
 A wheel-work image as if it were living,
 Should find with delight it could motion to strike him !
 So found the Duke, and his mother like him :

The lady hardly got a rebuff —
 That had not been contemptuous enough,
 With his cursed smirk, as he nodded applause,
 And kept off the old mother-cat's claws.

IX.

So, the little lady grew silent and thin,
 Paling and ever paling,
 As the way is with a hid chagrin ;
 And the Duke perceived that she was ailing,
 And said in his heart, " 'T is done to spite me,
 But I shall find in my power to right me ! "
 Don't swear, friend ! The old one, many a year,
 Is in hell, and the Duke's self . . . you shall hear.

X.

Well, early in autumn, at first winter-warning,
 When the stag had to break with his foot, of a morning,
 A drinking-hole out of the fresh tender ice,
 That covered the pond till the sun, in a trice,
 Loosening it, let out a ripple of gold,
 And another and another, and faster and faster,
 Till, dimpling to blindness, the wide water rolled :
 Then it so chanced that the Duke our master
 Asked himself what were the pleasures in season,
 And found, since the calendar bade him be hearty,
 He should do the Middle Age no treason
 In resolving on a hunting-party.
 Always provided, old books showed the way of it !
 What meant old poets by their strictures ?
 And when old poets had said their say of it,
 How taught old painters in their pictures ?
 We must revert to the proper channels,
 Workings in tapestry, paintings on panels,
 And gather up woodcraft's authentic traditions :
 Here was food for our various ambitions,
 As on each case, exactly stated —
 To encourage your dog, now, the properest chirrup,
 Or best prayer to St. Hubert on mounting your stirrup —
 We of the household took thought and debated.
 Blessed was he whose back ached with the jerkin
 His sire was wont to do forest-work in ;
 Blessedder he who nobly sunk " ohs "
 And " ahs " while he tugged on his grandsire's trunk-hose ;
 What signified hats if they had no rims on,
 Each slouching before and behind like the scallop,

And able to serve at sea for a shallop,
 Loaded with lacquer and looped with crimson?
 So that the deer now, to make a short rhyme on't,
 What with our Venerers, Prickers and Verderers,
 Might hope for real hunters at length and not murderers,
 And oh the Duke's tailor, he had a hot time on't!

XI.

Now you must know that when the first dizziness
 Of flap-hats and buff-coats and jack-boots subsided,
 The Duke put this question, "The Duke's part provided,
 Had not the Duchess some share in the business?"
 For out of the mouth of two or three witnesses
 Did he establish all fit-or-unfitnesses:
 And, after much laying of heads together,
 Somebody's cap got a notable feather
 By the announcement with proper unction
 That he had discovered the lady's function;
 Since ancient authors gave this tenet,
 "When horns wind a mort and the deer is at siege,
 Let the dame of the castle prick forth on her jennet,
 And, with water to wash the hands of her liege
 In a clean ewer with a fair towelling,
 Let her preside at the disembowelling."
 Now, my friend, if you had so little religion
 As to catch a hawk, some falcon-lanner,
 And thrust her broad wings like a banner
 Into a coop for a vulgar pigeon;
 And if day by day and week by week
 You cut her claws, and sealed her eyes,
 And clipped her wings, and tied her beak,
 Would it cause you any great surprise
 If, when you decided to give her an airing,
 You found she needed a little preparing?
 — I say, should you be such a curmudgeon,
 If she clung to the perch, as to take it in dudgeon?
 Yet when the Duke to his lady signified,
 Just a day before, as he judged most dignified,
 In what a pleasure she was to participate, —
 And, instead of leaping wide in flashes,
 Her eyes just lifted their long lashes,
 As if pressed by fatigue even he could not dissipate,
 And duly acknowledged the Duke's forethought,
 But spoke of her health, if her health were worth aught.
 Of the weight by day and the watch by night,
 And much wrong now that used to be right,

So, thanking him, declined the hunting, —
 Was conduct ever more affronting?
 With all the ceremony settled —
 With the towel ready, and the sewer
 Polishing up his oldest ewer,
 And the jennet pitched upon, a piebald,
 Black-barred, cream-coated and pink eye-balled, —
 No wonder if the Duke was nettled!
 And when she persisted nevertheless, —
 Well, I suppose here 's the time to confess
 That there ran half round our lady's chamber
 A balcony none of the hardest to clamber;
 And that Jacynth the tire-woman, ready in waiting,
 Stayed in call outside, what need of relating?
 And since Jacynth was like a June rose, why, a fervent
 Adorer of Jacynth of course was your servant;
 And if she had the habit to peep through the casement,
 How could I keep at any vast distance?
 And so, as I say, on the lady's persistence,
 The Duke, dumb-stricken with amazement,
 Stood for a while in a sultry smother,
 And then, with a smile that partook of the awful,
 Turned her over to his yellow mother
 To learn what was held decorous and lawful;
 And the mother smelt blood with a cat-like instinct,
 As her cheek quick whitened through all its quince-tinct.
 Oh, but the lady heard the whole truth at once!
 What meant she? — Who was she? — Her duty and station,
 The wisdom of age and the folly of youth, at once,
 Its decent regard and its fitting relation —
 In brief, my friend, set all the devils in hell free
 And turn them out to carouse in a belfry
 And treat the priests to a fifty-part canon,
 And then you may guess how that tongue of hers ran on!
 Well, somehow or other it ended at last
 And, licking her whiskers, out she passed;
 And after her, — making (he hoped) a face
 Like Emperor Nero or Sultan Saladin,
 Stalked the Duke's self with the austere grace
 Of ancient hero or modern paladin,
 From door to staircase — oh such a solemn
 Unbending of the vertebral column!

XII.

However, at sunrise our company mustered;
 And here was the huntsman bidding unkennel,

And there 'neath his bonnet the pricker blustered,
 With feather dank as a bough of wet fennel ;
 For the court-yard walls were filled with fog
 You might have cut as an axe chops a log —
 Like so much wool for color and bulkiness ;
 And out rode the Duke in a perfect sulkiness,
 Since, before breakfast, a man feels but queasily,
 And a sinking at the lower abdomen
 Begins the day with indifferent omen.
 And lo, as he looked around uneasily,
 The sun ploughed the fog up and drove it asunder
 This way and that from the valley under ;
 And, looking through the court-yard arch,
 Down in the valley, what should meet him
 But a troop of Gypsies on their march?
 No doubt with the annual gifts to greet him.

XIII.

Now, in your land, Gypsies reach you, only
 After reaching all lands beside ;
 North they go, South they go, trooping or lonely,
 And still, as they travel far and wide,
 Catch they and keep now a trace here, a trace there,
 That puts you in mind of a place here, a place there.
 But with us, I believe they rise out of the ground,
 And nowhere else, I take it, are found
 With the earth-tint yet so freshly embrowned :
 Born, no doubt, like insects which breed on
 The very fruit they are meant to feed on.
 For the earth — not a use to which they don't turn it,
 The ore that grows in the mountain's womb,
 Or the sand in the pits like a honeycomb,
 They sift and soften it, bake it and burn it —
 Whether they weld you, for instance, a snaffle
 With side-bars never a brute can baffle ;
 Or a lock that 's a puzzle of wards within wards ;
 Or, if your colt's forefoot inclines to curve inwards,
 Horseshoes they hammer which turn on a swivel
 And won't allow the hoof to shrivel.
 Then they cast bells like the shell of the winkle
 That keep a stout heart in the ram with their tinkle ;
 But the sand — they pinch and pound it like otters ;
 Commend me to Gypsy glass-makers and potters !
 Glasses they 'll blow you, crystal-clear,
 Where just a faint cloud of rose shall appear,
 As if in pure water you dropped and let die

A bruised black-blooded mulberry ;
And that other sort, their crowning pride,
With long white threads distinct inside,
Like the lake-flower's fibrous roots which dangle
Loose such a length and never tangle,
Where the bold sword-lily cuts the clear waters,
And the cup-lily couches with all the white daughters :
Such are the works they put their hand to,
The uses they turn and twist iron and sand to.
And these made the troop, which our Duke saw sally
Toward his castle from out of the valley,
Men and women, like new-hatched spiders,
Come out with the morning to greet our riders.
And up they wound till they reached the ditch,
Whereat all stopped save one, a witch
That I knew, as she hobbled from the group,
By her gait directly and her stoop,
I, whom Jacynth was used to importune
To let that same witch tell us our fortune,
The oldest Gypsy then above ground ;
And, sure as the autumn season came round,
She paid us a visit for profit or pastime,
And every time, as she swore, for the last time.
And presently she was seen to sidle
Up to the Duke till she touched his bridle,
So that the horse of a sudden reared up
As under its nose the old witch peered up
With her worn-out eyes, or rather eye-holes
Of no use now but to gather brine,
And began a kind of level whine
Such as they used to sing to their viols
When their ditties they go grinding
Up and down with nobody minding :
And then, as of old, at the end of the humming
Her usual presents were forthcoming
— A dog-whistle blowing the fiercest of trebles,
(Just a sea-shore stone holding a dozen fine pebbles,)
Or a porcelain mouthpiece to screw on a pipe-end, —
And so she awaited her annual stipend.
But this time, the Duke would scarcely vouchsafe
A word in reply ; and in vain she felt
With twitching fingers at her belt
For the purse of sleek pine-marten pelt,
Ready to put what he gave in her pouch safe, —
Till, either to quicken his apprehension,
Or possibly with an after-intention,

She was come, she said, to pay her duty
 To the new Duchess, the youthful beauty.
 No sooner had she named his lady,
 Than a shine lit up the face so shady,
 And its smirk returned with a novel meaning —
 For it struck him, the babe just wanted weaning ;
 If one gave her a taste of what life was and sorrow,
 She, foolish to-day, would be wiser to-morrow ;
 And who so fit a teacher of trouble
 As this sordid crone bent well-nigh double ?
 So, glancing at her wolf-skin vesture,
 (If such it was, for they grow so hirsute
 That their own fleece serves for natural fur-suit)
 He was contrasting, 't was plain from his gesture,
 The life of the lady so flower-like and delicate
 With the loathsome squalor of this helicat.
 I, in brief, was the man the Duke beckoned
 From out of the throng, and while I drew near
 He told the crone — as I since have reckoned
 By the way he bent and spoke into her ear
 With circumspection and mystery —
 The main of the lady's history,
 Her frowardness and ingratitude :
 And for all the crone's submissive attitude
 I could see round her mouth the loose plaits tightening,
 And her brow with assenting intelligence brightening,
 As though she engaged with hearty goodwill
 Whatever he now might enjoin to fulfil,
 And promised the lady a thorough frightening.
 And so, just giving her a glimpse
 Of a purse, with the air of a man who imp's
 The wing of the hawk that shall fetch the hershaw,
 He bade me take the Gypsy mother
 And set her telling some story or other
 Of hill or dale, oak-wood or fernshaw,
 To while away a weary hour
 For the lady left alone in her bower,
 Whose mind and body craved exertion
 And yet shrank from all better diversion.

XIV.

Then clapping heel to his horse, the mere curveter,
 Out rode the Duke, and after his hollo
 Horses and hounds swept, huntsman and servitor,
 And back I turned and bade the crone follow.
 And what makes me confident what 's to be told you

Had all along been of this crone's devising,
 Is, that, on looking round sharply, behold you,
 There was a novelty quick as surprising :
 For first, she had shot up a full head in stature,
 And her step kept pace with mine nor faltered,
 As if age had foregone its usurpature,
 And the ignoble mien was wholly altered,
 And the face looked quite of another nature,
 And the change reached too, whatever the change meant,
 Her shaggy wolf-skin cloak's arrangement :
 For where its tatters hung loose like sedges,
 Gold coins were glittering on the edges,
 Like the band-roll strung with tomans
 Which proves the veil a Persian woman's :
 And under her brow, like a snail's horns newly
 Come out as after the rain he paces,
 Two unmistakable eye-points duly
 Live and aware looked out of their places.
 So, we went and found Jacynth at the entry
 Of the lady's chamber standing sentry ;
 I told the command and produced my companion,
 And Jacynth rejoiced to admit any one,
 For since last night, by the same token,
 Not a single word had the lady spoken :
 They went in both to the presence together,
 While I in the balcony watched the weather.

XV.

And now, what took place at the very first of all,
 I cannot tell, as I never could learn it :
 Jacynth constantly wished a curse to fall
 On that little head of hers and burn it
 If she knew how she came to drop so soundly
 Asleep of a sudden and there continue
 The whole time sleeping as profoundly
 As one of the boars my father would pin you
 'Twixt the eyes where life holds garrison,
 — Jacynth forgive me the comparison !
 But where I begin my own narration
 Is a little after I took my station
 To breathe the fresh air from the balcony,
 And, having in those days a falcon eye,
 To follow the hunt through the open country,
 From where the bushes thinlier crested
 The hillocks, to a plain where's not one tree.
 When, in a moment, my ear was arrested

By — was it singing, or was it saying,
Or a strange musical instrument playing
In the chamber? — and to be certain
I pushed the lattice, pulled the curtain,
And there lay Jacynth asleep,
Yet as if a watch she tried to keep,
In a rosy sleep along the floor
With her head against the door;
While in the midst, on the seat of state,
Was a queen — the Gypsy woman late,
With head and face downbent
On the lady's head and face intent:
For, coiled at her feet like a child at ease,
The lady sat between her knees,
And o'er them the lady's clasped hands met,
And on those hands her chin was set,
And her upturned face met the face of the crone
Wherein the eyes had grown and grown
As if she could double and quadruple
At pleasure the play of either pupil
— Very like, by her hands' slow fanning,
As up and down like a gor-crow's flappers
They moved to measure, or bell clappers.
I said, "Is it blessing, is it banning,
Do they applaud you or burlesque you —
Those hands and fingers with no flesh on?"
But, just as I thought to spring in to the rescue,
At once I was stopped by the lady's expression:
For it was life her eyes were drinking
From the crone's wide pair above unwinking,
— Life's pure fire received without shrinking,
Into the heart and breast whose heaving
Told you no single drop they were leaving,
— Life, that filling her, passed redundant
Into her very hair, back swerving
Over each shoulder, loose and abundant,
As her head thrown back showed the white throat curving
And the very tresses shared in the pleasure,
Moving to the mystic measure,
Bounding as the bosom bounded.
I stopped short, more and more confounded,
As still her cheeks burned and eyes glistened,
As she listened and she listened:
When all at once a hand detained me,
The selfsame contagion gained me,
And I kept time to the wondrous chime,

Making out words and prose and rhyme,
 Till it seemed that the music furled
 Its wings like a task fulfilled, and dropped
 From under the words it first had propped,
 And left them midway in the world :
 Word took word as hand takes hand,
 I could hear at last, and understand,
 And when I held the unbroken thread,
 The Gypsy said : —

“ And so at last we find my tribe.
 And so I set thee in the midst,
 And to one and all of them describe
 What thou saidst and what thou didst,
 Our long and terrible journey through,
 And all thou art ready to say and do
 In the trials that remain :
 I trace them the vein and the other vein
 That meet on thy brow and part again,
 Making our rapid mystic mark ;
 And I bid my people prove and probe
 Each eye's profound and glorious globe
 Till they detect the kindred spark
 In those depths so dear and dark,
 Like the spots that snap and burst and flee,
 Circling over the midnight sea.
 And on that round young cheek of thine
 I make them recognize the tinge,
 As when of the costly scarlet wine
 They drip so much as will impinge
 And spread in a thinnest scale afloat
 One thick gold drop from the olive's coat
 Over a silver plate whose sheen
 Still through the mixture shall be seen.
 For so I prove thee, to one and all,
 Fit, when my people ope their breast,
 To see the sign, and hear the call,
 And take the vow, and stand the test
 Which adds one more child to the rest —
 When the breast is bare and the arms are wide,
 And the world is left outside.
 For there is probation to decree,
 And many and long must the trials be
 Thou shalt victoriously endure,
 If that brow is true and those eyes are sure ;
 Like a jewel-finder's fierce assay

Of the prize he dug from its mountain tomb —
Let once the vindicating ray
Leap out amid the anxious gloom,
And steel and fire have done their part
And the prize falls on its finder's heart ;
So, trial after trial past,
Wilt thou fall at the very last
Breathless, half in trance
With the thrill of the great deliverance,
Into our arms forevermore ;
And thou shalt know, those arms once curled
About thee, what we knew before,
How love is the only good in the world.
Henceforth be loved as heart can love,
Or brain devise, or hand approve !
Stand up, look below,
It is our life at thy feet we throw
To step with into light and joy ;
Not a power of life but we employ
To satisfy thy nature's want ;
Art thou the tree that props the plant,
Or the climbing plant that seeks the tree —
Canst thou help us, must we help thee ?
If any two creatures grew into one,
They would do more than the world has done ;
Though each apart were never so weak,
Ye vainly through the world should seek
For the knowledge and the might
Which in such union grew their right :
So, to approach at least that end,
And blend, — as much as may be, blend
Thee with us or us with thee, —
As climbing plant or propping-tree,
Shall some one deck thee, over and down,
Up and about, with blossoms and leaves ?
Fix his heart's fruit for thy garland-crown,
Cling with his soul as the gourd-vine cleaves,
Die on thy boughs and disappear
While not a leaf of thine is sere ?
Or is the other fate in store,
And art thou fitted to adore,
To give thy wondrous self away,
And take a stronger nature's sway ?
I foresee and could foretell
Thy future portion, sure and well :
But those passionate eyes speak true, speak true,

Let them say what thou shalt do!
 Only be sure thy daily life,
 In its peace or in its strife,
 Never shall be unobserved;
 We pursue thy whole career,
 And hope for it, or doubt, or fear, —
 Lo, hast thou kept thy path or swerved,
 We are beside thee in all thy ways,
 With our blame, with our praise,
 Our shame to feel, our pride to show,
 Glad, angry — but indifferent, no!
 Whether it be thy lot to go,
 For the good of us all, where the haters meet
 In the crowded city's horrible street;
 Or thou step alone through the morass
 Where never sound yet was
 Save the dry quick clap of the stork's bill,
 For the air is still, and the water still,
 When the blue breast of the dipping coot
 Dives under, and all is mute.
 So, at the last shall come old age,
 Decrepit as befits that stage;
 How else wouldst thou retire apart
 With the hoarded memories of thy heart,
 And gather all to the very least
 Of the fragments of life's earlier feast,
 Let fall through eagerness to find
 The crowning dainties yet behind?
 Ponder on the entire past
 Laid together thus at last,
 When the twilight helps to fuse
 The first fresh with the faded hues,
 And the outline of the whole,
 As round eve's shades their framework roll,
 Grandly fronts for once thy soul.
 And then as, 'mid the dark, a gleam
 Of yet another morning breaks,
 And like the hand which ends a dream,
 Death, with the might of his sunbeam,
 Touches the flesh and the soul awakes,
 Then — ”

Ay, then indeed something would happen!
 But what? For here her voice changed like a bird's;
 There grew more of the music and less of the words;
 Had Jacynth only been by me to clap pen
 To paper and put you down every syllable

With those clever clerkly fingers,
All I've forgotten as well as what lingers
In this old brain of mine that's but ill able
To give you even this poor version
Of the speech I spoil, as it were, with stammering
— More fault of those who had the hammering
Of prosody into me and syntax,
And did it, not with hobnails but tintacks !
But to return from this excursion, —
Just, do you mark, when the song was sweetest,
The peace most deep and the charm completest,
There came, shall I say, a snap —
And the charm vanished !
And my sense returned, so strangely banished,
And, starting as from a nap,
I knew the crone was bewitching my lady,
With Jacynth asleep ; and but one spring made I
Down from the casement, round to the portal,
Another minute and I had entered, —
When the door opened, and more than mortal
Stood, with a face where to my mind centred
All beauties I ever saw or shall see,
The Duchess : I stopped as if struck by palsy.
She was so different, happy and beautiful,
I felt at once that all was best,
And that I had nothing to do, for the rest,
But wait her commands, obey and be dutiful.
Not that, in fact, there was any commanding ;
I saw the glory of her eye,
And the brow's height and the breast's expanding,
And I was hers to live or to die.
As for finding what she wanted,
You know God Almighty granted
Such little signs should serve wild creatures
To tell one another all their desires,
So that each knows what his friend requires,
And does its bidding without teachers.
I preceded her ; the crone
Followed silent and alone ;
I spoke to her, but she merely jabbered
In the old style ; both her eyes had slunk
Back to their pits ; her stature shrunk ;
In short, the soul in its body sunk
Like a blade sent home to its scabbard.
We descended, I preceding ;
Crossed the court with nobody heeding ;

All the world was at the chase,
 The court-yard like a desert-place,
 The stable emptied of its small fry ;
 I saddled myself the very palfrey
 I remember patting while it carried her,
 The day she arrived and the Duke married her.
 And, do you know, though it's easy deceiving
 Oneself in such matters, I can't help believing
 The lady had not forgotten it either,
 And knew the poor devil so much beneath her
 Would have been only too glad for her service
 To dance on hot ploughshares like a Turk dervise,
 But, unable to pay proper duty where owing it,
 Was reduced to that pitiful method of showing it :
 For though the moment I began setting
 His saddle on my own nag of Berold's begetting,
 (Not that I meant to be obtrusive)
 She stopped me, while his rug was shifting,
 By a single rapid finger's lifting,
 And, with a gesture kind but conclusive,
 And a little shake of the head, refused me, —
 I say, although she never used me,
 Yet when she was mounted, the Gypsy behind her,
 And I ventured to remind her,
 I suppose with a voice of less steadiness
 Than usual, for my feeling exceeded me,
 — Something to the effect that I was in readiness
 Whenever God should please she needed me, —
 Then, do you know, her face looked down on me
 With a look that placed a crown on me,
 And she felt in her bosom, — mark, her bosom —
 And, as a flower-tree drops its blossom,
 Dropped me . . . ah, had it been a purse
 Of silver, my friend, or gold that's worse,
 Why, you see, as soon as I found myself
 So understood, — that a true heart so may gain
 Such a reward, — I should have gone home again,
 Kissed Jacynth, and soberly drowned myself !
 It was a little plait of hair
 Such as friends in a convent make
 To wear, each for the other's sake, —
 This, see, which at my breast I wear,
 Ever did (rather to Jacynth's grudgment),
 And ever shall, till the Day of Judgment.
 And then, — and then, — to cut short, — this is idle,
 These are feelings it is not good to foster, —

I pushed the gate wide, she shook the bridle,
And the palfrey bounded, — and so we lost her.

XVI.

When the liquor's out why clink the cannikin?
I did think to describe you the panic in
The redoubtable breast of our master the mannikin,
And what was the pitch of his mother's yellowness,
How she turned as a shark to snap the spare-rib
Clean off, sailors say, from a pearl-diving Carib,
When she heard, what she called the flight of the feloness
— But it seems such child's play,
What they said and did with the lady away!
And to dance on, when we've lost the music,
Always made me — and no doubt makes you — sick.
Nay, to my mind, the world's face looked so stern
As that sweet form disappeared through the postern,
She that kept it in constant good-humor,
It ought to have stopped; there seemed nothing to do more.
But the world thought otherwise and went on,
And my head's one that its spite was spent on:
Thirty years are fled since that morning,
And with them all my head's adorning.
Nor did the old Duchess die outright,
As you expect, of suppressed spite,
The natural end of every adder
Not suffered to empty its poison-bladder:
But she and her son agreed, I take it,
That no one should touch on the story to wake it,
For the wound in the Duke's pride rankled fiery,
So, they made no search and small inquiry —
And when fresh Gypsies have paid us a visit, I've Noticed the couple were never inquisitive,
But told them they're folks the Duke don't want here,
And bade them make haste and cross the frontier.
Brief, the Duchess was gone and the Duke was glad of it,
And the old one was in the young one's stead,
And took, in her place, the household's head,
And a blessed time the household had of it!
And were I not, as a man may say, cautious
How I trench, more than needs, on the nauseous,
I could favor you with sundry touches
Of the paint-smutches with which the Duchess
Heightened the mellowness of her cheek's yellowness
(To get on faster) until at last her
Cheek grew to be one master-plaster

Of mucus and fucus from mere use of ceruse :
 In short, she grew from scalp to udder
 Just the object to make you shudder.

XVII.

You're my friend —
 What a thing friendship is, world without end !
 How it gives the heart and soul a stir-up
 As if somebody broached you a glorious runlet,
 And poured out, all lovelily, sparkingly, sunlit,
 Our green Moldavia, the streaky syrup,
 Cotnar as old as the time of the Druids —
 Friendship may match with that monarch of fluids ;
 Each supples a dry brain, fills you its ins-and-outs,
 Gives your life's hour-glass a shake when the thin sand doubts
 Whether to run on or stop short, and guarantees
 Age is not all made of stark sloth and arrant ease.
 I have seen my little lady once more,
 Jacynth, the Gypsy, Berold, and the rest of it,
 For to me spoke the Duke, as I told you before ;
 I always wanted to make a clean breast of it :
 And now it is made — why, my heart's blood, that went trickle,
 Trickle, but anon, in such muddy driblets,
 Is pumped up brisk now, through the main ventricle,
 And genially floats me about the giblets.
 I'll tell you what I intend to do :
 I must see this fellow his sad life through —
 He is our Duke, after all,
 And I, as he says, but a serf and thrall.
 My father was born here, and I inherit
 His fame, a chain he bound his son with ;
 Could I pay in a lump I should prefer it,
 But there's no mine to blow up and get done with :
 So, I must stay till the end of the chapter,
 For, as to our middle-age-manners-adapter,
 Be it a thing to be glad on or sorry on,
 Some day or other, his head in a morion
 And breast in a hauberk, his heels he'll kick up,
 Slain by an onslaught fierce of hiccup.
 And then, when red doth the sword of our Duke rust,
 And its leathern sheath lie o'ergrown with a blue crust,
 Then I shall scrape together my earnings ;
 For, you see, in the churchyard Jacynth reposes,
 And our children all went the way of the roses :
 It's a long lane that knows no turnings.
 One needs but little tackle to travel in ;

So, just one stout cloak shall I indue :
 And for a staff, what beats the javelin
 With which his boars my father pinned you ?
 And then, for a purpose you shall hear presently,
 Taking some Cotnar, a tight plump skinful,
 I shall go journeying, who but I, pleasantly !
 Sorrow is vain and despondency sinful.
 What 's a man's age ? He must hurry more, that 's all ;
 Cram in a day, what his youth took a year to hold :
 When we mind labor, then only, we 're too old —
 What age had Methusalem when he begat Saul ?
 And at last, as its haven some buffeted ship sees,
 (Come all the way from the north-parts with sperm oil)
 I hope to get safely out of the turmoil
 And arrive one day at the land of the Gypsies,
 And find my lady, or hear the last news of her
 From some old thief and son of Lucifer,
 His forehead chapleted green with wreathy hop,
 Sunburned all over like an Æthiop.
 And when my Cotnar begins to operate
 And the tongue of the rogue to run at a proper rate,
 And our wine-skin, tight once, shows each flaccid dent,
 I shall drop in with — as if by accident —
 “ You never knew then, how it all ended,
 What fortune good or bad attended
 The little lady your Queen befriended ? ”
 — And when that 's told me, what 's remaining ?
 This world 's too hard for my explaining.
 The same wise judge of matters equine,
 Who still preferred some slim four-year-old
 To the big-boned stock of mighty Berold,
 And, for strong Cotnar, drank French weak wine,
 He also must be such a lady's scorner !
 Smooth Jacob still robs homely Esau :
 Now up, now down, the world 's one see-saw.
 — So, I shall find out some snug corner
 Under a hedge, like Orson the wood-knight,
 Turn myself round and bid the world good night ;
 And sleep a sound sleep till the trumpet's blowing
 Wakes me (unless priests cheat us laymen)
 To a world where will be no further throwing
 Pearls before swine that can't value them. Amen !

A GRAMMARIAN'S FUNERAL,

SHORTLY AFTER THE REVIVAL OF LEARNING IN EUROPE.

Let us begin and carry up this corpse,
     Singing together.
 Leave we the common crofts, the vulgar thorpes,
     Each in its tether
 Sleeping safe on the bosom of the plain,
     Cared-for till cock-crow :
 Look out if yonder be not day again
     Rimming the rock-row !
 That 's the appropriate country ; there, man's thought,
     Rarer, intenser,
 Self-gathered for an outbreak, as it ought,
     Chafes in the censer.
 Leave we the unlettered plain its herd and crop ;
     Seek we sepulture
 On a tall mountain, citted to the top,
     Crowded with culture !
 All the peaks soar, but one the rest excels ;
     Clouds overcome it ;
 No! yonder sparkle is the citadel's
     Circling its summit.
 Thither our path lies ; wind we up the heights :
     Wait ye the warning ?
 Our low life was the level's and the night's ;
     He 's for the morning.
 Step to a tune, square chests, erect each head,
     'Ware the beholders !
 This is our master, famous, calm and dead,
     Borne on our shoulders.

 Sleep, crop and herd ! sleep, darkling thorpe and croft,
     Safe from the weather !
 He, whom we convoy to his grave aloft,
     Singing together,
 He was a man born with thy face and throat,
     Lyric Apollo !
 Long he lived nameless : how should Spring take note
     Winter would follow ?
 Till lo, the little touch, and youth was gone !
     Cramped and diminished,
 Moaned he, " New measures, other feet anon !
     My dance is finished ? "

No, that's the world's way : (keep the mountain-side,
 Make for the city !)
 He knew the signal, and stepped on with pride
 Over men's pity ;
 Left play for work, and grappled with the world
 Bent on escaping :
 " What's in the scroll," quoth he, " thou keepest furled ?
 Show me their shaping,
 Theirs who most studied man, the bard and sage, —
 Give ! " — So, he gowned him,
 Straight got by heart that book to its last page :
 Learned, we found him.
 Yea, but we found him bald too, eyes like lead,
 Accents uncertain :
 " Time to taste life," another would have said,
 " Up with the curtain ! "
 This man said rather, " Actual life comes next ?
 Patience a moment !
 Grant I have mastered learning's crabbed text,
 Still there 's the comment.
 Let me know all ! Prate not of most or least,
 Painful or easy !
 Even to the crumbs I 'd fain eat up the feast,
 Ay, nor feel queasy."
 Oh, such a life as he resolved to live,
 When he had learned it,
 When he had gathered all books had to give !
 Sooner, he spurned it.
 Image the whole, then execute the parts —
 Fancy the fabric
 Quite, ere you build, ere steel strike fire from quartz,
 Ere mortar dab brick !

(Here 's the town-gate reached : there 's the market-place Gaping before us.)
 Yea, this in him was the peculiar grace
 (Hearten our chorus !)
 That before living he 'd learn how to live —
 No end to learning :
 Earn the means first — God surely will contrive
 Use for our earning.
 Others mistrust and say, " But time escapes :
 Live now or never ! "
 He said, " What 's time ? Leave Now for dogs and apes !
 Man has Forever."
 Back to his book then : deeper drooped his head :
Calculus racked him :

Leaden before, his eyes grew dross of lead :
     Tussis attacked him.
 " Now, master, take a little rest ! " — not he !
     (Caution redoubled,
 Step two abreast, the way winds narrowly !)
     Not a whit troubled,
 Back to his studies, fresher than at first,
     Fierce as a dragon
 He (soul-hydroptic with a sacred thirst)
     Sucked at the flagon.
 Oh, if we draw a circle premature,
     Heedless of far gain,
 Greedy for quick returns of profit, sure
     Bad is our bargain !
 Was it not great ? did not he throw on God,
     (He loves the burthen) —
 God's task to make the heavenly period
     Perfect the earthen ?
 Did not he magnify the mind, show clear
     Just what it all meant ?
 He would not discount life, as fools do here,
     Paid by instalment.
 He ventured neck or nothing — heaven's success
     Found, or earth's failure :
 " Wilt thou trust death or not ? " He answered " Yes !
     Hence with life's pale lure ! "
 That low man seeks a little thing to do,
     Sees it and does it :
 This high man, with a great thing to pursue,
     Dies ere he knows it.
 That low man goes on adding one to one,
     His hundred's soon hit :
 This high man, aiming at a million,
     Misses an unit.
 That, has the world here — should he need the next,
     Let the world mind him !
 This, throws himself on God, and unperplexed
     Seeking shall find him.
 So, with the throttling hands of death at strife,
     Ground he at grammar ;
 Still, through the rattle, parts of speech were rife :
     While he could stammer
 He settled Hoti's business — let it be ! —
     Properly based Oun —
 Gave us the doctrine of the enclitic De,
     Dead from the waist down.

Well, here 's the platform, here 's the proper place :
 Hail to your purlieus,
 All ye highfliers of the feathered race,
 Swallows and curlews !
 Here 's the top-peak ; the multitude below
 Live, for they can, there :
 This man decided not to Live but Know —
 Bury this man there ?
 Here — here 's his place, where meteors shoot, clouds form,
 Lightnings are loosened,
 Stars come and go ! Let joy break with the storm,
 Peace let the dew send !
 Lofty designs must close in like effects :
 Loftily lying,
 Leave him — still loftier than the world suspects,
 Living and dying.

THE HERETIC'S TRAGEDY.

A MIDDLE-AGE INTERLUDE.

ROSA MUNDI ; SEU, FULCITE ME FLORIBUS. A CONCEIT OF MASTER GYSBRECHT, CANON-REGULAR OF SAINT JODOCUS-BY-THE-BAR, YPRES CITY. CANTUQUE, Virgilius. AND HATH OFTEN BEEN SUNG AT HOCK-TIDE AND FESTIVALS. GAVISUS ERAM, Jessides.

(It would seem to be a glimpse from the burning of Jacques du Bourg-Molay, at Paris, A. D. 1314 ; as distorted by the refraction from Flemish brain to brain, during the course of a couple of centuries.)

I.

PREADMONISHETH THE ABBOT DEODAET.

The Lord, we look to once for all,
 Is the Lord we should look at, all at once :
 He knows not to vary, saith Saint Paul,
 Nor the shadow of turning, for the nonce.
 See him no other than as he is !
 Give both the infinitudes their due —
 Infinite mercy, but, I wis,
 As infinite a justice too.

[Organ : plagal-cadence.

As infinite a justice too.

II.

ONE SINGETH.

John, Master of the Temple of God,
 Falling to sin the Unknown Sin,
 What he bought of Emperor Aldabrod,
 He sold it to Sultan Saladin :
 Till, caught by Pope Clement, a-buzzing there,
 Hornet-prince of the mad wasps' hive,
 And clipt of his wings in Paris square,
 They bring him now to be burned alive.
[And wanteth there grace of lute or clavicithern, ye shall say to confirm him who singeth —
 We bring John now to be burned alive.

III.

In the midst is a goodly gallows built ;
 'Twixt fork and fork, a stake is stuck ;
 But first they set divers tumbrils a-tilt,
 Make a trench all round with the city muck ;
 Inside they pile log upon log, good store ;
 Fagots not few, blocks great and small,
 Reach a man's mid-thigh, no less, no more, —
 For they mean he should roast in the sight of all.

CHORUS.

We mean he should roast in the sight of all.

IV.

Good sappy bavins that kindle forthwith ;
 Billets that blaze substantial and slow ;
 Pine-stump split deftly, dry as pith ;
 Larch-heart that chars to a chalk-white glow :
 Then up they hoist me John in a chafe,
 Sling him fast like a hog to scorch,
 Spit in his face, then leap back safe,
 Sing " Laudes " and bid clap-to the torch.

CHORUS.

Laus Deo — who bids clap-to the torch.

V.

John of the Temple, whose fame so bragged,
 Is burning alive in Paris square !
 How can he curse, if his mouth is gagged ?
 Or wriggle his neck, with a collar there ?

Or heave his chest, which a band goes round?
 Or threat with his fist, since his arms are spliced?
 Or kick with his feet, now his legs are bound?
 — Thinks John, I will call upon Jesus Christ.

[Here one crosseth himself.]

VI.

Jesus Christ — John had bought and sold,
 Jesus Christ — John had eaten and drunk;
 To him, the Flesh meant silver and gold.
 (Salva reverentia.)

Now it was, "Saviour, bountiful lamb,
 I have roasted thee Turks, though men roast me!
 See thy servant, the plight wherein I am!
 Art thou a saviour? Save thou me!"

CHORUS.

"T is John the mocker cries, "Save thou me!"

VII.

Who maketh God's menace an idle word?
 — Saith, it no more means what it proclaims,
 Than a damsel's threat to her wanton bird? —
 For she too prattles of ugly names.
 — Saith, he knoweth but one thing, — what he knows?
 That God is good and the rest is breath;
 Why else is the same styled Sharon's rose?
 Once a rose, ever a rose, he saith.

CHORUS.

Oh, John shall yet find a rose, he saith!

VIII.

Alack, there be roses and roses, John!
 Some, honeyed of taste like your leman's tongue:
 Some, bitter; for why? (roast gayly on!)
 Their tree struck root in devil's dung.
 When Paul once reasoned of righteousness
 And of temperance and of judgment to come,
 Good Felix trembled, he could no less:
 John, snickering, crook'd his wicked thumb.

CHORUS.

What cometh to John of the wicked thumb?

IX.

Ha ha, John plucketh now at his rose
 To rid himself of a sorrow at heart!
 Lo, — petal on petal, fierce rays unclose;
 Anther on anther, sharp spikes outstart;

And with blood for dew, the bosom boils ;
 And a gust of sulphur is all its smell ;
 And lo, he is horribly in the toils
 Of a coal-black giant flower of hell !

CHORUS.

What maketh heaven, That maketh hell.

X.

So, as John called now, through the fire amain,
 On the Name, he had cursed with, all his life —
 To the Person, he bought and sold again —
 For the Face, with his daily buffets rife —
 Feature by feature It took its place :
 And his voice, like a mad dog's choking bark,
 At the steady whole of the Judge's face —
 Died. Forth John's soul flared into the dark.

SUBJOINETH THE ABBOT DEODAET.

God help all poor souls lost in the dark !

HOLY-CROSS DAY.

ON WHICH THE JEWS WERE FORCED TO ATTEND AN ANNUAL CHRISTIAN SERMON IN ROME.

[“Now was come about Holy-Cross Day, and now must my lord preach his first sermon to the Jews: as it was of old cared for in the merciful bowels of the Church, that, so to speak, a crumb at least from her conspicuous table here in Rome, should be, though but once yearly, cast to the famishing dogs, under-trampled and bespitten-upon beneath the feet of the guests. And a moving sight in truth, this, of so many of the besotted blind restif and ready-to-perish Hebrews! now maternally brought — nay, (for He saith, ‘Compel them to come in’) haled, as it were, by the head and hair, and against their obstinate hearts, to partake of the heavenly grace. What awakening, what striving with tears, what working of a yeasty conscience! Nor was my lord wanting to himself on so apt an occasion; witness the abundance of conversions which did incontinently reward him: though not to my lord be altogether the glory.” — Diary by the Bishop's Secretary, 1600.]

What the Jews really said, on thus being driven to church, was rather to this effect: —

I.

Fee, faw, fum! bubble and squeak!
 Blessedest Thursday's the fat of the week.
 Rumble and tumble, sleek and rough,
 Stinking and savory, smug and gruff,
 Take the church-road, for the bell's due chime
 Gives us the summons — 't is sermon-time!

II.

Boh, here 's Barnabas! Job, that 's you?
 Up stumps Solomon — bustling too?
 Shame, man! greedy beyond your year,
 To handsel the bishop's shaving-shears?
 Fair play 's a jewel! Leave friends in the lurch?
 Stand on a line ere you start for the church!

III.

Higgledy piggledy, packed we lie,
 Rats in a hamper, swine in a sty,
 Wasps in a bottle, frogs in a sieve,
 Worms in a carcass, fleas in a sleeve.
 Hist! square shoulders, settle your thumbs
 And buzz for the bishop — here he comes.

IV.

Bow, wow, wow — a bone for the dog!
 I liken his Grace to an acorned hog.
 What, a boy at his side, with the bloom of a lass,
 To help and handle my lord's hour-glass!
 Didst ever behold so lithe a chine?
 His cheek hath laps like a fresh-singed swine.

V.

Aaron 's asleep — shove hip to haunch,
 Or somebody deal him a dig in the paunch!
 Look at the purse with the tassel and knob,
 And the gown with the angel and thingumbob!
 What 's he at, quotha? reading his text!
 Now you 've his curtsey — and what comes next?

VI.

See to our converts — you doomed black dozen —
 No stealing away — nor eog nor cozen!
 You five, that were thieves, deserve it fairly;
 You seven, that were beggars, will live less sparely;
 You took your t-r-n and dipped in the hat,
 Got fortune — and fortune gets you; mind that!

VII.

Give your first groan — compunction 's at work;
 And soft! from a Jew you mount to a Turk.
 Lo, Micah, — the selfsame beard on chin
 He was four times already converted in!

Here's a knife, clip quick — it's a sign of grace —
Or he ruins us all with his hanging-face.

VIII.

Whom now is the bishop a-leering at?
I know a point where his text falls pat.
I'll tell him to-morrow, a word just now
Went to my heart and made me vow
I meddle no more with the worst of trades —
Let somebody else pay his serenades.

IX.

Groan all together now, whee — hee — hee!
It's a-work, it's a-work, ah, woe is me!
It began, when a herd of us, picked and placed,
Were spurred through the Corso, stripped to the waist;
Jew brutes, with sweat and blood well spent
To usher in worthily Christian Lent.

X.

It grew, when the hangman entered our bounds,
Yelled, pricked us out to his church like hounds:
It got to a pitch, when the hand indeed
Which gutted my purse, would throttle my creed:
And it overflows, when, to even the odd,
Men I helped to their sins, help me to their God.

XI.

But now, while the scapegoats leave our flock,
And the rest sit silent and count the clock,
Since forced to muse the appointed time
On these precious facts and truths sublime, —
Let us fitly employ it, under our breath,
In saying Ben Ezra's Song of Death.

XII.

For Rabbi Ben Ezra, the night he died,
Called sons and sons' sons to his side,
And spoke, "This world has been harsh and strange;
Something is wrong: there needeth a change.
But what, or where? at the last or first?
In one point only we sinned, at worst.

XIII.

"The Lord will have mercy on Jacob yet,
And again in his border see Israel set.

When Judah beholds Jerusalem,
 The stranger-seed shall be joined to them :
 To Jacob's House shall the Gentiles cleave.
 So the Prophet saith and his sons believe.

XIV.

“ Ay, the children of the chosen race
 Shall carry and bring them to their place :
 In the land of the Lord shall lead the same,
 Bondsmen and handmaids. Who shall blame,
 When the slaves enslave, the oppressed ones o'er
 The oppressor triumph forevermore ?

XV.

“ God spoke, and gave us the word to keep :
 Bade never fold the hands nor sleep
 'Mid a faithless world, — at watch and ward,
 Till Christ at the end relieve our guard.
 By his servant Moses the watch was set :
 Though near upon cock-crow, we keep it yet.

XVI.

“ Thou ! if thou wast he, who at mid-watch came,
 By the starlight, naming a dubious name !
 And if, too heavy with sleep — too rash
 With fear — O thou, if that martyr-gash
 Fell on thee coming to take thine own,
 And we gave the Cross, when we owed the Throne —

XVII.

“ Thou art the Judge. We are bruised thus.
 But, the Judgment over, join sides with us !
 Thine too is the cause ! and not more thine
 Than ours, is the work of these dogs and swine,
 Whose life laughs through and spits at their creed,
 Who maintain thee in word, and defy thee in deed !

XVIII.

“ We withstood Christ then ? Be mindful how
 At least we withstand Barabbas now !
 Was our outrage sore ? But the worst we spared,
 To have called these — Christians, had we dared !
 Let defiance to them pay mistrust of thee,
 And Rome make amends for Calvary !

XIX.

“ By the torture, prolonged from age to age,
 By the infamy, Israel’s heritage,
 By the Ghetto’s plague, by the garb’s disgrace,
 By the badge of shame, by the felon’s place,
 By the branding-tool, the bloody whip,
 And the summons to Christian fellowship, —

XX.

“ We boast our proof that at least the Jew
 Would wrest Christ’s name from the Devil’s crew.
 Thy face took never so deep a shade
 But we fought them in it, God our aid !
 A trophy to bear, as we march, thy band,
 South, East, and on to the Pleasant Land ! ” *

PROTUS.

Among these latter busts we count by scores,
 Half-emperors and quarter-emperors,
 Each with his bay-leaf fillet, loose-thonged vest,
 Loric and low-browed Gorgon on the breast, —
 One loves a baby face, with violets there,
 Violets instead of laurel in the hair,
 As those were all the little locks could bear.

Now read here. “ Protus ends a period
 Of empery beginning with a god ;
 Born in the porphyry chamber at Byzant,
 Queens by his cradle, proud and ministrant :
 And if he quickened breath there, ’t would like fire
 Pantingly through the dim vast realm transpire.
 A fame that he was missing spread afar :
 The world, from its four corners, rose in war,
 Till he was borne out on a balcony
 To pacify the world when it should see.
 The captains ranged before him, one, his hand
 Made baby points at, gained the chief command.
 And day by day more beautiful he grew
 In shape, all said, in feature and in hue,
 While young Greek sculptors gazing on the child,
 Became, with old Greek sculpture, reconciled.
 Already sages labored to condense

* Pope Gregory XVI. abolished this bad business of the Sermon. — R. B.

In easy tomes a life's experience :
 And artists took grave counsel to impart
 In one breath and one hand-sweep, all their art —
 To make his graces prompt as blossoming
 Of plentifully-watered palms in spring :
 Since well beseems it, whoso mounts the throne,
 For beauty, knowledge, strength, should stand alone,
 And mortals love the letters of his name."

— Stop! Have you turned two pages? Still the same
 New reign, same date. The scribe goes on to say
 How that same year, on such a month and day,
 "John the Pannonian, groundedly believed
 A blacksmith's bastard, whose hard hand reprieved
 The Empire from its fate the year before, —
 Came, had a mind to take the crown, and wore
 The same for six years, (during which the Huns Kept off their fingers from us), till his sons
 Put something in his liquor" — and so forth.
 Then a new reign. Stay — "Take at its just worth"
 (Subjoins an annotator) "what I give
 As hearsay. Some think, John let Protus live
 And slip away. 'Tis said, he reached man's age
 At some blind northern court; made, first a page,
 Then tutor to the children; last, of use
 About the hunting-stables. I deduce
 He wrote the little tract 'On worming dogs,'
 Whereof the name in sundry catalogues
 Is extant yet. A Protus of the race
 Is rumored to have died a monk in Thrace, —
 And if the same, he reached senility."

Here's John the Smith's rough-hammered head. Great eye,
 Gross jaw and griped lips do what granite can
 To give you the crown-grasper. What a man!

THE STATUE AND THE BUST.

There's a palace in Florence, the world knows well,
 And a statue watches it from the square,
 And this story of both do our townsmen tell.

Ages ago, a lady there,
 At the farthest window facing the East
 Asked, "Who rides by with the royal air?"

The bridesmaids' prattle around her ceased ;
 She leaned forth, one on either hand ;
 They saw how the blush of the bride increased —

They felt by its beats her heart expand —
 As one at each ear and both in a breath
 Whispered, " The Great-Duke Ferdinand."

That selfsame instant, underneath,
 The Duke rode past in his idle way,
 Empty and fine like a swordless sheath.

Gay he rode, with a friend as gay,
 Till he threw his head back — " Who is she ?"
 — " A bride the Riccardi brings home to-day."

Hair in heaps lay heavily
 Over a pale brow spirit-pure —
 Carved like the heart of the coal-black tree,

Crisped like a war-steed's enclure —
 And vainly sought to dissemble her eyes
 Of the blackest black our eyes endure.

And lo, a blade for a knight's emprise
 Filled the fine empty sheath of a man, —
 The Duke grew straightway brave and wise.

He looked at her, as a lover can ;
 She looked at him, as one who awakes :
 The past was a sleep, and her life began.

Now, love so ordered for both their sakes,
 A feast was held that selfsame night
 In the pile which the mighty shadow makes.

(For Via Larga is three-parts light,
 But the palace overshadows one,
 Because of a crime, which may God requite !

To Florence and God the wrong was done,
 Through the first republic's murder there
 By Cosimo and his cursed son.)

The Duke (with the statue's face in the square)
 Turned in the midst of his multitude
 At the bright approach of the bridal pair.

Face to face the lovers stood
 A single minute and no more,
 While the bridegroom bent as a man subdued —

Bowed till his bonnet brushed the floor —
 For the Duke on the lady a kiss conferred,
 As the courtly custom was of yore.

In a minute can lovers exchange a word?
 If a word did pass, which I do not think,
 Only one out of the thousand heard.

That was the bridegroom. At day's brink
 He and his bride were alone at last
 In a bed chamber by a taper's blink.

Calmly he said that her lot was cast,
 That the door she had passed was shut on her
 Till the final catafalk repassed.

The world meanwhile, its noise and stir,
 Through a certain window facing the East
 She could watch like a convent's chronicler.

Since passing the door might lead to a feast,
 And a feast might lead to so much beside,
 He, of many evils, chose the least.

“Freely I choose too,” said the bride —
 “Your window and its world suffice,”
 Replied the tongue, while the heart replied —

“If I spend the night with that devil twice,
 May his window serve as my loop of hell
 Whence a damned soul looks on paradise!

“I fly to the Duke who loves me well,
 Sit by his side and laugh at sorrow
 Ere I count another ave-bell.

“’T is only the coat of a page to borrow,
 And tie my hair in a horse-boy's trim,
 And I save my soul — but not to-morrow” —

(She checked herself and her eye grew dim)

“My father tarries to bless my state:
 I must keep it one day more for him.

‘Is one day more so long to wait?
 Moreover the Duke rides past, I know;
 We shall see each other, sure as fate.’

She turned on her side and slept. Just so!
 So we resolve on a thing and sleep:
 So did the lady, ages ago.

That night the Duke said, “Dear or cheap
 As the cost of this cup of bliss may prove
 To body or soul, I will drain it deep.”

And on the morrow, bold with love,
 He beckoned the bridegroom (close on call,
 As his duty bade, by the Duke’s alcove)

And smiled “’T was a very funeral,
 Your lady will think, this feast of ours, —
 A shame to efface, whate’er befall!

“What if we break from the Arno bowers,
 And try if Petraja, cool and green,
 Cure last night’s fault with this morning’s flowers?”

The bridegroom, not a thought to be seen
 On his steady brow and quiet mouth,
 Said, “Too much favor for me so mean!

“But, alas! my lady leaves the South;
 Each wind that comes from the Apennine
 Is a menace to her tender youth:

“Nor a way exists, the wise opine,
 If she quits her palace twice this year,
 To avert the flower of life’s decline.”

Quoth the Duke, “A sage and a kindly fear.
 Moreover Petraja is cold this spring:
 Be our feast to-night as usual here!”

And then to himself — “Which night shall bring
 Thy bride to her lover’s embraces, fool —
 Or I am the fool, and thou art the king!

“Yet my passion must wait a night, nor cool —
 For to-night the Envoy arrives from France
 Whose heart I unlock with thyself, my tool.

“I need thee still and might miss perchance.
To-day is not wholly lost, beside,
With its hope of my lady's countenance :

“For I ride — what should I do but ride?
And passing her palace, if I list,
May glance at its window — well betide !”

So said, so done : nor the lady missed
One ray that broke from the ardent brow,
Nor a curl of the lips where the spirit kissed.

Be sure that each renewed the vow,
No morrow's sun should arise and set
And leave them then as it left them now.

But next day passed, and next day yet,
With still fresh cause to wait one day more
Ere each leaped over the parapet.

And still, as love's brief morning wore,
With a gentle start, half smile, half sigh,
They found love not as it seemed before.

They thought it would work infallibly,
But not in despite of heaven and earth :
The rose would blow when the storm passed by.

Meantime they could profit in winter's dearth
By store of fruits that supplant the rose :
The world and its ways have a certain worth :

And to press a point while these oppose
Were simple policy ; better wait :
We lose no friends and we gain no foes.

Meantime, worse fates than a lover's fate,
Who daily may ride and pass and look
Where his lady watches behind the grate !

And she — she watched the square like a book
Holding one picture and only one,
Which daily to find she undertook :

When the picture was reached the book was done,
And she turned from the picture at night to scheme
Of tearing it out for herself next sun.

So weeks grew months, years ; gleam by gleam
The glory dropped from their youth and love,
And both perceived they had dreamed a dream ;

Which hovered as dreams do, still above :
But who can take a dream for a truth ?
Oh, hide our eyes from the next remove !

One day as the lady saw her youth
Depart, and the silver thread that streaked
Her hair, and, worn by the serpent's tooth,

The brow so puckered, the chin so peaked, —
And wondered who the woman was,
Hollow-eyed and haggard-cheeked,

Fronting her silent in the glass —
“Summon here,” she suddenly said,
“Before the rest of my old self pass,

“Him, the Carver, a hand to aid,
Who fashions the clay no love will change,
And fixes a beauty never to fade.

“Let Robbia's craft so apt and strange
Arrest the remains of young and fair,
And rivet them while the seasons range.

“Make me a face on the window there,
Waiting as ever, mute the while,
My love to pass below in the square !

“And let me think that it may beguile
Dreary days which the dead must spend
Down in their darkness under the aisle,

“To say, ‘What matters it at the end ?
I did no more while my heart was warm
Than does that image, my pale-faced friend.’

“Where is the use of the lip's red charm,
The heaven of hair, the pride of the brow,
And the blood that blues the inside arm —

“Unless we turn, as the soul knows how,
The earthly gift to an end divine ?
A lady of clay is as good, I trow.”

But long ere Robbia's cornice, fine,
 With flowers and fruits which leaves enlace,
 Was set where now is the empty shrine —

(And, leaning out of a bright blue space,
 As a ghost might lean from a chink of sky,
 The passionate pale lady's face —

Eying ever, with earnest eye
 And quick-turned neck at its breathless stretch,
 Some one who ever is passing by —)

The Duke had sighed like the simplest wretch
 In Florence, "Youth — my dream escapes!
 Will its record stay?" And he bade them fetch

Some subtle moulder of brazen shapes —
 "Can the soul, the will, die out of a man
 Ere his body find the grave that gapes?"

"John of Douay shall effect my plan,
 Set me on horseback here aloft,
 Alive, as the crafty sculptor can,

"In the very square I have crossed so oft:
 That men may admire, when future suns
 Shall touch the eyes to a purpose soft,

"While the mouth and the brow stay brave in bronze —
 Admire and say, 'When he was alive
 How he would take his pleasure once!'

"And it shall go hard but I contrive
 To listen the while, and laugh in my tomb
 At idleness which aspires to strive."

---

So! While these wait the trump of doom,
 How do their spirits pass, I wonder,
 Nights and days in the narrow room?

Still, I suppose, they sit and ponder
 What a gift life was, ages ago,
 Six steps out of the chapel yonder.

Only they see not God, I know,
Nor all that chivalry of his,
The soldier-saints who, row on row,

Burn upward each to his point of bliss —
Since, the end of life being manifest,
He had burned his way through the world to this.

I hear you reproach, "But delay was best,
For their end was a crime." — Oh, a crime will do
As well, I reply, to serve for a test,

As a virtue golden through and through,
Sufficient to vindicate itself
And prove its worth at a moment's view!

Must a game be played for the sake of pelf?
Where a button goes, 't were an epigram
To offer the stamp of the very Guelph.

The true has no value beyond the sham:
As well the counter as coin, I submit,
When your table's a hat, and your prize, a dram.

Stake your counter as boldly every whit,
Venture as warily, use the same skill,
Do your best, whether winning or losing it,

If you choose to play! — is my principle.
Let a man contend to the uttermost
For his life's set prize, be it what it will!

The counter our lovers staked was lost
As surely as if it were lawful coin:
And the sin I impute to each frustrate ghost

Is — the unlit lamp and the ungirt loin,
Though the end in sight was a vice, I say.
You of the virtue (we issue join)
How strive you? De te, fabula!

PORPHYRIA'S LOVER.

The rain set early in to-night,
The sullen wind was soon awake,
It tore the elm-tops down for spite,
And did its worst to vex the lake :
I listened with heart fit to break.
When glided in Porphyria ; straight
She shut the cold out and the storm,
And kneeled and made the cheerless grate
Blaze up, and all the cottage warm ;
Which done, she rose, and from her form
Withdrew the dripping cloak and shawl,
And laid her soiled gloves by, untied
Her hat and let the damp hair fall,
And, last, she sat down by my side
And called me. When no voice replied,
She put my arm about her waist,
And made her smooth white shoulder bare,
And all her yellow hair displaced,
And, stooping, made my cheek lie there,
And spread, o'er all, her yellow hair,
Murmuring how she loved me — she
Too weak, for all her heart's endeavor,
To set its struggling passion free
From pride, and vainer ties dissever,
And give herself to me forever.
But passion sometimes would prevail,
Nor could to-night's gay feast restrain
A sudden thought of one so pale
For love of her, and all in vain :
So, she was come through wind and rain.
Be sure I looked up at her eyes
Happy and proud ; at last I knew
Porphyria worshipped me ; surprise
Made my heart swell, and still it grew
While I debated what to do.
That moment she was mine, mine, fair,
Perfectly pure and good : I found
A thing to do, and all her hair
In one long yellow string I wound
Three times her little throat around,
And strangled her. No pain felt she ;
I am quite sure she felt no pain.
As a shut bud that holds a bee,

I warily oped her lids : again
 Laughed the blue eyes without a stain.
 And I untightened next the tress
     About her neck ; her cheek once more
 Blushed bright beneath my burning kiss :
     I propped her head up as before,
 Only, this time my shoulder bore
 Her head, which droops upon it still :
     The smiling rosy little head,
 So glad it has its utmost will,
     That all it scorned at once is fled,
 And I, its love, am gained instead !
 Porphyria's love : she guessed not how
     Her darling one wish would be heard.
 And thus we sit together now,
     And all night long we have not stirred,
 And yet God has not said a word !

“CHILDE ROLAND TO THE DARK TOWER CAME.”

(See Edgar's song in “LEAR.”)

I.

My first thought was, he lied in every word,
     That hoary cripple, with malicious eye
     Askance to watch the working of his lie
 On mine, and mouth scarce able to afford
 Suppression of the glee, that pursed and scored
     Its edge, at one more victim gained thereby.

II.

What else should he be set for, with his staff ?
     What, save to waylay with his lies, ensnare
     All travellers who might find him posted there,
 And ask the road ? I guessed what skull-like laugh
 Would break, what crutch 'gin write my epitaph
     For pastime in the dusty thoroughfare,

III.

If at his counsel I should turn aside
     Into that ominous tract which, all agree,
     Hides the Dark Tower. Yet acquiescingly
 I did turn as he pointed : neither pride
 Nor hope rekindling at the end descried,
     So much as gladness that some end might be.

IV.

For, what with my whole world-wide wandering,
 What with my search drawn out through years, my hope
 Dwindled into a ghost not fit to cope
 With that obstreperous joy success would bring, —
 I hardly tried now to rebuke the spring
 My heart made, finding failure in its scope.

V.

As when a sick man very near to death
 Seems dead indeed, and feels begin and end
 The tears, and takes the farewell of each friend,
 And hears one bid the other go, draw breath
 Freelier outside, ("since all is o'er," he saith,
 "And the blow fallen no grieving can amend;")

VI.

While some discuss if near the other graves
 Be room enough for this, and when a day
 Suits best for carrying the corpse away,
 With care about the banners, scarves and staves :
 And still the man hears all, and only craves
 He may not shame such tender love and stay.

VII.

Thus, I had so long suffered in this quest,
 Heard failure prophesied so oft, been writ
 So many times among "The Band" — to wit,
 The knights who to the Dark Tower's search addressed
 Their steps — that just to fail as they, seemed best,
 And all the doubt was now — should I be fit?

VIII.

So, quiet as despair, I turned from him,
 That hateful cripple, out of his highway
 Into the path he pointed. All the day
 Had been a dreary one at best, and dim
 Was settling to its close, yet shot one grim
 Red leer to see the plain catch its estray.

IX.

For mark ! no sooner was I fairly found
 Pledged to the plain, after a pace or two,
 Than, pausing to throw backward a last view
 O'er the safe road, 't was gone ; gray plain all round :

Nothing but plain to the horizon's bound.
I might go on; nought else remained to do.

X.

So, on I went. I think I never saw
Such starved ignoble nature; nothing throve:
For flowers — as well expect a cedar grove!
But cockle, spurge, according to their law
Might propagate their kind, with none to awe,
You'd think; a burr had been a treasure trove.

XI.

No! penury, inertness and grimace,
In some strange sort, were the land's portion. "See
Or shut your eyes," said Nature peevishly,
"It nothing skills: I cannot help my case:
'Tis the Last Judgment's fire must cure this place,
Calcine its clods and set my prisoners free."

XII.

If there pushed any ragged thistle-stalk
Above its mates, the head was chopped; the bents
Were jealous else. What made those holes and rents
In the dock's harsh swarth leaves, bruised as to balk
All hope of greenness? 't is a brute must walk
Pashing their life out, with a brute's intents.

XIII.

As for the grass, it grew as scant as hair
In leprosy; thin dry blades pricked the mud
Which underneath looked kneaded up with blood.
One stiff blind horse, his every bone a-stare,
Stood stupefied, however he came there:
Thrust out past service from the devil's stud!

XIV.

Alive? he might be dead for aught I know,
With that red gaunt and colloped neck a-strain,
And shut eyes underneath the rusty mane;
Seldom went such grotesqueness with such woe;
I never saw a brute I hated so;
He must be wicked to deserve such pain.

XV.

I shut my eyes and turned them on my heart.
As a man calls for wine before he fights,

I asked one draught of earlier, happier sights,
 Ere fitly I could hope to play my part.
 Think first, fight afterwards — the soldier's art:
 One taste of the old time sets all to rights.

XVI.

Not it! I fancied Cuthbert's reddening face
 Beneath its garniture of curly gold,
 Dear fellow, till I almost felt him fold
 An arm in mine to fix me to the place,
 That way he used. Alas, one night's disgrace!
 Out went my heart's new fire and left it cold.

XVII.

Giles then, the soul of honor — there he stands
 Frank as ten years ago when knighted first.
 What honest man should dare (he said) he durst.
 Good — but the scene shifts — faugh! what hangman hands
 Pin to his breast a parchment? His own bands
 Read it. Poor traitor, spit upon and curst!

XVIII.

Better this present than a past like that;
 Back therefore to my darkening path again!
 No sound, no sight as far as eye could strain.
 Will the night send a howlet or a bat?
 I asked: when something on the dismal flat
 Came to arrest my thoughts and change their train.

XIX.

A sudden little river crossed my path
 As unexpected as a serpent comes.
 No sluggish tide congenial to the glooms;
 This, as it frothed by, might have been a bath
 For the fiend's glowing hoof — to see the wrath
 Of its black eddy bespate with flakes and spumes.

XX.

So petty yet so spiteful! All along,
 Low scrubby alders kneeled down over it;
 Drenched willows flung them headlong in a fit
 Of mute despair, a suicidal throng:
 The river which had done them all the wrong,
 Whate'er that was, rolled by, deterred no whit.

XXI.

Which, while I forded, — good saints, how I feared
 To set my foot upon a dead man's cheek,
 Each step, or feel the spear I thrust to seek
 For hollows, tangled in his hair or beard !
 — It may have been a water-rat I speared,
 But, ugh ! it sounded like a baby's shriek.

XXII.

Glad was I when I reached the other bank.
 Now for a better country. Vain presage !
 Who were the strugglers, what war did they wage,
 Whose savage trample thus could pad the dank
 Soil to a plash ? Toads in a poisoned tank,
 Or wild cats in a red-hot iron cage —

XXIII.

The fight must so have seemed in that fell cirque.
 What penned them there, with all the plain to choose ?
 No footprint leading to that horrid mews,
 None out of it. Mad brewage set to work
 Their brains, no doubt, like galley-slaves the Turk
 Pits for his pastime, Christians against Jews.

XXIV.

And more than that — a furlong on — why, there !
 What bad use was that engine for, that wheel,
 Or brake, not wheel — that harrow fit to reel
 Men's bodies out like silk ? with all the air
 Of Tophet's tool, on earth left unaware,
 Or brought to sharpen its rusty teeth of steel.

XXV.

Then came a bit of stubbed ground, once a wood,
 Next a marsh, it would seem, and now mere earth
 Desperate and done with ; (so a fool finds mirth,
 Makes a thing and then mars it, till his mood
 Changes and off he goes !) within a rood —
 Bog, clay and rubble, sand and stark black dearth.

XXVI.

Now blotches rankling, colored gay and grim,
 Now patches where some leanness of the soil's
 Broke into moss or substances like boils ;
 Then came some palsied oak, a cleft in him

Like a distorted mouth that splits its rim
 Gaping at death, and dies while it recoils.

XXVII.

And just as far as ever from the end!
 Nought in the distance but the evening, nought
 To point my footstep further! At the thought,
 A great black bird, Apollyon's bosom-friend,
 Sailed past, nor beat his wide wing dragon-penned
 That brushed my cap — perchance the guide I sought.

XXVIII.

For, looking up, aware I somehow grew,
 'Spite of the dusk, the plain had given place
 All round to mountains — with such name to grace
 Mere ugly heights and heaps now stolen in view.
 How thus they had surprised me, — solve it, you!
 How to get from them was no clearer case.

XXIX.

Yet half I seemed to recognize some trick
 Of mischief happened to me, God knows when —
 In a bad dream perhaps. Here ended, then,
 Progress this way. When, in the very nick
 Of giving up, one time more, came a click
 As when a trap shuts — you're inside the den!

XXX.

Burningly it came on me all at once,
 This was the place! those two hills on the right,
 Crouched like two bulls locked horn in horn in fight;
 While to the left, a tall scalped mountain . . . Dunce,
 Dotard, a-dozing at the very nonce,
 After a life spent training for the sight!

XXXI.

What in the midst lay but the Tower itself?
 The round squat turret, blind as the fool's heart,
 Built of brown stone, without a counterpart
 In the whole world. The tempest's mocking elf
 Points to the shipman thus the unseen shelf
 He strikes on, only when the timbers start.

XXXII.

Not see? because of night perhaps? — why, day
 Came back again for that! before it left,

The dying sunset kindled through a cleft :
 The hills, like giants at a hunting, lay,
 Chin upon hand, to see the game at bay, —
 “ Now stab and end the creature — to the heft ! ”

XXXIII.

Not hear? when noise was everywhere! it tolled
 Increasing like a bell. Names in my ears,
 Of all the lost adventurers my peers, —
 How such a one was strong, and such was bold,
 And such was fortunate, yet each of old
 Lost, lost! one moment knelled the woe of years.

XXXIV.

There they stood, ranged along the hillsides, met
 To view the last of me, a living frame
 For one more picture! in a sheet of flame
 I saw them and I knew them all. And yet
 Dauntless the slug-horn to my lips I set,
 And blew. “ Childe Roland to the Dark Tower came. ”

A SOUL'S TRAGEDY

ACT FIRST, BEING WHAT WAS CALLED THE POETRY OF CHIAPPINO'S LIFE ; AND ACT SECOND, ITS PROSE.

LONDON, 1846.

PERSONS.

LUITOLFO and EULALIA, betrothed lovers.
CHIAPPINO, their friend.
OGNIBEN, the Pope's Legate.
Citizens of Faenza.

TIME, 15—. PLACE, FAENZA.

ACT I.

Inside LUITOLFO'S house. CHIAPPINO, EULALIA.

Eu. What is it keeps Luitolfo? Night's fast falling,
And 't was scarce sunset . . . had the ave-bell
Sounded before he sought the Provost's house?
I think not: all he had to say would take
Few minutes, such a very few, to say!
How do you think, Chiappino? If our lord
The Provost were less friendly to your friend
Than everybody here professes him,
I should begin to tremble — should not you?
Why are you silent when so many times
I turn and speak to you?

Ch. That's good!

Eu. You laugh!

Ch. Yes. I had fancied nothing that bears price
In the whole world was left to call my own;
And, maybe, felt a little pride thereat.
Up to a single man's or woman's love,
Down to the right in my own flesh and blood,
There's nothing mine, I fancied, — till you spoke:
— Counting, you see, as "nothing" the permission
To study this peculiar lot of mine
In silence: well, go silence with the rest
Of the world's good! What can I say, shall serve?

Eu. This, — lest you, even more than needs, embitter
Our parting: say your wrongs have cast, for once,
A cloud across your spirit!

Ch. How a cloud?

Eu. No man nor woman loves you, did you say?

Ch. My God, were 't not for thee!

Eu. Ay, God remains,
Even did men forsake you.

Ch. Oh, not so!

Were 't not for God, I mean, what hope of truth —
Speaking truth, hearing truth, would stay with man?
I, now — the homeless friendless penniless
Proscribed and exiled wretch who speak to you, —
Ought to speak truth, yet could not, for my death,
(The thing that tempts me most) help speaking lies
About your friendship and Luitolfo's courage
And all our townsfolk's equanimity —
Through sheer incompetence to rid myself
Of the old miserable lying trick
Caught from the liars I have lived with, — God,
Did I not turn to thee! It is thy prompting
I dare to be ashamed of, and thy counsel
Would die along my coward lip, I know.
But I do turn to thee. This craven tongue,
These features which refuse the soul its way,
Reclaim thou! Give me truth — truth, power to speak
— And after be sole present to approve
The spoken truth! Or, stay, that spoken truth,
Who knows but you, too, may approve?

Eu. Ah, well —
Keep silence then, Chiappino!

Ch. You would hear, —
You shall now, — why the thing we please to style
My gratitude to you and all your friends
For service done me, is just gratitude
So much as yours was service: no whit more.
I was born here, so was Luitolfo; both
At one time, much with the same circumstance
Of rank and wealth; and both, up to this night
Of parting company, have side by side
Still fared, he in the sunshine — I, the shadow.
“Why?” asks the world. “Because,” replies the world
To its complacent self, “these playfellows,
Who took at church the holy-water drop
Each from the other's finger, and so forth, —
Were of two moods: Luitolfo was the proper

Friend-making, everywhere friend-finding soul,
 Fit for the sunshine, so, it followed him.
 A happy-tempered bringer of the best
 Out of the worst ; who bears with what 's past cure,
 And puts so good a face on 't — wisely passive
 Where action 's fruitless, while he remedies
 In silence what the foolish rail against ;
 A man to smooth such natures as parade
 Of opposition must exasperate ;
 No general gauntlet-gatherer for the weak
 Against the strong, yet over-scrupulous
 At lucky junctures ; one who won't forego
 The after-battle work of binding wounds,
 Because, forsooth he 'd have to bring himself
 To side with wound-inflictors for their leave ! ”
 — Why do you gaze, nor help me to repeat
 What comes so glibly from the common mouth,
 About Luitolfo and his so-styled friend ?

Eu. Because, that friend's sense is obscured . . .

Ch.

I thought

You would be readier with the other half
 Of the world's story, my half ! Yet, 't is true.
 For all the world does say it. Say your worst !
 True, I thank God, I ever said “ you sin,”
 When a man did sin : if I could not say it,
 I glared it at him ; if I could not glare it,
 I prayed against him ; then my part seemed over.
 God's may begin yet : so it will, I trust.

Eu. If the world outraged you, did we ?

Ch.

What's “ me ”

That you use well or ill ? It's man, in me,
 All your successes are an outrage to,
 You all, whom sunshine follows, as you say !
 Here's our Faenza birthplace ; they send here
 A provost from Ravenna : how he rules,
 You can at times be eloquent about.
 “ Then, end his rule ! ” — “ Ah yes, one stroke does that !
 But patience under wrong works slow and sure.
 Must violence still bring peace forth ? He, beside,
 Returns so blandly one's obeisance ! ah —
 Some latent virtue may be lingering yet,
 Some human sympathy which, once excite,
 And all the lump were leavened quietly :
 So, no more talk of striking, for this time ! ”
 But I, as one of those he rules, won't bear
 These pretty takings-up and layings-down

Our cause, just as you think occasion suits.
 Enough of earnest, is there? You'll play, will you?
 Diversify your tactics, give submission,
 Obsequiousness and flattery a turn,
 While we die in our misery patient deaths?
 We all are outraged then, and I the first:
 I, for mankind, resent each shrug and smirk,
 Each beck and bend, each . . . all you do and are,
 I hate!

Eu. We share a common censure, then.
 'Tis well you have not poor Luitolfo's part
 Nor mine to point out in the wide offence.

Ch. Oh, shall I let you so escape me, lady?
 Come, on your own ground, lady, — from yourself,
 (Leaving the people's wrong, which most is mine)
 What have I got to be so grateful for?
 These three last fines, no doubt, one on the other
 Paid by Luitolfo?

Eu. Shame, Chiappino!

Ch. Shame

Fall presently on who deserves it most!
 — Which is to see. He paid my fines — my friend,
 Your prosperous smooth lover presently,
 Then, scarce your wooer, — soon, your husband: well —
 I loved you.

Eu. Hold!

Ch. You knew it, years ago.
 When my voice faltered and my eye grew dim
 Because you gave me your silk mask to hold —
 My voice that greatens when there's need to curse
 The people's Provost to their heart's content,
 — My eye, the Provost, who bears all men's eyes,
 Banishes now because he cannot bear, —
 You knew . . . but you do your parts — my part, I:
 So be it! You flourish, I decay: all's well.

Eu. I hear this for the first time.

Ch. The fault's there?

Then my days spoke not, and my nights of fire
 Were voiceless? Then the very heart may burst.
 Yet all prove nought, because no mincing speech
 Tells leisurely that thus it is and thus?
 Eulalia, truce with toying for this once!
 A banished fool, who troubles you to-night
 For the last time — why, what's to fear from me?
 You knew I loved you!

Eu. Not so, on my faith!

You were my now-affianced lover's friend —
 Came in, went out with him, could speak as he.
 All praise your ready parts and pregnant wit;
 See how your words come from you in a crowd!
 Luitolfo's first to place you o'er himself
 In all that challenges respect and love:
 Yet you were silent then, who blame me now.
 I say all this by fascination, sure:
 I, all but wed to one I love, yet listen!
 It must be, you are wronged, and that the wrongs
 Luitolfo pities . . .

Ch. — You too pity? Do!
 But hear first what my wrongs are; so began
 This talk and so shall end this talk. I say,
 Was't not enough that I must strive (I saw)
 To grow so far familiar with your charms
 As next contrive some way to win them — which
 To do, an age seemed far too brief — for, see!
 We all aspire to heaven; and there lies heaven
 Above us: go there! Dare we go? no, surely!
 How dare we go without a reverent pause,
 A growing less unfit for heaven? Just so,
 I dared not speak: the greater fool, it seems!
 Was't not enough to struggle with such folly,
 But I must have, beside, the very man
 Whose slight free loose and incapacious soul
 Gave his tongue scope to say whate'er he would — Must have him load me with his benefits
 — For fortune's fiercest stroke?

Eu. Justice to him
 That's now entreating, at his risk perhaps,
 Justice for you! Did he once call those acts
 Of simple friendship — bounties, benefits?

Ch. No: the straight course had been to call them thus.
 Then, I had flung them back, and kept myself
 Unhampered, free as he to win the prize
 We both sought. But "the gold was dross," he said:
 "He loved me, and I loved him not: why spurn
 A trifle out of superfluity?
 He had forgotten he had done as much."
 So had not I! Henceforth, try as I could
 To take him at his word, there stood by you
 My benefactor; who might speak and laugh
 And urge his nothings, even banter me
 Before you — but my tongue was tied. A dream!
 Let's wake: your husband . . . how you shake at that!
 Good — my revenge!

Eu. Why should I shake? What forced
Or forces me to be Luitolfo's bride?

Ch. There's my revenge, that nothing forces you.
No gratitude, no liking of the eye
Nor longing of the heart, but the poor bond
Of habit — here so many times he came,
So much he spoke, — all these compose the tie
That pulls you from me. Well, he paid my fines,
Nor missed a cloak from wardrobe, dish from table;
He spoke a good word to the Provost here,
Held me up when my fortunes fell away,
— It had not looked so well to let me drop, —
Men take pains to preserve a tree-stump, even,
Whose boughs they played beneath — much more a friend.
But one grows tired of seeing, after the first,
Pains spent upon impracticable stuff
Like me. I could not change: you know the rest:
I've spoke my mind too fully out, by chance,
This morning to our Provost; so, ere night
I leave the city on pain of death. And now
On my account there's gallant intercession
Goes forward — that's so graceful! — and anon
He'll noisily come back: "the intercession
Was made and fails; all's over for us both;
'T is vain contending; I would better go."
And I do go — and straight to you he turns
Light of a load; and ease of that permits
His visage to repair the natural bland
CEconomy, sore broken late to suit
My discontent. Thus, all are pleased — you, with him,
He with himself, and all of you with me
— "Who," say the citizens, "had done far better
In letting people sleep upon their woes,
If not possessed with talent to relieve them
When once awake; — but then I had," they'll say,
"Doubtless some unknown compensating pride
In what I did; and as I seem content
With ruining myself, why, so should they be."
And so they are, and so be with his prize
The devil, when he gets them speedily!
Why does not your Luitolfo come? I long
To don this cloak and take the Lugo path.
It seems you never loved me, then?

Eu.

Chiappino!

Ch. Never?

Eu.

Never.

Ch. That's sad. Say what I might,
 There was no help from being sure this while
 You loved me. Love like mine must have return,
 I thought : no river starts but to some sea.
 And had you loved me, I could soon devise
 Some specious reason why you stifled love,
 Some fancied self-denial on your part,
 Which made you choose Luitolfo ; so, excepting
 From the wide condemnation of all here,
 One woman. Well, the other dream may break !
 If I knew any heart, as mine loved you,
 Loved me, though in the vilest breast 't were lodged,
 I should, I think, be forced to love again :
 Else there's no right nor reason in the world.

Eu. "If you knew," say you, — but I did not know.
 That's where you're blind, Chiappino ! — a disease
 Which if I may remove, I'll not repent
 The listening to. You cannot, will not, see
 How, place you but in every circumstance
 Of us, you are just now indignant at,
 You'd be as we.

Ch. I should be? . . . that ; again !
 I, to my friend, my country and my love,
 Be as Luitolfo and these Faentines ?

Eu. As we.

Ch. Now, I'll say something to remember.
 I trust in nature for the stable laws
 Of beauty and utility. — Spring shall plant,
 And Autumn garner to the end of time :
 I trust in God — the right shall be the right
 And other than the wrong, while he endures :
 I trust in my own soul, that can perceive
 The outward and the inward, nature's good
 And God's : so, seeing these men and myself,
 Having a right to speak, thus do I speak.
 I'll not curse — God bears with them, well may I —
 But I — protest against their claiming me.
 I simply say, if that's allowable,
 I would not (broadly) do as they have done.
 — God curse this townful of born slaves, bred slaves,
 Branded into the blood and bone, slaves ! Curse
 Whoever loves, above his liberty,
 House, land or life ! and . . . [A knocking without — bless my hero-friend,

Luitolfo !

Eu. How he knocks !

Ch.

The peril, lady!

“Chiappino, I have run a risk — a risk!
 For when I prayed the Provost (he's my friend)
 To grant you a week's respite of the sentence
 That confiscates your goods, exiles yourself,
 He shrugged his shoulder — I say, shrugged it! Yes,
 And fright of that drove all else from my head.
 Here's a good purse of scudi: off with you,
 Lest of that shrug come what God only knows!
 The scudi — friend, they're trash — no thanks, I beg!
 Take the north gate, — for San Vitale's suburb,
 Whose double taxes you appealed against,
 In discomposure at your ill-success
 Is apt to stone you: there, there — only go!
 Beside, Eulalia here looks sleepily.
 Shake . . . oh, you hurt me, so you squeeze my wrist!”
 — Is it not thus you'll speak, adventurous friend?

[As he opens the door, LUITOLFO rushes in, his garments disordered.
Eu. Luitolfo! Blood?

Luit.

There's more — and more of it!

Eulalia — take the garment! No — you, friend!
 You take it and the blood from me — you dare!

Eu. Oh, who has hurt you? where's the wound?

Ch.

“Who,” say you?

The man with many a touch of virtue yet!
 The Provost's friend has proved too frank of speech,
 And this comes of it. Miserable hound!
 This comes of temporizing, as I said!
 Here's fruit of your smooth speeches and soft looks!
 Now see my way! As God lives, I go straight
 To the palace and do justice, once for all!

Luit. What says he?

Ch.

I'll do justice on him.

Luit.

Him?

Ch. The Provost.

Luit.

I've just killed him.

Eu.

Oh, my God!

Luit. My friend, they're on my trace; they'll have me —
 now!

They're round him, busy with him: soon they'll find
 He's past their help, and then they'll be on me!
 Chiappino, save Eulalia! I forget . . .

Were you not bound for . . .

Ch.

Lugo?

Luit.

Ah — yes — yes!

That was the point I prayed of him to change.

Well, go — be happy! Is Eulalia safe?

They're on me!

Ch. 'Tis through me they reach you, then!
Friend, seem the man you are! Lock arms — that's right!
Now tell me what you've done; explain how you,
That still professed forbearance, still preached peace,
Could bring yourself . . .

Luit. What was peace for, Chiappino?
I tried peace: did that promise, when peace failed,
Strife should not follow? All my peaceful days
Were just the prelude to a day like this.
I cried "You call me 'friend': save my true friend!
Save him, or lose me!"

Ch. But you never said
You meant to tell the Provost thus and thus.

Luit. Why should I say it? What else did I mean?

Ch. Well? He persisted?

Luit. — "Would so order it
You should not trouble him too soon again."

I saw a meaning in his eye and lip;
I poured my heart's store of indignant words
Out on him: then — I know not! He retorted,
And I . . . some staff lay there to hand — I think
He bade his servants thrust me out — I struck . . .
Ah, they come! Fly you, save yourselves, you two!
The dead back-weight of the beheading axe!
The glowing trip-hook, thumbscrews and the gadge!

Eu. They do come! Torches in the Place! Farewell, Chiappino! You can work no good to us —
Much to yourself; believe not, all the world
Must needs be cursed henceforth!

Ch. And you?

Eu. I stay.

Ch. Ha, ha! Now, listen! I am master here!
This was my coarse disguise; this paper shows
My path of flight and place of refuge — see —
Lugo, Argenta, past San Nicolo,
Ferrara, then to Venice and all's safe!
Put on the cloak! His people have to fetch
A compass round about. There's time enough
Ere they can reach us, so you straightway make
For Lugo . . . nay, he hears not! On with it —
The cloak, Luitolfo, do you hear me? See —
He obeys he knows not how. Then, if I must —
Answer me! Do you know the Lugo gate?

Eu. The northwest gate, over the bridge?

Luit.

I know.

Ch. Well, there — you are not frightened? all my route
Is traced in that: at Venice you escape
Their power. Eulalia, I am master here!

[Shouts from without. He pushes out LUITOLFO, who complies mechanically.

In time! Nay, help me with him — so! He's gone.

Eu. What have you done? On you, perchance, all know
The Provost's hater, will men's vengeance fall
As our accomplice.

Ch. Mere accomplice? See!

[Putting on LUITOLFO'S vest.

Now, lady, am I true to my profession,
Or one of these?

Eu. You take Luitolfo's place?

Ch. Die for him.

Eu. Well done!

[Shouts increase.

Ch. How the people tarry!

I can't be silent; I must speak: or sing —
How natural to sing now!

Eu. Hush and pray!

We are to die; but even I perceive
'T is not a very hard thing so to die.
My cousin of the pale-blue tearful eyes,
Poor Cesca, suffers more from one day's life
With the stern husband; Tisbe's heart goes forth
Each evening after that wild son of hers,
To track his thoughtless footstep through the streets:
How easy for them both to die like this!
I am not sure that I could live as they.

Ch. Here they come, crowds! They pass the gate? Yes!
— No! —

One torch is in the courtyard. Here flock all.

Eu. At least Luitolfo has escaped. What cries!

Ch. If they would drag one to the market-place,
One might speak there!

Eu. List, list!

Ch. They mount the steps.

Enter the Populace.

Ch. I killed the Provost!

The Populace [speaking together]. 'T was Chiappino, friends!
Our savior! The best man at last as first!
He who first made us feel what chains we wore,
He also strikes the blow that shatters them,
He at last saves us — our best citizen!
— Oh, have you only courage to speak now?

My eldest son was christened a year since
 "Cino" to keep Chiappino's name in mind —
 Cino, for shortness merely, you observe!
 The city's in our hands. The guards are fled.
 Do you, the cause of all, come down — come up —
 Come out to counsel us, our chief, our king,
 Whate'er rewards you! Choose your own reward!
 The peril over, its reward begins!
 Come and harangue us in the market-place!

Eu. Chiappino?

Ch. Yes — I understand your eyes!

You think I should have promptlier disowned
 This deed with its strange unforeseen success,
 In favor of Luitolfo. But the peril,
 So far from ended, hardly seems begun.
 To-morrow, rather, when a calm succeeds,
 We easily shall make him full amends:
 And meantime — if we save them as they pray,
 And justify the deed by its effects?

Eu. You would, for worlds, you had denied at once.

Ch. I know my own intention, be assured!
 All's well. Precede us, fellow-citizens!

ACT II.

The Market-place. LUITOLFO in disguise mingling with the Populace assembled opposite the Provost's Palace.

1st Bystander [to LUIT.] You, a friend of Luitolfo's? Then your friend is vanished, — in all probability killed on the night that his patron the tyrannical Provost was loyally suppressed here, exactly a month ago, by our illustrious fellow-citizen, thrice-noble savior, and new Provost that is like to be, this very morning, — Chiappino!

Luit. He the new Provost?

2d. Up those steps will he go, and beneath yonder pillar stand, while Ogniben, the Pope's Legate from Ravenna, reads the new dignitary's title to the people, according to established custom: for which reason, there is the assemblage you inquire about.

Luit. Chiappino — the late Provost's successor? Impossible! But tell me of that presently. What I would know first of all is, wherefore Luitolfo must so necessarily have been killed on that memorable night?

3d. You were Luitolfo's friend? So was I. Never, if you will credit me, did there exist so poor-spirited a milk-sop. He,

with all the opportunities in the world, furnished by daily converse with our oppressor, would not stir a finger to help us: and, when Chiappino rose in solitary majesty and . . . how does one go on saying? . . . dealt the godlike blow, — this Luitolfo, not unreasonably fearing the indignation of an aroused and liberated people, fled precipitately. He may have got trodden to death in the press at the southeast gate, when the Provost's guards fled through it to Ravenna, with their wounded master, — if he did not rather hang himself under some hedge.

Luit. Or why not simply have lain perdue in some quiet corner, — such as San Cassiano, where his estate was, — receiving daily intelligence from some sure friend, meanwhile, as to the turn matters were taking here — how, for instance, the Provost was not dead, after all, only wounded — or, as to-day's news would seem to prove, how Chiappino was not Brutus the Elder, after all, only the new Provost — and thus Luitolfo be enabled to watch a favorable opportunity for returning? Might it not have been so?

3d. Why, he may have taken that care of himself, certainly, for he came of a cautious stock. I'll tell you how his uncle, just such another gingerly treader on tiptoes with finger on lip, — how he met his death in the great plague-year: dico vobis! Hearing that the seventeenth house in a certain street was infected, he calculates to pass it in safety by taking plentiful breath, say, when he shall arrive at the eleventh house; then scouring by, holding that breath, till he be got so far on the other side as number twenty-three, and thus elude the danger. — And so did he begin; but, as he arrived at thirteen, we will say, — thinking to improve on his precaution by putting up a little prayer to St. Nepomucene of Prague, this exhausted so much of his lungs' reserve, that at sixteen it was clean spent, — consequently at the fatal seventeen he inhaled with a vigor and persistence enough to suck you any latent venom out of the heart of a stone — Ha, ha!

Luit. [Aside.] (If I had not lent that man the money he wanted last spring, I should fear this bitterness was attributable to me.) Luitolfo is dead then, one may conclude?

3d. Why, he had a house here, and a woman to whom he was affianced; and as they both pass naturally to the new Provost, his friend and heir . . .

Luit. Ah, I suspected you of imposing on me with your pleasantry! I know Chiappino better.

1st. (Our friend has the bile! After all, I do not dislike finding somebody vary a little this general gape of admiration at Chiappino's glorious qualities.) Pray, how much may you know of what has taken place in Faenza since that memorable night?

Luit. It is most to the purpose, that I know Chiappino to have been by profession a hater of that very office of Provost, you now charge him with proposing to accept.

1st. Sir, I'll tell you. That night was indeed memorable. Up we rose, a mass of us, men, women, children; out fled the guards with the body of the tyrant; we were to defy the world: but, next gray morning, "What will Rome say?" began everybody. You know we are governed by Ravenna, which is governed by Rome. And quietly into the town, by the Ravenna road, comes on muleback a portly personage, Ogniben by name, with the quality of Pontifical Legate; trots briskly through the streets humming a "Cur fremuere gentes," and makes directly for the Provost's Palace — there it faces you. "One Messer Chiappino is your leader? I have known three-and-twenty leaders of revolts!" (laughing gently to himself) — "Give me the help of your arm from my mule to yonder steps under the pillar — So! And now, my revolters and good friends, what do you want? The guards burst into Ravenna last night bearing your wounded Provost; and, having had a little talk with him, I take on myself to come and try appease the disorderliness, before Rome, hearing of it, resort to another method: 'tis I come, and not another, from a certain love I confess to, of composing differences. So, do you understand, you are about to experience this unheard-of tyranny from me, that there shall be no heading nor hanging, no confiscation nor exile: I insist on your simply pleasing yourselves. And now, pray, what does please you? To live without any government at all? Or having decided for one, to see its minister murdered by the first of your body that chooses to find himself wronged, or disposed for reverting to first principles and a justice anterior to all institutions, — and so will you carry matters, that the rest of the world must at length unite and put down such a den of wild beasts? As for vengeance on what has just taken place, — once for all, the wounded man assures me he cannot conjecture who struck him; and this so earnestly, that one may be sure he knows perfectly well what intimate acquaintance could find admission to speak with him late last evening. I come not for vengeance therefore, but from pure curiosity to hear what you will do next." And thus he ran on, on, easily and volubly, till he seemed to arrive quite naturally at the praise of law, order, and paternal government by somebody from rather a distance. All our citizens were in the snare, and about to be friends with so congenial an adviser; but that Chiappino suddenly stood forth, spoke out indignantly, and set things right again.

Luit. Do you see? I recognize him there!

3d. Ay but, mark you, at the end of Chiappino's longest period in praise of a pure republic, — “And by whom do I desire such a government should be administered, perhaps, but by one like yourself?” — returns the Legate: thereupon speaking for a quarter of an hour together, on the natural and only legitimate government by the best and wisest. And it should seem there was soon discovered to be no such vast discrepancy at bottom between this and Chiappino’s theory, place but each in its proper light. “Oh, are you there?” quoth Chiappino: “Ay, in that, I agree,” returns Chiappino: and so on.

Luit. But did Chiappino cede at once to this?

1st. Why, not altogether at once. For instance, he said that the difference between him and all his fellows was, that they seemed all wishing to be kings in one or another way, — “whereas what right,” asked he, “has any man to wish to be superior to another?” — whereat, “Ah, sir,” answers the Legate, “this is the death of me, so often as I expect something is really going to be revealed to us by you clearer-seers, deeper-thinkers — this — that your right-hand (to speak by a figure) should be found taking up the weapon it displayed so ostentatiously, not to destroy any dragon in our path, as was prophesied, but simply to cut off its own fellow left-hand: yourself set about attacking yourself. For see now! Here are you who, I make sure, glory exceedingly in knowing the noble nature of the soul, its divine impulses, and so forth; and with such a knowledge you stand, as it were, armed to encounter the natural doubts and fears as to that same inherent nobility, which are apt to waylay us, the weaker ones, in the road of life. And when we look eagerly to see them fall before you, lo, round you wheel, only the left-hand gets the blow; one proof of the soul’s nobility destroys simply another proof, quite as good, of the same, for you are found delivering an opinion like this! Why, what is this perpetual yearning to exceed, to subdue, to be better than, and a king over, one’s fellows, — all that you so disclaim, — but the very tendency yourself are most proud of, and under another form, would oppose to it, — only in a lower stage of manifestation? You don’t want to be vulgarly superior to your fellows after their poor fashion — to have me hold solemnly up your gown’s tail, or hand you an express of the last importance from the Pope, with all these bystanders noticing how unconcerned you look the while: but neither does our gaping friend, the burgess yonder, want the other kind of kingship, that consists in understanding better than his fellows this and similar points of human nature, nor to roll under his tongue this sweeter morsel still, — the feeling that, through immense philosophy, he does not feel, he rather thinks, above you and me!” And so chatting, they glided off arm-in-arm.

Luit. And the result is . . .

1st. Why that, a month having gone by, the indomitable Chiappino, marrying as he will Luitolfo's love — at all events succeeding to Luitolfo's wealth — becomes the first inhabitant of Faenza, and a proper aspirant to the Provostship; which we assemble here to see conferred on him this morning. The Legate's Guard to clear the way! He will follow presently.

Luit. [withdrawing a little]. I understand the drift of Eulalia's communications less than ever. Yet she surely said, in so many words, that Chiappino was in urgent danger: wherefore, disregarding her injunction to continue in my retreat and await the result of — what she called, some experiment yet in process — I hastened here without her leave or knowledge: how could I else? But if this they say be true — if it were for such a purpose, she and Chiappino kept me away . . . Oh, no, no! I must confront him and her before I believe this of them. And at the word, see!

Enter CHIAPPINO and EULALIA.

Eu. We part here, then? The change in your principles would seem to be complete.

Ch. Now, why refuse to see that in my present course I change no principles, only re-adapt them and more adroitly? I had despaired of, what you may call the material instrumentality of life; of ever being able to rightly operate on mankind through such a deranged machinery as the existing modes of government: but now, if I suddenly discover how to inform these perverted institutions with fresh purpose, bring the functionary limbs once more into immediate communication with, and subjection to, the soul I am about to bestow on them — do you see? Why should one desire to invent, as long as it remains possible to renew and transform? When all further hope of the old organization shall be extinct, then, I grant you, it may be time to try and create another.

Eu. And there being discoverable some hope yet in the hitherto much-abused old system of absolute government by a Provost here, you mean to take your time about endeavoring to realize those visions of a perfect State we once heard of?

Ch. Say, I would fain realize my conception of a palace, for instance, and that there is, abstractedly, but a single way of erecting one perfectly. Here, in the market-place is my allotted building-ground; here I stand without a stone to lay, or a laborer to help me, — stand, too, during a short day of life, close on which the night comes. On the other hand, circumstances suddenly offer me (turn and see it!) the old Provost's house to experiment upon — ruinous, if you please, wrongly constructed at the beginning, and ready to tumble now. But materials abound, a crowd of workmen offer their services ; here exists yet a Hall of Audience of originally noble proportions, there a Guest-chamber of symmetrical design enough : and I may restore, enlarge, abolish or unite these to heart's content. Ought I not make the best of such an opportunity, rather than continue to gaze disconsolately with folded arms on the flat pavement here, while the sun goes slowly down, never to rise again ? Since you cannot understand this nor me, it is better we should part as you desire.

Eu. So, the love breaks away too !

Ch. No, rather my soul's capacity for love widens — needs more than one object to content it, — and, being better instructed, will not persist in seeing all the component parts of love in what is only a single part, — nor in finding that so many and so various loves are all united in the love of a woman, — manifold uses in one instrument, as the savage has his sword, staff, sceptre and idol, all in one club-stick. Love is a very compound thing. The intellectual part of my love I shall give to men, the mighty dead or the illustrious living ; and determine to call a mere sensual instinct by as few fine names as possible. What do I lose ?

Eu. Nay, I only think, what do I lose ? and, one more word — which shall complete my instruction — does friendship go too ? What of Luitolfo, the author of your present prosperity ?

Ch. How the author ?

Eu. That blow now called yours . . .

Ch. Struck without principle or purpose, as by a blind natural operation : yet to which all my thought and life directly and advisedly tended. I would have struck it, and could not : he would have done his utmost to avoid striking it, yet did so. I dispute his right to that deed of mine — a final action with him, from the first effect of which he fled away, — a mere first step with me, on which I base a whole mighty superstructure of good to follow. Could he get good from it ?

Eu. So we profess, so we perform !

Enter OGNIBEN. EULALIA stands apart.

Ogni. I have seen three-and-twenty leaders of revolts. By your leave, sir ! Perform ? What does the lady say of performing ?

Ch. Only the trite saying, that we must not trust profession, only performance.

Ogni. She 'll not say that, sir, when she knows you longer ; you 'll instruct her better. Ever judge of men by their professions ! For though the bright moment of promising is but a moment and cannot be prolonged, yet, if sincere in its moment's extravagant goodness, why, trust it and know the man by it, I say — not by his performance ; which is half the world's work, interfere as the world needs must, with its accidents and circumstances: the profession was purely the man's own. I judge people by what they might be, — not are, nor will be.

Ch. But have there not been found, too, performing natures, not merely promising?

Ogni. Plenty. Little Bindo of our town, for instance, promised his friend, great ugly Masaccio, once, "I will repay you!" — for a favor done him. So, when his father came to die, and Bindo succeeded to the inheritance, he sends straightway for Masaccio and shares all with him — gives him half the land, half the money, half the kegs of wine in the cellar. "Good," say you: and it is good. But had little Bindo found himself possessor of all this wealth some five years before — on the happy night when Masaccio procured him that interview in the garden with his pretty cousin Lisa — instead of being the beggar he then was, — I am bound to believe that in the warm moment of promise he would have given away all the wine-kegs and all the money and all the land, and only reserved to himself some hut on a hill-top hard by, whence he might spend his life in looking and seeing his friend enjoy himself: he meant fully that much, but the world interfered. — To our business! Did I understand you just now within-doors? You are not going to marry your old friend's love, after all?

Ch. I must have a woman that can sympathize with, and appreciate me, I told you.

Ogni. Oh, I remember! You, the greater nature, needs must have a lesser one (— avowedly lesser — contest with you on that score would never do) — such a nature must comprehend you, as the phrase is, accompany and testify of your greatness from point to point onward. Why, that were being not merely as great as yourself, but greater considerably! Meantime, might not the more bounded nature as reasonably count on your appreciation of it, rather? — on your keeping close by it, so far as you both go together, and then going on by yourself as far as you please? Thus God serves us.

Ch. And yet a woman that could understand the whole of me, to whom I could reveal alike the strength and the weakness —

Ogni. Ah, my friend, wish for nothing so foolish! Worship your love, give her the best of you to see; be to her like the western lands (they bring us such strange news of) to the Spanish Court; send her only your lumps of gold, fans of feathers, your spirit-like birds, and fruits and gems! So shall you, what is unseen of you, be supposed altogether a paradise by her, — as these western lands by Spain: though I warrant there is filth, red baboons, ugly reptiles and squalor enough, which they bring Spain as few samples of as possible. Do you want your mistress to respect your body generally? Offer her your mouth to kiss : don't strip off your boot and put your foot to her lips ! You understand my humor by this time ? I help men to carry out their own principles : if they please to say two and two make five, I assent, so they will but go on and say, four and four make ten.

Ch. But these are my private affairs ; what I desire you to occupy yourself about, is my public appearance presently : for when the people hear that I am appointed Provost, though you and I may thoroughly discern — and easily, too — the right principle at bottom of such a movement, and how my republicanism remains thoroughly unaltered, only takes a form of expression hitherto commonly judged (and heretofore by myself) incompatible with its existence, — when thus I reconcile myself to an old form of government instead of proposing a new one —

Ogni. Why, you must deal with people broadly. Begin at a distance from this matter and say, — New truths, old truths ! sirs, there is nothing new possible to be revealed to us in the moral world ; we know all we shall ever know : and it is for simply reminding us, by their various respective expedients, how we do know this and the other matter, that men get called prophets, poets, and the like. A philosopher's life is spent in discovering that, of the half-dozen truths he knew when a child, such an one is a lie, as the world states it in set terms ; and then, after a weary lapse of years, and plenty of hard thinking, it becomes a truth again after all, as he happens to newly consider it and view it in a different relation with the others : and so he re-states it, to the confusion of somebody else in good time. As for adding to the original stock of truths, — impossible ! Thus, you see the expression of them is the grand business : — you have got a truth in your head about the right way of governing people, and you took a mode of expressing it which now you confess to be imperfect. But what then ? There is truth in falsehood, falsehood in truth. No man ever told one great truth, that I know, without the help of a good dozen of lies at least, generally unconscious ones. And as when a child comes in breathlessly and relates a strange story, you try to conjecture from the very falsities in it what the reality was, — do not conclude that he saw nothing in the sky, because he assuredly did not see a flying horse there as he says, — so, through the contradictory expression, do you see, men should look painfully for, and trust to arrive eventually at, what you call the true principle at bottom. Ah, what an answer is there ! to what will it not prove applicable ? — “ Contradictions ? Of course there were,” say you !

Ch. Still, the world at large may call it inconsistency, and what shall I urge in reply ?

Ogni. Why, look you, when they tax you with tergiversation or duplicity, you may answer — you begin to perceive that, when all's done and said, both great parties in the State, the advocates of change in the present system of things, and the opponents of it, patriot and anti-patriot, are found working together for the common good; and that in the midst of their efforts for and against its progress, the world somehow or other still advances: to which result they contribute in equal proportions, those who spend their life in pushing it onward, as those who give theirs to the business of pulling it back. Now, if you found the world stand still between the opposite forces, and were glad, I should conceive you: but it steadily advances, you rejoice to see! By the side of such a rejoicer, the man who only winks as he keeps cunning and quiet, and says, "Let yonder hot-headed fellow fight out my battle! I, for one, shall win in the end by the blows he gives, and which I ought to be giving," — even he seems graceful in his avowal, when one considers that he might say, "I shall win quite as much by the blows our antagonist gives him, blows from which he saves me — I thank the antagonist equally!" Moreover, you may enlarge on the loss of the edge of party-animosity with age and experience . . .

Ch. And naturally time must wear off such asperities: the bitterest adversaries get to discover certain points of similarity between each other, common sympathies — do they not?

Ogni. Ay, had the young David but sat first to dine on his cheeses with the Philistine, he had soon discovered an abundance of such common sympathies. He of Gath, it is recorded, was born of a father and mother, had brothers and sisters like another man, — they, no more than the sons of Jesse, were used to eat each other. But, for the sake of one broad antipathy that had existed from the beginning, David slung the stone, cut off the giant's head, made a spoil of it, and after ate his cheeses alone, with the better appetite, for all I can learn. My friend, as you, with a quickened eye-sight, go on discovering much good on the worse side, remember that the same process should proportionably magnify and demonstrate to you the much more good on the better side! And when I profess no sympathy for the Goliaths of our time, and you object that a large nature should sympathize with every form of intelligence, and see the good in it, however limited, — I answer, "So I do; but preserve the proportions of my sympathy, however finelier or widelier I may extend its action." I desire to be able, with a quickened eye-sight, to descry beauty in corruption where others see foulness only; but I hope I shall also continue to see a redoubled beauty in the higher forms of matter, where already everybody sees no foulness at all. I must retain, too, my old power of selection, and choice of appropriation, to apply to such new gifts; else they only dazzle instead of enlightening me. God has his archangels and consorts with them: though he made too, and intimately sees what is good in, the worm. Observe, I speak only as you profess to think and so ought to speak: I do justice to your own principles, that is all.

Ch. But you very well know that the two parties do, on occasion, assume each other's characteristics. What more disgusting, for instance, than to see how promptly the newly emancipated slave will adopt, in his own favor, the very measures of precaution, which pressed soreliest on himself as institutions of the tyranny he has just escaped from? Do the classes, hitherto without opinion, get leave to express it? there follows a confederacy immediately, from which — exercise your individual right and dissent, and woe be to you!

Ogni. And a journey over the sea to you! That is the generous way. Cry — “Emancipated slaves, the first excess, and off I go!” The first time a poor devil, who has been bastinadoed steadily his whole life long, finds himself let alone and able to legislate, so, begins pettishly, while he rubs his soles, “Woe be to whoever brings anything in the shape of a stick this way!” — you, rather than give up the very innocent pleasure of carrying one to switch flies with, — you go away, to everybody's sorrow. Yet you were quite reconciled to staying at home while the governors used to pass, every now and then, some such edict as, “Let no man indulge in owning a stick which is not thick enough to chastise our slaves, if need require!” Well, there are pre-ordained hierarchies among us, and a profane vulgar subjected to a different law altogether; yet I am rather sorry you should see it so clearly: for, do you know what is to — all but save you at the Day of Judgment, all you men of genius? It is this: that, while you generally began by pulling down God, and went on to the end of your life in one effort at setting up your own genius in his place, — still, the last, bitterest concession wrung with the utmost unwillingness from the experience of the very loftiest of you, was invariably — would one think it? — that the rest of mankind, down to the lowest of the mass, stood not, nor ever could stand, just on a level and equality with yourselves. That will be a point in the favor of all such, I hope and believe.

Ch. Why, men of genius are usually charged, I think, with doing just the reverse; and at once acknowledging the natural inequality of mankind, by themselves participating in the universal craving after, and deference to, the civil distinctions which represent it. You wonder they pay such undue respect to titles and badges of superior rank.

Ogni. Not I (always on your own ground and showing, be it noted!) Who doubts that, with a weapon to brandish, a man is the more formidable? Titles and badges are exercised as such a weapon, to which you and I look up wistfully. We could pin lions with it moreover, while in its present owner's hands it hardly prods rats. Nay, better than a mere weapon of easy mastery and obvious use, it is a mysterious divining-rod that may serve us in undreamed-of ways. Beauty, strength, intellect — men often have none of these, and yet conceive pretty accurately what kind of advantages they would bestow on the possessor. We know at least what it is we make up our mind to forego, and so can apply the fittest substitute in our power. Wanting beauty, we cultivate good-humor; missing wit, we get riches: but the mystic unimaginable operation of that gold collar and string of Latin names which suddenly turned poor stupid little peevish Cecco of our town into natural lord of the best of us — a Duke, he is now — there indeed is a virtue to be revered!

Ch. Ay, by the vulgar: not by Messere Stiatta the poet, who pays more assiduous court to him than anybody.

Ogni. What else should Stiatta pay court to? He has talent, not honor and riches: men naturally covet what they have not.

Ch. No; or Cecco would covet talent, which he has not, whereas he covets more riches, of which he has plenty, already.

Ogni. Because a purse added to a purse makes the holder twice as rich: but just such another talent as Stiatta's, added to what he now possesses, what would that profit him? Give the talent a purse indeed, to do something with! But lo, how we keep the good people waiting! I only desired to do justice to the noble sentiments which animate you, and which you are too modest to duly enforce. Come, to our main business: shall we ascend the steps? I am going to propose you for Provost to the people; they know your antecedents, and will accept you with a joyful unanimity: whereon I confirm their choice. Rouse up! Are you nerving yourself to an effort? Beware the disaster of Messere Stiatta we were talking of! who, determining to keep an equal mind and constant face on whatever might be the fortune of his last new poem with our townsmen, heard too plainly "hiss, hiss, hiss," increase every moment. Till at last the man fell senseless: not perceiving that the portentous sounds had all the while been issuing from between his own nobly clenched teeth, and nostrils narrowed by resolve.

Ch. Do you begin to throw off the mask? — to jest with me, having got me effectually into your trap?

Ogni. Where is the trap, my friend? You hear what I engage to do, for my part: you, for yours, have only to fulfil your promise made just now within doors, of professing unlimited obedience to Rome's authority in my person. And

I shall authorize no more than the simple re-establishment of the Provostship and the conferment of its privileges upon your self: the only novel stipulation being a birth of the peculiar circumstances of the time.

Ch. And that stipulation?

Ogni. Just the obvious one — that in the event of the discovery of the actual assailant of the late Provost . . .

Ch. Ha!

Ogni. Why, he shall suffer the proper penalty, of course; what did you expect?

Ch. Who heard of this?

Ogni. Rather, who needed to hear of this?

Ch. Can it be, the popular rumor never reached you . . .

Ogni. Many more such rumors reach me, friend, than I choose to receive; those which wait longest have best chance. Has the present one sufficiently waited? Now is its time for entry with effect. See the good people crowding about yonder palace-steps — which we may not have to ascend, after all! My good friends! (nay, two or three of you will answer every purpose) — who was it fell upon and proved nearly the death of your late Provost? His successor desires to hear, that his day of inauguration may be graced by the act of prompt, bare justice we all anticipate. Who dealt the blow that night, does anybody know?

Luitolfo [coming forward]. I!

All. Luitolfo!

Luit. I avow the deed, justify and approve it, and stand forth now, to relieve my friend of an unearned responsibility. Having taken thought, I am grown stronger: I shall shrink from nothing that awaits me. Nay, Chiappino — we are friends still: I dare say there is some proof of your superior nature in this starting aside, strange as it seemed at first. So, they tell me, my horse is of the right stock, because a shadow in the path frightens him into a frenzy, makes him dash my brains out. I understand only the dull mule's way of standing stockishly, plodding soberly, suffering on occasion a blow or two with due patience.

Eu. I was determined to justify my choice, Chiappino; to let Luitolfo's nature vindicate itself. Henceforth we are undivided, whatever be our fortune.

Ogni. Now, in these last ten minutes of silence, what have I been doing, deem you? Putting the finishing stroke to a homily of mine, I have long taken thought to perfect, on the text, "Let whoso thinketh he standeth, take heed lest he fall." To your house, Luitolfo! Still silent, my patriotic friend? Well, that is a good sign however. And you will go aside for a time? That is better still. I understand: it would be easy for you to die of remorse here on the spot and shock us all, but you mean to live and grow worthy of coming back to us one day. There, I will tell everybody; and you only do right to believe you must get better as you get older. All men do so: they are worst in childhood, improve in manhood, and get ready in old age for another world. Youth, with its beauty and grace, would seem bestowed on us for some such reason as to make us partly endurable till we have time for really becoming so of ourselves, without their aid; when they leave us. The sweetest child we all smile on for his pleasant want of the whole world to break up, or suck in his mouth, seeing no other good in it — would be rudely handled by that world's inhabitants, if he retained those angelic infantine desires when he had grown six feet high, black and bearded. But, little by little, he sees fit to forego claim after claim on the world, puts up with a less and less share of its good as his proper portion; and when the octogenarian asks barely a sup of gruel and a fire of dry sticks, and thanks you as for his full allowance and right in the common good of life, — hoping nobody may murder him, — he who began by asking and expecting the whole of us to bow down in worship to him, — why, I say he is advanced, far onward, very far, nearly out of sight like our friend Chiappino yonder. And now — (ay, good-bye to you! He turns round the northwest gate: going to Lugo again? Good-bye!) — And now give thanks to God, the keys of the Provost's palace to me, and yourselves to profitable meditation at home! I have known Four-and-twenty leaders of revolts.

---

I DEDICATE

THIS LAST ATTEMPT FOR THE PRESENT AT DRAMATIC POETRY
TO A GREAT DRAMATIC POET ;

“ WISHING WHAT I WRITE MAY BE READ BY HIS LIGHT : ”

IF A PHRASE ORIGINALLY ADDRESSED, BY NOT THE LEAST WORTHY OF HIS CONTEMPORARIES,

TO SHAKESPEARE,

MAY BE APPLIED HERE, BY ONE WHOSE SOLE PRIVILEGE IS IN A GRATEFUL ADMIRATION,

To WALTER SAVAGE LANDOR.

LONDON, 1846.

PERSONS.

LURIA, a Moor, Commander of the Florentine Forces.

HUSAIN, a Moor, his friend.

PUCCIO, the old Florentine Commander, now LURIA'S Chief Officer.

BRACCIO, Commissary of the Republic of Florence.

JACOPO (LAPO), his Secretary.

TIBURZIO, Commander of the Pisans.

DOMIZIA, a noble Florentine Lady.

TIME, 14—.

SCENE. LURIA'S Camp between Florence and Pisa.

ACT I.

MORNING.

BRACCIO, as dictating to his Secretary ; PUCCIO standing by.

Brac. [ to Puc. ] ' Then, you join battle in an hour ?

Puc.

Not I ;

Luria, the captain.

Brac. [ to the Sec. ] “ In an hour, the battle.”

[ To Puc. ] Sir, let your eye run o'er this loose digest,
And see if very much of your report

Have slipped away through my civilian phrase.
Does this instruct the Signory aright
How army stands with army?

Puc. [taking the paper.] All seems here :
— That Luria, seizing with our city's force
The several points of vantage, hill and plain,
Shuts Pisa safe from help on every side,
And, baffling the Lucchese arrived too late,
Must, in the battle he delivers now,
Beat her best troops and first of chiefs.

Brac.

So sure ?

Tiburzio's a consummate captain too !

Puc. Luria holds Pisa's fortune in his hand.

Brac. [to the Sec.] "The Signory hold Pisa in their hand."
Your own proved soldiership's our warrant, sir :
So, while my secretary ends his task,
Have out two horsemen, by the open roads,
To post with it to Florence !

Puc. [returning the paper.] All seems here ;
Unless . . . Ser Braccio, 't is my last report !
Since Pisa's outbreak, and my overthrow,
And Luria's hastening at the city's call
To save her, as he only could, no doubt ;
Till now that she is saved or sure to be, —
Whatever you tell Florence, I tell you :
Each day's note you, her Commissary, make
Of Luria's movements, I myself supply.
No youngster am I longer, to my cost ;
Therefore while Florence gloried in her choice
And vaunted Luria, whom but Luria, still,
As if zeal, courage, prudence, conduct, faith,
Had never met in any man before,
I saw no pressing need to swell the cry.
But now, this last report and I have done :
So, ere to-night comes with its roar of praise,
'T were not amiss if some one old i' the trade
Subscribed with, " True, for once rash counsel's best.
This Moor of the bad faith and doubtful race,
This boy to whose untried sagacity,
Raw valor, Florence trusts without reserve
The charge to save her, — justifies her choice ;
In no point has this stranger failed his friends.
Now praise ! " I say this, and it is not here.

Brac. [to the Sec.] Write, " Puccio, superseded in the charge,
By Luria, bears full witness to his worth,
And no reward our Signory can give

Their champion but he 'll back it cheerfully."
Aught more? Five minutes hence, both messengers!

[PUCCIO goes.]

Brac. [after a pause, and while he slowly tears the paper into shreds.]

I think . . . (pray God, I hold in fit contempt
This warfare's noble art and ordering,
And, — once the brace of prizers fairly matched,
Poleaxe with poleaxe, knife with knife as good, —
Spit properly at what men term their skill! —)
Yet here I think our fighter has the odds.
With Pisa's strength diminished thus and thus,
Such points of vantage in our hands and such,
Lucca still off the stage, too, — all 's assured:
Luria must win this battle. Write the Court,
That Luria's trial end and sentence pass!

Sec. Patron, —

Brac. Ay, Lapo?

Sec. If you trip, I fall;

'Tis in self-interest I speak —

Brac. Nay, nay,

You overshoot the mark, my Lapo! Nay!

When did I say pure love 's impossible?

I make you daily write those red cheeks thin,

Load your young brow with what concerns it least,

And, when we visit Florence, let you pace

The Piazza by my side as if we talked,

Where all your old acquaintances may see:

You 'd die for me, I should not be surprised.

Now then!

Sec. Sir, look about and love yourself!

Step after step, the Signory and you

Tread gay till this tremendous point 's to pass;

Which pass not, pass not, ere you ask yourself, —

Bears the brain steadily such draughts of fire,

Or too delicious may not prove the pride

Of this long secret trial you dared plan,

Dare execute, you solitary here,

With the gray-headed toothless fools at home,

Who think themselves your lords, such slaves are they?

If they pronounce this sentence as you bid,

Declare the treason, claim its penalty, —

And sudden out of all the blaze of life,

On the best minute of his brightest day,

From that adoring army at his back,

Through Florence' joyous crowds before his face,

Into the dark you beckon Luria . . .

Brac.

Then —

Why, Lapo, when the fighting-people vaunt,
 We of the other craft and mystery,
 May we not smile demure, the danger past?

Sec. Sir, no, no, no, — the danger, and your spirit
 At watch and ward? Where's danger on your part,
 With that thin flitting instantaneous steel
 'Gainst the blind bull-front of a brute-force world?
 If Luria, that's to perish sure as fate,
 Should have been really guiltless after all?

Brac. Ah, you have thought that?Sec.

Here I sit, your scribe,

And in and out goes Luria, days and nights;
 This Puccio comes; the Moor his other friend,
 Husain; they talk — that's all feigned easily;
 He speaks (I would not listen if I could),
 Reads, orders, counsels: — but he rests sometimes, —
 I see him stand and eat, sleep stretched an hour
 On the lynx-skins, yonder; hold his bared black arms
 Into the sun from the tent-opening; laugh
 When his horse drops the forage from his teeth
 And neighs to hear him hum his Moorish songs.
 That man believes in Florence, as the saint
 Tied to the wheel believes in God.

Brac.

How strange!

You too have thought that!

Sec.

Do but you think too,

And all is saved! I only have to write,
 "The man seemed false awhile, proves true at last;
 Bury it" — so I write the Signory —
 "Bury this trial in your breast forever,
 Blot it from things or done or dreamed about!
 So Luria shall receive his meed to-day
 With no suspicion what reverse was near, —
 As if no meteoric finger hushed
 The doom-word just on the destroyer's lip,
 Motioned him off, and let life's sun fall straight."

Brac. [looks to the wall of the tent.] Did he draw that?Sec.

With charcoal, when the watch

Made the report at midnight; Lady Domizia
 Spoke of the unfinished Duomo, you remember;
 That is his fancy how a Moorish front
 Might join to, and complete, the body, — a sketch, —
 And again where the cloak hangs, yonder in the shadow.

Brac. He loves that woman.Sec.

She is sent the spy

Of Florence, — spies on you as you on him :
 Florence, if only for Domizia's sake,
 Is surely safe. What shall I write ?

Brac.

I see —

A Moorish front, nor of such ill design !
 Lapo, there 's one thing plain and positive ;
 Man seeks his own good at the whole world's cost.
 What ? If to lead our troops, stand forth our chiefs,
 And hold our fate, and see us at their beck,
 Yet render up the charge when peace return,
 Have ever proved too much for Florentines,
 Even for the best and bravest of ourselves —
 If in the struggle when the soldier's sword
 Should sink its point before the statist's pen,
 And the calm head replace the violent hand,
 Virtue on virtue still have fallen away
 Before ambition with unvarying fate,
 Till Florence' self at last in bitterness
 Be forced to own such falls the natural end,
 And, sparing further to expose her sons
 To a vain strife and profitless disgrace,
 Declare, " The foreigner, one not my child,
 Shall henceforth lead my troops, reach height by height
 The glory, then descend into the shame ;
 So shall rebellion be less guilt in him,
 And punishment the easier task for me : "
 — If on the best of us such brand she set,
 Can I suppose an utter alien here,
 This Luria, our inevitable foe,
 Confessed a mercenary and a Moor,
 Born free from many ties that bind the rest
 Of common faith in Heaven or hope on earth,
 No past with us, no future, — such a spirit
 Shall hold the path from which our stanchest broke,
 Stand firm where every famed precursor fell ?
 My Lapo, I will frankly say, these proofs
 So duly noted of the man's intent
 Are for the doting fools at home, not me.
 The charges here, they may be true or false :
 — What is set down ? Errors and oversights,
 A dallying interchange of courtesies
 With Pisa's General, — all that, hour by hour,
 Puccio's pale discontent has furnished us,
 Of petulant speeches, inconsiderate acts,
 Now overhazard, overcaution now ;
 Even that he loves this lady who believes

She outwits Florence, and whom Florence posted
 By my procurement here, to spy on me,
 Lest I one minute lose her from my sight —
 She who remembering her whole House's fall,
 That nest of traitors strangled in the birth,
 Now labors to make Luria (poor device
 As plain) the instrument of her revenge!
 — That she is ever at his ear to prompt
 Inordinate conceptions of his worth,
 Exorbitant belief in worth's reward,
 And after, when sure disappointment follows,
 Proportionable rage at such a wrong —
 Why, all these reasons, while I urge them most,
 Weigh with me less than least; as nothing weigh.
 Upon that broad man's-heart of his, I go:
 On what I know must be, yet while I live
 Shall never be, because I live and know.
 Brute-force shall not rule Florence! Intellect
 May rule her, bad or good as chance supplies:
 But intellect it shall be, pure if bad,
 And intellect's tradition so kept up!
 Till the good come — 't was intellect that ruled,
 Not brute-force bringing from the battlefield
 The attributes of wisdom, foresight's graces
 We lent it there to lure its grossness on;
 All which it took for earnest and kept safe
 To show against us in our market-place,
 Just as the plumes and tags and swordsman's-gear
 (Fetched from the camp where, at their foolish best,
 When all was done they frightened nobody)
 Perk in our faces in the street, forsooth,
 With our own warrant and allowance. No!
 The whole procedure's overcharged, — its end
 In too strict keeping with the bad first step.
 To conquer Pisa was sheer inspiration?
 Well then, to perish for a single fault,
 Let that be simple justice! There, my Lapo!
 A Moorish front ill suits our Duomo's body:
 Blot it out — and bid Luria's sentence come!

LURIA, who, with DOMIZIA, has entered unobserved at the close of the last phrase, now advances.

Lur. And Luria, Luria, what of Luria now?

Brac. Ah, you so close, sir? Lady Domizia too?
 I said it needs must be a busy moment
 For one like you; that you were now i' the thick
 Of your duties, doubtless, while we idlers sat . . .

Lur. No — in that paper, — it was in that paper
What you were saying!

Brac. Oh — my day's despatch!
I censure you to Florence: will you see?

Lur. See your despatch, your last, for the first time?
Well, if I should, now? For in truth, Domizia,
He would be forced to set about another,
In his sly cool way, the true Florentine,
To mention that important circumstance.
So, while he wrote I should gain time, such time!
Do not send this!

Brac. And wherefore?

Lur. These Lucchese
Are not arrived — they never will arrive!
And I must fight to-day, arrived or not,
And I shall beat Tiburzio, that is sure:
And then will be arriving his Lucchese,
But slowly, oh so slowly, just in time
To look upon my battle from the hills,
Like a late moon, of use to nobody!
And I must break my battle up, send forth,
Surround on this side, hold in check on that.
Then comes to-morrow, we negotiate,
You make me send for fresh instructions home,
— Incompleteness, incompleteness!

Brac. Ah, we scribes!

Why, I had registered that very point,
The non-appearance of our foes' ally,
As a most happy fortune; both at once
Were formidable: singly faced, each falls.

Lur. So, no great battle for my Florentines!
No crowning deed, decisive and complete,
For all of them, the simple as the wise,
Old, young, alike, that do not understand
Our wearisome pedantic art of war,
By which we prove retreat may be success,
Delay — best speed, — half loss, at times, — whole gain:
They want results: as if it were their fault!
And you, with warmest wish to be my friend,
Will not be able now to simply say
“Your servant has performed his task — enough!
You ordered, he has executed: good!
Now walk the streets in holiday attire,
Congratulate your friends, till noon strikes fierce,
Then form bright groups beneath the Duomo's shade!”
No, you will have to argue and explain,

Persuade them, all is not so ill in the end,
Tease, tire them out! Arrive, arrive, Lucchese!

Dom. Well, you will triumph for the past enough,
Whatever be the present chance; no service
Falls to the ground with Florence: she awaits
Her savior, will receive him fittingly.

Lur. Ah, Braccio, you know Florence! Will she, think you, Receive one . . . what means "fittingly receive"?
— Receive compatriots, doubtless — I am none:
And yet Domizia promises so much!

Brac. Kind women still give men a woman's prize.
I know not o'er which gate most boughs will arch,
Nor if the Square will wave red flags or blue.
I should have judged, the fullest of rewards
Our state gave Luria, when she made him chief
Of her whole force, in her best captain's place.

Lur. That, my reward? Florence on my account
Relieved Ser Puccio? — mark you, my reward!
And Puccio's having all the fight's true joy —
Goes here and there, gets close, may fight, himself,
While I must order, stand aloof, o'ersee.
That was my calling, there was my true place!
I should have felt, in some one over me,
Florence impersonate, my visible head,
As I am over Puccio, — taking life
Directly from her eye! They give me you:
But do you cross me, set me half to work?
I enjoy nothing — though I will, for once!
Decide, shall we join battle? may I wait?

Brac. Let us compound the matter; wait till noon:
Then, no arrival, —

Lur. Ah, noon comes too fast!
I wonder, do you guess why I delay
Involuntarily the final blow
As long as possible? Peace follows it!
Florence at peace, and the calm studious heads
Come out again, the penetrating eyes;
As if a spell broke, all's resumed, each art
You boast, more vivid that it slept awhile.
'Gainst the glad heaven, o'er the white palace-front
The interrupted scaffold climbs anew;
The walls are peopled by the painter's brush;
The statue to its niche ascends to dwell.
The present noise and trouble have retired
And left the eternal past to rule once more;
You speak its speech and read its records plain,

Greece lives with you, each Roman breathes your friend :
But Luria — where will then be Luria's place ?

Dom. Highest in honor, for that past's own sake,
Of which his actions, sealing up the sum
By saving all that went before from wreck,
Will range as part, with which be worshipped too.

Lur. Then I may walk and watch you in your streets,
Lead the smooth life my rough life helps no more,
So different, so new, so beautiful —
Nor fear that you will tire to see parade
The club that slew the lion, now that crooks
And shepherd-pipes come into use again ?
For very lone and silent seems my East
In its drear vastness : still it spreads, and still
No Braccios, no Domizias anywhere —
Not ever more ! Well, well, to-day is ours !

Dom. [to BRAC.] Should he not have been one of us ?

Lur. Oh, no !

Not one of you, and so escape the thrill
Of coming into you, of changing thus, —
Feeling a soul grow on me that restricts
The boundless unrest of the savage heart !
The sea heaves up, hangs loaded o'er the land,
Breaks there and buries its tumultuous strength ;
Horror, and silence, and a pause awhile :
Lo, inland glides the gulf-stream, miles away,
In rapture of assent, subdued and still,
'Neath those strange banks, those unimagined skies.
Well, 't is not sure the quiet lasts forever !
Your placid heads still find rough hands new work ;
Some minute's chance — there comes the need of mine :
And, all resolved on, I too hear at last.
Oh, you must find some use for me, Ser Braccio !
You hold my strength ; 't were best dispose of it :
What you created, see that you find food for —
I shall be dangerous else !

Brac. How dangerous, sir ?

Lur. There are so many ways, Domizia warns me,
And one with half the power that I possess,
— Grows very formidable ! Do you doubt ?
Why, first, who holds the army . . .

Dom. While we talk,
Morn wears ; we keep you from your proper place,
The field.

Lur. Nay, to the field I move no more ;
My part is done, and Puccio's may begin :

I cannot trench upon his province longer
 With any face. — You think yourselves so safe?
 Why, see — in concert with Tiburzio, now —
 One could . . .

Dom. A trumpet!

Lur. My Lucchese at last!
 Arrived, as sure as Florence stands! Your leave!

[Springs out.

Dom. How plainly is true greatness characterized
 By such unconscious sport as Luria's here,
 Strength sharing least the secret of itself!
 Be it with head that schemes or hand that acts,
 Such save the world which none but they could save,
 Yet think whate'er they did, that world could do.

Brac. Yes: and how worthy note, that these same great ones
 In hand or head, with such unconsciousness
 And all its due entailed humility,
 Should never shrink, so far as I perceive,
 From taking up whatever tool there be
 Effects the whole world's safety or mishap,
 Into their mild hands as a thing of course!
 The statist finds it natural to lead
 The mob who might as easily lead him —
 The captain marshals troops born skilled in war —
 Statist and captain verily believe!

While we poor scribes . . . you catch me thinking now,
 That I shall in this very letter write

What none of you are able! To it, Lapo!

[DOMIZIA goes.

This last worst, all-affected childish fit
 Of Luria's, this be-praised unconsciousness,
 Convinces me; the past was no child's play:
 It was a man beat Pisa, — not a child.

All's mere dissimulation — to remove
 The fear, he best knows we should entertain.
 The utmost danger was at hand. Is't written?
 Now make a duplicate, lest this should fail,
 And speak your fullest on the other side.

Sec. I noticed he was busily repairing
 My half-effacement of his Duomo sketch,
 And, while he spoke of Florence, turned to it,
 As the Mage Negro king to Christ the babe.
 I judge his childishness the mere relapse
 To boyhood of a man who has worked lately,
 And presently will work, so, meantime, plays:
 Whence, more than ever I believe in him.

Brac. [after a pause.] The sword! At best, the soldier, as he says,

In Florence — the black face, the barbarous name,
 For Italy to boast her show of the age,
 Her man of men! — To Florence with each letter!

ACT II.

NOON.

Dom. Well, Florence, shall I reach thee, pierce thy heart
 Through all its safeguards? Hate is said to help —
 Quicken the eye, invigorate the arm;
 And this my hate, made up of many hates,
 Might stand in scorn of visible instrument,
 And will thee dead: yet do I trust it not.
 Nor man's devices nor Heaven's memory
 Of wickedness forgot on earth so soon,
 But thy own nature, — hell and thee I trust,
 To keep thee constant in that wickedness,
 Where my revenge may meet thee. Turn aside
 A single step, for gratitude or shame, —
 Grace but this Luria, — this wild mass of rage
 I have prepared to launch against thee now, —
 With other payment than thy noblest found, —
 Give his desert for once its due reward, —
 And past thee would my sure destruction roll.
 But thou, who mad'st our House thy sacrifice,
 It cannot be thou wilt except this Moor
 From the accustomed fate of zeal and truth:
 Thou wilt deny his looked-for recompense,
 And then — I reach thee. Old and trained, my sire
 Could bow down on his quiet broken heart,
 Die awe-struck and submissive, when at last
 The strange blow came for the expected wreath;
 And Porzio passed in blind bewilderment
 To exile, never to return, — they say,
 Perplexed in his frank simple honest soul,
 As if some natural law had changed, — how else
 Could Florence, on plain fact pronouncing thus,
 Judge Porzio's actions worthy such reward?
 But Berto, with the ever-passionate pulse,
 — Oh that long night, its dreadful hour on hour,
 In which no way of getting his fair fame
 From their inexplicable charges free,
 Was found, save pouring forth the impatient blood
 To show its color whether false or no!

My brothers never had a friend like me
 Close in their need to watch the time, then speak,
 — Burst with a wakening laughter on their dream,
 Cry, " Florence was all falseness, so, false here ! "
 And show them what a simple task remained —
 To leave dreams, rise, and punish in God's name
 The city wedded to the wickedness.
 None stood by them as I by Luria stand.
 So, when the stranger cheated of his due
 Turns on thee as his rapid nature bids,
 Then, Florence, think, a hireling at thy throat
 For the first outrage, think who bore thy last,
 Yet mutely in forlorn obedience died !
 He comes — his friend — black faces in the camp
 Where moved those peerless brows and eyes of old.

Enter LURIA and HUSAIN.

Well, and the movement — is it as you hope ?
 'T is Lucca ?

Lur. Ah, the Pisan trumpet merely !
 Tiburzio's envoy, I must needs receive.

Dom. Whom I withdraw before ; though if I lingered
 You could not wonder, for my time fleets fast.
 The overtaking night brings such reward !
 And where will then be room for me ? Yet, praised,
 Remember who was first to promise praise,
 And envy those who also can perform !

[Goes

Lur. This trumpet from the Pisans ? —

Hus.

In the camp ;

A very noble presence — Braccio's visage
 On Puccio's body — calm and fixed and good ;
 A man I seem as I had seen before :
 Most like, it was some statue had the face.

Lur. Admit him ! This will prove the last delay.

Hus. Ay, friend, go on, and die thou going on !
 Thou heard'st what the grave woman said but now :
 To-night rewards thee. That is well to hear ;
 But stop not therefore : hear it, and go on !

Lur. Oh, their reward and triumph and the rest
 They round me in the ears with, all day long ?
 All that, I never take for earnest, friend !
 Well would it suit us, — their triumphal arch
 Or storied pillar, — thee and me, the Moors !
 But gratitude in those Italian eyes —
 That, we shall get ?

Hus.

It is too cold an air.
 Our sun rose out of yonder mound of mist :
 Where is he now ? So, I trust none of them.

Lur. Truly ?

Hus. I doubt and fear. There stands a wall
"Twixt our expansive and explosive race,
And those absorbing, concentrating men.
They use thee.

Lur. And I feel it, Husain ! yes,
And care not — yes, an alien force like mine
Is only called to play its part outside
Their different nature ; where its sole use seems
To fight with and keep off an adverse force,
As alien, — which repelled, mine too withdraws :
Inside, they know not what to do with me.
Thus I have told them laughingly and oft,
But long since am prepared to learn the worst.

Hus. What is the worst ?

Lur. I will forestall them, Husain,
Will speak the destiny they dare not speak —
Banish myself before they find the heart.
I will be first to say, "The work rewards !
I know, for all your praise, my use is over,
So may it prove ! — meanwhile 't is best I go,
Go carry safe my memories of you all
To other scenes of action, newer lands." —
Thus leaving them confirmed in their belief
They would not easily have tired of me.
You think this hard to say ?

Hus. Say or not say,
So thou but go, so they but let thee go !
This hating people, that hate each the other,
And in one blandness to us Moors unite —
Locked each to each like slippery snakes, I say,
Which still in all their tangles, hissing tongue
And threatening tail, ne'er do each other harm ;
While any creature of a better blood,
They seem to fight for, while they circle safe
And never touch it, — pines without a wound,
Withers away beside their eyes and breath.
See thou, if Puccio come not safely out
Of Braccio's grasp, this Braccio sworn his foe,
As Braccio safely from Domizia's toils
Who hates him most ! But thou, the friend of all,
. . . Come out of them !

Lur. The Pisan trumpet now !

Hus. Breathe free — it is an enemy, no friend ! [Goes.

Lur. He keeps his instincts, no new culture mars
Their perfect use in him ; just so the brutes

Rest not, are anxious without visible cause,
 When change is in the elements at work,
 Which man's trained senses fail to apprehend.
 But here, — he takes the distant chariot-wheel
 For thunder, festal flame for lightning's flash,
 The finer traits of cultivated life
 For treachery and malevolence: I see!

Enter TIBURZIO.

Lur. Quick, sir, your message! I but wait your message
 To sound the charge. You bring no overture
 For truce? — I would not, for your General's sake,
 You spoke of truce: a time to fight is come,
 And, whatsoever the fight's event, he keeps
 His honest soldier's-name to beat me with,
 Or leaves me all himself to beat, I trust!

Tib. I am Tiburzio.

Lur. You? 'Tis — yes . . . Tiburzio!
 You were the last to keep the ford i' the valley
 From Puccio, when I threw in succors there!
 Why, I was on the heights — through the defile
 Ten minutes after, when the prey was lost!
 You wore an open skull-cap with a twist
 Of water-reeds — the plume being hewn away;
 While I drove down my battle from the heights,
 I saw with my own eyes!

Tib. And you are Luria
 Who sent my cohort, that laid down its arms
 In error of the battle-signal's sense,
 Back safely to me at the critical time —
 One of a hundred deeds. I know you! Therefore
 To none but you could I . . .

Lur. No truce, Tiburzio!

Tib. Luria, you know the peril imminent
 On Pisa, — that you have us in the toils,
 Us her last safeguard, all that intercepts
 The rage of her implacablest of foes
 From Pisa: if we fall to-day, she falls.
 Though Lucca will arrive, yet, 't is too late.
 You have so plainly here the best of it,
 That you must feel, brave soldier as you are,
 How dangerous we grow in this extreme,
 How truly formidable by despair.
 Still, probabilities should have their weight:
 The extreme chance is ours, but, that chance failing,
 You win this battle. Wherefore say I this?
 To be well apprehended when I add,

This danger absolutely comes from you.
Were you, who threaten thus, a Florentine . . .

Lur. Sir, I am nearer Florence than her sons.
I can, and have perhaps obliged the State,
Nor paid a mere son's duty.

Tib. Even so.
Were you the son of Florence, yet endued
With all your present nobleness of soul,
No question, what I must communicate
Would not detach you from her.

Lur. Me, detach ?

Tib. Time urges. You will ruin presently
Pisa, you never knew, for Florence' sake
You think you know. I have from time to time
Made prize of certain secret missives sent
From Braccio here, the Commissary, home :
And knowing Florence otherwise, I piece
The entire chain out, from these its scattered links.
Your trial occupies the Signory ;
They sit in judgment on your conduct now.
When men at home inquire into the acts
Which in the field e'en foes appreciate . . .
Brief, they are Florentines ! You, saving them,
Seek but the sure destruction saviors find.

Lur. Tiburzio !

Tib. All the wonder is of course.
I am not here to teach you, nor direct,
Only to loyally apprise — scarce that.
This is the latest letter, sealed and safe,
As it left here an hour ago. One way
Of two thought free to Florence, I command.
The duplicate is on its road ; but this, —
Read it, and then I shall have more to say.

Lur. Florence !

Tib. Now, were yourself a Florentine,
This letter, let it hold the worst it can,
Would be no reason you should fall away.
The mother city is the mother still,
And recognition of the children's service,
Her own affair ; reward — there's no reward !
But you are bound by quite another tie.
Nor nature shows, nor reason, why at first
A foreigner, born friend to all alike,
Should give himself to any special State
More than another, stand by Florence' side
Rather than Pisa ; 't is as fair a city

You war against, as that you fight for — famed
 As well as she in story, graced no less
 With noble heads and patriotic hearts :
 Nor to a stranger's eye would either cause,
 Stripped of the cumulative loves and hates
 Which take importance from familiar view,
 Stand as the right and sole to be upheld.
 Therefore, should the preponderating gift
 Of love and trust, Florence was first to throw,
 Which made you hers, not Pisa's, void the scale, —
 Old ties dissolving, things resume their place,
 And all begins again. Break seal and read !
 At least let Pisa offer for you now !
 And I, as a good Pisan, shall rejoice,
 Though for myself I lose, in gaining you,
 This last fight and its opportunity ;
 The chance it brings of saving Pisa yet,
 Or in the turn of battle dying so
 That shame should want its extreme bitterness.

Lur. Tiburzio, you that fight for Pisa now
 As I for Florence . . . say my chance were yours !
 You read this letter, and you find . . . no, no !
 Too mad !

Tib. I read the letter, find they purpose
 When I have crushed their foe, to crush me : well ?

Lur. You, being their captain, what is it you do ?

Tib. Why, as it is, all cities are alike ;
 As Florence pays you, Pisa will pay me.
 I shall be as belied, whate'er the event,
 As you, or more : my weak head, they will say,
 Prompted this last expedient, my faint heart
 Entailed on them indelible disgrace,
 Both which defects ask proper punishment.
 Another tenure of obedience, mine !
 You are no son of Pisa's : break and read !

Lur. And act on what I read ? What act were fit ?
 If the firm-fixed foundation of my faith
 In Florence, who to me stands for mankind,
 — If that break up and, disimprisoning
 From the abyss . . . Ah friend, it cannot be !
 You may be very sage, yet — all the world
 Having to fail, or your sagacity,
 You do not wish to find yourself alone !
 What would the world be worth ? Whose love be sure ?
 The world remains : you are deceived !

Tib. Your hand !

I lead the vanguard. — If you fall, beside,
 The better : I am left to speak ! For me,
 This was my duty, nor would I rejoice
 If I could help, it misses its effect ;
 And after all you will look gallantly
 Found dead here with that letter in your breast.

Lur. Tiburzio — I would see these people once
 And test them ere I answer finally !
 At your arrival let the trumpet sound :
 If mine return not then the wonted cry
 It means that I believe — am Pisa's !

Tib. Well ! [Goes.

Lur. My heart will have it he speaks true ! My blood
 Beats close to this Tiburzio as a friend.
 If he had stepped into my watch-tent, night
 And the wild desert full of foes around,
 I should have broke the bread and given the salt
 Secure, and, when my hour of watch was done,
 Taken my turn to sleep between his knees
 Safe in the untroubled brow and honest cheek.
 Oh world, where all things pass and nought abides,
 Oh life, the long mutation — is it so ?
 Is it with life as with the body's change ?
 — Where, e'en though better follow, good must pass,
 Nor manhood's strength can mate with boyhood's grace,
 Nor age's wisdom, in its turn, find strength,
 But silently the first gift dies away,
 And though the new stays, never both at once.
 Life's time of savage instinct o'er with me,
 It fades and dies away, past trusting more,
 As if to punish the ingratitude
 With which I turned to grow in these new lights,
 And learned to look with European eyes.
 Yet it is better, this cold certain way,
 Where Braccio's brow tells nothing, Puccio's mouth,
 Domizia's eyes reject the searcher : yes !
 For on their calm sagacity I lean,
 Their sense of right, deliberate choice of good,
 Sure, as they know my deeds, they deal with me.
 Yes, that is better — that is best of all !
 Such faith stays when mere wild belief would go.
 Yes — when the desert creature's heart, at fault
 Amid the scattering tempest's pillared sands,
 Betrays its step into the pathless drift —
 The calm instructed eye of man holds fast
 By the sole bearing of the visible star,

Sure that when slow the whirling wreck subside,
 The boundaries, lost now, shall be found again, —
 The palm-trees and the pyramid over all.
 Yes : I trust Florence : Pisa is deceived.

Enter BRACCIO, PUCCIO, and DOMIZIA.

Brac. Noon's at an end : no Lucca ? You must fight.

Lur. Do you remember ever, gentle friends,
 I am no Florentine ?

Dom. It is yourself
 Who still are forcing us, importunately,
 To bear in mind what else we should forget.

Lur. For loss ! — for what I lose in being none !
 No shrewd man, such as you yourselves respect,
 But would remind you of the stranger's loss
 In natural friends and advocates at home,
 Hereditary loves, even rivalships
 With precedent for honor and reward.
 Still, there's a gain, too ! If you take it so,
 The stranger's lot has special gain as well.
 Do you forget there was my own far East
 I might have given away myself to, once,
 As now to Florence, and for such a gift,
 Stood there like a descended deity ?
 There, worship waits us : what is it waits here ?

[Shows the letter.

See ! Chance has put into my hand the means
 Of knowing what I earn, before I work.
 Should I fight better, should I fight the worse,
 With payment palpably before me ? See !
 Here lies my whole reward ! Best learn it now
 Or keep it for the end's entire delight ?

Brac. If you serve Florence as the vulgar serve,
 For swordsman's-pay alone, — break seal and read !
 In that case, you will find your full desert.

Lur. Give me my one last happy moment, friends !
 You need me now, and all the graciousness
 This letter can contain will hardly balance
 The after-feeling that you need no more.
 This moment . . . oh, the East has use with you !
 Its sword still flashes — is not flung aside
 With the past praise, in a dark corner yet !
 How say you ? 'Tis not so with Florentines
 Captains of yours : for them, the ended war
 Is but a first step to the peace begun :
 He who did well in war, just earns the right
 To begin doing well in peace, you know :

And certain my precursors, — would not such
 Look to themselves in such a chance as mine,
 Secure the ground they trod upon, perhaps?
 For I have heard, by fits, or seemed to hear,
 Of strange mishap, mistake, ingratitude,
 Treachery even. Say that one of you
 Surmised this letter carried what might turn
 To harm hereafter, cause him prejudice:
 What would he do?

Dom. [hastily.] Thank God and take revenge!
 Hurl her own force against the city straight!
 And, even at the moment when the foe
 Sounded defiance . . .

[TIBURZIO'S trumpet sounds in the distance.]

Lur. Ah, you Florentines!
 So would you do? Wisely for you, no doubt!
 My simple Moorish instinct bids me clench
 The obligation you relieve me from,
 Still deeper! [To PUC.] Sound our answer, I should say,
 And thus: — [tearing the paper.] — The battle! That solves every doubt.

ACT III.

AFTERNOON.

Puccio, as making a report to JACOPO.

Puc. And here, your captain must report the rest;
 For, as I say, the main engagement over
 And Luria's special part in it performed,
 How could a subaltern like me expect
 Leisure or leave to occupy the field
 And glean what dropped from his wide harvesting?
 I thought, when Lucca at the battle's end
 Came up, just as the Pisan centre broke,
 That Luria would detach me and prevent
 The flying Pisans seeking what they found,
 Friends in the rear, a point to rally by.
 But no, more honorable proved my post!
 I had the august captive to escort
 Safe to our camp; some other could pursue,
 Fight, and be famous; gentler chance was mine —
 Tiburzio's wounded spirit must be soothed!
 He's in the tent there.

Jac.

Is the substance down?

I write — “The vanguard beaten and both wings
 In full retreat, Tiburzio prisoner” —
 And now, — “That they fell back and formed again
 On Lucca’s coming.” Why then, after all,
 ’Tis half a victory, no conclusive one?

Puc. Two operations where a sole had served.

Jac. And Luria’s fault was —?

Puc. Oh, for fault — not much!
 He led the attack, a thought impetuously,
 — There’s commonly more prudence; now, he seemed
 To hurry measures, otherwise well judged.
 By over-concentrating strength at first
 Against the enemy’s van, both wings escaped:
 That’s reparable, yet it is a fault.

Enter BRACCIO.

Jac. As good as a full victory to Florence,
 With the advantage of a fault beside —
 What is it, Puccio? — that by pressing forward
 With too impetuous . . .

Brac. The report anon!
 Thanks, sir — you have elsewhere a charge, I know.

[PUCCIO goes

There’s nothing done but I would do again;
 Yet, Lapo, it may be the past proves nothing,
 And Luria has kept faithful to the close.

Jac. I was for waiting.

Brac. Yes: so was not I.
 He could not choose but tear that letter — true!
 Still, certain of his tones, I mind, and looks: —
 You saw, too, with a fresher soul than I.
 So, Porzio seemed an injured man, they say!
 Well, I have gone upon the broad, sure ground.

Enter LURIA, PUCCIO, and DOMIZIA.

Lur. [to PUC.] Say, at his pleasure I will see Tiburzio!
 All’s at his pleasure.

Dom. [to LUR.] Were I not forewarned
 You would reject, as you do constantly,
 Praise, — I might tell you how you have deserved
 Of Florence by this last and crowning feat:
 But words offend.

Lur. Nay, you may praise me now.
 I want instruction every hour, I find,
 On points where once I saw least need of it;
 And praise, I have been used to slight perhaps,
 Seems scarce so easily dispensed with now.
 After a battle, half one’s strength is gone;

The glorious passion in us once appeased,
 Our reason's calm cold dreadful voice begins.
 All justice, power and beauty scarce appear
 Monopolized by Florence, as of late,
 To me, the stranger: you, no doubt, may know
 Why Pisa needs must bear her rival's yoke.
 And peradventure I grow nearer you,
 For I, too, want to know and be assured.
 When a cause ceases to reward itself,
 Its friend seeks fresh sustainments; praise is one,
 And here stand you — you, lady, praise me well.
 But yours — (your pardon) — is unlearned praise.
 To the motive, the endeavor, the heart's self,
 Your quick sense looks: you crown and call aright
 The soul o' the purpose, ere 't is shaped as act,
 Takes flesh i' the world, and clothes itself a king.
 But when the act comes, stands for what 't is worth,
 — Here 's Puccio, the skilled soldier, he 's my judge!
 Was all well, Puccio?

Puc. All was . . . must be well:
 If we beat Lucca presently, as doubtless . . .
 — No, there 's no doubt, we must — all was well done.

Lur. In truth? Still, you are of the trade, my Puccio!
 You have the fellow-craftsman's sympathy.
 There 's none cares, like a fellow of the craft,
 For the all-unestimated sum of pains
 That go to a success the world can see:
 They praise then, but the best they never know
 — While you know! So, if envy mix with it,
 Hate even, still the bottom-praise of all,
 Whatever be the dregs, that drop 's pure gold!
 — For nothing 's like it; nothing else records
 Those daily, nightly drippings in the dark
 Of the heart's blood, the world lets drop away
 Forever — so, pure gold that praise must be!
 And I have yours, my soldier! yet the best
 Is still to come. There 's one looks on apart
 Whom all refers to, failure or success;
 What 's done might be our best, our utmost work,
 And yet inadequate to serve his need.
 Here 's Braccio now, for Florence — here 's our service —
 Well done for us, seems it well done for him?
 His chosen engine, tasked to its full strength
 Answers the end? Should he have chosen higher?
 Do we help Florence, now our best is wrought?

Brac. This battle, with the foregone services,
 Saves Florence.

Lur. Why then, all is very well !
 Here am I in the middle of my friends,
 Who know me and who love me, one and all !
 And yet . . . 't is like . . . this instant while I speak
 Is like the turning-moment of a dream
 When . . . Ah, you are not foreigners like me !
 Well then, one always dreams of friends at home ;
 And always comes, I say, the turning-point
 When something changes in the friendly eyes
 That love and look on you . . . so slight, so slight . . .
 And yet it tells you they are dead and gone,
 Or changed and enemies, for all their words,
 And all is mockery and a maddening show.
 You now, so kind here, all you Florentines,
 What is it in your eyes . . . those lips, those brows . . .
 Nobody spoke it, yet I know it well !
 Come now — this battle saves you, all 's at end,
 Your use of me is o'er, for good, for ill, —
 Come now, what 's done against me, while I speak,
 In Florence ? Come ! I feel it in my blood,
 My eyes, my hair, a voice is in my ears
 That spite of all this smiling and soft speech
 You are betraying me ! What is it you do ?
 Have it your way, and think my use is over —
 Think you are saved and may throw off the mask —
 Have it my way, and think more work remains
 Which I could do, — so, show you fear me not !
 Or prudent be, or daring, as you choose,
 But tell me — tell what I refused to know
 At noon, lest heart should fail me ! Well ? That letter ?
 My fate is sealed at Florence ! What is it ?

Brac. Sir, I shall not deny what you divine.
 It is no novelty for innocence
 To be suspected, but a privilege :
 The after certain compensation comes.
 Charges, I say not whether false or true,
 Have been preferred against you some time since,
 Which Florence was bound, plainly, to receive,
 And which are therefore undergoing now
 The due investigation. That is all.
 I doubt not but your innocence will prove
 Apparent and illustrious, as to me,
 To them this evening, when the trial ends.

Lur. My trial ?

Dom. Florence, Florence to the end,
 My whole heart thanks thee !

Puc. [to BRAC.] What is "trial," sir?

It was not for a trial — surely, no —
 I furnished you those notes from time to time?
 I held myself aggrieved — I am a man —
 And I might speak, — ay, and speak mere truth, too,
 And yet not mean at bottom of my heart
 What should assist a — trial, do you say?
 You should have told me!

Dom. Nay, go on, go on!
 His sentence! Do they sentence him? What is it?
 The block — wheel?

Brac. Sentence there is none as yet,
 Nor shall I give my own opinion now
 Of what it should be, or is like to be.
 When it is passed, applaud or disapprove!
 Up to that point, what is there to impugn?

Lur. They are right, then, to try me?

Brac. I assert,
 Maintain and justify the absolute right
 Of Florence to do all she can have done
 In this procedure, — standing on her guard,
 Receiving even services like yours
 With utmost fit suspicious wariness.
 In other matters, keep the mummery up!
 Take all the experiences of all the world,
 Each knowledge that broke through a heart to life,
 Each reasoning which, to reach, burnt out a brain,
 — In other cases, know these, warrant these,
 And then dispense with these — 't is very well!
 Let friend trust friend, and love demand love's like,
 And gratitude be claimed for benefits, —
 There's grace in that, — and when the fresh heart breaks,
 The new brain proves a ruin, what of them?
 Where is the matter of one moth the more
 Singed in the candle, at a summer's end?
 But Florence is no simple John or James
 To have his toy, his fancy, his conceit
 That he's the one excepted man by fate,
 And, when fate shows him he's mistaken there,
 Die with all good men's praise, and yield his place
 To Paul and George intent to try their chance!
 Florence exists because these pass away.
 She's a contrivance to supply a type
 Of man, which men's deficiencies refuse;
 She binds so many, that she grows out of them —
 Stands steady o'er their numbers, though they change

And pass away — there's always what upholds,
 Always enough to fashion the great show.
 As see, yon hanging city, in the sun,
 Of shapely cloud substantially the same!
 A thousand vapors rise and sink again,
 Are interfused, and live their life and die, —
 Yet ever hangs the steady show i' the air,
 Under the sun's straight influence: that is well,
 That is worth heaven should hold, and God should bless!
 And so is Florence, — the unseen sun above,
 Which draws and holds suspended all of us,
 Binds transient vapors into a single cloud
 Differing from each and better than they all.
 And shall she dare to stake this permanence
 On any one man's faith? Man's heart is weak,
 And its temptations many: let her prove
 Each servant to the very uttermost
 Before she grant him her reward, I say!

Dom. And as for hearts she chances to mistake,
 Wronged hearts, not destined to receive reward,
 Though they deserve it, did she only know!
 — What should she do for these?

Brae. What does she not?
 Say, that she gives them but herself to serve!
 Here's Luria — what had profited his strength,
 When half an hour of sober fancying
 Had shown him step by step the uselessness
 Of strength exerted for strength's proper sake?
 But the truth is, she did create that strength,
 Draw to the end the corresponding means.
 The world is wide — are we the only men?
 Oh, for the time, the social purpose' sake,
 Use words agreed on, bandy epithets,
 Call any man the sole great wise and good!
 But shall we therefore, standing by ourselves,
 Insult our souls and God with the same speech?
 There, swarm the ignoble thousands under him:
 What marks us from the hundreds and the tens?
 Florence took up, turned all one way the soul
 Of Luria with its fires, and here he glows!
 She takes me out of all the world as him,
 Fixing my coldness till like ice it checks
 The fire! So, Braccio, Luria, which is best?

Lur. Ah, brave me? And is this indeed the way
 To gain your good word and sincere esteem?
 Am I the baited animal that must turn

And fight his baiters to deserve their praise?
 Obedience is mistake then? Be it so!
 Do you indeed remember I stand here
 The captain of the conquering army, — mine —
 With all your tokens, praise and promise, ready
 To show for what their names meant when you gave,
 Not what you style them now you take away?
 If I call in my troops to arbitrate,
 And dash the first enthusiastic thrill
 Of victory with this you menace now —
 Commend to the instinctive popular sense,
 My story first, your comment afterward, —
 Will they take, think you, part with you or me?
 If I say — I, the laborer they saw work,
 Ending my work, ask pay, and find my lords
 Have all this while provided silently
 Against the day of pay and proving faith,
 By what you call my sentence that's to come —
 Will friends advise I wait complacently?
 If I meet Florence half-way at their head,
 What will you do, my mild antagonist?

Brac. I will rise up like fire, proud and triumphant
 That Florence knew you thoroughly and by me,
 And so was saved. "See, Italy," I'll say,
 The crown of our precautions! Here's a man
 Was far advanced, just touched on the belief
 Less subtle cities had accorded long;
 But we were wiser: at the end comes this!"
 And from that minute, where is Luria? Lost!
 The very stones of Florence cry against
 The all-exacting, nought-enduring fool,
 Who thus resents her first probation, flouts
 As if he, only, shone and cast no shade,
 He, only, walked the earth with privilege
 Against suspicion, free where angels fear:
 He, for the first inquisitive mother's-word,
 Must turn, and stand on his defence, forsooth!
 Reward? You will not be worth punishment!

Lur. And Florence knew me thus! Thus I have lived, —
 And thus you, with the clear fine intellect,
 Braccio, the cold acute instructed mind,
 Out of the stir, so calm and unconfused,
 Reported me — how could you otherwise!
 Ay? — and what dropped from you, just now, moreover?
 Your information, Puccio? — Did your skill,
 Your understanding sympathy approve

Such a report of me? Was this the end?
 Or is even this the end? Can I stop here?
 You, lady, with the woman's stand apart,
 The heart to see with, past man's brain and eyes,
 . . . I cannot fathom why you should destroy
 The unoffending one, you call your friend —
 Still, lessoned by the good examples here
 Of friendship, 't is but natural I ask —
 Had you a further aim, in aught you urged,
 Than your friend's profit — in all those instances
 Of perfidy, all Florence wrought of wrong —
 All I remember now for the first time?

Dom. I am a daughter of the Traversari,
 Sister of Porzio and of Berto both,
 So, have foreseen all that has come to pass.
 I knew the Florence that could doubt their faith,
 Must needs mistrust a stranger's — dealing them
 Punishment, would deny him his reward.
 And I believed, the shame they bore and died,
 He would not bear, but live and fight against —
 Seeing he was of other stuff than they.

Lur. Hear them! All these against one foreigner!
 And all this while, where is, in the whole world,
 To his good faith a single witness?

Tiburzio [who has entered unseen during the preceding dialogue]. Here!

Thus I bear witness, not in word but deed.
 I live for Pisa; she's not lost to-day
 By many chances — much prevents from that!
 Her army has been beaten, I am here,
 But Lucca comes at last, one happy chance!
 I rather would see Pisa three times lost
 Than saved by any traitor, even by you;
 The example of a traitor's happy fortune
 Would bring more evil in the end than good; —
 Pisa rejects the traitor, craves yourself!
 I, in her name, resign forthwith to you
 My charge, — the highest office, sword and shield!
 You shall not, by my counsel, turn on Florence
 Your army, give her calumny that ground —
 Nor bring one soldier: be you all we gain!
 And all she'll lose, — a head to deck some bridge,
 And save the cost o' the crown should deck the head.
 Leave her to perish in her perfidy,
 Plague-stricken and stripped naked to all eyes,
 A proverb and a by-word in all mouths!

Go you to Pisa! Florence is my place —
 Leave me to tell her of the rectitude,
 I, from the first, told Pisa, knowing it.
 To Pisa!

Dom. Ah my Braccio, are you caught?

Brac. Puccio, good soldier and good citizen,
 Whom I have ever kept beneath my eye,
 Ready as fit, to serve in this event
 Florence, who clear foretold it from the first —
 Through me, she gives you the command and charge
 She takes, through me, from him who held it late!
 A painful trial, very sore, was yours:
 All that could draw out, marshal in array
 The selfish passions 'gainst the public good —
 Sights, scorns, neglects, were heaped on you to bear:
 And ever you did bear and bow the head!
 It had been sorry trial, to precede
 Your feet, hold up the promise of reward
 For luring gleam; your footsteps kept the track
 Through dark and doubt: take all the light at once!
 Trial is over, consummation shines;
 Well have you served, as well henceforth command!

Puc. No, no . . . I dare not! I am grateful, glad;
 But Luria — you shall understand he's wronged:
 And he's my captain — this is not the way
 We soldiers climb to fortune: think again!
 The sentence is not even passed, beside!
 I dare not: where's the soldier could?

Lur. Now, Florence —

Is it to be? You will know all the strength
 O' the savage — to your neck the proof must go?
 You will prove the brute nature? Ah, I see!
 The savage plainly is impassible —
 He keeps his calm way through insulting words,
 Sarcastic looks, sharp gestures — one of which
 Would stop you, fatal to your finer sense,
 But if he stolidly advance, march mute
 Without a mark upon his callous hide,
 Through the mere brushwood you grow angry with,
 And leave the tatters of your flesh upon,
 — You have to learn that when the true bar comes,
 The murk mid-forest, the grand obstacle,
 Which when you reach, you give the labor up,
 Nor dash on, but lie down composed before,
 — He goes against it, like the brute he is:
 It falls before him, or he dies in his course.

I kept my course through past ingratitude :
 I saw — it does seem, now, as if I saw,
 Could not but see, those insults as they fell,
 — Ay, let them glance from off me, very like,
 Laughing, perhaps, to think the quality
 You grew so bold on, while you so despised
 The Moor's dull mute inapprehensive mood,
 Was saving you : I bore and kept my course.
 Now real wrong fronts me : see if I succumb !
 Florence withstands me ? I will punish her.

At night my sentence will arrive, you say.
 Till then I cannot, if I would, rebel — Unauthorized to lay my office down,
 Retaining my full power to will and do :
 After — it is to see. Tiburzio, thanks !
 Go ; you are free : join Lucca ! I suspend
 All further operations till to-night.
 Thank you, and for the silence most of all !
 [To BRAC.] Let my complacent bland accuser go
 Carry his self-approving head and heart
 Safe through the army which would trample him
 Dead in a moment at my word or sign !
 Go, sir, to Florence ; tell friends what I say —
 That while I wait my sentence, theirs waits them !
 [To DOM.] You, lady, — you have black Italian eyes !
 I would be generous if I might : oh, 'yes —
 For I remember how so oft you seemed Inclined at heart to break the barrier down
 Which Florence finds God built between us both.
 Alas, for generosity ! this hour
 Asks retribution : bear it as you may,
 I must — the Moor — the savage, — pardon you !
 Puccio, my trusty soldier, see them forth !

ACT IV.

EVENING.

Enter PUCCIO and JACOPO.

Puc. What Luria will do ? Ah, 't is yours, fair sir,
 Your and your subtle-witted master's part,
 To tell me that ; I tell you what he can.

Jac. Friend, you mistake my station : I observe
 The game, watch how my betters play, no more.

Puc. But mankind are not pieces — there's your fault !
 You cannot push them, and, the first move made,
 Lean back and study what the next shall be,
 In confidence that, when 't is fixed upon,
 You find just where you left them, blacks and whites :
 Men go on moving when your hand's away.
 You build, I notice, firm on Luria's faith
 This whole time, — firmlier than I choose to build,
 Who never doubted it — of old, that is —
 With Luria in his ordinary mind.
 But now, oppression makes the wise man mad :
 How do I know he will not turn and stand
 And hold his own against you, as he may ?
 Suppose he but withdraw to Pisa — well, —
 Then, even if all happen to your wish,
 Which is a chance . . .

Jac. Nay — 't was an oversight,
 Not waiting till the proper warrant came :
 You could not take what was not ours to give.
 But when at night the sentence really comes,
 Our city authorizes past dispute
 Luria's removal and transfers the charge,
 You will perceive your duty and accept ?

Puc. Accept what ? muster-rolls of soldiers' names ?
 An army upon paper ? I want men,
 The hearts as well as hands — and where's a heart
 But beats with Luria, in the multitude
 I come from walking through by Luria's side ?
 You gave them Luria, set him thus to grow,
 Head-like, upon their trunk ; one heart feeds both,
 They feel him there, live twice, and well know why.
 — For they do know, if you are ignorant,
 Who kept his own place and respected theirs,
 Managed their sweat, yet never spared his blood.
 All was your act : another might have served —
 There's peradventure no such dearth of heads —
 But you chose Luria — so, they grew one flesh,
 And now, for nothing they can understand,
 Luria removed, off is to roll the head ;
 The body's mine — much I shall do with it !

Jac. That's at the worst.

Puc. No — at the best, it is !
 Best, do you hear ? I saw them by his side.
 Only we two with Luria in the camp
 Are left that keep the secret ? You think that ?
 Hear what I know : from rear to van, no heart

But felt the quiet patient hero there
 Was wronged, nor in the moveless ranks an eye
 But glancing told its fellow the whole story
 Of that convicted silent knot of spies
 Who passed through them to Florence ; they might pass —
 No breast but gladlier beat when free of such !
 Our troops will catch up Luria, close him round,
 Bear him to Florence as their natural lord,
 Partake his fortune, live or die with him.

Jac. And by mistake catch up along with him
 Puccio, no doubt, compelled in self despite
 To still continue second in command !

Puc. No, sir, no second nor so fortunate !
 Your tricks succeed with me too well for that !
 I am as you have made me, live and die
 To serve your end — a mere trained fighting-hack,
 With words, you laugh at while they leave your mouth,
 For my life's rule and ordinance of God !
 I have to do my duty, keep my faith,
 And earn my praise, and guard against my blame,
 As I was trained. I shall accept your charge, .
 And fight against one better than myself,
 Spite of my heart's conviction of his worth —
 That, you may count on ! — just as hitherto
 I have gone on, persuaded I was wronged,
 Slighted, insulted, terms we learn by rote, —
 All because Luria superseded me —
 Because the better nature, fresh-inspired,
 Mounted above me to its proper place !
 What mattered all the kindly graciousness,
 The cordial brother's-bearing ? This was clear —
 I, once the captain, now was subaltern,
 And so must keep complaining like a fool !
 Go, take the curse of a lost soul, I say !
 You neither play your puppets to the end,
 Nor treat the real man, — for his realness' sake
 Thrust rudely in their place, — with such regard
 As might console them for their altered rank.
 Me, the mere steady soldier, you depose
 For Luria, and here's all your pet deserves !
 Of what account, then, is your laughing-stock ?
 One word for all : whatever Luria does,
 — If backed by his indignant troops he turn,
 Revenge himself, and Florence go to ground, —
 Or, for a signal everlasting shame,
 He pardon you, simply seek better friends,
 Side with the Pisans and Lucchese for change

— And if I, pledged to ingrates past belief,
Dare fight against a man such fools call false,
Who, inasmuch as he was true, fights me, —
Whichever way he win, he wins for worth,
For every soldier, for all true and good!
Sir, chronicling the rest, omit not this!

As they go, enter LURIA and HUSAIN.

Hus. Saw'st thou? — For they are gone! The world lies bare
Before thee, to be tasted, felt and seen
Like what it is, now Florence goes away!
Thou livest now, with men art man again!
Those Florentines were all to thee of old;
But Braccio, but Domizia, gone is each,
There lie beneath thee thine own multitudes!
Saw'st thou?

Lur. I saw.

Hus. Then, hold thy course, my king!
The years return. Let thy heart have its way:
Ah, they would play with thee as with all else,
Turn thee to use, and fashion thee anew,
Find out God's fault in thee as in the rest?
Oh watch, oh listen only to these fiends
Once at their occupation! Ere we know,
The free great heaven is shut, their stifling pall
Drops till it frets the very tingling hair,
So weighs it on our head, — and, for the earth,
Our common earth is tethered up and down,
Over and across — “here shalt thou move,” they cry!

Lur. Ay, Husain?

Hus. So have they spoiled all beside!
So stands a man girt round with Florentines,
Priests, graybeards, Braccios, women, boys and spies,
All in one tale, all singing the same song,
How thou must house, and live at bed and board,
Take pledge and give it, go their every way,
Breathe to their measure, make thy blood beat time
With theirs — or, all is nothing — thou art lost —
A savage, how shouldst thou perceive as they?
Feel glad to stand 'neath God's close naked hand!
Look up to it! Why, down they pull thy neck,
Lest it crush thee, who feel'st it and wouldst kiss,
Without their priests that needs must glove it first,
Lest peradventure flesh offend thy lip.
Love woman! Why, a very beast thou art!
Thou must . . .

Lur. Peace, Husain !

Hus. Ay but, spoiling all,

For all, else true things, substituting false,
That they should dare spoil, of all instincts, thine !
Should dare to take thee with thine instincts up,
Thy battle-ardors, like a ball of fire,
And class them and allow them place and play
So far, no farther — unabashed the while !
Thou with the soul that never can take rest —
Thou born to do, undo, and do again,
And never to be still, — wouldst thou make war ?
Oh, that is commendable, just and right !

“Come over,” say they, “have the honor due
In living out thy nature ! Fight thy best :
It is to be for Florence, not thyself !
For thee, it were a horror and a plague ;
For us, when war is made for Florence, see,
How all is changed : the fire that fed on earth
Now towers to heaven !” —

Lur. And what sealed up so long
My Husain’s mouth ?

Hus. Oh friend, oh lord — for me,
What am I ? — I was silent at thy side,
Who am a part of thee. It is thy hand,
Thy foot that glows when in the heart fresh blood
Boils up, thou heart of me ! Now, live again,
Again love as thou likest, hate as free !
Turn to no Braccios nor Domizias now,
To ask, before thy very limbs dare move,
If Florence’ welfare be concerned thereby !

Lur. So clear what Florence must expect of me ?

Hus. Both armies against Florence ! Take revenge !
Wide, deep — to live upon, in feeling now, —
And, after live, in memory, year by year —
And, with the dear conviction, die at last !
She lies now at thy pleasure : pleasure have !
Their vaunted intellect that gilds our sense,
And blends with life, to show it better by,
— How think’st thou ? — I have turned that light on them !
They called our thirst of war a transient thing ;
“The battle-element must pass away
From life,” they said, “and leave a tranquil world.”
— Master, I took their light and turned it full
On that dull turgid vein they said would burst
And pass away ; and as I looked on life,
Still everywhere I tracked this, though it hid

And shifted, lay so silent as it thought,
 Changed shape and hue yet ever was the same.
 Why, 't was all fighting, all their nobler life!
 All work was fighting, every harm — defeat,
 And every joy obtained — a victory!
 Be not their dupe!

— Their dupe? That hour is past!

Here stand'st thou in the glory and the calm:
 All is determined. Silence for me now!

[HUSAIN goes.]

Lur. Have I heard all?

Dom. [advancing from the background.] No, Luria, I remain!
 Not from the motives these have urged on thee,
 Ignoble, insufficient, incomplete,
 And pregnant each with sure seeds of decay,
 As failing of sustainment from thyself,
 — Neither from low revenge, nor selfishness,
 Nor savage lust of power, nor one, nor all,
 Shalt thou abolish Florence! I proclaim
 The angel in thee, and reject the sprites
 Which ineffectual crowd about his strength,
 And mingle with his work and claim a share!
 Inconsciously to the augustest end
 Thou hast arisen: second not in rank
 So much as time, to him who first ordained
 That Florence, thou art to destroy, should be.
 Yet him a star, too, guided, who broke first
 The pride of lonely power, the life apart,
 And made the eminences, each to each,
 Lean o'er the level world and let it lie
 Safe from the thunder henceforth 'neath their tops;
 So the few famous men of old combined,
 And let the multitude rise underneath,
 And reach them and unite — so Florence grew:
 Braccio speaks true, it was well worth the price.
 But when the sheltered many grew in pride
 And grudged the station of the elected ones,
 Who, greater than their kind, are truly great
 Only in voluntary servitude —
 Time was for thee to rise, and thou art here.
 Such plague possessed this Florence: who can tell
 The mighty girth and greatness at the heart
 Of those so perfect pillars of the grove
 She pulled down in her envy? Who as I,
 The light weak parasite born but to twine
 Round each of them and, measuring them, live?

My light love keeps the matchless circle safe,
 My slender life proves what has passed away.
 I lived when they departed ; lived to cling
 To thee, the mighty stranger ; thou wouldst rise
 And burst the thraldom, and avenge, I knew.
 I have done nothing ; all was thy strong bole.
 But a bird's weight can break the infant tree
 Which after holds an aery in its arms,
 And 't was my care that nought should warp thy spire
 From rising to the height ; the roof is reached
 O' the forest, break through, see extend the sky !
 Go on to Florence, Luria ! 'T is man's cause !
 Fail thou, and thine own fall were least to dread :
 Thou keepest Florence in her evil way,
 Encouragest her sin so much the more —
 And while the ignoble past is justified,
 Thou all the surelier warp'st the future growth,
 The chiefs to come, the Lurias yet unborn,
 That, greater than thyself, are reached o'er thee
 Who giv'st the vantage-ground their foes require,
 As o'er my prostrate House thyself wast reached !
 Man calls thee, God requites thee ! All is said,
 The mission of my House fulfilled at last :
 And the mere woman, speaking for herself,
 Reserves speech — it is now no woman's time.

[DOMIZIA goes

Lur. Thus at the last must figure Luria, then !
 Doing the various work of all his friends,
 And answering every purpose save his own.
 No doubt, 't is well for them to wish ; but him —
 After the exploit what were left ? Perchance
 A little pride upon the swarthy brow,
 At having brought successfully to bear
 'Gainst Florence' self her own especial arms, —
 Her craftiness, impelled by fiercer strength
 From Moorish blood than feeds the northern wit.
 But after ! — once the easy vengeance willed,
 Beautiful Florence at a word laid low
 — (Not in her domes and towers and palaces,
 Not even in a dream, that outrage !) — low,
 As shamed in her own eyes henceforth forever,
 Low, for the rival cities round to laugh,
 Conquered and pardoned by a hireling Moor !
 — For him, who did the irreparable wrong,
 What would be left, his life's illusion fled, —
 What hope or trust in the forlorn wide world ?

How strange that Florence should mistake me so!
Whence grew this? What withdrew her faith from me?
Some cause! These fretful-blooded children talk
Against their mother, — they are wronged, they say —
Notable wrongs her smile makes up again!
So, taking fire at each supposed offence,
They may speak rashly, suffer for their speech:
But what could it have been in word or deed
Thus injured me? Some one word spoken more
Out of my heart, and all had changed perhaps.
My fault, it must have been, — for, what gain they?
Why risk the danger? See, what I could do!
And my fault, wherefore visit upon them,
My Florentines? The notable revenge,
I meditated! To stay passively,
Attend their summons, be as they dispose!
Why, if my very soldiers keep the rank,
And if my chieftains acquiesce, what then?
I ruin Florence, teach her friends mistrust,
Confirm her enemies in harsh belief,
And when she finds one day, as find she must,
The strange mistake, and how my heart was hers,
Shall it console me, that my Florentines
Walk with a sadder step, in graver guise,
Who took me with such frankness, praised me so,
At the glad outset? Had they loved me less,
They had less feared what seemed a change in me.
And after all, who did the harm? Not they!
How could they interpose with those old fools
I' the council? Suffer for those old fools' sake —
They, who made pictures of me, sang the songs
About my battles? Ah, we Moors get blind
Out of our proper world, where we can see!
The sun that guides is closer to us! There —
There, my own orb! He sinks from out the sky!
Why, there! a whole day has he blessed the land,
My land, our Florence all about the hills,
The fields and gardens, vineyards, olive-grounds,
All have been blest — and yet we Florentines,
With souls intent upon our battle here,
Found that he rose too soon, or set too late,
Gave us no vantage, or gave Pisa much,
Therefore we wronged him! Does he turn in ire
To burn the earth that cannot understand?
Or drop out quietly, and leave the sky,
His task once ended? Night wipes blame away.

Another morning from my East shall spring
 And find all eyes at leisure, all disposed
 To watch and understand its work, no doubt.
 So, praise the new sun, the successor praise,
 Praise the new Luria and forget the old !

[Taking a phial from his breast.

— Strange ! This is all I brought from my own land
 To help me : Europe would supply the rest,
 All needs beside, all other helps save one !
 I thought of adverse fortune, battle lost,
 The natural upbraiding of the loser,
 And then this quiet remedy to seek
 At end of the disastrous day.

[He drinks.

'T is sought !

This was my happy triumph-morning : Florence
 Is saved : I drink this, and ere night, — die ! Strange !

ACT V.

NIGHT.

LURIA and PUCCIO.

Lur. I thought to do this, not to talk this : well,
 Such were my projects for the city's good,
 To help her in attack or by defence.
 Time, here as elsewhere, soon or late may take
 Our foresight by surprise through chance and change ;
 But not a little we provide against
 — If you see clear on every point.

Puc.

Most clear.

Lur. Then all is said — not much, if you count words,
 Yet to an understanding ear enough ;
 And all that my brief stay permits, beside.
 Nor must you blame me, as I sought to teach
 My elder in command, or threw a doubt
 Upon the very skill, it comforts me
 To know I leave, — your steady soldiery
 Which never failed me : yet, because it seemed
 A stranger's eye might haply note defect
 That skill, through use and custom, overlooks —
 I have gone into the old cares once more,
 As if I had to come and save again
 Florence — that May — that morning ! 'T is night now.
 Well — I broke off with ? . . .

Puc.

Of the past campaign

You spoke — of measures to be kept in mind
For future use.

Lur. True, so . . . but, time — no time!
As well end here: remember this, and me!
Farewell now!

Puc. Dare I speak?

Lur. South o' the river —
How is the second stream called . . . no, — the third?

Puc. Pesa.

Lur. And a stone's-cast from the fording-place,
To the east, — the little mount's name?

Puc.

Lupo.

Lur. Ay!

Ay — there the tower, and all that side is safe!
With San Romano, west of Evola,
San Miniato, Scala, Empoli,
Five towers in all, — forget not!

Puc.

Fear not me!

Lur. — Nor to memorialize the Council now,
I' the easy hour, on those battalions' claim,
Who forced a pass by Staggia on the hills,
And kept the Sienese at check!

Puc.

One word —

Sir, I must speak! That you submit yourself
To Florence' bidding, howsoe'er it prove,
And give up the command to me — is much,
Too much, perhaps: but what you tell me now,
Even will affect the other course you choose —
Poor as it may be, perils even that!
Refuge you seek at Pisa: yet these plans
All militate for Florence, all conclude
Your formidable work to make her queen
O' the country, — which her rivals rose against
When you began it, — which to interrupt,
Pisa would buy you off at any price!
You cannot mean to sue for Pisa's help,
With this made perfect and on record?

Lur.

I —

At Pisa, and for refuge, do you say?

Puc. Where are you going, then? You must decide
On leaving us, a silent fugitive,
Alone, at night — you, stealing through our lines,
Who were this morning's Luria, — you escape
To painfully begin the world once more,
With such a past, as it had never been!
Where are you going?

Lur. Not so far, my Puccio,
But that I hope to hear, enjoy and praise
(If you mind praise from your old captain yet)
Each happy blow you strike for Florence!

Puc. Ay,
But ere you gain your shelter, what may come?
For see — though nothing's surely known as yet,
Still — truth must out — I apprehend the worst.
If mere suspicion stood for certainty
Before, there's nothing can arrest the step
Of Florence toward your ruin, once on foot.
Forgive her fifty times, it matters not!
And having disbelieved your innocence,
How can she trust your magnanimity?
You may do harm to her — why then, you will!
And Florence is sagacious in pursuit.
Have you a friend to count on?

Lur. One sure friend.

Puc. Potent?

Lur. All-potent.

Puc. And he is apprised?

Lur. He waits me.

Puc. So! — Then I, put in your place,
Making my profit of all done by you,
Calling your labors mine, reaping their fruit,
To this, the State's gift, now add yours beside —
That I may take as my peculiar store
These your instructions to work Florence good.
And if, by putting some few happily
In practice, I should both advantage her
And draw down honor on myself, — what then?

Lur. Do it, my Puccio! I shall know and praise!

Puc. Though so, men say, "mark what we gain by change
— A Puccio for a Luria!"

Lur. Even so!

Puc. Then, not for fifty hundred Florences
Would I accept one office save my own,
Fill any other than my rightful post
Here at your feet, my captain and my lord!
That such a cloud should break, such trouble be,
Ere a man settle, soul and body, down
Into his true place and take rest forever!
Here were my wise eyes fixed on your right hand,
And so the bad thoughts came and the worse words,
And all went wrong and painfully enough, —
No wonder, — till, the right spot stumbled on,

All the jar stops, and there is peace at once!
 I am yours now, — a tool your right hand wields!
 God's love, that I should live, the man I am,
 On orders, warrants, patents and the like,
 As if there were no glowing-eye i' the world
 To glance straight inspiration to my brain,
 No glorious heart to give mine twice the beats!
 For, see — my doubt, where is it? — fear? 't is flown!
 And Florence and her anger are a tale
 To scare a child! Why, half-a-dozen words
 Will tell her, spoken as I now can speak,
 Her error, my past folly — and all 's right,
 And you are Luria, our great chief again!
 Or at the worst — which worst were best of all —
 To exile or to death I follow you!

Lur. Thanks, Puccio! Let me use the privilege
 You grant me: if I still command you, — stay!
 Remain here, my vicegerent, it shall be,
 And not successor: let me, as of old,
 Still serve the State, my spirit prompting yours —
 Still triumph, one for both. There! Leave me now!
 You cannot disobey my first command?
 Remember what I spoke of Jacopo,
 And what you promised to concert with him!
 Send him to speak with me — nay, no farewell!
 You shall be by me when the sentence comes.

[PUCCIO goes.

So, there 's one Florentine returns again!
 Out of the genial morning company,
 One face is left to take into the night.

Enter JACOPO.

Jac. I wait for your command, sir.

Lur.

What, so soon?

I thank your ready presence and fair word.
 I used to notice you in early days
 As of the other species, so to speak,
 Those watchers of the lives of us who act —
 That weigh our motives, scrutinize our thoughts.
 So, I propound this to your faculty
 As you would tell me, were a town to take
 . . . That is, of old. I am departing hence
 Under these imputations; that is nought —
 I leave no friend on whom they may rebound,
 Hardly a name behind me in the land,
 Being a stranger: all the more behoves
 That I regard how altered were the case

With natives of the country, Florentines
 On whom the like mischance should fall : the roots
 O' the tree survive the ruin of the trunk —
 No root of mine will throb, you understand.
 But I had predecessors, Florentines,
 Accused as I am now, and punished so —
 The Traversari : you know more than I
 How stigmatized they are, and lost in shame.
 Now Puccio, who succeeds me in command,
 Both served them and succeeded, in due time ;
 He knows the way, holds proper documents,
 And has the power to lay the simple truth
 Before an active spirit, as I count yours :
 And also there's Tiburzio, my new friend,
 Will, at a word, confirm such evidence,
 He being the great chivalric soul we know.
 I put it to your tact, sir — were 't not well,
 — A grace, though but for contrast's sake, no more, —
 If you who witness, and have borne a share
 Involuntarily in my mischance,
 Should, of your proper motion, set your skill
 To indicate — that is, investigate
 The right or wrong of what mischance befell
 Those famous citizens, your countrymen ?
 Nay, you shall promise nothing : but reflect,
 And if your sense of justice prompt you — good !
Jac. And if, the trial past, their fame stand clear
 To all men's eyes, as yours, my lord, to mine —
 Their ghosts may sleep in quiet satisfied !
 For me, a straw thrown up into the air,
 My testimony goes for a straw's worth.
 I used to hold by the instructed brain,
 And move with Braccio as my master-wind ;
 The heart leads surelier : I must move with you —
 As greatest now, who ever were the best.
 So, let the last and humblest of your servants
 Accept your charge, as Braccio's heretofore,
 And tender homage by obeying you !

[JACOPO goes.]

Lur. Another ! — Luria goes not poorly forth.
 If we could wait ! The only fault's with time ;
 All men become good creatures : but so slow !

Enter DOMIZIA.

Lur. Ah, you once more ?

Dom. Domizia, whom you knew,
 Performed her task, and died with it. 'T is I,

Another woman, you have never known.
Let the past sleep now!

Lur. I have done with it.

Dom. How inexhaustibly the spirit grows!
One object, she seemed erewhile born to reach
With her whole energies and die content, —
So like a wall at the world's edge it stood,
With nought beyond to live for, — is that reached? —
Already are new undreamed energies
Outgrowing under, and extending farther
To a new object; there's another world.
See! I have told the purpose of my life;
'T is gained: you are decided, well or ill —
You march on Florence, or submit to her —
My work is done with you, your brow declares.
But — leave you? — More of you seems yet to reach:
I stay for what I just begin to see.

Lur. So that you turn not to the past!

Dom. You trace

Nothing but ill in it — my selfish impulse,
Which sought its end and disregarded yours?

Lur. Speak not against your nature: best, each keep
His own — you, yours — most, now that I keep mine,
— At least, fall by it, having too weakly stood.
God's finger marks distinctions, all so fine,
We would confound: the lesser has its use,
Which, when it apes the greater, is foregone.
I, born a Moor, lived half a Florentine;
But, punished properly, can end, a Moor.
Beside, there's something makes me understand
Your nature: I have seen it.

Dom. Aught like mine?

Lur. In my own East . . . if you would stoop and help
My barbarous illustration! It sounds ill;
Yet there's no wrong at bottom: rather, praise.

Dom. Well?

Lur. We have creatures there, which if you saw
The first time, you would doubtless marvel at
For their surpassing beauty, craft and strength.
And though it were a lively moment's shock
When you first found the purpose of forked tongues
That seem innocuous in their lambent play,
Yet, once made know such grace requires such guard,
Your reason soon would acquiesce, I think,
In wisdom which made all things for the best —
So, take them, good with ill, contentedly,

The prominent beauty with the latent sting.
 I am glad to have seen you wondrous Florentines :
 Yet . . .

Dom. I am here to listen.

Lur. My own East !

How nearer God we were ! He glows above
 With scarce an intervention, presses close
 And palpitatingly, his soul o'er ours :
 We feel him, nor by painful reason know !
 The everlasting minute of creation
 Is felt there ; now it is, as it was then ;
 All changes at his instantaneous will,
 Not by the operation of a law
 Whose maker is elsewhere at other work.
 His hand is still engaged upon his world —
 Man's praise can forward it, man's prayer suspend,
 For is not God all-mighty ? To recast
 The world, erase old things and make them new,
 What costs it Him ? So, man breathes nobly there !
 And inasmuch as feeling, the East's gift,
 Is quick and transient — comes, and lo, is gone —
 While Northern thought is slow and durable,
 Surely a mission was reserved for me,
 Who, born with a perception of the power
 And use of the North's thought for us of the East,
 Should have remained, turned knowledge to account
 Giving thought's character and permanence
 To the too transitory feeling there —
 Writing God's message plain in mortal words.
 Instead of which, I leave my fated field
 For this where such a task is needed least,
 Where all are born consummate in the art
 I just perceive a chance of making mine, —
 And then, deserting thus my early post,
 I wonder that the men I come among Mistake me ! There, how all had understood,
 Still brought fresh stuff for me to stamp and keep,
 Fresh instinct to translate them into law !
 Me, who . . .

Dom. Who here the greater task achieve,
 More needful even : who have brought fresh stuff
 For us to mould, interpret and prove right, —
 New feeling fresh from God, which, could we know
 O' the instant, where had been our need of it ?
 — Whose life re-teaches us what life should be,
 What faith is, loyalty and simpleness,

All, once revealed but taught us so long since
 That, having mere tradition of the fact, —
 Truth copied falteringly from copies faint,
 The early traits all dropped away, — we said
 On sight of faith like yours, “So looks not faith
 We understand, described and praised before.”
 But still, the feat was dared; and though at first
 It suffered from our haste, yet trace by trace
 Old memories reappear, old truth returns,
 Our slow thought does its work, and all's re-known.
 Oh noble Luria! What you have decreed
 I see not, but no animal revenge,
 No brute-like punishment of bad by worse —
 It cannot be, the gross and vulgar way
 Traced for me by convention and mistake,
 Has gained that calm approving eye and brow!
 Spare Florence, after all! Let Luria trust
 To his own soul, he whom I trust with mine!

Lur. In time!

Dom. How, Luria?

Lur. It is midnight now,
 And they arrive from Florence with my fate.

Dom. I hear no step.

Lur. I feel one, as you say.

Enter HUSAIN.

Hus. The man returned from Florence!

Lur. As I knew

Hus. He seeks thee.

Lur. And I only wait for him.

Aught else?

Hus. A movement of the Lucchese troops
 Southward —

Lur. Toward Florence? Have out instantly . . .
 Ah, old use clings! Puccio must care henceforth.
 In — quick — 't is nearly midnight! Bid him come!

Enter TIBURZIO, BRACCIO, and PUCCIO.

Lur. Tiburzio? — not at Pisa?

Tib. I return

From Florence: I serve Pisa, and must think
 By such procedure I have served her best.
 A people is but the attempt of many
 To rise to the completer life of one;
 And those who live as models for the mass
 Are singly of more value than they all.
 Such man are you, and such a time is this,
 That your sole fate concerns a nation more

Than much apparent welfare : that to prove
 Your rectitude, and duly crown the same,
 Imports us far beyond to-day's event,
 A battle's loss or gain : man's mass remains, —
 Keep but God's model safe, new men will rise
 To take its mould, and other days to prove
 How great a good was Luria's glory. True —
 I might go try my fortune as you urged,
 And, joining Lucca, helped by your disgrace,
 Repair our harm — so were to-day's work done ;
 But where leave Luria for our sons to see ?
 No, I look farther. I have testified
 (Declaring my submission to your arms)
 Her full success to Florence, making clear
 Your probity, as none else could : I spoke,
 And out it shone !

Lur. Ah — until Braccio spoke !

Brac. Till Braccio told in just a word the whole —
 His lapse to error, his return to knowledge :
 Which told . . . Nay, Luria, I should droop the head,
 I whom shame rests with ! Yet I dare look up,
 Sure of your pardon now I sue for it,
 Knowing you wholly. Let the midnight end !
 'T is morn approaches ! Still you answer not ?
 Sunshine succeeds the shadow passed away ;
 Our faces, which phantasmal grew and false,
 Are all that felt it : they change round you, turn
 Truly themselves now in its vanishing.
 Speak, Luria ! Here begins your true career :
 Look up, advance ! All now is possible,
 Fact's grandeur, no false dreaming ! Dare and do !
 And every prophecy shall be fulfilled
 Save one — (nay, now your word must come at last)
 — That you would punish Florence !

Hus. [pointing to LURIA's dead body.] That is done.

NOTES.

The page is given, followed immediately by the number of the line on the page. The passage which is interpreted is given in italics. All the passages on a page are put into one paragraph; but in case there is more than one the number of the line is enclosed in parenthesis. Where a poem has numbered sections, this numbering is followed instead of that of the page.

3. THE LOST LEADER. Asked if in this poem he referred to Wordsworth, Browning wrote: "I can only answer, with something of shame and contrition, that I undoubtedly had Wordsworth in my mind, but simply as a 'model;' you know an artist takes one or two striking traits in the features of his 'model,' and uses them to start his fancy on a flight which may end far enough from the good man or woman who happens to be 'sitting' for nose and eye. I thought of the great poet's abandonment of liberalism, at an unlucky juncture, and no repaying consequence that I could ever see. But once call my fancy-portrait Wordsworth, and how much more ought one to say, how much more would not I have attempted to say!" A somewhat different answer to the same question was sent to Dr. Grosart in 1875: "I have been asked the question you now address me with, and as duly answered it, I can't remember how many times; there is no sort of objection to one more assurance, or rather confession, on my part, that I did in my hasty youth presume to use the great and venerated personality of Wordsworth as a sort of painter's model; one from which this or the other particular feature may be selected and turned to account; had I intended more, above all, such a boldness as portraying the entire man, I should not have talked about 'handfuls of silver and bits of ribbon.' These never influenced the change of politics in the great poet, whose defection, nevertheless, accompanied as it was by a regular face-about of his special party, was to my juvenile apprehension, and even mature consideration, an event to deplore. But just as in the tapestry on my wall I can recognize figures which have struck out a fancy, on occasion, that, though truly enough thus derived, yet would be preposterous as a copy, so, though I dare not deny the original of my little poem, I altogether refuse to have it considered as the 'very effigies' of such a moral and intellectual superiority."

4. HOW THEY BROUGHT THE GOOD NEWS FROM GHENT TO AIX. The defensive union of Holland, Zealand, and the southern Netherlands, formed in 1576 under William of Orange, and known as "The Pacification of Ghent," was probably in the mind of the poet; but he said of it: "There is no sort of historical foundation for the poem about 'Good News from Ghent.' I wrote it under the bulwark of a vessel, off the African coast, after I had been at sea long enough to appreciate even the fancy of a gallop on the back of a certain good horse 'York,' then in my stable at home.' It was written in pencil on the fly-leaf of Bartoli's Simboli, I remember."

ii. 4, pique, pommel of a saddle.

6. THROUGH THE METIDJA TO ABD-EL-KADR, 1842. The Arab leader, whose name means "servant of God," 1807-1883, was Emir of Mascara, Algeria, and led his countrymen against the French, but was conquered and imprisoned. The poem represents one of the followers of the Emir riding through the desert to join him after the capture of his camp by the Duc d'Aumale, the destruction of his army, and his escape to attempt to rally his followers to a new effort.

7. NATIONALITY IN DRINKS. The claret of France, the tokay of Hungary, and the beer of England describe, in their effects, the peoples of these countries.

10. SIBRANDUS SCHAFNABURGENSIS. (ii. 2) arbut, arbutus; lauro-rustine, evergreen of Honeysuckle family, Viburnum Tinus. (iii. 3) pont-levis, drawbridge. (v. 6) de profundis, accentibus laetis, cantate, Come forth from the depths with flaming joy.

12. SOLILOQUY OF THE SPANISH CLOISTER. No historical incident is described. (ii. 2) Salve tibi, Hail to thee. (vii. 1) great text in Galatians, tenth verse of third chapter, according to Dr. Berdoe. (vii. 8) Manichee, a follower of Manes, who joined Christianity to the Persian idea of dual principles, good and evil. (ix. 7) Plena gratiâ, Ave, Virgo! Full of Grace, Hail, Virgin; a poetic use of Ave Maria, gratia plena.

15. THE CONFESSIONAL. This poem is historical only in the sense that it correctly interprets the period of the Inquisition in Spain. A young girl wrings from her lover his secret knowledge, that is injurious to the Church; and she does this at the instigation of her confessor, who has assured her that her lover will be purged of evil by her prayers and fastings. She is then thrown into prison, after being put upon the rack; when she sees her lover again he is on the scaffold. As she watches his execution from her prison she speaks her condemnation of the methods by which she has been deceived, and of the religion which could lead men to such deeds.

18. CRISTINA. The Cristina of this poem is Christina Maria, daughter of Francis I., King of the Two Sicilies. She was born in 1806; was married, in 1829, to Ferdinand VII., King of Spain; became Regent in 1833, on the death of the King; and in 1843 her daughter ascended the throne as Isabel II. Her life was given to intrigue, and to the use of tyrannical power. She was hated by those she ruled, and despised by them because of her personal character. It was said of her by one who met her as a young woman that she "was the cause of more than one inflammable victim languishing in prison for having too openly admired this royal coquette, whose manners with men foretold her future life after her marriage to old Ferdinand."

34. A TOCCATA OF GALUPPI'S. An American author, visiting Browning and his wife at Casa Guidi in 1847, wrote of their occupations: "Mrs. Browning," he said, "was still too much of an invalid to walk, but she sat under the great trees upon the lawn-like hill-sides near the convent, or in the seats of the dusky convent chapel."

while Robert Browning at the organ chased a fugue, or dreamed out upon the twilight keys a faint throbbing *toccat*a of Galuppi." Under such circumstances the present poem was conceived and written. It was published in 1855, in the first volume of Men and Women. Baldassare Galuppi was born on the island of Burano, near Venice, October 15, 1706, and died in Venice, January 3, 1785. As a boy he became an organist in Venice, soon began to produce operas, became the maestro of St. Mark's in 1762, and four years later went to St. Petersburg at the invitation of Catherine II. He produced more than fifty operas and much church music. His music was characterized by melody, feeling, and spirited expression. Miss Helen J. Ormerod's paper on Browning's music poems gives an account of the musical significance of this poem: "That the minor predominated in this quaint old piece (*Toccat*a, by the way, means Touch-piece, and probably was written to display the delicacy of the composer's touch) is evident from the mention of 'those lesser thirds so plaintive, sixths diminished, sigh on sigh; those commiserating sevenths.' The interval of the third is one of the most important: the signature of a piece may mislead one, the same signature standing for a major key and its relative minor; but the third of the opening chord decides the question, a lesser 'plaintive' third (composed of a tone and a semitone) showing the key to be minor, the greater third (composed of two whole tones) showing the key to be major. Pauer tells that 'the minor third gives the idea of tenderness, grief, and romantic feeling.' Next come the 'diminished sixths:' these are sixths possessing a semitone less than a minor sixth, for instance from C sharp to A flat; this interval in a different key would stand as a perfect fifth. 'These suspensions, these solutions,'—a suspension is the stoppage of one or more parts for a moment, while the others move on; this produces a dissonance, which is only resolved by the parts which produced it, moving on to the position which would have been theirs had the parts moved simultaneously. We can understand that 'these suspensions, these solutions,' might teach the Venetians, as they teach us, lessons of experience and hope; light after darkness, joy after sorrow, smiles after tears. 'These commiserating sevenths:' of all dissonances, none is so pleasing to the ear or so attractive to musicians as that of minor and diminished sevenths, that of the major seventh being crude and harsh; in fact the minor seventh is so charming in its discord as to suggest concord. Again, to quote from Pauer: 'It is the antithesis of discord and concord which fascinates and charms the ear; it is the necessary solution and return to unity which delights us.'

"After all this, the love-making begins again, but kisses are interrupted by the 'dominant's' persistence [the dominant is the fifth, the most characteristic note of the scale] till it must be answered to; this seems to indicate the close of the piece, the dominant being answered by an octave which suggests the perfect authentic cadence, in which the chord of the dominant is followed by that of the tonic."

37. OLD PICTURES IN FLORENCE. (ii. 7) bell-tower Giotto raised, the Campanile of Santa Maria del Fiore in Florence, of which Giotto furnished the model and executed sculptures and reliefs.

viii. 8, Da Vincis derive from Dallos, contrast between the noble artistic work of Leonardo da Vinci, 1452–1519, and the nice but weak work of Niccolo Dello.

ix. 5, Stefano, Florentine painter, pupil of Giotto's, and called the "Ape of Nature," because of the accuracy of his representations of the human body.

xiii. 2, Theseus, a reclining statue from the eastern pediment of the Parthenon, now in the British Museum. (3) Son of Priam, the Paris of the Æginetan sculptures, kneeling and drawing a bow, now in the Glyptothek in Munich. (5) slay your snake like Apollo; Browning explained this allusion as follows: "A word on the line about Apollo the snake-slayer, which my friend Professor Colvin condemns, believing that the god of the Belvedere grasps no bow, but the ægis, as described in the 15th Iliad. Surely the text represents that portentous object (θούριν, δεινήν, ἀμφιδάσειαν, ἀριπρεπέ' — μαρμαρέην) as 'shaken violently' or 'held immovably' by both hands, not a single one, and that the left hand: —

ἀλλὰ σύ γ' ἐν χείρεσσι λάβ' αἰγίδα θυσανόεσσαν
τὴν μάλ' ἐπίσσειων φοβέειν ἥρωας Ἀχαιοῦς.

and so on, τὴν ἄρ δ' γ' ἐν χείρεσσιν ἔχων — χερσιν ἔχ' ἀτρέμα, κ.τ.λ. Moreover, while he shook it he 'shouted enormously,' σεῖσ', ἐπὶ δ' αὐτὸς αὔσε μάλα μέγα, which the statue does not. Presently when Teukros, on the other side, plies the bow, it is τόξον ἔχων ἐν χειρὶ παλιντονον. Besides, by the act of discharging an arrow, the right arm and hand are thrown back as we see, — a quite gratuitous and theatrical display in the case supposed. The conjecture of Flaxman that the statue was suggested by the bronze Apollo Alexikakos of Kalamis, mentioned by Pausanias, remains probable; though the 'hardness' which Cicero considers to distinguish the artist's workmanship from that of Muron is not by any means apparent in our marble copy, if it be one. — R. B., February 16, 1880." (6) Niobe's the grander, statue of that unfortunate mother mourning the death of her children, in a group now in Uffizi Palace, Florence. (7) Racers' frieze, that from the Parthenon. (8) dying Alexander, sculptured head at Florence, one of the finest pieces of ancient Greek sculpture, thought to represent Alexander or Lysippus, but best authorities think neither was intended.

xvii. 6, Thy one work, done at a stroke, refers to story told by Vasari, that Benedict IX. applied through a messenger for a specimen of Giotto's work. "Giotto, who was very courteous, took a sheet of paper, and a pencil dipped in red color; then, resting his elbow on his side, to form a sort of compass, with one turn of the hand he drew a circle, so perfect and exact that it was a marvel to behold. This done, he turned smiling to the courtier, saying, 'Here is your drawing.' 'Am I to have nothing more than this?' inquired the latter, conceiving himself to be jested with. 'That is enough and to spare,' returned Giotto; 'send it with the rest, and you will see if it will be recognized.' The messenger, unable to obtain anything more, went away very ill-satisfied, and fearing that he had been fooled." Nevertheless, having dispatched the other drawings to the pope, with the names of those who had done them, he sent that of Giotto also, relating the mode in which he had made his circle, without moving his arm and without compasses ; from which the pope, and such of the courtiers as were well versed in the subject, perceived how far Giotto surpassed all the other painters of the time. This incident, becoming known, gave rise to the proverb, still used in relation to people of dull wits, — Tu sei più tondo che l'O di Giotto [Thou art rounder than the O of Giotto], — the significance of which consists in the double meaning of the word tondo, which is used in the Tuscan for slowness of intellect and heaviness of comprehension, as well as for an exact circle."

xxiii. 3, Nicolo, 1207–1278, architect and sculptor. (4) Cimabue, 1240–1302, patron and teacher of Giotto. (6) Ghiberti, Lorenzo, 1381–1455, who made eastern doors of Baptistry at Florence, said by Michael Angelo to be worthy of being the gates of Paradise ; Ghirlandajo, popular name of Domenico Bigordi, 1449–1494, great fresco painter of Florence.

xxv. 6, dree, suffer, endure, Anglo-Saxon dreógan.

xxvi. 2, Sandro, Filipepi, usually called Botticelli, 1457–1515, disciple of Savonarola, painted mythological subjects. (3) Lippino, 1460–1505, son of Fra Lippo Lippi, successful Florentine painter ; he was wronged because others were credited with his work. (4) Fra Angelico, 1387–1455, greatest of distinctly ascetic painters. (5) Taddeo Gaddi, 1300–1366, godson and pupil of Giotto, painter and architect, who carried on the building of the campanile after the death of his master. (6) intonaco, rough plaster cast. (8) Lorenzo Monaco, monk and painter, severe in style.

xxvii. 2, Pollajolo, 1430–1498, painter, sculptor, and goldsmith, first artist to study anatomy. (7) Alesso Baldovinetti, 1422–1499, followed minute style.

xxviii. 1, Margheritone, 1236–1313, painter, sculptor, and architect. He represented the ascetic and supernatural, and his chief subject was the crucifixion. His chief Madonna, now in the London National Gallery, is grim and weird. The Browning Society's Papers report that Browning possessed the Crucifixion here described as well as the pictures by Alesso Baldovinetti, Taddeo Gaddi, and Pollajolo which he has described in the poem. Margheritone is depicted as in funeral garb because deeply annoyed at the success of Giotto.

xxix. 8, Carlino, Carlo Dolci, 1616–1686, whose work was superfine but lifeless.

xxx. 4, a certain precious little tablet is thus mentioned in a letter written by Browning to Professor Corson : "The little tablet was a famous Last Supper, mentioned by Vasari, and gone astray long ago from the Church of S. Spirito ; it turned up, according to report, in some obscure corner, while I was in Florence, and was at once acquired by a stranger. I saw it, genuine or no, a work of great beauty."

xxxi. 1, San Spirito, fourteenth-century church in Florence. (2) Ognissanti, All Saints Church. (4) Detur amanti, Let it be given to the loving. (5) Koh-i-noor, celebrated diamond now belonging to Empress Victoria. (6) Giamschid, second greatest diamond, belonging to Shah of Persia.

xxxii. 1, a certain dotard, Joseph Wenzel Radetzky, 1766–1858, who governed Austrian possessions in Italy, then eighty-nine years old.

xxxiii. 3, Witanagemot, Anglo-Saxon national assembly of wise men. (4) quod videas ante, which you may have seen before. (8) Orgagna, Andrea, 1315–1376, painter of the school of Giotto.

xxxv. 3, half-told tale of Cambuscan; in his Il Penseroso Milton refers to the unfinished Squire's Tale of Chaucer, —

Or call up him that left half-told
The story of Cambuscan bold.

Browning compares with it the uncompleted campanile. Giotto's plan of raising the campanile to the height of fifty braccia, or about one hundred feet, Browning hopes will be realized. (5) beccaccia, woodcock.

47. SAUL. Based on 1 Samuel xvi. 14–23. (i. 1) Abner, 1 Samuel xxvi. 5.

v. 3, I first played the tune; what follows has a remarkable resemblance to a passage in the Daphnis and Chloe of Longus, who describes the playing of a pastoral melody that causes the oxen to obey, attracts the goats, and gives delight to the sheep.

vi. 4, jerboa, a rodent six inches in length, that, when it runs rapidly does so by a series of jumps.

viii. 4, male-sapphires, of large size, sapphire being same as lapis-lazuli.

58. MY STAR. (4) angled spar; "spar is a generic word applied to any mineral which breaks into regular surfaces, and reflects the light, or has, as we say, lustre." — Rolfe and Hersey. (9) dartles, frequentive of "dart," first used by Browning.

59. BY THE FIRESIDE. Describes mountains near baths of Lucca, where Brownings spent their summers in 1849 and 1853. Mrs. Browning wrote of the place: "We have taken a sort of eagle's nest in this place, the highest house of the highest of the three villages which are called Bagni di Lucca, and which lie at the heart of a hundred mountains sung to continually by a rushing mountain stream. The sound of the river and of the cicale is all the sound we hear. . . . And the beauty and the solitude — for with a few paces we get free of the habitations of men — all is delightful to me. What is peculiarly beautiful and wonderful is the variety of the shapes of the mountains. They are a multitude, and yet there is no likeness."

67:6, that great brow and the spirit-small hand, a description of Mrs. Browning; and the whole poem is devoted to the poet's conception of married life.

79. RESPECTABILITY. Professor Corson says of this poem: "These two unconventional Bohemian lovers strolling together at night, at their own sweet will, see down the court along which they are strolling three lampions flare, which indicate some big place or other where the respectables do congregate; and the woman says to the companion, with a humorous sarcasm, Put forward your best foot! that is, we must be very correct passing along here in this brilliant light. By the lovers are evidently meant George Sand (the speaker) and Jules Sandeau, with whom she lived in Paris, after she left her husband, M. Dudevant. They took just such unconventional night-strolls together in the streets of Paris."

88. THE GUARDIAN ANGEL: A PICTURE AT FANO. Fano is a small city in northeastern Italy, and in its church of St. Augustine is a picture called L' Angelo Custode, painted by Giovanni Francesco Barbieri, known as Guercino, 1590-1666. This picture of a guardian angel "represents an angel standing with outstretched wings by a little child. The child is half-kneeling on a kind of pedestal, while the angel joins its hands in prayer; its gaze is directed upward towards the sky, from which cherubs are looking down." It was visited with Mrs. Browning, who is alluded to, as is also their friend Alfred Domett, then in New Zealand, indicated by its river, Wairoa. "This Mr. Domett seems to have been a very modest man," says Mrs. Orr, "besides a devoted friend of Robert Browning's, and on occasion a warm defender of his works. When he read the apostrophe to 'Alfred, dear friend,' in the 'Guardian Angel,' he had reached the last line before it occurred to him that the person invoked could be he."

92. MASTER HUGUES OF SAXE-GOTHA. (i. 2) Master Hugues, an imaginary composer. (4) mountainous fugues; fugue is a continuous musical theme, around which other themes in harmony with it are developed that give it interpretation, and that give it a more adequate and complete expression. It has been described as "a short, complete melody, which flies (hence the name) from one part to another, while the original part is continued in counterpoint against it."

vi. 1, Aloys and Jurien and Just, imaginary assistants of the sacristan.

viii. 4, claviers, the key-board of the organ.

ix. 4, two great breves; a breve is the longest note in music, and formerly was square in shape.

xvi. 5, O Danaïdes, O Sieve; Danaïdes were daughters of Danaus, who were condemned to forever pour water through a sieve.

xvii. 3, Escobar, a Spanish casuist of Mendoza, who sought for excuses for human frailty.

xviii. 1, Est fuga, volvitur rota, it is a flight, the wheel rolls itself round.

xix. 2, risposting, fencing term, here used as equivalent to making a repartee.

xx. 5, tickens, ticken (= ticking), a twill fabric very closely woven.

xxviii. 1, meâ pœnâ, at my risk of punishment. (5) mode Palestrina, that of the great composer of church music for the Catholic Church, 1524-1594.

97. THE RETURN OF THE DRUSES. (3) dread incarnate mystery; the central idea of the Druses is that of the incarnation, and though they maintain that God is an absolute unity, yet they hold to his manifestation in human form as a type or expression of his real being. (4) to resume its pristine shape; the founder was Hakeem Biamr Allah, the sixth Fatimite Caliph of Egypt, who in 1216 announced himself as the tenth incarnation of the Spirit of God; and it is held by the Druses that another incarnation, which will be the previous ones in another form, will bring the whole world into the Druse church. (5) as the Khalif vanished erst refers to the fact that the Hakeem Biamr Allah suddenly disappeared in the year 1061, probably murdered at the instigation of his sister. It was announced that he had only withdrawn for a season, — this fact is worked into the Druse theory of the incarnation, — and it is held he will appear only at the end of the present order of things. (7) on red Mokattam's verge; on the eastern bank of the Nile, near Cairo, is the mountain Kharifa, or Mokattam Jebel, which was red with the rising sun when Hakeem disappeared. (9) Christian Prefect that enslaved us; it is not historical that the Druses settled on "an islet of the Southern Sporades," as Browning says. His whole plot in this respect is purely an invention, for their religion has never been established outside the Lebanon, Egypt, and Arabia, although isolated believers migrated. The Druses were not under the oppressive rule of the Knights of Rhodes in the fifteenth century or at any other time.

98:6, the Druse Nation, warders on our Mount of the world's secret; the Druse faith is compounded of all the religions of western Asia, is very tolerant in its spirit, and embraces all great teachers in its system of incarnations. Yet its followers hold that it is the only true faith, of which others are but imperfect expressions; its mysteries are strictly guarded, and known only to the initiated leaders. All other religions prepare for this, but the highest spiritual truths it alone possesses. The following seven commandments are observed by all the followers of the Druse faith: "i. The unity of God, or the infinite oneness of Deity. ii. The essential excellence of truth. iii. The law of toleration as to all men and women in opinion. iv. Respect for all men and women as to character and conduct. v. Entire submission to God's decrees as to faith. vi. Chastity of body, mind, and soul. vii. Mutual help under all conditions." (24) yon eight-point cross of white flame; Knights of Rhodes wore a white cross of eight points on black ground, known as Rhodian cross, and before had used a plain white on red ground.

99:37, Osman, Othman I., founder of Turkish Empire in 1331.

100:22, a race self-vowed to endless warfare, Knights of Rhodes or St. John, who were pledged to combat Moslem. (30) Sheiks able to thwart, those of the Druses, who were capable as warriors, as well as in intellectual pursuits.

101:2, Patriarch, ecclesiastical official next in rank to pope, at head of churches of a large territory, or those speaking same language. (15) Nuncio, ambassador from pope to king or emperor. (21) Hospitallers, order of knights who built hospital at Jerusalem in 1042, known also as Knights of St. John, and later as Knights of Malta. (22) Candia, Crete.

103:7, a Crossed-keys' flag, insignia of pope, keys of heaven and hell crossed.

104:36, Rennes, chief city of Bretagne, now capital of Ile Vilaine district in France.

105:5, Bretagne, Brittany. (33) Pro fide, For the faith.

106:34, some Count Dreux refers to the tradition that, in addition to the Jewish, Mohammedan, Zoroastrian, Gnostic, and other eastern elements of the Druse religion, were added a French or Christian strain. (35) Bouillon's war, that of first Crusade, led by Godfrey, Duke of Bouillon, 1060-1100.

108: 42, sweet cane, Acorus calamus, very aromatic; when trodden on, smells like incense. Lilith, legendary first wife of Adam.

111: 4, incense from a Mage-king's tomb, superstition that sweet odors come from tombs of magicians and reveal hidden treasures. (15) saffron vestures, color especially used for ceremonial purposes. (21) khandjar, dagger.

120: 26, some new expiatory form, transmigration of evil souls into bodies of beasts on death.

123: 8, San Gines by Murcia; on bay of Murcia, near Cartagena, Spain. (23) bezants, gold coins of Byzantium. (37) red-cross rivals, Knights Templar, so called because occupying an apartment in Christian palace, Jerusalem, near Temple.

124: 34, Tiar, tiara.

126: 12, Bahumid, Moktana Bohaeddin, who formulated and reduced to writing the teachings of Hamzé, the apostle of the Druses in the Lebanon, and their chief theologian.

132: 8, Mahound, Mohammed, so called by Crusaders.

133: 5, office of Hamza, that of incarnation of Universal Intelligence in human form as teacher of God's truth. (8) Copht, citizen of Egyptian city of Coptus. (10) Biamrallah, or Bemrillah, one of the names of the Caliph with whom the Druse faith originated. (37) the third Fatemite; Biamrallah was the third of the Fatimite Caliphs of Egypt, so named from Fatima, daughter of Mohammed.

134: 14, Romaioi Ioudaioi te kai proselutoi, Greek of Acts ii. 10, strangers of Rome, Jews, and proselytes.

136: 32, truncheon; same root as thyrsus, stalk or staff, sign of office, here meaning that the person who carries it represents the Church.

142: 24, cedar-blossom; from cedars of Lebanon, thus representing Druse authority. (37) St. Mark . . . Lion, patron saint of Venice, with lion as emblem, thus indicating authority of Venice.

143. A BLOT IN THE 'SCUTCHEON. (4) poursuivant, French poursuivre, to follow along with, hence follower, messenger or herald. (13) bravery, showiness, splendor.

144: 28, a cast of Swedish hawks, two hawks cast or flung into the air together. (29) leash of greyhounds, three, held by one leash or cord.

146: 8, herald, leader and manager of ceremonies. (32) he's the king's, serves the king, i. e. belongs to army.

147: 39, thicks, thickets. (40) eyass, young hawk, from French niais, callow or half-fledged.

149: 28, mercy-stroke, death-stroke after torture. (30) blazon, coat of arms, or armorial bearings, or flag bearing such.

151: 23, Conqueror, William of Normandy, who conquered England in 1066. (25) bow-hand or arrow-hand, left hand holding bow, or right which sets arrow.

152: 3, paladins, knights, from Italian paladino, palace attendants of rank. (25) that fair dame, Countess of Salisbury, who dropped her garter at a ball, picked up by Edward III., who, when courtiers smiled on his handing it to the Countess, said Honi soit qui mal y pense, Evil to him who thinks evil. He instituted Order of the Garter, and gave it this motto.

154: 5, expressless, inexpressible, not to be expressed; not coined

by Browning, as editors of Poet-Lore say. (39) some cursed fount, Shakespeare, Julius Cæsar, ii. 2, 76.

156: 25, fight-mark, custom under chivalry of knight wearing a gift from his lady as his device or emblem.

161: 26, Latin surely, Ovid, Metamorphoses, vi.

162: 17, turtle's voice, Solomon's Song ii. 10.

169: 23, surcoat, worn over armor, from French sur, over, cotte, coat. (24) wimple, plaited hood.

174: 33, some fabled crime refers to Greek tragedies like Oresteai of Æschylus, and avenging of crime by Furies.

175: 1, antiphony, alternate singing or chanting by choir divided into two parts, who respond to each other from opposite sides of church or cathedral. (8) diffused, used adjectively and accented on first syllable.

178: 25, foredone, exhausted, overcome; Old English. (26) pageant-world, theatrical exhibition. (27) masque, masquerading or theatrical company.

179: 2, gules, heraldic term for red, meaning here that blood has washed away the spot on the escutcheon.

182. COLOMBE'S BIRTHDAY. (4) Ravestein, old castle in town of that name on Meuse River, North Brabant, Holland. (7) Juliers, in Aachen, Rhenish Prussia, sixteen miles northeast of Aix-la-Chapelle, fortified town of three thousand inhabitants. (24) gentles, gentlefolk; an Elizabethan usage.

183: 19, Autumn floats of pine-wood, rafts coming down the river. (21) guilder, Dutch coin worth forty cents. (33) Salic law, that of Salian Franks, derived from river Yssel, or Isalia, on border between Holland and France; commonly used with reference to that feature of the Salic law of inheritance of landed property which excluded women from succession, and constructively from the throne.

184: 2, mummary, theatrical show or masque. (30) coil, ado, turmoil.

185: 26, pill and poll, plunder and strip; an Elizabethan phrase, (40) cappings, taking off caps.

186: 4, doit, small coin formerly used in Netherlands. (30) halberts, halberds, combined spear and battle-axe, for cutting and thrusting.

187: 8, Cleves, two miles from Rhine, near Dutch frontier, formerly capital of duchy of same name. Its old castle in centre of the town is scene of Lohengrin story. (40) Pentecost, Jewish feast, Christian equivalent being Whitsuntide.

188: 6, I bear a brain, have a good memory. (18) Pope's cross, badge of membership in the order of knighthood conferred by the Pope. (34) How should they let me pause? refers to miseries in preceding line.

189: 2, from Cleves to Juliers, about sixty miles.

190: 10, sursum corda, Lift up your hearts, words spoken by priest when he consecrates the Host in the Mass. (17) lace, largely manufactured at Cleves. (21) marcasite, crystallized bisulphide of iron.

195: 13, church-flowers, lilies and other flowers used symbolically in decoration of churches. (19) God's Mother, Madonna, or Virgin Mary, whose image is in all churches in Catholic lands.

196: 16, a lion crests him, the crest of his coat-of-arms is a lion. (17) 'scutcheon's word, the motto on his coat-of-arms is that given.

200: 9, Cologne, city on Rhine, formerly capital of electorate of same name. (10) Aix, Aix-la-Chapelle, where German emperors were crowned. (17) seneschal, high steward or chief official of a castle or barony.

201: 41, Treves, now Trier, in valley of Moselle, seat of archbishopric.

202: 3, Amelius, Italian philosopher of Neo-Platonic school, lived in latter half of third century. (43) truncheon, staff of office.

206: 41, a pillared flame, Exodus xiii. 12 ; Numbers xiv. 14.

209: 29, emprise, enterprise, adventurousness, dangerous risk, from Old French emprise.

214: 8, Burgraves, Landgraves, Markgraves ; grave or graf means count, hence count of a bur or a burg is a Burgrave, of a mark is a Markgrave ; German titles of nobility. (11) chrysoprase, a choice variety of chalcedony, of apple-green color. (40) Luitpold's brazen self, his bronze statue.

215: 40, grade of joy ; grade is used with meaning of step.

221: 28, We seem ; reference to revolutionary tendencies.

230: 28, Barnabite, monk of the order of St. Barnabas.

231. INCIDENT OF THE FRENCH CAMP. Mrs. Orr says the poem was founded on the following incident : " A boy soldier of the army of Napoleon has received his death wound in planting the imperial flag within the walls of Ratisbon. He contrives by a supreme effort to gallop out to the Emperor, — who has watched the storming of the city from a mound a mile or two away, — fling himself from the horse, and, holding himself erect by its mane, announce the victory. No sign of pain escapes him. But when Napoleon suddenly exclaims, ' You are wounded,' the soldier's pride in him is touched. ' I am killed, Sire,' he replies ; and, smiling, falls dead at the Emperor's feet. The story is true, but its actual hero was a man." A careful and extended search has not elicited any other information concerning this incident. Ratisbon is a city of Bavaria, on the right bank of the Danube ; also called Regensburg. The storming of Ratisbon took place in May, 1809, during Napoleon's Austrian campaign.

233. MY LAST DUCHESS. Fra Pandolf and his picture, Claus of Innsbruck, and the bronze Neptune taming a sea-horse are creations of the poet.

241. INSTANS TYRANNUS. The instans tyrannus (threatening tyrant) of this poem was suggested by the opening verse of the third ode of the third book of the Odes of Horace, beginning,

Justum et tenacem propositi virum,
Non civium ardor prava jubentium
Non vultus instantis tyranni.

In the translation of Sir Theodore Martin the first two stanzas read thus, the subject of the ode being the apotheosis of Romulus : —

" He that is just, and firm of will,
Doth not before the fury quake
Of mobs that instigate to ill,
Nor hath the tyrant's menace skill
His fixed resolve to shake ;

“ Nor Auster, at whose wild command
 The Adriatic billows dash
 Nor Jove’s dread thunder-launching hand ;
 Yea, if the globe should fall, he ’ll stand
 Serene amidst the crash.”

247. THE GLOVE. The story related in this poem is well known in literature, and was first told by Poullain de St. Croix in his Essais Historiques sur Paris, as follows : “ One day whilst Francis I. amused himself with looking at a combat between his lions, a lady, having let her glove drop, said to De Lorges, ‘ If you would have me believe that you love me as much as you swear you do, go and bring back my glove ? ’ De Lorges went down, picked up the glove from amidst the ferocious beasts, returned, and threw it in the lady’s face, and in spite of all her advances and cajoleries would never look at her again.” In his use of the story Schiller adds nothing, but Leigh Hunt expands it in his The Glove and the Lions, making the woman vain and willing to use her power over her lover. Browning was not satisfied with this account of the action of the lady; and he gives the story a quite different ending, keeping the legendary form of the narrative by putting it into the mouth of Peter Ronsard, the founder of the classical school of French poets, who lived in the time of King Francis. Clement Marot was another poet of the same period, who, at the court of Margaret of Navarre, translated the Psalms in a spirit so liberal they had much to do in spreading Protestantism. Most of his poems were of a lyrical and amorous nature. (12) Naso, Ovid; a reference to the classical tastes of Ronsard.

248: 20, Illum Juda Leonem de Tribu, that lion of the tribe of Judah.

251: 27, Venienti occurrere morbo, meet the coming disease, that is, anticipate evil and provide against it. (28) theorbo, an old Italian stringed instrument used by pages.

253. THE ITALIAN IN ENGLAND. (8) Charles; the poem is not based upon any definite historical incident, but the person referred to was Charles Albert, Prince of Carignano, who belonged to the younger branch of the house of Savoy. In the public school where he was educated Charles knew Albert Nota, who became his secretary, and was a liberal writer. Charles at first favored the rising of Santa Rosa in 1823 against Austria, and became regent of Turin. When King Charles Felix opposed the new government, Charles submitted to the king’s command, and deserted his friend. With the coming of the Austrians, Santa Rosa was obliged to flee from the country. (19) Metternich, the Austrian statesman, the bitter opponent of Italian independence.

254: 44, Tenebræ, darkness; “ the office of matins and lauds for the three last days in Holy Week. Fifteen lighted candles are placed on a triangular stand, and at the conclusion of each psalm one is put out, till a single candle is left at the top of the triangle. The extinction of the other candles is said to figure the growing darkness of the world at the time of the crucifixion. The last candle (which is not extinguished, but hidden behind the altar for a few moments) represents Christ, over whom death could not prevail.” — Dr. Berdoe.

257. THE ENGLISHMAN IN ITALY. (5) Scirocco, strong, hot wind that blows across the Mediterranean from Africa in autumn.

259: 10, lasagne, macaroni.

260: 29, lentisks, mastic tree.

261: 20, isles of the siren, those described in Odyssey, books xii. and xiii., supposed to be the three islands near Crapolla.

262: 25, Feast of the Rosary, time of thanksgiving to Our Lady of the Rosary for victory of Catholic powers over Turkish fleet at battle of Lepanto.

263: 7, Calvano, mountain opposite Sorrento, though Browning was not sure that was the right name for it.

263. IN A GONDOLA. In 1838 Browning visited Venice and Asola for the first time, and some of his impressions were worked into this poem and Pippa Passes; but later visits to Venice led him to think he had imperfectly seen it at this time. He wrote of the origin of this poem: "The first stanza was written to illustrate Maclise's picture [The Serenade], for which he was anxious to get some line or two. I had not seen it, but from Forster's description gave it to him in his room, impromptu. . . . When I did see it I thought the serenade too jolly, somewhat, for the notion I got from Forster, and I took the subject in my own way." To another he wrote: "I chanced to call on Forster the other day, and he pressed me into committing verse on the instant, not the minute, in Maclise's behalf, who has wrought a divine Venetian work, it seems, for the British Institution. Forster described it well, but I could do nothing better than this wooden ware (all the 'properties,' as we say, were given, and the problem was how to catalogue them in rhyme and unreason). Singing, and stars and night, and Venice streets and joyous hearts are properties, do you please to see. And now tell me, is this below the average of catalogue original poetry?"

264: 6, the Three, those opposed to the meeting of the lovers, being "Himself," who was perhaps the husband, and Paul and Gian, the woman's brothers.

266: 28, Lido's graves, Jewish tombs.

267: 6, Giudecca, canal in Venice. (34) lory, parrot.

268: 22, Schidone's eager Duke, imaginary painting by Bartolommeo Schidone, who worked in the manner of Correggio, 1560-1616. (24) Haste-thee-Luke, English of the Italian nickname, Luca-fà-presto, that of Luca Giordano, a famous painter of his time, 1632-1705. He worked very rapidly, painted a great number of pictures, and amassed wealth and fame. (26) Castelfranco, so named from place of birth of Giorgio Barbarelli, 1478-1511. (29) Tizian, Tiziano Vecellio, 1477-1516, usually known as 'Titian.

269. WARING. Alfred Donnett, born at Camberwell Grove, Surrey, May 20, 1811; studied at Cambridge; went to London and devoted himself to literature; became a lawyer in 1841, but the next year went to New Zealand, became a magistrate; in 1848 became the Colonial Secretary for the southern part of North Island, then held other important offices; was a member of the legislature; and finally became Prime Minister in 1862. In 1871 he returned to London, where he lived until his death, November 12, 1877. He wrote various prose and poetical works, mostly about New Zealand. Born in the same neighborhood as Browning, they were intimate friends in youth.

ii. 13, If Waring meant to glide away. In his Living Authors of England, Thomas Powell describes the event which gave origin to the writing of Waring, the "young author" mentioned being himself: "We have a vivid recollection of the last time we saw him. It was at an evening party, a few days before he last sailed from England; his intimate friend, Mr. Browning, was also present. It happened that the latter was introduced that evening, for the first time, to a young author who had just then appeared in the literary world. This, consequently, prevented the two friends from conversation, and they parted from each other without the slightest idea, on Mr. Browning's part, that he was seeing his old friend Domett for the last time. Some days after, when he found that Domett had sailed, he expressed in strong terms, to the writer of this sketch, the self-reproach he felt at having preferred the conversation of a stranger to that of his old associate."

iv. 13, Monstr'-inform'-ingens-horrend-ous; a transposition of Virgil's description of Polyphemus, Æneid, iii. 657, Monstrum horrendum, informe, ingens, cui lumen adentum; a horrid monster, misshapen, huge, from whom sight had been taken away.

vi. 1, Ichabod, 1 Samuel iv. 21. (10) Vishnu-land, India, Vishnu being the second person of the Hindu Trinity. Avatar, incarnation. (24) lambwhite maiden, Iphigenia, carried to Taurus by Diana, when Agamemnon, her father, was about to sacrifice her for the sake of favorable winds for his expedition to Troy. (28) Dian's fane; Diana was worshipped in the Taurica Chersonesus. (54) Caldare Polidore, celebrated painter, 1492-1543, painted friezes in the Vatican. (57) Purcell, English musical composer, 1658-1695. Rosy Bowers, one of Purcell's celebrated songs, written in his last sickness.

276. THE TWINS. A poetical rendering of a passage in the Table Talk of Martin Luther, which in William Hazlitt's translation is numbered three hundred and sixteen, and is among the sayings "Of Justification:" "Give and it shall be given unto you; this is a fine maxim, and makes people poor and rich. . . . There is in Austria a monastery which, in former times, was very rich, and remained rich so long as it was charitable to the poor; but when it ceased to give, then it became indigent, and is so to this day. Not long since, a poor man went there and solicited alms, which was denied him: he demanded the cause why they refused to give for God's sake? The porter of the monastery answered: 'We are become poor;' whereupon the mendicant said: 'The cause of your poverty is this: Ye had formerly in this monastery two brethren, the one named Date (give), and the other Dabitur (it shall be given you). The former ye thrust out; and the other went away of himself. . . . Beloved, he that desires to have anything must also give; a liberal hand was never in want or empty.'"

281. THE PIED PIPER OF HAMELIN. This poem was written for the son of William Macready to give him something to illustrate when he was ill. It was included in the third number of Bells and Pomegranates to fill out the sheet. The story is interpreted as a myth of the wind in Baring-Gould's Curious Myths of the Middle Ages, and in Fiske's Myths and Myth-Makers. Browning found it in Nathaniel Wanley's Wonders of the Little World; or, A General History of Man, published in 1678 ; but he probably also used the version given in Richard Verstegan's Restitution of Decayed Intelligence, published in 1605, in which work the story is told as follows : —

“There came into the Towne of Hamel in the Country of Brunswycke [Hanover] an old kind of companion, who for the fantastieall Coate which he wore, being wrought with sundry colours, was called the pide piper : for a piper he was, besides his other qualities. This fellow forsooth offered the towns-men for a certaine somme of money to rid the Towne of all the Rats that were in it (for at that tyme the Burgers were with that vermine greatly annoyed). The accord in fine being made the pide Piper with a shril Pipe went Piping thorow the streets, and forthwith the Rats came all running out of the Houses in great numbers after him ; all which hee led into the River of Wæaser, and therein drowned them. This done, and no one Rat more perceived to be left in the Towne ; hee afterward came to demand his reward according to his bargaine, but being told that the bargain was not made with him in good earnest, to wit, with an opinion that ever he could bee able to doe such a feat : they cared not what they accorded unto, when they imagined it could never be deserved, and so never to bee demanded : but neverthelesse seeing hee had done such an unlikely thing indeed, they were content to give him a good reward ; and so offred him farre lesse then he lookt for : but hee therewith discontented, said he would have his full recompence according to his bargain ; but they utterly denied to give it him ; he threatened them with revenge ; they bad him doe his worst ; whereupon he betakes him againe to his Pipe, and going thorow the streets as before, was followed of a number of boyes out at one of the Gates of the City ; and comming to a little Hill, there opened in the side thereof a wid hole, into the which himself & all the children, being in number one hundreth and thirty, did enter ; and being entred, the Hill closed up againe, and become as before. A boy that being lame and came somewhat lagging behind the rest, seeing this that hapned, returned presently backe and told what he had seene ; forthwith began great lamentation among the Parents for their Children, and men were sent out withall diligence, both by land and water, to enquire if ought could be heard of them, but with all the enquiry they could possibly use, nothing more than is aforesaid could of them be understood. In memory whereof it was then ordained, that from thence-forth no Drumme, Pipe, or other instrument, should be sounded in the street leading to the gate thorow which they passed ; nor no Ostery to be there holden. And it was also established, that from that time forward, in all publike writings that should be made in that Towne, after the date therein set downe of the yeere of our Lord, the date of the yeere of the going forth of their Children should be added, the which they have accordingly ever since continued. And this great wonder hapned on the 22. day of Iuly, in the yeere of our Lord, 1376.”

289. THE FLIGHT OF THE DUCHESS. This poem took its rise from a line, “Following the Queen of the Gypsies, O !” the burden of a song which the poet, when a boy, heard a woman singing on a Guy Fawkes’ Day. As Browning was writing it, he was interrupted by the arrival of a friend on some important business, which drove all thoughts of the Duchess, and the scheme of her story, out of the poet's head. But some months after the publication of the first part when he was staying at Bettisfield Park, in Shropshire, a guest, speaking of early winter, said, "The deer had already to break the ice in the pond." On this a fancy struck the poet, and, on returning home, he worked it up into the conclusion of the poem as it now stands. In writing to Miss Barrett, under date of May 3, 1845, Browning said: "And 'The Flight of the Duchess,' to leave nothing out, is only the beginning of a story written some time ago, and given to poor Hood in his emergency at a day's notice, — the true stuff and story is all to come, the Flight and what you allude to is the mere introduction, — but the Magazine has passed into other hands, and I must put the rest in some Bell or other, — it is one of my Dramatic Romances." On July 25, in answer to Miss Barrett's comments and criticisms, he wrote: "So much for this 'Duchess,' which I shall ever rejoice in: wherever was a bud, even in that strip of May-bloom, a live musical bee hangs now. I shall let it lie (my poem) till just before I print it, and then go over it, alter at the places, and do something for the places where I (really) wrote anyhow, almost, to get done. It is an odd fact, yet characteristic of my accomplishings one and all in this kind, that of the poem, the real conception of an evening (two years ago, fully), — of that, not a line is written, though perhaps, after all, what I am going to call the accessories in the story are real though indirect reflexes of the original idea, and so supersede properly enough the necessity of its personal appearance, so to speak. But as I conceived the poem, it consisted entirely of the Gipsy's description of the life the Lady was to lead with her future Gipsy lover, — a real life, not an unreal one like that with the Duke. And as I meant to write it, all their wild adventures would have come out, and the insignificance of the former vegetation have been deducible only, as the main subject has become now; of course it comes to the same thing, for one would never show half by half, like a cut orange."

290: 43, red Berold, the old Duke's favorite hunting-horse.

291: 3, merlin, species of hawk. (5) falcon-lanner = falco lanarius, long-tailed species of hawk.

292: 2, lathy, long and slim. (13) urochs, wild bull; buffle, buffalo.

294: 35, St. Hubert, patron saint of huntsmen.

295: 4, Venerers, Prickers, and Verderers, huntsmen, light-horsemen, and guardians of the venison, and of the forest laws. (18) wind a mort, announce the taking of the deer. (28) sealed, seeled, term in falconry, meaning to close up the eyes of a hawk or other bird.

296: 33, fifty-part canon; in a letter to Professor Hiram Corson the poet said: "A canon in music is a piece wherein the subject is repeated, in various keys; and, being strictly obeyed in the repetition, becomes the 'canon' — the imperative law — to what follows. Fifty of such parts would be indeed a notable peal; to manage three is enough of an achievement for a good musician."

299: 16, helicat, hell-cat, hag or witch. (31) imps, repairs a wing by inserting feathers, Old English impen or ympen, to ingraft. (40) curveter, leaping horse.

300: 13, tomans, Persian coins. (23) token, presentiment or fore-warning. (34) you, ethical dative, of which the poem has many examples.

308: 16, I have seen, in imagination. (35) morion, a kind of helmet.

309: 37, Orson the wood-knight, described in the fifteenth century Romance of Valentine and Orson. Corson says that Orson was the twin brother of Valentine and son of Bellisant. The brothers were born in a wood near Orleans, and Orson was carried off by a bear (French ourson, a small bear), which suckled him with her cubs. When he grew up, he became the terror of France, and was called The Wild Man of the Forest. Ultimately he was reclaimed by his brother Valentine, overthrew the Green Knight, his rival in love, and married Fezon, daughter of the Duke of Savary, in Aquitaine.

310. A GRAMMARIAN'S FUNERAL. This poem is not based on any historical incident, though it gives a faithful description of the love of learning of the time mentioned in the title, as manifested in the pioneers of the Renaissance. Such men were Cyriac of Ancona, Filelfo, Pierre de Maricourt, and many other scholars. The word "grammarian" then had a larger meaning than now, for it signified a student in the wider sense, one devoted to letters or general learning. The aim of this poem, says R. H. Hutton in his Literary Essays, "is to bring out the strong, implicit faith in an eternal career, which there must be in any man who devotes his life wholly to the preliminary toil of mastering the rudiments of language." The speaker is the leader of the company who are bearing the Grammarian to his grave. The parts in parenthesis are the directions of the leader to his companions as they pass up the mountain with the corpse.

311: 46, Calculus, stone.

312: 2, Tussis, cough. (9) hydroptic, dropsical. (43) Hoti, Greek particle  $\theta\tau\iota$ , conjunction, that. (44) Oun, Greek particle  $\omicron\upsilon\nu$ , then, now then. (45) enclitic De, Greek  $\delta\epsilon$ , of which Browning wrote in a letter to the London Daily News, November 21, 1874: "In a clever article this morning you speak of 'the doctrine of enclitic De,' — 'which, with all deference to Mr. Browning, in point of fact does not exist.' No, not to Mr. Browning: but pray defer to Herr Buttman, whose fifth list of 'enclitics' ends with 'the inseparable De' — or to Curtius, whose fifth list ends also with 'De (meaning "towards" and as a demonstrative appendage).' That this is not to be confounded with the accentuated 'De, meaning but,' was the 'doctrine' which the Grammarian bequeathed to those capable of receiving it."

313. THE HERETIC'S TRAGEDY. In the note following the title the author says this poem is "a glimpse from the burning of Jacques du Bourg-Molay at Paris, A. D. 1314, as distorted by the refraction from Flemish brain to brain, during the course of a couple of centuries." Molay was the last Grand Master of the Knights Templars, one of the most powerful and popular of Middle-Age military organizations. The Knights Templars, or "Poor Fellow-soldiers of Jesus Christ," or "The Knighthood of the Temple of Solomon," as they called themselves, were organized very early in the twelfth century, as a result of the Crusades and the conquest of Jerusalem. They were a secular order intimately bound to the Church, and devoted to service in rescuing the Holy Land from the infidel. So long as the Crusades continued they grew in wealth and honor, came to have much influence in the countries of Western Europe, and governed Jerusalem or Cyprus. When the crusading spirit ended, a strong feeling arose against them, partly because they lost Jerusalem, and partly because the Western monarchs coveted their vast wealth. Philip IV. of France and Pope Clement V. joined to overthrow them, which they did by bringing many false charges against them, accusing them of the basest crimes. Many of them were burned, and their property was confiscated. Without doubt many of them had become very corrupt, though base motives influenced their enemies.

Molay and three other officers of the order were imprisoned in Paris for many months. Two of them acknowledged that their order was in the wrong, and were pardoned; but Molay and another nobleman, the Grand Preceptor of the order, were burned. In March, 1314, the four were taken from their prisons, loaded with chains, and brought to the place of execution. A confession was read, to which they were asked to assent. When the Grand Master was called upon to make confession, he refused so to do. "I do," he said, "confess my guilt, which consists in having, to my shame and dishonor, suffered myself, through the pain of torture and the fear of death, to give utterance to falsehoods, imputing scandalous sins and iniquities to an illustrious order, which hath nobly served the cause of Christianity. I disdain to seek a wretched and disgraceful existence by engrafting another lie upon the original falsehood." Here he was interrupted, and, with his faithful companion, the Grand Preceptor, who also declared his own innocence, he was hurried back to prison. The same day King Philip ordered their execution, and they were burned to death in a slow and lingering manner upon small fires of charcoal.

i. 8, plagal cadence, according to the editors of Poet-Lore, "a closing progression of chords in which the sub-dominant or chord on the fourth degree of the scale precedes the tonic or chord on the first degree of the scale. The name arises from the modes used in early church music called Plagal Modes, which were a transposition of the authentic modes beginning on the fourth degree of the authentic modes."

ii. 3, bought of Emperor Aldabrod; Clement condemned John because the riches won by the order during the Crusades had been used in behalf of the Sultan. (5) Pope Clement, fifth of that name, 1305-1314. (9) clavicithern, cithern with keys like a harpsichord.

iv. 8, Sing "Laudes," called lauds, singing of seven psalms of praise at matins.

vi. 4, Salva reverentia, saving reverence, reverential greeting to the Host in the service of the Mass.

-viii. 2, leman, sweetheart of either sex.

316. HOLY-CROSS DAY. The special incidents of this poem are not historical. The extract from the "Diary by the Bishop's Secretary, 1600," is a part of the satire of the piece, and was written by Browning. Holy-cross Day was September 14, and celebrated the finding of the true cross by Saint Helen, its origin dating back to the fifth or sixth century. Although Browning says at the end of the poem that "this bad business of the sermon" was abolished by Gregory XVI., 1831-1846, yet George S. Hillard, in his Six Months in Italy, written in 1853, says: "By a bull of Gregory XIII., in the year 1584, all Jews above the age of twelve years were compelled to listen every week to a sermon from a Christian priest; usually an exposition of some passage of the Old Testament, and especially those relating to the Messiah, from the Christian point of view. This burden is not yet wholly removed from them; and to this day, several times in the course of a year, a Jewish congregation is gathered together in the church of St. Angelo in Pescheria, and constrained to listen to a homily from a Dominican friar, to whom, unless his zeal have eaten up his good feelings and his good taste, the ceremony must be as painful as to his hearers."

321. THE STATUE AND THE BUST. These questions were once sent to Browning: "1. When, how, and where did it happen? Browning's divine vagueness lets one gather only that the lady's husband was a Riccardi. 2. Who was the lady? who the duke? 3. The magnificent house wherein Florence lodges her préfet is known to all Florentine ball-goers as the Palazzo Riccardi. It was bought by the Riccardi from the Medici in 1659. From none of its windows did the lady gaze at her more than royal lover. From what window, then, if from any? Are the statue and the bust still in their original positions?"

Browning made answer under date of January 8, 1887: "I have seldom met with such a strange inability to understand what seems the plainest matter possible: 'ball-goers' are probably not history-readers, but any guide-book would confirm what is sufficiently stated in the poem. I will append a note or two, however. 1. 'This story the townsmen tell;' 'when, how, and where,' constitutes the subject of the poem. 2. The lady was the wife of Riccardi; and the duke, Ferdinand, just as the poem says. As it was built by, and inhabited by, the Medici till sold, long after, to the Riccardi, it was not from the duke's palace, but a window in that of the Riccardi, that the lady gazed at her lover riding by. The statue is still in its place, looking at the window under which 'now is the empty shrine.' Can anything be clearer? My 'vagueness' leaves what to be 'gathered' when all these things are put down in black and white? Oh, 'ball-goers'!" (1) There's a palace in Florence, old Riccardi Palace, now the Palazzo Antinori, in square of Annunziati, in which stands the statue.

322: 6, Great-Duke Ferdinand, Grand Duke of Florence in 1587, a cardinal, but a capable ruler. (12) Riccardi, one of the leading families of Florence. (16) encolure, French, neck and shoulders of a horse. (19) emprise, enterprise. (30) because of a crime, that of Cosimo dei Medici and his grandson, Lorenzo, who lived in the Riccardi Palace, then Medici Palace, in destroying the liberties of Florence.

324: 16, Arno bowers, cool places by the river. (17) Petraja, a suburb of the city.

326: 16, Robbia's craft, the glazed ceramic work known as Della Robbia was largely made in Florence, and had its origin with the Robbia family in the sixteenth century.

327: 16, John of Douay, sculptor, 1424-1608, who executed the statue in 1608, and it was his last though not his best work.

328: 15, stamp of the very Guelph, English coins with head of Victoria, a Guelph. (31) De te, fabula! The fable is told concerning thee.

330. "CHILDE ROLAND TO THE DARK TOWER CAME." Browning distinctly said that this poem was written to exemplify constancy to an ideal, without definite allegorical purpose. Edgar's song in Shakespeare's Lear, iii. 4, was the basis of the poem, and gave the poet his title. Other elements were a piece of tapestry in the poet's room, which contained the picture of a lean horse: a tower he once saw in the Carrara Mountains, a painting of which he once caught a glimpse in Paris, wrought together in the poet's fervid imagination to produce the poem. In an article describing a visit to the poet, Rev. John W. Chadwick speaks of this tapestry and Mr. Browning's comments on the poem: "Upon the lengthwise wall of the room, above the Italian furniture, sombre and richly carved, was a long, wide band of tapestry, on which I thought I recognized the miserable horse of Childe Roland's pilgrimage:—

" ' One stiff blind horse, his every bone a-stare,
Stood stupefied, however he came there:
Thrust out past service from the devil's stud! "

I asked Mr. Browning if the beast of the tapestry was the beast of the poem; and he said yes, and descanted somewhat on his lean monstrosity. But only a Browning could have evolved the stanzas of the poem from the woven image. I further asked him if he had said that he only wrote Childe Roland for its realistic imagery, without any moral purpose,—a notion to which Mrs. Sutherland Orr has given currency; and he protested that he never had. When I asked him if constancy to an ideal—'He that endureth to the end shall be saved'—was not a sufficient understanding of the central purpose of the poem, he said, 'Yes, just about that.' "Childe" is a title of honor, about tantamount to "lord," says Brewer.

337. A SOUL'S TRAGEDY. (2) the ave-bell, rung half an hour after sunset as a signal to people to repeat the Ave-Maria, or Hail, Mary.

338: 41, holy-water drop, consecrated water at door of Catholic churches, into which each worshipper dips his finger and crosses himself as he enters.

339: 10, gauntlet-gatherer, champion who takes up gauntlet or glove when thrown down by enemy as challenge to battle. (32) Faenza, small town in Italy, twenty miles from Ravenna, with ceramic manufacturing, hence faience.

341: 8, by fascination, as if fascination or enchantment made him act in spite of himself.

342: 40, Lugo path, road to Lugo, ten miles from Faenza.

344: 8, scudi, old Roman coins, of about one dollar in value.

345: 23, trip-hook, thumbscrews and the gadge, instruments of torture. (31) Argenta, small town north from Lugo, on road to Ferrara and Venice.

348: 11, San Cassiano, village near Solferino, south of Lake Garda. (22) dico vobis, I tell you. (30) St. Neponucene, St. John Nepomuck, from birthplace in Bohemia, of which country he is the patron saint.

349: 11, Pontifical Legate, envoy of pope to other rulers. (12)

Cur fremuere gentes, Why do the people rage? Psalm ii. 1, in Vulgate or Catholic version.

355: 3, advocators, intercessors, or those who act for others. (25) young David, 1 Samuel xvii. 17.

356: 28, profane vulgar, profanum vulgus of Horace, Odes, iii. 1. 1.

358: 44, Let whoso thinketh, etc., 1 Corinthians x. 12.

362. LURIA. (2) Signory, at Florence the governing Council of Ten. (7) Lucchese, soldiers of Lucca, which city was on side of Pisa in an effort at this time to gain independency of Florence. (11) Luria holds Pisa's fortunes, not historical as descriptive of struggle in 1406 between Florence and Pisa, in which the latter was subdued. Not one of the leaders of the Florentine forces was a Moor, though mercenaries were employed by the Italian cities at this time. The play is based on certain historical details, however, for in Sapia Amminato's Florentine History it is related: "And when all was ready, the expedition marched to the gates of Pisa, under the command of Conte Bartoldo Orsini, a Ventusian captain, in the Florentine service, accompanied by Filippo di Megalotti, Rinaldo di Gian Figliuzzi, and Maso degli Albizzi, in the character of commissaries of the commonwealth. For although we have every confidence in the honor and fidelity of our general, you see it is always well to be on the safe side. And in the matter of receiving possession of a city . . . these nobles with the old feudal names! We know the ways of them! An Orsini might be as bad in Pisa as a Visconti, so we might as well send some of our own people to be on the spot. The three commissaries, therefore, accompanied the Florentine general to Pisa." (23) Commissary, commissioner or minister of state.

363: 14, Lapo, familiar name for Jacopo.

364: 33, Did he draw that? Browning appears to have been struck, in studying the Duomo, with the idea that a Moorish front would best complete it. Mr. Ernest Bradford discovered, in exploring a small museum in Florence, that one design offered had actually thus planned the completion of the building. His letter about this discovery Dr. Furnivall sent to Browning, who answered that he "never heard nor dreamed there had been any such notion at any time of a Moorish Front for the Duomo, — it was altogether a fancy of my own, illustrative of the feelings natural to Luria and Braccio, each after his kind." (35) unfinished Duomo, church of Santa Maria del Fiore, begun in 1294, but not completed until 1887.

366: 4, her whole House's fall, probably the fate of the Traversari, Porzio and Berto, father and brothers of Domizia, was suggested by that of the Albizzi, rivals of the Medici. After more than a half century of defence of Florence, the Albizzi were accused of treason and banished.

370: 38, the Mage Negro king to Christ the babe perhaps refers to pictures of the adoration of the magi, some of the legends representing one of the three as a descendant of Ham.

377: 16, broke the bread and given the salt, Arab custom that those are friends with whom one eats salt.

389: 20, our city authorizes . . . Luria's removal; the historic facts referred to are described by Napier, in his Florentine History, as follows: "The acquisition of Pisa was a serious affair at Florence, and great efforts were made to secure it. . . . Her army was first commanded by Jacopo Salviati, a Florentine citizen, who after some useful and active service was superseded by Bertoldo degli Orsini; but this general, showing more rapacity than soldiership, displeased the Florentines, and was ordered to resign his command to Obizzo da Monte Carelli. Active military operations had continued through the autumn of 1405, and when the camp was pitched before Pisa, almost all its territory had been subdued. . . . After this the growing rivalry of Sforza and Tartaglia began to trouble the camp so much that they were placed by order of the Seigniorship in distinct and distant commands, with their separate forces, for in those days armies were like a piece of patchwork, composed of many small independent bands, with but little subordination amongst any who were strong enough to be troublesome, unless awed by high rank or the acknowledged fame of some able chieftain. . . . As famine was still eating on its silent way Gambacorta [one of the Pisan leaders] secretly renewed the negotiations with Gino Capponi, and finally consented to a capitulation. . . . After this resolute conduct Gino repaired to Florence and explained all to the Seigniorship. . . . Gino Capponi and Bartolommeo Corbinelli were appointed public syndics to complete the transaction. . . . Gino then took possession of the public palace and commenced Florentine rule."

393: 22, him who first ordained that Florence . . . should be, Dante, whose ideal of the supremacy of Florence in Italy helped to bring about that result, and who, in 1293, helped to remodel her constitution. (25) him a star, too, guided; Luria would be guided in his spiritual aspirations by Domizia, as Dante had been by Beatrice.

397: 6, Pesa . . . Lupo, the places on heights about Florence where towers and fortifications were erected in 1300.
