

CONTENTS

Introduction	vii
Prologue	1
I. Showing that the system of the universe originates in the Self, and that the continuation of the life of all individuals depends on strengthening the Self	16
II. Showing that the life of the Self comes from forming desires and bringing them to birth	23
III. Showing that the Self is strengthened by Love	28
IV. Showing that the Self is weakened by asking	38
V. Showing that when the Self is strengthened by Love it gains dominion over the outward and inward forces of the universe	43
VI. A tale of which the moral is that negation of the Self is a doctrine invented by the subject races of mankind in order that by this means they may sap and weaken the character of their roles	48
VII. To the effect that Plato, whose thought has deeply influenced the mysticism and literature of Islam, followed the sheep's doctrine, and that we must be on our guard against his theories	56
VIII. Concerning the true nature of poetry and the reform of Islamic literature	60
IX. Showing that the education of the self has three stages : Obedience, Self-control, and Divine Vicegerence	72
X. Setting forth the inner meanings of the names of Ali	85
XI. Story of a young man of Merv who came to the saint Ali Hujwiri-God have mercy on him and complained that he was oppressed by the enemies	95
XII. Story of the bird that was faint with thirst	100
XIII. Story of the diamond and the coal	104
XIV. Story of the Sheikh and the Brahmin, followed by a conversation between Ganges and Himalayas to the effect that the continuation of social life depends on firm attachment to the characteristic traditions of the community	108
XV. Showing that the purpose of the Muslims 's like is to exalt the Word of Allah, and that the Jihad (was against unbelievers), if it be prompted by land-hunger, is unlawful in the religion of Islam	116
XVI. Precepts written for the Muslims of India by Mir Najat Nakshbandi. Who is generally known as Baba Sahr'ai	122
XVII. Time is a sword	134
XVIII. An invocation	141

THE Asrar-i-Khudi was first published at Lahore in 1915. I read it soon afterwards and thought so highly of it that I wrote to Iqbal, whom I had the pleasure of meeting at Cambridge some fifteen years ago, asking leave to prepare an English translation. My proposal was cordially accepted, but in the meantime I found other work to do, which caused the translation to be laid aside until last year. Before submitting it to the reader, a few remarks are necessary concerning the poem and its author-

1. The present translation follows the text of the second edition.

Iqbal is an Indian Muslim. During his stay in the West he studied modern philosophy, in which subjects he holds degrees from the Universities of Cambridge and Munich. His dissertation on the development of metaphysics in Persia-an illuminating sketch-appeared as a book in 1908. Since then he has developed a philosophy of his own, on which I am able to give some extremely interesting notes communicated by himself. Of this, however, the Asrar-i-Khudi gives no systematic account, though it puts his ideas in a popular and attractive form. While the Hindu philosophers, in explaining the doctrine of the unity of being, addressed themselves to the head, Iqbal, like the Persian poets who teach the same doctrine, takes a more dangerous course and aims at the heart. He is no mean poet, and his verse can rouse or persuade even if his logic fail to convince. His message is not for the Mohammedans of India alone, but for Muslims everywhere: accordingly he writes in Persian instead of Hindustani a happy choice, for amongst educated Muslims there are many familiar with Persian literature, while the Persian language is singularly well-adapted to express philosophical ideas in a style at once elevated and charming.

Iqbal comes forward as an apostle, if not to his own age, then to posterity

"I have no need of the ear of To-day.
I am the voice of the poet of To-morrow"

and after Persian fashion he invokes the Saki to fill his cup with wine and pour moonbeams into the dark night of his thought.

That I may lead home the wanderer.
And imbue the idle looker-on with restless impatience.
And advance hotly on a new quest.
And become known as the champion of a new spirit."

Let us begin at the end. What is the far-off goal on which his eyes are fixed? The answer to that question will discover his true character, and we shall be less likely to stumble on the way if we see whither we are going. Iqbal has drunk deep of European literature, his philosophy owes much to Nietzsche and Bergson, and his poetry; often reminds us of Shelley; yet he thinks and feels as a Muslim, and just for this reason his influence may be great. He is a religious enthusiast, inspired by the vision of a New Mecca, a world-wide, theocratic, Utopian state in which all Muslims, no longer divided by the barriers of race and country, shall be one. He will have nothing to do with nationalism and imperialism. -These, he says, "rob us of Paradise": they make us strangers to each Other, destroy feelings of brotherhood, and sow the bitter seed of war. He dreams of a world ruled by religion, not by politics, and condemns Machiavelli, that "worshipper of false goods," who has blinded so many. It must be observed that when he speaks of religion he always means Islam. Non-Muslims are simply unbelievers, and (in theory, at any rate) the Jihad is justifiable, provided that it is waged "for God's sake alone." A free and independent Muslim fraternity, having the Ka'ba as its centre and knit together by love of Allah and devotion to the Prophet-such is Iqbal's ideal. In the Asrar-i-Khudi and the Ramuz-i-Bekhudi he preaches it with a burning sincerity which we cannot but admire, and at the same time points out how it may be attained. The former poem deals with the life of the individual Muslim, the latter with the life of the Islamic community.

The cry "Back to the Koran! Back to Mohammad!" has been heard before, and the responses have hitherto been somewhat discouraging. But on this occasion it is allied with the revolutionary force of Western philosophy, which Iqbal hopes and believes will vitalise the movement and ensure its triumph. He sees that Hindu intellectualism and Islamic pantheism have destroyed the capacity for action, based on scientific observation and interpretation of phenomena, which distinguishes the Western peoples "and especially the English." Now; this capacity depends ultimately on the conviction that Khudi (selfhood, individuality, personality) is real and is not merely an illusion of the mind. Iqbal, therefore, throws himself with all his might against idealistic philosophers and pseudo-mystical poets, the authors, in his opinion, of the decay prevailing in Islam, and argues that only by self affirmation, self-expression, and self development can the Muslims once more become strong and -free. He appeals from the alluring raptures of Hafiz to the moral fervour of Jalalu'd din Rumi, from an Islam sunk in Platonic contemplation to the fresh and vigorous monotheism which inspired Mohammed and brought Islam into existence-' Here, perhaps, I should guard against a possible misunderstanding Iqbal's philosophy is religious, but he does not treat philosophy as the handmaid of religion. Holding that the full development of the individual presupposes a society, he finds the ideal society in what he considers to be the Prophet's conception of Islam. Every Muslim, in striving to make himself a more perfect individual, is helping to establish the-Islamic kingdom of God

1. His criticism of Hafiz called forth angry protests from Sufi circles in which Hafiz is venerated as a master-hierophant. Iqbal made no recantation, but since the passage had served its purpose and was offensive to many he cancelled it in the second edition of the poem. It was omitted in my translation.

upon earth.'

The Asrar-i-Khudi is composed in the metre and modelled on the style of the famous Masnavi. In the prologue Iqbal relates how Jalalu'd din Rumi, who is to him almost what Virgil was to Dante, appeared in a vision and bade him arise and sing. Much as he dislikes the type of Sufism exhibited by Hafiz, he pays homage to the pure and profound genius of Jalalu'ddin, though he rejects the doctrine of self-abandonment taught by the great Persian mystic and does not accompany him in his pan

1. The principles of Islam, regarded as the ideal society, as set forth in the author's second poem, the Rumuz-i-BeKhudi or "Mysteries of Selflessness." He explains the title by pointing out that the individual who loses himself in the community reflects both the past and the future as in a mirror, so that he transcends mortality and enters into that life of Islam, which is infinite and everlasting. Among the topics discussed are the origin of society, the divine guidance of man through the prophets, the formation of collective life centres, and the value of History as a factor in maintaining the sense of personal entity in a people.

theistic Rights.

To European readers the Asrar-i Khudi presents certain obscurities which no translation can entirely remove. These lie partly in the form and would not be felt, as a rule, by any one conversant with Persian poetry. Often, however, the ideas themselves, being associated with peculiarly Oriental ways of thinking, are hard for our minds to follow. I am not sure that I have always grasped the meaning or rendered it correctly; but I hope that such errors are few, thanks to the assistance so kindly given me by my friend Muhammad Shafi, now Professor of Arabic at Lahore, with whom I read the poem and discussed many points of difficulty. Other questions of a more fundamental character have been solved for me by the author himself. At my request he drew up a statement of his philosophical- views on the problem touched and suggested in the book. I will give it in his own words as nearly as possible. It is not, of course, a complete statement, and was written, as he says, "in a great hurry," but apart from its power and originality it elucidates the poetical argument for better than any explanation that could have been offered by me.

1. THE PHILOSOPHICAL BASIS OF THE ASRAR-I-KHUDI

"The experience should take place in finite centres and should wear the form of finite this-ness is in the end inexplicable.' These are the words of Prof. Bradley. But starting- with these inexplicable centres of experience, he ends in a unity which -he calls Absolute and in which the finite centres lose their finiteness and distinctness. According to him, therefore, the finite centre is only an appearance. The test of reality, in his opinion is all-inclusiveness; and since all finiteness is 'infected with relativity, it follows that the latter is a mere illusion. To my mind, this inexplicable finite centre of experience is the fundamental fact of the universe. All life is individual; there is no such thing as universal life. God himself is an individual: He is the most unique individual.' The universe, as Dr. McTaggart says, is an -association of individual ; but we must add that the orderliness and adjustment which we find in this association is not eternally achieved and complete in itself. it is the result of instinctive or conscious effort. We are gradually travelling from chaos to cosmos and are helpers in this achievement. Nor are the members of the association fixed; new members are ever coming to birth to co-operate in the great task. Thus the universe is not a completed act: it is still in the course of formation. There can be no complete truth about the universe, for the universe has not yet become 'whole.' The process of creation is still going on, and man too takes his share in it, inasmuch as he helps to bring order into at least a portion of the chaos. The Koran indicates the possibility of other creators than God.¹

1. This view was held by the orthodox Imam Ahmad ibn Hanbal in its extreme (anthropomorphic) form.

"Obviously this view of man and the universe is opposed to that of the English Neo-Hegelians as well as to all forms of pantheistic Sufiism which regard absorption in a universal life or soul as the final aim and salvation of man.² The moral and religious ideal of man is not self-negation but self-affirmation, and he attains to this ideal by becoming more and more individual, more and more unique. The Prophet said, 'Takhallaqu bi-akhlaq Allah,' 'Create in yourselves the attributes of God.' Thus man becomes unique by becoming more and more like the most unique Individual.

1. Koran, ch. 23. v. 14. -Blessed is God. the best of those who create.

2. Cf. his note on "Islam and Mysticism (The New Era, 1916, p. 250).

What then is life? It is individual : its highest form, so far, is the Ego (Khudi) in which the individual becomes a self contained exclusive centre. Physically as well as spiritually man is a self-contained centre, but he is not yet a complete individual. The greater his distance from God, the less his individuality. He who comes nearest to God is the completest person. Nor that he is finally absorbed in God. On the contrary, he absorbs God into himself.¹ The true person not only absorbs the world of matter; by mastering it he absorbs God Himself into his Ego. Life is a forward assimilative movement. It removes all obstructions in its march by assimilating them. Its essence is the continual creation of desires and ideals,

1. Here Iqbal adds : "Maulana Rumi has very beautifully expressed this idea. The Prophet, when a little boy, was once lost in the desert. His nurse Halima was almost beside herself with grief but while roaming the desert in search of the boy she heard a voice saying:

'Do not grieve he will not be lost to thee;
Nay, the whole world will be lost in him.'

The true individual cannot be lost in the world; it is the world that lost in him. I go a step further and say, prefixing a new half-verse to a hemistich of Rumi Trans. 1. 1325):

In his will that which God wills becomes lost;
'How shall a man believe this saying?'

and for the purpose of its preservation and expansion it has invented or developed out of itself certain instruments, ,e.g., senses, intellect, etc., which help in to assimilate obstructions.¹ The greatest obstacle in the way of life is matter. Nature ; yet Nature is not evil, since it enables the inner powers of life to unfold themselves.

"The Ego attains to freedom by the removal of all observations in its way. It is partly free, partly determined², and

1. Transl. 1. 289 foil.

2. According to the Tradition, -The true Faith is between predestination and free-will," reaches fuller freedom by approaching the Individual. who is most free-God. In one word, life is an endeavour for freedom.

2. THE EGO AND CONTINUATION OF PERSONALITY

"In man the centre of life becomes an Ego or Person. Personality is a state of tension and can continue only if that state is maintained. If the state of tension is not maintained,, relaxation will ensue. Since personality, or the state of tension, is the most valuable achievement of man, he should see that he does not revert to a state of relaxation. That which tends to maintain the state of tension tends to make us immortal. Thus the idea of personality gives us a standard of value : it settles the problem of good and evil. That which fortifies personality is good, that which weakens it is bad. Art,¹ religion, and ethics² must be judged from the stand-point of personality. My criticism of Plato³ is directed against those philosophical systems which hold up death rather than life as their ideal-systems which ignore the greatest obstruction to life, namely, matter, and teach us to run away from it instead of absorbing it.

1. Transl. 1, 673 foll. In a note on ,Our Prophet's criticism of contemporary Arabian poetry" (The New Era. 1916, p. 251) Iqbal writes : "The ultimate end of all human activity is Life glorious, powerful, exuberant. All human art must be subordinated to this final purpose, and the value of everything must be determined in reference to its life-yielding capacity The highest art is that which awakens our dormant will-force and braves us to face the trials of life manfully. All that brings drowsiness and makes us shut our eyes to Reality around, on the mastery of which alone Life depends, is a message of decay and death. There should be no opium eating in Art. The dogma of Art for the sake of Art is a clever invention of decadence to cheat us out of life and power."

2. Ibid. 1. 537 foll.

3. Ibid, 1. 631 foll.

"As in connexion with the question of the freedom of the Ego we have to face the problem of matter, similarly in connexion with its immortality we have to face the problem of time.' Bergson has taught us that time is not an infinite line (in the spatial sense of the word 'line') through which we must pass whether we wish it or not. This idea of time is adulterated. Pure time has no length. Personal immortality is an aspiration: you can have it if you make an effort to achieve it. It depends on our adopting, in this life modes of thought and activity which tend to maintain the state of tension. Buddhism, Persian Sufism and allied forms of ethics will not serve our purpose. But they are not wholly useless, because after periods of great activity we need opiates, narcotics, for some time. Their forms of thought and action are like, nights in the days of life. Thus, if our activity is directed towards the maintenance of a state of tension, the shock of death is not likely to affect it. After death there may be an interval of relaxation, as the Koran speaks of a barzakh, or intermediate state, which lasts until the Day of Resurrection¹. Only those Egos will survive this state of relaxation who have taken good care during the present life. Although life abhors repetition in its evolution, yet on Bergson's principles the resurrection of the body too, as Wildon Carr says, is quite possible. By breaking up time into moments we spatialise it and then find difficulty in getting over it. The true nature of time is reached when we look into our deeper self.² Real time is life itself which can preserve itself by maintaining that. particular state of tension (personality) which it has so far achieved. We are subject to time so long as we look upon time as something spatial.. Spatialised time is a fetter which life has forged for itself in order to assimilate the present environment. In reality we are timeless, and it is possible to realise our timelessness even in this life. This revelation, however, can be momentary only.

Koran, ch. 23, v. 102.

2. Transl. 1, 15" foll.

3. THE EDUCATION OF THE EGO

"The Ego is fortified by love (Ishq)¹. This word is used in a very wide sense and means the desire to assimilate, to absorb. Its highest form is the creation of values and ideals and the endeavour to realise them. Love individualises the lover as well as the beloved. The effort to realise the most unique individuality individualises the seeker and implies the individuality of the sought, for nothing else would satisfy the nature of the seeker. As love fortifies the Ego, asking (sua'f) weakens it." All that is achieved without personal effort comes under sua'f. The son of a rich man who inherits his father's wealth is an 'asker' (beggar); so is every one who thinks the thoughts of others. Thus, in order to fortify the Ego we should cultivate love, i.e. the power of assimilative action, and avoid all forms of 'asking, ie. inaction. The lesson of assimilative action is given by the life of the Prophet, at least to a Muhammadan.¹

1. Transl. 1, 323 foll.

"In another part of the poem² I have hinted at the general principles of Muslim ethics and have tried to reveal their meaning in connexion with the idea of personality. The Ego in its movement towards uniqueness has to pass through three stages :

1. Transl. 1, 435 foll.

2. Ibid. 1. 815 foll.

- (a) Obedience to the Law.
- (b) Self-control, which is the highest form of self-consciousness or Ego-hood!¹
- (c) Divine vicegerency.²

"This (divine vicegerency, niyabat-e-Alahi) is the third and last stage of human development on earth. The na'ib (vicegerent) is the vicegerent of God on earth. He is the completest Ego, the goal of humanity³, the acume of life both in mind and body; in him the -discord of our mental life becomes a harmony. This highest power is united in him with the highest knowledge. In this life thought and action, instinct and reason

1. Transl. 1. 849 foll.

2. Ibid. 1. 893 foll.

3. Man already possesses the germ of vicegerency as God says in the Koran (ch. 2. v. 28) ; Lo! I will appoint a khalifa (vicegerent) on the earth." Cf. Transl 1,434.

become one. He is the last fruit of the tree of humanity, and all the trial of a painful evolution are justified because he is to come at the end. He is the real ruler of mankind; his kingdom is the kingdom of God on earth. Out of the richness of his nature he lavishes the wealth of life on others, and brings them nearer and nearer to himself. The more we advance in evolution,, the nearer we get to him. In approaching him we are raising ourselves in the scale of life. The development of humanity both in mind and body is a condition precedent to his birth. For the present he is a mere ideal ; but the evolution of humanity is tending towards the production of an ideal race of more or less unique individuals who will become his fitting parents. Thus the Kingdom of God on earth means the democracy of more or less unique individuals, presided over by the most unique individual possible on this earth. Nietzsche had a glimpse of this ideal race, but his atheism and aristocratic prejudices marred his whole conception."¹

Every one, I suppose, will acknowledge that the substance of the Asrar i-Khudi is striking enough to command attention. In the -poem, naturally, this philosophy presents itself under a different aspect. Its audacity of thought and phrase is less apparent, its logical brilliance dissolves in the glow of feeling and imagination, and it wins the heart before taking possession of the mind. The artistic quality of the poem is remarkable when we consider that its language is not the author's own I have done my best to preserve as much of this as a literal prose translation would allow. Many passages of the original are poetry of the kind that, once read, is not easily forgotten, e.g. the description of the Ideal Man as a deliverer for whom the word is waiting, and the noble invocation which brings the book to an end. Like Jalal'uddin Rumi, Iqbal is fond of introducing fables and apologues to relieve the argument and illustrate his meaning with more force and point than would be possible otherwise.

1. Writing of "Muslim Democracy" in The New Era, 1916, p. 251. Iqbal says: -"The Democracy of Europe fear overshadowed by socialistic agitation and anarchical—originated mainly in the economic regeneration of European societies. Nietzsche, however, abhors this 'rule of the heard' and, hopeless of the plebeian, he bases all higher culture on the cultivation and growth of an Aristocracy of Supermen. But is the plebeian so absolutely hopeless ? The Democracy of Islam did not grow out of the extension of economic opportunity; it is a spiritual principle based on the assumption that every human being is a centre of latent power the possibilities of which can be developed by cultivating a certain type of character. One of the plebeian material Islam has formed men of the noblest type of life and power. Is not, then, the Democracy of early Islam an experimental refutation of the ideas of Nietzsche ?"

On its first appearance the Asrar-i Khudi took by storm the younger generation of Indian Muslim. 'Iqbal," wrote one of them, "has come amongst us as a Messiah and has stirred the dead with life." It remains to be seen in what direction the awakened one will march. Will they -be satisfied with a glorious but distant vision or the City of God, or will they adapt the new doctrine to other ends than those which its author has in view ? Notwithstanding that he explicitly denounces the idea of nationalism, his admirers are already protesting that he does not mean what he says.

How far the influence of his work may ultimately go I will not attempt to prophesy. It has been said of him that "he is a man of his age and a man in advance of his age; he is also a man in disagreement with his age." We cannot regard his ideas as typical of any section of his co-religionists. They involve a radical change-in the Muslim mind, and their real importance is not to be measured by the fact that such a change is unlikely to occur within a calculable time.

PROLOGUE

WHEN the world-illuming sun rushed, upon Night like a brigand,
My weeping bedewed the face of the rose.
My tears washed away sleep from the eye of the narcissus,
My passion wakened the grass and made it grow.
The Gardener tried the power of my song, 5
He sowed my verse and reaped a sword.
In the soil he planted only the seed of my tears
And wove my lament with the garden, as warp and woof.

Tho' I am but a mote, the radiant sun is mine:
 Within my bosom are a hundred dawns. 10
 My dust is brighter than Jamshid's cup-“
 It knows things that are yet unborn in the world.
 My thought hunted down and slung from the saddle a deer.
 That has not yet leaped forth from the covert of non-existence.
 Fair is my garden ere yet the leaves are green: 15
 Unborn roses are hidden in the skirt of my garment.
 I struck dumb the musicians where they were gathered together,
 I smote the heart-string of the universe,
 Because the lute of my genius hath a rare melody:
 Even to comrades my song is strange. 20

1. Jamshaid one of the mythical Persian kings, is said to have possessed a marvellous cup in which the whole world was displayed to him.

I am born in the world as a new sun,
I have not learned the ways and fashions of the sky
Not yet have the stars fled before my splendour,
Not yet is my quicksilver astir;
Untouched is the sea by my dancing rays, 25
Untouched are the mountains by my crimson hue.
The eye of existence is not familiar with me;
I rise trembling, afraid to show myself.
From the East my dawn arrived and routed Night,
A fresh dew settled on the rose of the world. 30
I am waiting for the votaries that rise at dawn;
Oh, happy they who shall worship my fire!
I have no need of the ear of To-day,

I am the voice of the poet of To-morrow
My own age does not understand my deep meanings, 35
My Joseph is not for this market.
I despair of my old companions,
My Sinai burns forsake of the Moses who is coming.
Their sea is silent, like dew,
But my dew is storm-ridden, like the ocean. 40
My song is of another world than theirs:
This bell calls other travellers to take the road,
Many a poet was born after his death,
Opened our eyes when his own were closed.,
And journeyed forth again from nothingness, 45
Like roses blossoming o'er the earth of his grave.
Albeit caravans have passed through this desert,

They passed, as a camel steps, with little sound.
 But I am a lover: loud crying is my faith
 The clamour of Judgment Day is one of my minions. 50
 My song exceeds the range of the chord,
 Yet I do not fear that my lute will break.
 Twere better for the water drop not to know my torrent,
 Whose fury should rather madden the sea.
 No river will contain my Oman:¹ 55
 My flood requires whole seas to hold it.
 Unless the bud expand into a bed of roses,
 It is unworthy of my spring-cloud's bounty.
 Lightnings slumber within my soul,

1. The Sea of omān in a [name given by the Arabs to the Persian Gulf.

I sweep over mountain and plain. 60
Wrestle with my sea, if thou art a plain;
Receive my lightning if thou art a Sinai.
The Fountain of Life hath been given me to drink.
I have been made an adept of the mystery of Life.
The speck of dust was vitalised by my burning song: 65
It unfolded wings-and became a firefy.
No one hath. told the secret which I will tell
Or threaded a pearl of thought like mine
Come, if thou would'st know the secret of everlasting life
Come, if thou would'st win both earth and heaven. 70
Heaven taught me this lore,
I cannot hide it from comrades.

O Saqi arise and pour wine into the cup!
 Clear the vexation of Time from my heart
 The sparkling liquor that flows from Zemzen¹ 75
 Were a beggar to worship it, he would become a king.
 It makes thought more sober and wise, it makes the keen eye keener,
 it gives to a straw the weight of a mountain,
 And to foxes the strength of lions. 80
 It causes dust to soar to the Pleiades
 And a drop of waters well to the breadth of the sea.
 it turns silence Into the din of Judgment Day, it makes the foot of the partridge red with blood of the hawk.

1. The holy well at Mecca

Arise and pour pure wine into my cup, 85
Pour moon beams into the dark night of my thought,
That I may lead home the wanderer
And imbue the idle looker on with rest less impatience;
And advance hotly on a new quest
And become known as the champion of a new spirit: 90
And be to people of insight as the pupil to the eye,
And sink into the ear of the world, like a voice;
And exalt the worth of Poesy
And sprinkle the dry herbs with my tears.”¹

1. Iqbal means to say that he will raise the value of his poetry by putting his deepest aspirations into it. The metaphor refers to the practice of herb-sellers who sprinkle water on their herbs in order to make them heavier and fetch more money.

Inspired by the genius of the Master of Rum.'	95
I reherarse the sealed book of secret lore.
His soul is the flaming furnace,
I am but as the spark that gleams for a moment.
His burning candle consumed me, I the moth;
His wine overwhelmed my goblet.	100
The master of Rum transmuted my earth to gold
And set my ashes aflame.
The grain of sand set forth from the desert,
That it might win the radiance of the sun.
I am a wave and I will come to rest in his sea,	105

1. Jalāluddīn Rūmī the greatest mystical poet of Persia (A.D. 1207-1173). Most of his life was passed at Iconium in Galatia. for which reason he is generally known as "Rūmī. i.e. "the Anatolian."

That I may make the glistening pearl mine own.
 I who am drunken with the wine of his song.
 Draw life from the breath of his words,
 'Twas night my heart would fain lament.
 The silence was filled with my cries to God. 110
 I was complaining of the sorrows of the world.
 And bewailing the emptiness of my cup.
 At last mine eye could endure no more,
 Broken with fatigue it went to sleep.
 There appeared the Master, formed in the mould of Truth, 115
 Who wrote the Koran in Persian.
 He said, "O frenzied lover,
 Take a draught of love's pure wine.

1. This refers to the fatuous Masnavi of Jalāl-uddin Rūmī

Strike¹ the chords of thine heart and rouse a tumultuous strain.
 Dash thine head against the goblet and thine eye against the lancet! 120
 Make thy laughter the source of a hundred sighs.
 Make the hearts of men bleed with thy tears
 How long wilt thou be silent, like a bud?
 Sell thy fragrance cheap, like the rose!
 Tongue-tied, thou art in pain: 125
 Cast thyself upon the fire, like rue!
 Like the bell, break silence at last, and from every limb.
 Utter forth a lamentation!
 Thou art fire: fill the world with thy glow!
 Make others burn with thy burning! 130
 Proclaim the secrets of the old wine seller;²

1. Rue-seed. which is burned for the purpose of fumiation, crackles in the fire.

2. "Wine" signifies the mysteries. of divine love.

Be thou a surge of wine, and the crystal cup thy robe !
 Shatter the mirror of fear,
 Break the bottles in the bazaar
 Like the reed-flute, bring a message from the reed-bed 135
 Give to Majnun a message from the tribe of Laila!¹
 Create a new style for thy song,
 Enrich the assembly with thy piercing strains
 Up, and re-inspire every living soul
 Say 'Arise !' and by that word quicken the living 140
 Up, and set thy feet on another path
 Put aside the passionate melancholy of old !
 Become familiar with the delight of singing; bell of the caravan, awake!"

1. Majnūn is the Orlando Furioso of Arabia.

At these words my bosom was enkindled 145
And swelled with emotion like the flute;
I rose like music from the string
To prepare a Paradise for the ear.
I unveiled the mystery of the Self
And disclosed its wondrous secret. 150
My being was an unfinished statue,
Uncomely, worthless, good for nothing.
Love chiselled me: I became a man.
And gained knowledge of the nature of the universe.
I have seen the movement of the sinews of the sky. 155
And the blood coursing in the veins of the moon.
Many a night I wept for Man's sake
That I might tear the veil from Life's mysteries.
And extract the secret of Life's constitution

From the laboratory of phenomena. 160
 I who give beauty to this night, like the moon,
 Am as dust in devotion to the pure Faith (Islam)
 A Faith renowned in hill and dale.
 Which kindles in men's hearts a flame of undying song:
 It sowed an atom and reaped a sun, 165
 It harvested a hundred poets like Rumi and Attar.
 I am a sigh: I will mount to the heavens;
 I am but smoke, yet am I sprung of fire.
 Driven onward by high thoughts, my pen
 Cast abroad the secret behind this veil, 170
 That the drop may become co-equal with the sea
 And the grain of sand grow into a Sahara.
 Poetising is not the aim of this Masnavi.
 Beauty-worshipping and love-making is not its aim.

I am of India: Persian is not my native tongue; 175
 I am like the crescent moon: my cup is not full.
 Do not seek from me charm of style in exposition.
 Do not seek not from me Khansar and Isfahan.'
 Although the language of Hind is sweet as sugar,
 Yet sweeter is the fashion of Persian speech. 180
 My mind was enchanted by its loveliness.
 My pen became as a twig of the Burning Bush.
 Because of the loftiness of my thoughts,
 Persian alone is suitable to them.
 O Reader I do not find fault with the wine-cup. 185
 But consider attentively the taste of the wine.

1. Khānsār. which lies about a hundred miles north west of Isfahān, was the birth-Place Of several Persian poets.

I

Showing that the System of the universe originates in the Self and that the continuation of the life of all individuals depends on strengthening the Self.

THE form of existence is an effect of the Self,
Whatsoever thou seest is a secret of the Self,
When the Self awoke to consciousness.
It revealed the universe of Thought.

A hundred words are hidden in its essence:

190

Self-affirmation brings Not-self to light.

By the Self the seed of opposition is sown in the word:

It imagines itself to be other than itself
It makes from itself the forms of others 195
In order to multiply the pleasure of strife.
It is slaying by the strength of its arm
That it may become conscious of its own strength.
Its self-deceptions are the essence of Life;
Like the rose, it lives by bathing itself in blood. 200
For the sake of a single rose it destroys a hundred rose gardens
And makes a hundred lamentation in quest of a single melody.
For one sky it produces a hundred new moons,
And for one word a hundred discourses.
The excuse for this wastefulness and cruelty 205
Is the shaping and perfecting of spiritual beauty.

The loveliness of Shirin justifies the anguish of Farhad.¹
 One fragrant navel justifies a hundred musk-deer.
 'Tis the fate of moths to consume in flame:
 The suffering of moths is justified by the candle. 210
 The pencil of the Self limped a hundred to-days
 In order to achieve the dawn of a single morrow.
 Its flames burned a hundred Abrahams²
 That the lamp of one Muhammad might be lighted.
 Subject, object, means, and causes— 215
 All these are forms which it assumes for the purpose of action.

1 Shirin was loved by the Persian Emperor Kbusrau Parwiz Farhād fell in love with her and cast himself down a precipice on bearing a false rumour of her death.

2. Abraham is said to have been cast on a burning pile by order of Nimrod and miraculously preserved from harm

The Self rises, kindles, falls, glows, breathes,
Burns, shines, walks, and flies.
The spaciousness of Time is its arena,
Heaven is a billow of the dust on the road. 220
From its rose-planting the world abounds in roses;
Night is born of its sleep, day springs from its waking.
It divided its flame into sparks
And taught the understanding to worship particulars.
It dissolved itself and created the atoms 225
It was scattered for a little while and created sands.
Then it wearied of dispersion
And by re-uniting itself it became the mountains.
'Tis the nature of the Self to manifest itself
In every atom slumbers the might of the Self. 230

Power that is expressed and inert
Chains the faculties which lead to action.
Inasmuch as the life of the universe comes from the power of the Self,
Life is in proportion to this power.
When a drop of water gets of Self's lesson by heart, 235
it makes its worthless existence a pearl.
Wine is formless because its self is weak;
It receives a form by favour of the cup.
Although the cup of wine assumes a form,
It is indebted to us for its motion. 240
When the mountain loses its self, it turns into sands
And complains that the sea surges over it;
The wave, so long as it remains a wave in the sea's bosom.¹

1, I.e., so long as it remains as distinct individual,

Makes itself rider on the sea's back.
Light transformed itself into an eye 245
And moved to and fro in search of beauty;
When the grass found a means of growth in its self,
Its aspiration clove the breast of the garden.
The candle too concatenated itself
And built itself out of atoms; 250
Then it made a practice of melting itself away and fled from its self
Until at last it trickled down from its own eye, like tears.
If the bezel had been more self secure by nature,
It would not have suffered wounds,
But since it derives its value from the superscription, 255
Its shoulder is galled by the burden of another's name.

Because the earth is firmly based on itself,
The captive moon goes round it perpetually.
The being of the sun is stronger than that of the earth
Therefore is the earth fascinated by the sun's eye. 260
The glory of the red beech fixes our gaze.
The mountains are enriched by its majesty
Its raiment is woven of fire,
Its origin is one self-assertive seed.
When Life gathers strength from the Self, 260
The river of Life expands into an ocean

II

Showing that the life of the Self comes from forming ideals and bringing them to birth.

LIFE is preserved by purpose
Because of the goal its caravan-bell tinkles.
Life Is latent in seeking,
Its origin is hidden in desire. 270
Keep desire alive in thy heart,
Lest thy little dust become a tomb.
Desire is the soul of this world of hue and scent,
The nature of everything is a storehouse of desire.
Desire sets the heart dancing in the breast. 275

And by its glow the breast is made bright as a mirror.
 It gives to earth the power of soaring.
 It is a Khizr to the Moses of perception.”
 From the flame of desire the heart takes life,
 And when it takes life, all dies that is not true. 280
 When it refrains from forming desires,
 Its opinion breaks and it cannot soar.
 Desire keeps the Self in perpetual uproar.
 It is a restless wave of the Self's sea.
 Desire is a noose for hunting ideals, 285
 A binder of the book of deeds.
 Negation of desire is death to the living,
 Even as absence of heat extinguishes the flame.

1. Cf. Quran ch. 18. vv. 64-80. Khizr represents the mystic seer whose actions are misjudged by persons of less insight.

What is the source of our wakeful eye?
 Our delight in seeing hath taken visible shape. 290
 The partridge's leg is derived from the elegance of its gait,
 The nightingale's beak from its endeavour to sing.
 Away from the seed-bed, the reed became happy:
 The music was released from its prison.¹
 What is the essence of the mind that strives after new discoveries and scales the heavens?
 295
 Knowest thou what works this miracle
 'Tis desire that enriches Life,
 And the mind is a child of its womb.
 What are social organisation, customs and laws?
 What is the secret of the novelties of science? 300

1. I.e., the reed was made into a flute.

A desire which realised itself by its own strength
And burst forth from the heart and took shape.
Nose, hand, brain, eye, and ear,
Though, imagination, feeling, memory, and understanding
All these are weapons devised by Life for self-preservation 305
In its ceaseless struggle,
The object of science and art is not knowledge,
The object of the garden is not the bud and the flower
Science is an instrument for the preservation of Life.
Science is a means of invigorating the Self. 310
Science and art are servants of Life,
Slaves born and bred in its house.
Rise, O thou who art strange to Life 's mystery,

Rise intoxicated with the wine of an ideal, 315
An ideal shining as the dawn,
A blazing fire to all that is other than God,
An ideal higher than Heaven—
Winning, captivating, enchanting men's hearts
A destroyer of ancient falsehood,
Fraught with turmoil, and embodiment of the Last Day. 320
We live by forming ideals,
We glow with the sunbeams of desire!

Showing that the Self is strengthened by Love.¹

THE luminous point whose name is the Self
Is the life-spark beneath our dust.
By Love it is made more I sting, 325
More living, more burning, more glowing.
From Love proceeds the radiance of its being.
And the development of its unknown possibilities.
Its nature gathers fire from Love,
Love instructs it to illumine the world. 330
Love fears neither sword nor dagger,

1. For the sense which Iqbal attaches to the word "love," see the Introduction, p. xxv.

Love is not born of water and air and earth.
 Love makes peace and war in the world,
 Love is the Fountain of Life, Love is the flashing sword of Death.
 The hardest rocks are shivered by Love's glance: 335
 Love of God at last becomes wholly God,
 Learn thou to love, and seek a beloved:
 Seek an eye like Noah's, a heart like Job's !
 Transmute thy handful of earth into gold,
 Kiss the threshold of a Perfect Man!¹ 340
 Like Rumi, light the candle
 And burn Rum in the fire of Tabriz !²
 There is a beloved hidden within thine heart:

1. A prophet or saint.

2. See note on line 95, Tabriz is an allusion to Sbams-i-Tabriz the spiritual director of Jalāl-u'ddīn Rūmī

I will show him to thee, if thou hast eyes to see.
 His lovers are fairer than the fair, 345
 Sweeter and comelier and more beloved.
 By. love of him the heart is made strong
 And earth rubs shoulders with the Pleiades.
 The soil of Najd was quickened by his grace
 And fell into a rapture and rose to the skies¹ 350
 In the Muslim 's heart is the home of Muhammad,
 All our glory is from the name of Muhammad.
 Sinai is but an eddy of the dust of his house,
 His dwelling-place is a sanctuary to the Ka'ba itself.

1. Najd. the Highlands of Arabia, is celebrated in love-remance, I need only mention Liala and Majnun.

Eternity is less than a moment of his time,
Eternity receives increase, from his essence.
He slept on a mat of rushes,
But the crown of Chosroes was under his people's feet.
He chose the nightly solitude of Mount Hira,
And he founded a state and laws and government. 360
He passed many a night with sleepless eyes
In order that the Muslims might sleep on the throne of Persia.
In the hour of battle, iron was melted by the fash of his sword;
In the hour of prayer, tears fell like rain from his eye.
When he prayed for Divine help, his sword answered "Amen" 365
And extirpated the race of kings.

He instituted new laws in the world,
 He brought the empires of antiquity to an end.
 With the key of religion he opened the door of this world:
 The womb of the world never bore his like. 370
 In his sight high and low were one,
 He sat with his slave at one table.
 The daughter of the chieftain of Tai was taken prisoner in battle”
 And brought into that exalted presence
 Her feet in chains, unveiled, she was, 375
 And her neck bowed with shame
 When the Prophet saw that the -, poor girl had no veil,
 He covered her face with his own mantle.
 We are more naked than that lady of Tai,
 We are unveiled before the nations of the world. 380

1. Her father Hātim of Tai, is proverbial in the East for his hospitality.

In him is our trust on the Day of Judgement,
And in this world too he is our protector.
Both his favour and his wrath are entirely a mercy:
That is a mercy to his friends and this to his foes.
He opened the gate of mercy to his enemies, 385
He gave to Mecca the message, "No penalty shall be laid upon you."
We who know not the bonds of country
Resemble sight, which is one though it be the light of two eyes.
We belong to the Hijaz and China and Persia,
Yet we are the dew of one smiling dawn. 390
We are all under the spell of the eye of the cup bearer from Mecca,
We are united as wine and cup.
He burnt clean away distinctions of lineage.

His fire consumed this trash and rubble.
 We are like a rose with many petals but with one perfume: 395
 He is the soul of this society, and he is one
 We are the secret concealed in his heart:
 He spake out fearlessly, and we were revealed.
 The song of love for him fills my silent reed,
 A hundred notes throb in my bosom. 400
 How shall I tell what devotion he inspires ?
 A block of dry wood wept at porting from him.'
 The Muslim's being is where he manifests his glory:
 Many a Sinai springs from the dust on his path.
 My image was created by his- mirror, 405

1. The story of the pulpit that wept when Muhammad descended from it occurs. I think. in the Masnavi.

My dawn rises from the sun of his breast.
 My repose is a perpetual fever,
 My evening hotter than the morning of Judgment Day:¹
 He is the April cloud and I his garden,
 My vine is bedewed with his rain. 410
 I sowed mine eye in the field of Love
 And reaped, a harvest of vision.
 “The soil of Medina is sweeter than both worlds:
 Oh, happy the town where dwell the Beloved! “²
 I am lost in admiration of the style of Mulla Jami: 415
 His verse and prose are a remedy for my immaturity.

1. When according to Muhammadans belief, the sun will rise in the west.
2. A quotation from the Masnavi. The Prophet was buried at Medina.

He has written poetry overflowing with beautiful ideas;
And has threaded pearls in praise of the Master-
“Muhammad is the preface to the book of the universe;
All the worlds are slaves and he is the Master.” 420
From the wine of Love spring many spiritual qualities:
Amongst the attributes of Love is blind devotion.
The saint of Bistam, who in devotion was unique,
Abstained from eating a water-melon.¹
Be a lover constant in devotion to thy beloved, 425
That thou mayst cast thy nose and capture God.

1. Bāyazīd of Bīstān died in A.D. 875. He refused to eat a water-melon, saying he had no assurance that the Prophet had even tested that fruit.

Sojourn for a while on the Hira of the heart.¹
 Abandon self and flee to God.
 Strengthened by God, return to they self
 And break the heads of the Lat and Uzza of sensuality.² 430
 By the might of Love evoke an army
 Reveal thyself on the Faran of Love,³
 That the Lord of the Ka'ba may show thee favour
 And make thee the object of the text, "Lo, I will appoint a vicegerent on the earth."⁴

1. Muhammad used to retire to a cave On Mount Hirā near Mecca. for purpose of solitary meditation.
2. Lāt and Uzā were goddesses worshipped by the heathen Arabs- O neighborhood
3. Farān, name of a mountain in the of Mecca
4. Koran, ch. 2,v, 28. in them words, which were addressed to the angels. God foretold the creation of Adām.

Showing that the Self is weakened by asking

O THOU who hast gathered taxes from lions, 435
Thy need hath caused thee to become a fox in disposition.
Thy maladies are the result of indigence:
This disease is the source of thy pain.
It is robbing thine high thoughts of their dignity
And putting out the light of thy noble imagination. 440
Quaff rosy wine from the jar of existence!

Snatch thy money from the purse of Time!
 Like Omar, come down from thy camel!¹
 Beware of incurring obligations, beware!
 How long wilt thou sue for office 445
 And ride like children on a reed?
 A nature that fixes its ghaze on the sky
 Becomes debased by receiving benefits.
 By asking, poverty is made more abject;
 By begging, the beggar is made poorer, 450
 Asking disintegrates the Self
 And deprives of illumination the Sinai bush of the Self.
 Do not scatter thy handful of dust;
 Like the moon, scrape food from thine own side!
 Albeit thou art poor and wretched 455
 And overwhelmed by affliction,

1. This alludes to a story told of the Caliph Omar, who while riding a camel dropped his whip and insisted on dismounting in order to pick it up himself.

Seek not thy daily bread from the bounty of another,
Seek not water from the fountain of the sun.
Lest thou be put to shame before the Prophet
On the Day when every soul shall be stricken with fear. 460
The moon gets sustenance from the table of the sun
And bears the brand of his bounty on her heart.
Pray God for courage! Wrestle with Fortune!
Do not sully the honour of the pure religion!
He who swept the rubbish of idols out of the Ka'ba 465
Said that God loves a man that earns his living.
Woe to him that accepts bounty from another's table

And lets his neck be bent with benefits!
 He hath consumed himself with the lightning of the favours bestowed on him,
 He hath sold his honour for a paltry coin, 470
 Happy the man who thirsting in the sun
 Does not crave of Khizr a cup of water!"
 His brow is not moist with the shame of beggary;
 He is a man still, not a piece of clay,
 That noble youth walks under heaven 475
 With his head erect like the pine
 Are his hands empty? The more is he master of himself.
 Do his fortunes languish? The more alert is he.
 A whole ocean, if gained by begging is but a sea of fire;

1. Khizr is supposed to have drunk of the Fountain of life.

Sweet is a little dew gathered by one's own hand.
Be a man of honour, and like the bubble.
Keep the cup inverted ever. in the midst of the sea

480

1. The bubble is compared to an inverted cup. which of course receives nothing.

Its command is obeyed by Darius and Jamshid. 490
I will tell thee a story of Bu Ali,¹
Whose name is renowned in India,
Him who sang of the ancient rose-garden
And discoursed to us about the lovely rose:
The air of his fluttering skirt 495
Made a Paradise of this fire-born country.
His young disciple went one day to the bazaar
The wine of Bu Ali's discourse had turned his head.
The governor of the city was coming along on horseback,
His servant and staff-bearer rode beside him. 500

1. Sheikh Sharafu'ddin of Panipat, who is better known as Bu Ali Qalandar, was a great saint. He died about A.D. 1325.

The forerunner shouted, "O senseless one,
Do not get in the way of the governor's escort !"
But the dervish walked on with drooping head,
Sunk in the sea of his own thoughts.
The staff-bearer, drunken with pride, 505
Broken his staff on the head of the dervish.
Who stepped painfully out of the governor's way.
Sad and sorry, with a heavy heart.
He came to Bu Ali and complained
And released the tears from his eyes. 510
Like lightning that falls on mountains,
The Sheikh poured forth a fiery torrent of speech.
He let loose from his soul a strange fire,
He gave an order to his secretary:

"Take thy pen and write a letter 515
 From a dervish to a sultan!
 Say, 'Thy governor has broken my servant's head;
 He has cast burning coals on his own life.
 Arrest this wicked governor,
 Or else I will bestow thy kingdom on another. 520
 The letter of the saint's who had access to God
 Caused the monarch to tremble in every limb.
 His body was filled with aches,
 He grew as pale as the evening sun.
 He sought out a handcuff for the governor 525
 And entreated Bu Ali to pardon this offence.
 Khusrau, the sweet-voiced eloquent poet.'

1. Amir Khusrau of Delhi, the most celebrated the Persian poets of India,

Whose harmonies flow from the mind
And whose genius hath the soft brilliance of moonlight,
Was chosen to the king's ambassador. 530
When he entered Bu Ali's presence and played his lute,
His song melted the fakir's soul like glass.
One strain of Poesy bought the grace
Of a kingdom that was firm as a mountain.
Do not wound the heart of dervishes, 535
Do not throw thyself into burning fire creative

VI

A tale of which the moral is that negation of the Self is a doctrine invented by the subject races of mankind in order that by this means they may sap and weaken the character of their rulers.

HAST thou heard that in the time of old
The sheep dwelling in a certain pasture
So increased and multiplied
That they feared no enemy? 540
At last, from the malice of Fate,
Their breasts were smitten by a shaft of calamity.
The tigers sprang forth from the jungle
And rushed upon the sheepfold
Conquest and dominion are signs of strength, 545

Victory is the manifestation of strength.
Those fierce tigers beat the drum of sovereignty,
They deprived the sheep of freedom.
For as much as tigers must have their prey,
That meadow was crimsoned with the blood of the sheep. 550
One of the sheep which was clever and acute.
Old in years, cunning was a weather beaten wolf,
Being grieved at the fate of his fellows
And sorely vexed by the violence of the tigers,
Made complaint of the course of Destiny 555
And sought by craft to restore the fortunes of his race.
The weak, in order to preserve themselves,
Seek device from skilled intelligence.

In slavery, for the sake of repelling harm,
The power of scheming becomes quickened. 560
And when the madness of revenge gains hold,
The mind of the slave meditates rebellion.
“Ours is a hard knot,” said this sheep to himself,
“The ocean of our griefs hath no shore,
By force we sheep cannot escape from the tiger: 565
Our legs are silver, his paws are steel.
'Tis not possible, however much one exhorts and counsels.
To create in a sheep the disposition of a wolf.
But to make the furious tiger a sheep-that is possible:
To make him unmindful of his nature-that is possible.” 570

He became as a prophet inspired,
 And began to preach to the blood-thirsty tigers.
 He cried out, "O ye insolent liars,
 Who want not of a day of ill luck that shall continue for ever!¹
 I am possessed of spiritual power, 575
 I am an apostle sent by God for the tigers.
 I come as a light for the eye that is dark,
 I come to establish laws and give commandments.
 Repent of your blameworthy deeds;
 O plotters of evil, bethink yourselves of good! 580
 Whose is violent and strong is miserable:
 Life's solidity depends on self-denial.
 The spirit of the righteous is fed by fodder:

1. These expressions are borrowed from the Koran,

The vegetarian is pleasing unto God,
The sharpness of your teeth brings disgrace upon you 585
And makes the eye of your perception blind.
Paradise is for the weak alone,
Strength is but a means to perdition.
It is wicked to seek greatness and glory,
Penury is sweeter than princedom. 590
Lightning does not threaten the cornseed:
If the seed become a stack, it is unwise.
If you are sensible, you will be a mote of sand, not a Sahara,
So that you may enjoy the sunbeams.
O thou that delightest in the slaughter of sheep, 595
Slay thy self, and thou wilt have honour!
Life is rendered unstable
By violence, oppression, revenge, and exercise of power.

Though trodden underfoot, the grass grows up time after time
 And washes the sleep of death from its eye again and again. 600
 Forget thy self, if thou art wise!
 If thou dost not forget thy self, thou art mad.
 Close thine eyes, close thine ears, close thy lips,
 That thy thought may reach the lofty sky!
 This pasturage of the world is naught, naught: 605
 O fool, do not torment thy phantom!
 The tiger-tribe was exhausted by hard struggles,
 They had set their hearts on enjoyment of luxury.
 This soporific advice pleased them,

1. Quoted from the Masnavi.

In their stupidity they swallowed the charm of the sheep. 610
He that used to make sheep his prey
Now embraced a sheep's religion.
The tigers took kindly to a diet of fodder:
At length their tigerish nature was broken.
The fodder blunted their teeth 615
And put out the awful flashings of their eyes.
By degrees courage ebbed from their breasts,
The sheen departed from mirror.
That frenzy of uttermost exertion remained not,
That craving after action dwelt in their hearts no more. 620
They lost the power of ruling and the resolution to be independent,
They lost reputation, prestige, and fortune.

Their paws that were as iron became strengthless;
Their souls died and their bodies became tombs.
Bodily strength diminished while spiritual fear increased; 625
Spiritual fear robbed them of courage.
Lack Of courage produced a hundred diseases—
Poverty, pusillanimity, low mindedness.
The wakeful tiger was lulled to Slumber by the sheep's charm
He called his decline Moral Culture. 630

VII

To the effect that Plato, whose thought has deeply influenced the mysticism and literature of Islam, followed the sheep's doctrine, and that we must be on our guard against his theories'

PLATO, the prime ascetic and sage.
Was one of that ancient flock of sheep.

1. The direct influence of Platonism on Muslim thought has been comparatively slight. When the Muslims began to study Greek philosophy, they turned to Aristotle. The genuine writings of Aristotle, however, were not accessible to them. They studied translations of books passing under his name, which were the work of Neoplatonists, so that what they believed to be Aristotelian doctrine was in fact the philosophy of Plotinus, Proclus, and the later Neoplatonic school. Indirectly, therefore, Plato has profoundly influenced the intellectual and spiritual development of Islam and may be called, if not the father of Mohammedan mysticism, at any rate its presiding genius.

His Pegasus went astray in the darkness of idealism
And dropped its shoe amidst the rocks of actuality.
He was so fascinated by the invisible 635
That he made hand, eye, and ear of no account.
“To die,” said he, “is the secret of Life:
The candle is glorified by being put out.”
He dominates our thinking,
His cup sends us to sleep and takes the sensible world away from us.640
He is a sheep in man's clothing,
The soul of the Sufi bows to his authority.
He soared with his intellect to the highest heaven
And called the world of phenomena a myth.
'Twas his -work to dissolve the structure of Life' 645

And cut the bough of Life's fair tree asunder.
The thought of Plato regarded loss as profit,
His philosophy declared that being is not-being.
He natures drowsed and created a dream
His mind's eye created a mirage. 650
Since he was without any taste for action,
His soul was enraptured by the nonexistent.
He disbelieved in the material universe
And became the creator of invisible Ideas.
Sweet is the world of phenomena to be living spirit, 655
Dear is the world of Ideas to the dead spirit:
Its gazelles have no grave of movement,
Its partridges are denied the pleasure of walking daintily.

Its dewdrops are unable to quiver,
 Its birds have no breath in their breasts, 660
 Its seed does not desire to grow,
 Its moths do not know how to flutter.
 Our recluse had no remedy but flight:
 He could not endure the noise of this world.
 He set his heart on the glow of a quenched flame 665
 And depicted a word steeped in opium.
 He spread his wings towards the sky
 And never came down to his nest again.
 His fantasy is sunk in the jar of heaven:
 I know not whether it is the dregs or brick of the wine-jar.¹ 670
 The peoples were poisoned by his intoxication:
 He slumbered and took no delight in deeds.

1. I.e., it is worthless sg anyhow. In the East a brick is placed beneath or over the wine-jar. Some Muslim writers confuse Plato with Diogenes the Cynic, who is said to have lived in a cask.

VIIIConcerning the true nature of Poetry and reform of Islamic Literature.

'TIS the brand of desire makes the blood of man run warm,
By the lamp of desire this dust is enkindled.
By desire Life's cup is brimmed with wine, 675
So that Life leaps to its feet and marches briskly on.
Life is occupied with conquest alone,
And the one charm for conquest is desire.
Life is the hunter and desire the snare,
Desire is Love's message to Beauty. 680
Wherefore doth desire swell continuously

The bass and treble of Life's song?
Whatsoever is good and fair and beautiful
Is our guide in the wilderness of seeking,
Its image becomes impressed on thine heart, 685
It creates desires in thine heart.
Beauty is the creator of desire's springtide,
Desire is nourished by the display of Beauty.
'Tis in the poet's breast that Beauty unveils,
'Tis from his Sinai that Beauty's beams arise. 690
By his look the fair is made fairer,
Through his enchantments Nature is more beloved.
From his lips the -nightingale hath learned her song,
And his rouge hath brightened the cheek of the rose.

'Tis his passion burns in the heart of the moth, 695
 'Tis he that lends glowing hues to love tales.
 Sea and land are hidden within his water and clay¹-
 A hundred new Worlds are concealed in his heart,
 Ere tulips blossomed in his brain
 There was heard on note of joy or grief. 700
 His music breathes o'er us a wonderful enchantment,
 His pen draws a mountain with a single hair.
 His thoughts dwell with the moon and the stars,
 He creates beauty and knows not what is ugly.
 He is a Khizr, and amidst his darkness is the Fountain of Life:² 705

1. i e., in his body.

2. Khizr, according to the legend, discovered the Fountain of Life in the Land of Darkness.

All things that exist are made more living by his tears.
Heavily we go, like raw novices,
Stumbling on the way to the goal.
His nightingale hath played a tune
And laid a plot to beguile us. 710
That he may lead us into Life's Paradise,
And that Life's bow may become a full circle
Caravans march at the sound of his bell
And follow the voice of his pipe;
When his zephyr blows in our garden, 715
It slowly steals into the tulips and roses.
His witchery makes Life develop itself
And become self-questioning and impatient.
He invites the whole world to his table;
He lavishes his fire as though it were cheap as air. 720
Woe to a people that resigns itself to death.

And whose poet turns away from the joy of living!
His mirror shows beauty as ugliness,
His honey leaves a hundred stings in the heart.
His kiss robs the rose of freshness, 725
He takes away from the nightingale's heart the joy of flying.
The sinews are relaxed by his opium,
Thou payest for his song with the life.
He bereaves the cypress of delight in its beauty.
His cold breath makes a pheasant of the male falcon. 730
He is a fish. and from the breast upward a man,
Like the Sirens in the ocean,
With his song he enchants the pilot
And casts the ship to the bottom of the sea.
His melodies steal firmness from thine heart, 735

His magic persuades thee that death is life.
He takes from thy soul the desire of existence,
He extracts from thy mine the blushing ruby.
He dresses gain in the garb of loss,
He makes everything praiseworthy blameful 740
He plunges thee in a sea of thought
And makes thee a stranger to action.
He is sick, and by his words our sickness is increased
The more his cup goes round, the more sick are they -that quaff it.
There are no lightning rains in his April, 745
His garden is a mirage of colour and perfume.
His beauty hath no dealings with Truth,
There are none but flawed pearls in his sea.

Slumber he deemed sweeter than waking:
Our fire was quenched by his breath. 750
By the chant of his nightingale the heart was poisoned:
Under his heap of roses lurked a snake.
Beware of his decanter and cup!
Beware of his sparkling wine!
O thou whom his wine hath laid low 755
And who look'st to his glass for thy rising dawn,
O thou whose heart hath been chilled by his melodies,
Thou hast drunk deadly poison through the ear!
Thy way of life is a proof of thy degeneracy,
The strings of thine instrument are out of tune, 760
'Tis pampered ease hath made thee to wretched,

A disgrace to Islam throughout. the world,
 One can bind thee with the vein of a rose.
 One can wound thee with a zephyr.
 Love hath been put to shame by thy wailing, 765
 His fair picture hath been fouled by thy brush.
 Thy illness hath paled his cheek,
 The coldness hath taken the glow from his fire.
 He is heartsick from thy heart sicknesses,
 And enfeebled by thy feeblenesses. 770
 His cup is full of childish tears,
 His house is furnished with distressful sighs.¹
 He is a drunkard begging at tavern doors.

1. In this passage the author assails the Persian and Urdu poetry so much in favour with his contemporaries.

Stealing glimpses of beauty from lattices,
Unhappy, melancholy, injured, 775
Kicked well-nigh to death by the warder;
Wasted like a reed by sorrows,
On his lips a store of complaints against Heaven.
Flattery and spite are the mettle of his mirror,
Helplessness his comrade of old; 780
A miserable base-born underling
Without worth or hope or object,
Whose lamentations have sucked the marrow from thy soul
And driven off gentle sleep from thy neighbours' eyes.
Alas for a love whose fire is extinct, 785
A love that was born in the Holy Place and died in the house of idols!
Oh, if thou hast the coin of poesy in thy purse,

Rub it on the touchstone of Life!
 Clear-seeing thought shows the way to action,
 As the lightning-flash precedes the thunder. 790
 It behoves thee to meditate well concerning literature,
 It behoves thee to go back to Arabia
 Thou must needs give thine heart to the Salma of Arady,¹
 That the morn of the Hijaz may blossom from the night of Kurdistan².

1. Arabic odes usually began with a prelude in which the poet makes mention of his beloved and her name is often Salmā Here “the Salmā of Araby” refers to purely Muslim ideals in literature and religion.

2. It is related that an ignorant Kurd came to some students and besought them to instruct him in the mysteries of Sūfism. They told him that he must fasten a rope to the root of his house, then tie the loose end to his feet and suspend himself head downwards, and that he must remain in this posture as long as possible, reciting continually some words of gibberish which they taught him. The poor man did not perceive that he was being mocked. He followed their instructions and passed the whole night repeating the words given him. God rewarded his faith and sincerity by granting him illumination, so that he became a saint and could discourse learnedly on the most abstruse matters of mystical theology. Afterwards he used to say, “In the evening I was Kurd but the next morning I was an Arab.”

Thou hast gathered roses from the garden of Persia 795
And seen the springtide of India and Iran:
Now taste a little of the heat of the desert,
Drink the old wine of the date!
Lay thine head for once on its hot breast.
Yield thy body awhile to its scorching wind! 800
For a long time thou hast turned about on a bed of silk:
Now accustom thyself to rough cotton!
For generations thou hast danced on tulips
And bathed thy cheek in dew, like the rose:
Now throw thyself on the burning sand 805
And plunge in to the fountain of Zamzam!
How long wilt thou fain lament like the nightingale ?

How long make thine abode in gardens?
O thou whose auspicious snare would do honour to the Phoenix,
Build a nest on the high mountains, 810
A nest embosomed in lightning and thunder,
Loftier than eagle's eye,
That thou mayst be fit for Life's battle,
That thy body and soul may burn in Life's fire!

IX

*Showing that the education of the Self has three stages:
Obedience, self-control, and Divine Vicegerence.*

1. OBEDIENCE

SERVICE and toil are traits of the camel, 815
Patience and perseverance are ways of the camel.
Noiselessly he steps along the sandy track,
He is -the ship of those who voyage in the desert.
Every thicket knows the print of his foot:
He eats seldom, sleeps little, and is inured to toil. 820

He carries rider, baggage, and litter:
 He trots on and on to the journey's end,
 Rejoicing in his speed,
 More patient in travel than his rider, -
 Thou, too, do not refuse the burden of Duty: 825
 So wilt thou enjoy the best dwellingplace, which is with God.
 Endeavour to obey, O heedless one!
 Liberty is the fruit of compulsion.
 By obedience the man of no worth is made worthy;
 By disobedience his fire is turned to ashes. 830
 Whoso would master the sun and stars,
 Let him make himself a prisoner of Law!
 The air becomes fragrant when it is imprisoned in the flower-bud;
 The perfume become musk when it is confined in the -navel of the muskdeer.

The star moves towards its goal 835
With head bowed in surrender to a law.
The grass springs up in obedience to the law of growth:
When it abandons that, it is trodden underfoot.
To burn unceasingly is the law of the tulip.
And so the blood leaps in its veins 840
Drops of water become a sea by the law of union,
And grains of sand became a Sahara.
Since Law makes everything strong within,
Why dost thou neglect this source of strength?
O thou that art emancipated from the old Custom.¹ 845
Adorn thy feet once more with the same fine silver chain!

1. The religious law of Islam

Do not complain of the hardness of the Law.
Do not transgress the statutes of Muhammad!

2. SELF-CONTROL

Thy soul cares only for itself, like the camel:
It is self-conceited, self-governed, and self-willed. 850
Be a man, get its halter into thine hand,
That thou mayst become a pearl albeit thou art a potter's vessel.
He that does not command himself
Becomes a receiver of commands from others.
When they moulded thee of clay, 855
Love and fear were mingled in thy making:
Fear of this world and of the world to come, fear of death,
Fear of all the pains of earth and heaven;

Love of riches and power, love of country,
 Love of self and kindred and wife. 860
 Man, in whom clay is mixed with water, is fond of ease,
 Devoted to wickedness and enamoured of evil.
 So long as thou hold'st the staff of "There is no god but He,"¹
 Thou wilt break every spell of fear.
 One to whom God is as the soul in his body, 865
 His neck is not bowed before vanity.
 Fear finds no way into his bosom,
 heart is afraid of none but Allah.
 Whoso dwells in the world of Negation.²
 Is freed from the bonds of wife and child. 870
 He withdraws his gaze from all except God

1. The first article of the Mohammedan creed.

2. I.e., denies every object of worship except Allah

And lays the knife to the throat of his son.¹
 Though single, he is like a host in onset:
 Life is cheaper in his eyes than wind.
 The profession of Faith is the shell, and prayer is the pearl within it:875
 The Moselm's heart deems prayer a lesser pilgrimage.²
 In the Muslim's hand prayer is like a dagger.
 Killing sin and forwardness and wrong.
 Fasting makes an assault upon hunger and thirst.
 And breaches the citadel of sensuality. 880
 The pilgrimage enlightens the soul of the Faithful:
 It teaches separation from one's home and destroys attachment to one's native land;

1. Like Abraham when he was about to sacrifice Isaace. of (as Muslims generally believe) Ishmael.

2. The lesser pilgrimage (umra) is not obligatory like the greater pilgrimage (hajj)

It is an act of devotion in which all feel themselves to be one,
 It binds together the leaves of the book of religion,
 Almsgiving causes love of riches to pass away 885
 And makes equality familiar;
 It fortifies the heart with righteousness,¹
 It increases wealth and diminishes fondness for wealth.
 All this is a means of strengthening thee:
 Thou art impregnable, if thy Islam be strong. 890
 Draw might from the litany "O Almighty One!"
 That thou mayst ride the camel of thy body.²

1. The original quotes part of a verse in the Koran (ch. 3. v. 86), where it is said, "Ye shall never attain unto righteousness until ye give in aims of that which ye love."

2. "., overcome the lusts of the flash.

3. DIVINE VICEGERENCY¹

If thou canst rule thy camel, thou wilt rule the world.
 And wear on thine head the crown of Solomon.
 Thou wilt be the glory of the world whilst the world lasts, 895
 And thou wilt reign in the kingdom incorruptible.
 'Tis sweet to be God's vicegerent in the world
 And -exercise sway over the elements.
 God's vicegerent is as the soul of the universe,
 His being is the shadow of the Greatest Name. 900

1. Here Iqbal interprets in his own way the Sūfi doctrine of the Insān al-kāmil or Perfect Man, which teaches that every man is potentially a microcosm and that when he has become spiritually perfect, all the Divine attributes are displayed by him, so that as saint prophet he is the God-man, the representative and vicegerent of God on earth.

He knows the mysteries of part and whole,
He executes the command of Allah in the world.
When he pitches his tent in the wide I world.
He rolls up this ancient carpet¹
His genius abounds with life and desires to manifest itself: 905
He will bring another world into existence.
A hundred worlds like this world of parts and wholes
Spring up, like roses, from the seed of his imagination.
He makes every raw nature ripe,
He puts the idols out of the sanctuary.
Heart-strings give forth music at his touch. 910
He wakes and sleeps for God alone.

1. ie. his appearance marks the end of an epoch.

He teaches age the melody of youth
 And endows every thing with the radiance of youth.
 To the human race he brings both a glad message and a warning, 915
 He comes both as a soldier and as a marshal and prince.
 He is the final cause of "God taught Adam the names of all things,"¹
 He is the inmost sense of "Glory to Him that transported His servant by night."²
 His white hand is strengthened by the staff.³
 His knowledge is twined with the power of a perfect man. 920
 When that bold- cavalier seizes the reins,

1. Koran ch. 2. v. 29. The Ideal Man is the final cause of creation.

2. Koran. ch. 17. v. 1, referring to the Ascension on the Prophet

3. For the white hand (of Moses) of Koran. ch. 7. v. 105. ch. 26. v. 32. and Exodus, ch. 4, v.6.

The steed of Time gallops faster.
 His awful mien makes the Red Sea dry,
 He leads Israel out of Egypt.
 At his cry, "Arise," the dead spirits 925
 Rise in their bodily tomb, like pines in the field.
 His person is an atonement for all the world,
 By his grandeur the world is saved.'
 His protecting shadow makes the mote familiar with the sun,
 His rich substance makes precious all that exists, 930
 He bestows life by his miraculous actions,
 He renovates old ways of life.
 Splendid visions rise from the print of his foot.
 Many a Moses is entranced by his Sinai.

1. These four lives may allude to Jesus, regarded as a type of the Perfect Man.

He gives a new explanation of Life, 935
A new interpretation of this dream.
His hidden life is being Life's mystery.
The unheard music of Life's harp.
Nature travels in blood for generations.
To compose the harmony of his personality. 940
Our handful of earth has reach the zenith,
For that champion will come forth from this dust
There sleeps amidst the ashes, of our To-day
The flame of a world consuming morrow.
Our bed enfolds a garden of roses, 945
Our eyes are bright with to-morrow's dawn.
Appear, O rider of Destiny!
Appear, O light of the dark realm of Change
Illumine the scene of existence.

Dwell in the blackness of our eyes! 950
Silence the noise of the nations,
Imparadise our ears with thy music!
Arise and tune the harp of brotherhood,
Give us back the cup of the wine of love !
Bring once more days of peace to the world, 955
Give a message of peace to them that seek battle !
Mankind are the cornfield and thou the harvest,
Thou art the goal of Life's caravan.
The leaves are scattered by Autumn's fury
Oh, do thou pass over our gardens as the Spring! 960
Receive from our downcast brows
The homage of little children and of young men and old !
It is to thee that we owe our dignity
And silently undergo the pains of life.

XSetting forth the inner meaning of the names of Ali

ALI is the first Muslim and the King of men, 995
In Love's eyes Ali is the treasure of the Faith.
Devotion to his family inspires me with life
So that I am as a shining pearl.
Like the narcissus, I am entraptured with gazing:
Like perfume, I am straying though his pleasure garden. 970
If holy water gushes from my earth, he is the source;
If wine pours from my grapes, he is the cause.

I am dust, but his sun hath made me as a mirror:
 Song can be seen in my breast.
 From Ali's face the Prophet drew many a fair omen, 975
 By his majesty the true religion is glorified
 His commandments are the strength of Islam:
 All things pay allegiance to his House.
 The Apostle of God gave him the name Bu Turab;
 God in the Koran called him "the Hand of Allah." 980
 Every one that is acquainted with Life's mysteries
 Knows what is the inner meaning of the names of Ali.
 The dark clay, whose name is the body—
 Our reason is ever be moaning its iniquity.
 On avvount of it our sky-reaching thought plods over the earth; 985

It makes our eyes blind and our ears deaf.
 It hath in its hand a two-edge sword of lust:
 Travelers' hearts are broken by this brigand.
 Ali, the Lion of God, subdued the body's clay
 And transmuted this dark earth to gold. 990
 Murtaza, by whose sword the splendour of Truth was revealed,
 Is named Bu Turab from his conquest of the body.¹
 Man wins territory by prowess in battle,
 But his brightest jewel is masters of himself.
 Whosoever in the world become a Bu Turab 995
 Turns back the sun from the west;²

1. Murtazā, "he. whom God is pleased," is a name of Ali Bu Turab means literally "father of earth."
 2. A miracle attributed to Ali.

Whosoever saddles tightly the seed of the body
 Sits like the bezel on the seal of sovereignty:
 Here the might of Khaibar is under his feet,¹
 And hereafter his hand will distribute the water of Kauthar.² 1000
 Through self-knowledge, he acts as God's Hand,
 And in virtue of being God's Hand he reigns over all.
 His person is the gate of the city of the sciences.³
 Arabia, China, and Greece are subject to him.
 If thou wouldst drink clear wine from thine own grapes. 1005

1. The fortress of Khaibar, a village in the Hijāz. was captured by the Muslim in A.D. 628. Ali Performed great feats of valour on this occasion.

2. A river of Paradise.

3. According to the Tradition of the Prophet, "I am the city of Knowledge and Ali is its gate."

Thou must needs wield authority over thine own earth.
To become earth is the creed of a moth:
Be a conqueror of earth; that alone is worthy of a man.
Thou art soft as a rose. Become hard as a stone,
That thou mayst be the foundation of the wall of the garden! 1010
Build thy clay into a Man,
Build thy Man into a World
Unless from thine own earth thou build - thine own wall or door.
Someone else will make bricks of thine earth.
O thou who complaints of the cruelty of Heaven, 1015
Thou whose glass cries out against the injustice of the stone,
How long this wailing and crying and lamentation ?

How long this perpetual beating of thy breast ?
The pith of Life is contained in action,
The delight in creation is the law of Life. 1020
Arise and create a new world!
Wrap thyself in flames, be an Abraham!¹
To comply with this world which does not favour thy purposes
Is to fling away thy buckler on the field of battle.
The man of strong character who is master of himself 1025
Will find Fortune complaisant.
If the world does not comply with his humour,
He will try the hazard of war with Heaven:
He will dig up the foundations of the universe

1. See note on 1,213.

And cast its atoms into a new mould. 1030
 He will subvert the course of Time
 And wreck the azure firmament.
 By his own strength he will produce
 A new world which will do his pleasure.
 If one cannot live in the world as he seems a man, 1035
 Then it is better to die like the brave.
 He that hath a sound heart
 Will prove his strength by great enterprises.
 'Tis sweet to use love in hard tasks
 And, like Abraham, to gather roses from flames ¹ 1040
 The potentialities of men of action
 Are displayed in willing acceptance of what is difficult.
 Mean spirits have no weapon but resentment,

1. The burning pyre on which Abraham was thrown lost its heat and was transformed into a rose-garden.

Life has only one law.
Life is power made manifest, 1045
And its mainspring is the desire for victory.
Mercy out of season is a chilling of Life's blood,
A break in the rhythm of Life's music.
Whoever is sunk in the depths of ignominy
Calls his weakness contentment. 1050
Weakness is the plunderer of Life,
Its womb is teeming with fears and lies.
Its soul is empty of virtues,
Vices fatten on its milk.
O man of sound judgment, beware! 1055
This spoiler is lurking in ambush
Be not its dupe, if thou art wise:
Chameleon-like, it changes colour every moment.
Even by keen observers its form is not discerned

Veils are thrown over its face. 1060
 Now it is muffled in pity and gentleness,
 Now it wears the cloak of humanity.
 Some times it is disguised as compulsion,
 Sometimes as excusability.
 It appears in the shape of self-indulgence 1065
 And robs the strong man's heart of courage.
 Strength is the twin of Truth;
 If thou knowest thyself, strength is the Truth-revealing glass.
 Life is the seed, and power the crop:
 Power explains the mystery of truth and falsehood. 1070
 A claimant, if he be possessed of power,
 Needs no argument for his claim.
 Falsehood derives from power the authority of truth,
 And by falsifying truth deems itself true.
 Its creative word transforms poison into nectar. 1075

It says to good, “Thou art bad,” and Good becomes Evil.
O thou that art heedless of the trust committed to thee,
Esteem thyself superior to both worlds¹!
Gain knowledge of Life's mysteries!
Be a tyrant! Ignore all except God ! 1080
O man of understanding, open thine eyes, ears, and lips !²
If then thou seest not the Way of Truth, laugh at me!

1. The “trust” which God offered to Man and which Man accepted, after it had been refused by Heaven and Earth (Koran. ch. 33, v. 72), is the divine vicegerency, i.e., the duty of displaying the divine attributes.

2 A parody of the verse in the Masnavi quoted above. See 1.603.

XI

*Story of a young man of Merv who came to the saint Ali Hajwiri-God have mercy on him ! and – complained mercy on
I that he was oppressed by his enemies.*

THE saint of Hajwir was venerated by the peoples,
And Pir-i-Sanjar visited his tomb as a pilgrim.,
With ease he broke down the mountain barriers 1085
And sowed the seed of Islam in India.
The age of Omar was restored by his godliness.

1, Hajwiri author of the oldest Persian treatise on Sufism, was a native of Ghazna in Afghanistan. He died at Lahore about A D. 1072 Pir-i-Sanjar is the renowned saint, Mu'inuddin, head of the Chishti order of dervishes, who died in A D. 1235 at Ajmir.,

The fame of the Truth was exalted by his words.
 He was a guardian of the honour of the Koran.
 The house of Falsehood fell in ruins at his gaze. 1090
 The dust of the Punjab was brought to life by his breath,
 Our dawn was made splendid by his sun
 He was a lover, and withal, a courier of Love:
 The secrets of Love shone forth from his brow.
 I will tell a story of his perfection 1095
 And enclose a whole rose-bed in a single bud.
 A young man, cypress-tall,
 Came from the town of Merv to Lahore.
 He went to see the venerable saint,
 That the sun might dispth is darkness. 1100
 "I am hammed in," he said, "by foes;
 I am as a glass in the midst of stones.

Do thou teach me, O sire of heavenly rank,
 How to lead my life amongst enemies!”
 The wise Director, in whose nature 1105
 Love had allied beauty with majesty,
 Answered: “Thou art unread in Life's lore,
 Careless of its end and its beginning.
 Be without fear of others!
 Thou art a sleeping force: awake! 1110
 When the stone thought itself to be glass,
 It became glass and got into the way of breaking.
 If the traveller thinks himself weak,
 He delivers his soul unto the brigand.
 How long wilt thou regard thyself as water and clay?
 Create from thy clay a flaming Sinai!
 Why be angry with mighty men?
 Why complain of enemies?
 I will declare the truth: thine enemy is thy friend:

His existence crowns thee with glory. 1120
Whosoever knows the states of the Self Considers a powerful enemy to be a blessing from God.
To the seed of Man the enemy is -as a rain-cloud:
He awakens its potentialities.
If thy spirit be strong, the stones in thy way are as water: 1125
What wrecks the torrent of the ups and downs of the road?
The sword of resolution is whetted by the stones in the way'
And put to proof by traversing stage after stage.
What is the use of eating and sleeping like a beast?
What is the use of being, unless thou have strength in thyself? 1130
When thou mak'st thyself strong with Self,
Thou wilt destroy the world at thy pleasure.

If thou wouldst pass away, become free of Self
 If thou wouldst live, become full of Self !¹
 Who is death? To become oblivious to Self. 1135
 Why imagine that it is the parting of soul and body?
 Abide in Self, like Joseph?
 Advance from captivity to empire!
 Think of Self and be a man of action
 Be a man of God, bear mysteries within!"² 1140
 I will explain the matter by means of stories,
 I will open the bud by the power of my breath.
 "Tis better that a lover's secret
 Should be told by the lips of others."

1. These lines correct the Sūfi doctrine that means of Passing away from individuality the mystic attains to everlasting life in God.

2. Le., allegorically. This verse occurs in the Masnavi.

XIIStory of the bird that was faint with thirst

A BIRD was faint with thirst, 1145
The breath in his body was heaving like waves of smoke.
He saw a diamond in the garden:
Thirst created a vision of water.
Deceived by the sun bright stone
The foolish bird fancied that it was water. 1150
He got no moisture from the gem:
He pecked it with his beak, but it did not wet his palate.
“O thrall of vain desire,” said the diamond.

Thou hast sharpened thy greedy beak on me;
 But lam not a dew drop, I give no drink, 1155
 I do not live for the sake of others.
 Wouldst thou hurt me? Thou art mad!
 A lie that reveals the Self is strange to thee.
 MY water will shiver the beaks of birds
 And break the jewel of man's like."¹ 1160
 The bird won not his heart's wish from the diamond
 And turned away from the sparkling stone.
 Disappointment swelled in his breast,
 The song in his throat became a wail.
 Upon a rose-twigg a drop of dew 1165
 Gleamed like the tear in a nightingale's eye:
 All its glitter was owing to the sun,
 It was trembling in fear ' Of the sun—

1. i.e., if he swallow a diamond, he will die.

A restless sky born star
That had stopped for a moment, from desire to be seen; 1170
Oft deceived by bud and flower,
It had gained nothing from Life.
There it hung, ready to drop.
Like a tear on the eyelashes of a lover who hath lost his heart.
The sorely distressed bird hopped under the rose-bush. 1175
The dewdrop trickled into his mouth.
O thou that wouldst deliver thy soul from enemies.
I ask thee "Art thou a drop of water or a gem ?"
When the bird melted in the fire of thirst,
It appropriated the life of another. 1180
The drop was not solid and gem-like;
The diamond had a being, the drop had none.
Never for an instant neglect Self-preservation:

Be a diamond, not a dewdrop!

Be massive in nature, like mountains,

1185

And bear on thy crest a hundred clouds laden with floods of rain!

Save thyself by affirmation of Self,

Compress thy quick silver into silver ore!

Produce a melody from the string of Self,

Make manifest the secrets of Self!

1190

XIIIStory of the diamond and the coal.

NOW I will open one more gate of truth,
I will tell thee another tale.
The coal in the mine said the diamond.
O thou entrusted with splendours eve lasting.
We are comrades, and our being is one; 1195
The source of our existence is the same,
Yet while I die here in the anguish of worthlessness,
Thou art set on the crowns of emperors.
My stuff is so vile that I am valued less than earth,
Whereas the mirror's heart is rent by thy beauty, 1200

My darkness illumines the chafing dish,
 Then my substance is incinerated at last
 Every one puts the sole of his foot on my head
 And covers my stock of existence with ashes.
 My fate must needs be deplored: 1205
 Dost thou know what is the gist of my being
 It is a condensed wavelet of smoke,
 Endowed with a single spark.¹
 Both in, feature and nature thou art star-like,
 Splendours rise from every side of thee. 1210
 Now thou become'st the light of a monarch's eye,
 Now thou adornest the haft of a dagger."
 "O sagacious friend!" said the diamond,
 "Dark earth, when hardened, becomes in dignity as a bezel.

1. These, two lines indicate the gist of the coal's being

Having been at strife with its environment, 1215
It is ripened by the struggle and grows hard like a stone.
'Tis this ripeness that has endowed my form with light.
And filled my bossom with radiance.
Because thy being is immature, thou hast become abased;
Because thy body is soft, thou art burnt. 1220
Be void of fear, grief, and anxiety;
Be hard as a stone, be a diamond!
Whosoever strives hard and grips tight,
The two worlds are illumined by him.
A little earth is the origin of the Black Stone 1225
Which puts forth its head in the Ka'aba:
Its rank is higher than Sinai,
It is kissed by the swarthy and the fair.

In solidity consists the glory of Life:
Weakness is worthlessness and immaturity.”

1230

XIV

Story of the Sheikh and the Brahmin. followed by a conversation between Ganges and Himalaya to the effect that the continuation of social life depend on firm attachments to the characteristic traditions of the community.

AT Benares lived a venerable Brahmin.

Whose head was deep in the ocean of Being and Not-being.

He had a large knowledge of philosophy

But was well-disposed to the seekers after God.

His mind was eager to explore new problems,

1235

His intellect moved on a level with the Pleiades;

His nest was as high as that of the Anka;¹
 Sun and moon were cast, like rue, on the flame of his thought.²
 For a long time he laboured and sweated,
 But philosophy brought no wine to his cup 1240
 Although he set many a snare in the gardens of learning,
 His snares never caught a glimpse of the Ideal bird;
 And notwithstanding that the nails of his thought were dabbled with blood,
 The knot of Being and Not-being remained united.
 The sighs on his lips bore witness to his despair, 1245
 His countenance told tales of his distraction.
 One day he visited an excellent Sheikh,

1. A mysterious bird, of which nothing is known except its name.
2. Rue-seed is burned for the purpose of fumigation.

A man who bad in his breast a heart of gold.
 The Brahmin laid the seal of silence on his lips.
 And lent his ear to the Sage's discourse. 1250
 Then said the Sheikh; "O wanderer in the lofty sky!
 Pledge thyself to be true, for a little, to the earth;
 Thou hast lost thy way in wildernesses of speculation,
 Thy fearless thought hath passed beyond Heaven.
 Be reconciled with -earth, O sky-traveller! 1255
 Do not. wander in quest of the essence of the stars;
 I do not abandon thine idols.
 Art thou an unbeliever; Then be worthy of the badge of unbelief!¹

1. "The badge of unbelief"; here the original has sunnār (Zwvāpiov) i.e. the sacred thread worn by Zoroastrians and other non-Muslims,

O inheritor of ancient culture,
 Turn not thy back on the path thy fathers trod; 1260
 If a people's life is derived from unity,
 Unbelief too is source of unity.
 Thou that art not even a perfect infidel,
 Art unfit to worship at the shrine-of the spirit.
 We both are far astray from the road of devotion: 1265
 Thou art far from Azar, and I from Abraham.¹
 Our Majnun hath not fallen into melancholy for his Laila's sake;
 I He hath not become perfect in the madness of love.
 When the lamp of Self-expires,
 What is the use of heaven surveying imagination ?” 1270
 Once on a time, laying hold of the skirt of the mountain,

1. Azar, the father of Abraham, was an idolater.

Ganges said to Himalaya:

“O thou mantled in snow since the morn of creation,

Thou whose form is girdled with streams,

God made thee a partner in the secrets of heaven.

1275

But deprived thy foot of graceful gait.

He took away from thee the power to walk:

What avails this sublimity and stateliness?

Life springs from perpetual movement;

Motion constitutes the wave's whole existence,” 1280

When the mountain heard this taunt from the river,

He puffed angrily like a sea of fire,

And answered: “Thy wide waters are my looking-glass;

Within my bosom are a hundred rivers like thee.

This graceful gait of thine is an instrument', of death: 1285
Whoso goeth from Self is meet to die.
Thou hast no knowledge of thine own case,
Thou exuldest in thy misfortune: thou art a fool!
O born of the womb of the revolving sky,
A fallen-in bank is better than thou! 1290
Thou hast made thine existence an offering to the ocean,
Thou hast thrown the rich purse of thy life to the highway man.
Be self-contained like the rose in the garden,
Do not 'go to the florist in order to spread thy perfume!
To live is to grow in thyself 1295
And gather roses from thine own flower bed.
Ages have gone by and my foot is fast on earth,

Dost thou fancy that I am far from my goal?
My being grew and reached the sky,
The Pleiads sank to rest under my skirts; 1300
Thy being vanishes in the ocean,
But on my crest the stars bow their heads.
Mine eye sees the mysteries of heaven,
Mine ear is familiar with angels' wings.
Since I glowed with the heat of unceasing toil, 1305
I amassed rubies, diamonds, and other gems.
I am stone within, and in the stone is fire:
Water cannot pass over my fire I”
Art thou a drop, of water? Do not break at thine own feet,
But endeavour to surge and wrestle with the sea. 1310

Desire the water of a jewel, become a jewel!
Be an ear-drop, adorn a beauty
Oh, expand thyself! Move swiftly!
Be a cloud that shoots lightning and sheds a flood of rain!
Let the ocean sue for thy storms as a beggar, 1315
Let it complain of the straitness of its skirts
Let it deem itself less -than a wave
And glide along at thy feet!

XV

Showing that the purpose of the Muslim's life is to exalt the Word of Allah, and that the Jihad (war against unbelievers), if it be prompted by land-hunger, is unlawful in the religion of Islam.

IMBUE thine heart With the tincture of Allah,
Give honour and glory to Love!
The Muslim's nature prevails by means of love:
The Muslim, if he be not loving, is an infidel.
Upon God depends his seeing and not seeing,
His eating, drinking, and sleeping.

1320

In his will that which God wills becomes lost— 1325
 “How small a man believe this saying?¹
 He encamps in the, field of “There is no god but Allah”;
 In the world he is a witness to mankind.²
 His high estate is attested by the Prophet who was sent to men and Jinn—
 The most truthful of witnesses. 1330
 Leave words and seek that spiritual state,
 Shed the light of God o'er the darkness of thy deeds!
 Albeit clad in kingly robe, live as a dervish,
 Live wakeful and meditating on God!
 Whatever thou dost, let it be thine aim therein to draw nigh to God,1335

1. see Introduction P- xix, note 1.

2. i.e., that life Of the true Muslim displays to 11161” kind the ideal realised.

That his glory may be made manifest by thee
 Peace becomes an evil, if its object aught else;
 War is good if its object is God.
 If God be not exalted by our swords
 War dishonours the people. 1340
 The holy Sheikh Miyan Mir Wali,¹
 By the light of whose soul every hidden thing was revealed
 His feet were firmly planted on the path of Muhammad,
 He was a flute for the impassioned music of love.
 His tomb keeps our city safe from harm 1345
 And causes the beams of true religion to shine on us.
 Heaven stooped its brow to his threshold,
 The Emperor of Indian was one of his disciples.²

1. A celebrated Muslim saint who died at Lahore in A.D. 1635.

2. Shah Jahan.

Now, this monarch had sown the seed of ambition in his heart
 And was resolved on conquest. 1350
 The flames of vain desire were alight in him,
 He was teaching his sword to ask, "Is there any more?"¹
 In the Deccan was a great noise of war
 His army stood on the battle field.
 He went to the Sheikh of heaven-high dignity 1355
 That he might receive his blessing:
 The Muslim turns from this world to God
 And strengthens policy with prayer.
 The Sheikh made no answer to the Emperor's speech,
 The assembly of dervishes was all ears, 1360
 Until a disciple, in his hand a silver coin,
 Opened his lips and broke the silence-,

1. Koran, ch. 50 v. 29.

Saying, "Accept this poor offering from me,
O guide of them that have lost the way to God!
My limbs were bathed in sweat of labour 1365
Before I put away a dirhem in my skirt."
The Sheikh said: "This money ought to be given to our Sultan,
Who is a beggar wearing the raiment of a king.
Though he holds sway over sun, moon, and stars,
Our Emperor is the most penniless of mankind. 1370
His eye is fixed on the table of strangers,
The fire of his hunger hath consumed a whole world.
His sword is followed by famine and plague,
His building lays wide and waste.
The folk are crying out because of his indigence; 1375

His empty handedness causes him to plunder the weak.
His power is an enemy to all:
Humankind are the caravan and he the brigand.
In his self-delusion and ignorance
He calls pillage by the name of empire 1380
Both the royal troops and those of the enemy
Are cloven in twain by the sword of his hunger.
The beggar's hunger consumes his own soul,
But the Sultan's hunger destroys state and religion.
Whoso shall draw the sword for anything except Allah, 1385
His sword is sheathed in his own breast.”

XVI

*Precepts written for the Muslims of India by Mir Najat
Nakshband, who is generally known as Bābā Sharā's¹*

O THOU that hast grown from earth, like a rose,
 Thou too art born of the womb of Self.
 Do not abandon Self Persist therein
 Be a drop of water and drink up the ocean
 Glowing with the light of Self as thou art,
 Make Self strong, and thou with endure.
 Thou gett'st profit from the trade,

1390

1. This appears to be a pseudonym assumed by the author.

Thou gain'st riches by preserving this commodity.
Thou art Being, and art thou afraid of not-being? 1395
Dear friend, thy understanding is at fault.
Since I am acquainted with the harmony of Life.
I will tell thee what is the secret of Life
To sink into thyself like the pearl,
Then to emerge from thine inward solitude; 1400
To collect sparks beneath the ashes,
And become a flame and dazzle -men's eyes.
Go, burn the house of forty years' tribulation,
Move round thyself! By a circling flame
What is Life but to be freed from moving round others 1405

And to regard thyself as the Holy Temple ?
Beat thy wings and escape from the attraction of Earth:
Like birds be safe from failing.
Unless thou art a bird., thou wilt do wisely
Not to build thy nest on the top of a cave. 1410
O thou that seekest to acquire knowledge,
I say o'er to thee the message of the Sage of Rum:¹
“Knowledge, if it lie on thy skin, is a snake;
Knowledge, if thou take it to heart, is a friend.”
Hast thou heard how the Master of Rum 1415
Gave lectures on philosophy at Aleppo?
Fast in the bonds of intellectual proofs,

1. Jalaluddin Rumi.

Drifting o'er the dark and stormy sea of understanding;
 A Moses unilluminated by Love's Sinai,
 Ignorant of Love and of Love's passion. 1420
 He discoursed on Scepticism and Neoplatonism,
 And strung many a brilliant pearl of - metaphysics.
 He unravelled the problems of the Peripatetics,
 The light of his thought made clear whatever was obscure.
 Heaps of books lay around and in front of him, 1425
 And on his lips was the key to all their mysteries.
 Shams-i-Tabriz, directed by Kamal,¹
 Sought his way to the college Of Jalauddin Rumi

1. Bābā Kamaluddin Jundi For Shams-i-Tabriz and his relation to Jalāluddin Rumi see my Selected Poems from Divān-i-Shams-i-Tabriz (Cambridge).

And cried out, "What is all 'this noise and babble ?
What are all these syllogisms and judgements and demonstrations?" 1430
"Peace, O fool!" exclaimed the Maulvi,
"Do not laugh at the doctrines of the sages.
Get thee out of my college!
This is argument and discussion; what hast thou to do with it ?
My discourse is beyond thy under standing. 1435
It brightens the glass of perception!
These words increased the anger of Shams-i-Tabriz
And caused a fire to burst forth from his soul.
The lightning of his look fell on the earth,
And the Slow of his breath made the dust spring into flames. 1440

The spiritual fire burned the intellectual stack
And clean consumed the library of the philosopher.
The Maulvi, being a stranger to Love's miracles
And unversed in Love's harmonies,
Cried, "How didst thou kindle this fire, 1445
Which hath burned the books of the philosophers ?"
The Sheikh answered, "O unbelieving Muslim,
This is vision and ecstasy: what hast thou to do with it ?
My state is beyond thy thought,
My flame is the Alchemist's elixir," 1450
Thou hast drawn thy substance from the snow of philosophy,
The cloud of thy thought sheds nothing but hailstones.
Kindle a fire in thy rubble,
Foster a flame in thy earth!

The Muslim's knowledge is perfected by spiritual fervour, 1455
 The meaning of Islam is Renounce what shall pass away.
 When Abraham escaped from the bondage of "that which sets,"¹
 He sat unhurt in the midst of flames.²
 Thou hast cast knowledge of God behind thee
 And squandered thy religion for the sake of a loaf. 1460
 Thou art hot in pursuit of antimony,
 Thou art unaware of the blackness of thine own eye.
 Seek k the Fountain of Life from the sword's edge.
 And the River of Paradise from the dragon's mouth.

1. Abraham refused to worship the sun, moon and stars, stars. saying, "I love not them that set" (Koran, 6. 6, v. 76).

2. See p. 91, note.

Demand the Black Stone from the door of the house of idols. 1465
 And the musk-deer's bladder from a mad dog,
 But do not seek the glow of Love from the knowledge of today,
 Do not seek the nature of Truth from this infidel's cup!
 Long have I been running to and fro,
 Learning the secrets of the New Knowledge 1470
 Its gardeners have put me to the trial
 And have made me intimate with their roses.
 Roses! Tulips, rather, that warn one not to smell them
 Like paper roses, a mirage of perfume.
 Since this garden ceased to enthrall me 1475
 I have nested on the Paradisal tree.
 Modern knowledge is the greatest blind
 Idol-worshipping, idol-selling, idol making!

Shackled in the prison of phenomena,
 It has not over leaped the limits of the sensible. 1480
 It has fallen down in crossing the bridge of Life,
 It has laid the knife to its own throat.
 Its fire is cold as the flame of the tulip;
 Its flames are frozen like hail.
 its nature remains untouched by the glow of Love, 1485
 It is ever engaged in joyless search.
 Love is the Plato that heals the sicknesses of the mind:¹
 The mind's melancholy is cured by its lancet.
 The-whole world bows in adoration to Love,
 Love is the Mahmud that conquers the Somnath of intellect.² 1490

1. In the Masnavi Love is called 'the physician of our pride and self-conceit, our Plato, and our Galen.

2. The famous idol of Somnath was destroyed by Sultan Mahmūd of Ghazna

Modern science lacks this old wine in its cup,
 Its nights are not loud with passionate prayer.
 Thou hast misprized thine own cypress
 And deemed tall the cypress of others.
 Like the reed, thou hast emptied thyself of Self. 1495
 And given thine heart to the music of others,
 O thou that begg'st morsels from an other's table.
 Witt thou seek thine own kind in another's shop?
 The Muslim's assembly-place is burned up by the lamps of strangers,
 His mosque is consumed by the sparks of monasticism. 1500
 When the deer fled from the sacred territory of Mecca,
 The hunter's arrow pierced her side.¹

1. The pilgrims are forbidden to kill game

The leaves of the rose are scattered like its scent:
 O thou that has fled from the Self, come back to it:
 O trustee of the wisdom of the Koran, 1505
 Find the lost unity again!
 We, who keep the gate of the citadel of Islam,
 Have become unbelievers by neglecting the watchword of Islam.
 The ancient Saqi's bowl is shattered,
 The wine-party of the Hijaz is broken up. 1510
 The Ka'ba is filled with our idols,
 Infidelity mocks at our Islam.
 Our Sheikh hath gambled Islam away for love of idols.
 And made a rosary of the zunnar.¹
 Our spiritual directors owe their rank to their white hairs 1515
 And are the laughing-stock of children in the street;

1. See p. 10, note.

Their hearts bear no impress of the Faith
 But house the idols of sensuality.
 Every long-haired fellow wears the garb of a dervish
 Alas for these traffickers in religion! 1520
 Day and night they are travelling about with disciples,
 Insensible to the great needs of Islam.
 Their eyes are without light, like the narcissus.
 Their breasts devoid of spiritual wealth.
 Preachers and Sufis, all worship worldliness alike; 1525
 The prestige of the pure religion is ruined.
 Our preacher fixed his eyes on the pagoda
 And the mufti of the Faith sold his verdict.
 After this, O friends, what are we to do?
 Our guide turns his face towards the wine-house. 1530

XVIITime is a sword

GREEN be the holy grave of Shafi'i,
Whose vine hath cheered a whole world ?
His thought plucked a star from heavens:
He named time "a cutting sword."¹
How shall I say what is the secret of this sword ? 1535
In its flashing edge there is life.
Its owner is exalted above hope and fear.
His hand is whiter than the hand of Moses.

1. Founder Of one of the four great Mohammadan school of law.

At one stroke thereof water gushes from the rock
 And the sea becomes land from dearth of moisture. 1540
 Moses held this sword in his hand,
 Therefore he wrought more than man may contrive.
 He clove the Red Sea asunder
 And made its waters like dry earth.
 The arm of Ali, the conqueror of Khaibar, 1545
 Drew its strength from this same sword
 The revolution of the sky is worth seeing,
 The change of day and night is worth observing.¹
 Look, I thou enthralled by Yesterday and Tomorrow,
 Behold another world in thine, on heart! 1550.
 Thou hast sown the seed of darkness in the clay,

1. i.e. turn you attention to the nature and meaning of Time.

Thou hast imagined Time as a line.
Thy thought measures length of Time With the measure
Of night and day.
Thou mak'st this line a girdle on thine infidel waist; 1555
Thou art an advertiser of falsehoods like idols.
Thou wert the Elixir, and thou hast become a Peck of dust;
Thou wert born the conscience of Truth and thou hast become a lie!
Art thou a Muslim girdle! Then cast of this girdle!
Be a candle to the feast of the religion of the free! 1560
Knowing not the origin of Time,
Thou art ignorant of everlasting Life.
How long wilt thou be a thrall of night and day?

Learn the mystery of Time from the words “I have a time with God.”¹
 Phenomena arise from the march of Time, 1565
 Life is one of Time's mysteries.
 The cause of Time is not the revolution of the sun
 Time is everlasting, but the sun does not last for ever.
 Time is joy and sorrow, festival and fast,
 Time is the secret of moonlight and sunlight. 1570
 Thou hast extended Time, like Space,
 And distinguished Yesterday from Tomorrow.
 Thou hast fled like a scent, from thine own garden;
 Thou hast made thy prison with thine own hand.

1. The Prophet said, “I have a time with God of such sort that neither angel nor prophet is y peer.” meaning (if we interpret his words according to the sense Of this passage) that he felt himself to be timeless.

Our Time which has neither r beginning nor end, 1575
 Blossoms from the flower-bed of our, mind.
 To know its root quickens the living with new life:
 Its being is more splendid than the dawn.
 Life is of Time, and Time is of Life:
 “Do not abuse Time !” was the command of the Prophet.¹ 1580
 Oh, the memory of those days when Time's sword
 Was allied with the strength of our hands !²
 We sowed the seed of religion in men's hearts
 And unveiled the face of Truth;
 Our nails tore loose the knot of this world, 1585

1. The Prophet is reported to have said, “Do not abuse Time. for Time is God.”

2. The glorious days when Islam first set out to convert and conquer the world.

Our bowing in prayer give blessings to the earth.
 From the jar of Truth we made rosy wine gush forth,
 We charged against the ancient taverns.
 O thou in whose cup is old wine
 A wine so hot that the glass is well nigh turned to water, 1590
 Wilt thou in thy pride and arrogance and self-conceit
 Taunt us with our emptiness?
 Our cup, too, hath graced the symposium
 Our breast hath owned a spirit.
 The new age with all its glories 1595
 Hath risen from the dust of our feet.
 Our blood hath watered God's harvest,
 All worshippers of God are our debtors.
 The takbir was our gift to the world,¹
 Ka'bas were built of our clay. 1600
 By means of us God taught the Koran,

1. The takbir is the cry "Allah-o-Akbar" "Allah is most great,"

From our hand He dispensed His bounty.
Although crown and signet have passed from us.,
Do not look with contempt on our beggarliness!
In thine eyes we are good for nothing, 1605
Thinking old thoughts, despicable.
We have honour from "There is no god but Allah."
We are the protectors of the universe.
Freed from the vexation of to-day and tomorrow.
We have pledged ourselves to love One. 1610
We are the conscience hidden in God's heart,
We are the heirs of Moses and Aaron,
Sun and moon are still bright with our radiance,
Lightning-flashes still lurk in our cloud.
In our essence Divinity is mirrored: 1615
The Muslim's being is one of the signs of God.

XVIIIAn invocation

O THOU that art as the soul in the body of the universe,
Thou art our soul and thou art ever fleeing from us.
Thou breathest music into Life's lute;
Life envies Death when death is for thy sake 1620
One more bring comfort to our sad hearts,
Once more dwell in our breasts!
Once more demand from us the sacrifice of name and fame,
Strengthen our weak love.
We are oft complaining of destiny, 1625

Thou art of great price and we have naught.
 Aide not thy fair face from the empty handed!
 Sell cheap the love of Salman and Bilal!¹
 Give us the sleepless eye and the passionate heart,
 Give us again the nature of quick silver man 1630
 Show unto us one of thy manifest signs,
 That the necks of our enemies may be bowed!
 Make this chaff a mountain crested with fire;
 Burn with out fire all that is not God!
 When the people of Islam let the thread of Unity go from their hands, 1635
 They fell into a hundred mazes.
 We are dispersed like stars in the world

1. Salman was a Persian, Bilal was Abyssianian. Both had been slaves and were devoted henchmen of the Prophet

Though of the same family, we are strange to one another.
 Rind again these scattered leaves,
 Revive the law of love! 1640
 Take us back to serve thee as of old,
 Commit thy cause to them that love thee!
 We are travellers: give us resignation as our goal!
 Give us the strong faith of Abraham!
 Make us know the meaning of "There is no God." 1645
 Make us acquainted with the mystery of "except Allah!"¹
 I who burn like a candle for the sake of others
 Teach myself to weep like that candle.
 O God! a tear that is heart-enkindling,
 Passionful, wrung forth by pain, peace consuming, 1650

1. i.e., affirmation of the Divine Unity.

May I sow in the garden, and may it grow into a fire
That washes away the fire-brand from the tulip's robe!
My heart is with yesterday, my eye is on to-morrow:
Amidst the company I am alone.
“Every one fancies he is my friend, 1655
But none ever sought the secrets within my Soul.”
Oh, where in the wide world is my comrade ?
I am the Bush of Sinai: where is my Moses?
I am tyrannous, I have done many a wrong to myself,
I have nourished a flame in my bosom, 1660
A flame that burnt to ashes the wares of understanding,
Cast fire on the skirt of discretion,
Lessened with madness the proud reason,

And inflamed the very being of knowledge:
its blaze enthrones the sun in the sky 1665
And lightnings encircle it with adoration for ever.
Mine eye fell to weeping, like dew,
Since I was entrusted with that hidden fire.
I taugth the candle to burn openly,
While I myself burned unseen by the world's eye. 1670
As last flames burst forth from every hair of me,
Fire dropped from the veins of my thought:
My nightingale picked up the grains of spark
And created a fire-tempered song.
The breast of this age is without a heart, 1675
Majnun quivers with pain because Laila's howdah is empty.

It is not easy for the candle to throb alone;
Ah, is there no moth worthy of me?
How long shall I wait for one to share my grief?
How long must I search for a confidant? 1680
O Thou whose face lends light to the moon and the stars,
Withdraw Thy fire from the soul!
Take back what Thou hast put in my breast,
Remove the stabbing radiance from my mirror,
Or give me one old comrade 1685
To be the mirror of mine all-burning love!
In the sea wave tosses side by side with wave:
Each hath a partner in its emotion.
In heaven star consorts with star,

And the bright moon lays her head on the knees of Night. 1690
 Morning touches Night's dark side,
 And To-day throws itself against Tomorrow.
 One river loses its being in another,
 A waft of air dies in perfume.
 There is dancing in every nook of the wilderness. 1695
 Madman dances with madman.
 Because in thine essence Thou art single,
 Thou hast evolved for Thyself a, whole world,
 I am as the tulip of the field,
 In the midst of a company I am alone. 1700
 I beg of Thy grace a sympathising friend,
 And adept in the mysteries of my nature,
 A friend endowed with madness and wisdom,
 One that knoweth not the phantom of vain things,

That I may confide my lament to his soul
And see again my face in his heart.
His image I will mould of mine own clay,
I will be to him both idol and worshipper.

1705

THE END